Queen's University
Library

KINGSTON, ONTARIO

Pictorial Sports Supplement, Queen's University Journal, 1932-33

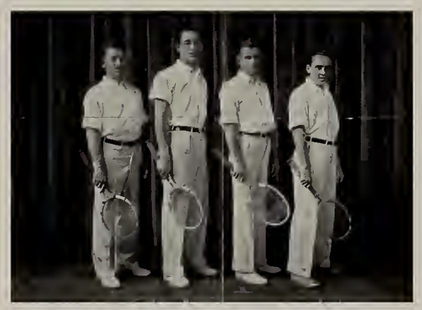
After defeating the Ottawa Rough Riders in their best match of the season the Tricolor Rugby squad copped the Intercollegiate series by losing to Varsity in Kingston.

In their next game the Queen's men were unfortunate to lose a closely contested game to Western in London, despite outstanding work by Carter, Dayond and "Weemie" Day.

This sequence of defeats was brought to an end in the ensuing game at home to McGill, when the Tricolor held a fast team of the Redmen to a 12-12 tie after a hard-fought struggle of which Storms' tackling was a prominent feature. Both Carter and Dayond played well in the backfield, and "Bud" Gorman struck a shrewd blow for Queen's when he dived at a fumble by McGill and scored a touchdown.

In Montreal for the next game the Queen's team scored its first victory of the series by a brilliant 12-1 win over McGill.

Queen's got away to a flying start scoring a rouge and a safety touch in the first few minutes, but the Red squad fought back hard and it was only determined team work by the Tricolor that brought them through to victory.

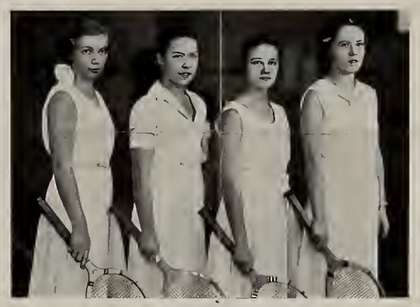


In their next encounter the Tricolor team battled Western to a 4-4 tie after a dingdong struggle with the Mustangs, in which Dayond, Kostuick, Carter, Gorman, Ralph, Hamlin and Kennedy all distinguished themselves.

The final game of the season saw the Queen's men thoroughly surclassed by the Varsity team, which consolidated its hold upon the Intercollegiate Championship by a 21-2 victory over the Tricolor.

Senior "B" and Intercollegiate Hockey Team

Intercollegiate Tennis Team



Girls' Intercollegiate Basketball Team

Water Polo Team

Senior Intercollegiate Basketball Team

Girls' Intercollegiate Tennis Team

Girls' Intercollegiate Hockey Team

Diving and Swimming Team

Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Team

Track Team

Interfaculty Rugby Champions

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1932 No. 1

Queen's Library 193213

Principal W. H. Fyfe Gives First Year Students Timely Advice At Large Gathering In Grant Hall

System Of Faculty Advisors Explained By Dean Matheson

In addressing a mass meeting of first year students in Grant Hall, Principal Fyfe stressed the allround life of the University, and that having outgrown the more elementary scholastic life college students are called to face the problems of grown-up life. Dr. Fyfe, in saying that if you were presented with a year's supply of food, you would not expect to eat it all in the last three weeks of the year, cautioned the meeting to apply this principle to the year's work. He advised the students to secure the necessary amount of rest to make their class-room work effective and that they should enjoy the social side of college life, be friendly and to remember that people in Science are human.

Dean Matheson briefly outlined the uses of the Arts Building and explained the system of class-room numbers. He also gave the list of Faculty Advisors and the rooms in which they were to meet the various groups of students after the meeting.

Many Improvements Noted On Campus

Tech. Supplies Dept. Located In Old Mill

The building reconstruction under the supervision of Mr. James Bews has now been satisfactorily completed. Improvements made in the Old Arts Building, the Old Mill and the Mechanical Laboratory will surprise any old timer visiting these buildings.

Not only has the Old Arts Building been completely fire-proofed, but renovations of all stories have provided excellent classrooms, laboratories and offices. An important addition is the Morgan Memorial Chapel which was made possible by a donation from a Queen's Alumni in the Indian Civil Service. Convocation Hall now has a sloping floor, but the other proposed changes were not thought feasible this year.

Housed in the front of the Old Mill is the Technical Supplies Dept. Repairs have been carried out in both the Old Mill and the Mechanical Laboratory, among others the installation of an Engineering Society Club Room, plumbing up of the Tool House, and shifting of the carpenter shop to the second floor. Both buildings have been reshingled and repainted greatly improving their appearance.

Tickets For Game

Student regular tickets will not be good for the Ottawa-Queen's rugby game Saturday . An admission charge of 35c will prevail for this top-notch exhibition.

Queen's Graduates Win Scholarships

Winners Will Attend English Universities

Two of the four 1851 Science Research Scholarships allotted to Canada came to Queen's this year through the efforts of Gordon S. Farnham, B.A., B.Sc., of Ottawa, and William J. Henderson, B.A. of Wingham.

These scholarships having an annual value of £250 and tenable for two years were awarded under the foundation of Her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851.

The other two scholarships went to McGill students.

Mr. Farnham will carry on further research work at the University of Manchester, England, while Mr. Henderson will proceed to Cambridge. The latter has also obtained from the National Research Council of Canada a bursary of $600, and the Dominion Exhibition Scholarship of Trinity College.

Unfortunately Mr. Henderson will not be able to hold the National Research bursary.

The feat of winning these scholarships is a distinct honour to Queen's. Farnham will carry on his research work in chemistry while Henderson will do further work in Physics. Farnham was very active during his stay at Queen's. He performed ably on several Intercollegiate basketball teams while last year he was elected to the A.M.S. Executive.

The winners have already taken up their posts and Queen's will await with interest news of further laurels.

Wet Weather Holds Up Tennis Practices

The damp weather of the early part of the week has put a damper to tennis activities, but the courts have been quite busy since more peasonable weather has put in an appearance.

No definite information is available at the present regarding prospects for the 1932 edition of the Queen's Intercollegiate tennis team. Graduation and ineligibility have played havoc with last year's squad —Sheppard and McIntosh having graduated, while Doug. Grant, College Champion, and Graham Thompson, were victims of the spring examinations. It is believed Doug. Muir will be available, while Butler and Charland are also on hand and displaying good tennis.

The Queen's hopes were heartened by the appearance of Conolly, Ottawa College star, who has registered in Commerce, and who is a sure bet for the team.

It is expected that a meeting will be held shortly to make arrangements for the coming college tournament.

Govenor - General Will Attend Annual Fall Convocation, On Novermber 5 th

Premier Geo. Henry And Owen D. Young, Will Also Receive Honorary Degrees.

Queen's will have the privilege of receiving among the ranks of their honoured graduates, on November 5th, at the annual Fall Convocation, their excellencies, the Governor-General of Canada and Lady Bessborough. Owen D. Young, author of the Young Plan for Reparations, and Premier Henry of Ontario will also be among the honoured.

The Convocation will take place in the morning of Saturday, November 5th. In the afternoon the Queen's senior football team plays the Mustangs of Western University at the Richardson Stadium.

November 4th and 5th have also been set as the dates for the annual alumni reunion. The classes of all faculties for the years '72, '82, '92, '02, '07, '12, '22 and '27, are the ones especially invited to reunite. The Alumni of all other years are also cordially invited.

Memorial Chapel To Be Dedicated Soon

Morgan Chapel Gift Of Mr. A. Badenoch

Notable in the reconstruction program carried out during the summer months is the completion of a new chapel on the second floor of Theology Hall.

The building of the new chapel, to be known as the Morgan Memorial Chapel, has been made possible through the generosity of Mr. A. Cameron Badenoch, of the Indian Civil Service, who last year gave £1000 to the Queen's Theological College to provide for a memorial to his uncle, the late Dr. William Morgan, and Mrs. Morgan.

The seating capacity, is is estimated, will provide room for about ninety people. The pews, wall panels, ceiling and chancel are of dark oak. Three memorial windows add much to the beauty and dignity of this restful place of worship.

It is expected that the chapel will serve the Theological College as a lieu for morning worship, as well as for the regular S.C.M. meetings.

Principal H. A. Kent when approached Thursday morning expressed satisfaction with the work. Decoration of the walls has yet to be completed and work is still being done on the chancel. But in possibly a weeks' time will be ready for tht theology students to hold their morning devotions. Members attending the Theological Convocation this fall have a welcome surprise in store for them.

Staff Changes For Session Announced

Visiting Professors Included On Staff

Staff changes to take effect this semester are not so numerous as in other years.

They occur in the departments of Classics, German, English and Biology and Philosophy.

Mr. Harold S. Shurtleff, a grad-uate student of Yale will replace Prof. L. E. Law, who has been granted leave of absence to take his Phd. in London, England.

Dr. Heinrich Henel of Frankfurt and Munich Universities becomes Professor of German. Dr. O. L. Bockstahler will take the post of assistant professor.

In the Department of Philosophy the promotion of Dr. Gregory Vlastus from Lecturer to Assistant Professor takes effect at once.

Mr. M. H. Irvine, M.A., resumes his duties in the English Department after an absence of two years. Mr. Irvine has been studying under Professor Quiller-Couch, the noted critic, at Cambridge University.

In the Department of Biology Prof. Stanley, formerly of the National Research Bureau, becomes Professor of Botany. Prof. Stanley fills the vacancy occasioned by the sudden death of Prof. Klugh last May.

Dr. W. A. Mackintosh this season will resume his full time duties in the Economics and Political Science department after being engaged with the National Geographical Survey in its relation to Pioneer problems.

Busy Scenes Enacted As Registration And Class Activities Take Campus By Storm

The portals of the University have opened for the ninety-second session. The early part of the week was taken up with registration. Yesterday morning lectures in all faculties began and bristling activity was apparent everywhere.

Definite information as to registration figures are not available as yet, but it is believed, the total registration will not fall much below last year's mark.

Every student is actively engaged at the present in securing books, instruments and all necessary equipment.

Notices of organization meetings have already made their appearances on the several bulletin boards about the university, and a few days' time will see the launching of the many undergraduate clubs and year organizations upon their 1932 programmes.

Every afternoon, about the hour of three sees many students wending their way to the stadium for an eye-full of this year's edition of the new Tricolor football machine. The damp weather has kept the tennis players off the courts, but with the sun will come the racket wielders. Other groups find their afternoon entertainment by attending the matinee at the movie theatres. The college is definitely open.

Queen's Footballers Get Baptism Of Fire Against Ottawa Rough Riders At Stadium To - Morrow

Rugby Aspirants Will Be Given Opportunity To Figure In Game

Tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 the faithful fans will get a peek at the hopes for Senior Tricolor machine, when the Ottawa entry in the Big Four, will be here for an exhibition tilt.

After a week of heavy line work, a well conditioned team will be sent into action. Coach Burt has a wealth of talent to choose from and this game will give him an opportunity of determining how the boys will stand up under fire. It is certain that every worthy aspirant will get a chance to show his stuff and the battle for places will be on.

While little is known of the Ottawa team, it can be counted upon to make it highly interesting for the University aggregation. Ottawa has not had a contending team in the Big Four for some seasons now, but as that league has shown itself to be somewhat faster than the Intercollegiate, fans will not be disappointed at the calibre of football

(Continued on page 6)

Mr. Kyte Welcomes Freshmen To Library

Value Of Reading Is Stressed By Speaker

Here is one of the largest libraries in Canada. You have at your command over 125,000 volumes dealing with almost every subject. If you give it a chance this Library will be of the greatest help to you in your studies and a source of the deepest pleasure. This was in substance the Freshmen's introduction to the Douglas Library by Mr. E. C. Kyte, the genial librarian.

In stressing the value of reading Mr. Kyte pointed its use in forming a background, enriching one's life, providing new ideas and thoughts, and enlarging one's vocabulary. He advised the Freshmen to read good books. Just as the library is the key to the University, the catalogue is the key to the library. It is necessary to know how to use it, he advised. It's use is quite simple.

One need not fear the elementary proceedure required to obtain the loan of a book. The preliminaries should not embarrass any one to the extent of refraining from using a book especially desired.

The duty of the borrower does not stop with signing the card, however. The book should be returned within the prescribed time.

In closing Mr. Kyte pleaded for the proper care of books taken out. A special warning was also issued to the effect that books should never be taken off the racks unless the borrower has signed for them.

Union Again Ready To Serve Students

A great deal of time and effort has been expended in renovating the Students' Memorial Union of the University this summer, and it is now in readiness for the use of the students. The Warden of the Union, who recently returned from a trip to his native Scotland, has expressed his pleasure at the splendid appearance presented by the building. Already several Kingston citizens who have visited the Union have commented favorably and were unanimous in the opinion that the Common Room is the best club-room in the city.

The exterior of the building has been reprinted and the surrounding grounds beautified with the result that the Union is now comparable in appearance to any structure on the campus. The whole of the interior has been repainted and brightened. New furniture has been added to the Common Room, including extra card-tables to take care of the large number of bridge players, and the floor has been re-

Continued on page 8

Music Department At Summer School

Choral Instruction Offered To Students

An interesting innovation at the Summer School this year was the appointment to the staff of Mr. Edoardo Petri, Director of Choral Music at the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. Mr. Petri offered choral instruction to regular summer school students as well as private tuition.

Mr. Petri planned to have a school of music established at Queen's in connection with the Summer School. His work was largely in the nature of an experiment in which the University co-operated to its fullest extent. A public performance was given on August 13 and was so successful that it is expected that the attempt will be repeated next summer.

The Journal learns from reliable source that many students and Kingstonians took advantage of this excellent opportunity to further the knowledge of choral singing and to participate in the well balanced public performance presented.

Dr J. A. MacGregor, Med. '21 of New York City was actively interested in having Mr. Petri come to Queen's for this special work.

Reporters Wanted

There are several openings on the Journal news staff for reporters. All those interested may leave their names, addresses and phone numbers at the College Post Office or call E. H. Gilmour, 3469.

158621

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3468 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. S. HAZEN—4134-W ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY ..... LITERARY EDITOR

NEWS STAFF

L. Smith ..... Arts '34 A. Sutherland ..... Arts '33
Bruce May ..... Arts '35 A. C. Toner .....
C. Milne ..... Sc. '34

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30th, 1932

Welcome!

The University Campus, quiet for the few weeks between the closing of Summer School and the opening of the Fall Session, has once again taken on an active appearance as students scurry here and there in haste, intent on registering and locating the proper classroom at the proper hour.

For many this is the first session, but for all who are with us an interesting and profitable stay is assured in return for a reasonable amount of common sense, good will and industry.

It is gratifying, indeed, to see that so many have taken advantage of the multiple benefits a university course offers. The toll exacted by the depression has not decimated our ranks too severely. It behooves every one to settle down from the very beginning of the session and apply himself to the task at hand with determination and persistance.

It is only natural that the students entering Queen's for the first time, finding themselves among new surroundings, feel somewhat out of the picture. Should such a complex arise it should be dispelled at once. For now as ever, the spirit of one for all and all for one should prevail. We suggest that from the very outset the Freshman year give solid support to the many undergraduate organizations.

To the Freshmen and Freshettes the Journal at this time extends a hearty welcome and wishes them the best of luck.

Our Advertisers

We respectfully wish to call your attention to the business houses who are using the Journal as an advertising medium, for it is the advertisers who make a college publication, such as this one, possible. This year has been a particularly bad season for local merchants yet the majority of the leading stores have seen fit to advertise with us again. They expect results, of course, and it is only fair that the students keep faith with them. By this we mean that whenever you wish to purchase any line give preference to those merchants whose advertisements you see in these columns. In many cases special concessions have been made to Queen's students, and it is to your advantage that you should make use of them.

A common complaint of the student is that the paper has too much advertising in proportion to its reading space, but it is well to bear in mind that the Alma Mater Society is not a wealthy organization and the Journal, therefore, is expected to be self supporting. The future will, perhaps, change all this, but for the present we must make the best of what we have. So again we say—Patronize the Advertisers.

India Understands

Canadians are apt to look amusingly at Gandhi's self-enforced fast. But in India such a dramatic gesture carries a tremendously powerful appeal. The one thing that stirs the people of India is self-sacrifice.

Gandhi's astuteness led him to realize that his one hope rested in the consolidation of Indian opinion. He made a mistake in going to the London conference, for he proved his utter incapacity as a diplomat.

But in deciding to commit slow suicide as a protest against features of the British offer to India, he had in mind that his death, or as events proved, a long continued hunger strike, would unite all factions in India.

That he was successful proves that he had chosen the most powerful weapon in India.

Official Notices

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's office.

Physical Examinations

All students at the University for the first time must have a physical examination. Appointments for men are made at the Registrar's office. Women students should consult Miss Ethelwynne Murphy.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

Recent Additions to Library

Books received in Douglas Library, August-September, 1932.

Kostychev, S.—Chemical Plant Physiology.
Onslow, M. W.—The Principles of Plant Biochemistry, Part I.
Kranzlein, G.—Aluminium Chloride in der Organischen Chemie.
Oatley, C. W.—Wireless Receivers, the Principles of Their Design.
Evans, A. W.—Warburton and the Warburtonians.
Lounsbury, Thomas R.—Studies in Chaucer.
Bordeaux, H.—La Revenaute.
Bourget, P.—Le Diamant de la Reine.
Dekobra, M.—La Volupte Eclairant le Monde.
Green, J.—Epaves.
Lancaster, H. C.—History of French Dramatic Literature in the Seventeenth Century, Part II.
Mauriac, F.—Commencements d'une Vie.
Maurois, A.—Le Cercle de Famille.
Thomas of Britain—Romance of Tristram and Ysolt.
Adams, J. T.—The Adams Family.
Buchan—The Life of Sir Walter Scott.
Bruce, James—Travels to Discover the Source of the Nile, In the Years 1768-1773.
Chase, Stuart and Tyler, Marian—Mexico: A Story of Two Americas.
Clapham, J. H.—An Economic History of Modern Britain, Vol. II. Free Trade and Steel, 1850-1886.
Eddy, W. A.—(ed.)—Satires and Personal Writings by Jonathan Swift.
Elgood, Lt.-Col. P. G.—Bonaparte's Adventure in Egypt.
Force, M. F.—From Fort Henry to Corinth, N.Y., 1881.
Harwood, T. E.—Windsor, Old and New.
Lemieux, L. J.—The Governors-General of Canada, 1608-1931.
Mathews, Wm.—Words, Their Use and Abuse, 1882.
Rogers, J. C.—Furniture and Furnishing.
Sidney (Sir) P.—An Apologie for Poetrie, 1595.
Willson, B.—In the Ypres Salient, 1916.
Rosenberg, A.—The Birth of the German Republic.
Mitchison, Naomi—The Powers of Light.
Todd, M. L. (ed.)—Letters of Emily Dickinson.
Newton, A. P. (ed.)—The Great Age of Discovery.
Conway, R. S.—Makers of Europe.
Shaw, A. N. and Douglas, A. V.—The Total Eclipse of the Sun, 1932.
Jacobs, P. P.—The Control of Tuberculosis in the United States.

BOOK CHATS

By R.M.

In the course of the past three years, butchers, bakers and candlestick makers have all had their say about the queer malady that has layed up old man capitalism. And a plethora of books ranging from wildly irrational tracts to strait-laced economic text books, has flooded the world. It has been hard for anyone to get an intelligent grasp of the case under these conditions. Every man is entitled to his views and nowadays no stigma is attached to the corner-grocery-store man if he believes in outright communism. How much better, however, is a lucid analysis of the causes with reforms based on existing foundations.

This is what Sir Arthur Salter has done in Recovery, The Second Effort (The Century Co.) Sir Arthur held the post of Director of the economic section of the League of Nations for eleven years. (1919-1930). He cannot be called a professional politician or economist, but he is certainly very familiar with both fields. The reception accorded his book since its publication last spring is ample proof of its merit.

Sir Arthur compares the economic and financial structure to an intricate structure built by a beaver or an ant under the guidance of instinct, not reason. What we want now he says, is a planned economy. Reason must be used to correct what instinct has created. Blind competition must cease. The whole scheme of things hitherto has been based on the Laissez-faire doctrine. This has led to narrow nationalism, international rivalry for markets, complications from tariff walls and war debts, bringing about world chaos. After recounting the stages that have led up to the depression the author makes some suggestions for reform.

A few paragraphs are not adequate to outline in any detail the gist of Sir Arthur Salter's book. I only hope to give a very general idea of his proposals. The second part deals with economic and financial reforms, chiefly, The Monetary System, The World's Credit System, War Debts, Tariffs, and Cartels. Part III. is entitled "The Political Scene" and deals with the political tension preceding July 1931; Versailles, and the Kellogg Pact.

Reparations have been levied on Germany out of all proportion to what she is able and willing to pay, we are told. Moreover, high tariffs have acted in the nature of a blockade. impoverished Germany can only pay in goods, yet her goods are barred. What is she to do? Before the kinks in the capitalistic chain can be removed the world must be assured of some measure of peace.

Disarmament is a necessity. This achieved, Sir Arthur would reform the credit system. "Foreign investment must be within a secure framework of world policy." Economic organization is a further reform suggested—co-operation among leaders to estimate demand. And as a further safeguard to public interest he advocates more government in business and less business in government. "Above all Government is failing because it has become inmeshed in the task of giving discretionary, partial preferential privileges to competitive industry by methods which involve detailed examination and subject it to sectional pressure."

A reading of this book leaves one with a much clearer idea of the complications and intricacies of our present-day world economic order. Sir Arthur Salter does not propose to scrap the capitalistic system as so many advanced thinkers do.

Lawrence Dennis, an American banker, in "Is Capitalism Doomed?" also proposes to stand by our present organization. But he isn't quite so ready to acknowledge the maladjustments as the former League of Nations official. Mr. Dennis does stress economic planning, but he still cleaves to many old dogmas. This extract is typical:

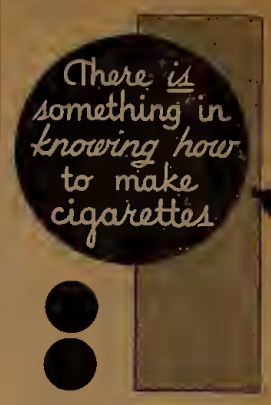
"The farmer is in reality a manufacturer and the soil is his most essential machine. One farmer in three is making sound profits. The plain fact is that the average American farmer has been employing methods which cannot possibly produce an ordinary standard of living."

Dr. T. R. Glover in "Democracy and Religion" (Mount Allison University Press) gives voice to a philosophy that is becoming more and more prevalent among our business leaders to-day when he says, "we need a wider vision, a better appreciation of laws—economic, social, and political, and a fuller realization of the unity of mankind."

Queen's College Song

Editor's Note:

By popular request we reprint at this time the words of the new Queen's College Song introduced last year:



Sing to the praise of Queen's University,
Joined as we are in one great fraternity,
Proudly we cherish her,
Our Alma Mater dear,
Hail to the crimson, the gold and the blue!
This old Gaelic seat of learning
Keeps the torch of friendship burning,
May the fame of her name be spread by the flame
Till the wide world re-echoes cha-gheil and cha-gheil,
Sing to the praise of Queen's University,
Joined as we are in one great fraternity,
Proudly we cherish her,
Our Alma Mater dear,
Should once again for Queen's, Queen's, Queen's!

NOT LIKELY

Barber (shaving a customer): "Will you have anything on your face when I've finished sir?"

Victim: "Well, it doesn't seem likely."

SINGLE BED-ROOM FOR MAN
Warm and Bright
35 Clergy St. Phone 2604-m

HOW else can anyone account for the growth in popularity which is enjoyed by Canada's favourite Blended Cigarette?

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS!
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor:

There are all kinds of rumours going round the University that Freshmen this year are to escape the rigors of initiation. I can't believe that the Sophomores will let this be put over them but we should all like to know what the real position is. After all we were told last year that Queen's was sinking ignobly down into the gutter of effeminacy, and how are we to be redeemed (always, of course, allowing for the heroic work of the C.O.T.C.) if the mettle of the newcomers to our ranks is not to be severely tested. How, for instance, is the riot of holding hands in the library or clandestine necking around the Principal's office to be abolished except by leading our Frosh along the strait and narrow path of initiation?

Yours curiously,

JUNIOR.

THE NEWCOMER

I saw him first upon the train
a slightly anxious expressim on his face. I admired the shine of his hair; the natty cut of his clothes and the delicate flush of youth upon his cheek. My glance rested a moment upon his voluminous baggage and remarked the proud care with which Queen's University labels were plastered co-spicuously on it.

The very polish on his shoes proclaimed him beyond mistake for what he was. I gave him a slight smile of encouragement, "Welcome to Kingston, Freshman," I said.

Coach Is Satisfied With Track Prospect

Track prospects for Queen's are bright this year, according to Coach Knox. Already a good number of new men have turned out whose records as High School athletes make it reasonable for us to expect big things of them.

The loss of Art. Scott, last year's winner of the 100 and 220 yard dashes, who has returned to Notre Dame, and Mert McKennon, star pole vaulter, who graduated in Science, will be felt considerably.

Hugh Way, Ken Ruffman, Jack Cliff, Roger Nunn, Furino, Champagne, and many others of last year's aggregation have been seen on the track. Kostuick, star shotputter is out for rugby, but he can be counted on for the Intercollegiate meet, which will be held in Toronto this year.

Coach Knox advises that there is an opening for each and every potential star. The team will not be chosen until after the Interfaculty meet to be held a week prior to the Intercollegiate meet.

NO HERO THEN

A man may smile in the face of death,
But there never will be found
A man who can draw a placid breath
When his garters are coming down.

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Alma Mater Society

STATEMENT OF INCOME AND EXPENSE

for the period April 21/32 to September 24/32.

Income		Expense
Balance in Bank, Apr. 30	$ 221 09	Petty Cash	$ 10 03
Interest on Bank Bal. to May 31	16 54	Reserve Fund	1000 00
Sundry Receipts	6 20	Sundry Expense	40 95
Bills Collected re Journal	253 51	Tricolor Expense	436 00
Fees	13 00	Cash on Hand	100 94
Journal Controlling Account	526 50
Tricolor Receipts:
Advertising 68 75
Subscriptions 3 52
Journal Control 23 50
Business Manager 455 31
	551 08
	$1587 92		$1587 92

Balance Sheet as at September 24/32.

Assets		Liabilities
Cash on Hand	$ 100 94	Printing	$ 11 06
Petty Cash	10 00	Auditor's Honorarium 1931-2	75 00
Reserve Fund	1683 84	Tricolor Liabilities	262 72
		Surplus	1446 00
	$1794 78		$1794 78

The following Assets, some of doubtful value, have not been entered on the books.

Tricolours on hand (37 at $3)	$ 111 00
Journal Advertising 1931-2 uncollected	292 78
Tricolour Advertising uncollected	31 00
Science Representative re Tricolour	30 00
	$ 440 78

The Reserve Fund on deposit with the Treasurer of the University includes interest to March 31/32. It may not be withdrawn for current expenses except in case of dire need, and then only on the order of the Alma Mater Society Executive at which a three quarters attendance is registered, and three quarters of those present vote in favour.

This fund was increased during the year 1931-2 by $1000.00.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY JOURNAL

STATEMENT OF INCOME AND EXPENSE

for the period April 21/32 to September 24/32

Income		Expense
Cash in Bank April 21/32	$ 394 28	Editorial Expense	$ 11 74
Subscriptions	9 00	Demand Loan Interest	8 40
Advertising	289 90	Sundry Expense	7 10
Interest on Victory Bond	13 75	Commissions and Honoraria	50 19
		A.M.S. Control	526 50
		Balance in Bank, Sept. 24/32	103 00
	$ 706 93		$ 706 93

Balance Sheet as at September 24/32.

Assets		Liabilities
Cash in Bank September 24/32	$ 103 00	Sundry	$ 3 75
Victory Bond	500 00	Demand Note Payable	261 47
Loan Receivable	295 40	Surplus	633 18
	$ 898 40		$ 898 40

Sport Comment

With one exhibition game with Sarnia under their belt and a battle with Hamilton Tigers in the offing, the Western Mustangs worthy champions of the Intercollegiate last season, are training and perfecting plays to point towards their second straight title.

While the Mustangs have lost a few of their regulars of last season, they have been bolstered by the addition of some promising recruits, and must therefore be considered as very serious contenders for the championship again. They lost their first start against Sarnia, and it will be interesting to see how they perform against Tigers.

With the Intercollegiate track and field meet not so far away those aspiring for places on the Tricolor team are advised to get going early. Walter Knox, one of the smartest coaches in Canada will again be in charge of the workouts and he will be at the stadium every afternoon, commencing Thursday, Sept. 29th. There must be a host of material in the University and all who are interested in athletics are urged to turn out at once.

While Hobbs is considered head coach at Varsity, it is no secret that one Warren Stevens, who made the Montreal team last season with his forward passing, is at Varsity for one purpose and that is to instill some of his magic into the Big Blue Team. While the Toronto team looked wobbly at times against St. Michaels last Saturday, exhibition affairs are not always reliable, and it can be taken for granted that Varsity will field a team that will extend the Tricolor to the limit to win, when they open the season here on October 8th. Varsity and Argos get together in the Toronto championship series to-morrow and a further slant on their ability may be gleaned from that battle.

McGill has been doing a great deal of advertising regarding their training and aspirations, but the wily Shaughnessy, can be counted upon to take full advantage of the opportunities presented by the forward pass, as a ground gainer. Many considered the Red Team, as good as any in the Intercollegiate last season and they can be counted upon to again start a tricky, fast and powerful team.

THOUGHTS WILL OUT

The country doctor called to see a female patient.

"I suppore you consider me an old humbug," he laughed, as he felt the woman's pulse and at the same time tried to put over his best bedside manner.

"Well, I never," gasped the patient incredulously. "I had no idea you could ascertain a woman's thoughts by just feeling her pulse."

Depression College Planned In Virginia

The United Press is the author of the following story which appeared in several American dailies:

A "depression university," with a faculty that works for room and board only, will spring up this October in the Virginia hills, it was announced today.

It is the result of a plan evolved by Dr. A. C. C. Hill, Jr., professor of economics at Springfield College, and it has enlisted the aid of such prominent men as Undersecretary of State William R. Castle and Dr. John Henry MacCraeken, associate director of the American Council of Education.

In many respects Depression University will resemble other colleges. In other ways it will differ radically from conventional schools. There will be no football team, for instance, but all undergraduates interested in athletics will have a chance to win their "D" in fishing.

Hunting probably will be a major sport, too, with the idea in mind that after a hard day on the athletic field the student can bring home their dinner.

"Our undergraduate body probably will be limited to 100," Hill said. The inclusive fee for each student will be $250, covering all living expenses as well as tuition. The students will care for their own rooms and will take turns in such duties as waiting on table and washing dishes.

"The basic idea of the depression College is simplicity itself. It is designed to cut the vicious circle whereby unemployment increases among college teachers as the result of financial difficulties in the families of college students.

"There will be nothing wildly experimental or unduly conservative in the institution. We plan a faculty of 20 experienced teachers who in addition to thorough academic training will be able to adapt themselves to the conditions of our undertaking. These teachers will be unpaid, but will receive room and board and opportunity to continue their own professional studies in a congenial environment."

Property for Depression University has been leased at Port Royal, Va., 70 miles from Washington on the Rappahannock River. Two old manor houses and an abandoned town hall will house the students, and the "stadium" will consist of the fishing streams and hunting fields nearby. Advice of the quartermaster corps was sought so the university dining room could be conducted on the army ration basis.

"We are starting out without any money," Hill said. "It will be necessary to get several students to pay their tuition in advance or we will be without operating expenses. Because of the temporary character of the university we will grant no degrees.

"There will be no instructions in the physical science because we have no laboratory equipment. But there will be examinations and at the end of the year certificates will be given on the basis of those examinations."

The matter of a college yell will not be taken up until the hunting season is well under way.

LAST HOPE

The squad of recruits had been taken out to the rifle range for their first try at markmanship. They knelt at 250 yards and fired. Not a hit. They were moved up to 200 yards. Not a hit. They tried it at 100. Not a hit.

"Tenshun!" the sergeant bawled. "Fix bayonets! Charge! It's your only chance."

A. M. S. News

A number of matters of considerable importance have arisen in connection with Alma Mater Society affairs since college closed in the spring. In the first place the sum of $1,000 has been added to the A.M.S. Reserve Fund held in trust by the Treasurer of the University. It speaks well for the economical and efficient administration of last year's Executive that the amount deposited in this Fund in the one year 1931-2 should exceed the accumulated Reserve of the past 10 years. For the coming year an equally economical policy must be pursued if the A.M.S. is to meet its obligations on a fee of $2 per student instead of $3 as heretofore.

President Desmond Burke, M.D., C.M., has refused to accept as satisfactory an unaudited financial statement presented by the Business Manager of the Tricolor. The only apparent liability of the Tricolor is a bill of $262.72 for engraving. Advertisers and one of the Faculty Representatives owe the Tricolor $61.00. There are also a number of unsold Tricolors on hand. These will be disposed of through the University Post Office for $3.00 each.

A considerable amount of Journal advertising for the year 1931-2 remains uncollected. Part of this asset is bad, much is of doubtful value. The Journal for the coming year has suffered a decided loss in the unexpected resignation of Mr. T. D. Connochie as Business Manager. Until the Journal Staff and the A.M.S. executive have the opportunity of making a permanent appointment, Mr. H. J. Hamilton, B.A. (who has been Editor and also Business Manager), will carry on the duties of this position.

A number of problems faces the Executive when it meets in the A.M.S. rooms in the Union on Monday evening. Besides the appointment of Business Manager of the Journal, someone must be selected to secure advertising on commission and to arrange for the publication of the Students' Directory. Arrangements must also be made for the annual A.M.S. elections which are to be held early in October.

Throughout the entire college year the Executive will have the problem of putting A.M.S. and Journal affairs on a thoroughly business-like basis. The preceding executive did a geat deal to re-introduce honesty, efficiency and economy into Student Self-government, of, by and for the students is to justify itself.

EPITAH

Here lies the body of William Jay
Who died disputting the right of way,
He was right—dead right, and and his case was strong,
And yet he's as dead as if he'd been wrong.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

Special to Students

ACTUAL
$35.00
and $45.00
VALUES

Suits

With Extra Trousers
Tailored To Your Measure
FOR

27.50

From Fine West of England Worsteds in Blue, Brown and Grey Stripes and Shadow Weaves, also 1802 Blue Botany Serge—
Come in and select your suit length

Football Schedule Given Away—Call and Get One

LIVINGSTONS

Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.

IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Queen's Prominent In Bisley Rifle Meet

Two Queen's men, both recent graduates were outstanding in the achievements of the Canadian team in the National Rifle Association's Empire meeting at Bisley, England, which concluded on July 16th. As well as heading the victorious Canadians in the contest for the Kolapore Cup, Lieutenant Desmond Burke, Med. '32, captured the all-round individual honours of the shoot, and Captain James W. Houlden, Sc. '27, won the King's Prize Silver Medal.

Dr. Burke took the Grand Aggregate Prize and the All-Comers' Aggregate, tests of consistent marksmanship over a wide variety of ranges in a number of individual matches. He also won the Science Rifle Championship, taking the challenge cup, gold badge, and a nominal cash award. Captains Houlden's medal is the prize for the highest score in the second stage of the service-rifle shooting, the King's Prize contest. In the last stage Captain Houlden was beaten out by four English marksmen, and though only four points behind the winner, finished fifth.

While at University, Jimmy Houlden led the Tricolour rifle team to victory in the Intercollegiate contests for two successive years. He was also prominent in the Engineering Society during his years here. He has been a point-gaining member of the Canadian Bisley team since 1926.

Dr. Burke graduated last Spring, but has been known far and wide as "Burke of Bisley" for many years. This was the ninth time he represented Canada at Bisley.

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

Famous Quacks

"Nay, we see the weakness and credulity of men is such that they will often prefer a mountebank or witch before a learned physician."
LORD BACON,
(Advancement of Learning).

The world is still beset with those people who make a living out of the credulity and ignorance of others, but thanks to the efforts of organized Medical Societies, and the higher standard of education generally, these charlatans usually have something to show in the way of a logical method at least. Though there are those who will cheerfully pay a so-called "drugless practitioner" to thumb their spine, and expect a cure therefrom, the majority want something for their money. Imagination plays a great part in some of the reputed cures, and in such cases, little damage is done. It is, however, a too often occurring fact that actual damage is caused by these unscrupulous, yet clever people.

The history of quackery, if it were written on a scale that should include the entire number of those frauds which may be generally classed under the head of humbug, would be the history of the human race in all ages and climes. Good Queen Anne knighted an ignorant tailor, William Reade, who professed to be able to cure the disease from which the monarch was suffering. He is responsible for a book —"A Short and Exact Account of the Diseases of the Eye," which was written by a confederate, for Reade could not read. The book is at present in the British Museum. Another oculist of the period was a Doctor Grant, whose methods are still employed. His plan was to treat some poor person with medicine and half-crowns for a week or so, then induce him to sign a testimonial to the effect that he had been born blind, and had never enjoyed any visual power until he placed himself in the care of Dr. Grant, who cured him in less than a month.

Diet played a great part in the "cures" of the early quacks, even as now, and a certain Rev. John Hancock, D.D., preached the doctrine of stewed prunes, which was a specific in cases of blood spitting. He was also an exponent of Pliny's water cure, and his book, "Febrifugum Magnum, or Common water the best cure for Fevers, and probably for the plague," was immensely popular in the early part of the eighteenth century.

A famous charlatan of the early nineteenth century was a Dr. Myersbach, who bought his degree at the University of Erfurth. He was the originator and distributor of the infamous "Ailhaud's Powders," which found their way to nearly every country in Europe, and were responsible for the death of almost as many as were destroyed in all of Napoleon's campaigns. Through the fortunes acquired by the sale of this nostrum, Myersbach came into possession of three baronies, and passed a happy and quiet old age in Europe as the Baron de Castelet.

A certain French quack sold a nostrum at the price of five francs a bottle. It was not a cure, but the continued use of it would so benefit the patient that he would live to the age of one hundred and fifty. The directions were to drink it at stated periods, and to lead regular lives, to eat moderately, drink temperately, take plenty of exercise, go to and rise from bed early, and to avoid mental anxiety. It is needless to say that all who tried Dumoulin's specific were delighted with its efficiency.

In more modern times, the methods employed were more laborate and just as valueless. James Graham, M.D., of Edinburgh, introduced the juggleries of Mesmer into England, and was highly successfulin his practices. He established a mansion on King's Terrace, in London, which he called the "Templum Aesculapio Sacrum." Its elaborate furnishings, and the cleverness of the doctor attracted patients from all over the country, and he soon waxed fat and contented. His fees were, for ordinary consultation, a guinea, but for his more powerful remedies, fees as high as one thousand pounds were required, in advance. His power ended, though, when he described himself as Heaven Sent, and began to attack the Established Church.

In the period when Graham was practising, two brothers, farriers by trade, seeing that the profession of medicine appeared a lucrative one, began a vigorous course of treatment at Whitworth. They had two courses of treatment, bleeding, and dosing with salts. It is said that their druggists, Ewbank and Wallis of York, used to supply them with a ton of Glauber's salts at a time. On Sunday morning, they would bleed gratis anyone who cared to submit. Often a hundred poor would present themselves and when everyone was seated, the two brothers "would pass rapidly along the line of bared arms, the one doctor deftly applying the ligature, the other immediately opening the vein, the crimson stream from which was directed into a wooden trough which ran around the apartment." (Jeaffreson.)

Little more than a generation ago, there flourished in London one St. John Long, whose "cure" for consumption netted him a fortune and great fame. His patients were instructed to inhale the vapour from a certain mixture which he compounded, and which was placed in the interior of a large mahogany case, to which were attached a number of long flexible tubes fitted with mouthpieces. His patients, after paying the fee, were allowed to sit on lounges surrounding the case, and inhale the vapours at leisure. The reputation he acquired, and the trust put in him resulted in his acquittal from a charge of manslaughter which was the outcome of the death of one of his patients. Even the more respectable and powerful newspapers were unable to take away from him the prestige he had gained, and on his death he was buried in the Kensal Green Cemetery, and a costly monument was raised over him, eulogising his skill and powers. So great a reputation had he built for himself that a few years ago there were living in England people who cherished his memory.

PERISTALTIC RUSHES

Here below lies Rufus Dack.
Instead of an M.D.
He went to a quack.

Some of the Med. Sophs. think that they are refined—but so is gasoline.

Def.—A college student is a gentleman who seeks knowledge and truth. Tell us another one.

Queen's Students At S. C. M. Conference

Queen's took a leading part in the latest session of the annual student conference at Elgin House. This year's delegation of twenty students was the largest she has yet sent and was one of the largest groups at the conference. Dr. MacClement and Dr. Vlastos from the staff and Art Smith, Cuthbert Brown and Alex Grant of the student body made valuable contribution to the success of the assembly. Queen's defeated McGill to take second place in the regatta events. The laurels go to Earl Buch who among other victories triumphed in the marathon swim.

The Conference is organized by the Student Christian Movement. This is a youth movement. It has its members on every college campus, a small group who believe that religion holds the key to the finest and richest experience of life. Once a year amid the quiet and beauty of the Muskoka Lakes these students gather for a period of study and fellowship. They come from as far as the University of British Columbia on the West and Acadia on the East, by whatever means can be employed, to discuss under trained leadership social and religious problems at Elgin House. The student who attends is not of the conventional Sunday School variety. He knows something about philosophy, economics and enough about religion to know that it fosters values of life that will save him from the dullness of middle class mediocrity.

The leaders whose purpose it is to direct thought and share their knowledge of the art of living are always outstanding personalities. This year there were such men as Dr. T. Z. Koo, the Chinese, who won the heart of Canadian University audiences in his tour of last fall; Dr. Gregory Vlastos, the quality of whose mind and spirit we are now acquainted with;; Dr. Rheinold Neihbur of New York, the outstanding Christian Socialist in America; and Prof. King Gordon of McGill, in whom there burns a pure love for society's underprivileged and disinherited.

Although the individual approach to God received a place the conference emphasized the social element in christianity. Students saw the unchristian character of a society that is so organized as to place a higher value on property than on human life, that encourages the building of private fortune and tries to forget that this is only done by grinding the face of the poor. The social fabric, they saw, needed to be worked over. Students have come away eager to form on their own campuses a League for Social Reconstruction or adopting some other method of spreading their revolutionary ideals to other students.

Nor was the esthetic dimension ignored. Miss Doris McCarthy, a young Canadian Artist of promise, displayed her paintings and spoke of a distinctively Canadian Art to which "the group of seven" had given birth.

There was fun and light-hearted gaiety. Here was a group of real people. Only some of them brilliant, but all of them serious about life and wanting to find life in that bigger and vaster sense which only a few choice souls have experienced.

TRIOLET

If I were old I would not heed
The eager strife of questing youth,
And other hearts than mine should bleed
If I were old; I would not heed
The whole world's pain, the whole world's ruth
The passion of the human breed.
If I were old I would not heed
The vanity of faithless truth.

E.G.

Varsity Registration Shows Little Decrease

(Special to the Journal)

With an approximate enrollment of 7,500 the registration figures at the University of Toronto will very nearly equal last year's total. A final check may even establish a slight increase over last year's enrollment.

Over 950 new students have already registered in Arts. It is expected the 1000 mark will be reached by the end of the week. Medicine has drawn 150 new entrants, while in the Department of Applied Science a slight decrease will lower the figures to 260.

Despite the bustle and haste occasioned by registration many of the more hilarious phases of college openings was missing.

The Frosh furnished th only color to the proceedings with their red and white ties and berets.

Tricolor Copies Still Available at Reduced Rates

The Journal is informed that several copies of the year book, The Tricolor, remain unsold. Students desiring to procure one may now do so at great saving to themselves as it has been decided to dispose the remaining copies at $3.00 each, a fifty per cent. reduction on their price last Spring.

The A.M.S. is handling the sale.

Nell: "I caught my husband flirting."

Belle: 'That's how I got mine, too."

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, Englisb and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

MODERN
CLEANERS AND DYERS
229 Princess St. 'Phone 3180
If "Modern" Cleaned — It's C-l-e-a-n
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS

ROY-YORK CAFE
Announces the inauguration of new policies with much
LOWER PRICES—Effective Immediately
Reduced prices on all a la carte servings. You can now have high quality food for less than what you pay for ordinary elsewhere. This reduction affects all orders, large or small.
A complete change of menu for every meal. Dinner and supper served on the main floor for 55c. This price covers a complete, satisfactory meal such as has made thousands of "come-backs" for the Roy-York Cafe.
For the business man we offer, starting September 20th, a thirty-five cent lunch—served on second floor.
For the Student our meal tickets at $4.25 for 14 meals, saves you money and purchases the very best food.
Music at all hours—Dancing upstairs any evening except Saturday—minimum charge 25c., Saturday 35c., including refreshments as ordered.
We cordially invite you to inspect any time our clean kitchens where our delicious tasting food is prepared. Cleanliness is our major rule at all times.
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

"BACK STREET"
with
John Boles and Irene Dunn

"Back Street" adapted from the novel of that name, by "Fanny Hurst" has little of the power and interest the book had. It is the story of the trials and tribulations of the "kept" woman.

Irene Dunn as Ray Schmidt, the woman in the story is admirably cast, and almost redeems the story from mediocrity.

John Boles, while acting as well as usual, appears rather wooden and slows up the play.

The story begins in Cincinnati where Ray Schmidt, to quote the movie, "is a good sport though still good," enjoying life with any pleasant man she may meet. In Walter Saxel, played by John Boles, she meets her fate, and though prevented from marrying him by unforseen circumstances, she is kept by him for a quarter of a century, until his death.

The story has undoubtedly a moral, that is provided you like morals, and should be a warning to the freshettes.

The play is full of dramatic moments which might be more effective if they were cut a little shorter. And seeing that the show, at the beginning was supposed to take place a quarter of a century ago its too bad the producers could not spend a little more attention on the clothes of the actors who would have well fitted into a present day scene.

The supporting cast was excellent, especially the unknown actor who played the part of the unlucky lover.

For once the short features were entertaining, especially the news reel of the Queen's football squad in practice.

This show is conceded a "B" although with much reluctance.

AT THE TIVOLI

The feature attraction at the Tivoli for this week-end is "The Vanishing Frontier" starring Johnny Mack Brown. In this picture Johnny attempts to be a cavalier of the Spanish order in his interpretation of Kirby Tornell, a type of polished bandit chief who plays a piano and rides away with the enemy's beautiful daughter. There are times when Brown, both in voice and mannerism, does a perfect Maurice Chevalier.

Tornell types are passé on the screen. This hero vanquishes armies after tying up captains to trees and subduing generals. The whole thing is so exaggerated it doesn't register, even as a fable. The story goes to the extreme of having the bandit the honor guest at an army post masquerade.

Soldiers as they appear in this film are strictly the tin type.. They can't fall fast enough when Tornell and his men appear. Even the general's daughter, played by Evalyn Knapp, totters before the suave killer-lover.

With a cast such as the producer lined up for this production, and with the facilities at the producer's disposal, there is no reason for such a lukewarm production such as this release. This reviewer recommends "The Vanishing Frontier" without reservations for the unsophisticated freshmen, but for those who demand more in entertainment I would advise you to save your shekels for "Blondie of the Follies" next week. C plus.

The Observer

THE OTTAWA CONFERENCE

The past three months have been crowded with political incident of outstanding importance. In particular the Ottawa Conference demands attention in these columns. Opinion is divided as to the value of the results achieved this August; but it is commonly conceded that at the very least the Conference made a notable contribution to the cause of Imperial unity. It may be—and many commentators, in England especially, would have it so—that this sentimental contribution is likely to prove the most permanent result of the Ottawa deliberations. But it is idle at this stage to seek to predict the effects of Conference upon Imperial policies, upon world affairs, or upon party politics. We are only just beginning to discern the influence of Ottawa in British domestic affairs, and it is probable that as soon as the Dominion Parliament assemble the full force of the repercussions of the Conference agreement will be more readily appreciated.

AN ASBESTOS BALLOT

A candidate for election to the city council, addressing his constituency, was surprised by a voice which, calling from the back of the hall, said:

"Well, I don't care wot yer says, guv'nor, I wouldn't vote for you if you was the angel Gabriel."

Quick as lightning came the reply: "If I were the angel Gabriel, you wouldn't be in my constituency."

Arrival Of Students Means Good Market

A recent issue of the Kingston Whig-Standard contained the following illuminating article:

At least an additional twelve thousand bright, crisp, green new dollars will be put into circulation in Kingston next week and every week thereafter till next spring.

That is just another way of saying that Queen's University is opening for another term. Even the casual observer who is not brought into direct touch with university life, could not help but notice during the last day or two that there was a great increase in the number of young men and young women on Kingston's streets. He may not have realized, however, that each one of the young people is a distinct financial asset to this city. Of course the university students contribute a great deal more than dollars and cents to the life of Kingston, but the purpose of this article is simply to give them a financial rating.

Queen's University had 1,690 intra-mural students registered last term. It is safe to assume that the number this year will be somewhere in the same vicinity. Of the 1,690, several hundred live in Kingston all year round, and therefore cannot be counted as bringing additional revenue to the city when the university opens. It has been assumed in order not to over-state the case, that only 1,200 students actually come to Kingston to live for six or seven months to attend university. It has also been assumed that the average amount spent by these students each week for food, shelter, clothing, amusement, etc., is ten dollars. This gives the very substantial figure of $12,000 additional dollars put into circulation in this city each week.

It would not do to compare Queen's University with a factory, but try to imagine how the bells would ring and the whistles would blow if it were announced that a factory would open in Kingston tomorrow taking on over a thousand employees at a weekly wage of $10 each.

NOTICE

We wish to call your attention to the advertisement on page three of this issue of C. Livingston and Bro., one of the oldest advertisers in this Journal. This reliable firm has been catering to the clothing and furnishing wants of Queen's students for the past eighty-five years, and by fair treatment and courteous attention they have increased their clientele year after year.

They tell us that this year they are prepared better than ever to look after your requirements at the closest prices offered in the last twenty years. Call in and see them, and we assure you of courteous treatment and best attention.

Her eyes chained him to the spot.

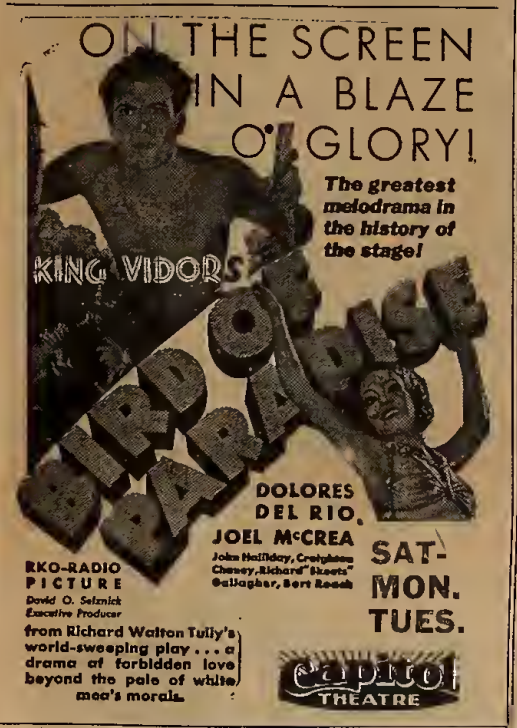
She must have been lynx eyed.

Sort Of Man That College Girls Wed

Winnipeg — Interviewing women on the subject of the men college women marry — or don't marry — a woman's page editor was given various opinions.

A woman member of the Manitoba University staff pointed out that of the dozen or so Rhodes men resident in Winnipeg, all but four were married to college women. "It is only when a girl parades her knowledge that she spoils her matrimonial chances," she added. "It is the half-educated woman that any sensible man would flee. The true scholar is usually less opinionated than many high school girls."

Statistics from the University Women's Club of Winnipeg also proved that slightly more than half their membership have acieved matrimony, while 48 per cent. of the married group are wives of professional men. "And no divorces or rumors of divorces," the secretary adds.



The subject of discussion arose when Dr. Madge Hurlow Macklin, assistant professor of embryology at the University of Western Ontario, London, Ont., laid a complaint against college men, who married year after year women of inferior learning, the tendency being away from race progress. She spoke in New York before the International Congress of Engenics.

UP OR DOWN?

Ministers' wives, as everybody knows, have a difficult lot in life, and a particular lady's lot so roused the sympathy of a friend that she remarked: "There ought to be a special place in heaven for ministers' wives."

"Perhaps you're right," responded the minister's wife, "but I should rather go with my husband."

Big Shows Are Here

PRINTING
FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.
The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO
FRANK ROBBS
SIX CHAIRS —— NO WAITING
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into — they're full of travel satisfaction.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

We Welcome
Queen's Students To Our City
And invite you to make our store your meeting place. Make use of our telephone, help yourself to our cigarettes (but find them!) We want you to feel right at home—
We specialize on Young Men's Clothes, Featuring Suits and Overcoats at $15.00 - $18.50 - $22.50
The Best these prices can buy anywhere in Canada and not perhaps either!
Our clerks will be pleased to show the new models
At your service Sir!
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

The Following Positions Are Now Open To Duly Qualified Undergraduates
JOURNAL BUSINESS MANAGER
EDITOR OF STUDENT DIRECTORY
CONVENER OF ELECTION COMMITTEE
Students desiring to apply for any of these positions must do so by writing to the A.M.S. Permanent Secretary, stating full qualifications.
The choice of the A.M.S. Executive will be final.

Superior Tea Rooms
Student's Popular Eating Place
Luncheons, Refreshments
Home-Made Candy

A. B. of C. Appoints Coaches For Teams

With the departure of Dr. Harry Batstone Queen's has been fortunate in engaging Milton Burt to fill the rugby coach's berth. Milt is well known as a member of the Toronto Argos' team of 1921-24 which won two Interprovincial titles and one Dominion championship. Last year he pushed the Sarnia Imperials to an O.R.F.U. championship; and though his team lost to Western in the playdowns it defeated the Intercollegiate champions in an exhibition game, and was considered by many as a better crew.

The Board reappointed Jack Jarvis as boxing coach and in doing so commented on the fine showing of last year's B.W. and F. squad, when they battled their way through for the first Tricolor win in 20 years at the Intercollegiate Assault at Arms.

Walter Knox, one time all-round outdoor champion of America, and best professional athlete of the world, is back at his post as coach of the field and track team. Mr. Knox has always been well liked by his squads, and the boys have all done their best for him.

A. F. Parsons is to manage the Intermediate team, while the Manager of the Junior team will be appointed later.

The appointment of a hockey coach has been left over until another Board meeting about the first of November.

Plan for Evans' Memorial Plaque Being Considered

It is expected that a memorial plaque in honour of the late Dr. "Fourge" Evans will soon be established at Queen's. Teammates of the great rugby star are co-operating to provide the necessary monies. Already funds have been collected from a majority of the playing teams contemporary with him in 1921-22-23, and sketches of the plaque are being drawn up.

The intention is that an annual award of the trophy based upon the popular vote of the team shall be made to the player on the senior team who has done most for the year.

Any associates of Evans who have been inadvertently overlooked in the appeal for subscription are invited to communicate with Dr. W. A. Campbell, 150 Clergy St., Kingston.

CUTTING IT SHORT

It was the duty of a warrant officer taking part in the church service, to give out the hymns, and a man who economized in words he called out in a loud voice of command:

"Hymn number two-double-o-seven: Art thy weary; ditto languid; ditto sore distressed?"

Queen's Footballers To Meet Ottawa To-morrow

Continued from page 1

played. The Rough Riders have been training for a longer period than the Tricolor, but with more time at his disposal during the day, Coach Burt has whipped the boys into as fine or even better condition.

This year, more than in previous ones, the team needs every bit of support it can get, and it therefore behooves the students to fill the bleachers and give the big Tricolor team a big hand.

In the Ottawa battle Coach Burt plans to use about thirty men, and every one of them will be given an opportunity. Some of the boys are nursing minor injuries and it is just possible that they may not see action; Red McNicholl, Kostnik and Bill Glass are the players, and it would be foolish to risk aggravating their injuries.

Coach Milt Burt, the very personification of quiet confidence, is making no rash promises regarding the success of the 1932 edition of the Tricolor seniors. Neither is he one bit dismayed by the fact that graduation and the other wallops have taken twelve men from last year's squad.

Milt opines that there is no place for scary feelings where the senior team is concerned, and while it is far too early for him to express a definite opinion as to the possibilities of the material he has to work with, still he is convinced that Queen's will be as good as any of them, and perhaps a bit better than most.

While not underestimating Varsity and Western in the least, Milt rather looks for McGill to provide the strongest opposition in the race, and it will be interesting to see how his opinion is borne out.

Gym Apparatus Result Of Dr. Grant's Efforts

Thanks largely to the efforts of Dr. W. L. Grant, a prominent member of the Board of Trustees, fifteen hundred dollars worth of equipment has been installed in the gym. The apparatus includes stall-bars, chest weights, horizontal and parallel bars and travelling rings. The money for this equipment was raised chiefly by private subscription organized by Dr. Grant.

ON AN ELEVATOR

No one is requested to ring the bell before eight in the morning a feller has to get his sleep dont they and furthermore, this ilevator will not be run betwixt 12 and 1 o'clock a person must have their food now you can see the logik of that and on top of everything no one is requested to ring hard on the hell or more than once I am not deef I heerd you but unable to make it now have some sense I heerd you I am not deef. —Toronto Globe.

TOUCHLINES

In exhibition games played so far this year, the forward pass has not proven any more reliable than it was last year. About one or two completed throws out of ten is the average.

* * * * * *

If Queen's isn't rugby crazy, then Rockwood is a school for Einsteins. About 75 players have turned out for rugby already.

* * * * * *

Western have two complete sets of uniforms this season. At half time they can have a bath, change their togs, and polish their molars, and maybe surprise the opposition.

* * * * * *

McGill, always a fast tricky team, may prove to be the big surprise of the race.

* * * * * *

Warren Stevens, may be a wonder bimself, but can he teach Varsity enough to make them champs? We are going to find out.

* * * * * *

Student's tickets will cost 35 cents for tomorrow's game, and a big crowd would surely put pep into the boys. How about it?

* * * * * *

Western's powerful line is expected to carry them far this season, but the loss of Kennedy, their backfield star, is a sore touch.

Burt Gives Team Bristling Work - Outs

While this edition of the Journal is going to press, thus chiselling off another literary cover, hundreds of Queen's students are unpacking the well worn carpet bags for another term, or are comparing the hand picked menu of home sweet home to three a day at the various boarding emporiums of the Limestone City.

Others are in possession of lucrative jobs, which they are loath to leave until the last possible minute. Still others, not having had the good fortune to toil for cash money the past summer, are trying desperately to get a half-nelson on some of the village money lender's hoard, and so enable them to sign their monicker to a Queen's registrartion form.

But whatever they are doing and wherever they happen to be, their thoughts are in the hometown of the Tricolor, and more particularly in that section known far and wide as the Richardson Stadium, where the hope of the University is training.

Behold then, two Queen's students, parked upon the tops of two milk cans, on the station platform of Cows Corners. They are waiting for the combination special to whirl them collegewards, and of course are talking "college" and its doings. Do you think they are discussing the binomial theorem, whatever that is, or the odd course of plain and fancy sewing? Not they. Just as surely as the milk in the cans beneath them, came partly from the farm pump, they are jabbering of the senior team and its chances in the Intercollegiate race.

You will find them in the financial centres of great communities, or in the smoking compartments of sundry swaying trains, but wherever they be, the chances of the big team is the main topic.

Never before perhaps has so much interest been taken in the team and its possibilities and doings, and it augurs well for the support that the team will receive from the students this season.

Well how about this team? Just how good or how bad is it anyway? The boys and gals want to know the worst, if there is a worst, right off the bat, and if there is a rosy outlook, they want to write and tell Paw and Maw all about it.

Let's begin away back. We had a pretty good team last year, but many appendices have been removed since that time and the pencils of the profs, to say nothing of the havoc of graduation have all conspired most evilly to tear the team apart.

Graduatinn, a necessary evil in any college, as far as sport is concerned, struck the senior team like a tornado and carried off many a stalwart. McKelvey, Stuart, Gilmore, Simmonds, Dediana are names that we will remember for their valiant work, but they cannot help us this year.

For some of the boys, the profs got out the blue pencil and when they had finished their marking, the lads figured on spending the summer with the respective noses in books. Still others counted heavily on getting by in supps, but once again the axe fell and those boys will confine their sporting efforts to cribbage or pinochel this winter.

Now all this means, that Coach Milt Burt, the new mentor from Sarnia, had to begin rebuilding almost an entirely new team, with a few veterans and a host of new ambitious material to choose from. This is rather a new situation for the university because during the past ten years or so, the Tricolor invariably had the nucleus of a strong team to start the season with. However, the situation is not by any means a gloomy one, while men like Howie Carter, How Hamlin, Bob Ralph, Bill Glass Kostuik, Jess Fitton, Weenie Day, Jim Davis, Bud Gorman, Bill Purvis, Storms, Carr, Red McNichol, Russ Thoman, to say nothing of a host of other promising talent, are fighting for places.

Over fifty aspirants have been outfitted, and are trying for places on the senior team, and while many of them are not of senior calibre, it indicates the tremendous interest taken in the rugby situation, and if pep and ambition count in this world, we will place a fighting Tricolor team on the gridiron.

Coach Burt, who had a great deal to do with the success of the Sarnia Imperials last season, made it very clear from the very first workout that only well conditioned men would be left in there when the whistle signalled the start of the first game. The conditioning process, was a system devised by the coach, to whip the boys rapidly into shape, but for a time the weary rugbyists figured it was a relic of the days of the Spanish Inquisition and its tortures. That it brought results is shown by the fact that heavy scrimmage work, of the past week, has resulted in only minor casualties. Chalk up one for the coach, the boys are there as far as condition is concerned.

The forward pass has not been forgotten and Coach Burt, gave all the boys a chance to show their wares, by incorporating throwing, receiving and timing of passes as part of the conditioning plan. That part of our pastime will not be forgotten when the line work is being perfected and this year's team should be stronger both in using the pass as a ground gainer and in perfecting a defense against it.

At the present writing it is almost impossible even to guess who will fill positions and while Coach Burt has some ideas of his own, nothing definite will be known until after the game with Ottawa tomorrow. What a game it will be. Everyone will get a chance and how they will be fighting for the right to stay in the big show. Don't miss it.

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE SCHEDULE FALL 1932

Oct. 8—Toronto at Queen's
Western at McGill
Oct. 15—Queen's at Western
McGill at Toronto
Oct. 22—McGill at Queen's
Western at Toronto
Oct. 29—Queen's at McGill
Toronto at Western
Nov. 5—Western at Queen's
Toronto at McGill
Nov. 12—Queen's at Toronto
McGill at Western

Abe Zvonkin To Coach Intermediate Rugby Squad

Queen's Intermediate team will be coached this season by Abe Zvonkin, the former middle wing of Hamilton Tigers, who has entered the University this fall. Although Zvonkin is not eligible for Intercollegiate rugby this year his influence will be felt in college football here. Already he has lost no time in getting down to work and spent two hard hours yesterday drilling a flock of rugby candidates.

As soon as his players are allotted to him, Zvonkin intends to carry on immediately with the task of whipping them into shape. He has quickly shown that he is likely to be a big help in coaching the Intermediates in methods of ball carrying and defence, as well as in developing the use of the forward pass.

Varsity and Guelph Play Secret Practice Game

Behind the closed doors of the Varsity Bowl Toronto's Big Blue team took part in a secret game yesterday afternoon defeating Guelph O.A.C. by a 16 to 1 score. Only those who slipped past the guards or scrambled over the fence, the players and a few officials, knew what really happened, but according to reports it was only the long distance kicking of Long John Sinclair that gave the locals their big lead.

Most likely the game was a final test for the crowd of candidates trying for the positions with Varsity, and to-day's workout should see the squad trimmed down to regular size, with the men who will be on the senior Intercollegiate staff working together.

ASHAMED

She (to bridge expert)—"Now, if you were in the same circumstances, how would you have played that hand?"

He (icily)—'Under an assumed name."

Two microbes sat on a pantry shelf,
And watched, with expression pained,
The milkman's stunts, and they both said at once,
"Our relations are getting strained."

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

IF IT'S SPORTING GOODS — WE HAVE IT
A. G. SPALDING & BROS.
TOBACCOS, MAGAZINES and SUNDRIES
AT
WALLIE CUSICK'S
COLLEGE INN CIGAR STORE
Telephone 1200

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

WE WELCOME YOU TO KINGSTON
And would appreciate being able to include you among the hundreds of Graduates and Undergraduates of Queen's University it has been our pleasure to serve.
Queen's Sweaters and Sweater Coats
Queen's Blazers
Savile Row Suits and Topcoats
Makers of Queen's Gowns and Hoods
VanHorne's
Men's Shop
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
70 PRINCESS ST.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO
171 Wellington St

WELCOME!
To all Queen's Students
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store
and
Ice Cream Parlor
Where the Students Meet

SPORT REPORTERS WANTED

The sporting editor of the Journal would be very glad to get in touch with any who have ambitions along the line of writing up sports. There is plenty of room for rugby, tennis, track and field, and later on, basketball and hockey scribes. Anyone interested please get in touch with the Sport Editor, phone 2410-J or leave your name and phone number at the Journal Office.

Will the retiring presidents of the various years please see that an energetic sports scribe is appointed and that all Interyear games are promptly written up and turned into he Journal office

Queen's Football Practice Filmed By Fox-Movietone

Fox Movietone pictures of the Queen's senior football squad are now showing at the Capitol Theatre as part of the regular newsreel feature. These pictures were taken last week through the influence of Ernie Smithies, manager of the local theatre.

Howie Carter, captain of the team, is shown welcoming the new coach, Milt. Burt answers with a speech in which he prophecises that the Tricolor will give a good account of themselves in the Inter-collegiate Union this year.

Considerable footage is devoted to the squad training under the watchful eye of Milt Burt. Shots are shown of use of the bucking-strap, a device innovated by Coach Burt this year. The pictures are very clear and the boys are easily recognizable.

The reel is being shown for the last time today.

Nat. History Club Boon To Biologists

Queen's Natural History Club was organized as a discussion club and a meeting place for students in biology. It was started three years ago by a group of the senior students and at present is entirely controlled by the undergraduates. John Stevenson is the president during the coming session. Usually two or three outside lectures are brought to the University each year by the Club. Last year Dr. Huntsman of the Biological Board, and Dr. Wolterstecker of Germany were two who gave lectures to the club members. This policy of the club will be continued and later announcements will be made through the Journal.

In addition, there is a short lecture given every meeting by one of the members on some phase of field work in Biology. These are interesting in that they show the various fields in which students can find employment. Fisheries problems, food processing, insect control and various agricultural problems were some of the phases of biological work covered during 1931-32.

The Natural History Club takes this opportunity of extending its sympathy to the family of the late Dr. Klugh. He was the first Honorary President of the club and took a keen interest in all its activities. His loss will be deeply felt by every member of the club.

Kit: What's good for biting fingernails?

Kat: Sharp teeth.

Rugby Comments

(Toronto Globe)

Canadian football players and coaches are finding it difficult to make headway with the forward pass, and they are also in a quandary in regard to building up defenses against this aerial attack.

It is all very well to point out that "Rocky" Parsaca of Sarnia, Hal Baysinger of Montreal, Marks of St. Michael's, and Warren Stevens of last year's' Winged Wheelers are experts in throwing and receiving passes, but it must be remembered that they are United States players, who have been drilled in the play since childhood. Why shouldn't they have an enormous advantage over Canadians?

It would have been fair to all to bring in a rule whereby players from the United States would not have been permitted to participate in this method of attack for a period of four or five years, during which time all Canadian teams would have been able to carry on on equal terms until such time as they developed passers and receivers.

Some will undoubtedly hold up their hands in horror at such a suggestion, and the same can be expected. On their behalf it may be said that the presence of experts like Stevens and Baysinger tends to be educational. Stevens, by his example and advice, taught Montreal players the tricks of the trade, and did it so well that Kenny Copland, Gordon Perry, "Huck" Welch, and Kenny Grant have become proficient in its use, yet despite this advancement it was found necessary to secure Baysinger to do the passing.

Clubs like Hamilton Tigers, Argonauts, Ottawa, University of Toronto and Balmy Beach have frowned on the idea of bringing United States stars to this country, and they have elected to carry on as formerly, pass or no pass. One local team devoted last night's practice to forward passing almost entirely, and completed three or four in about one hundred attempts for a record or something.

(Toronto Globe)

After considerable reflection, many of those who saw Toronto's four senior foothall teams in action here last Saturday have arrived at the conclusion that this city will be strongly represented in all the unions. They realize that such teams as Montreal, Hamilton Tigers, University of Western Ontario, McGill and Sarnia will bear watching, but they think that Argonauts, Balmy Beach and University of Toronto should be strong contenders in their respective unions.

The local clubs are well stocked with capable material, and the teams are expected to be travelling along in high gear in the near future. Of necessity much work remains to be done before the attacks are timed properly, but this happens every year.

The coaches are paying a lot of attention to the forward pass, but headway is being made slowly. It takes a lot of time and patience to develop passers and receivers, and in this respect the Montreal Winged Wheelers have a big advantage in that they have a brilliant passer in Hal Baysinger.

Hamilton Tigers have lost the valuable services of "Abe" Zvonkin, the big middle wing, who has decided to attend Queen's University. Zvonkin, who was a student at Notre Dame University two years ago, did great work for the Bengals last fall, and it was expected that he would be even more effective in the coming campaign.

Maple Leafs May Train In Kingston This Year

While no definite arrangement has yet been made with the city of Kingston or with the University Athletic Board of Control it is fully expected that the Toronto Maple Leafs, 30 strong, world's professional hockey champions, will train this fall in Kingston, coming here around the 8th or 9th of October.

They will use the Queen's Gymnasium, the cinder track at the Richardson Stadium, and the Jock Harty Arena, when the ice is ready, to get in trim for their winter schedule.

Mr. Smythe, the manager, is expected in Kingston this week to complete arrangements.

What is Hamilton's loss in this case is distinctly the Tricolor's gain. Zvonkin is no false alarm, and he will cause a lot of havoc in the "rah-rah" union.

Sarnia Imperials, who have been in training since the first of August, didn't look too impressive in the tilt last Saturday against the ill-conditioned Western "U" team, but they should improve. Coach Pat Ouellette is guiding a great array of talent, and these Imperials should be mighty hard to "take" when the O.R.F.U. race gets under way.

(Whig-Standard)

"Abe" Zvonkin, the big Hamilton middle wing, arrived at Queen's yesterday and is prepared for a year of hard work, without playing any rugby or taking part in track athletics, in which he is a star. Zvonkin apparently is sincere in his desire to get an education. At any rate he is not eligible for intercollegiate sport this year.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

BOWL TO-NIGHT
CRASH! THERE THEY GO!
It's a Grand and Glorious Feeling to see the Pins Fly About When You "STRIKE."
BOWLADROME ALLEYS
250 Princess St.

Welcome
Queen's Students
Joseph Abramsky & Sons, Ltd., take this opportunity of welcoming all Queen's students and cordially invite you to visit our store—Here you will find shopping a pleasure—Choicest models of Canada's foremost creators—Sales people who know exactly what you should wear for campus, classroom, or at the game—At prices so extraordinarily low as to amaze you—Just mention you are a Queen's Student.
Visit Kingston's Largest Departmental Store
MEN'S CLOTHING AND FURNISHINGS
LADIES' READY-TO-WEAR AND ACCESSORIES
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.
—Tuxedo Rental Depatment—
BRAND NEW TUXEDOS FOR RENT—REASONABLE CHARGE
BOOK YOUR SUIT EARLY. MEN'S DEPARTMENT
"The Store That Sets The Pace"

WELCOME — —

To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."

To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.

Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear

170 Princess Street

BARGAINS

IN NEW AND USED RADIOS

CANADA RADIO STORES

Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe

— Here since 1922 —

FOR FOOTWEAR OF THE BETTER TYPE

also

Hosiery, Luggage, Tennis Shoes and Polish

YOU WILL FIND THIS STORE YOUR LOGICAL CHOICE

The Students Favorite Shoe Shop

Established over 50 years ago

Locketts

LIMITED

FURS

GOURDIERS

78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC

BURKE'S

244 PRINCESS ST.

'Phone 423

Economy for Students!

We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.50. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.

THE CROWN CAFE

203 Princess St.

Why Walk Down Town?

SUDD'S BARBER SHOP

Cor. William & University

Lady's and Men's Haircutting

20c and 35c

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?

For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of

DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS

by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50

Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00

Special Astringent . . . $1.50

Tissue Cream $1.50

AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE

PHONE 230

Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.

WE DELIVER

Renovated Union Again Ready to Serve Students

Continued from page 1

finished. It has been described as the best club room in Kingston. The billard room did not escape attention as the tables have been recovered and the equipment placed in first class condition.

The Memorial Room presents its usual dignified appearance and the air of being a most excellent study-room as quiet must be preserved here at all times.

The Cafeteria staff is prepared for the invasion of the students. This staff is capable of accommodatiug 250 students in one hour and will likely prove a popular eating-place again this year. For the past fortnight already the rugby team have been boarding at the Union. Prices have been lowered for single meals as well as for the weekly meal tickets. This will be welcome news for the students. Lockers are now available for the first time and are situated in the basement.

Another pleasing feature about the Union is that the same staff remains practically intact from year to year. This helps to preserve the "house-like" atmosphere that the Warden is so anxious to be able to offer the students. It is interesting to remark that the only change in staff this year has been occasioned by the marriage of three waitresses who have been with the Union since it opened three years ago.

In another day or so the Union will be operating in full swing as the hub aronnd which male university life revolves.

Enrollment Of 377 At Summer Session

Three visiting professors were added to the regular staff at the last session of Summer School, one of the most successful sessions of the last decade.

The visiting scholars were Professor W. O. Raymond of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Quebec, added to the English Department; Professor Ross Collins, of the University of Alberta, assisting in the History Department; and Mr. W. H. R. Werner of the Ontario Fish and Game Department, added to the Biology Department.

The past session was one of the most successful for several years. Registration reached the encouraging total of 377. This was in spite of the fact that the Ontario Government discontinued the courses formerly offered in Middle and Upper School subjects for teachers in Ontario Public Schools.

Courses in Cadet Instruction for Public and High Schools were also discontinued by the Department for National Defense.

QUEEN'S QUILL

It is hoped to publish an issue of the Queen's Quill within the next few weeks. Contributions will be welcomed. All materials suitable for publication should be sent to E. H. Gilmour, either at 7 Aberdeen St. (Tel. 3469) or care of the University Post Office.

He: Will you marry me.

She: No! I'm afraid to.

He: O come on, be a support.

Women's Residences Filled To Capacity

Levana, including Seniors and Freshettes, is finding herself very much at home in Ban Righ Hall and its annexes, Macdonnell House, Goodwin House and Gordon House. Now that trunks are unpacked and registration is all over, classes are the next thought. After that comes rugby games and the inevitable Freshette initiation. Ban Righ Hall and its annexes are filled to capacity, and there are approximately twice as many Freshettes as Seniors, which as any Senior will tell you, does not leave the Seniors in the minority.

Among the Seniors in Ban Righ Hall is Fraulien Gerda Hellmun of Berlin, Germany, who is this year's student under the exchange system. We are very glad to welcome her to Queen's and hope that she may enjoy all the college activities.

Miss Mary Rowland, president of the Alumnae Association Branch in Kingston, wishes to welcome all the grads to the Alumnae dinner which is to be held in Ban Righ Hall on October 8th. Tickets may be secured from Miss Rowland at 317 University Avenue.

Campus and Gym

With rugby games just around the corner, it's time to think of the things happening in Levana sporting circles. The softball season will soon open, and the Freshettes will find serious opposition in the teams from other years, although the Freshettes always have the advantage of numbers to choose from.

* * *

The Intercollegiate Girl's Tennis Tournament, held last year in London, will be run off in Toronto this year, probably on the Victoria College courts, during the week-end of the 21st and 22nd of October. Queen's stands a very good chance of winning her matches this year with several members of last year's team back and plenty of new material to choose from.

* * *

Miss Murphy has reserved Monday afternoon for medical examination of those students other than Freshettes who wish to take gym classes this year. Anyone interested is requested to see Miss Murphy in her office in the gymnasium.

* * *

Softball practices for the Inter-year teams will start next week, and girls of all years are urged to turn out to try for places on their year team. Levana '34 holds the championship, but a great many of the team will be joining Levana '33.

* * *

Gym classes for Freshettes will start next week and Miss Murphy will post the schedule at the beginning of the week. The tank will be open to Levana every day but Saturday from 2 to 3 o'clock. Anyone wishing to use the tank must procure a grey cotton bathing suit which can be bought at Van Horne's on Princess Street for $1.25. No woollen bathing suits will be allowed in the tank.

Ruth: Jack gave me a dirty look.

Mary: That was Mother Nature, dear.

He: How do you like my moustache.

She: Between you and me kind of rough.

Campus Cut-ups

Dear Emmaline:

I'm a co-ed now, and am I thrilled! I wore my green dress with the buttons after all and—Oh Emmaline — I saw the handsomest looking man on the train, and I felt sure he was a College man or something, but F. said she was sure he was just another travelling salesman — but you know how cynical F. is. He really was nice-looking though.

Oh Emmaline, I had a perfectly awful time when I went to Register. They made an awful row because I forgot my certificates or something—I'm glad they finally got it straightened out. Really Emmaline I didn't see any couples holding hands, but I guess it's pretty early yet.

I'm sure I'm going to like it a lot here. There are so many to pick from and some of them really look nice in spite of what F. says. Oh yes—we went to a meeting abont — We have a nice sitting Room Emmaline—I mean it's really nice. I wore my brown dress with the dinky Bow and I'm sure it was a knockout.

There's the nicest place called the "Soup" where you can go to, moke and watch everybody, and a lot of them come there too. Of course I'm still feeling my way around yet, but I do look forward to a Good Year's Work Emmaline.

Oodles of Love,

Fanny.

World News Briefly

The many who believe that the League of Nations is the only bulwark against world strife received a severe jolt recently by the announcement that the League is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Faced with the necessity of an immediate decision on the Manchurian problem, the League finds itself with a graver internal situation—the balancing of its budget.

It is revealed that only nine of fifty-five members have paid up their assessments.

* * * *

The Canadian Government, through its minister of Finance, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, has just completed negotiations for the floating of a $60,000,000 loan at New York. A New York syndicate will handle the loan, which is in the nature of one-year notes at 4 per cent. The transaction, however, involves no transfer of money to the Dominion, as the issue has been arranged for the purpose of redeeming previous loans maturing in December.

* * * *

Mahatma Ghandi has brought an end to it all—he has decided to live. The Mahatma ended his fast of six days and five hours when news was brought to him that the British Government had accepted conditionally a compromise electoral system.

This is surely a victory for the bespectacled, wizened, little man of India.

* * * *

By trouncing the courageous Mickey Walker, "the Irish Toy Bull Dog," Maxie Schmeling, German heavyweight, proved that he is the best boxer of the world, though the Boston gob, Sharkey, occupies the pedestal at the moment.

This clear cut victory will revive in the minds of many the questionable decision handed the German in his fight with Sharkey. The gabby Bostonian had better look to his laurels.

Gift Expected From Carnegie Trustees

The gift of the Carnegie Foundation to stimulate undergraduate reading is expected to be in hand shortly if the trustees agree to the recommendations of the Canadian advisory committee. The committee is composed of Dr. Locke, Toronto; Mr. Frederick Landon, Librarian at the University of Western Ontario, and Rev. Mr. Patterson of Acadia University.

Acceptance of the committee's recommendations will result in considerable activity at Queen's. An organization will have to be set up to provide for the handling of the money and the purchase of the books.

It will be recalled that the Carnegie Foundation offered a sum of money to Canadian Universities on condition that it be spent in an attempt to foster undergraduate reading. One of the stipulations of the gift is that only books acceptable to students are to be purchased.

At College Headquarters!

Complete display of

QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS

QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS

FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.

"All That's New — That's All"

SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR

Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop

COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.

FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY

No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention

Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515

Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE

Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos

Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods

LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES

We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited

Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia

Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years

We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's

Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

SUITS

$22.50 $24.50 $26.00

$30.00 $33.00 $35.00

Walsh & Derry, Tailors

BEST VALUES IN THE CITY

PHONE 487

LA SALLE CAFE

Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students

REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.

Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer

165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE

The Most Popular Place in Town For Students

REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.

Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly

235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Doyle's Haircutting Place

THOROUGHLY MODERN

4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES

J. McCORMICK, Prop.

167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

Hanson & Edgar

Dance Programmes Constitutions

PRINTERS

177 Brock Street

Phone 1510

Printing of Every Description.

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1932 No. 2

Queen's Library

Queen's To Live Within Its Means Says Dr. McNeill

Rigid Economy To Be Practiced In Period Of Falling Revenues

"We will not accumulate a deficit; we are going to live within our means" declared Dr. W. E. McNeill when interviewed for the Journal on the subject of the financial situation at Queen's this year. The Vice-Principal went on to explain that in a period of falling revenues rigid economy is being exercised at the University to ensure a balanced budget.

University revenues are derived from three main sources; from the Ontario Government, from student fees, and from endowments, i.e., investments. This year a diminution of income from all three sources had to be faced. It is of course common knowledge that the Government of Ontario has reduced its grant to Queen's this year by no less than $50,000. It is not so generally realized that there has also been a natural decline in that part of the University's revenues which proceeds from interest on investments, and along with this there has also been a fall in the registration figure which is reflected in the amount drawn by the University from student fees.

To meet this situation a comprehensive policy of economy is being pursued. No possible saving has been overlooked by Dr. McNeill in his determination to eliminate anything that savours of extravagance and to reduce to a minimum figure all necessary expenses. Even the casual observation of the average student will have remarked the fact that almost every department is getting along this session with fewer minor assistants than in previous years, and in some cases departments are even having to do without any minor assistants at all. This is symptomatic of the whole economic campaign which is being pursued so courageously and successfully at Queen's. The Vice-Principal continues untiring in his efforts to ensure that the University shall be spared all but essential expenses and that the finances of Queen's shall remain on a secure foundation. To use the Vice-Principal's own words "Expenditures are being pared to the last degree."

Reporters Wanted

There are several openings on the Journal news staff for reporters. All those interested may leave their names, addresses and phone numbers at the College Post Office or call E. H. Gilmour, 3469.

Press Club To Be Re-Organized Soon

Club Formed To Help Aspiring Journalists

The Press Club, initiated last year, will meet shortly for reorganization.

Under the leadership of Mr. H. J. Hamilton, former editor of the Journal, a Press Club was formed last spring. It was intended to form the nucleus of a movement for special instruction in Journalism. After conferring with the department of English, however, it was found that the institution of a course in newspaper work and its branches was not feasible. Therefore, it was decided to secure experienced newspaper men to deliver talks on different phases of the profession.

Mr. Rupert Davies of the Whig-Standard gave an interesting talk at the last meeting. It is expected that men of equal calibre will be secured to continue the series. All those interested are urged to keep a weather eye on the notice boards.

The University may co-operate with the Club in bringing to Kingston outstanding men in the fields of journalism and newspaper publishing to supplement the lectures which will be given by local men.

Tentative Program For Levana Meeting

A tentative program for the first Levana meeting of the season includes the following matters of business: the election of a Secretary to take the place of Ella Collacutt who did not return to Queen's, and certain constitutional changes involving the time and date of the Levana meetings for this year. The reports of the Elgin House delegates will also be read. The date of this opening meeting has not been announced but will be within the next week.

The Levana Journal Editor would like to meet the members of the Levana Staff in Room 9 of Goodwin House at four o'clock this afternoon, Tuesday.

Faculty Societies Resume Activities

Meeting Of Levana To Discuss Initiation

Prospects for the various faculty societies look bright as the presidents gather up plans for the year. Stu. Warrington, Arts Society president, would give no definite news when interviewed, but promised an active year for the club.

The Engineering Society have made no definite plans for the year, but expect to line up their year's work in the near future.

The Levana Society are planning constitutional changes which will be discussed at the first meeting. The Levana Society will probably be the first of the Faculty societies to get under way, as their meeting is scheduled for next week. Initiation plans are still being discussed and are expected to be novel.

The Aesculapian Society has not reassembled its executive as yet, and have not made plans for the year.

Tennis Tournament To Open This Week

Grant Assured Of Stiff Competition

The annual tennis tournament for the college championship will get under way Wednesday or Friday. The entry list is already posted on the bulletin board at the Library and, the Journal is informed, entries will close tonight. All those who intend to participate should see that their name is entered on the list at once.

Keen competition is again assured the defending champion, Doug. Grant. The youthful Kingston city tennis star who forged his way to the Queen's Championship in his first year at college is again on the lists and ready to defend his title.

Pre-tournament dope has it that Butler and Muir will give Grant stiff opposition. Butler has been playing steady tennis and it would not be a surprise to see him cop the tourney this year.

Others who can be figured upon to make things lively are Connolly and Charland, who have been seen putting in heavy practice. Rollins, who gave Muir such a spirited battle in last year's tourney is also entered and judging from his play he should prove a dangerous opponent.

Graham Thompson is also expected to provide determined opposition.

University Services Bring Visiting Clerics

Students' Services To Start November 13th

In a recent interview given a Journal reporter Dr. Kent outlined the program for students services during the winter. He drew attention to the prominent speakers that have been obtained for the coming Theological Convention and also named the donors of the new Chapel.

The students' services begin on November 13th and will be five in number. The first is to be held at 7 p.m. in St. James' Church, the speaker being Rev. Canon Gower-Rees, M.A., D.C.L., M.C., of Montreal the most distinguished member of the Anglican Clergy in Canada, and a Chaplain of note during the Great War. The speaker for December is Bishop McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal Church, New York, and the Rev. D. A. MacLennan of Emmanuel Church, Montreal, is to preach at the January service. In February the Rev. T. Davies, D.D. of Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, is to speak and for March the services of Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, D.D. of Drew University, Maddison, New Jersey, have been procured.

The Theological Convention is to be held on October 24th to 27th. The speaker for the first evening is Honorable Senator Lemieux, one of the most distinguished French-Canadians. His subject will be the "Old French Regime in Canada," a topic which should prove fascinating to all and of special interest to students of history. The Chancellor's lectur-

Continued on page 4

Suspend Saturday Edition At McGill

The Managing Board of the McGill Daily has decided to suspend temporarily publication of the Saturday issue. This decision was reached after a full study of the financial position of the Daily. The Board forsees a decrease in the revenue from advertising this year and the necessity of meeting publication expenses will be best served by suspending the Saturday issue.

Students may rest assured, however, that this change is only a temporary measure of economy, attributable, like so many other modern evils, to the current depression; and that as soon as more advertising matter is forthcoming the full program of six issues a week will be carried out.

Freshmen Regulations

Freshmen are reminded that they are expected to wear tams, ribbons, and bow ties at the Queen's-Toronto Rugby game next Saturday. All these articles are now on sale at the Technical Supplies Dept.

Dean Roughly Used In Toronto Melee

Dean Intervenes In Initiation Ceremony

Toronto, C.I.P. — The School of Practical Science initiation, for many years the venue of tales of error, has become mere history. The annual greeting extended to frosh by imperious sophomores is forbidden this year by Dean Mitchell and the Faculty Council.

Schoolmen as usual started this year with a lively scrap in the Engineering Building. The Dean, in an attempt to quell the fray, was subjected to some rather severe handling and after the battle he heatedly dispersed any plans for the usual initiation ceremonies. He declared that the Faculty Council would not tolerate the flare-up under any circumstances. It appears that for the first time in history School freshmen will assume their studies in the green and raw.

Examination Hall may never again be the temporary madhouse which for years it has been notorious. Ancient traditions have been flung to the winds. Long-hoarded barrel staves will have to be useful only for firewood. Slippery slides, sackcloth tunnels, cod liver oil ablutions, axle grease, gin pills, rotten tomatoes and plums—all have been relegated to the dim and distant past. It is rumoured, however, that plans are under way for a Soph-Frosh banquet which may in some measure appease the appetites of excitement-hungry Schoolmen.

Freshman initiation at the Toronto Dental College became co-educational on Saturday when the women students enlisted in the ranks of the male Sophs to hand out "the works" to the innocent newcomers. This year no women were among the first year students, and the returning girls were determined to have their chance to give "an eye for an eye," etc. Miss Amy Mulholland and several other Sophomores were particularly interested in attending to their freshman brothers, and saw that they missed nothing of the excitement.

Queen's Defeat Rough Riders In Season's Opener

Team Shows Promise In Defeating Ottawa Rugby Aggregation

An inkling of the strength of Queen's 1932 senior team, was gained on Saturday when the local rugby season was officially opened, the Tricolor entertaining the famed Ottawa Rough Riders.

If weather conditions have any bearing on the future fortune of a team, then Queen's got off to a flying start in more ways than one. The brooding skies and showers of the latter part of the week, gave place to a dreamy blue canopy, a gentle zephyr, just strong enough to straighten out the flags atop the big stand, and a warm autumn sun that gladdened the hearts of the bleacher occupants.

While the weather conditions were a trifle warm for rugby, they were ideal for those who like their football with a midsummer touch. This resulted in a goodly crowd on the bleacher side of the field, but Mr. D. Pression, or lack of interest in exhibition affairs, kept the usual occupants of the big stand away, and only a sprinkling of seats were occupied at starting time. Shortly after a rush of bleacher sitters, made the appearance of the concrete pews more respectable.

Ottawa arrived with a squad some thirty strong, showing a remarkable contrast in ages; the veteran Eddie Emmerson, with twenty-two years of rugby behind him, vieing with players who were not on this planet when Eddie began his Big 4 career. It was noticeable that Eddie took a long time to arise after a heavy tackle, but he was a threat at all times.

The Rough Riders presented a strong line that plainly overshadowed Queen's, gaining their yards from scrimmage nine times to the Tricolor's two. Their backfield however was not as steady as Queen's, though Linegar who did the bulk of the kicking was always dangerous. Hutchingame also played well, but made a big mistake when he attempted to return Carter's kick in the second quarter with Storms coming up fast. The former R.M.C. star jumped high, partially blocked the ball and Milt Buell fell on it on Ottawa's 25 yard line.

(Continued on page 6)

Freshettes To Discard Bibs And Bowlers Will Adopt Red, Yellow And Blue Tams

A somewhat radical change is soon to be noticed on the campus. The freshettes, like the freshman, are to wear tams instead of the bibs, aprons adorned with ribald remarks, or bowler hats which tend to mar the appearance of even the most beautiful. These tams will be red, yellow and blue and will be worn till four-thirty on week days throughout the year. To those of Levana who are cursed with a mean disposition it is somewhat of a disappointment to be deprived of the amusement of seeing the freshettes submit to the indignities and humiliation which other years suffered. However, a standardized initiation seems much more appropriate and no doubt the change will be appreciated by the freshettes.

In past years Freshettes have undergone the public humility of berry-boxes, aprons, green socks and straw hats. This year there will be a radical change noticed on the campus. No longer will Freshettes incur the wrath of professors.

Queen's Music Group

Last year's experimental music group was by common consent of all those who attended so successful that it has been decided to continue the group this year and to extend its scope and appeal. It is too early as yet to announce any date for the first meeting but it is hoped that it will be possible to make a beginning sometime next week.

Membership is open to all those who are interested in music.

Quill Staff To Meet

It is hoped to summon a meeting of the editorial staff of the Quill as soon as possible this week. The purpose of the meeting is to elect the editor and consider the future policy of the periodical. Meanwhile contributions are welcomed. Materials for publication whether in verse or prose should be given to Eric Gilmour, 7 Aberdeen St., Tel. 3469, or at the Journal Office.

Postmistress Smiles Tolerantly On Antics Of College Life As Seen Thru' Wicket Bar

I paused on my way up the stairs of the Library and walked up to the Post Office. "Any letters today?" I enquired; without a moment's hesitation the Post Mistress picked a letter out of a pigeon hole and pushed it towards me. "Do you always remember everybody's name" I asked curiously. "Usually," she replied with a smile of quiet confidence.

Here was a character of whom we should know more, I thought. I wonder how many students stop to consider the calm efficiency of our post mistress, Miss Gordon. And for her part what does she think of us as we hurry up to the post office and hurry off again often too preoccupied to do more than mumble a word of request, and less often of identification, before we snatch up our mail and dash away. I determined to look into the matter more closely. So I invaded her sanctum and explained my errand.

"Tell me Miss Gordon," I said, "As you look out from behind the

Continued on page 4

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. S. HAZEN—4134-W ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY ..... LITERARY EDITOR

NEWS STAFF

L. Smith ..... Arts '34 A. Sutherland ..... Arts '33
Bruce May ..... Arts '35 A. C. Toner .....
C. Milne ..... Sc. '34

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4th, 1932

To Graduates

Last Spring a small select group of men and women graduated from our Universities. They represented youth at it's best, prepared for life by years of hard study. They were told the world 'needed trained minds.' They were eager to accept what the world had to offer—but they found that the world did not seem to need them. They had prepared themselves for life and life had no place for them. What are they to do?

Bruce Barton advances the best solution to this quandry we have seen to date. Three suggestions are proferred. First, the graduate is urged to go on with post graduate work, if at all possible. He need not pursue his work along the lines of his earlier studies, but may enter an entirely new field —business, law, music . . . etc. By so doing he will receive the broadening influence of an excursion into new fields, and will add greatly to his ultimate strength.

If it is not possible to finance another year of study, the present period should be used to gain new experience. Travel, even though it has to be done on a bicycle, is suggested. Manual labor, relief work and farming are only a few of the occupations which are open to the unemployed graduate.

The third suggestion stresses the value of home-study. The college student has often been heard to say quite emphatically that his course exacts so much of his time that he is unable to do any outside reading. Now is the time to make or renew acquaintance with good books. Lay out a plan of reading and do not deviate from it. If you prefer study a new language.

When the fangs of depression lose their grip the world will have a place for you. There will be no time, then, for any of these profitable activities just outlined.

Above all the present period should not undermine faith and induce indolence.

Nice Work, Coach

Stepping into any football camp and taking over the charge of a squad riddled by graduation, knowing that in a very short time his men will be called upon to face such teams as McGill, Varsity and Western, where fate has been more considerate, is indeed a task only for the able and courageous.

Milt Burt, taking over the coaching berth vacated by the one and only Harry Batstone, has proved himself to be one of the ablest and most courageous. Saturday's victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders was as much a triumph for the coach as for the team.

Arriving in Kingston Burt found awaiting him a squad composed of new and untried material for the most part. Only a handful of the veterans remained.

He saw at once that the situation demanded arduous work, and he set at the task of building a worthy rugby machine with the ardour of a trojan. That his work was of the best was clearly established Saturday.

The Ottawa Rough Riders squad cannot be classed as formidable, but seldom have we seen a Queen's team put so much fight into a season's opening game and that an exhibition. True the play was listless and loose in spots but Burt will see that these faults are ironed out.

The Journal takes this occasion to wish the new coach a most successful season and to assure him that the student body is pulling for him unreservedly.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

The Initiation

The University of New Brunswick still retains the custom of Freshman Initiation with much general censure and very little praise.

Yet present day initiation consisting only of a few temporary restrictions and regulations is an affair of little importance and offers no grounds for serious objection unless there is a deliberate overstepping of the powers of the initiating class. Those who were Sophomores a few decades ago tell startling tales of early initiation methods. Happily such practices were buried with the monstache cup.

Those who have at heart the best interests of the University will be glad to learn that all objectionable initiation practices have been abolished. Student opinion as well as that of the general public has made this possible. Initiation this year consists of a few rules intended to aid the Freshman in adapting himself to his new environment and to help him realize that he is now a part of a great institution that is much bigger than himself, that existed before he was thought of and that will exist when he is just a memory.

—(The Brunswickan)

Dean Brock of B.C. University

Graduates of Queen's University have occupied important posts in various seats of learning in America. Old residents recall Dr. McLean as dean of the Ann Arbor, Michigan, medical school, Dr. Chown as head of the Manitoba medical school, Winnipeg, and Dr. Reeve, head of the Toronto University medical school.

Now, in its days of difficulty, there comes to mind Dr. R. W. Brock, dean of the faculty of applied science in the University of British Columbia. Dean Brock is one of the most eminent scholars of this Pacific coast seat of learning, and is highly regarded not only in that Western Canadian province, but in the wider field of applied science.

Dr. Brock will be recalled particularly by the hockeyists of Queen's from 1894 to 1897, when he was a science student here under the late Dr. W. G. Miller, one of ths greatest geologists that Canada has produced, and after whom Miller Hall, one of the recent Queen's buildings, is called. It was because Queen's took Miller from Toronto that Brock came to Kingston, for he regarded him as Canada's greatest geologist, a man who put learning before wealth.

Miller could have possessed millions, because he was the man who knew the Cobalt region before it was developed, but he preferred to give his geological knowledge of the region to his province, and passed up riches. Miller was the man who taught Brock geology and gave him the desire for knowledge and more knowledge.

Dr. Brock taught at Queen's after Dr. Miller became provincial geologist and he studied at the famous Heidelberg University in Germany which had on its staff one of the world's great geologists, who several times visited Queen's in Kingston. He was director of the Geological Survey of Canada, and was also Deputy Minister of Mines of Canada. He served as an officer in Syria and Palestine under General Allenby and after the Great War returned to British Columbia, where he has since been with the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Brock married the youngest daughter of the late Mr. Justice B. M. Britton, former Liberal member of Parliament for Kingston, and his son is now a cadet in the Royal Military College here. The tall and well-set-up young man who played a wing position on Queen's championship hockey teams in the nineties, and wore glasses on the ice—a most unusual thing in those days—has still the figure of an athlete.

—(Kingston Whig-Standard)

Your Best Friend

(Boston Post)

Don't flatter yourself that you have evolved anything unique or original in thinking that your own particular job is not only harder work, but duller and less interesting than the vocation of your neighbor.

While you are thinking that about his job, he is probably thinking the same thing about yours—and the man farther down the street would cheerfully swap his job for either yours or your neighbor's.

It seems to be a human trait to conclude that the other fellow has a snap compared with the work you do. Every man's vocation palls on him at times. He chafes and rebels against the daily grind, the same today as yesterday, with no promise of variety tomorrow.

He says there is no romance in scrambling out early, working eight or nine hours, coming home and going to bed only to repeat the performance daily six times per week.

Yet suppose you were to suddenly lose that job. Suppose the boss should give you the boot. Then you would awake to the fact that your job is your best friend in the world.

Someone has said, "Blessed be drudgery." Those words bristle with truth. Occupation is the key to happiness. Be a friend of your job. Go to it every day with gladness. Work at it with a will and it will become a pleasure instead of a duty. Your job is what you make it.

Official Notices

Physical Examinations

All students at the University for the first time must have a physical examination. Appointments for men are made at the Registrar's office. Women students should consult Miss Ethelwynne Murphy.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

Khaki University and Y.M.C.A. Memorial Scholarship.

The University has funds for Scholarships for the sons and daughters of returned men who were in active service during the Great War. The applications for these Scholarships should be in the hands of the Registrar by October 15.

ATHLETIC NURSE MAID

Columbus, O.—If the "old lady who lived in a shoe and had so many children she didn't know what to do," lived in the modern age, she might have found a solution to her problem in two college boys here.

Milton Zeckhauser, heavyweight boxing champion at Ohio State University, and Bobby Blashek, a member of the soccer team, have turned "nurse maids." They will care for your child daytimes, for a price. They already have a group of youngsters under their wing.

Zeckhauser and Blashek hit upon the novel scheme to help pay their expenses through college.

HEY You . . .

No wonder strong men shout for them. They know from experience the cool, mild fragrance of Turrets, the most popular cigarettes in Canada. Made from choice Golden Virginia tobacco.

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS !
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

ARTS '35 MEETING

The march of time changing all things changes even freshmen into sophomores and turns youthful exuberance into more stately mien, more discreet gravity. Back into the maze of memory recede thoughts of moonlight excursions, of bedaubed cars of mere Science men, and of hair close cropped in the heat of battle. For Arts '35 is no longer the freshman year; but being arrived now at a new responsibility as Sophomores looks forward keenly to the pursuit of glory in fresh woods and pastures new.

But before action, organization. A meeting of Arts '35 therefore will be called on next Friday afternoon for the purpose of electing new officials and deciding future policy with particular relation to freshmen. More specific notice of time and place will be given in the next issue of the Journal.

A FAILURE

A story that probably he intended to be taken with a grain of salt was fired off recently by Mr. Stephen Leacock.

It concerned a Canadian engineer who went to Russia to install an incubator plant under the five-year plan. It worked all right on a trial experiment supervised by its builder, producing no fewer than 49,700 chickens from 50,000 eggs.

Then, in obedience to orders from Moscow, he handed over his plant to a Russian overseer.

The latter concluded that he could hasten the process of incubation by increasing the temperature. But the experiment proved a failure. Instead of chickens, the incubator produced 50,000 hard-boiled eggs.

University President To Study Young Prodigies

Evanston, Ill.—(IP)—Last year President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern University conceived the plan of having a group of so-called prodigies come to his university this year to live and study together. He would study the results.

Last week seven who applied as such and were accepted arrived to begin the experiment with President Scott.

The seven were William Duncan Stetch, 15, of New York; Jane Alice Hall, 15, of Clovis, N.M.; Mary Margaret Moore, 14, of Danville, Ill.; James Allen Norton, 15, of Flint, Mich.; George Edward Alcott, 15, of Weiner, Ark.; John Rader Platt, 14, of Tampa, Fla.; and A. M. Reir, jr., 15, of Birmingham, Ala.

The seven will have the advice of Harold Finley, who entered the university three years ago at the age of 13 and is now beginning his senior year. The fathers and mothers of all seven are college graduates.

Good morning, sir. I'm a bond salesman.

That's all right, my good fellow. Here's a quarter—go buy yourself a square meal.

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

Believe it or not I am one "vox pop," who really has an altrustic motive in writing to the Editor.

I should like to give you a few hints as to make up, style of heads, leads on news stories, editorials and features. And when I'm through I'll take up a few other points.

Now in the first place the front page isn't sensational enough. According to screen authorities it should literally scream out the news. A love interest story. An alimony case. An abduction or a kidnapping case. One of these should be spread over the front page. Particularly a good kidnapping in which everyone but the editor is completely baffled. Then in the last issue in April the solution is disclosed.

Something after this style. "President's daughter kidnapped by high powered college bandits in frantic attempt to force the President's hand and get their degrees."

While returning from a musicale Miss Blank Blank, daughter of President Blank was rudely attacked by two berserk young men on Queen's Crescent. (This was contributed by eye witnesses). The brutes shoved the girl into a Ford touring car and departed with exhaust wide open while a crowd of helpless co-eds stood months agape on the side walk.

One of the girls turned in an alarm to the Kingston Fire Department which arrived with hose and ladders, proceeded at once to deluge Ban Righ but was interrupted just before the water was turned on.

A reporter on this paper was informed that the president had received a call, charges reversed, ordering him to grant diplomas at once in return for his daughter. No further developments in the case have occurred."

That, Mr. Editor, would do for a start.

"A FRESHMAN"

Physicist Describes Explosions Of Atoms

New York—(IP)—Tremendous explosions of atoms a few thousand feet above sea level are described by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, one of the country's two greatest physical scientists, in a letter to the editor of the Physical Review reporting the findings in his world-wide investigation of the cosmic ray.

Dr. Compton first observed these explosions at a height of 4,000 feet in the mountains of Peru. The higher he went the more he found. They registered in the gas chamber of his testing instrument, and appeared to be the disruption of atomic nuclei on which cosmic rays had made direct hits.

The difference between these exceptional hits and the ordinary effects of cosmic rays at lower levels, he said, was in the amount of energy set free. These occasional high level hits showed bursts of from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 electron-volts. On top of Mount El Misti two such atomic explosions were noted in a half hour.

Dr. Compton said they appeared to come from cosmic rays of less penetrating power than those ordinarily reaching the surface of the earth. All of Dr. Compton's studies tend to show that the cosmic rays are electrons rather than waves and that they resemble particles or bullets.

Graduate Of Queen's Jolts Chinese Prof.

A Queen's University graduate gave Dr. Giang Kang-hu, professor of Chinese studies at McGill University, a big thrill the other day.

The Queen's grad, Gordon R. Taylor, who secured his honor B.A. here in 1928 and who has registered at McGill this year for M.A. work, walked into Dr. Kiang's office and addressed the Chinese scholar in a flood of Cantonese.

Taylor has never been to China but he can read and write the Southern China dialect better than most of the native Chinese in Canada.

At the tender age of nine he began taking his father's shirts and collars to a Chinese laundry. The language of the laundryman intrigued him so he made friends and began his informal study of Chinese. Soon he had mastered Cantonese as far as his instructor could take him and young Taylor was turned over to an old Chinese instructor stimulated his mental activity with many a blow over the knuckles.

While Taylor was at the University here he kept up his Chinese studies by conversations with the Chinese population of the city and now he has entered McGill to pursue his studies of the language further. He hopes to go to China some day.

K. F. D. Busy Since Return of Students

It appears that the battle 'twixt the student body of Queen's and the Kingston Fire Department has again been joined. According to information received over the week-end the members of the Department have been pretty busy during the past few days. Since the University re-opened the number of false alarms received has been prodigious. After 5 months of inaction. (With, apparently, no false alarms,) the firefighters cannot help but remark upon the sudden improvement in business. During the last few days a subtle change has come over the men of this department. Where 10 days ago the spirit of inertia held sway, today the air is electric. The atmosphere is charged with what almost amounts to apprehension. The men make no direct accusation but their meaning is inferred: "It must be Queen's."

The Fire Department claims that the score stands at 2-1 in favor of K.F.D. They work it out like this. There was the case of "Conflagration on the Campus" or "The Saturated Chief"—definitely a win for the student body. Following that, the "Arts Building Fire" in which the honors were fairly evenly divided, though slightly in favor of the firemen. Finally there was the "Union" episode last Christmas when the Fire Department had everything their own way, Queen's having gone down "en masse" for a festive vacation. Thus the Department reckons that it is one up. Of course we know better!

As to what this session will bring we can only conjecture. Suffice it to say that Queen's as the years pass becomes more and more handicapped by seemingly endless reconstruction and fireproofing. It will not be long before a new field beyond the campus will have to be sought whereupon to continue this feud.

NOTICE FRESHMEN

The Arts Freshmen organization meeting will be held Thursday afternoon at 4.15 p.m. in Room 201, Arts Building.

The Science Freshmen will meet on Thursday afternoon at 5 p.m. The meeting place has not been chosen, but notification will be made early enough to allow every freshman to attend.

The Freshmen are advised that attendance at these organization meetings is strictly compulsory.

On Freshmen

Every year sees a different lot of queerly assorted dregs of humanity in the guise of freshmen of the common beer-garden variety let loose on this venerable old college which apparently has no adequate defence against such an invasion. Just where all these frosh come from is one of life's little mysteries that has puzzled the great thinkers of all ages. Nobody asks them to come, nobody welcomes them, and yet here they are, as proud as punch that they are so far away from home and mother's eagle eye. This state of affairs continues for about a week but after the novelty of complete freedom begins to get a little shiny in the seat of the pants it is a somewhat different story. It is at this period of the game that they begin to get a little homesick and then the campus is studded with potential suicides.

Freshmen make a very interesting study. Suppose you were to single out one from the herd and thoroughly examine him with an impartial eye. Somehow he doesn't look so bad, quite harmless in fact. His face may be a little sticky from the all-day sucker he has been working on, his clothes may look as if they came from the fifteen-dollar store and his general appearance may closely resemble a farm-hand on his day off but taken all in all he doesn't look like anything worth writing a letter of complaint about to the Whig-Standard. Mass all the freshmen together and that's a different story. Every last mother's son of them now looks like the out-casts of the underworld with visages that resemble nothing human. Ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent. of them have criminal faces of the lower type and it scarcely any wonder that the mothers of Kingston punish erring children by threatening to take them out and look at the freshmen.

Even among morons such as the frosh most undoubtedly are, there are class distinctions. There is the negative group that are so negative that they are almost positive and on the other hand there is the positive group that is so positive that it is almost negative. One type that is bound to delight the sophisticated eyes of the sophs is the frosh that assumes a cocky my-feet-don't-smell attitude, and has an extensive wise-cracking vocabulary that ranges anywhere from "so's your old man" to "oh yeah?" This is the very same freshman that will be on the make for the waitresses at the "Sup" for the next two weeks. The nattily dressed frosh with the plus-fours and bow-tie purchased from Eaton's catalogue is also a good prospect for the seniors who are on the lookout for fun and games. Taking frosh down a peg certainly ranks with the sports of kings. Perhaps the creme de la creme of the freshman crop, though, is the dumb frosh. "Show me a dumb freshman and I'll show you a good time." (Hamlet, Act I Sc. 2).

Another great mystery surrounding freshmen is to where do they all disappear? Of course we understand that a large number are murdered in cold blood by their bored seniors, and a great many graduate at Christmas, to say nothing of the share that fade to the garbage-men, but the question is where do the majority go. Naturally many return the next year but somehow they don't seem to be the same people. They don't look so criminal and half-witted and yet how could such a change be effected in one year. Truly college is a great melting-pot.

As I look over this year's batch I feel more pessimistic than usual because between you and me and the Union I've never seen a more delapidated, forlorn group of human derelicts, the sweepings of the street as it were, that have been wished on us this year. It's enough to make a self-respecting student turn over in his bed.

H. J. H.

New American Rugby Rules To Eliminate Fatalities

New York — (IP) — Football killed a score of youths last year. Few of the fatalities were on college teams, but at the end of the season public opinion ordained that the intercollegiate rules committee get together and take the danger out of football.

Last week coaches meeting in New York for a study and interpretation of the new rules found that two of the most important changes had loopholes which might conceivably injure the game that was no longer to injure the players.

Fritz Crisler, new Princeton football coach, told the coaches that there could no longer be any legal fake kick plays where the strategy calls for a back taking the pass from centre, dropping to one knee as if holding for a placement kick, and then rising to pass or run.

The ball, under the new rule, will be dead the moment the faking back's knee touches the ground, for the rule holds that a ball is dead when any part of a ball carrier's body, other than his feet or hands, touches the ground. This rule was made to prevent piling up.

It also developed that under the rule allowing players to return to the game once each quarter instead of once each half, there is nothing to prevent a quarter back leaving the field at the end of one quarter, getting instructions from the coach, and return as a substitute for the substitute before the opening play of the new quarter.

The purpose of this new rule was to prevent the leaving in the game of injured substitutes whose places could not be taken until the end of the half because the original man in the position had been taken out earlier in the game.

Just bought a new novel.

Long?

Oh, no—just about two lecture periods.

Welcome Back—

Queen's Men!

Just as the University and the City extend a welcome to you, so does this men's store, that has always been so popular with students, add its word of greeting.

Come in and see our interesting display of New Fall Clothing—Suits, Topcoats, Winter Overcoats and Furnishings. Tweddell's, you know, carries only the best, but the prices are always easy on College allowances. You will enjoy shopping here because we pride ourselves on knowing and keeping what College men want and on selling at very reasonable prices.

TWEDDELL'S
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Varsity and McGill To Divide Events

Varsity and McGill will divide the major events of the intercollegiate athletics this year, the boxing and wrestling being staged at Montreal and the tennis and track at Toronto.

The senior intercollegiate tennis tournament will be held at Varsity on October 20, 21 and 22, while the intermediate tennis event will also be at Varsity on October 27, 28 and 29.

The intercollegiate track meet will be at Varsity on October 21, and the intermediate track meet will be at Guelph on October 28.

The boxing, wrestling and fencing championships will be fought for at McGill on February 17 and 18.

This year the intercollegiate harrier meet will be at the Royal Military College on November 5.

R.M.C., Varsity and McGill will compromise the intercollegiate soccer league, with the teams playing one game away and one game at home. The schedule is as follows:

October 15—R.M.C. at Varsity.
October 22—McGill at R.M.C.
October 29—Varsity at McGill.

Lawyer (to client)—That's right—you just tell the truth and nothing but the truth—leave the rest to me.

Prof: Can you give me a definition of an orator:

Frosh: Sure. He's the fellow who is always ready to lay down your life for his country.

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Anaesthesia

Since those bygone days when the mists of antiquity hid the efforts of primitive man to seek relief from pain by surgical means, some method has been sought that would abolish the intense agony of surgical operations. When it was finally discovered, there was no word to fittingly describe the dreamless sleep of oblivion that replaced the moments of horror. It was suggested by Oliver Wendell Holmes that the word anaesthesia be applied to the condition of insensibility to pain and that the word anaesthetic be used to designate the drug which brought this about.

The word analgesia is of more recent origin and means insensibility to pain without loss of consciousness. This state exists when a local anaesthetic is employed. Analgesia may be produced by inhaling any of the general anaesthetics, such as chloroform or nitrous oxide, in which the patient is almost asleep yet sufficiently awake to open or close the eyes when requested to do so. When analgesia is produced by a general anaesthetic, the entire body is insensible to pain yet the patient is partly conscious. This light form of anaesthesia is not often used in general surgery, but is almost universally employed in relieving the pains of labour during childbirth. The twilight sleep which was exploited some years ago, and which has been discarded, was an analgesia produced by the hypodermic injection of morphine and scodolamine.

The operating rooms of the days preceding the introduction of chloroform and ether, were literally chambers of horror, in which every moment of the operation seemed an eternity of agony for the patient, though every measure then known to science was used to alleviate the pain. These consisted in giving of such drugs as opium, cannabis indica hyoscyamus, the inhalation of fumes from a concoction of soothing drugs, pressure on blood vessels and nerves, or an attempt at hypnotism. It was only on rare occasions that these measures proved effectual, and it became necessary for strong men forcibly to hold the patient on the operation table, while the surgeon performed the operation as quickly as possible. The death rate was high and the results of operations often unsatisfactory because accuracy had to be sacrificed to speed.

Only the most urgent operations were advised and these were often refused because the patients preferred death rather than the pain of the operation.

The discovery of anaesthetics has removed the terror from the surgeon's knife and major surgery has been made possible. Today the most prolonged and difficult operation can be performed without haste on the part of the surgeon and without pain to the patient. This happy situation has been instrumental in saving many thousands of lives each year.

The part Sir James Simpson took in the introduction of chloroform in Edinburgh is well known. On this continent, three men should receive credit for the discovery of anaesthesia, one a physician, one a dentist and the other a dentist and physician.

Dr. Crawford W. Long was the first to discover that the pain of a surgical operation could be eliminated by the inhalation of ether. He practiced medicine in the village of Athens, Ga. His first operation under ether was in 1842, the bill for which is still in existence and reads as follows:

For Sulphuric ether ..... .25
For exsecting tumor 2.00

He did not publish his results until seven years afterward when others had laid claim to the discovery.

In 1844 Horace Wells, a dentist of Hartford, Conn., discovered the anaesthetic property of nitrous oxide or laughing gas and used it for the painless extration of teeth. He was so successful that he ventured to give a public demonstration of its use in surgery, but his attempt proved a failure. Wells did not know as we do now that for the successful use of nitrous oxide for prolonged surgical operations, it is necessary to combine it with oxygen.

We are indebted to Wells for the pleasantest anaesthetic we know today. It is popular with the patient because its odor is not disagreeable, consciousness is lost quickly, and speedily regained after even the most prolonged operation and nausea and vomiting are less after it than after any other anaesthetic.

Two years after Wells began to use nitrous oxide, William T. Morton discovered independently the anaesthetic properties of ether. He was at that time a sophomore medical student at Harvard University and gave a successful demonstration before his professors and classmates. Its use spread rapidly and soon operations under ether were performed in all the large hospitals of the world.

Since the introduction of ether and nitrous oxide, several other inhalation anaesthetics have been discovered, but only three are in commons use, Chloroform, ethyl chloride and ethylene.

The first local anaesthesia, that of cocaine, was discovered in Germany by Koller in 1884. There is now a long list of local anaesthetics, the two most commonly being employed are novocain and ureaquinine hydrochloride, which are much less poisonous than cocaine. There are three methods of employing a local anaesthetic. (1) By infiltration, when the anaesthetic solution is injected directly into the tissues to be operated on. (2) By injecting into or near a nerve at its source, so that the part supplied by the nerve is insesible to pain. (3) By injecting it into the spinal canal so that the lower half or more of the body will be anaesthetized.

In the early days and even up to twenty years ago, the giving of anaesthetics was considered unworthy of special attention, it being beneath the dignity of a physician to think of making it a specialty. The same is true in regard to surgery and obstetrics in the early days of their development. For hundreds of years the surgical cases were treated by the barber, that being the reason the streak of red was put in the barber's sign. In obstetrics, the midwife was supreme.

Postmistress Sees Life And Its Little Jokes

Continued from page 1

bars of your office on to the student life of Queen's what are your thoughts of us; how do we seem to you?"

A twinkle came in her eye. "My thoughts," she said, and a secret joy lit up her face for a moment "my thoughts are not," she hesitated and I waited expectantly only to be disappointed as she finished . . "for publication."

"But surely," I urged, "you can tell me something of your view of things. Or if not tell me of some of the weird things you have come across in the mail during your career here—snakes perhaps, or frogs, or even, I added hopefully, an infernal machine." But again I was baffled. "I'm afraid that the most weird things I have happened on here have been students not mail" she smiled. I pressed her for an explanation but in vain, and then for a few minutes I had to suspend operations while she handed out a supplement to the Calendar to a student with red hair and a bright green tie, sold some stamps to an agitated elderly gentleman, offered a free map of Kingston to a rather moonstruck freshman who looked as if he had been lost since birth and had not et found himself, and gave a copy of Queen's in Pictures to a freshette with a squeaky voice and freckles. After the rush had subsided I returned to the attack. "What," I asked absent mindedly, "is your view of the Canadian girl?" Observing the expression on her face I collected myself hurriedly, "Can't you tell me at least some of the amusing things that you have noticed here lately," I asked plaintively. "Well of course," she replied "there was the freshman who came here yesterday, collected his mail and then asked if he should scratch his name off the mailing list, and then there was the dog who wandered in one day and—but that, she declared, pulling up short with the glint of battle in her eye, was a different story.

I changed the subject. "Do you find your work hard on the eyes," I enquired. "I do," she murmured softly, "but nothing like so hard as having to suffer fools gladly." Just then I remembered a pressing engagement.

First Student Service To Be Held In St. James'

Continued from page 1

er, Principal W. T. Brown, Ph.D. of Victoria College, Toronto, will deal with the subject "Authority in Life, Morals and Religion."

Dr. Kent spoke also of the new Chapel which is being built by the Board of the Theological College and made possible by the gift of Mr. A. C. Badenoch of the Indian civil service who gave £1000 in memory of his uncle and aunt, Dr. W. Morgan and Mrs. Morgan. The central window is the gift of the Misses Mary and Isobel Ross in memory of their father the late Principal Ross. The second window was given by the Theological College in memory of prominent graduates, namely D. J. Macdonnell, Minister of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, and his brother, G. M. Macdonnell, for many years chairman of the Board of Queen's Theological College. The third window is the gift of the Alumni. The Chapel is to be used for Morning Prayer at nine o'clock and for Communion and other special services.

Boxing Instructor (after first lesson)—"Now, have you any questions to ask?"

Beginner (dazed)—"Yes; how much is your correspondence course?"

Prof. What do you know about nitrates.

Frosh: Well . . . they're cheaper than day rates.

S. C. A. Shrapnel

"If I prayed, I would lose my self-respect," said a student recently. His attitude was that he would rather work out his own adjustment to life than to cry for help to an external power.

Self respect is a value not to be surrendered at any cost, for it is that which belongs to one who has realized his proper place in the universe. But prayer does involve the surrender of self conceit which is an exaggerated notion of one's place in the Universe.

The difficulty seems to spring from a wrong conception of prayer. Prayer is described by one as the celebration of life. It is analysing one's own motives in the light of ideal motives. This act would seem to embrace self respect.

The importarnce of Jesus Christ is that He gives body to these ideals and makes human and real what would otherwise be abstract.

The above is a resume of some of the thoughts arising out of a discussion held in Chalmers Church, Sunday evening. Such discussions along religious lines will recur monthly on the first Sunday of the month. Bring your questions and also your reasoned opinions.

WARNING!

The following notice has been posted at an electric station in Ireland:

"Beware. To touch these wires is instant death. Anyone found doing so will be prosecuted."

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

MODERN CLEANERS AND DYERS
229 Princess St. 'Phone 3180
If "Modern" Cleaned — It's C-l-e-a-n
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS

ROY-YORK CAFE
Announces the inauguration of new policies with much
LOWER PRICES—Effective Immediately
Reduced prices on all a la carte servings. You can now have high quality food for less than what you pay for ordinary elsewhere. This reduction affects all orders, large or small.
A complete change of menu for every meal. Dinner and supper served on the main floor for 55c. This price covers a complete, satisfactory meal such as has made thousands of "come-backs" for the Roy-York Cafe.
For the business man we offer, starting September 20th, a thirty-five cent lunch—served on second floor.
For the Student our meal tickets at $4.25 for 14 meals, saves you money and purchases the very best food.
Music at all hours—Dancing upstairs any evening except Saturday—minimum charge 25c., Saturday 35c., including refreshments as ordered.
We cordially invite you to inspect any time our clean kitchens where our delicious tasting food is prepared. Cleanliness is our major rule at all times.
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL
BIRD OF PARADISE
with
Dolores del Rio, Joel McCrea.

And now, abideth volcanoes, earthquakes, whirlpools, and Dolores del Rio in a grass skirt, and the greatest of these is Dolores in in a grass skirt.

Bird of Paradise is another of those pictures with a South Sea locale with little to recommend it in the way of novelty except for some clever photography, most of it natural, some of it faked. Outside of the excellent nature shots the chief interest is the various costumes affected by the leading lady, Dolores del Rio. Her acting is just so-so—in fact, I preferred Betty Boop in the short which precedes the main picture. Joel McCrea is the male lead who goes native in a Doug. Fairbanks manner. Just where he gets all his energy from is a little puzzling, and it is hard to understand why he doesn't sit down when he gets the chance and take a well-earned rest.

"Skeets" Gallagher has a small unimportant part, but this reviewer would have preferred to have watched him go about the serious business of drinking to the pseudo primitive love-making of the principals.

There is action enough, Heaven only knows, and brother Joel battles more elements to come out on top than is shown in many a Tom Mix western. In fact, if a horse had been added to the cast it might have been hard to detect the difference. Joel leaps over streams of flowing lava, does a "splits" across a fissure in the earth made by an erupting volcano, wrestles with a huge turtle, swims away from the seething vortex of a whirlpool, and in general carries on like a son of the gods. Ho hum.

At that the picture is somewhat of a relief from the flood of mystery and detective films that the moguls of the movie world have unleashed on the innocent public.

B—.

AT THE TIVOLI

BLONDIE OF THE FOLLIES
with
Marion Davies, Robert Montgomery, Jimmy Durante, Billie Dove and Zasu Pitts.

Marion Davies in Blondie of the Follies plays an East Tide girl who strikes out for herself and reaches the front row of the Follies. From there she sails, via the orchestra-pit, into Robert Montgomery's arms.

We suspect Anita Loos of letting us down sadly so far as the dialogue is concerned. And we would rather not see Marion Davies break away from her natural milieu, that of comedy, and attempt "big stuff" with lamentable results. Indeed, the few redeeming shots in this talkie occur when Miss Davies is allowed to fall into her easy and convincing rôle of light comedy. She has a delightful flair for mimicry which this reviewer, for one, had not hitherto suspected. Jimmy Durante—who is, alas, on stage for one short scene only—and Marion Davies are simply swell when they break into their version of Garbo wearily suggesting that Barrymore go away and leave her.

Robert Montgomery gets very little work-out in this talkie. Little is required of him save to walk suavely about and arch his brows.

Graham McNamee, preceding any picture, furnishes an irritant that is hard to overcome. Perhaps one's critical judgment becomes a little soured. Even so, Blondie of the Folllies deserves no more than a C+.

Parent (reproving son): And don't forget I'm your father.

Son: All right, dad, but I wish you wouldn't keep swanking about it.

"Been seeing a good deal in print about a balanced ration."

"Well?"

"What is your idea of a balanced ration?"

"Peas on a knife."

Book Chats

By R.M.

I picked up a brown-covered rather uninteresting looking book some time ago. At all events, it seemed so at first glance. But on opening it I was surprised to read the date 1795 at the foot of the title page. In queer faded type the title read:

THE GLORY OF CHRIST
AS GOD-MAN
DISPLAYED
IN THREE DISCOURSES
By Isaac Watts, D.D.

A rather dry theological treatise one might think. Yet there must be a fascinating history behind that book, printed one hundred and thirty-seven years ago by Manning and Loring of Boston. How did it come to Canada? What was its owner like? These are questions that must remain submerged in mystery. That does not prevent us from exercising our fancy and imagination. What a pleasure books, old and new can be to one with a cultivated taste.

Somewhere John Milton has said that "a good book is the precious life blood of a master spirit." In these times when book publishing has become a highly efficient industry and volumes pour from the presses annually it is hard fully to appreciate the value of a good book. Such a one as that acquired by Harvard University last May must have been dear to its owner. This was "The Book of Troy" by Guido Dell Colonne printed at Augsburg with the type of Gunther Zainer about 1478.

To those who are interested in historical literature it will be interesting to know that The Douglas Library has a book that only post-dates the Harvard acquisition by five years. It is entitled "Biblia Cum Postillis" by Nicholas de Lird and published in Venice in 1483. Reposing near the same volume is an odd history of the world from creation written by Wernher Rolewinck of Lyons (1484). The great Renaissance theologian and scholar Thomas Aquinus is represented by "Summa Theologia" dated 1487 while a monumental tome by Suetonuis—"Lives of the Twelve Caesars" leans stiffly against its famous compatriots of the 15th century.

These books with their yellowed vellum pages and curious faded type are sometimes handsomely ornamented by hand, also illustrated by woodcuts whose craftsmanship is admirable. This type of art, it is interesting to note, has been revived in many of our modern magazines and books. It is an excellent medium for cubists and futurists. "The Forum" has shown fine taste and discrimination in the use of woodcuts.

Among these old and curious volumes of forgotten lore are a number of 16th century books which have a little more bearing on our own times. In one of these there is bound up a pamphlet on the death of Lady Jane Grey who was executed in 1547 at the age of sixteen because her aspiring father-in-law had tried to place her on the throne of England. For those geographically inclined there are a number of geographical treatises especially one by Guillaume Mord at Paris in 1557 to help students at the Sorbonne and "De Universitate" by Guillaume Pastel, sprinkled with interesting annotations.

The Aldine Press of Venice is represented in this period by two books printed, in 1517 and 1520. They both have the characteristic anchor and twisted dolphin sign. Aldine was noted for the singular beauty and clarity of the types he used. And while on the subject of beautiful books we must mention a handsome Italian binding dating from about the middle of the 15th century. Incidentally, this encloses some religious tracts by Savonarola.

All in all there are about sixty books in the Douglas Library collection that pre-date 1600. Centuries have left them soiled and worn but have not dimmed the lustre of the spirit that shines through the pages.

Public Library Has Student Facilities

Book lovers at Queen's are especially fortunate in having at their disposal, the Kingston Public Library comfortably situated in a large commodious brick building at the corner of Bagot and Brock Streets.

The library contains approximately thirty-two thousand volumes to which some three thousand works are added annually. There are over fifteen thousand borrowers in the city, a number which comprises well over half the population, and these are augmented each fall by a large number of students who avail themselves of the splendid facilities offered by this institution.

Students may gain admittance to the library by the simple form of having a property owner in the city sign their application cards. This is the only requirement for admission and when met entitles a student to all the privileges of the library. Miss Kennedy, the librarian, and her capable staff of assistants are at all times most willing to help students when they desire information concerning the books and papers which the library contains.

OVER THE SEA AND FAR AWAY

Scent of the gleaming rain swept meadow
New and clear and clean,
Sense of the stilly depth of shadow
Spreading the elms between,
Sight of the haughty chestnut spires
Proudly raised on high,
Glow of the heather's purple fires
Under a summer sky—
Show me these at the day's awakening,
Show me them when the heart is breaking;
Give me this for the spirit's slaking,
England!

—E. G.

SINGLE BED-ROOM FOR MAN
Warm and Bright
35 Clergy St. Phone 2604-m

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Sir:—

In your issue of the 30th September, your correspondent "Junior" makes inquiry as to the present attitude towards initiation. I can give him at least one opinion, and that is, that the whole thing is a lot of pueville nonsence. Our initiation is so precisely the sort of thing that would arouse the giggling and gaping propensities of a lot of school-girls that its survival at Queen's is rather a puzzle—that is, unless our Vice-Principal be right, and the canker has already done its work. Where our particular form of initiation comes from I don't know: it is said to be a Yankee importation, but inquiry seems to result in the conclusion that it has long gone to a deserving death in the best American places. A man goes to Harvard, Princeton, or Yale, or to Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh or Dublin, and he is treated as a gentleman; he comes to Queen's and he is plastered with molasses. It is a little difficult to understand why we should still continue to encourage a practice befitting the lesser American Colleges and in agreement with the academic notions of some opulent Hebrew from Hollywood.

A man coming to Queen's from school should be able to expect what one expects everywhere, and that is courtesy. We say "good morning" to him but we don't make a tremendous fuss over his presence, or encourage him in the belief that he is really somebody rather important. Still less do we have any desire to supplement the work of his barber, or to aid him in his ablutions. As a verdant and beardless youth "with the pout of infancy still upon his lips," he should be left in peace to contemplate his noble surroundings, and to meditate upon the fact that if he apply himself with diligence and industry, he may one day initiation at Queen's has now achieve those Olympian heights been abolished.

Rugby Prospects At Sing Sing Blasted

Ossining, N.Y.—Sing Sing's 1932 football prospects are darker than the inside of your derby hat. The speedy backfield and sturdy line of the mighty Ossining eleven has been wrecked by paroles, pardons and discharges.

Unless the courts send him some new talent, "Alabama" Pitts, colored captain of the team, threatens to waive the three-year eligibility rule and play lifers.

His agents have scouted the reformatories for schoolboy athletes, Pitts said, and a likely young quarterback, doing time for robbing fruit stands, will report for practice as soon as he can get himself arrested for sticking up a coffee pot.

Meanwhile "Alabama" threatens to complain to the Carnegie Foundation about a pernicious practice, which, has cropped up in penal athletic circles.

He objects, he says, to the transferring of convicts from one prison to another. For instance, two of his tackles, a guard and a halfback, will play in Auburn or Dannemora uniforms this season. Of course, they were sent there because they were too rugged for Sing Sing, but "Alabama" is annoyed, nevertheless.

"How can my boys get to play San Quentin on New Year's day in the Tournament of the Sub-Rosas," he asks, "when those crooks keep stealing my players from me? It ain't honest, I tell you."

"Albama" has worked out a new hidden ball play. It is signalled by the cry, "cheese it—the cops": He will try it when his boys meet the Fort Jervis police team.

---

already attained by his betters.

Yours truly,
Science Sophomore

Ed. Note: Our correspondent apparently does not know that by a ruling of the A.M.S. physical

The Following Positions Are Now Open To Duly Qualified Undergraduates

JOURNAL BUSINESS MANAGER

EDITOR OF STUDENT DIRECTORY

CONVENER OF ELECTION COMMITTEE

Students desiring to apply for any of these positions must do so by writing to the A.M.S. Permanent Secretary, stating full qualifications.

The choice of the A.M.S. Executive will be final.

PRINTING
FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.
The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO
FRANK ROBBS
SIX CHAIRS —— NO WAITING
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into—they're full of travel satisfaction.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Queen's Rugby Squad Overcomes Senators In First Exhibition of Football Season

Continued from page 1

In one department the Senators outshone Queen's and showed some brilliant work, in their execution of the forward pass. The visitors attempted the pass on eight occasions and completed five of them, a much higher average of successes than the best teams across the line can boast of. In marked contrast was Queen's two tries with one lone successful completion. This superiority of the Rough Riders can undoubtedly be laid to their training and skill in their handling the ball, but it must be admitted that Queen's showed little ability in working a defense against the pass, as many of the passes should have been gathered in or knocked down.

On the other hand, it must be remembered that game was arranged with one main object in view, namely, to give all the aspirants an opportunity to display their wares, and to reveal to Coach Burt, the weaknesses and strength of the men he had to depend on. Unquestionably the Coach gained a wealth of information and it can be taken for granted that with the lessons learned, a vastly different team will await the whistle against Varsity.

Many things affected the playing of the Tricolor. One was the absence of first class men, who, nursing injuries, were kept out of action, so that their complaints were not aggravated. Another was the fact that a team of strangers, as far as play was concerned, were together for the first time. This, with the constant changing of players, does not favor the development of teamwork that will surely be in evidence in the next game. Furthermore, until now, Coach Burt has handled a large squad of men, and it has been a big job. Now he can devote more time to fewer men ,and a result is bound to come.

The foregoing will perhaps reveal why the Tricolor line did not show the resistance that is inherent in the players and which will surely be there in large quantities from now on. Make no mistake about it, the line has plenty of promise, and we can look for a much better showing in future games.

The backfield was brilliant at times, and not so shifty at others. On the whole the Tricolor should again present a set of halves that will occasion plenty of misery for the opposing teams. Day and Davis looked to be the best combination of the afternoon, the latter staging the choice play of the game when he galloped up to grab his own kick and score a touch. Bud Gorman, one of the fastest men on the team, was very handy when Mr. Hutchingame of Ottawa obligingly kicked into his own line, and the ball went over the Senator line. Bud pounced on it for a soft touch that wasn't converted.

Red. McNichol and Howie Carter were the other halves and both showed up well, Carter's kicking and plunging and Red's kicking being a feature. It was expected that the five yard rule would give the backfielders a better chance to run back kicks, but the officials paid little attention to enforcing it, and about two or three yards was the limit allowed the halves. In the Argo-Varsity game in Toronto, the same lack of enforcement was evident.

Dargavel showed up very well at Quarter, as did Storms, who started at outside. A good man with R.M.C., Storms was always in the fight and his tackling was mighty pretty to watch. Glass and Ralph likewise were down fast on the kicks and had the Ottawa halves well bottled up except on one or two occasions.

Buell made a few bad snaps, but should improve with practice. Big Abe Zvonkin the former Tiger star, gave the boys a few lessons in plunging. Abe isn't eligible for the Seniors, but was used in the exhibition.

The boys came out of the game with minor hurts. Lewis's cracked rib got another love tap that forced his retirement. Bob Ralph took one on the upper lip that required a few stitches, and a cut over Dargavel's eye needed similar treatment.

Queen's lined up with Buell at snap and Lewis and Dafoe as alternates; insides, McMahon and Byrne with Hoskings, Purvis, Thoman Earle and Murphy as reliefs; middles, Hamlin and Conquergood, with Gorman, Zvonkin and Kostnik, as changes; outsides, Ralph, Storms and Peever; flying wing, Glass, McIntosh or Gorman; quarter, Dargavel, Carr or Fitton; halves, Carter, Day, Davis, McNichol and Hall.

In summing up, Queen's need have no fears regarding their Senior team. The boys have plenty of ability, courage and condition, and another week of intensive work will result in a team that will prove a big factor in the Intercollegiate race.

THE GAME

Ottawa won the toss and elected to start with the wind in their favor from the south, and the sun shining into the Tricolor's eyes.

After an exchange of kicks, Carter tried a long forward pass to Storms, who just missed the ball.

A bit later Carter again hurled a pass to Storms who completed nicely for a gain of 25 yards. Carter added six more on a plunge. Queen's had the better of the line plunging here and made Ottawa like it.

Ottawa opened the scoring when they attempted a drop which went wide.

(Continued on page 7)

FORWARD PASSES

Ottawa were well coached in the forward pass by the wily Dave McCann. They tried 8 and completed 5. That's good heaving for anybody's team.

* * * * * *

Davis and Day make a nice backfield combination. Their work was a bright feature of Saturday's game.

* * * * * *

Wonder what Linegar was thinking of while Davis hustled up and fell on his own kick behind the Ottawa line. McCann probably said plenty about it later.

* * * * * *

Argos although having the better of play, could only down the Big Blue Team 9 to 7. The officials as in the game here didn't bother about the five yard rule.

* * * * * *

Rumour has it that Jess Fitton will return to Hamilton and will line up with McMaster.

* * * * * *

The Tigers did not have it all their own way with the Mustangs, taking them into camp only by an 8 to 2 score.

* * * * * *

Once upon a time R.M.C. beat McGill, but that wasn't last Saturday. The Red Men are on their way and started the journey by manhandling the cadets 26 to 0.

* * * * * *

What we could do with Abe Zvonkin in the line. How dat man can plunge.

Queen's Prospects Please Coach Burt

This account of an interview with Coach Milt Burt doesn't begin exactly right. I should be able to say that I cornered the Coach in the dressing room, surrounded by a delicate aroma, that emanates from the intimate wearing apparel so dear and necessary to the well being and future greatness of the rugby player. But the Coach is a mighty busy man when he reaches the stadium and he was eventually roughed in his den at the Union.

As rugby is the coach's business here, we might as well begin with his experience in that sport.

MILTON. BURT

The surgeons of Toronto were the first to have an opportunity of removing Mr. Burt's appendix, for he was born in that city, a few odd years ago. But, so far, he has fooled those worthy gentlemen, and made his debut in football with the Central Y.M.C.A juniors in 1918. He had some famous mates on that team, Lionel Connacher, Warren Snyder, Dune Munro, Billy Burch and Babe Dye, being a few of the more prominent ones. And we might mention Joe Sullivan also. It is interesting to note here, that Connacher and Warren Snyder both started out as middle wings and later became very brilliant halves. Harry Batstone played as quarterback for Toronto Excelsiors, in the playoff with Central Y. that year.

The next season saw Milt with Toronto Northview Juniors; but he made the big circus the next year, subbing at middle and outside with Argos, until 1925. In that year he jumped to Fort William, where he broke into the coaching art, and the following year saw him coaching at Winnipeg for Victoria Seniors.

Back again to good old Ontario, in 1929, Milt was line coach at Western university, and then he was with Sarnia Imperials, and guided them to the senior O.R.F.U. championship, losing to Western in a playoff that surprised everyone.

Coach Burt not only knows rugby thoroughly but he has played and coached extensively in hockey. Aura Lee juniors, Argo seniors, and North Toronto Intermediates being his teams. Lionel Connacher was captain of the latter team. Mr. Burt later coached the London Seniors.

It will be seen that Coach Burt knows rugby from every angle, his long session both as player and coach making him an ideal man for Queen's. In addition his knowledge of hockey may prove valuable.

His training methods find favor with the fellows and while he is somewhat dogmatic about his likes and dislikes, the boys quickly get the idea that his ideas are best and that everyone will benefit by following them out.

Discipline is a strong point with him. He believes he can only get the best out of the men, if they learn to follow his instructions to the letter.

Mr. Burt is a great believer in the psychology of proper thinking, and he firmly believes that if he can so train his men and develop their thoughts that they will take full advantage of the talents of speed, skill, courage, stamina, enthusiasm, imagination, they possess, they will travel a long way, not only towards a rugby championship, but also towards a better standing in scholastic work.

Coach Burt likes Queen's immensely. He has played and coached in various centres, but none has appealed to him more than this democratic university. Here he is given a free rein, and appreciates it. He likes the spirit of the place and its students. The men on the football squad are already his friends, and when a coach can work harmoniously with his men, and still keep that respect for a coach that should always be in the forefront, results are bound to come.

As to Coach Burt's opinion of the coming Intercollegiate race, that has already been printed. He wants no negative thoughts around him. The team is going to win, and everybody should feel that, and work towards that end. The student body could well catch the spirit of the idea.

When Milt was reminded that this was a Scotch university, he displayed an ankle clad with a plaid sock, and he opined that he was right at home. Now I am not up on the Scotch tapestry and I must confess I do not know the difference between the Campbell's clannish cotton and the McTavishe's multi-colored moth food. Then again the Irish are thereabouts with plaid of a kind or two, and all this makes it difficult to say whether Milt is equipped with the correct plaid socks or not. But he isn't stopped that easy. He has a varied assortment of plaids and if one pair isn't correct, then another will be.

In winding up this article it is interesting to note that Coach Burt is a different type to many coaches. We know of some, who if a man makes a wrong play, get almost inarticulate. They develop chronic venous congestion of the face, do a couple of handsprings on their ears, and wind up with a flow of the King's worst variety of profanity.

All this is foreign to Mr. Burt's idea of going to the heart of a matter and correcting it, in the quietest way possible, and with no excitement. We could do with more such coaches in the world.

SPORTS REPORTERS WANTED

The sports editor of the Journal would be very glad to get in touch with any who have ambitions along the line of writing up sports. There is plenty of room for rugby, tennis, track and field, and later on, basketball and hockey scribes. Anyone interested please get in touch with the Sport Editor, phone 2419-J or leave your name and phone number at the Journal Office.

Will the retiring presidents of the varions years please see that an energetic sports scribe is appointed and that all Interyear games are promptly written up and turned into he Journal office

SPORTS EVENTS

Senior Tennis Tournament will be held at Toronto on Oct. 20, 21 and 22.

Inter. Track and Field Meet will be held at Varsity Stadium on Oct. 21st.

Annual Assault-at-arms will be held at McGill on Feb. 17th and 18th.

Inter. Harrier Meet will be held at R.M.C. on Nov. 5th.

Clear voiced girl (in crowded bus to her friend): "I wish that good-looking man would give me his seat."

Five men got up.

NOTICE

Student admission ticket No. 1 will be used for the Varsity-Queen's Rugby Game, October 8th. List of events and ticket numbers will be published in next issue of Journal.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00

FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN

THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.

X-Ray Shoe Fitting

ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

IF IT'S SPORTING GOODS — WE HAVE IT
A. G. SPALDING & BROS.
TOBACCOS, MAGAZINES and SUNDRIES
AT
WALLIE CUSICK'S
COLLEGE INN CIGAR STORE
Telephone 1200

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

WE WELCOME YOU TO KINGSTON
And would appreciate being able to include you among the hundreds of Graduates and Undergraduates of Queen's University it has been our pleasure to serve.
Queen's Sweaters and Sweater Coats
Queen's Blazers
Savile Row Suits and Topcoats
Makers of Queen's Gowns and Hoods
VanHorne's
Men's Shop
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM. Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Tricolor Ottawa Game

(Continued from page 6)

After some rugby of the two bucks and a kick variety Carter lifted a long punt to tie it up. Hutchingame being rouged. This ended the scoring for the first quarter. Queen's tried two forward passes and completed one, while Ottawa attempted one and were not successful.

The second quarter showed them pushing through Queen's for yards three times, while the Tricolor couldn't do a thing. Both teams were content to get along without trying the forward passes. Mediocre football, and a few fumbles prevailed, but Queen's forged ahead when Carter's trusty foot sent the oval sailing through the air for a point. Queen's 2, Ottawa 1.

During the intermission, the spectators were regaled with the unusual sight of the Kingston Police Force making an arrest in broad daylight. The officer on duty in the big stand caught two energetic young fans of some ten or so years, climbing around the rafters, and he collared them, marched them to the front and escorted them out the gate as a penalty. There's no denying the fact, the Kingston force is a tremendous bulwark against the gangsters and yeggs. Ho hum.

Ottawa had it all their own way in the third quarter, gaining yards five times from scrimmage, and trying and completing two forward passes. These were short snappy ones that should have been snagged. In spite of their undoubted superiority, Ottawa could only score a point, while Queen's also added one. In this quarter Storms showed plenty of headwork by jumping and partially blocking an attempted return kick by Linegar. Three quarter score, Queen's 3, Ottawa 2.

The fourth period showed a stiffening of both lines as neither made yards. Ottawa were down five points when Gorman fell on the poor kick by the Ottawa back. They answered with five attempted forward passes and completed three of them, the last being a desperate attempt that resulted in a touchdown, the pass crossing Queen's goal line.

Someone wasn't there to take a snap and the ball rolled back of the Queen's line, from their own 29 yard line, Carter falling on it for a safety touch, which gave Ottawa two points. The desperate Senators were pressing hard.

Play travelled to the other end of the field where Davis snared his own kick to score a well earned touch, this making the Tricolor score 13 points and Ottawa 4.

Towards the end of the game Ottawa tried a forward pass over Queen's line and made it, the game ending with Queen's 13 and Ottawa 9 points.

The teams:

Ottawa:		Queen's:
Saunders	Snap	Buell
Guthrie	Insides	McMahon
Marrin		Byrne
Bruce	Middles	Hamlin
Jack		Conquergood
Perley	Outsides	Ralph
LaChance		Storms
Church	Flying Wing	Glass
Hutchingame	Quarter	Dargavel
Kehoe	Hallves	Carter
Harding		Day
Smith		Davis
Brophy	Alternates	Lewis
Stanyar		Dafoe
James		Hoskings
Fraser		Purvis
Downey		Earle
Cummings		Thoman
Turner		Murphy
McInnis		Gorman
Mayott		Zvonkin
Tabor		Kostuik
Raby		Peever
Brown		McIntosh
Master		McNichol
Cowden		Hall
Britain
Emmerson
Linegar
Gilmour
Braceling

OFFICIALS

Referee, Doc. Bill Campbell.
Umpire, Joe Tubman.
Head Linesman, Major Hughes.

"There's laws in them thar hills gal" quoth the man of the mountains.

"Is that so? Well, I Don't drink came the naive reply."

The Old Arts Building

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

Sometimes when I stand for a few minutes on Union Street and view the Queen's of today, I am still surprised at the many and great changes that I have seen during my residence here. I say to myself that Queen's is well anchored at Kingston; there have been times before and since my time when the question of moving the University elsewhere has been raised, but that may now be regarded as settled. The first class of eleven students was opened in March 1842, so that in ten years' time Queen's can claim a centenary.

It was a day of small things and of heroic efforts to keep alive the institution with its slight and uncertain financial resources. There were several principals between this period and 1877 when George Munro Grant was appointed, and for twenty-five years toiled to lay the foundation deep and strong. It is one of the most prized memories that, even if for a short period, I was privileged to work under his leadership. So far as visibility is concerned, it is within the present century that the greatest progress has been made. I remember hearing Principal Grant make his appeal to the citizens for the new Arts Building, now known as Kingston Hall, explaining that it meant limiting Queen's to a modest Arts College or going forward to a more ambitious enterprise. The one building that could then be regarded as academic was built in 1880. To say this is not to cast any reflections on the old Medical Building and Carruthers Hall, in which good work was done. The various "faculties" were not as closely united as they are now. Kingston had at that time the City Hall (1842-3) built about the time when Queen's first class was organized and the Court House (1855-6), the period of the Crimean War. I have heard Dr. John Watson say that when he arrived in Kingston in 1873, he thought that this was a university building but Queen's had no buildings of that size and quality from 1875 to 1924. Dr. Watson served the university and lent distinction to it by the high quality of his teachings and writings.

Among the early workers, many of them passing away after short periods of service, we note the name of my immediate predecessor, Dr. J. B. Mowat, (1857-1900), an accurate scholar, a careful teacher and a fine, gentle spirit. The room in the corner opposite the entrance to Convocation Hall was devoted to the study of the Hebrew language from 1880 to 1926. It served other purposes as it was convenient for committee meetings and unofficial gatherings. Hebrew has, I think, gone elsewhere but I look back with kindly remembrance to a room that was for a long time my home. Places as well as persons play their part in one's life and linger in the memory, even when trudging through snow to eight o'clock classes is no longer possible. Dr. D. Ross was a steady reliable servant of the college in various capacities from 1883 to 1917. What is now known as the Old Arts Building, was the heart of Queen's in the nineties and though the staff was so much smaller and the number of students less, one wonders how such varied activities were carried on in such small space. The different professors whose names are still well-known were thrown more closely together and in the Senate Room exchanged greetings and discussed points of interest. In this room Mc Ivor came at a certain period to receive the students' fees. Mr. G. Y. Chown at the beginning of his career, as Registrar, had cramped quarters in the small room adjoining the entrance to Convocation Hall. The library, before it passed into the capable hands of Miss L. Saunders, was in charge of Professor Adam Shortt and a student. All this is in great contrast to the present situation, but we trust that the spirit of the early days is still preserved. In these days there was consolation in that fact. It is not buildings that make a university, but living teachers and loyal, diligent students and however many buildings there may be now, this is still true.

Even though Theology, in the stricter sense, plays relatively a much less important part, I believe that the spirit of Queen's still means that all spheres of knowledge dealing with the natural world or the life of man are regarded as aspects of one universe in which we face the realities of our duty and destiny. The increase of specialism has been great and the forms of many of our intellectual problems have changed, but "culture" still means the attempt, according to the measure of our capacity, to appreciate and appropriate the great heritage from the past to help us in this effort is, and has been, the chief purpose of a real university.

I remember, at the beginning of the present century, a series of "Outlook" lectures in which representatives of various subjects sketched the contributions from the past and sought to indicate the lines of future progress. Since then, much has been accomplished especially in the direction of mechanical inventions. But it is a fact that when things were moving steadily forward the Great War spread strife and confusion throughout the world and left a legacy of problems for which there is no speedy solution. Queen's weathered the actual storm and now faces the future with courage and hope which should be sustained by the memory of great sacrifices in which she had her share.

The old building remains but is now, I understand, renovated inside. Little change was needed outside; it still preserves the dignified appearance that it gained over fifty years ago. I remember my pain at seeing the books removed to take their place in the fine new building and the transference of my friend, Mr. Baker, the janitor, to the larger sphere after fifteen years of faithful service. That of course, was foolish sentiment as it meant a fuller and richer equipment, but we are all guilty of such folly at times. The building needed and deserved renewal after such a crowded life, after being for more than half a century the home of sedate professors and lively students. Its past has been creditable in some respects, even glorious and under changed conditions, it will continue to render service and create new associations. But as we move along it is well to remember how much we owe to the pioneers in this and other forms of public life.

EPITAPH!

"Underneath this pile of stones
Lie the remains of Mary Jones;
Her name was Brown, it was not Jones.
But Jones was put to rhyme with stones."

She's so dumb she thinks a mistake is a female beef steak.

COMING EVENTS

Today:
4.30p.m.—Meeting of Queen's Quill Staff
New Arts Bldg.

Wed. Oct. 5:
5.00p.m.—English Rugger Meeting
Douglas Library
8.00p.m.—Kingston Art & Music Club Meeting, Prof. Jemmett's house.

Thursday, Oct. 6:
4.15p.m.—Arts '36 Meeting
Room 201
New Arts Bldg.
5.00p.m.—Science '36 Meeting
Venue to be announced later.

Fri. Oct. 7:
Afternoon—Arts '34 Year Meeting
New Arts Bldg.

Sat. Oct. 8:
2.30p.m.—Queen's vs. Varsity
Richardson Stadium

Registration Decreases

There has been a slight decline in registration at Queen's this year.

Last session the final figure for attendance was 1690, but this year it is expected that there will only be about 1600 students at the University. In both Arts and Science registration is lower than last year though no complete figures will be available until after the closing dates for registration, viz., October 8th for Arts and Medicine and October 5th for Science.

It is anticipated that there will be no decline in the number of Medical Students here this session.

A Professor was decturing ardently on women's work: "Take the women out of society and what would follow?"

"I would," said th estudent in the audience.

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
70 PRINCESS ST.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

WELCOME!
To all Queen's Students
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store
and
Ice Cream Parlor
Where the Students Meet

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

BOWL TO-NIGHT
CRASH! THERE THEY GO!
It's a Grand and Glorious Feeling to see the Pins Fly About When You "STRIKE."
BOWLADROME ALLEYS
250 Princess St.

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities
ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

WELCOME — —

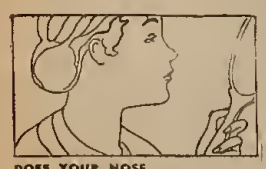
To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."

To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.

Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
— Here since 1922 —



FOR FOOTWEAR OF THE BETTER TYPE
also
Hosiery, Luggage, Tennis Shoes and Polish
YOU WILL FIND THIS STORE YOUR LOGICAL CHOICE
The Students Favorite Shoe Shop
Established over 50 years ago
Locketts
LIMITED

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

Economy for Students !
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS ?

For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of

DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50

AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Which reminds me

There is no truth in the rumour that Goodwin House is to be moved as the result of an official request.

FOR SCIENCE MEN

The C.O.T.C. is likely to prove more masculine than ever this year.

THESE DEGENERATE DAYS

Solip.—Surely we've met before.
Freshette—Yes, weren't we holding hands in the library?

The Kingston Police have so far neglected to recognize the official status of the Union as a Club for Young Criminals.

RIMES FOR THE TIMES

Lives of great men all remind us
As their pages o'er we turn
That we often leave behind us
Letters that we ought to burn.

I should like to meet the student who recently said that technique in music consisted in doing the simplest things with the utmost difficulty. This loses by a nostril to the Freshette's definition of an alibi as a way of being present in one place when you are actually somewhere else.

Dr. Blenkinsop when interviewed for the Journal the other day refused to make any statement for publication. I understand that he had lost his hat.

From the Whig-Standard of Friday, Sept. 30th

It was learned this morning that the registration in the Science and Arts Faculties was slightly below that of last year.

My big moment.

What is the difference between a professor who has lost his false teeth and the average student.

You bite!

HAYWIRE.

CORRECTION

Editor's Note: The last issue of the Journal contained an incomplete and in some details misleading account of the acquisition of the new apparatus in the Gym. We apologize to our readers and refer them to the correction printed below.

Last year no appropriation for gymnasium equipment was made because none was asked. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees however, attention was drawn to the omission by Mr. Tom McGinnis and on a motion being made a grant of $1500 was agreed upon. Dr. Grant, convinced that at least part of this sum could be made up by subscription, there and then approached members of the board and succeeded in raising a sum of $650. The subscription list is as follows:

G. F. Henderson, Esq.	$100
Jackson Booth, Esq.	200
Dr. James Richardson	100
J. M. Campbell, Esq.	50
T. A. McGinnis, Esq.	50
Dr. W. L. Grant	50
Elmer Davis, Esq.	50
Dr. W. E. McNeill	50

The Observer

PARTY GOVT.

At a time when it is customary to discover a condition of crisis in almost every field of political and economic life and endeavour party government cannot claim the right of exception. On the contrary, for the notable failure of democratic forms of polity to produce either leaders or policies capable of meeting the exigencies of present world disorder has had the effect of encouraging the experiment of coalition governments.

There are those who maintain that this counsel of desperation is not merely a sound method of fulfilling the demands of the political situation, but indeed the only statesmanlike solution of a critical problem. They may be right. Beyond doubt the mischievous sectionalism of modern party politics in many countries has had the effect of paralysing leadership and of encouraging inaction. But against this we must set the very grave disadvantages which the policy of prolonged compromise entails. Generally speaking it seems true to say that coalitions born in the white heat of political and economic crisis can harmoniously endure only so long as the parturient ardour is itself sustained. And so when that first frenzy of urgency is lost we see ensue that inevitable disintegration which has lately occurred in the British Cabinet.

It is hopeless to expect that responsible party politicans can for long make a principle of renouncing their principles. It is idle to suppose that making a virtue of necessity (and it is by no means universally agreed that a National or Coalition government is this) can be extended to make office-holding the supreme patriotism. Reason and sentiment alike revolt; and the Lord Snowdens and Sir Herbert Samuels of this life find themselves reduced to the ranks, while the government to which they formerly owed allegiance progresses slowly towards the goal of one-party (in this case Conservative) domination.

Queen's Band To Follow Last Year's Programme

The University 'Pipe-band this semester will continue its programme of last year. A general invitation is extended to all those interested to communicate with Ranald Macdonald, 559 Princess, Tel 602-M.

Art And Music Club To Hold Meeting To-morrow

The Music Group of the Kingston Art and Music Club is holding a meeting tomorrow, Oct. 5th. Professor Jemmett has placed his house at the disposal of the group on this occasion, and Mrs. Jemmett will welcome them there at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening.

ENGLISH RUGGER

It will be remembered that a meeting was held last Spring in an endeavour to bring together those interested in English Rugby Football. That meeting was only a partial success but an encouraging beginning. There are a number of men in the University who have had previous experience and there is a sprinking of those eager to learn. We welcome all these and any further recruits to another meeting in the Douglas Library on Wednesday, October 5th, at 5 p.m. Anyone desirous of further information should communicate with K. C. Ruffman, phone 2022-J. Watch the notice boards.

Campus Cut-ups

Dear Emmaline,—

My, I wish you were here Emmaline, you know F. is so independent or something she really cramps my style. I met the peachiest Med. at a café the other night—he really is wonderful and the smoothest dancer, and what do you think F. did? Anyhow, Emmaline, I am getting on O.K. with my work, only I haven't time for a thing.

Was I thrilled when that Med. asked me to go to the rugby game Saturday! F. was quite peeved, but I felt quite a success. I wore that cute brown tid, and he got me the loveliest colours—the Med. did, I mean. Don't you just adore tall men, Emmaline? That's the nice thing about here, there are so many. And they've all been so nice and friendly that I'm beginning to think the cold superior kind are as rare as a straight banana, in spite of what F. says. Her best boy-friend belongs to that bunch, but he IS rare. He treats me as if I were a flaw in the atmosphere, but I don't mind much. The other night he asked me if I had nothing else to do but lead Meds. astray. He referred to my friend as another good scarecrow gone wrong. Do you suppose he thinks I'm a Fallen Woman or something exciting like that? If so I'd ask him to pick me up, just to spite F.

Oh I forgot to tell you about the hotel where we can go and dance—really Emmaline you should come to college. Loads of love and all that.—Fanny.

World News Briefly

The Lytton Report of the League of Nations Secretariat published Sunday, October 2, inferred that the kingdom of the rising sun must undergo cross-examination for her occupation of Manchuria and institution of the Kingdom of Manchukuo.

The League Council will formally consider the report on Nov. 14th, when Japan will be able to send an official delegate.

* * *

Marked recession in yields for Canadian government and railway bonds as revealed in a comparison published Monday in the Toronto Globe gives color to the report that a trade revival may be expected.

Since the collapse of the great Kreditanstalt Bank in Vienna in May, 1931, world bond prices have been at a low level. But during the last six months an upward trend has been noticed.

* * *

Riding rough-shod over the Chicago Cubs the New York Yankees achieved a 13 to 6 victory in the fourth game of the World series to cop the title.

Before a crowd of close to 50,000 people the Cubs made a heroic stand for six innings against the sure-fire hitting of the Yankees. Five pitchers were not able to cope with the slugging of Combs, Lazzeri and Sewell.

This makes the third straight season that the New York Yankees have captured the pennant in baseball's classic championship race.

* * *

A rather serious blow has been dealt at the new grain route.

About a week ago the steamer "Bright Fan" of London, England crashed into a berg in Hudson Straits and sunk. This information was received by the department of marine Saturday.

The ship carried 253,000 bushels of grain. It is feared that this loss may make it more difficult for the government to secure lower insurance rates.

Queen's Basketeers Play First Game Here

Queen's will be at home for their first game in the senior intercollegiate basketball series, according to the schedule which has just been announced. Varsity will be the visiting team for the opening game locally on January 28.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Jan. 27—Varsity at McGill.
Jan. 28—Varsity at Queen's.
Feb. 4—Western at Varsity.
Feb. 4—McGill at Queen's.
Feb. 10—Queen's at Varsity.
Feb. 11—Queen's at Western.
Feb. 17—Western at Queen's.
Feb. 18—Western at McGill.
Feb. 25—Varsity at Western.
Feb. 25—Queen's at McGill.
Mar. 4—McGill at Western.
Mar. 4—McGill at Varsity.

Elimination Tournament To Commence To-morrow

Levana Tennis Tournament will start to-morrow. As yet few have entered this elimination tournament which will decide who will represent Queen's in the Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament which will be held in Toronto, October 21-22.

Doreen Kenny, No. 1 player on last year's team, and No. 7, ranking player for the Province of Ontario is back. Evelyn Pointer who won her Q last year, is entered in the Levana Tournament. Ruth Fishleigh, a freshette from Oshawa, and Gladys Thomas, are displaying good tennis.

Are you any good at multiplication?

Well, I have ten children.

She was only a clergyman's daughter but she sure was a whale on hims.

At College Headquarters!

Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"

SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

SUITS
$22.50 $24.50 $26.00
$30.00 $33.00 $35.00
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
BEST VALUES IN THE CITY
PHONE 487

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7th, 1932 No. 3

A. M. S. Decides Against Annual Frosh Reception

Reduced A.M.S. Fees Necessitate Action For Sake of Economy

The annual Freshman Reception one of the most colorful social events of the college session, will not be held this year, due to financial stress. This decision was reached by the A.M.S. executive at their first regular meeting of the present term.

The project of welcoming the Freshmen in an official manner was not discarded without due deliberation and a sense of regret that the program could not be carried through. It was felt, however, that the expense of holding the Reception would be too great, at a time when the A.M.S. is trying to operate on a basis of reduced income. It will be remembered that the student A.M.S. fee this year has been reduced from $3.00 to $2.00.

Hill Clarkson, Com. '33, was chosen as convener of the Election Committee.

Charlie O'Neill was awarded the editorship of the student directory. The later will start work immediately. The names, addresses and 'phone numbers of the students will be gathered as soon as possible. It is also expected that the soliciting of advertising will be undertaken immediately.

Freshmen Faced By New Responsibilities

The Arts Freshman Organization meeting yesterday afternoon was opened by Stew Warrington, President of the Arts Society who introduced Dean Matheson to the assembly.

The Dean welcomed the Freshmen. "The life of the University," he said, "is in your hands; for it is the students who create the atmosphere round the college more than the staff. You will appreciate that later." Referring to student government the Dean said "You must have ability and willingness to govern yourselves. In high school you are watched over, here you are in your own and if you make a mess of things it is your own mess, if a success it is your success. Be determined to make a success. Elect your officers in a business like way and stick to rules. Above all keep your opinions to yourselves at first and lie low till you know the ground."

Col. Wilgar, who addressed Arts '36 on behalf of the C.O.T.C. after a brief history of the C.

(Continued on page 6)

Young Not To Attend

The Journal learns from an official source that Owen D. Young, upon whom it was announced in last week's Journal the University would confer the honorary degree of LL.D., will unfortunately be unable to be present at the ceremony of Convocation to be held this Fall.

Freshmen Regulations

ARTICLE XI.

Section 1. Any student registering for his first intramural session, and having completed less than ten (10) courses over and above his Junior Matriculation, shall be considered a freshman and thereby subject to the following regulations:

Section 2. (a) Tams must be procured by a specified date at the freshman's expense, from the University Technical Supplies, to be worn throughout the Freshman Year, every day, and at all hours, except Sundays and on any such days when not in the City of Kingston. Tams shall be as follows: Medicine shall have a blue tassel, Science a yellow tassel, and Arts a red tassel.

(b) Fussing—There shall be no fussing until after Chrismas, with the exception of Church Receptions, Freshmen's Reception, and Faculty at Homes.

(c) Social Functions—Freshmen shall not hold any theatre parties, sleighing or driving parties, or get-together parties or dances of any kind throughout the year. After the Chrismas examinations each freshman year shall be allowed to hold one such social evening in Grant Hall.

(d) Games—Freshmen must attend in a body all Senior Intercollegiate Rugby home games and Major College Hockey games. At these games they will be under the direction of the cheerleader.

(e) Initiation—No physical initiation is permitted.

(f) Any departure from any of the above regulations is an offence and is punishable in the A.M.S. Court.

Alfie Pierce Tells Of The Great Days When Curtis And His Team Defeated Yale

Booster Recalls Old Time Rugby Victory

ALFIE PIERCE
TRAINER EMERITUS

"Yep" says Alfie, throwing in another shovelfull of coal into the stadium furnace, "I've been around the Queen's football team for forty-five years. The fire got kind of low last night." And Alfie, once more gets off the stool, slowly and carefully, to take up the poker.

While waiting for the teams to put into an appearance, I wandered into Alfie's boudoir, down in the boiler room underneath the big concrete stand. It's warm and cosy down there and Alfie does a wonderful job of keeping the fires going.

This dropping in on Alfie wasn't a planned affair at all, but a few of the facts gleaned from this faithful servant of innumerable rugby teams, might be interesting to many Queen's students today.

Alfie likes to talk of the old days, when the present stadium wasn't even thought of. "Why the boys used to play away up there in what is now College Heights," says Alfie, shifting the pipe to the south side of his mouth, and feeling for another match. They had a big enough field, surrounded by a high-board, fence, containing many excellent knotholes for the kids. They had a small stand too, and bleacher seats that are still doing service in the present stadium, and a lot of punts have sailed across the blue since the wood butchers put them together.

"And how did they get to the field in those days, Alfie?" says I. "Were there many autos in the olden days?" This took a bit of pondering over, but Alfie just cannot recall when the first mechanical hoss sputtered up to the field. He can visualize though in his mind's

Continued on page 7

Maple Leafs Arrival Scheduled Oct. 20

Mayor George C. Wright announced this morning that he has been definitely advised by Conny Smythe, manager of the Maple Leaf Gardens at Toronto, that the Toronto Maple Leafs, champions of the National Hockey League last season, will train in Kingston for a period of about six weeks, commencing October 20. It is expected that about 35 hockey players, with trainers, will comprise the party.

Kingstonians, and especially enthusiasts, including the junior hockey players, will receive this announcement with great satisfaction.

All the necessary arrangements for the Toronto team practicing at the Jock Harty Arena have been completed, along with other arrangements for their training.

Continued on page 7

Poverty Root Of Trouble In China

Huge Standing Army Impoverishes People

Speaking in Kingston Hall Rev. Lincoln Dsang, M.A., D.D., delivered an interesting and educational address at the University yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Dsang is President of the West China Union University and in his address outlined the Economic Problems of China in graphic form.

China and Canada, Rev. Dsang said, have a great deal in common although our conception of China and Chinese customs do not lead us to think so.

"Poverty," the speaker claimed, "is the reason for a great percentage of China's difficulties. Here we consider food for its quantity and quality but in the Orient the fact that a thing is edible is all that matters. The people are so deplorably poor that they consider themselves fortunate to get anything at all to eat. The reason is not that the Chinese are lazy or that the soil is unfruitful but simply that the government administration exacts exhorbitant taxes from the people five times annually. The peasant population is so burdened with taxation that the peasants must sell all their produce in order to meet their obligations to the land lords. Rev. Dsang claims that the Chinese are not deserving of such hardship for they are hard working and conscientious, but he knows conditions to be so bad that industrious farmers suffer from insufficient food and clothing.

The illiteracy of China embraces over 80 per cent. of the population and although there are numerous schools Chinese people are too poor to educate their children.

The need of China to-day is for leaders. Chinese power is purely militaristic and although the people are starving and oppressed the government spends exhorbitant sums for the support of a standing army of over 1,500,000. "The present Governmental system is splendid," Rev. Dsang said. "but the administration is deplorable."

In conclusion he stated that what China needed was leadership and to the Western civilization they looked for help.

In a few well chosen words Principal Kent thanked the speaker.

Workmen Solve Baffling Library Mystery Start At Roof And Run Clues To Earth

Perhaps one of the most baffling problems the University officials have had to contend with in recent years is the mysterious appearance of dew drops and a thin film of moisture on certain parts of the walls of the Douglas Library.

For years a plausible cause and remedy have been sought. It was noticed that the walls enveloped themselves with a filmy coating of moisture during damp weather. It was rightly feared that the walls would gradually give way before the onslaught of this new enemy which did its work so unobtrusively yet so effectively. Here was a problem, puzzling and challenging in nature, and demanding immediate attention.

So, for the past few years at every appearance of the mysterious film on the Library walls, a group of workmen was despatched to make observations and repairs to the Library roof. It was felt by all concerned that the roof

Continued on page 3

Colourful Crowd Is Assured For Historic Clash Between Famous Queen's-Varsity Teams Tomorrow

HOWIE CARTER

Queen's Represented By Better Balanced Team Than Last Year

Tomorrow, all roads will lead to the Richardson Stadium; the band will head a lengthy parade of students, Varsity will send her hundreds down the highway and by special train, and a mighty Tricolor squad, fit and determined will follow Captain Howie Carter onto the turf for the annual battle with Toronto.

It is expected that a mammoth crowd will encircle the gridiron when the whistle sends the teams on their way. In previous years Toronto has entertained Queen's on the Saturday preceding the holi-day, and the Tricolor, always the best drawing card in the Queen City, have attracted crowds that have taxed the stadium to its capacity.

This season, Varsity will bring down a team composed of most of last year's stars, holstered by the addition of some new blood and coached by Warren Stevens.

On the other hand Queen's will be represented by a squad that is much better balanced than the team of last season. Losses by graduation have been more than replaced by the turning out of stars, who will add immensely to the strength of

(Continued on page 6)

Ceremony At McGill Remembers Founder

Lectures Suspended At McGill University

In celebrating Founder's Day yesterday, McGill University assembled to do honor to the man who "long and deservedly filled the most elevated position in this community." For James McGill, great soldier, great citizen, great man was the founder and first sponsor of the university which bears his name.

In the past, McGill has devoted th esixth of October to a day of recognition and homage to her founder. The brief pause in the proceedings of class room and athletic field served to instil into the new comer the feeling of reverent pride which every McGill grad possesses

The ceremonies this year were more colorful by the addition of representatives of the regiment of which James McGill was colonel, the First Mattalion of Montreal

Continued on page 4

J. Lorne MacDougall Will Be Bus. Manger

J. Lorne MacDougall, A former Editor and Business Manager of the Journal, will return to the latter post to fill the vacancy occasioned by Tom Connochie's decision not to return to college.

H. J. Hamilton, editor of the Journal last year, has been looking after the signing up of advertising contracts and other business matters until such time as a permanent business manager could be appointed. It is expected that Mr. Hamilton will accept a reporter's post in Toronto.

Mr. MacDougall has been on the Queen's Review Staff for two years.

Connochie's decision not to return to Queen's came as a distinct surprise. After finishing his examinations last spring he returned to Scotland. Connochie is at present connected with an English film company, where he is studying the intricacies of camera work and lighting.

Debating Society Resumes Activities

In an interview with the acting president of the Debating Union, Stew Warrington, a Journal reporter learned that a meeting to elect officers for the ensuing year is to take place next Monday at 4.15 p.m.

"In previous years," said Mr. Warrington, "the members of the Arts faculty have constituted a great majority within the organization, but this year, in an effort to make it more representative of the university, we are extending a special invitation to the members of the Science and Medical faculties. I cannot stress too greatly that their support would be genuinely appreciated and I sincerely hope that they turn out for the first meeting so that they may receive representation in the Union."

"Heretofore," he continued, "the subjects have often tended to be of most interest to those in the Arts faculty and so special effort will be made this year to generalize the topics, making them interesting for all.

Premier Alumni Guest

A wire was received Thursday morning from G. C. Bateman, president of the General Alumni Association, stating that Premier Henry has accepted the invitation to speak at the annual meeting of the Alumni Association on Saturday, Nov. 5th, prior to Fall Convocation.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

KIRWIN H. LILL—3457-J ... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ... LEVANA EDITOR
R. B. MAHAFFY—280 ... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ... MEDICINE

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 7th, 1932

Election Advertising

Invading a field hitherto held as forbidden ground through an unwritten law from which the Journal has never transgressed, we have decided to open our columns to election advertising.

While campus campaigners have frequently applied for advertising space in the Journal it was felt best not to accede to their requests and keep the paper free of election propaganda. By so doing the Journal established itself as non-partisan, and limited its scope to publishing news stories on election activities.

We feel, however, that this is a source of revenue which has too long been overlooked. While our advertising this year has decreased perceptibly, it was not this development which prompted us to amend our policy. It is generally recognized that the Journal offers the best medium of reaching and attracting the largest number of students, and it seems to us that barring election advertising profits no one. On the one hand the Journal loses a valuable source of income and on the other, the candidates lose excellent opportunities of presenting their platforms and pledges to the whole student body.

Thus for the price of a few quarts of paint, which will prejudice the cause of a party to a greater extent than it will be result hearing, or the cost of a few insignificant hand-bills, which will be lost for the most part, an aspiring candidate may present his platform fairly and effectively to the entire student body. The space is offered at our regular advertising rates and the Editor reserves the right to approve or reject the submitted copy. Needless to say malicious and insincere statements will not be published.

Though we have amended our policy the Journal wishes to have it clearly understood that now as in the past we are out of and above politics.

A Balanced Budget

At a time when other institutions of learning are deploring their inability to announce that a balanced budget will terminate their operations at the end of the session so recently inaugurated, Dr. W. E. McNeill's statement that Queen's will not accumulate a deficit should come as a pleasant surprise to all who have the interest of Queen's at heart.

The Vice-Principal announces that by 'living within our means' the University will not accumulate a deficit. This is indeed a sane policy and demonstrates once again that the administration of our University is in capable hands.

The Trustees were faced with a decrease in the revenue derived from the three main sources this year: grants from the Ontario Government, student fees and the interest on endowments that have also depreciated in value. The reduction of the Ontario Government grant amounts to $50,000, a most appreciable sum these days.

In the face of this grand scale decline of receipts a courageous economic campaign was instituted. No possible saving could be overlooked. Expenditures had to be reduced, and this had to be done in such a way that student facilities should not be impaired too greatly.

The campaign has been a success. Students may have noticed that there are fewer assistants in each department but otherwise things seem to function as in the past. Urgent repairs have been looked after and the remodelling of the Old Arts Building has been carried through as planned.

That the financial foundation of the University is in such a sound condition speaks well for our administrators.

Renewed Resolutions

There is no doubt about it; people have changed, and five months at home or out in the world has sent them back to college almost unrecognizable. With the average girl you may at first think it's just her hair—if it was short before, it's long now, and vice versa. But the changes are deeper than that.

Of course it's partly age, and partly what they call development. It would be difficult to exist for half a year without absorbing at least one new idea or picking up one new adjective. And then last April, when you parted, all your friends were pale and jaded after exams, while now they positively radiate enthusiasm.

It is this enthusiasm which underlies the change; so many people have come back with new, secret ideals or renewed resolutions, just as their old loose-leaf covers are filled with clean white sheets. As long as the spiritual refills remain, they will be able to find everything interesting, and will continue to ask you about your vacation and listen to your answers almost as if they really wanted to know. They will take conscientious notes in class, or will eagerly join all the societies and clubs. But the interesting thing will be to observe exactly at what stage of the year your neighbour begins drawing pictures on his blotter in English 2, and when the attendance at meetings becomes noticeably thinner.

However fleeting the good resolutions may be, though, and however soon people slide back into old, comfortable grooves, surely the changes that are now so striking will not be entirely without effect. It would be sad to think that when we fall into last year's bad habits we shall be exactly as we were last year. Something must remain of the clouds of glory which we trailed at registration, even if it is only a sensation of helpless regret and a further resolution to be more strong-minded next year. And then there is always a possibility that some people will stick to their ideals without a relapse: probably at this stage most of us think we are that kind of person. So it would be peculiarly devastating to realise one day that we are as we used to be and must begin again, "the sweet cheat gone."

Letters to the Editor

The columns of the Journal have always been open to our readers who have something worthwhile to say. We renew at this time the announcement made from year to year that the undergraduates are especially invited to make use of this privilege.

All letters sent to us for publication must be signed.

The name of the author will not be printed if a pen name is suggested, but we expect the courtesy of knowing the identity of our correspondents.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

"Call Boy" Service

The question of what are the requirements of a successful business man arose among a group of college students. Various answers were given, all embodying the same idea that every person who wishes to accomplish anything must have perseverence, initiative, and punctuality. As the group disbanded, all but two members requested that they be called for breakfast at the proper hour.

That is the request which at least one-half of the University students leave as they retire each night. It will be exceedingly hard for these students to be the "early bird" when they enter the business world. A day "well begun is half done," and to those people who fail to arise in time for breakfast, without the services of a "call boy" are not strengthening their character during the formulative years of their lives.

It takes will power to get out of a warm bed into a cold, semi-dark room, but it develops a constructive and beneficial habit that in the long run pays dividends.

Daily Kansan

Official Notices

Physical Examinations

All students at the University for the first time must have a physical examination. Appointments for men are made at the Registrar's office. Women students should consult Miss Ethelwynne Murphy.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

Khaki University and Y.M.C.A. Memorial Scholarships.

The University has funds for Scholarships for the sons and daughters of returned men who were in active service during the Great War. The applications for these Scholarships should be in the hands of the Registrar by October 15.

Thanksgiving Day

Monday, October 10th, will be Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday. No classes will be held at the University on that day. All classes will meet as usual on Saturday, October 8th, and on Tuesday, October 11th.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

Founded on QUALITY!

Winchester Cigarettes are founded on Quality—
—highest quality tobacco
—a quality blend that is the result of years of experience
—highest standards of quality in manufacture
—for all who prefer a
QUALITY CIGARETTE!

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS!
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

FOR RENT

Number of rooms, double and single with private bath-rooms, open fire-place, hot water heated. Comfortably furnished. Suitable for men students.

Phone 488

123 King St. E., Cor. of West St.

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

IF IT'S SPORTING GOODS — WE HAVE IT
A. G. SPALDING & BROS.
TOBACCOS, MAGAZINES and SUNDRIES
AT
WALLIE CUSICK'S
COLLEGE INN CIGAR STORE
Telephone 1200

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN  WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

WE WELCOME YOU TO KINGSTON
And would appreciate being able to include you among the hundreds of Graduates and Undergraduates of Queen's University it has been our pleasure to serve.
Queen's Sweaters and Sweater Coats
Queen's Blazers
Savile Row Suits and Topcoats
Makers of Queen's Gowns and Hoods
VanHorne's
Men's Shop
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is. 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

SCIENCE '35 YEAR MEETING

The first meeting of a much depleted Science '35 was held last Tuesday afternoon for the election of officers, and discussion of the frosh "entertainment."

It was decided to hold the Soph-Frosh banquet as usual, and while physical initiation is now barred, the "Frosh" can be assured that they will be nobly treated along other lines. The year fee was set at $1.25, and all are expected to pay promptly as soon as the year cards are printed.

The officers for the forthcoming year are: President, Vern Oille; Vice-President. Clesson Robinson; Secretary-Treasurer, Joe Whyte; Rugby Rep., Cecil Scott; Hockey Rep., Jack Milne; Track Rep., Herb. Robertson; Basketball Rep., Dave Rattray; Convener of Soph-Frosh Banquet, Bob Hayes; Convener of Frosh Initiation, Skip Ross; Year Constable, J. Beckham.

World News Briefly

At its annual conference on Oct. 5th the British Labour party adopted as a party plank a resolution declaring in favour of a socialistic state.

This would probably mean nationalization of the Bank of England and joint stock banks. Mr. Henderson was against the resolution, while Sir Charles Trevelyan was its main sponsor.

* * *

Fresh impetus was given to the Republican Presidential campaign at Des Moines, Iowa, Tuesday, when President Hoover outlined his platform in one of the most vigorous speeches of his career.

Perhaps the most significant statements in Mr. Hoover's address were that his party intended to maintain a high tariff on agricultural products, and that he was opposed to the cancellation of war debts.

* * *

The fighting Irish have decided to submit to compromise in the land annuities dispute. This was the substance of a joint statement issued Oct. 5th, signed by Eamon de Valera and Right Hon. J. H. Thomas. The negotiations will begin in London on Oct. 14th.

* * *

The fourth session of the 17th parliament of Canada opened at Ottawa yesterday.

The conference agreements will be tabled about Tuesday of next week.

* * *

Samuel Insull, former president of the Middle West Utilities Company and his brother Martin Insull, have been indicted for embezzlement and larceny mounting to $514,943.74.

Ass't. State's Attorney J. P. Hampton and a detective arrived in Orillia, Tuesday, carrying indictment papers for Martin Insull.

* * *

Characterizing the Lytton report of the League of nations as a "diary of a fortnight's journey through Manchuria" the Japanese war minister said it showed an inability to grasp the fundamentals of the problem and did not constitute cause to alter Japan's Manchurian policy.

* * *

The Mail and Empire carried the following story yesterday:

"The new Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission will be headed by Hector Charlesworth, Toronto, editor and critic. Thomas Maher, Quebec Journalist, will be vice-chairman. Lieut.-Col. W. A. Steel, Ottawa, director of radio research for the National Research council will be the third member of the body."

* * *

A welcome piece of news comes from Vancouver to the effect that wheat exports this season show a gain of 1,186,795 bushels over 1931.

* * *

The development of a distinctive formula for the treatment of pitchblende ores was announced by Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, minister of mines, Wednesday.

This achievement is the result of more than a year's experiments directed toward the end of obtaining radium from Great Bear Lake ores.

Port Hope will be the scene where radium production will be carried on henceforth.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

Manitoba Students Advised To Pay Fees

Urged to pay the higher fees made necessary by the financial condition of the university, the University of Manitoba Students' Union issued a statement to the students which advised them to pay the higher fees as they were unable to meet the situation in any other way.

The U.M.S.U. first advised the students to withhold payment of their organization fees, but at present the Union is confronted with contradiction and incompetence of presentations.

The University of Manitoba lost a considerable part of its revenues through the blunders of those in charge of the financial affairs of the University. The fees in all departments were raised, and the government of Manitoba agreed to pay any deficit up to and beyond $170,000. This was a compact made with the Board of Governors by the Government officials. This can be considered as the "initial step" in the adoption of the new policy of the Provincial Government, in which the individual student is required to pay more of the cost of his education.

Douglas Library Leaks Traced To Foundation

Continued from page 1

was responsible for it all. So the work went on. Every seam on the roof was literally plastered with a leak proof gummy substance. At last, it was felt, the enemy had been checked in its path of destruction. The walls would no longer be the playground for rain drops.

But the moisture appeared again at the next period of dampness. Here was a rather embarrassing situation. Good money had been spent to patch a roof which apparently was in sound condition.

The game was too young to give up hope, however. One could not let the old spirit die. So another group of men was set grimly to work digging a deep ditch around the Library.

It was believed that the draining system was at fault and that the root of the mystery had been reached.

That is the story behind the walls and ditches around the Library. Those trenches are not for the C.O.T.C.

ARTS '35 MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore Year this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is organization and election of new officials to take the place of those who were responsible for making Arts '35 the most enterprising year at Queen's last session. President Jack Dargavel and his executive—or those of the class who have outwitted the wiles of professors and the machinations of depression, have contrived an interesting programme for the meeting, and it is expected that the year will display all its old enthusiasm in rallying to the call of Arts '35.

Quill To Organize At Meeting Next Tuesday

A preliminary meeting of the skeleton staff of the Queen's Quill was held last Tuesday afternoon. It was then decided that no permanent organization could be established until a complete working staff had been secured. To this end another meeting will be held in room 202 of the New Arts Building next Tuesday at 5 p.m.

COMING EVENTS

Today:
Friday, Oct. 7th:
12 noon—Freshman Pep Rally Grant Hall. Levana Marshmallow Roast
1.00p.m.—Freshettes meet
2.00p.m.—Seniors meet Ban Righ Hall
3.00 p.m.—Arts '35 Meeting, New Arts Bldg.
Saturday, Oct. 8th:
1.00 p.m.—Freshman Pep Rally, Old Gymnasium.
2.30 p.m.—Queen's vs. Toronto. Richardson Stadium.
8.30 p.m.—Alumni-Student Dance New Gym
Mouday, Oct. 10th:
Public Holiday.
4.15 p.m.—Debating Union Meeting, New Arts Bldg.
Tuesday, Oct. 11th:
4.15 p.m.—Arts Society Meeting, Room 201, New Arts Bldg.
5.00 p.m.—Meeting of Queen's Music Group, Room 111, Douglas Library.
5.00 p.m.—Queen's Quill Meeting, Room 202, New Arts Bldg.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

One of the Smart
NEW STYLE SUITS
Young Men Say
Are Right Great Value
$20.00 - $25.00

SNAPPY TOPCOATS
$15.00

New Fall Hats
Styled for Young Men
NEW TONES IN FALL BROWN GREY AND TAN
VERY SPECIAL $2.95

SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE GIVEN AWAY

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Which reminds me

"I feel", I cried, striding into the Editor's office in my customary devil-may-care manner the other day "that the Journal should apologize to Miss Neilson for calling her Miss Gordon." "And who the devil are you?" asked the Editor, angrily looking up from the pages of Ballyhoo.

"I'm Haywire," I replied with pride.

"I agree," he said rudely.

MODERN HYP'OCRISY

It is reliably reported that one of the faculty society presidents is cutting a wisdom tooth.

The question of the day at Ban Righ. Are this year's freshmen fresh?

Girls! Get your freshmen cellophone wrapped and ensure the genuine article! —Advt.

PROVERBS FOR TO-DAY

A stitch in time saves appearances.

RIMES FOR THE TIMES

Hallelujah! I've a bug,
Hallelujah! bug again,
Hallelujah! fetch us the flit
To revive us again.

FAMOUS SAYINGS OF YESTERDAY

Co-education is the thief of time.

FRESHETTE PHILOSOPHY

Life is just a bunch of chappies.

SPECIAL FROM WALL STREET

The majority of those who complain that Ivan Kreuger's figures were cooked appear to have got a raw deal. Which only goes to show, Euphemia, that things are not always what they seem.

HAYWIRE.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Introspection

Especially at the beginning of a term, students, medical students included, are apt to become introspective, appreciating for a short time their heritage from the past and their advantages in the present.

The notorious Uncle Ben, held up in the neutral corner to which he has retired, for his views on medical students, said that "of those born in spite of medicine, some will always study medicine, so that others may have medicine thrust upon them." We may, however, disregard these maunderings of a ribald old age.

Some few hundred years ago students became familiar with the known principles of healing during a more or less haphazard apprenticeship, and judged for themselves when they were competent to practice. The barber surgeons performed the manual labour of the profession as a part of their business. The medical department depended on a system compounded of accidentally discovered and time tried remedies, and the meticulous observance of the current principles of superstition, so treating at once the body and the mind. The therapeutic principles at the bases of coueism and similar systems of autosuggestion are not therefore a recent discovery.

We realize what strides science has made when we observe modern students becoming chemists, mathematicians and electrical experts, in their own opinions at least, before beginning the actual study of medicine, acquiring some knowledge in all the many departments of their chosen profession, an array of sciences before which Galen and Hippocrates might have faltered and been lost to history, their driving spirit diverted into so many channels as to lose much of its impetus.

A forward look from the lowly ground of the entering year brings a sense of hopeless importance to the first year student of serious mind, if there be such a student. It is a mighty leap from the entrance to even the beginning of medicine. As a leap it is impossible in fact, but toward the end of his course the student can look back and realize that patient groping along devious by-paths and the surmounting of small obstacles in their turn, have brought him over the distance so impossible to leap.

By keeping his nose to the grindstone, his shoulder to the wheel, and his hands on the plough, he has covered part of the path on which he will in time find rewards, but never an end of labour.

SMOKING AND BLOOD SUGAR

The almost universal habit of tobacco smoking is again being specially investigated with regard to its physiological effects, this time with the idea that nicotine has one effect, rather beneficial than otherwise on the right man at the right time.

Erik Lundberg and Stina Thyselius Lundberg recently published in a memoir the results of experiments designed to show that a small dose of nicotine produces a temporary rise in the blood sugar level. It was found that the smoking of one cigarette resulted in a considerable rise in the sugar level, attaining a maximum after 4 or 5 minutes, 50% over the normal level. Glycosuria is not mentioned. Further smoking at thirty minute intervals produces the same effect, sometimes cumulatively. Nicotineless tobacco is ineffective and it is assumed to follow a stimulation by nicotine of suprarenal secretion.

Such an effect alone might be considered beneficial to a normal individual, but the concurrent effects of smoking, the narcotic effect of nicotine and the production of carbon monoxide resulting from incomplete oxidation must also be taken into account.

In diabetes, of course the phenomenon is especially important and may lead to widespread modification of the treatment of this condition.

Davoud And Kennedy Strengthen Seniors

Queen's rugby stock rose sharply this morning when the official announcement was made that Paul Davoud, sensational running halfback, and Judd Kennedy, crack middle wing, who played on the R.M.C. Dominion championship team two years ago, have registered at the university and will be in the game on Saturday against Varsity. Both boys recently graduated from the Royal Military College and have decided to continue their studies at Queen's.

The securing of Davoud and Kennedy is a ten-strike for the Tricolor senior team. Davoud was the outstanding player in Intermediate rugby two years ago when the Cadets went through to take the Dominion championship and last year he was again the mainstay of the Cadets' backfield. Many close students of the game believe that Davoud is as good as any halfback in the game today; he can kick, run, tackle and, in fact, do everything a halfback should do and his presence on the lineup on Saturday will make the Tricolor a great deal stronger, especially since the loss of "Red" Gilmore, through graduation. Davoud is in excellent playing condition right now and is keen on getting into senior Intercollegiate rugby.

Kennedy has been one of the strongest line-plungers on the cadets' team during the past three seasons and will greatly bolster up the Tricolor on the line. He is a smart secondary defence player as well and should be mighty useful to the team.

The decision of Davoud and Kennedy to register at Queen's means that the Tricolor will on Saturday have on their lineup four players who were regulars on the R.M.C. Dominion championship team in 1930, namely Davoud, Kennedy, Bill Carr and Dick Storms.

Local rugby fans will be delighted with the news that the Tricolor will have both Davoud and Kennedy on Saturday. The former has always been a most colorful player and in virtually every game he played for the cadets has been outstanding.

McMASTER INITIATION

McMaster University belongs to the old type of college which still clings to the tradition of wild initiation.

This year the excitement began when the freshmen turned out for their annual picnic. Moses Appel of Ottawa, President of the freshman year, was the first to don a coat of tar and feathers. When his loyal followers rushed to his aid, they too were attacked and a free-for-all ensued.

After many skirmishes which greatly disturbed the peace of Hamilton's down-town district, the frosh reached their picnic grounds. There the lunch baskets provided a new bone of contention and another war occurred. The result was victory for the undaunted freshmen. All's well that ends well, and three cheers for all Freshmen!

McGill Honours Memory Of Founder, James McGill

Continued from page 1

Militia, from whom are descended the Canadian Grenadier Guards of to-day. A guard of honor in full-dress uniform paraded in the afternoon, while the band of the Grenadier Guards was stationed nearby and played selections.

The Annual Fall Convocation took place on the same day. Degrees and diplomas were awarded and Sir Arthur Currie delivered the Founder's Day Address.

STUDENT DIRECTORIES

Lists are now being sent round through the Science and Medical faculties, and have already been posted on the Arts and Levana Bulletin Boards. Students are asked to maintain strict accuracy in filling in their names, year, and Kingston and home addresses. Freshmen who have been granted credit for one year's work frequently make the mistake of assigning themselves to the Sophomore year; they should notice, however, that though they may expect their degree in 1935 their status as freshmen is with the freshman year, i.e., '36 in Arts and Science, and '38 in Medicine.

THE INSIDE STORY

They laid him in a narrow grave
The man the doctors failed to save,
He had held to life with all his will
And kept his faith in doctors, till
They used the knife, and not content
With an ugly scar for a monument
Had left a souvenir inside,
A pair of forceps open wide;
Small wonder that the fellow died.

E.G.

A. M. S. Minutes

Minutes of a meeting of the Executive of the Alma Mater Society held on April 5th, 1932, at 7 o'clock.

President Burke in the chair.

Those present were: Miss Kent; Messrs. Stuart, Robertson, Megill, Boyd, Simmons, Purvis, Samis, Wallie, Parkes, Hamilton, Farnham, Wilson, Warrington, Clapp.

The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read.

1. Megill-Farnham: That a bill from Hanson & Edgar Ltd. for $2.34 for posters be paid. Carried.

2. Simmons-Wallie: That a bill from Kinnear & D'Esterre for $48.00 for A.M.S. pins be paid. Carried.

3. An approximate statement of the "Tricolor" accounts was received from Mr. L. Sanders.. Burke-Samis: That the grant to this committee be withheld until the work has been finished and an audited statement submitted by Mr. Sanders. Carried.

4. The report of the Student's Directory committee was received from Mr. C. A. Holland. Farnham-Wallie: That their request for an honorarium of $15.00 be refused. Carried.

5. Farnham-Wallie: That the matter of Mr. Rae Green's claim against the Health Insurance Fund be taken up with Dr. McNeill by the secretary. Carried.

6. A report was submitted by the President showing that several of the Journal advertising contracts has been charged off against counter-accounts run by various members of the Journal staff. Farnham-Boyd: That the counter accounts against Grinham's Bookstore ($8.50), the Roy-York Cafe ($7.50), and the Mandarin Cafe ($) be approved by the Society. Carried.

Simmons-Farnham: That in connection with the account against the Bellevue Winter Gardens, $7.50 be collected from Mr. Hamilton and $7.50 from Mr. MacColl. Carried.

Farnham-Boyd: That in connection with the account against the LaSalle Hotel, $10.00 each be collected from Mr. Hamilton and Mr. MacColl. Carried.

Stuart-Samis: That the Silver Slipper Club account be cancelled. Carried.

7. Stuart-Samis: That Mr. Bert Walker be appointed Chief Justice of the A.M.S. Court for the coming year. Carried.

8. Farnham-Wallie: That the new Journal Executive as proposed by the retiring staff be accepted. The vote was taken for the offices individually as follows:

Editor-in-Chief, W. L. Charland. Carried.

Business Manager, T. D. Connochie. Carried.

News Editor, Eric Gilmour. Carried.

Samis-Stuart: That Mr. Farnham's motion be amended to include Mr. J. S. Hazen with Mr. E. H. Lill for the office of Managing Editor. The sub-sequent vote to decide between these two men was a tie and the deciding vote was cast by the President in favor of Mr. Lill.

Boyd-Samis: That Mr. Farnham's motion be amended to include Mr. J. S. Hazen with Mr. G. Henderson for the office of Sports Editor. The vote was in favor of Mr. Hazen.

Levana Editor, Helen Kennedy. Carried.

Literary Editor, R. U. Mahaffy. Carried.

Exchange Editor, J. Weir. Carried.

9. Boyd-Wilson: That the Alma Mater Society fee be reduced to two dollars ($2.00). Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

ROY-YORK CAFE
Announces the inauguration of new policies with much
LOWER PRICES—Effective Immediately
Reduced prices on all a la carte servings. You can now have high quality food for less than what you pay for ordinary elsewhere. This reduction affects all orders, large or small.
A complete change of menu for every meal. Dinner and supper served on the main floor for 55c. This price covers a complete, satisfactory meal such as has made thousands of "come-backs" for the Roy-York Cafe.
For the business man we offer, starting September 20th, a thirty-five cent lunch—served on second floor.
For the Student our meal tickets at $4.25 for 14 meals, saves you money and purchases the very best food.
Music at all hours—Dancing upstairs any evening except Saturday—minimum charge 25c., Saturday 35c., including refreshments as ordered.
We cordially invite you to inspect any time our clean kitchens where our delicious tasting food is prepared. Cleanliness is our major rule at all times.
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

Murders committed in technicolor before your eyes. Star reporter runs down hot scoop and wins himself a beautiful girl in a space of forty-eight hours! One-armed medical research scientist creates one usable lunch-book of synthetic flesh as good as the regular article!

The above are a few of the features of Doctor X, a gruesome picture that out-Frankenstein's Frankenstein and is guaranteed to evoke screams from the more squeamish members of the audience. The action starts in a morgue, continues in a medical research laboratory and concludes in an secluded old mansion amid a multitude of test-tubes. The finger of suspicion as to the identity of the "Moon-killer" is pointed at half a dozen people, as is the routine in pictures of this nature. The solution, strange to relate is really surprising. There are the usual wind and rainstorms, sliding panels and secret doors, with a human bon-fire thrown in, free of charge.

Lee Tracy, as a reporter, supplies the comedy relief and off-sets the tension created by the more sinister members of the cast. Fay Wray, the love interest, is given little to do except scream at opportune moments, probably assisted by somebody's leather lungs off-stage. Technicolor adds to the interest of the picture and helps promote the eeriness.

Doctor X deserves a B—.

The rest of the program is very good for a pleasant change. Charlie Chase contributes a fast-moving comedy and Alice Joy, of radio fame, sings "Shine On, Harvest Moon," to the satisfaction of all who like this old favorite.

AT THE TIVOLI

THE DOOMED BATTALION
with
Tala Birell, Louis Trenker, Victor Varconi, and others

Impossible to get one's teeth into a picture like The Doomed Battalion, so it's really no fun reviewing it, though possibly a little more exciting to see.

This is in no sense a memorable picture, pre-view blurbs notwithstanding. But one can summon enough points in its favour to prove its efficacy as an afternoon's entertainment. The plot is simply this: A battalion of Austrian Tyrolese chasseurs are under orders to hold a strategic post on a snow-covered mountain peak. The Italians, who want to play too, are busily undermining beneath the Austrian fortifications. An Austrian volunteer goes down by skis, hops, and other little tricks to the Italian base of operations located in his native village. He is to ferret out the information that will enable his comrades to step aside when the fireworks begin. What a mission! He obtains the facts, gives his wife a cursory kiss, inquires politely after the baby, and starts circumspectly back. What a man!

If this is Tala Birell's début, it has been done with the least possible eclat from her point of view. Miss Birell is completely eclipsed by fierce Alpine encounters, machine-guns spitting at chasseurs who tear by on skis, avalanches of snow smearing detachments of men, and indeed all the talkie paraphernalia of war at its primmest.

Good continuity and excellent photography lift this talkie to a B.

Book Chats

By R.M.

"In old Quebec stand speaking stones,
That tell rare tales in clearest tones,
Of old-time ways and men and things—
Our country's first rich burgeonings."

That's a fine thought, don't you think? It kind of grips one. Lower Town and its cobble stones. Clanking swords. The ringing sound of horses' hoofs on the uneven streets. Scarlet and gold braid. Pomp and ceremony. Is it any wonder that this Gibralter of America can make the heart beat faster? Is it any wonder that Old Quebec has captured the fancy of writers, travellers and pleasure seekers alike?

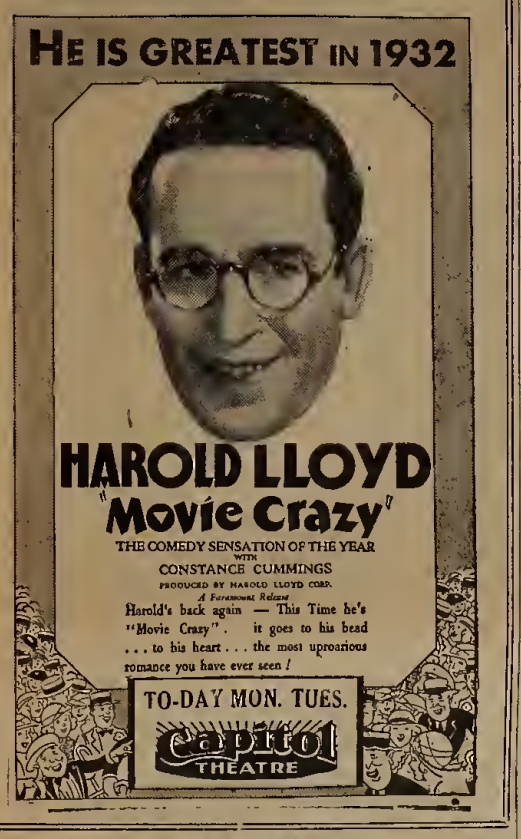
Our country is young. Her record of achievement is short but memorable—memorable enough to inspire Canadian novelists to greater things than they have done in the past. In the words of Dr. Lorne Pierce: "The soil we tread has measured the shadows of heroic men. One would rarely suspect it, so dull and commonplace are the lines we have written about them."

There is no doubt that this country is rich in material for social and historical romance. I can count five books at least that have been written about Quebec in the past year or so. Someone with a better memory may recall twice that number. The point is, can all these novels be called "dull and commonplace?" Dr. Pierce, I am sure was applying his own high canons of taste when he wrote those words. All we can hope to do is to take one or two recent historical novels and try and form an opinion on the matter.

If you want a good story, apart from its literary merit, take "The King's Fool" by Louis Arthur Cunningham (Graphic Publishers). Sir Michael Moham, a disinherited Irishman, along with his henchman Barney O'Pray, seeks his fortune at the court of Versailles; falls in love with Diane, beautiful lady-in-waiting, is clapped in irons as a result, and shipped on L'Aiglon for New France. The ship founders in a storm; all drown save Sir Michael, who wrapped in the coat of l'epin Clopinard, Court Fool is rescued. He starts life again at Quebec as the King's Fool. A fanciful tale this. The dialogue between Michael and Barney O'Pray is natural. One's interest is captured and sustained throughout. Yet as far as local colour goes, there is none to speak of. One notices a lack of definiteness, a lack of detail, so essential to vivid description. Surely the public today can appreciate a good background to a story, based on careful research, or does all our fiction need to be sugar-coated?

Quite a different criticism might be made of "The Rock and the River" by Ralph Connor (McClelland and Stewart). There is a heaviness to this novel that better qualifies it for a history text-book than a historical romance. That may seem an unjust criticism. But after all the story's the thing. And if the reader must wade through a welter of detail, three page dissertations and arguments, his ardour is bound to be somewhat abated. Of course it is always easier to offer adverse criticism than praise, and let it be made known to one and all that Mr. Connor's book contains much that is commendable. The same insight into the French Canadian character; skilful use of dialogue, and vivid portraitures are evinced here that made Ralph Connor's Glengarry books famous.

Reviewed in the March number of the "Queen's Quill" was a book by Willa Cather, outstanding American authoress, entitled "Shadows on the Rock." Miss Cather has, I think, shown Canadian authors how a rich vivid background can add to the interest of a novel. The New York Times has adversely criticized this tale. So have other reviewers. They say it lacks plot. There is a lack of unity. Very well! It's no matter. The main thing is that this story is interesting and this is gained very largely because of the abundance of local colour and skilful handling of separate incidents.



Dr. Pierce, in pointing out that much of our Canadian historical fiction is "absurd trash" has certainly put his finger on a weak spot in our literature. Our authors should harken to his words.

A college man may get a kick out of a letter with a check enclosed, but there is nothing more exciting than to open a package of laundry and see what you have.

Here is an invitation to my golden wedding.

Your golden wedding?

Yes, I am going to marry the only son of a millionaire.

PRINTING

FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.

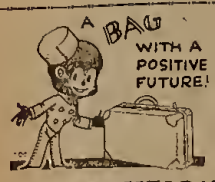
The JACKSON PRESS

173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO

FRANK ROBBS

SIX CHAIRS —— NO WAITING



185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer

SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS

180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110

Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into—they're full of travel satisfaction.

SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP

Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS

FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local and Long Distance Ambulance

Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.

230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

PARENTS . . . seldom complain about this

MOST pleasure costs money.

Some pleasures cost so far out of proportion to their worth, that it's no wonder Dads and Mothers sometimes say "go easy" to sons away at college.

You know that.

There's one College Pleasure, however, about the cost of which parents seldom complain.

Because it's a pleasure in which they share.

We refer to the popular custom of telephoning home regularly.

All you have to do is give the operator your home telephone number, say that you want to reverse the charge and let Dad take care of the rest!

Just for fun . . . call Home tonight!

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA — LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

We Welcome

Queen's Students To Our City

And invite you to make our store your meeting place. Make use of our telephone, help yourself to our cigarettes (but find them!) We want you to feel right at home—

We specialize on Young Men's Clothes, Featuring Suits and Overcoats at $15.00 - $18.50 - $22.50

The Best these prices can buy anywhere in Canada and not perhaps either!

Our clerks will be pleased to show the new models

At your service Sir!

BIBBY'S

CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

GRINHAM'S

FOR BOOKS

Drop in and Browse Around

Any Time

3 Doors above the Capitol

SINGLE BED-ROOM FOR MAN

Warm and Bright

35 Clergy St. Phone 2604-m

Superior Tea Rooms

For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own

"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream

204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Sports Views

While Queen's and Varsity are staging a mighty battle here, Western will journey to McGill. The Mustangs are seeking their second straight title, and it must be admitted it won't come as easy as last year.

As far as the game in Montreal is concerned, the Red Men are the unknown quantity. Why? Well Western proved they have something when they held a powerful Tiger team to 8 points, while little is known of McGill. They smothered the Cadets by a 26 to 0 score this season in an exhibition game, but the cadet team was sadly riddled by graduation last June and the strength of the present R.M.C. squad is not great.

Who will win in Montreal? We'll pick McGill, nevertheless.

Fans and students are reminded that the Tricolor seconds open the local Intermediate Intercollegiate season by visiting R.M.C. on Thanksgiving afternoon.

These two teams can stage a choice game any time and this year should prove no exception. The Seconds will field a smart team and R.M.C. can always be depended upon to furnish well coached and well conditioned opposition.

And don't forget this Tricolor team needs your support as well as the Senior team. How about giving the boys a real encouragement on Monday?

While Queen's are not showing the interest in Track and Field sports that it might, other universities are not so lax. It is perhaps not generally known that McMaster University of Hamilton have applied for entrance into senior Intercollegiate track and field competition. The decision as to their admittance will depend upon their showing this year, in Intermediate ranks, and if they do not clean up, it will be a surprise. Many athletes of late years have left Hamilton to enroll in universities across the border, the inducements being very attractive. This year Earl Moore, Fred Shaver, Bill Downes and Ollie Holland, all outstanding stars with the Hamilton Olympic Club have enrolled at McMaster, and in addition George Laughren of Ottawa, a well known athlete, has registered. With this galaxy of stars added to an already fine team, it will take a mighty smart track squad to down them. And, as most of the athletes are first and second year men, McMaster should improve as the years roll by.

Contending contributors to the Queen's Quill are invited to send M.S.S. to Eric Gilmour, 7 Aberdeen Street, Telephone 3469, or to leave them addressd to him at the Queen's Post Office.

Tricolor Ready For Game With Varsity

Continued from page 1

the Tricolor. The presence of Davoud, the smart running and kicking half of last year's R.M.C. team, and the addition of Day, Davis and McNichol to the backfield along with Captain Howie Carter means that we should have a distinct edge over Varsity.

Along the wing line we have weight, speed, and ability and no line is going to fool with the boys. Buell, Lackey, Byrne, Hamlin and Conquergood, Thoman, Purvis, Kostnik, Hoskings and Kennedy should and will hold the Big Blue team, and also gain many a yard on the offensive.

Storms, Ralph, Peever and Teskey as outsides will see that opposing halves do not get more than the five yards allowed to catch the ball this year, before being grassed, while Glass and Gorman can be depended upon to fill the flying wing job nicely, whichever one is in. To complete the squad, Dargavel and Carr will look after the quarterback's chores.

This battle can be fought along the sidelines, in the bleachers and the covered stand as well. Every loyal son and daughter of Queen's can help that courageous team by cheering it on.

Varsity Hopeful Of Winning Opening Tilt

(Special to the Journal)

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 5—To-night the University of Toronto Intercollegiate senior team held their last heavy workout at Varsity Stadium in preparation for the opening game of the Intercollegiate schedule against Queen's in Kingston on Saturday afternoon, but coaches Harry Hobbs and Warren Stevens are still not in a position to name their starting line-up. At the conclusion of the practice, Jack Sinclair, great booter and one of the best running halves in Canada was elected captain of the team for 1932 to succeed Bob Galloway, last year's captain, who is again trying for his inside position on the line.

The Toronto students' band will turn out in full force at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon to give the team which they hope will win the Intercollegiate, a great send-off. Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the University, will leave on Saturday morning to attend the game.

Although nothing definite was done about the final selection of the team it may be presumed that the team used on Saturday against Argos in the city final will start the game. Varsity played that game with only one substitute on the line. Hees will start at snap with Galloway and Booth as insides, Dewar and Rogers, middles, Henderson and Elson, outsides. For the last two days Johnny Fitzpatrick has been working at outside but he will not play in that position Saturday. Laing, McQuigge, Gibson, Warner, Copp and Bonnett will be the line subs. Flying wing will probably be held for the entire game by Ferguson, while Miller and Jim Sinclair will call the signals. The backfield will be Jack Sinclair, Woods, and Arnup with Richardson, Fenner, Cutler and Webber relieving.

Arts '36 Elect Executive

Continued from page 1

O.T.C. movement in Canada explained some of the advantages of joining the Queen's unit, but made it plain that the C.O.T.C. only wanted recruits who would take their work seriously.

As a result of the elections to positions on the executive, Dean Matheson was elected Hon. President; "Skell" Deans, President; Miss D. E. Stewart, Vice-President; Miss E. M. Peacock, Secretary; L. W. Carlson, Treasurer, and R. B. Howitt, Athletic Stick.

Large Entry List For Men's Tennis

Inclement weather has again resulted in the postponment of the annual men's tennis tournament. Originally slated to start Wednesday the incessant rain has made playing out of the question. It is expected, however, that the first round may get under way to-day.

One of the largest entry lists in years marks the tourney this year. Seventy-one players have sent in their entries.

The seeded players are: Doug. Grant 1, Muir 2, Butler 3, Connolly 4, Charland 5, Rollins 6, Lowe 7 and Findlay 8.

Of the seeded players Grant is the only one not eligible for Intercollegiate competition.

JACK'S WORST PUN

Mike: You are a pauper.

Ike: Hurrah! Is it a boy or a girl?

Seeded Aces Advance In Toronto Tourney

Only one favored player failed to advance to the quarter-finals of the University of Toronto tennis championships as a result of yesterday's matches at the Toronto Tennis Club. The upset occurred when J. Tomlinson defeated W. P. "Bill" Pigott, of Hamilton, 7-5, 6-3.

Pigott is a tournament player of more than passing repute and despite the fact that he is still a junior was considered to be good enough to at least reach the semi-finals. He was in the junior finals of the Eastern Canadian championships, losing at that time to Bobby Murray of Montreal.

Yesterday's singles results:

Fifth Round

R. E. Carruth defeated T. Lehman, 6-1, 7-5; K. Black defeated R. C. Sniffen, 6-2, 7-5; J. B. Shortly defeated P. E. Beckett, 4-6, 6-0, 6-4; S. Hermant defeated S. F. Rae, 6-0, 6-2; R. S. Davies defeated J. Tomlinson, 7-5, 6-8, 7-5; Vanstone defeated M. Hicks, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1; R. Zinkman defeated A. H. Crowson, 6-8, 6-2, 6-2; J. Leibel defeated C. E. Burnett, 6-2, 6-0.

NOTICE

Student admission ticket No. 1 will be used for the Varsity-Queen's Rugby Game, October 8th. List of events and ticket numbers will be published in next issue of Journal.

ATHLETIC BOARD OF CONTROL

FORWARD PASSES

Just wondering if the forward passes will be so potent to-morrow. One thing is certain, Warren Stevens can only throw his tongue, not forward passes from the bench.

* * * * *

Western's champ. team will get the acid test in Montreal. Those Red fellows haven't been saying much but they can be counted on to treat to a flock of new stuff.

* * * * *

Howie Carter, the Captain, is in his final year of Medicine, and it would be sweet to reward his efforts with a championship. Well, we've got to start to-morrow then.

* * * * *

The Big Blue Team might feel like leaving the "big" off when the shadows fall to-morrow.

* * * * *

Western still have a powerful line. Tigers rammed them with every tank they had and still couldn't hurt them much. Their backfield isn't so hot, but Patterson can still boot them.

* * * * *

Well, go take them Tricolor, and are we ever with you.

* * * * *

Coach Burt opines there's only one ending. The team says there's only one ending, and the students say ditto. That makes it unanimous. Let's go!

"Leadership is always a matter of class. I've smoked Buckingham for years because they lead in everything I look for in a cigarette."

W. J. Roue

Naval architect and designer of a hundred sailing craft—among them many consistent prize winners and—most famous of all—the fast, scudding champion of the North Atlantic—the Bluenose. Famous throughout racing circles, Mr. Roue is also skipper of the "Hawk"—thirty foot yacht of the Royal Nova Scotia Yacht Squadron.

The choicest of fine tobaccos meet and merge in the Buckingham Blend—tobaccos naturally ripened in the fields—then mellowed, enriched, by ultra-violet rays. Here is why Buckingham Cigarettes are so cool, smooth and mild—so friendly to every taste. Kept always fresh and fragrant by the patented sealed package.

20 for 25¢

Smoke

Buckingham

— and Smile B-853

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
70 PRINCESS ST.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

WELCOME!
To all Queen's Students
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store
and
Ice Cream Parlor
Where the Students Meet

NOTICE TO ARTS FROSH

Freshman attendance at Saturday's rugby game is compulsory. Arts frosh will meet outside the Old Gymnasium at 1 p.m. Saturday, where a roll will be called.

They will appear at the rugby game wearing tams, how ties and red petticoats. The last mentioned article may be procured at the place of assembly, the Old Gymnasium, price 25c.

Queen's Factotum Recalls Growth Of University

Continued from page 1

eye, the old time field surrounded by phalanxes of democrats, buggies, big boxed farm waggons, and handsome carriages carrying the plutocrats hither and yon.

Of course you could ride in the street cars, or if you were in a rush you could walk. Those were the days of horse cars and the hay burners, even the fastest of them were never famed for speed. Instead of dropping a nickel in the box you could throw on a good feed of oats, and no wild ones either.

Does it ever cost money to outfit a modern rugby team? Well the boys who played in the old days were quite content to don shorts, a linen jacket or top piece, and then trot down and pay for it themselves. As far as protection goes, that was provided, not by heavily padded suits, but by a sartorially correct crop of side burns, and an artistic beard. Not all the players were decorated, but the fastidious ones were so adorned.

The university consisted of the Old Arts building, Carruthers Hall and the Old Medical building (now the Anatomy building). It must have seemed very small then, but such is the beginning of all famous and noble institutions.

"Well, who did Queen's play in those days Alfie? Did they have a regular league?" The furnace gets another poke before I get my question answered. "Well there was Ottawa College, we played them, and Varsity, and Montreal and Tigers, and lots of other teams, though Montreal and Tigers were not in the league then." "I don't suppose you ever played any of the teams from across the line?" This was more of a hint for him to talk than a question, because most every student at Queen's has heard of the famous victory over Yale. However my words brings a cackle from Alfie that started way down in the feet, that led many a Queen's team onto the field of battle. "We beat Yale at Buffalo." This comes out slowly between cackles. "We beat them 12 to 2 in the first half under their own rules, and then beat them 15 to 5 in the second half under our own game." Anyone with half an eye can see that Alfie considers this one of the highlights of his long and eventful life. And Yale was a smart team, too, don't forget; one of the best in the States at that time. We still sing of Captain Curtis and the conquerors of Yale.

As to Alfie's duties at that time. His position reminds one of some village notables, who are and who handle every job in the burg from the town pump down, or up. Alfie rubbed the team, looked after uniforms, cut the lawn, marked out the field, packed the duffle for trips, and dusted off the grandstand seats.

The feet wont work so well as they used to in days of yore, but Alfie will likely trot out a short distance to lead the team into action again this year. And when you see him coming, give the old chap a great big hand, for Queen's has never had a more faithful and loyal supporter in all her long and glorious football history.

Maple Leafs Arrive At Agreement With Syracuse

Continued from page 1

With the announcement that all arrangements have been completed to start the pre-season training campaign at Kingston on October 20, officials of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club also declared that a definite agreement has been entered into with the Syracuse Club of the International League whereby the latter will be a farm for surplus Leaf players.

Dr. Babcock, President of the Syracuse Club, was in Toronto yesterday, in conference with the Leafs. He signed the agreement on behalf of his club. Under the terms of the agreement the Leafs will exercise the right to take any player from the Stars at any time, on condition that said player be replaced.

The Leafs and Stars will train together at Kingston. Mickey Roach will be in charge of the Stars, but Dick Irvin, coach of the Leafs, will have full charge of both squads. All of the Syracuse players will be given a chance to make good with the Leafs.

Dr. Babcock announced that he had completed deals whereby Syracuse has purchased Ken Doraty, right-wing player of the Cleveland International League Club, and one of the leading goal-getters of the circuit, in addition to "Whitey" Fields from the Pittsburg Club of the same league. Kline, a left-wing player with the Boston Cubs last season, has also been obtained by the Stars.

Undoubtedly Ken Doraty will be given every chance to make the position left vacant on the Leafs' front line by Frankie Finnegan, who returns to Ottawaa. The Leafs also have Charlie Sands, the Port Arthur recruit, as a candidate for the position. Both are right-handed shots.

Prospects For Co-ed Tennis Team Good

The progress of the Levana Tennis Tournament has been held up considerably by the rainy weather but there have been a few of the scheduled games run off. Among these is the match between Ruth Fishleigh, a Freshette who holds the Junior Championship of Ontario, and Grace Turner. This match was won by the score of 6-0, 6-1.

Among the tournament entries are some very good prospects for the Intercollegiate team which plays in Toronto during the middle of October. The graduation of Dorothy Bews, Doris Kent and Eileen Bogart has left a big gap in tennis ranks, but Do Kenny, who is ranked as a No. 1 player, will find plenty of support among the junior enthusiasts. Carmel Milne, Ruth Fishleigh, Gladys Thomas, Dot Brooks, Nora McGinnis are all possibilities for the team.

Varsity, the strongest team in the series, has also lost heavily by graduation, as their former captain Bea Symons, has graduated. However, they still can depend upon Jessie Gray and Betty Carter, and also have promising material in K. Symons and K. McIntyre.

The meet this year is to be held in Toronto, possibly on the Victoria College courts, which are of a clay composition covered with fine gravel, and although they are not as fast as the cement courts, they make an excellent game possible.

S. C. A. Shrapnel

Love of life is common to all creatures. To live abundantly is the deepest human desire. That is, to adjust ourselves to life that we will be able to experience its richest values. This hope is not to be realized by unthinking surrender to conventional religion. Rather it is through skepticism that all great lives have reached conviction. It is reasonable to suppose that skepticism plays a part in the mental process of every student.

It is hoped that through this column, questions, doubts and findings regarding religion may be discussed. Contributions may be left in the Post Office addressed to the editor of this column. Names must be signed to the articles and preferably, though not necessarily, published.

C. O. T. C.

Officers: C.O., Col. W. P. Wilgar; Arts Company, Capt. R. O. Earl; Medical Company, Capt. N. E. Berry; Engineering Company, Capt. D. M. Jemmet, Adj. and Q.M.

Two meetings have been held, but things are still tentative. An artillery Co'y is under consideration, and a rifle range in basement of Old Arts building. Recruiting starts next week, at the Orderly Room in the Union. Notices giving all details will be posted on Friday morning.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

BOWL TO-NIGHT
CRASH! THERE THEY GO!
It's a Grand and Glorious Feeling to see the Pins Fly About When You "STRIKE."
BOWLADROME ALLEYS
250 Princess St.

Abramsky's —
GREAT SALE
of — SOCKS —
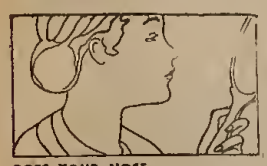
27c. pair
4 Pairs For $1.00
QUALITY AT A SALE PRICE
50 Doz. wool ribbed hose—suitable for school or street wear—solid shades or patterns—Sizes 10-11½. — Reg. Price 50c

New Fall Neckties
Beautiful hand made neckties. Regular values $1.50. All are hand tailored—patterns of every description to choose from.
$1.00
Choose your New Fall Coat or Suit
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Economy for Students!
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St.



BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
— Here since 1922 —

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

FOR FOOTWEAR OF THE BETTER TYPE
also
Hosiery, Luggage, Tennis Shoes and Polish
YOU WILL FIND THIS STORE YOUR LOGICAL CHOICE
The Students Favorite Shoe Shop
Established over 50 years ago
Locketts
LIMITED

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Varsity Stalwarts To Be Seen In Action.

JACK SINCLAIR

MEL ELSON

DON WOOD

Campus Cut-ups

Once there was a Skirt which her name was Ethel, what her Father was a Red Corpuscle or Something in the Russian Army Service maybe, after all, who's Business is it? And furthermore, who Cares?

However, we still have Ethel. 2 Cigarettes and No matches. Or anyway we have Ethel, and still no matches. That's what we have, and Anything you don't see, please Ask for. ¾.

Paragraph 3. So Ethel comes to College. So What? She does does This, she does That. She forgets to Pour Water for the Seniors, and Open Doors, and Everything, so what did they do but put her in the Bathtub, see, and pullout the Plug. So Ethel Goes to the Beach. The Season being what it is, the Resorts empty, the Shores deserted, and the Rowers gone, she strikes her fair bosom Thrice with her Hand, and hitchhikes back to Ban Righ, Home and Beauty, now that April was there.

So in one Week only, she Learns to act like a Freshette, and Despise Chesterfields. I mean, why shouldn't she, she can't sit on them Anyway.

But my isn't she lonesome, my isn't she. She's lonesome that's what, so after 3 or Anyway say four days maybe, she sends home a Telegram, so lonesome she is. The Telegram, after having been written, happened thus. Bought new hat. Broke. Send Check. Love. Stop. X

It broke her Father's Heart, but they say he will Recover. Clubs were Trump. But imagine her Surprise (The Scene is laid in Venice—Oh Ethel where have you put the Scene?) and Embarrassment and Chagrin and Everything when she finds out she has to wear a perfectly Horrible, Hideous, and Most Unbecoming Tam. The theme song is, 'Some Tam I'm Happy, and How Are You?' (I know that was rotten, but after all, can I help it if it rains nearly every day?)

But when Everything Looked Hopeless, and she was about to Seek Some Way Out, who should come along but a Science Sophomore, so That was That, and There We Are. Take the first door to the right, Ladies & Gentmen, and Don't Crowd.

Moral: Have you a Hoover in your Home?

P.S. With apoplexies to George Ade, and so Young Too. ½.

Campus and Gym

SOFTBALL

Levana's major sport for this term, softball, has been badly treated by the weatherman and all the practices which were called by the year conveners have been cancelled. However there should be much enthusiasm among all the years and especially among the Freshettes who have their regular gym. periods given over to softball practices. The Freshettes have the best opportunities to build a better team for this reason and generally manage to win the cup. But the defending champions, '35, have a good line-up planned and if one o'clock classes are not too imperative they should give the Freshettes a run. Among the stars from last year are Helen Hamilton, Jean Cameron, Jenny Roberts, Marg McGregor, Gertrude Warrell, Marion Hayes, Ruth Clemens, Barbara Brown and Lola Billings.

'34 who once held the Interyear cup are ready with their famous team, but may lose some of the players by rule of years as some of the girls expect to graduate this year and therefore should help to bolster up the '33 team. The Juniors generally have a hard time getting material for this reason, but this year are counting on Jean Nelson of hockey fame, Eileen Hancock, Sally Farlinger, Norah McGinis, Dot Clemens, Marg Chambers, Ruby Cordy, Hilda Rice and Isa Galbraith to help them out.

'33 has lost a great many players by graduation and will have difficulty in fielding a team, but will probably have May Mills, Fay Kimmins, Do Kenny and Maida Baker who is doing postgrad work, to put pep into their teammates.

SWIMMING

Since the weather has spoiled the tennis and the field sports there has come a rejuvenation in the interest in swimming. There are several strong swimmers in the Freshette year who will provide competion in the inter-year swimming meet held in the winter. Dot Brooks, Eileen Hancock, Arleigh McKone and other tank stars are prepared to defend their laurels.

Classes preparing for the Bronze Medal tests will probably be given again this year if there is as much interest shown as in past years. Anyone interested in this work either as an instructor or a pupil, should see Miss Murphy in her office in the gym.

HOCKEY

Practices for the Interyear Hockey teams will start as soon as arrangements are made with the A. B. of C. for the use of the arena. The prospects for the Intercollegiate team are good with May Mills, last year's fast skating captain, on hand; Jean Nelson and Jean Cameron, Dot Clemens, Marg. McGregor and several hockey minded freshettes.

BADMINTON

Last year there was a decided interest in the formation of a badminton club, but nothing resulted. Any girls who are interested should see Miss Murphy and try to plan the undertaking.

LEVANA MEETING

The Levana Society is holding a marshmallow roast for the Freshettes and their Seniors on Friday of this week. By this means Levana hopes to introduce the Freshettes to the other years and to welcome them into the Levana Society. Also Freshettes will be given their Tricolor tams at this gathering and will be taught some of the College yells. Freshettes are also expected to sell programmes at the rugby game on Saturday and may consult the bulletin board at Ban Righ Hall for further information.

Steam Shovel: I call my girl Gilette.

Levana Lyre: Pourquoi ?

S.S.: Whenever I take her out all I hear is, 'J let me have this, 'J let me have that?

WELCOME — —
To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."
To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

SUITS
$22.50 $24.50 $26.00
$30.00 $33.00 $35.00
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
BEST VALUES IN THE CITY
PHONE 487

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12th, 1932 No. 4

Queen's Library

Candidates To Be Chosen To-Night For A.M.S. Posts

Five Vacancies To Be Filled At Next A.M.S. Election October 21.

Candidates for the five positions in the Alma Mater Society, tenable only by victory at the annual student elections, will be nominated for these offices at an open nomination meeting to be held this evening in Grant Hall tonight.

The following positions are open —President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer and Athletic Stick.

The A.M.S. now has a permanent secretary-treasurer. Those elected to the secretaryship and treasurership will work in co-operation with the permanent official, the Journal learns.

No announcement is forth-coming at the present as to the likely choices for the several offices.

Hill Clarkson, convener of the Election Committee announces that the election will be held on Friday, October 21st.

It is not known whether the candidates, who will be proposed by the two parties, will address the meeting in the interest of their cause at the conclusion of the nomination ceremonies. Every one is invited to turn out for this meeting.

Debating Club Plans Election Of Officers

At 4.30 on Monday afternoon, Oct. 10th the Debating Union held its first meeting of this session. The attendance was small, but enthusiastic. It was unanimously decided that another meeting should be called for 4.30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 12th at which officials for the year should be elected, and it was hoped it would prove more adequately representative of all those interested in the organization and progress of the Union.

Before the meeting broke up, Mr. Stu. Warrington, acting President, made a few remarks concerning the aims and purpose of the society. "The Debating Union," he declared, "seeks to become a forum for the free interchange of student views and opinions at Queen's, and a centre for the cultural life of this university. It provides at once a training ground for those who wish to acquire the art of public speaking and an arena for those whose critical faculty is well developed. This year we hope to establish the Union on a firm basis of extensive student support, a support deriving not merely from the Arts faculty, but from other faculties as well, to whom now on behalf of the Union I wish to extend an earnest invitation."

The meeting, before adjournment, concurred with Mr. Warrington in expressing a hope that support would be forthcoming from the Science and Medical faculties as well as from Arts.

Two years ago a number of Meds. and Science men came out for the try-outs. They were not much in evidence last term, however.

In Memoriam

The Journal regrets to announce the death from infantile paralysis of Jack Ferguson Stewart, aged 20, of Commerce '33.

Mr. Stewart who came from Almonte, Ont., where his father, Mr. William Stewart is manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, developed symptoms of the disease on Friday last and was removed to the Isolation Hospital where he was attended by Dr. Connell the next day. Unhappily the infection had already taken a fatal hold upon Mr. Stewart and he died at 4.30 on Monday afternoon, Oct. 10th, from paralysis of the respiratory organs.

An able student, Jack Stewart held the P. D. Ross Scholarship in Commerce which he won in April, 1932.

Dr. Vlastos Presents Theory Of Religion

Dr. Fyfe Suggests S. C. M. Possibilities

The S.C.M. has come back to life on the campus with a service in Convocation Hall on Sunday afternoon. Principal Fyfe suggested the scope of the possibilities for the movement in his opening remarks. The breakdown of the present competitive, nationalistic, individualistic system has forced us to face the problem of reconstruction. We believe that as far as the solution is based on Christian principles, it will be successful.

Dr. McClement welcomed the new-comers, inviting them to become better acquainted with the movement. He also extended a hearty welcome to the Torontonians present, in spite of the mixed motives for their visit.

The gathering was fortunate to be favored with a vocal solo by Mrs. Gilmour.

Dr. Vlastos gave the address of the afternoon, taking as a subject, "What is Religion?" The influence of this speaker will certainly prevent the movement from becoming merely sentimental.

Infantile Paralysis Reaches Kingston

Ten Students Isolated In Quarantine Ward

The epidemic of infantile paralysis which has recently attacked Eastern Canada has now reached Kingston, and great care is being exercised by the Medical Authorities to prevent its spread here.

At present there are ten students in quarantine in the Isolation hospital where they are being kept under close observation. They will remain there for ten days, the period of incubation of the disease germ. As yet none of them have shown any symptoms of infection.

The disease, technically known as polio mylitis, does not normally attack persons over the age of eighteen, though exceptional cases are known.

Common symptons of the disease which is both infectious and contagious, include, upset stomach, a rising temperature, headache, and stiffness of the neck, that is, an inability in the patient to bring his chin forward until it rests upon his chest. The poliomylitis germ, which up to the present has not been isolated, attacks the victim through the nose and throat and the disease develops within a period of about twelve days from the time of infection.

The disease is diagnosed by lumbar puncture, and examination of the spinal fluid.

Infantile paralysis is spread mainly by germ carriers, that is by those who, despite personal immunity, are able to infect those with whom they come in contact. Treatment for the disease is by convalescent serum, obtained from the blood of those recovering from the disease. The Government supplies facilities for a supply of this serum being available to hospitals.

It is not expected that the disease will make any headway in Kingston as immediate attention has been given the outbreak. The only reported case to date is that of the unfortunate Jack Stewart, who died two days after entering the hospital.

A Journal reporter learns that the disease seems to be travelling westward.

Tech. Supplies Busy Centre Of Hopes and Fears As Students Await Prices Of Books

During the first days of the term the "Tech." plays a very important part in college life. It is a scene of bustling activity, a place of hopes and fears, fear amounting to a fascinated horror as one anxiously awaits to hear the price of a book. The unfortunate student does not know whether to hope the book will be in so that he can think about carrying out the good resolutions he made while studying for that awful supp. or whither to hope it will not be in so that he will have some money for the show and for cigarettes. Just another of life's little complexities!

The present "Tec" was at one time the old Mill that is the Mining Machinery Hall, which is said to have turned out more famous mining engineers than any other building in Canada. It is haunted by the ghosts of men like Miller and Dean Brock, not to mention a score of giggling freshettes in the flesh, who buy books at reduced rates and chocolate bars at the highest rates. Science men declare that the "Tec" is infested with a great many people belonging to the lower strata of society (such as Arts freshmen) who would never have been permitted to enter its sacred portals under any but the present circumstances. The naiveté of these people is amazing. One freshette is said to have asked if five notebooks were necessary, "because at home in Birdseye Centre we had to have a notebook for each subject." She was told that one would be sufficient for all she would be likely to know. Blessed are the innocent!

Newman Club Elects Executive For Year

The Newman Club held the first meeting of the year on Sunday, Oct. 9th in K. of C. Hall, King St. President J. O'Connor extended a hearty welcome to the new and old members of the club and asked for their co-operation during the coming year.

It was decided to hold a Freshman's Reception in St. Mary's Hall in the near future.

Father Martin, chaplain of the club, welcomed the new members and discussed new activities for the club. The meeting was addressed also by Father Feeney, Rector of the Cathedral, and Dr. Harbeson, Honorary President of the Newman Club. The meeting then adjourned until the second Sunday in November.

The Newman Club is a Roman Catholic organization, especially for students of Queen's University and Royal Military College.

Local Alumnae Hold Successful Dinner

History Of Residence Traced By Graduates

The Alumnae Association of Queen's University held a very successful dinner in Ban Righ Hall on Saturday evening. As this year is the twenty-first Anniversary of the Association, it was a particularly interesting occasion and a large number of out-of-town guests were present. The toast to the King was proposed by Mrs. George Young of Toronto, President of the Alumnae, and the toast to Levana by Mrs. Lavell of Kingston. Mrs. Lavell told how she and two other women students organized the Levana Society. In 1911 the Alumnae Association was re-organized with a women's residence as its objective. This was realized in 1925, with the opening of Ban Righ Hall. Mrs. E. C. Coon of Toronto proposed the toast to the University to which Principal Fyfe replied, giving his views on co-education. Miss Dorothy Wickle of Toronto proposed the toast to the Alumnae, to which former Presidents of the Association replied. Miss Mowat who was in charge of the first women's residence, and Mrs. D. G. McPhail traced the history of the residences. Miss May Macdonnell spoke on the Marty Memorial Foundation Fund, which is now the objective of the Alumnae. By this fund one student annually will be sent to study at a foreign University.

Prof. McArthur To Speak On History Of Kingston

"Kingston and its History" will be the topic of a lecture to be given by Professor Duncan McArthur head of the History Department in Convocation Hall at 4 p.m. on Friday. The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides.

While intended especially for first year students, the lecture should, nevertheless, be of great interest to every one.

Superb Play Of Jack Sinclair Features Brilliant Varsity Victory In Opening Encounter Of Season

JACK SINCLAIR

Whose brilliant play was unfortunately terminated by a severe injury late in the game. Jack will probably be out for the rest of the season.

Tricolor Showed Lack Of Team Play In Face Of Skillful Opposition

Varsity seniors came to town Saturday and led by John Sinclair, one of Canada's finest halves, downed the Tricolor in a rather easy fashion, the final score being 24 to 8.

The Queen's team got off to a slow start and showing a lamentable lack of team play, partly to be explained by the gathering together of a new team, they never seemed to find themselves, though they battled courageously against a foe that played inspired rugby.,

Davoud was the best for the Tricolor, with Storms, Carter, Glass, Hamlin and Gorman showing up very well.

Varsity seemed to be all Sinclair, but their line held well and their other halves were on their best rugby behavior.

It didn't take the Toronto boys long to get going, Sinclair galloping for a touch from Queen's 20 yard line within the first few minutes, also converting it. This sudden reverse stunned the Tricolor, and when Laing also planted the rugby ball beyond Queen's posts for a second major score, the Toronto team had a safe lead. Before the quarter ended Sinclair added one to the deadline.

The third quarter saw a couple of plays that a movie producer would envy. Sinclair intercepted a forward pass on his own 40 and seemingly hemmed in by the Tricolor team, he nevertheless squirmed through for 70 yards and a touch while the crowd marvelled.

On the following kickoff, Sinclair fumbled around with the ball and it went into touch five yards out from the Varsity line with

(Continued on page 6)

A.M.S. Regulations Explained To Frosh

Dean Clarke Shows Failure Percentages

Addressing a recent meeting of Science Freshmen, Dean Clarke gave the incoming class a general outline of university life, and the effect which the new environment had on the freshman classes. By means of lantern slides, Dean Clarke illustrated the comparative failure percentage of other courses in the Science-Faculty.

The activities of the Engineering Society were outlined and the A.M.S. regulations for Freshmen were read. After the election of Science '36 officers, announcement was made concerning the Sophomore-Freshman Banquet.

Queen's Brass Band In Financial Straits

At a recent meeting of the members of the Queen's brass band, Bob Johnston, formerly with Charlie Hopkirk's Orchestra, was chosen as leader. Ken Kleinsteuber was chosen as manager, and Ray Requa for Secretary-Treasurer. The committee is composed of Don Kirkland, Keith Mitchell and W. Johnston.

The Journal learns that the band opened the year with a very small surplus from last year. Arrangements have been completed to hold a tag-day on October 22nd, the day of McGill-Queen's here. The number in the band is larger this year than in the past. It is expected that the number will reach about thirty.

Queen's Tennis Team Beats Ottawa College

Playing on the courts of the Rideau Tennis Club, Ottawa, Queen's tennis team defeated Ottawa College by three events to two on Sunday. The Queen's players captured two of the three singles, while honours were divided in the doubles. The matches were closely fought for the most part and the players offered an interesting afternoon of tennis.

Doug. Grant, playing the No. 1 position for the Kingstonians, lost a spirited encounter to Eddie Connolly, one of the leading players of the Capital city. The scores were 6-1, 3-6, 7-5. Grant, who lost a close match to Connolly in Kingston last year, was eager to avenge this defeat. He started slowly, however, and the Ottawa ace took the first set. Assuming command of the situation in the second he stroked his way to a 6-3 verdict and went on to amass a lead of 5-2 in the third set. Connolly at this point inaugurat-

Continued on page 7

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457 J ... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3477 ... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ... LEVANA EDITOR
R. D. MAHAFFY—280 ... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ... MEDICINE

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12

Rugby Broadcasts

The decision not to sanction radio broadcasts of the local games will be viewed by many as a forward pass to bigger gate receipts. Many followers of the sport, however, will try to complete the pass by urging a return to broadcasts of the colourful encounters played at the Richardson Memorial Stadium.

No doubt, the reduced attendance of last season is attributed to radio reports. The smaller institutions, particularly, suspect that radiocasting keeps potential spectators away from the games. While this argument is sound enough on the surface it will not bear close scrutiny. This argument of reduced attendance is easily overbalanced by the fact that radio reports popularize the sport and in the long run increase the crowds by general advertising. To our way of thinking, it seems reasonable to believe that any decrease in the immediate past is largely due to abnormal business conditions.

Another factor which has tended to keep cash customers from the Stadium is the high level of admission prices. The average young man just getting his bearings in the world—the best customer athletic associations have—must sacrifice nearly a day's earnings to attend a game with the lady friend.

Aside from the opinions of athletic directors and radio broadcasters, it seems fair to consider the holder of the pocket-book—the public. Alumni and friends of institutions of learning often are unable to witness games which they might like to hear described. The putting on the air of these contests, while aiding the University by advertising value, adds greatly to its prestige and can only result in building up an unsectional spirit of good will.

It is hoped that a compromise can be reached and that the fine service rendered in the past by Queen's own radio station will be available once again.

On Legs

There was a time when a man's legs, if not generally regarded as things of beauty, were at least given some dignified sartorial attention. But with the rise of women to an inverted inferiority and the steady decrease in the length of the skirt, the gaze of the vulgar was attracted to what was once forbidden territory alike in word and thought; so that the public became increasingly aware that women not only possessed nether limbs, but remarkably shapely ones into the bargain, while the masculine leg dwindled in esteem until it was finally buried beneath wide baggy trousers.

Against this condition there has been little protest. At one time it seemed as if the lower limbs of the stronger sex were doomed to an unnatural oblivion. But fortunately the recent fashionable reaction against short skirts has brought with it promise of better things, and it is possible that last Saturday's rugby game will do a great deal to restore the masculine leg to some of its former glory.

The parade of the Arts freshmen in their crimson petticoats was a heartening spectacle to those who had relinquished all hope of seeing again the leg of man proudly displayed for popular approval. Even those who had observed with despair the assault of the co-ed upon the citadel of masculinity were encouraged to new faith in the future by this magnificent display of manly indifference to degenerate fashion. While the carping critic may protest that the sight of bandy legs and knock knees is anything but beautiful, the most of us will be content, the next time we remark a pair of trousers advancing towards us, to note with an approbation worthy of Mrs. Mountstuart—"He has a leg!"

WITH OTHER EDITORS

A Way Of Life

In good times, when big business men went about seeking technicians and complaining that colleges and universities turned out too few of them, technical courses became the "rage" in the institutions of higher learning throughout the land. Professors of English, Philosophy and the other arts who presumed to complain were laughed down. They had nothing more to do but act as voices crying in the wilderness.

Now, thinks Dr. Raymond Walters, former dean of Swarthmore college, this year beginning his first term as president of the University of Cincinnati, depression will start colleges again teaching students how to occupy their idle time, of which they will have plenty in the next few years.

"The first function of a university," he admits, "is to prepare students for the work of life. A second function of higher learning is training for the leisure of life.

"Perhaps the greatest problem facing our century is that of enforced leisure and unemployment.

"Our great economic system is on trial, just as every preceding system was on trial. Its problems cannot be solved in a Pollyana recipe that all things will work out well if simply given time. I would suggest for this problem of enforced idleness a definite program of intelligent work.

"Reading should be regarded as a game, and writing can be done if one feels like it. Many persons are turning to writing, and one authentic sign of a nation's becoming intellectual is a luxuriant crop of amateur writers."

Dr. Raymond's outlook is indicative of the changing view-point of educators all over the nation who are realizing that it is the business of the university to point out to modern students a way of life, rather than a way to make a living.—Southern California Daily Trojan.

Guidance

"Too late to change; what can I do about it?"—thus mourns the student who eventually awakens to the sad realization that his subjects are not fitted to his capabilities or ambitions, that he should have taken some other course to prepare for the life-work desired. The occurrence is not uncommon. Why? Because the average high school graduate gathers a hazy notion by reading through a university calendar, finally selecting a course of which he knows very little.

The remedy? Perhaps not a cure, but at least an amelioration, would be to have lectures embodying the mental and physical requirements, the more important phases of preparation, and the immediate and ultimate possibilities of prominent life endeavours. These lectures could be ably presented by professors or men experienced in the particular lines, giving warning of the rough spots on the road as well as depicting the usual rosy picture. The ideal time would be previous to matriculation; failing this, the fact that practically all the first year courses are the same adds another year in which to save round pegs from trying to fill square niches in life.

Such work is being carried out by some of the Technical and Vocational Schools under the programmes of Vocational Guidance—might not the university do the same?

—(The Brunswickan).

Official Notices

Physical Examinations

All students at the University for the first time must have a physical examination. Appointments for men are made at the Registrar's office. Women students should consult Miss Ethelwynne Murphy.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

Khaki University and Y.M.C.A. Memorial Scholarships.

The University has funds for Scholarships for the sons and daughters of returned men who were in active service during the Great War. The applications for these Scholarships should be in the hands of the Registrar by October 15.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

The Carton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Carton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

Half-Holiday

Interfaculty Track and Field Meet

As the afternoon of Thursday, October 13th, is the date set for the Annual Interfaculty Track and Field Meet, no classes will be held after 12 o'clock on that day.

Auditor: Now let's see your pink slips.

Filing Clerk (fem.): Sir.

She: What would you do if I should cry?

He: I'd hang out a sign, "Wet Paint."

"Holy Gee Pop," said Clarence, "first I saw a lady animal trainer—and then I saw her dancing bear."

Customer: I'd like to see some good second-hand cars.

Salesman: So would I.

Cold facts...

A cigarette is no better than the tobacco that goes into it. That's why the makers of Turrets use only choice Golden Virginia tobacco. It explains why Turrets are so smooth, so mild, so cool, so full of smoking enjoyment . . . why, for years, there have been more Turrets smoked in Canada than any other Virginia cigarette.

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS !
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

An Observation of the Observatory

Perhaps no building in our university is so little known as that smallest one, the observatory. Situated in the right corner of the lower campus and entirely distant from the main group of university buildings, it enjoys unique aloofness and so seldom comes under the gaze of the student. Even the most inquiring freshman seldom makes queries concerning its origin and use, and the average upper-classman has probably forgotten that it exists. That it is a quaint spot we know and the story of how it first came into existence, and how it has been changed since the original erection is one of the most delightfully interesting histories enjoyed by any structure on the campus.

Nearly seventy-five years ago, in 1854, the intense interest shown by Kingstonians in the annular eclipse of the sun seems to have been the impulse towards the erection of the observatory. The location most widely advocated at the time was the City Park, and so one year later a special committee was appointed by the city for the express purpose of attending to the details of the erection at that spot.

As a result of the untiring efforts of Lieut.-Col. Baron de Rottenherg, Professor Williamson, Judge Burrows, and Doctor Yates an equatorial telescope of 6¼ inch objective was secured and set up in a small wooden tower. The entire project at the time cost but eight-hundred dollars.

Events in the history of the observatory then followed in rapid succession. The application for an annual government grant of five-hundred dollars was successful and with this aid a brick structure was erected to replace the wooden one. Some twenty years later the equipment was moved to the university and placed in a wood building just west of where Carruthers Hall now stands. At the erection of Fleming Hall it was necessary to store the equipment for nine years until it was at last placed in its present location.

The present observatory is a great advance and it consists of three small rooms; the computing room which houses the mean time and piderial clocks (the instruments that change the time we know to that used by the astronomer in his calculations), and the chronograph which records the observations and the time at which they are taken, the transit room where the three and a half inch transit by which time determinations are made is located, and the equatorial room. In this portion of the building, the most interesting of the three, is the six and a quarter inch equatorial telescope which is mounted on a driving clock. The dome, which is the ceiling of this room revolves easily and thus the observer can view any portion of the heavens to which he wishes to give his attention.

The observatory is as useful as interesting and proves to be unestimable aid to the student of astronomy.

Interfaculty Track Meet Will Be Held Tomorrow

The Interfaculty Track Meet will take place Thursday afternoon in Richardson Stadium. So far the entries are very few, but it is hoped that the number will increase before Thursday. One way to assure keen competition in the various events is to turn out and give the participants plenty of encouragement. Thursday afternoon is a holiday for all.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Queen's Journal,
Queen's University,
Kingston, Ontario.

Dear Editor:

Recently there appeared in your worthy paper an article "On Freshman," by one who, instead of coming into the open with his sarcastic remarks about freshmen, hides himself under the initials H. J. H. Show us H.J.H. and we'll show you a mighty poor specimen of a person, who considers himself one of these cocky "my-feet-smell" upperclassmen.

We are newcomers to this venerable college. We came here not because we were invited, (possibly your dear friend H.J.H. was) but because we consider Queen's the ideal place to get an education. Possibly H.J.H. was not welcomed when he entered college, but fortunately this has not been our lot. Every upperclassman (this does not include H.J.H.) we have met has extended to us a hearty welcome. On our first arrival in Kingston, some three hundred miles from home, the first student whom we met was a sophomore. Perhaps we looked green, but as soon as he learned we were freshmen he went out of his way to show us the college grounds. Perchance we get a little homesick, such a manly figure as H.J.H. would never have such an experience, but do we come and cry on your shoulders?

Freshmen may make a very interesting study, we will perhaps observe that next fall, but according to the ethics which we have been taught, it is considered very poor manners to remark upon a person's appearance. His face, his clothes and his general bearing are his own personal business.

Unfortunately there are some among us who need taking down a peg. That is what initiation is for, and evidently our friend who professes to be such an observer of Freshmen did not get enough of it. We think that the majority of freshmen this year are not radically different from the incoming classes of other years. Our opinion of Queen's so far has been very favourable; we have been welcomed by all educated sophs, juniors, or seniors whom we have encountered, and we hope it will not be our misfortune to meet many of the H.J.H. type.

The article by H.J.H. is enough to make any graduate of Queen's turn over in his bed, wondering what kind of students are attending Dear Old Alma Mater now anyway.

Yours very truly,

JOHN HAYSEED,
SILAS HOHANDLE.

Buffalo University Magazine Banned

Buffalo, (I.P.) — Publication of "The Bison," undergraduate publication of the University of Buffalo, has been banned by the students' activities committee because of alleged slanderous statements and jokes, it was announced today.

Dr. A. Bertram Lennon, chairman of the committee, charged that the magazine had printed statements and jokes reflecting on the character of several students and campus organizations.

The Bison was severely criticized a year ago and suspension threatened when several jokes printed in the magazine had received nation-wide publicity over a radio network.

Present Order Has Served Well In Past

"The competitive order has served us well despite its defects and we should explore all its possibilities before we reject it in favor of a different system," declared Professor Knox in an address delivered at the Arts' Society meeting yesterday afternoon.

Stressing the value that should be attached to the period of university training, the speaker, in his preliminary remarks, said that this period in many respects is one of the most interesting and important in a man's life, for during this period of exemption from the necessity of earning a living the student has opportunity not only to absorb what is commonly known as an education, but to develop a spirit of enquiry towards life and its problems, notable among which today is the evolution of the economic order.

In speaking of economic planning Prof. Knox showed that it was no new thing; that on the contrary Economic history may be regarded as the story of a struggle between two opposed ideas, regimentation or strict organization on the one hand, and freedom of enterprise on the other. The former was in the ascendant in seventeenth century England; but in the following century a reaction occurred in favor of an effort to improve economic conditions by giving greater freedom to competition. The influence of Adam Smith, who believed that there is a natural social and economic order and that order is liberty, was of considerable importance in gaining acceptance for the dogma that men left to pursue their own interests will advance the welfare of society, even though they do it unintentionally; and so the monopolistic idea was replaced by the concept that men should be given full and free opportunity for competitive profit making. "This last," Prof. Knox stated, "has improved economic conditions far better than the other could." But notice that free trade was adopted as the economic order because the manufacturers wanted it.

The spread of this system to the continent of Europe was checked after 1875, when the rise of tariffs was symptomatic of a conscious attempt at national planning by control of economic production and intercourse. This system of government planning was to be seen as an important factor in such diverse events as the partition of Africa, the opening up of the Orient, and even in the Great War.

After 1918 the first attempt at economic recovery, by means of giving greater freedom to trade, failed as a result of current depression and the general temper of the nations.

The second effort, as Sir Arthur Salter has pointed out, aims at recovery by planning. But who is to make the plans? It is easy to answer, "those who run the country," but, in the last resort, who do run the country, the government, the civil service, the farmers or the business men? Whatever the answer to this last question may be, Professor Knox remarked that the people most likely to be responsible for drawing up such plans as are often advocated today are the business men, and in that event Canada will be faced with the danger of business interests running the country, as they are now trying to do in the U.S.A. There, a wide agitation against the Trust Laws is being promoted in the hope of a monopolistic order; against such a system economists are struggling, "but I believe," Prof. Knox declared, "that they are fighting a losing battle."

The speaker added a word of warning. Whatever the future may bring, he said, we should go slowly today, and refuse to be hurried into a so-called planned economy before we have first exhausted the possibilities of the present competitive system, which, with all its shortcomings, has served us so well.

After his speech Prof. Knox was given a great ovation on behalf of the society. Mr. Warrington addressed a few words of thanks to the speaker.

The business of the meeting also included a resolution to send a telegram of condolence to the bereaved parents of the late Mr. Jack Stewart, a suggestion that it might be possible to finance the freshman reception by private subscription, and a discussion of the advantages of holding the Arts Formal before Christmas.

Freshmen Indignant At Roosters' Early Crowing

Cambridge, Mass. (I.P.)—Indignant freshmen in the south section of Harvard's yard are planning a protest to the college authorities. The difficulty revolves around the question as to whether or not roosters are entitled to crow in the yard at four a.m., when all good Harvard boys should be asleep.

Soundly sleeping freshmen were aroused before dawn the other morning by a vigorous racket that seemed quite out of place in a college dormitory. The noises, it developed, came from roosters forming part of a small menagerie kept in Boylston Hall for physchological tests by Dr. Berie Hugh Elliott, who is studying the reactions of roosters after eating.

Resident of adjoining dormitories say if Dr. Elliott wants to make some startling discoveries he should be on hand to study the reachions of freshmen when they're awakened at four a.m.

Inasmuch as roosters don't have to burn midnight oil pouring over lessons assigned by Harvard professors, freshmen consider the situation very unjust and threaten to get an injunction, if necessary, to prevent further crowing before nine a.m.

Harvard authorities were confident the matter would be smoothed out to the satisfaction of both roosters and students.

The difficulty came just when the students were finally assured that a cow would not be kept in the Harvard yard. For years Professor Charles Townsend Copeland has kept freshmen on a very jagged edge because of the privilege granted him by Harvard law for keeping a cow in the yard. "Copey" never exercised his right, but the threat of that cow hung over the heads of yard residents until the professor moved to a Cambridge apartment.

FROM OTHER CAMPUSES

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY—All eight football games scheduled this season are home games.

SMITH COLLEGE—Courses in politics will be inaugurated this semester for women who wish to engage in civic work after graduation.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—A professor of astronomy at the University has invented a new instrument, the only one of its kind in the world, which will measure the smallest possible amounts of electric energy sent earthward by the stars.

COMING EVENTS

Today:

Wed. Oct. 12:

4.15p.m.—Arts '34 meeting
Room 101
New Arts Bldg.

4.30p.m.—Debating Union Meeting
Room 201
New Arts Bldg.

7.30p.m.—A.M.S. Nomination meeting
Grant Hall.

Thurs. Oct. 13:

1.15p.m.—Interfaculty Track Meeting
Richardson Stadium

4.30p.m.—Levana Glee Club
Red Room.

7.30 p.m.—Dramatic Guild Meeting, Red Room, Kingston Hall.

A girl on horseback rode into Baton Rouge one day last week driving nine head of cattle before her. She drove them into the campus of Louisiana State university and turned them over to the authorities. President James Monroe Smith of the university had announced that farm produce would be accepted in lieu of cash for tuition. She was Elena Percy, 17, of West Feliciana parish. She wanted to be a freshette. She was accepted.

"She was a maiden of twenty summers and how many winters?"

None! She lived in California."

There's Pep in the Clothes you get at TWEDDELL'S

College men like the snap to Tweddell Clothes. There is something about the fit and workmanship of them that makes them distinctive in any group of men. One glance in our windows will explain exactly what we mean.

Our New Fall Suits and Topcoats are now in stock . . . . a wide assortment is ready for your selection. When you buy at Tweddell's you have the assurance of style correctness and fabric soundness at moderate cost. Our prices are always low . . . . so low that they fit in nicely with college allowances.

College Sweaters

A pure wool tricolor sweater coat is about as serviceable an article as any student can own. We have an unusually attractive range of new ones on display—all soft, warm wools and well made sweaters. Exceptionally good values.

TWEDDELL'S

137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Which reminds me

Even Science men have to admit that the Arts Sophs left the Sophs of the other faculties holding the baby on Saturday. When the Arts freshmen appeared in their natty negligée at the game they caused a terrific sensation. The only trouble was that they seemed to make the blues see red!

RIMES FOR THE TIMES

The Freshman (with apologies to Tennyson).
Who would be
A Freshman nert,
Walking around,
Stalking around,
Unhappily
In a crimson skirt,
The rugby ground?

Music Teacher to Choral Student: Why don't you practice what you screech?

BARGAIN FOR FRESHMAN

For sale: One red petticoat. Apply Ban Righ Hall. (Advt.)

PROVERBS FOR TO-DAY

A roving horse gathers no feathers.

THE DISCOVERY OF THE FRESHMAN

A sketch in three scenes.

Scene I.—Freshman appears in Union in conspicuous white flannel pants.

II.—Sophs go into a huddle round freshman.

III.—(Censored—Ed.)

—HAYWIRE.

FOR RENT

A number of rooms, double and single, with a private bathroom, Open fire-place and hot-water heating. Comfortably furnished. Would suit a group of men or will rent separately. Board if desired.
Phone 488
123 King St. E., Cor. of West St.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Newspaper Cures

The daily press lives the sensational with a love deeprooted in the instinct for self preservation. Newspaper owners and editors are inbued with the idea that only exciting material will keep them in the forefront of the race for circulation, and the science of medicine contributes its little to the front page. Therefore, wonderful new discoveries, especially in the field of cancer research, are heralded periodically, are reported with variations and enhancements by all papers, and then are forgotten. The eternal hopefulness of trusting mankind assures each new report a joyful reception, and the petering out of each one seems, strangely enough, to excite no rancour, perhaps because contradictory or modifying reports are never given prominence. The illusion is allowed to fade slowly and leaves no sense of sudden loss.

Scientists, and especially medical scientists, are not dependent upon such publicity for the dissemination of new knowledge. The widespread organization of practitioners and teachers brings the advantages of any real discovery to all parts of the world with sufficient rapidity. Frequently, indeed, the benefits of research are spread by such channels before cautious scientists are willing to give to the press a report of positive success, or perhaps, before the press has realized that the discovery is important news.

But since scientists are in the main completely human creatures, the need of applause evoked by the newspaper report is probably in all likelihood, readily accepted. While histories of medicine preserve the names of the great men, to the profession the discovery is the thing, and its author or authors much less important. Millions boast a knowledge of bacteriology, while entertaining only hazy ideas of the personal achievements of Koch, Pasteur, and those who followed them. Newspapers assure the discoverer of general recognition, by his contemporaries at least.

The progress of science must seem regrettably slow to the newspaper reader. Successes only are chronicled and the man in the street may easily miss the fact that each grain of truth is the result of seemingly endless labour, in the cultivation of stony ground, and the winnowing of the resulting ocean of chaff.

Newspapers could hardly expect to increase circulation by descriptions of hard work: the majority of their readers is already painfully conversant with that subject. So that editors pursue a sound business policy in observing only results, and enhancing these to report a sensational leap forward, when only another slow step has been accomplished.

Rickets in Egypt

Recent X-ray examinations of mummies have resulted in the discovery that contemporaries of Cleopatra, and perhaps the great Queen herself, suffered from rickets. It may seem strange that, in a land of overabundant sunshine, rickets should appear in members of the classes wealthy enough to bear the high expenses of mumification, and therefore to command the best in diet during life. The case is probably a parallel one to that of India, where the children of the upper classes are much more liable to contract the disease than those of poor parentage. Poor children there spend much of their waking time in the sun, whilst the supposedly more fortunate are secluded indoors.

Cleopatra showed no sign of malformation of bone in later life, unless the movies have grossly misrepresented her, but too often a case of rickets in infancy results in weakness and deformity which handicap the victim in adult life.

While it may seem to be a labouring of a subject already beaten to a pulp, one more pointing out of the importance of ultra violet radiation can do no harm. Far better a beautiful complexion shaded by tan than beautiful knees bowing apart.

Bass Drum Theft Stirs Rugby Fans

"What has become of the Queen's Drum?" The cry arose from thousands, (yes, literally) of hoarse, cracked throats after the tumult of the Queen's-Varsity game. If asked for an answer to something simple like the "Where are the snows of yesteryear" stuff, we'd have been in a position to answer that it smelled like snow on Tuesday anyway. Now, we are forced to admit with many embarrassed snorts and youthful blushes that we were rather posed by questions about drums and things.

In spite of the fact that our voice had practically deserted us after the roars we emitted from time to time throughout the game and the Thanksgiving celebrations (for what?) we assembled our faculties in one mible, energetic move and rushed, in true journalistic style for the nearest phone or information bureau. We croaked several series of numbers at an unsympathetic Central without much result. Our quarry was finally brought to earth in the Arts Building. We juggled an infinite number of "Q's and A's" with Don Kirkland, the leader of the Queen's Band—with certain results which we will herewith recount for you (as Cicero or someone said).

Everyone knows, of course, of the rumour that the Queen's Drum was stolen on Saturday after the game. Well, confidential-like, don't you believe a word of it—at least not all of it. The old Queen drum did disappear into the ranks of the Kiltie Band a year or two ago. The old relic had seen service in the Great War as many of the other drums around Kingston and as Don confided in us, "of course the old Queen's Drum wasn't really—er, uh.—well—much of a drum anyway."

We must realize that "on account of" the males of Queen's are mostly dug up from the criminal classes, no one in their right mind would lend the Band a drum without taking a few precautions. Consequently, the particularly young and innocent-looking "Freshman" noticed playing the role of drummer on Saturday is none other than a P.W.O.R. importation who came along to see that the borrowed P.W.O.R. drum received it's just due and proper care. The kettle-drummer noticed on Saturday is also "borrowed-goods."

The old war-veteran used by the Band before the Kilties got it had seen some pretty ripe tomatoes and cabbages in its day and as the financial situation is none too rosy at present, the means of making booming noises is borrowed from some of the military units of Kingston for every public appearance.

Be it known to all that the Queen's University Band—representing part of that remarkable "masculine element" of our Alma Mater (ladies, and gentlemen!) is just as hard up at present as all the other organizations on the Campus. A drive is being contemplated to raise the price of a few improvements in equipment and uniforms. We think (and it's a pure unbiased opinion at that) that it wouldn't hurt Queen's students to have a few monetary teeth (rather an out-of-the-way expression, what?) pulled in order to make our band something of which to be proud. Don't get the wild idea that we were put up to making an appeal for help by anyone in the band. This particular request is made purely on our own hook and we'll take the blame for it. We have good musicians, good music, but not the wherewithal to procure a good appearance. Let's give the band a little support in a material way. Our band gets no grant from the University and no outside help. They work under the most difficul circumstances. They need support. We must give it to them.

She was only an astronomer's daughter but my stars, what a heavenly body!

NOTICE

Medical students in all years are invited to contribute to the Campuscope. Reporters should be appointed. Articles of interest are assured space, and news items immediate publication. This is your own part of the Journal. Support it. —Campuscope Editor.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Queen's Journal.

Sir,—Queen's University has a well earned reputation for its high quality of service to extra-mural students. As a result these students probably form a larger proportion of its enrollment than in any other institution of learning in Canada, and many now enrolled for extra-mural work have taken part of their course as extra-mural students. What then is the status of these men during their first year within the walls? Are they Freshmen or Sophomores?

They cannot be admitted as Sophs because of their lack of familiarity with intra-mural conditions, institutions, and activities. Furthermore it is difficult, if not impossible, for them to fit into the circle of friendships formed during previous years.

They are thus forced to find a place amongst the Freshmen which probably is no more congenial to them than it is desirable from the Frosh's point of view. It is mutually unsatisfactory for various reasons.

Differences in age and experiences of life compel differences in view points and interests. As a result, extra-mural men feel bored and out of place at Freshmen's activities, and are, in their eyes, on a par with chaperone or mother-in-law—a skeleton at the feast. To them he is as unnecessary and undesirable as a fifth wheel, especially since the elimination of physical initiation reduces the importance of numbers.

Neither Frosh nor Soph., neither fish, flesh nor good red herring! Where does he fit in?

We would suggest as a remedy that the Freshmen exclude all former Extra-Mural men from their organizations, except any who desire and apply for admission, and that extra-mural students in attendance form an organization of their own. This, it seems, would be more satisfactory to all concerned. It would leave the Freshmen unhampered to develop their own ideas and would relieve the Extra-Mural student of his present anomalous position.

Student opinion would be welcome.

—Extra-Mural.

Ian Panton Led Astray By Mysterious Bottle

Ian Panton, Sc. '34, was the victim of an awkard but amusing accident at Pine Lodge last Monday, when he overturned his canoe and had to swim some three hundred yards to land.

Panton, who is still recovering from an arm broken during the vacation, noticed a bottle floating in the waters of Lake Ontario and paddled out towards it. Having slightly overshot the mark he turned the canoe and found that he had now lost sight of the bottle whereupon he stood up to discover its whereabouts. Unhappily the wind and water were conspiring against him and no sooner did a wave strike the canoe than the boat overturned and poor Ian was up to his neck in cold water, some quarter of a mile from shore and about three hundred yards from a small island. Handicapped by his damaged arm he managed to swim to land pushing the canoe in front of him, and scornfully rejected an offer of rescue from a row boat that came to his help. In the struggle the bottle was forgotten. It is understood that Ian has since expressed himself forcibly on the subject of the kind of people who through bottles into the sea to lead the unsuspecting to a watery grief.

Judge: Gentlemen of the Jury have you come to a decision?

Foreman: We have, your honor, the jury are all of the same mind—temporarily insane.

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 76 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

ROY-YORK CAFE
Announces the inauguration of new policies with much
LOWER PRICES—Effective Immediately
Reduced prices on all a la carte servings. You can now have high quality food for less than what you pay for ordinary elsewhere. This reduction affects all orders, large or small.
A complete change of menu for every meal. Dinner and supper served on the main floor for 55c. This price covers a complete, satisfactory meal such as has made thousands of "come-backs" for the Roy-York Cafe.
For the business man we offer, starting September 20th, a thirty-five cent lunch—served on second floor.
For the Student our meal tickets at $4.25 for 14 meals, saves you money and purchases the very best food.
Music at all hours—Dancing upstairs any evening except Saturday—minimum charge 25c., Saturday 35c., including refreshments as ordered.
We cordially invite you to inspect any time our clean kitchens where our delicious tasting food is prepared. Cleanliness is our major rule at all times.
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

MOVIE CRAZY

with

Harold Lloyd, Constance Cummings and others

Harold is back after an extended absence from the screen. This time he's Movie Crazy. Crazy movie would just about sum up this late effort of this he-spectacled knight of the old order. The story had possibilities, but someone missed up sadly. The edition is nothing but a series of situations linked together with slapstick of pre-talkie vintage.

For slightly more than one hour you are shown Harold losing his shoe. Harold getting soaked by a torrential rain. Harold helping a pretty girl to put up the top of her car. Harold upsetting a peanut vendor's cart. Harold falling over an actor at the Station. Harold smashing the plate glass windows in the movie mogul's office. Harold putting on the wrong dinner jacket. Harold pulling rabbits, white rats and pigeons from his coat.

The better parts of the picture are the love scenes between Harold and Constance Cummings. One of the particularly amusing spots takes place when Harold kisses Constance for the first time. Says Harold after breaking the clinch: "Are we engaged?"

An old wizened cyclist draws the biggest laugh of the programme. When asked by a Movietone man to what he attributed his sound health and advanced years, he replied, "Early to bed, no smoking and no monkey business."

AT THE TIVOLI

UNASHAMED

with

Helen Twelvetrees, Robert Young, Lewis Stone and John Miljan

Unashamed is another film which emphasizes one of Hollywood's glaring faults. I refer to lack of restraint. This element, always so necessary in drama that is authentic, is usually discarded in favor of less subtle media. As a result, we are deluged with gilt-edged emotion and sentiment so thickly spread as to be often distasteful.

Unashamed is of that synthetic nature. To its credit, however, this film includes a court-room scene that is thoroughly interesting and often highly ingenious. Still, Mr. Bayard Veillier has been doing that sort of thing for some time now, and one is entitled to expect good court-room scenes from him. (You remember his Trial of Mary Dugan). But in the process of leading up to this piece de resistance and in that of backing away from it, the whole effect is dismal.

Miss Twelvetrees is not an actress of any high distinction, but she is pleasing and often capable. She was carrying the difficult role of the picture, and on the whole came off very creditably. Her voice is sometimes jarring when she leaves her limited dramatic range, vocally speaking, to have a try at time-worn histrionics. But occasionally she will delight you with a gesture that could not be more apt.

Lewis Stone and John Milijan are convincing as the two lawyers. Robert Young is often disconcerting in his would-be tense moments by so forcibly reminding you of a bull-frog that you listen to the sound effects for a croak or two.

Jean Hersholt, usually a reliable character actor, has an unsympathic role as a half-witted and doddering father with a blind complex for his only son.

If laurels are at all indicated, they belong to Helen Twelvetrees, who, despite a few limitations, will bear watching as a pleasing actress, at least. No nosegays to the attractions preceding the feature. These were dull and in bad taste, not deviating thereby from the general rule. A C plus to Unashamed.

PRINTING

FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.

The JACKSON PRESS

173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO

FRANK ROBBS

SIX CHAIRS — NO WAITING

185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer

SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS

180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110

Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into — they're full of travel satisfaction.

SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP

Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS

FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local and Long Distance Ambulance

Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.

230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Book Chats

By R.M.

In the preface of a splendid collection of Harper prize short stories (1925) I came across a reference to Merrill Denison, one of our own writers. Mr. Denison received honourable mention for his story, "The Weather Breeder" in Harpers nation-wide short story contest. Three thousand manuscripts were submitted. Professor Bliss Perry, Meredith Nicholson, Hoosier Novelist, and Zona Gale author of Miss Lulu Bett, were the judges.

Merrill Denison has written numerous plays depicting frontier life in Canada. In 1931 he did a series of radio plays for the C.N.R. which were broadcast for twenty-five weeks through a coast-to-coast network. As a result of Mr. Denison's success in this field he has been chosen to do an American historical series entitled "Great Moments in History." The first one "Columbus" went on the air Sunday, Oct. 2nd, over the N.B.C. hook-up through station WJZ. Merrill Denison attained recognition with a nativity play at the same studio last Christmas. More recently his "Jack and Jill" was put on with noteworthy success.

* * *

This column started out with mention of a short story contest that brings to mind an article I read in The Bookman some months ago by Mr. de V. Payen-Payne. He asks the question: Does Great Britain get a square deal in the awarding of the £8,000 Nobel Prize for literature? This prize is awarded by the Royal Academy of Sweden. It votes on the names submitted by the literary academy of each country. This is quite a task as each nation may submit three.

A check-up of the prize winners since the first award in 1901 reveals the fact that only one Englishman has been mentioned. Of the four authors in the British Empire two are Irish (Shaw and Yeats), and one is Indian (Tagore). To France the honor has fallen five times (Sully Prudhomme, Mistral, Romain Rolland, Anatole France and Bergson). Germany's donees include, (Mommsen Eucken, Paul Heyse, Hauptmann and Thomas Mann). Belgium has triumphed once, (Maeterlinck) and Switzerland once (Spitteler). Norway has received the Nobel Prize three times — (Bjornson, Knut-Hamsun, and Undset). Denmark twice (Djrdlerup and Pontoppidup); Sweden thrice (Lagerloff, Heidenstam and Karlseldt). Italy twice (Carducci and Deledda), Spain—(Echeyaray and Benevante), Poland—(Sienkiewicz and Reymont), and the United States has received the prize once (Sinclair Lewis).

If you have had the ambition to read this far, I should like to ask: How is it that England has fallen so far behind France with five recipients, Germany with four, and Norway, Sweden, Denmark with three. Isn't English literature on a par with that of other countries? There's only one answer to that—yes. Mr. Payen-Payne thinks the fault may lie with the British Academy for not recommending the right names. Among others Swinburne, Meredith and Hardy, giants in English letters, were over-looked. And there are authors still living quite worthy of the Nobel Prize.

* * *

One of the most prolific of contemporary English authors is Hugh Walpole. He has completed a series of three novels covering a period of 200 years in English History. "The Fortress" has just appeared. It was preceded by "Rogue Heries" and "Judith Paris." But strange as it may seem the authors of the best sellers in London this fall are all deceased. Edgar Wallace, who died in Hollywood is represented by "The Steward." Lord Birkenhead's name appears under "Fifty famous Fights in Fact and Fiction." And Arnold Bennett, famed for his "Old Wives' Tale," lives again in "Opinions and Comments". (1911-1931).

World News Briefly

The whole of the Barga region (between Manchukuo and the Soviet Union) and the area along the Chinese Eastern R.R., west of the Nonni R., has fallen into the hands of Chinese rebels.

Japanese authorities re-iterate that they will brook no interference from the League or others, in this part of Manchuria.

* * *

"The dollar's integrity will be maintained," declared Premier Bennett before parliament yesterday in response to doubting Thomases.

* * *

The four-power conference to have been held in Geneva is off.

Instead Premier Herriot of France will confer with Ramsay MacDonald in London concerning the Franco-German disarmament dispute.

* * *

Samuel Insull has been arrested in Athens.

Mr. Insull was indicted last week by a Grand Jury for larceny and embezzlement amounting to $514,-943.74.

Action is being taken by two subsidiaries of Middle West Utilities of which Mr. Insull was president.

* * *

The Sinn Feiners and the Irish Extremist Republican Convention went on record Sunday as being opposed to recognition of the Irish Free State parliament.

In spite of the abolishment of the oath of allegiance they prefer the Republican Dail set up in 1929.

* * *

Ontario's senior amateur Lacrosse title was decided yesterday when the historic Orangeville "Dufferins" were defeated by Toronto "Mimicos."

Despite Canada's poor showing in Lacrosse at the Olympics, it is heartening to know that 1,600 people turned out to see this brilliant demonstration of Canada's national game.

GRINHAM'S

FOR BOOKS

Drop in and Browse Around Any Time

3 Doors above the Capitol

SINGLE BED-ROOM FOR MAN

Warm and Bright

35 Clergy St. Phone 2604-m

MUSIC

It is a pleasure to hear drawing room music played where it should be played in a drawing room. Concert Halls seem too large for trios or even string quartettes. And dinner music on the radio usually makes me say with Horace "I hate the Trios boy." But Dr. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Agnew gave us a real treat They played Beethoven's C Sharp Minor Trio. Dr. Gibson with his usual sympathy for the uninitiate told us a little about the music. The first movement was in the Sonata form, planned exactly as a Sonata or a Symphony. The second was an Andante with variations. The third modelled on the Minuets of Haydn. Beethoven called the Scherzo or jest. The composer was to bring the Scherzo to perfection in the rollicking Third Movement of the Fifth Symphony.

And then they played. I had never heard the piece before. But I noticed several things. The piano blended beautifully. (Usually in trios the piano drowns the strings). In one of the runs in the treble the keys sounded just like wind instruments, like French Horns. There was one place where the violin and cello frolicked about in pizzicatos. And over and over again the deep undertone of the 'cello.

Dr. Gibson also played two studies by Chopin. And incidentally we learned from him a bit about Chopin. Chopin was a very careless composer as far as form of manuscript was concerned. He never practiced his own compositions. Before a concert he would spend his time playing Bach instead. His manuscripts suffered at the hands of later editors. In fact, it is only in the Sterling Collection which has recently been published that we are able to see the real writing of Chopin.

And the real Chopin has best been revealed in the Biography by his close friend of Paris days, Sir Chas. Halte. Liszt in his life observed the true qualities of Chopin by his fantastic rhapsodies. Chopin was passionately loved by his friends; indeed one of them held him in his arms as he lay dying, racked with consumption. A Polish artist friend has left us a sketch which shows the poet in Chopin better than biographies But he also reveals himself in his music, his own modest self. "For," said Chopin, "I cannot create a new school since I do not know the old. But I know my tone poems have some individuality and I always strive to advance." But if his music embodies his Self, it also embodies by its art the spirit of Poland, the land of his birth.

The first study Dr. Gibson played is a most difficult thing; the Doctor said he had been practising it off and on for thirty years. The difficulty lies in the fact that the melody is played in the left hand. The right is subordinate—it has to be as it were an instrument in itself. It starts off with broken chords before the theme is introduced. It is in its entirety a model of shortness and compactness. It reveals the weakness of a Chopin as a composer; for his constructive ability was not equal to his imagination. However in its we see the essentials of Chopin perhaps better than in any other group of his works.

I enjoyed the second study as much if not more than the first because it was, to me, a novice, easier to understand. Schumann likened it to an Aeolian Harp the exquisite melody which flows forth as the piece advances, — well it cannot be described. Often the notes of the left hand seem to have a pleading mournful tone—then they thunder in furious chords and runs. Sometimes the notes of the treble were like "the still small voice," almost inaudible. I liked most the sad chord repeated again and again at the last; to me it was like the title of a mournful Ballad.

The vocal renditions gave pleasing variety to this excellent program. Miss Nesbitt sang several contralto solos. Very stirring was "Still ist die Nacht" and "O Lovely Sheep." Miss Nesbitt also sang a Serenade by Gounod, and "Caro mio ben," an Italian love song. Mrs. Crawford sang "The Violet," set to music by Mozart. The "Mandolin" by Debussy, and "Azra" by Rubenstein. Later we heard sung by Mrs. Crawford a lovely old French Carol—I enjoyed this as well as anything I heard.

Mrs. Agnew gave two really breath taking violin solos. The A Minor and A Major Fantasies of Schumann. Very beautiful they were too.

The next meeting will take place at Mrs. Davoud's on November second. Mrs. Williamson will provide her house for the Group on December the ninth. Fees are only $1.00. Students who love music would do well to profit by this fine program of concerts.

—R.N.

LOST

Belt for tan leather coat on Queen's Crescent or Lower Albert Street. Finder please notify Doris Anderson, Ban Righ Hall.

Science Student (over the phone to Salvation Army): "Do you save bad girls?"

S. A.: "Yes, certainly."

S. S.: "Well, save me two for Saturday night."

Superior Tea Rooms

For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own

"Superior DeLuxe"

Kingston's Finest Ice Cream

204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

"HOW" HAMLIN

"Howie" scored Queen's only major count in Saturday's clash with Varsity.

Varsity Seniors Down Queen's Rugby Squad

Continued from page 1

Queen's in possession. How Hamlin couldn't be stopped on the first down, and five points were chalked up, It was not converted. That made the score read 18 to 5 for Varsity.

Three points were added to the Queen's score in the third via kicks to the deadline by Howie Carter, but they were never close enough to get a bigger score.

As if 18 to 8 wasn't a big enough margin, Varsity kept up the pressure in the final quarter and two placements netted them 6 points to bring their total up to 24, while Queen's, facing the sun and wind could do little.

Varsity tried only two forward passes and completed one for 17 yards, and they also made yards five times through the line. Queen's attempted eight forward passes and did not complete one.

Line-ups:

Queen's:		Varsity:
Glass	Flying Wing	Ferguson
Gorman		Dawson
Carter	Half	Jack Sinclair
Day		Wood
Davis		Richardson
McNichol		Arnup
Davoud		Copp
Carr	Quarter	Jim Sinclair
Dargavel		Miller
Buell	Snap	Hees
Kostuik
Purvis	Inside	Rogers
Hoskings		Boothe
Thoman		Warner
Byrne
Hamlin	Middle	Dewar
Lackey		McQuigge
Conquergood		Laing
Kennedy
Ralph	Outsides	Ellson
Storms		Fitzpatrick
Peever		Gibson
Teskey		Bennett
		Cutler

The calf in a silk stocking has killed many a prodigal son.

Come and breathe sweet nothings in my ear.

I'll have you know this stuff costs five dollars a quart.

Plenty Of Colour At Saturday's Game

Oh Me, they licked us. And right in our own patio too. We don't mind the odd thumping, but this coming onto the property and using us up would take the steam out of any set of pipes.

Honest now that's enough to make any ordinary university curl up and go into hibernation for the winter, isn't it? Sure, but Queen's isn't an ordinary seat of knowledge, and we are not a bit downhearted. One swallow doesn't make a drink, so why should one unexpected loss wreck our championship hopes.

Win or lose, there are many pleasant features about a typical rugby Saturday in Kingston, and last week-end was no exception. Everything that goes into the make up of a zestful football day was on the map. Cars filled with happy fans, sporting Varsity or Queen's colors are bowling along the streets, pretty co-eds selling programmes on the corners. "No thanks Miss I have one." There's a blonde for you. Oh yes where was I? The grads are in town in great numbers and you can spot the glad grins when they see a class member coming up the avenue. That thrilling tenseness is felt everywhere, an unspoken question that blows about on the breezes, "Can we beat them?"

We are in the press box now, and taking a little pre-game peek, to see what's doing. If the opening day against Ottawa was a perfect one, this Varsity visit has surely brought out the very finest brand of Mother Nature's autumn weather. Once again the bleachers will get the benefit of a warm sun, that makes an overcoat feel decidedly uncomfortable. And the fans are already beginning to fill up the choicest seats on the ultra violet side of the gridiron. They know their onions.

The ground looks to be in good shape, after the deluge of the early part of the week. It is not too soft to slow up the sprinters, but just velvety enough to take away most of the shock of a hard tackle. A last minute rolling puts a finishing touch to it.

In the southwest corner a movie concern, is getting its equipment unlimbered, while the crowd slowly files in. Well look at the kids. About three hundred of them, having chiselled a dime out of paw, are caged in behind the picket fence. Wonder how long they'll stay there. A few others, knowing from experience that knot holes never happen in a concrete wall, are galloping around, and if they didn't hop the wall—

Oh yes. The cops are strutting around putting fear into the hearts of all—well the little shavers anyway. And isn't Alfie the berries in his tricolor outfit! The ancient mascot is decked out to perfection and the barbers can do no more. But they don't need to because Alfie is on the bit.

Now the place is filling up fast, the Varsity band, looking very smart, has taken a place on the field and is getting ready to throw around a few sharps and flats. The big stand isn't attracting many of its usual patrons away from the easy chair and magazine today. Never mind we have the real fans out in both stands anyway. You would think though that a meeting of such old enemies as Queen's-Varsity coupled with opening day and beautiful weather would draw them out.

Well will you pipe that parade. The freshettes are following the pipe band, and aren't they cute? They are decked out in tricolotr tams. What's that? Somebody here says the freshettes are getting more beautiful every year.

Following the gals, come the Arts frosh, all equipped with little short red skirts, and showing a large area of bare skin surface below, in fact they are barelegged. Now we'll see what the typical Art frosh has in the way of limbs.

Queen's band is playing down there now, and with all respect to their music, we would like to see them all dressed alike, or have a smaller band. We just cannot help comparing them to Varsity's smart musicians.

All this time the teams have been warming up. What you didn't hear that Queen's cheer? And the folks are yelling better too this year. Of course you know a lot of tonsils have been taken out last summer. Now they are in and the officials are all set. Come on you Tricolor, and here they come, then Varsity and away we go.

Of course the win and loss is old news now, but its worth talking about because there's quite a few games yet to be played and we are going to be in there.

It was quite a shock to the Tricolor fans to see the team taken for such a long ride, and we must hasten to give this Varsity team all the credit in the world. They got going in the final game here last fall and today's squad continued the good work, and they looked even better this game. While Jack Sinclair was the big man of the team, they had good men to help him and Richardson Arnup and Copp played smart football when he was off.

Contrary to expectations, Varsity, with Warren Steven's coaching did not throw the number of forward passes that the fans expected them to. They tried only two and completed one for a gain of about fifteen yards. The thrower ran out to the wing and heaved it sidearm.

While Varsity had an edge on the line play, the difference was not as great as might be thought. They made yards five times, while Queen's moved the sticks only twice. In the early part of the game Varsity seemed much better, hut as the battle progressed, the Tricolor line began to stiffen, and in the last half the Toronto team only made yards twice through the line, and that's not so great.

The big difference between the two teams was plainly in the backfield work, and in Varsity's ability to surprise their opponents with quickly executed moves. One never seemed to know what they would do next and invariably their plays were away before Queen's knew what was happening. Undoubtedly this was possible because of the team play that was built up by reason of the fact that last year's squad were intact to begin this season with.

At any rate Varsity were always on top and Queen's' are the first to hand them the medals—for that game. While Sinclair was the star of the game, and on his performance, one of the finest players in the game, his mates were in there every minute and played good enough football to win almost any game.

And why should we feel badly? The first time our men had played as a team, and with little opportunity to develop that team play so essential to perfection in plays. Individually we have as smart players as any team in the race, and we can be counted upon to play a very much improved brand of football from now on.

We have mentioned the line. It held poorly in the early stages, but got better as the game went on and with an opportunity to work together, future teams will find the going mighty tough. Hamlin and Byrne did some very pretty plunging, and Lackey, Conquerwood and Kennedy were also good.

The wings looked a little bad on a few occasions, but it must be remembered that they had a tough man to bring down in Jack Sinclair. Still they seemed to get up there and then take one side allowing the opposing half to get around them. Glass did some smart tackling as did Gorman and Storms.

The backfield on the whole played very well and will surely improve. The presence of Davoud, proved to be what Queen's have needed since Gilmour departed. He booted well, and was a hard man to corner. Coupled with Day, he tore off several nice runs, and this pair will bear watching. Carter's hoof is as potent as ever and he lifted long spirals into the wind to gain points.

Queen's Rugger Squad May Play R. M. C.

A meeting was held recently with a view to organizing a Rugger Club. The immediate object of this Club is to give opportunity for congenial exercise to the protagonists of the game, while its ultimate end is to train a team to represent Queen's in the Intercollegiate contests.

The attendance at the meeting considering the weather, was fair and the fact that two-thirds of those present had had previous experience was held to be encouraging. Further recruits, however, are still urgently required if any serious practice games are to result. It was therefore decided that each member of the club should canvass among his friends, setting forth the many advantages of membership.

The company further decided that the Athletic Board of Control should be approached regarding the loan of a ball. A suggestion that R.M.C. be asked for a fixture in the near future was welcomed and it was proposed, tentatively, to arrange this match for October 15th. The election of officers was postponed.

The Rugger Club would like to take this opportunity of correcting certain misapprehensions. "Rugger" is not synonymous with "Soccer." This mistaken idea appears to be prevalent. The necessary equipment is inexpensive and in return for the small outlay, good exercise and thrilling sport is guaranteed. It is earnestly hoped, in view of the aims of the club, that those Queen's students who are in any way interested will get in touch immediately with K. C. Ruffman, 2022-J.

Passer by: "What! Digging up this street again?"

Foreman: "Sure, the contractor used to be a surgeon and it seems that three steam shovels are missing."

I hear your husband is doing hair raising fiction nowadays.

Yes; he's writing scalp treatment ads.

Juniors Won Game With R.M.C. 13 to 0

One bright spot in Queen's gridiron activities over the week-end remains from the 13 to 0 victory of the Juniors over R.M.C. The Intermediates were taken into camp with a score of 32 to 1 for R.M.C.

Johnny Wing, Gananoque product, was responsible for 7 out of the 13 points scored in the Junior game. But the entire team must be given credit for a smart performance. The tackling of Sheppard and Bruce was of a high calibre. Incidentally, Sheppard was responsible for a touch-down in the last quarter when he fell on a fumbled ball.

The Cadets were certainly effective against the Intermediates, crashing through the line at will, and out-kicking the Tricolor in the early stages. Irvin for R.M.C. was the outstanding booter. Smith and Blanchard both earned touches.

The backfield and line work of the visitors combined to give them a decisive victory.

Mother: Where do bad little girls go?

Betty: Most everywhere.

FORWARD PASSES

They didn't put any chocolate on that 24 to 8 pill did they? And was it ever bitter?

* * * * * *

At McGill the forward pass is on the throne to-night. It gave them a touchdown and turned defeat into victory. The Red end, Griffith, ran 95 yards to score, after taking a throw from Krukowski.

* * * * * *

It does look as if the home teams will win their games from now on. That would mean Queen's would have to beat Varsity in Toronto.

* * * * * *

A snarling Tiger pack left the remains of an Argo team on the field at Toronto, whipping them 15 to 2. And note the Montreal champions had to put on all steam to beat Ottawa 13 to 12. Can you figure that out?

* * * * * *

The Interfaculty Track and Field Meet tomorrow is worth seeing. Let's look over our material for the Intercollegiate meet in Toronto on Oct. 21st.

* * * * * *

Team play is everything. And when good men develop it they get somewhere.

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

IF IT'S SPORTING GOODS — WE HAVE IT
A. G. SPALDING & BROS.
TOBACCOS, MAGAZINES and SUNDRIES
AT
WALLIE CUSICK'S
COLLEGE INN CIGAR STORE
Telephone 1200

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

WE WELCOME YOU TO KINGSTON
And would appreciate being able to include you among the hundreds of Graduates and Undergraduates of Queen's University it has been our pleasure to serve.
Queen's Sweaters and Sweater Coats
Queen's Blazers
Savile Row Suits and Topcoats
Makers of Queen's Gowns and Hoods
VanHorne's
Men's Shop
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

"Kingston Knows Furs Best"
MILLS

FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
70 PRINCESS ST.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

CHEQUES CASHED HERE
M. R. McColl
Prescription Druggist
260 University Ave.
Ice Cream Parlor open till 11 p.m.

Queen's Tennis Players Defeat Ottawa College

Continued from page 1

ed a determined drive and with a series of brilliant shots managed to edge out a 7-5 victory.

Doug. Muir, former College Champion, played his best tennis to date to down John Connolly by the score of 6-4, 6-1. Muir who had played listlessly earlier in the week, came back strong and was ever in command of the situation.

Elton Butler, the choice of many to win the college tournament this year, defeated E. Gendron 6-3, 4-6, 6-4. Butler elected to play a soft and steady game against his harder hitting opponent. His steadiness coupled with his usual caginess proved too much for the Ottawa man.

Teaming up for the first time in doubles play Butler and Muir easily overcame any opposition Connolly and McGlade could offer. Connolly, who had previously engaged in an exhausting match with Grant, was not at his best in this tilt and Queen's entry came through without undue trouble by the scores of 6-2, 6-3.

Playing the second doubles, C. Connolly, now attending Queen's and W. Charland lost to Gendron and Roberge 6-3, 6-4. Teaming up for the first time the Queen's boys fell prey to the better team work of the Ottawa entry. A belated rally on the part of the Queen's players did not prove sufficient to nullify an early lead assumed by the Ottawa collegians.

Summary:

Singles—E. Connolly defeated D. Grant, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5; D. Muir defeated J. Connolly 6-4, 6-1; E. Butler defeated E. Gendron, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Doubles—Muir and Butler defeated E. Connolly and McGlade, 6-2, 6-3; Gendron and Roberge defeated C. Connolly and W. Charland, 6-3, 6-4.

S. C. A. Shrapnel

It may be supposed that man is endued by his Maker with a sixth sense which is constantly reminding him of the possible importance of his contribution to this world. This sixth sense is a silent, though existent power that ever urges forward; ever leads on upward with the heights as our goal. Sometimes defined ingenuity and more often perseverance, it is the stimulation of all human endeavor. Without the presence of this mysterious factor in our lives there would be no progress of any kind. Without it, the greatest masterpieces of all time—the lovely madonnas of Raphael, the exquisite compositions of Mozart, would have remained forever in chaos.

The power that lies behind this mystic force is a presence that is never revealed though we hunger for some word or sign. Only in its blind groping about in the dark does the soul come upon a message floating as a rainbow, swift as the flash of a soaring bird—a message that opens vistas into the unfathomable spaces which lie around and above us. This message tells us that life is worthwhile. The soul that has received this message can see Honor and Courage and Generosity standing like tall white mountains above the sordid struggle and knows that somewhere behind all these ideals of life is the great understanding heart of God.

The big and tremendous things that any of us do—if we ever do them—somehow came about because of the unexpressed in ourselves, the world, or in some life that has found lodgment in us.

Sports Views

While it was generally expected that McGill would take Western in the season's opener at Montreal, few expected that the contest would prove as tight as it did.

Western did all the scoring in the first quarter, Patterson's big boot netting one placement and that put them three points up.

The possibility in the forward pass was amply demonstrated in the second quarter. McGill, with their backs to the wall on their own 17 yard line, tried one, Krukowski to Griffiths, and the latter sprinted 95 yards to a touch that wasn't converted. Doesn't seem right nohow.

Western came back to tie the score in the third with a rouge and a deadline, but McGill also got a deadline to remain one up. In the final frame, they each added one.

The big line from London didn't seem to get them places but their nine completed passes out of 13 look good, and only two were intercepted. The champs are still dangerous.

Varsity's entry in the Intermediate Intercollegiate scored a nice 7 to 4 win over Ottawa University to open the schedule. It was a close game and interesting all the way.

Balmy Beach were all set to step into the Tunnel Town and take them but all they could collect was 2 points while Sarnia got 14. The forward pass helped here too.

OF ALL THINGS

There are now about 3,000 different occupations listed in the census report.

The Izaak Walton league has a radio representative. The coincidence is that his name is Mr. Fish.

According to a Texan psychologist, the present railway sign, "Stop, Look, and Listen," is all wrong. He suggests as a substitute, "Come on, take a chance. No one will miss you."

Almost every vaudeville trouper carries a little chamois luck bag. In that bag is a hundred dollar bill—it is estimated that the bill would transport one back to New York from wherever disaster might happen to strike.

The average American family has four and two-tenths members.

The sun is closer to the earth in the winter than it is in the summer.

It takes nine years for concrete to become as hard as it ever will get.

Irene Bordoni, famous moving picture and radio star, never wears the same evening gown twice to the Columbia Broadcasting system's studios.

—India Daily Student.

FROM OTHER CAMPUSES

IOWA STATE COLLEGE—No cars will be permitted to operate on the campus without liability insurance up to $5,000, and without passing the tests given in the Automotive Laboratory. Blue stickers will replace license plates on cars which meet these requirements. This measure has been adopted to make motor traffic safe for both pedestrians and drivers.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY—A new senior election was called because it was found that a number of students had stuffed the ballot box.

C. O. T. C.

Regimental Orders, Oct. 11, 1932

(1) Enlistments, Tues. Wed. and Thurs, and Fri. 4 to 6 p.m.; Oct. 10, 11, 12 and 13th.

(2) Issuing of uniforms to all ranks, of all companies will be carried out according to the following schedule.

A Co. (Infantry) 4 to 6 p.m., Thurs., Oct. 12th.

B. and C. Co's (Medicine and Science) 7 to 9 p.m., Thurs., Oct. 12th.

(3) The following will report sharp at 4 p.m. to assist in the issue. Lieut. and Q.M. R. A. Low 2/Lt.. W. R. McLaren, Lt. C. Cowperthwaite, 2, Lt. M. W. Harshaw, Lt. W. R. I. Slack.

(4) All previous members of the corps should report to the orderly room to be taken on strength within the hours allotted for enlistment.

D. T. R. McCOLL,
Lieut., Adjutant, Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

LOST

Lost, a lady's blue leather hand bag on the promenade south of King Street about 10.45 p.m. on Friday night. Believed found soon after lost by three Queen's students. Bag contains permanent railway pass urgently needed. Return of cash in bag no consideration. Communicate with F. Rand, R.M.C.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

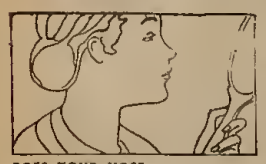
Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

BOWL TO-NIGHT
CRASH! THERE THEY GO!
It's a Grand and Glorious Feeling to see the Pins Fly About When You "STRIKE."
BOWLADROME ALLEYS
250 Princess St.

Here's real NEWS! The price of the famous portable Underwood typewriter is reduced to meet YOUR income.
And that's not all! A convenient monthly payment plan makes it that much easier to buy.
Look ahead—think how this 13½ lb. personal typing machine will help you this year . . . and in years to come.
Visit our showroom today. See this portable . . . its sparkling colors. See how amazingly simple it is to operate . . and hear of the substantial saving you can make by buying NOW. Or send the handy coupon and an illustrated booklet with complete information will be sent to you.
Remember! It is especially priced for October only, at a figure to accommodate your pocket book. If you ever thought of buying a typewriter—buy this portable Underwood now—or at least consider it. It's your one big opportunity.
Made and sold in Canada by
United Typewriter Co., Ltd.
135 Victoria St. TORONTO
BRANCHES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES
Equipped with DRUG—MEDICAL—CHEMICAL—and ENGINEERING keyboard.
Send for this BOOKLET
United Typewriter Co. Ltd.,
135 Victoria St., Toronto.
Without obligation, please send me your illustrated booklet "Just Arrived." Also tell me all about the special price and terms good for October only.
Name .....
Address .....

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haireutting
20c and 35c

Economy for Students!
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We eater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St.



BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Prineess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Campus Cut-ups

Once there was a Ambitious Boy wid the name Oswuld, and he thank, and he thank. And the thanking was this. 'Where a Will is, well then a Way must be, and He who comes Last it It.' And thus was the thanking of the first day.

And but indeed the worthy Pedagognes of the Town, the Dizzy look in his Eye having noted, tossing their Heads and Pawing the ground, conferred thus among Themselves. 'O men of Paprika, surely nevertheles we have in our Midst, one he a man indeed, endowed howsomever and what Have you, with Mind, (or perhaps Mind.) etc. Shall we then, O Brethren permit it that wid such a Mind, such a Man, in such an time, should this such an such, no, never still reap the Benefits of a Higher Education, and words to that Effect? No, and again no!!!'

Thus was the speech, the Upshot of which was O.K. Higher Education or Bust.

So, and thus, Oswuld came to College. And he looked and he looked, and he wondered, and he wondred, and then he said, 'So This is College.' Then wandering about the Streets if the Town, he marvelled at the Strange Pans of the Inhabitants. For So it Was.

Then, One day, the Crowd flocked to the Arena to behold the game of Rugby. And Oswuld was greatly Surprised at the Procedure, for it Happened that when one Half of the Crowd in the Bleachers would Shout, the other Half, with averted Heads, gazed silently on the Scene below, and visa-voisa. And, Despite the Entreaties of a Earnest Individual, a subdued murmur ran through the Mob, and Ears remained Deaf to his Pleas.

Having Puzzled, Oswuld turned to the Fellow Student on his Right, and wid gentle Voice inquired, 'I say there old chap, these Queen's Spirits y'know, could you tell me—'

The Other patter his Hip pocket significantly, and in a terse voice, replied saying, 'Wait until Half Time.'

New Paragraph. And Thus it was that Oswuld became Initiated into the mystic Order of 'Under the Grandstand Gubblers,' and Thereby hangs a Tale.

Moral: Always look Up and Down before Crossing the Street —then Pass.

Campus and Gym

The end of the first round of the Levana Tennis Tournament found G. Cameron and L. Corneil victorious over H. Harcourt and H. Johnson respectively. In the second round, Carmel Milne defeated Jean Jenkinson, Ruth Fishleigh won from G. Turner, and G. Cameron from L. Corneil. K. Grant lost to Norah McGinnis, Helen Kennedy was defeated by Doreen Kenny, and G. Harvey by Leslie Dorey.

The team will probably be chosen from these outstanding winners, Doreen Kenny, Ruth Fishleigh, Carmel Milne, Leslie Dorey and Norah McGinnis.

LEVANA GLEE CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Levana Glee Club in the Red Room on Thursday afternoon at 4 P.M. All those interested in Music are invited to attend.

"I don't want any of your darn lip," said the dentist preparing to pull the tooth.

Exchange Student Enjoys Hospitality

The hospitality of Canada and the friendly attitude of her fellow students have greatly impressed Miss Gerda Hellmund, the German Exchange student who is this year continuing her studies in Chemistry at Queen's. The welcome that she has received from the staff and the students has helped to make her feel at home. Miss Hellmund finds that her class work in Chemistry is not as arduous as in her own university in Berlin where she worked by herself in a laboratory and prepared herself for the oral tests which are the only examinations given in the German University. Also in the German University the only contact with the professor was through these exams as the class work and laboratory work was conducted by assistants entirely.

Miss Hellmund finds that work and play are more thoroughly mixed by Canadian students than by their German counterparts and that we find more time for sports. A great deal of consumption and other ills which owe their origin to poor food and housing conditions are prevalent among German students.

Miss Hellmund has devoted her time to Chemistry and has spent vacations working in industrial concerns in Germany, but has found that these positions are very hard to obtain and that the salary is either very poor or that there is no other salary than food and lodging connected with the position.

Miss Hellmund is very pleased with the residence life in Canada and finds a great deal of stimulation in her life at Ban Righ Hall which she says is entirely different from the residence life in Berlin. She is delighted with our Canadian meals and finds them a change from the more stereotype German food.

ARTS '35 MEETING

At a very well attended meeting last Friday the Arts Sophs assembled with John R. Dargavel, last year's President in the chair. J. Dargavel is now in the Science Faculty. Mr. Willard Thompson, a late member of Arts '35, gave a very interesting speech. After which the year held its election of officers, and the following officials were appointed. President, E. C. Stevens; Vice-President, Miss Margaret Bruce; Treasurer, Eric Gilmour; Secretary, A. W. Sillery; Asst. Sec.-Treas., Miss Roberts; Poetess, Miss Mildred Bowie; Athletics Director, Chas. Finley.

The following appointments were also made. Auditors; Eric Gilmour, Don James, Miss Gladys Thomas; Representative to Debating Union Committee, Eric Gilmour. A vigilance committee was also elected to keep an eye on the activities of the Freshman year.

DISILLUSION

I lived in faith; I had no other creed
Than fear of God would satisfy my need.
To this I sacrificed my life, my soul,
And find extinction now man's only goal;
Dying, I know my faith an empty cheat
And death, I thought release, supreme defeat.

—E.G.

Ontario Park Scene Of Marshmallow Roast

After the ram there is always sunshine, and for the Freshette Marshmallow Roast given by the Levana Society, this was particularly true. The girls met at Ban Righ Hall, and the Freshettes were given their bright Tricolour tams, which they will wear on the campus for the remainder of the year.

One of the feature events of the hike was the preparation of the Freshettes for the rugby game and the furthering of their education along lines distinctively Queen's—the teaching them the correct accents of the Gaelic yell by seniors.

The bonfires were kindled on the lake shore and the most important part of the hike was thoroughly enjoyed by a hungry crowd.

QUEEN'S PIPE BAND

A keen observer at the game on Saturday might have remarked the preponderance of the red Royal Stuart tartan in the Pipe Band. The fact is significant! It means that Queen's has at last formed the nucleus of a Pipe Band of her own. Every man wearing the Royal Stuart Tartan on Saturday was a student at Queen's. It is only right in view of her Scottish tradition that Queen's should possess her own band. The distinction at the next home game will be even more definite, for every Queen's piper will wear, in addition to the red tartan, a Queen's "Tam."

The institution of such a band is worthy indeed and it calls for the support of every loyal Queen's man. If you don't believe that ask the Freshettes. They know!!

AN APOLOGY

The Editorial Committee of the Students' Handbook sincerely regret the omission of St. Mary's Cathedral from the list of Kingston churches. They hereby apologize to His Grace Archbishop O'Brien for this oversight.

On behalf of the Editorial Committee. A. B. SMITH,
Secretary.

Arts '36 Officers Elected

At the Arts Freshmen Organization Meeting held last Thursday the following executive was elected:

Hon. President—Dean Matheson.
President—"Skell" Deans.
Vice-Pres.—Miss D. W. Stewart.
Secretary—Miss E. M. Peacock.
Treasurer—L. W. Carson.
Director of Athletics — Mr. Howitt.
Debating Society—Mr. Smith.
Committee—Miss Tate, E. Gibson, Mr. Burke.

At the same meeting it was decided to postpone the election of an Arts' Society representative until the by-election which takes place within the next two weeks.

Convenient Smoking Room Awaits Science Students

A conveniently located smoking room at the back of the technical supplies awaits Science students.

It is a comfortable, well heated room, has lots of windows and is of good size.

The entrance faces the physical building and is the only door at the rear of tech. supplies.

There is no furniture in the room as yet, but it is expected that the Engineering Society will place a few chairs and tables and some magazines there in the near future.

The matter has yet to be decided by the Engineering Society at one of their early meetings.

ALUMNI DANCE

The Alumni Student Dance, held in the new Gymnasium last Saturday evening proved a great success.

The attendance, which was thoroughly representative of past and present members of the University, was highly satisfactory, and all spent a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

QUEEN'S DRAMATIC GUILD

The Queen's Dramatic Guild will meet for the first time this semester on Thursday evening at 7.30 P.M., in the Red Room, Kingston Hall.

Professor James A. Roy will be the guest speaker for the occasion. He will speak on Marven's Festival which he attended while in England during the summer.

WELCOME — —
To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."
To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

SUITS
$22.50 $24.50 $26.00
$30.00 $33.00 $35.00
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
BEST VALUES IN THE CITY
PHONE 487

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14th, 1932 No. 5

Queen's Library

Queen's Will Not Suffer Through Failure Of Insull

University Defrays Endowment Expense Out Of General Fund

The failure of the Insull Utilities Companies will in no way jeopardize the stability of the Chair of Preventative Medicine at Queen's.

After an interview with Dr. McNeill this morning the Journal can say with authority that such fears are entirely without substantiation.

Dr. McNeill states, "In 1930 Samuel Insull donated fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) to Queen's University to found the Elliot Chair of Preventive Medicine. The entire sum consised of seven hundred and fifty (750) shares, with a market value of seventy dollars ($70) per share, in Mr. Insull's Utility Company of Chicago. The endowment was given with the reservation that the stock was not to be sold until November 1st, 1931. If the stock at this time was less than at time of endowment, Mr. Insull was to redeem it at original value. Unfortunately, owing to the fact that Mr. Insull spent his entire personal fortune endeavoring to stabilize his company in time of financial distress, he was unable to redeem the stock."

"Not foreseeing such a calamity the services of Dr. Wylie were engaged and the Chair of Preventative Medicine founded. The stock of Mr. Insull's Company never paid any dividends and thus the reimbursment for this chair has since that time been paid out of the general fund of the University."

Continued on page 7

General Meeting Of Engieenring Society

There will be a general meeting of the Engineering Society this afternoon at 4 o'clock in Carruther's Hall. Sid Parkes will take the chair.

The purpose of the meeting is the nomination of candidates to vacant positions on the executive. Science Freshmen are reminded that their attendance is compulsory.

Glee Club Prepares For Active Season

The next meeting of the Levana Glee Club will be held Thursday, October 20th, at 4 p.m. at 332 University Ave.

The Club, which is fortunate to have Mrs. H. L. Tracy for its conductor and presiding genius, intends this year to concentrate on a new collection of three part songs edited by Carolyn Carter.

Executive Chosen By Debating Union

Alan B. Sprague Is President Of Society

The Debating Union held a meeting of organization and election on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12th, in Room 201 of the New Arts Building. During the early part of the meeting Mr. Stu. Warrington, acting President of the Union, was in the chair, but he later gave place to Mr. Alan Sprague, the newly appointed President.

The following officials were elected: Honorary President (by acclamation), Principal Fyfe; Honorary Vice-Presidents, Prof. W. C. Clark, Prof. G. Vlastos, Prof. N. Rogers; President, Alan Sprague; Vice-Pres. Andy Bell; Treas., Roy Sharpe; Committee, John Parker, Jack Corbett (Science), Delaney (Meds.), Eric Gilmour, and Martin (Freshman), Stu. Warrington as retiring Vice-Pres., is ex-officio a member of the executive.

Two constitutional changes were adopted by unanimous vote of the general meeting; first that there shall be more than one honorary Vice-President of the Union if the general meeting so desires, second that the executive shall include one member from each of the Arts, Science and Medical faculties. The constitution already provided that one position on the executive should be filled by a member of the Freshman year.

A brief discussion of the financial position of the Union and of its program for this year followed the election.

A motion that a mock trial should be held at the first open meeting of the Union was adopted with enthusiasm, and the executive was instructed to make plans for a programme for the year to be submitted to a general meeting as soon as possible.

WEENIE DAY

Weenie has turned in clever performances in Queen's two starts to date. His reliable catching and tricky end runs should be features of the Queen's-Western game.

PAUL DAVOUD

Davoud made a hit in his very first game with Queen's. He should give the Mustangs much to worry about to-morrow.

Mustangs And Tricolor Anxious To Avenge Defeats Of Saturday

Loss Of Two Players Hits Tricolor Squad

Today at noon the Senior team will entrain for London, the home-town of the famed Mustangs, and will endeavor on Saturday, to score their first win of the intercollegiate season at the expense of the champions.

It is feared at this date that the team will be without the services of two of its most valuable players, these being Lackey and Glass. Wes. has a knee that is not responding to treatment as fast as it might, while Bill Glass has been hobbling around with a broken leg. His leg, remaining quite sore, an X-ray was decided on and it showed one first class fracture of the fibula. How long this fracture has been present is somewhat of a mystery, but there it is, and while it is one of those friendly sort, his return to active service for a while is doubtful. He will still be able to practise, however, and will he raring to go one of these days.

(Continued on page 6)

Western Team Trains For Queen's Invasion

(Special to The Journal)

London, Ont., Oct. 11.—Coming out of Saturday's disappointing game with the "Big Red Team" free from injuries, the Mustangs have spent the week preparing for the visit of the Tri-color squad. While beaten decisively by Toronto on that team's favorite field, namely, Richardson Stadium, the Queen's aggregation looms up as a much stronger team than Saturday's score would indicate and should not be beaten by nearly such a large margin again this year.

The Tricolor were singularly fortunate this year in that three members of last year's crack R.M.C.

(Continued on page 6)

Registration Figures Show Decrease Of 80

The total registration at Queen's University shows a decrease of 80 over last year's figure. In the three faculties, Arts, Medicine and Science, a total of 1610 students are in attendance at the University this term.

Arts and Medicine registration closed on Saturday. The former shows a decrease of 69 students from the 1931 registration while the Medical registration is the same as last year, 301. The Freshman year in Arts shows a decrease of 19 over last year's attendance while the Freshman class in Medicine numbers 51, which is also a decrease. The second year class in Medicine is one of the largest at the University for some years, numbering 62 students, while 53 students are in their final year.

The total registration is made up of the following: Science, 418; Arts, 891 and Medicine, 301.

Prof. McArthur To Lecture On Kingston

The lecture on "Kingston and its history" which is to be given by Professor Duncan McArthur, in Convocation Hall at 4 p.m. this afternoon, will deal mainly with the relations of Kingston to the history of Canada.

From the early days of the fur trade to the grain traffic of modern times the position of Kingston at the eastern end of the Great Lakes water system has given the city a unique historical importance. Located on the main artery of transport eastward, Kingston from the beginning of its existence has been a collecting and distributing centre of vital economic and political importance.

It is against this background that Professor McArthur will indicate the development of the city, and describe the leading events in its history, from the time of Frontenac to the war of 1812, and on through the period when Kingston was advocated for the capital of Canada into modern times when the St. Lawrence Waterway treaty again emphasizes the importance of its geographical position.

The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides, some of the most interesting of which will portray landmarks of old Kingston.

Arts Men Victorious In Interfaculty Meet

Arts representatives won the Interfaculty track meet held at the Richardson Stadium yesterday afternoon. The final results were: Arts 79, Science 39, Medicine 4. For full particulars of this annual event we call your attention to our sports page, where you will find written up in detail all the developments of the meet.

Chem. Society Hears Sir J. Irvine Speak

Famed Visitor Talks On Work Of Cowper

Sir James Irvine, of St. Andrew's University, noted British chemist, addressed the members of the Chemical Society, Thursday morning in Gordon Hall.

In opening his remarks he said that as his audience consisted not only of professors, but of students from the 2nd to the nth years, he was inclined to keep his talk simple, that all might understand.

He had recently given an address at the university of a memorial to Alexander Scott Cowper who in a brief and unfortunate career had contributed valuable to the field of Organic Chemistry.

Cowper was the only son of a reasonably prosperous weaver in Scotland. His mother encouraged him to be a student and took English, History and Philosophy. Working in Berlin he was influenced by his partner, an engineer, to turn to the study of Organic Chemistry. He completed a difficult research on pyrosalycitic acid under Wurtz and then wrote another paper on the Structure of Organic Compounds. This latter paper he left with Wurtz, who, not realizing its importance, delayed in presenting it to the Academy until another research worker presented a paper on the same subject and received all the credit. Although only twenty-seven at the time this unfortunate incident broke Cowper's spirit and he retired to his home. A week later he was a victim of a sunstroke which left him disabled. He died at the age of seventy practically unknown, although he had discovered the key to the peculiar behaviour of carbon.

Sir James also spoke generally on Carbohydrate Chemistry. Car-

Continued on page 4

Warrington And Clapp Candidates For Presidency

Party Leaders Open Electoral Campaigns By Issuing Statement

Wednesday evening Grant Hall was again the scene of students aspiring to office or desirous of nominating representatives who would ably guide the destinies of the student body.

The chairman of the meeting was A. W. Currie, the permanent Secretary-Treasurer. He was ably assisted by Hill Clarkson, Convener of the Election Committee. The remainder of the committee consisted of Sid Parkes, President of the Engineering Society; Eric Warnock representing the Arts Society; Charlie Pinch, President of the Aesculapian Society, and Hilda Landon representing Levana.

The following were nominated:

Meds-Science — President, Charlie Clapp; Vice-President, Athol Henney; Secretary, Fred Durdan; Treasurer, Jack Finlay; Athletic Stick, Howie Carter.

Arts-Levana-Theology — President, Stew Warrington; Vice-President, Doreen Kenny; Secretary, Weenie Day; Treasurer, Pete Lewis; Athletic Stick, Ev. Poynter.

About two hundred turned out, ranging from politically minded seniors to wide-eyed freshmen. Mr. Currie introduced the members of the Election Committee and read the rules pertaining to the election of officers to the A.M.S.

In conclusion the chairman appealed to every studeut to turn out and vote on Friday, October

Continued on page 2

No Further Outbreaks Of Infantile Paralysis

There have been no further outbreaks of poliomyelitis in the city, the Journal is informed.

A Journal reporter learned from the Isolation Hospital today that the ten students in quarantine there have displayed no symptoms of the disease, and there is grounds for believing that the spread of infantile paralysis in Kingston has been prevented

University Central Heating Plant Has Long Record Of Continuously Faithful Service

There is one department of the University whose job is never done; whose year is not divided up into terms and semesters, and whose day is not five or six periods of one hour each. This hard-working department is the Central Heating Plant, situated on the lake shore on King Street, behind the Kingston General Hospital. Since it was first built, in 1922, this plant has always kept up a head of steam: at no time have the fires gone out nor has the pressure relaxed. A votive flame to the gods of learning and mercy: these fires burn, continually serving the 'seekers of truth' and the less fortunate inmates of the Hospital.

The plant serves all the University buildings on the campus, including the Union and the new Gymnasium, as well as Kingston General Hospital. For the latter, both steam and hot-water are supplied, the steam at 220° and the water at 175°. The University receives steam alone and uses it in heating the water. The showers in the gym have a thermostatic control in order to prevent one of the champions of the

Continued on page 4

Bull Pen Needed At Stadium To Keep Young Fans From Risking Life and Limbs In Trees

Does a rugby game present any problems? Ask the coach, ask the manager, the rubber—to say nothing of Alfie Pearce. There's a thousand and one things that come up during or before a rugby game and the past week-end has revealed a few more problems that should be solved before another battle.

One feature of a game is the stream of wounded that usually flows towards the Kingston General. Some of the boys get toted there, others hobble, but many go. And all these boys were injured inside the grounds, by being manhandled by the party of the second part.

While crowds watched the game from the comparative comfort of bleacher or grandstand seats, some hundreds of juvenile fans, eager to see the struggle, but possessing no cash money, were driven desperate by the roars of the crowd within. Something had to be done about it and so they took to the poplar trees that line Alfred Street.

Now a tree isn't the finest place to park for an hour or so, and if you are doing this Tarzan

Continued on page 4

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713
BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ____ MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ____ NEWS EDITOR
J. R. HAZEN—4167 ____ SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—7919 ____ LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ____ LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ____ SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ____ MEDICINE

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14th, 1932

Gridiron Invasion

At every rugby game we have ever attended at the Richardson Memorial Stadium, and the opening Intercollegiate encounter last Saturday was no exception, the gridiron has been invaded at half-time by swarms of urchins and students who succeed in making very effective nuisances of themselves. The result is that the manoeuvres of the bands are badly hampered, the turf suffers needless damage and the public is forced to gaze upon demonstrations which have nothing to commend their taking place.

Most of the offending kids climb the walls and attend the games free. We take no objection to this. But an effort should be made to prevent them from carrying on in the disorderly manner they have exhibited in the past. An appeal in the Whig-Standard would probably bring results as these pocket-edition offenders are Kingstonians.

The sight of students taking over the playing field to stage organized skits and games for Freshmen, which invariably degenerate into a "free-for-all", is not humourous to say the least and should be reserved for other occasions than Intercollegiate encounters.

To our knowledge, many visitors were very unfavourably impressed.

Action should be taken immediately to prevent the recurrence of such demonstrations. The bands will be able to appear at their best, the turf will be in better condition for the players and the general public will be spared the sight of kid hat-snatching and student rowdyism.

A Farewell to Whiskers

A Vienna doctor claims to have discovered a method for treating a man's face in such a way that never thereafter will whiskers grow on his physiognomical map. This is an amazing discovery and is loaded to the muzzle with important possibilities.

The treatment consisting of exposing the face to certain rays, is most successful, it is said.

It would seem that this Viennese doctor has discovered a great boon to mankind. We have never been able to appreciate the value of whiskers. They are not particularly pretty to look at and if permitted to grow in cultivated or uncultivated profusion, they clutter up a man's face to the extent of concealing his features. Think of the many smiles originating behind whiskers which are bound to remain unseen or be taken for villainous grins. The whisker ambush has often placed one in the embarrassing position of not knowing whether the wearer is laughing or crying.

It might be argued that man was originally endowed with whiskers to keep his face warm, but this argument is not consistent. When whiskers were handed around, then, why was the poor Indian and the Eskimo overlooked. The latter, who lives in the far north where whiskers would be a great comfort, with the mercury down to 60 and 80 degrees below zero, is short on whiskers.

Frequently one meets a man who, when he politely takes off his hat, is bald as an egg—yet his face may be almost concealed by the finest crop of whiskers you ever saw. And they say Mother Nature never makes a mistake.

This doctor's discovery will be received with open heart by the man who has to shave every day of his life to suppress his beard. But the fuzzy-faced youth will speak disparagingly of this Viennese benefactor. The up and coming young man is very proud when he first begins to scrape his features and commits himself to the daily use of the razor. His joy is boundless because he is old enough to shave, but he does not pause to consider that he has started something that he will never be able to finish.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Another Member of Great Rugby Team Passes

The sudden death last week of Dr. J. G. Cranston of Arnprior removes the sixth member of Queen's University Dominion champion rugby team of 1893, which the late Guy Curtis, the gridiron master four decades ago made the most noted that Canada had produced up to that time. Those were the stern scrimmage days of rugby football, and it was chiefly Curtis' massed play tactics on the forward line that carried Queen's victorious over its opponents, which included Ottawa College (then a great aggregation under Rev. Father Fallon), Toronto University, Toronto City, Hamilton Tigers and Montreal.

Curtis died two years ago, and only a few months ago another of the 1893 champions passed in the person of Charles Wilson, famed full back of Queen's and later of Ottawa Rough Riders. Of the fifteen who won that Dominion championship thirty-nine years ago there are reported to be nine left: Dr. A. E. Ross, M.P., Kingston; Professor W. C. Baker of Queen's physics department; Charles Webster, K.C., Kingston; Senator H. H. Horsey, Ottawa; Dr. F. McCammon, Brooklyn; Dr. W. Moffatt; Allan McRae; Dr. T. Harry Farrell, Utica, N.Y.; Charles Fox, industrial chemist, Pittsburgh, Pa. Two others, James M. Farrell, K.C., Kingston, and T. S. Scott, Niagara Falls, who played in the semi-finals, also survive.

Dr. Cranston was a handsome young man in his Queen's rugby days, one who would be termed today by the co-eds a "sheik," but he was a student rather than a ladies' man. He played in the scrimmage with W. C. Baker and George Kennedy. The 1893 champions were a great team and the passing of Curits, Wilson and Cranston directs attention again to the great deeds they performed on the gridiron in the days when each player looked after his own physical training. That was the time when Alfie Pearce came on the scene as Queen's mascot and Alfie is still with the Tricolor. The death of Dr. Cranston once more revives the question of a Queen's memorial to Guy Curtis, the man who, without recompense, but for the love of his Alma Mater, captained and trained several champion teams. No finer memorial could be chosen than the placing in Convocation Hall of an oil portrait of the old rugby master. There is still to be had a striking picture of Curtis in his great gridiron days, and that likeness transferred in oils to canvas would be a worthy addition to the group of men who are amongst the makers of Queen's.

They are as sick that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing.—Shakespeare.

A little too wise, they say, do ne'er live long.—Thos. Middleton.

He is only fantastical that is not in fashion.—Robert Burton.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

Khaki University and Y.M.C.A. Memorial Scholarships.

The University has funds for Scholarships for the sons and daughters of returned men who were in active service during the Great War. The applications for these Scholarships should be in the hands of the Registrar by October 15.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

During the first week in November one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

A.M.S. Nominees Chosen At Meeting In Grant Hall

(Continued from page 1)

21st. He stressed the fact that student government had fallen on evil days and support would be needed to restore the efficiency it used to have in pre-war days.

In an interview with a Journal reporter after the nomination meeting, Mr. Warrington, the Arts candidate for President, said: "Whatever the result of the election may be I sincerely hope that it will be genuinely representative of the student body. This can only be the case if everyone turns out to record his or her vote. This alone can give to student government the prestige and strength it merits; which it has frequently lacked in the past; and which we all hope to see restored and augmented.

Mr. Clapp, the Meds-Science nominee for the Presidency, when approached by a Journal man made the following statement:

"I should like to take this opportunity of thanking the representatives of the Medical and Science faculties for the confidence they have placed in me. I hope to see the same spirit and pep in the forthcoming campaign that has colored preceding ones, but with considerably less attention paid to campus decorations of the more permanent sort. There is plenty of room for original and "catchy" ideas without reverting to the time-honored paint-pot."

He: Were you married secretly.
She: Why yes, it was in all the tabloids.

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS !
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Queen's Journal.

Too Fresh! Perhaps this phrase may be somewhat confusing to the quite eloquent contributor of a very amusing article printed in the previous edition. The write-up was amusing to the extent that it gives the new-comer an idea of the attitude taken by some of the supposed "intelligentsia" towards the freshmen.

We beg to apologize if this is not a fact, and if the writer merely wanted to get his initials in the paper we are unduly sorry for far be it from us to cramp the style of such promising genuis.

No doubt we of the "Common Herd" should hide our heads in shame and shudder at even the thought of replying to one who takes it upon himself to "wield" "the sceptre of awe and majesty" over the incoming first year students. We bow, for no doubt you, of the flowing pen, have favored the Alma Mater with at least ten years of your most valued presence.

Ten years! Yes, and perhaps more, for no mean stripling would surely class himself with "the great thinkers of the age" and could in such a vivid fashion, picture the type so common to padded cells and beer gardens, had he not, at some time during his wide experience, been on the inside looking out.

You mention lollypops—what difference? We will admit the absence of that sophistication you assume as you chew on the stem of your dad's discarded briar, but remember the old man's remark when he kissed the cow—"It's just a matter of taste."

Surely you have not been reading Detective Fiction or True Romance for to us your line seems so shopworn and, when you mention the waitresses downtown, we chuckle to ourselves.

Was it in the movies we saw the "Big-Shot," attired in a rented racoon, borrowing the price of bus fare from his good friend in order to keep his "seven-day-a-week" shoes dry for the next morning's class? It must have been, for at college, as we see it, no freshman has any chance of a "girl-friend" and then again who ever heard of a sophomore riding in a bus? Why absurd!

Well before we straighten our tams and adjust our bow-ties we'll say:

"So long old timer, we'll be seeing you", and when we do don't ask for a loan to buy text books for we have to save our pennies to make a down payment on some "dirt" to hand the freshmen next year.

—R. H. E.

ARTS '34 MEETING

On Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 Arts '34 held their first meeting of this year. Norah McGinnis, retiring Vice-President, was in the chair. She thanked the former executive for their co-operation. The business was the election of officers for 1932-33. The chairman conducted the nominations and recorded the votes. The outcome was as follows: Hon. President, Professor Prince; President, Crawford Hall; Vice-President, Norah McGinnis; Secretary-Treasurer, Frank Anderson; Assistant Secretary-Treasurer, Sally Farlinger; Athletic Stick, George Fletcher; Committee of 3, Martha Johnston, Rosemary Bauer, Stew Whiteford; Year Representative to the Debating Society, Andrew Bell.

It was decided to have a meeting in the near future to discuss a program for the year's activities.

Steam Shovel

What Ho, all ye Steam Shovellers, once more Marion, of the clanking joints and Fanny, her side kick, are with us. Back from a summer in the factory where Marion has had installed a self cooling apparatus, guaranteed to dampen the ardour of our husky "Scienceers," a no limit party tank, a portable shaving unit to clean the drit off a few "Frosh" life, that we have seen here and there on the campus.

Marion blew into the room the other day while we were catching up on sleep missed after the Varsity debacle, trailing behind her, picking up the oddities that detached themselves from her metal chassis, was Fanny, as usual well lit for the occasion. She steamed over to the bed, whistled into our ear, then clanked down into our favorite chair. Thinking it was our world famous Kingston Fire Department after more points, we opened one eye, not to miss anything, and through the mist of steam and smoke we beheld our old pals, the "college widder" and her buddy.

Shifting her cud from one side to the other she beamed down on us, then after a bull's-eye to the waste paper basket she out with, "Hi! Pal, what you been doing, where you been, how're you now. They're treated me pretty rough all summer, been in a factory, up at seven, to bed at five, no night life, and some hick has his hands on you all day, no life for a gal, but what the hell pal, what the hell, always the perfect lady. But kid they sure done right by you Marion, a new self-cooler, that'll put some of these fresh "frosh" in their enpboards; an extra boiler, and kid can I hold mine now; and a portable barber service for freshmen, with quick tongues and smudged lips."

Having said which, she pulled her feet from the top of the mirror, let fly another bull's-eye, threw in her clutch, leaped the stairs, shot through the door, and when last seen was snorting up the street with Fanny in tow after John Hayseed and Silas Hohandle, that luckless pair, who have had nothing but welcome from their "sophs" as yet. But trust Marion, boys, she knows, and whatta nose (pardon me, it slipped).

S. C. A. Shrapnel

"Man, being reasonable, must get drunk;
The best of life is but intoxication;
Glory, the grape, love, gold in these are sunk
The hopes of all men and of every nation."

(Byron).

There is hope for the man who gets drunk. At least he is discontented with his present role in the universe. He seeks to create an adjustment in which he has power to triumph in living. Intoxication brings release from the shackles of inhibitions, a sense of reckless abandon. Without this the soul of man cannot live.

This release is too often temporary. Love lasts a night or two, the grape but a single evening, gold and glory are fickle jades, es.

Can man only hope for temporary release or can this essential quality be permanently achieved?

Presence of mind:
Burglar finds lady in bath.
Covers her with his revolver.

College Education

(From the Princetonian)

There is a good deal of discussion nowadays as to whether the social return for the expenditures necessary to make college education available justifies the cost.

Nobody has any doubt that the extension of knowledge by men with pioneering minds justifies any outlay necessary to produce and equip fruitful research scholars. Nobody has any doubt that some fractional part of the total collegiate output does continue an active interest in public affairs and so raises the level of political discussion and the standards of political morality. Such doubt as there is seems to arise from the fact that a great many men, after having had the opportunity and discipline of college education, are lost sight of except in some narrow professional, industrial or business career and do not make their weight felt in the determination of public problems which, under our democratic conditions, are determined by counting empty heads if full ones absent themselves from the counting places. Nobody, of course, has a right to deny another education, but the obligation to furnish educational opportunity at less than cost to the student is a different thing and, of course, in all of the colleges of the United States the cost per student is several times the amount demanded as tuition.

No matter what we may think about the extent to which a man with college opportunities meets his obligations, there is not likely to be any sudden change, but there will be a gradual and complete change if it be true that any substantial part of the money spent in higher education is socially wasted. In times of depression like the present, this question, along with all other possible economies, gets franker consideration. We are all dispensing with luxuries. To some this means getting along without a second butler, to some it means cutting down gifts to his college, and if, as many people believe, the present depression is going to cause a readjustment of our attitude toward these luxury expenditures it is not unlikely that the value of college training will be reweighed and higher education supported only so far as it seems to justify itself.

Three types of men go to college; those who are willing to be educated, those who want to be educated, and those who are determined to be educated. Nothing, of course, can stop the last group. The middle group, too, seems to be fairly certain to be provided for, but if there is to be a readjustment, the men in the first group had better look out! I suspect that wanting to be educated and determining to be educated must each involve some element of conscious desire to apply education when it is gotten in socially useful ways. That test is already beginning to be applied in the selection of Rhodes Scholars in this country. The committees which see the candidates and talk with them personally are more and more trying to find out what use the candidate wants to make of his education, and, because of the public motive of the Rhodes Trust, candidates are being favored who have clearly in their minds an aspiration to help solve the problems presented in public as distinguished from purely private affairs.

SINGLE BED-ROOM FOR MAN
Warm and Bright
35 Clergy St. Phone 2604-m

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor,
Queen's Journal.

"Extra Mural" in Wednesday's Journal comes out with the assertion that extra murals coming to the University for the first time find themselves in peculiar circumstances, as far as their contact with the freshmen is concerned. This view is perfectly correct. A glance at the Arts Calendar will show that, ordinarily, extra mural students are over twenty-one years old, and hence more mature than most freshmen in their thought and age. When extra murals become intra murals and are given the same status as freshmen, it is quite natural that some sort of disagreement arises ont of this new association. For it should be admitted that men's mental and physical development differ greatly with their age and experience. Extra murals cannot find a congenial atmosphere among younger freshmen.

To tell my own story, my circumstances are most extraordinary. Having completed ten courses extra murally. I am registered in the third year. Theoretically, I am no freshman, although I have never been in the campus before. Consequently, I have not received an official report notifying my status as a newcomer. The net result is that I belong neither to the freshmen group nor the older group, for I am a perfect stranger to both of them. I come here to breathe something of college life, but how can I do it when the definition of my status is not clear?

Perhaps, extra murals should have their own organization and group, in which they can find genuine congeniality and satisfaction.

Another Extra Mural.

Ed. note: An extra mural student coming to Queen's for the first time ranks either as a freshman or as a junior; in the latter instance he must have credit for at least ten courses.

Board Of Enquiry Investigates Losses

Winnipeg—Study of minutes of meetings of the various boards of the University of Manitoba was continued by a board of inquiry when it resumed its investigation today into the loss of $1,000,000 university funds.

R. F. McWilliams, K.C., associate counsel for the board, continued his reading from a pile of documents through which the board hopes to place responsibility for the huge defalcations. J. A. Machray, former bursar, was sentenced to seven years in penitentiary for stealing $500,000 from the funds.

Records reviewed by counsel yesterday revealed a long delay in auditing of the university books kept by the firm of Machray and Sharpe, which handled the funds and that Machray was granted full power to dispose of bonds and securities belonging to the university. Accrued losses suffered by the funds during the last seven years amounted to $1,413,094, and were caused by sales of bonds securities combined with "shortages" in the funds while under control of Machray's investment firm.

When detailed and technical evidence is completed by the board a long list of witnesses are to be called to testify. Among these are members of the Board of Governors of the university, brokers which acted for Machray and Sharpe, and possibly the imprisoned bursar.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Oct. 14th:
12.05—Arts '35 Executive Meeting. Room 201. New Arts Bldg.
4.00 p.m.—Lecture, "Kingston and its History," by Prof. D. McArthur, Convocation Hall.
4.00 p.m.—General Meeting, Engineering Soc., Carruthers Hall.
4.30 p.m.—Meeting of Music Group, Room 111. Douglas Library.
4.45 p.m.—Executive Meeting, Debating Union.
7.30 p.m.—Queen's Dramatic Guild Meeting, Prof. Roy will speak, New Arts Bldg.
Saturday, Oct. 15th.
1.00p.m.—Queen's Quill Staff Meeting. Douglas Library.
1.30 p.m.—Rifle Shooting Practice Bus leaves Union.
2.30 p.m.—Queen's vs. Western at London.
Sunday, Oct. 16th:
2.00 p.m.—Tour of Thousand Islands. Yacht leaves foot of Brock St.
Wednesday, Oct. 19th:
7.00 p.m.—Levana Society Meeting, Ban Righ Hall

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

OUR NEW FALL HATS $2.95

Inlisting Your Interest in the Very Smartest

FALL TOPCOATS

For Service
Value Giving Price
Featured at

$15.00

Every garment in this selection is this year's model, all fresh merchandise and marked by its superiority in all details.

Our Mens' Suits
FOR FALL ARE GREAT VALUES

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.

IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Small Fans Risk Serious Injury To Witness Games

Continued from page 1

stuff, you want to be sure the limbs are sound. But boys never think of that. You know what kids are?

On Saturday while watching the big game, one boy fell out of a tree and was very badly injured. On Monday afternoon, another would-be spectator missed his grip on a limb and sustained a nasty fracture of the arm. The lads suffered a great deal of pain, and one cannot help thinking that boys should not have to climb trees to see the fun.

One solution seems feasible. It would eliminate the spectacle of innumerable small boys galloping over the seats and playing field at half time, as well as the tree peril.

Create a bull pen, similar to the one in the rink, at the south end of the field and pen the kids in there, without charge. "Ouch." There's someone yelling expenses already. But it could be done. It would create rabid fans for the future, it would bring joy to the hearts of many small boys and it would enable the field to be cleared at half time. Lastly, it would perhaps prevent these accidents, and kids are precious.

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

TOUR
of
1000 ISLANDS
Yacht Edith Lines
SUNDAY, OCT. 16th, 2 p.m.
Return Fare $1.25
Tickets—Office Foot of Brock St.
Queen's Cafe

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

On Bones

Early in his career, the medical student takes up the study of bones, and thereafter all the subjects under his attention are built up with bones as foundation and framework.

He learns at the very beginning the classification into the hard bones, four and ten, the soft bones, six and eight, and the natural bones, seven and eleven. Extremely small bones, such as two and three, are often very troublesome to beginners. A respectful approach to his study is essential to success; the neophyte should repose appropriately upon his own marrow bones. A reasonable amount of chatter is allowed, however, and is even considered helpful.

Always ready to sacrifice their own convenience to the furthering of the interests of others, the more advanced students willingly devote part of their valuable time to the loving labor of teaching the still younger generation. This tuition, moreover, is not always repaid.

The bones are a subject well calculated to grasp the youthful imagination. Some students continue the study long after the time of actual necessity has passed. From outside the room of a hoary-headed senior, one may sometimes catch the music of rattling bones, bringing at once to the initiate the realization that he has a skeleton in his closet.

Well padded alumni hark back regretfully to the times when bones were prominent things in their lives, comforted only by the thought that their bones have been accorded rich and fitted burial.

NOTICE

Medical students in all years are invited to contribute to the Campuscope. Reporters will be appointed. Articles of interest are assured space, and news items immediate publication. This is your own part of the Journal. Support it. —Campuscope Editor.

S.C.A. Hold Weiner Roast At Lake Ontario Park

On Thanksgiving afternoon about 125 students left the Old Arts building at 3 p.m. and found their way to Lake Ontario Park. One of the most enjoyable features of the afternoon's programme was the little world series in softball. After everyone had thoroughly enjoyed themselves in the various sports, they gathered around a huge bonfire where their hungry appetites were satisfied by weiners, rolls, etc.

A sing-song was enjoyed by all, as well as a few stunts put on by the freshettes, freshmen and others. About 9 p.m. a tired, but happy group of people wended their way home.

Next Sunday afternoon you are invited to link up with one of the S.C.A. groups which meet in the various churches at 2.15 p.m.

St. James' group, Anglican.
St. Andrew's group, Presbyterian.
Sydenham group, United.
Chalmers' group, United.

Mollie: I feel a lethargy creeping over me.

Dollie: Yes, the grass is full of them.

Medical Education

The origin of medical education is lost in remote antiquity, and twenty-five centuries have passed since Hippocrates lectured to his students and set before them those traditions of honor and service to which medical men have ever since subscribed in the magnificent and moving phrases of the Hippocratic oath His pupils have, as a body, been very loyal to their teacher, and wherever they are they have won for themselves a unique position in the life of the world.

Different countries have evoked different modification of Hippocrates system of teaching. The Canadian system we know. It is not unlike that of the British in general outline. In Europe there are three entirely distinct methods of Medical education, found in their most characteristic forms in Britian, France and Germany respectively. They may be classified as the methods of apprenticeship, attendance, and demonstration.

The 'apprentice' system, used in Great Britain, and to some extent in Canada, is founded on the 'block' system, students, students finishing one block before advancing to the next. Subjects are divided into certain groups. The student passes through a course in general science, then he takes up anatomy, physiology and pathology, and he is finally admitted into clinical work. It is in this last part of the curriculum that the British system presents those features which make it practically an apprenticeship.

The students, being now supposed to have some knowledge of the structure and functions of the normal body, is attached to a physician or surgeon, for whom he works as clerk or dresser. He follows him around the wards and hears him discuss various cases: he sees him at work in the operating room and, above all, in the clinics he can watch him struggle to unravel the meanings of difficult cases.

The system has undoubted advantages. It brings the student into direct contact with the patient, and imposes upon him some feeling of responsibility for the investigation and treatment of the case. He has, moreover, definite work to do, and does not merely watch the work of others.

In France, the method is entirely different. It may be called the method of attendance. At his very entrance into medical school the French student is plunged into clinical work.

At 9 a.m. he attends a lecture in which some pathological condition is described, and he is given an outline of the relevant points in anatomy physiology and pathology, of all of which he is, of course, entirely ignorant. At 10 a.m. he enters the wards, in a crowd of other beginners, advanced students, practising physicians, and casual visitors, all waiting for the morning demonstration. Once or twice in the session he may be assigned a case, and be expected to give the professor a brief outline of its story, to his own very great confusion, but usually he merely stands in the crowd. In the afternoon he retires to the laboratory to study anatomy, physiology and pathology.

If he is exceptionally gifted he may obtain an internship, a three year appointment which enables him to meet patients at first hand. The next best place to which he may aspire is an externship, which gives him admission to the wards. Two-thirds of each year's students are graduated without any of these advantages. It is a method which fosters genius, giving all the best chances to the more brilliant type of student.

The German system is that of set demonstration, and there the Tentonic genius for organisation comes into play. Students who have passed examinations in anatomy and physiology are admitted to the classes in which medicine and surgery are demonstrated.

A patient is brought in and his condition discussed and demonstrated with the aid of osteological speciments and X-ray plates. Afterwards the condition is studied by means of pathological specimeuts of all the organs affected by the disease. Surgical technique is demonstrated with the same thoroughness. Thus the student sees all, knows all, and does nothing.

All three systems have disadvantages. The principal indictment against the British system is that the blocks or stages tend to become disconnected in the mind of the student. Those in the second block rapidly forget what they learned in the first, and so on. It is notorious that all professors of surgery find their pupils completely ignorant of anatomy and pathologists find that students have usually forgotten their groundwork of physiology. The French system does not sufficiently emphasize the fundamental sciences, and the German method does not afford the student sufficient opportunity for practical work on his own initiative.

Perhaps in a great university of the future, the best features of all systems will be combined in a course close to perfection. The best of us may live to teach under such a system, and the rest of us to criticize it.

PHILOSOPHY

I asked the sage the end of all endeavour,
Thinking to learn the goal whereto men grope,
But answer fell, "That man may come forever
To understand what lies beyond his scope." —E. G.

How old are you, little man?

Darned if I know, mister. Mother was twenty-six when I was born, and now she's only twenty-four.

Central Heating Plant Marvel Of Efficiency

(Continued from page 1)

'ice-cold shower' from parboiling himself.

A trip through the plant is full of general interest as well as being crammed with delights for the technically-minded. The engineer in charge, Mr. Hickey, is justly proud of his plant and is only too willing to explain every detail to the uninitiated. Mr. Hickey has been connected with the heating of the University for nearly a quarter of a century and has seen many changes and improvements in the heating methods of the University. Where the sub-station now is, next to Fleming Hall, the old central heating plant used to be, until 1922 when the present building was erected. Till last year, the coal used in the new plant was handled by four men with wheel-barrows; but now a system of cables and pulleys has been arranged and the coal is scooped in by one man in charge of the steam winch.

At present, the demand for steam can be supplied by one 500 horse-power boiler; but as the weather grows colder, (as the weather does), a second 250 horse-power boiler is called into service. If necessary, a third 500 horse-power boiler can be brought into use. The amount of steam required by the various units of the system are recorded on revolving discs. One of these in particular is interesting, that of the gym. The inked line representing the steam used moves along very quietly and uniformly till, all at once, it jumps up nearly a hundred pounds as the daily round of showers begins.

To describe and explain the many things of interest, in and around the plant, would take up too much space and a personal visit would accomplish the same end much more effectively. End-

Sir James Irvine Explains Cowper's Research Work

(Continued from page 1)

bohydrates, he said, were the channels through which solar energy flows to us as humans. He, took the three simple sugars and showed the way the structural formula is made up and the importance that lies in it. It was this work that Cowper had started on the right path.

less grates with a capacity of 1000 pounds of coal per hour; the weighing of every pound of that coal before it is burned; the effective way of removing the ash and cinders and many other details present themselves to the visitor.

Standing on the coal-pile at the back of the building, one seems to be on a miniature desert of blackness, furrowed by mountains and valleys, extending down to the sea. This tiny mountain range of coal, representing a year's supply and containing about 8000 tons of coal, is transported from Pennsylvania by boat to the plant. During the summer, it is brought in by the steamers that tie up to the wharf and discharge, in five hours, their cargoes of 2000 tons each.

The same building that houses the heating plant also contains a laboratory for weighing the horse-power and hog-tying the donkey-engine, but the main show is the heating plant itself. It is an important part of the University, imagine the predicament that the Hospital and the University would be in if some on should put his foot on the safety valve and hold it there. Also, as a closing warning, the next time you turn on a shower, be careful, remember, there's 750 horse-power behind that valve champing the bit and 'rarin' to go'.

Hmm, Brown absent again? I'll bet he's got some lame excuse.

Yes, Sir. Broke his leg, Sir.

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
Music by
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

THE CRASH
with
Ruth Chatterton, George Brent, and others

Miss Chatterton's latest appearance is in a film entitled, with beautiful directness, The Crash. Not, you understand, the crash of Miss Chatterton; not even the crash of George Brent, who will try to persuade you it is by consuming quarts and quarts of brandy throughout the film. No, this talkie is concerned, like every one else, with the Wall Street Panic.

In this, as in all her recent films, Miss Chatterton is not an actress. She is a mannequin with a cultivated voice and so much composure that one's natural reaction is to throw a glass of ice water in her face. That being impossible, one can only sit with a nascent feeling of irritation in the presence of too much poise. And so, always imperturbable, Miss Chatterton with infinite grace lights another cigarette, and with infinite weariness drinks another drink, and with infinite assurance murmurs "See me my dears in my lovely new frocks."

The Crash is a stupid story. There is no attempt at character continuity. Situations and speeches are assigned, at random, to this actor or the next. C plus.

AT THE TIVOLI

Hats off to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson who have proved conclusively with their Congorilla that it is possible to present a really entertaining picture, devoid of mystery, slapstick or a single pulse-quickening feminine torso. Congorilla, billed as "adventures among the big apes and little people of Central Africa," is a masterpiece and stands out, head and shoulders, over all previous films of this nature.

The Johnsons have gone, quite evidently, to considerable expense, time and effort to have been able to capture so many excellent and interesting shots of African animals in their native habitat. So successful were they that at no time is it possible for the interest of the audience to lag.

The picture opens with the Johnsons choosing members of their safari at the village of Nairobi. From then on action plus is the key note. Wildebeestes, giraffes, hippos, rhinos, elephants, wild dogs, lions and flamingoes parade before the eyes of the camera in bewildering rapidity.

Don't get the idea that Congorilla is merely an educational film and, as such, excellent entertainment for the kiddies, or a glorified news reel, because it contains reels of comedy that will leave you gasping in the aisles. If you don't think the dilemma of two pigmies trying in vain to light cigars isn't one of the funniest scenes you ever witnessed you probably belong to that class of people who wouldn't pay a plugged nickle to see the Israelities crossing the Red Sea, presented with the original cast plus Jimmie Durante in a fat role. As if this isn't enough the antics of gorillas and a baby chimpanzee are thrown in for good measure. A.

Book Chats

By R.M.

The country is particularly attractive just now. Even inveterate city folk like to get away from asphalt and bricks, office desks and office routine, to refresh themselves with brown furrows merging into rich tapestries of rose, old gold and crimson. People are most sympathetic towards rural scenes at this season of the year. Particularly receptive, perhaps, to appreciate an artistic sketch of a Czech farmer by Miss Willa Cather in "Obscure Destinies."

There are three sketches or stories, if you like, in Miss Cather's book. The one of Neighbour Rickinsky I thought particularly well done. A simple, homely type, a past master in the art of living is this old farmer. Miss Cather because of her intimate familiarity with Nebraska and Wyoming and their Scandinavian, Bohemian, German settlers writes about what she knows—what she has experienced. Rickinsky, a man who has known the colour and movement of big metropolitan centres like London and New York finds peace and happiness on the land. This is the idyllic version of the back to the land movement. Nevertheless, country life has still much to offer the tired city worker.

Aldous Huxley, however, thinks that this esthetic element in man may eventually be eliminated. This would bring about a true era of mechanization in which all humans would be just cogs in the machine. Some reviewers have taken Mr. Huxley seriously in his book entitled "Brave New World" (Musson Book Co.). One goes so far as to say, "It was inevitable that Mr. Huxley should write a novel of the future." I should much rather term it literary horse-play and be done with it. Of course this so-called novel cannot compare with "Point Counter Point" or the earlier success, "Antic Hay." The author has introduced a jumble of scientific jargon into "Brave New World" that may or may not mean something. He speaks learnedly of pituitary and thyroid glands, and the abnormal endocrine co-ordination in man.

The idea of course is to evolve a new type of being, who would have his passions and desires so toned down, his physiological and mental system so co-ordinated, that he would have no troublesome individuality to unfit him for a place in the industrial order. The whole thing is rich satire. Certainly the strangest Utopia ever conceived.

It may seem a long jump from a book satirizing the industrial system to one on sailing ships. But Mr. Cuthbertson's "Freshwater" has much to do with one of Canada's largest business concerns, Canada Steamship Lines. This volume is a gift to the Douglas Library from W. H. Coverdale, president of C.S.L. The edition is limited to 200 copies distributed to friends and officials of the company.

What I should like to praise, particularly, are the illustrations. It is doubtful if there is a finer group of pictures published on Great Lakes' sailing craft. On page 26 is a reproduction of a painting of La Salle's Griffin. Further on are some British sloops of 1755. The Nancy, square topsail schooner, built at Detroit 1780, is shown on page 114. Incidentally, this boat has found its last resting place in the Nottawasaga River, near Collingwood, Ont.

The subject matter of "Freshwater" is lengthy, detailed and rather dry for the general reader. It deals chiefly with the history of shipbuilding. Mr. Cuthbertson has been collecting material for this book during the past ten years, and his zeal deserves commendation. To the specialist in this field the volume should be invaluable.

He: You used to say I was all the world to you.

She: Yes, but I've learned my geography since then.

LOST

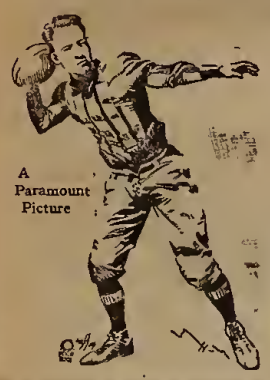
Belt for tan leather coat on Queen's Crescent or Lower Albert Street. Finder please notify Doris Anderson, Ban Righ Hall.

SCIENCE '33 YEAR MEETING

The initial meeting of Science '33 was held in Carruther's Hall last Tuesday afternoon with the purpose of electing the officers for the forthcoming session.

The following men were appointed to fill the executive posts during the final year: Hon. Pres., Professor Macphail; President, F. J. Myers; Vice-President, R. W. Thompkins; Secretary-Treasurer, E. G. Baker; Reporter, P. Austin; Convener Entertainment Committee, D. LaFontain; Athletic Committee, T. Hallett, H. Allen, W. Stewart, A. Wilson.

NOTICE



Will Science students in all years interested in contributing to the Steam Shovel, especially freshmen, and most particularly year reporters, get in touch with me immediately, either at the Journal Office or at 165 Alfred Street. Phone 3807-J.

Science Editor.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

We Welcome
Queen's Students To Our City
And invite you to make our store your meeting place. Make use of our telephone, help yourself to our cigarettes (but find them!) We want you to feel right at home—
We specialize on Young Men's Clothes, Featuring Suits and Overcoats at $15.00 - $18.50 - $22.50
The Best these prices can buy anywhere in Canada and not perhaps either!
Our clerks will be pleased to show the new models
At your service Sir!
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Capitol THEATRE
SATURDAY
MONDAY
TUESDAY
WHILE 140,000 HANDS APPLAUDED HIM, A SECRET HAND KILLED HIM!
Murdered! 3 Yards From a Touchdown!
"70,000 Witnesses"

A Paramount Picture
The screen's most unusual Mystery! Few will solve it—Everyone will thrill to it . . . and no one will ever forget it!
with
Charles Ruggles
Dorothy Jordan
Phillips Holmes
John Mack Brown
Added Treats
"ANDY CLYDE" in "HIS ROYAL SHINESS"
Silly Symphony Cartoon.
Paramount News.

PRINTING
FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.
The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO
FRANK ROBBS
SIX CHAIRS —— NO WAITING
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into — they're full of travel satisfaction.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Something NEW and very attractive for Queen's Students
MASTER TAILORED CLOTHES
MADE TO MEASURE
$17.50
It is not often that we have an announcement of this importance to make. Our original offer of guaranteed Suits and Overcoats for only $15 rocked the clothing trade. Now we add a high-class, fully guaranteed line of MADE-TO-MEASURE clothing to sell at only $17.50. NO — We are not giving up our $15 line. Come and see for yourself our assortment of ready made clothes.
READY TO WEAR
SUITS & OVERCOATS
$15
Note These Features of "Master Tailored Clothes"
1. All Wool Navy Blue Botany Serges.
2. Imported Worsteds — Yarn-dyed Worsteds.
3. All Woollen PRE-SHRUNK.
4. All suits individually cut.
5. Individual measurements.
6. Celanese body linings.
7. Hymo lapels — Irish Linen Fronts.
8. Over 100 suit lengths to choose from.
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 PRINCESS ST.

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe" Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Interfaculty Track Honours Captured By Arts Representatives Yesterday

A powerful Arts squad defeated Meds. and Science in an interfaculty Track and Field Meet at Richardson Stadium on Thursday afternoon, securing 79 points, while Science could only collect 39, and Meds. 4 points.

Close to a hundred competitors faced the cannon for the various events, and while no records were broken, some thrilling duels were witnessed by a small but interested crowd.

Many athletes showed the benefit of Walter Knox's coaching during the past two weeks. More could undoubtedly have been accomplished had the weather been propitious for track and field work.

A surprise was created when Weir of Science, defeated Kostuik for the shot put.

Hubbell of Arts was away out in front in the javelin throw.

The broad jump brought out a host of competitors and keen jumping, May of Science finally taking honors.

The discus went to Neil McKellog of Science, with Hubbell of Arts, second.

A big entry in the high jump was rapidly whittled down, Johnston of Arts, taking the bacon, with White of Arts, second.

A high wind made pole vaulting difficult, and the best Capstick, Science, could do was 8 ft. 6 in. to win. Hubbell got 2nd place.

440 yds. was hard fought with Fritz of Arts getting 1st place.

Champaign of Arts snared the 220 yd. hurdles, Annable finishing in second place.

100 yds. sprint brought out a field [illegible], and the winner's time, 10 1/5, wasn't bad. Way of Science got this.

A like sized field gathered for the 220 yds. sprint. Way scoring his second win in 23 4/5 seconds.

Champaign of Arts was first in the 120 yds. Hurdles. Annable second. Time 19 3/5.

The 880 yds. was a stern battle. Amey of Arts beating Casey and Luff of Science. Time 2.12 sec.

The 3 mile grind was taken by Jim Orr of Arts, with Burford second. Time, 17.49 4/5 sec.

Roger Nunn, Arts, galloped home first in the one mile, with Smyth second. The time, 4.56 1/5 was quite good.

OFFICIALS

Jimmy Bews, Starter.
Phil Brockel, Judge.
Prof. L. Arkley, Judge.
Athol Kenny, Timer.
Frank Anderson in charge of Track Events.
J. S. Hazen, in charge of Field Events.

RESULTS

16 Lb. Shot Put

1. Wier (S), 35 ft 4¾ in.
2. Kostuik (S), 33 ft 6 in.
3. Code (A), 32 ft. 10½ in.

Javelin Throw

1. Hubbell (A), 151 ft. 5 ins.
2. Weir (S), 128 ft. 1 in.
3. Michaelson (S), 127 ft.

Pole Vault

1. Capstick (S), 8 ft. 6 ins.
2. Hubbell (A), 8 ft. 4 ins.

Running Broad Jump

1. Way (S), 19 ft. 4½ ins.
2. Johnston (A), 19 ft.
3. Robinson (A), 18 ft. 1 in.

Discus

1. McKillop (A), 101 ft. 3 ins.
2. Hubbell (A), 91 ft. 3½ ins.
3. Wier (S), 89 ft. 10 ins.

Running High Jump

1. Johnston (A), 5 ft. 3½ ins.
2. White (A), 5 ft. 1½ ins.

440 Yards

1. Fritz (A), 56 2/5 sec.
2. Johnston (A).
3. Woogar (S).

220 Yd. Hurdles

1. Champaign (A), 29.4 sec.
2. Annable (A).

100 Yd. Sprint

1st Heat—
1. Way (S)
2. Amey (A). 10 1/5 sec.

2nd Heat—
1. Running (M)
2. Fritz (A). 10 3/5 sec.

Final—
1. Way (S)
2. Running (M)
3. Fritz (A). 10 1/5 sec.

120 Yd. Hurdles

1. Campaigne (A), 19 3/5 sec.
2. Annable (A).

220 Yd. Sprint

1st Heat—
1. Fritz (A), 23 3/5 sec.
2. Running (M).

2nd Heat—
1. Capstick (S)
2. Way (S)

Final—
1. Way (S), 23 4/5 sec.
2. Fritz (A)
3. Running (M).

880 Yards

1. Amey (A), 2.12.
2. Casey (A)
3. Lieff (A).

3 Mile

1. Orr (A), 17.49.
2. Burford (S).

1 Mile

1. Nunn (A), 4.56 1/5.
2. Smyth (S)
3. Cliff (A).

FORWARD PASSES

Boy. "Polish up the medals for Bill Glass." The little flying wing has been toting a sore leg around, wondering why it would not heal. And one bone was broken. What a lad.

* * * * * *

The most popular spot around the hospital isn't the nurse's residence these days. It's the diathermy room in the X-ray department. The boys get the bruises treated and then go and get some more bumps.

* * * * * *

Injuries stop the best of them. Sinclair was headed for his best year, but the shoulder injury sustained against Queen's may keep him out for the season.

* * * * * *

Can McGill take Varsity? The Red Men looked very impressive over the week-end with a win over Western and a tie with Winged Wheelers. Varsity, without Sinclair, might be like a doughnut without a hole. It's a toss up.

* * * * * *

Infantile Paralysis lined up with the R.M.C. Intermediates on Monday afternoon and assisted materially in downing our Tricolor seconds. A number of the Second Team are still in quarantine and they were missed.

* * * * * *

Bill Carr's nose was finally collected from around the rest of his face and put back intact in the proper spot.

* * * * * *

Well, will Western be the first victim?

Seniors Not Disheartened Over Saturday's Reverse

Continued from page 1

Other minor ailments, have cleared up and the team will be in good condition, with the exception of the two men mentioned.

The boys learned plenty in the Varsity game and Coach Burt has drilled them earnestly in an effort to plug up weak spots and perfect timing. Last Saturday's game is all over now and with it, the mistakes and tough breaks that featured it. The team is in no whit disheartened by the reverse and they will step onto the Mustang's field with a world of determination and courage.

The Westerners will prove a tough team to take on their home campus. They showed plenty in the pre-season game against Tigers and again in their opening game with McGill. Featured by a line that will offer the utmost in resistance, and gain many a yard in offensive, the Mustangs also have a kicker to boast about in Patterson. They have had a lot of luck with forward passes this season and they can be counted upon to use that method if they need to.

Western are taking nothing for granted in this game with Queen's. They realize as others do, that Queen's are a much better team than the score showed last Saturday and they expect one of the hardest battles of the year.

Queen's will likely line up the same as against Varsity with suitable changes where injuries will prevent players from taking their usual jobs.

Team play, a feature always difficult to obtain in a team newly formed, will be much more in evidence tomorrow, and results will surely follow. A week's intensive practising, including a brush with R.M.C. on Wednesday evening has materially aided the team in becoming letter perfect in plays. The Mustangs expect a hard game and they will get it.

Western Team Ready To Meet Tricolor To-morrow

Continued from page 1

squad entered the Kingston School this year. Davoud, half-back; Carr, quarter, and Storms, outside wing, are the three former Cadets of whom coach Milt Burt is expecting much this year. All three are better than average players. Davoud being the outstanding halfback in intermediate intercollegiate ranks last year.

Capt. "Howie" Carter should have a good year with Davoud and "Weenie" Day as running partners in the back-field. The former Sarnia boy is capable of playing a bang-up game and always bears watching. He is likely, however, to find a match in Gord Paterson, whom Carter taught how to kick. In addition, "Pat" has become adept at forward passing. Along the line, the Mustangs should show their superiority, although Queen's have some smart linemen in Hamlin, Purvis, and Byrne. Storms and Ralph are both experienced ends and will give Western's starry pair — McKay and McLachlin, plenty of opposition. McKay never played better than on Saturday against McGill, and he seems headed for a great year.

In fact, next Saturday's game has all the earmarks of a real battle and don't think for a minute that Queen's are going to be "easy". They're "plenty tough"—they always are.

Silence.

He: Is it all over.

She: No, just a little on your shoulder.

Coach W. Knox Has Enviable Reputation

With the staging of the Intercollegiate Track and Field championships, in Toronto only a short time away, enthusiasts in that branch of sport at Queen's (and there are too few of them) are in the thick of a training siege under the tutelage of that capable coach and exponent of track and field sports, Walter Knox.

WALTER KNOX

Do the students at Queen's know the ability and experience that Mr. Knox brings to the university? Do they know the achievements that Mr. Knox has gained in competition with the world's finest athletes, and in many countries of this globe? Few men have been able to accomplish as much in the field of athletics as the following partial list of honours will show.

Born in Listowel, Ontario, Mr. Knox took to athletics at as early an age as possible. It is not unusual to find an athlete of very promising ability, winning renown in one particular line of sport, because he has devoted all his time and energy to perfecting himself in that one line. But here is a man, weighing slightly less than 150 pounds, who could and did compete with not one, but three world's champions, in three specialties, namely sprinting, jumping and weight-throwing. Here are some of his records. 100 yards in 9 3/5 seconds; 220 yards in 23 seconds; standing high jump, 5 feet; running high jump, 5′ 7″; pole vault 12′ 6″; standing broad jump, 10′ 7½″; running broad jump, 24′ 2″; putting 12 pound shot, 46′ 5″.

In connection with putting the shot, it is amusing and interesting to note that Mr. Knox competed in Scotland in both the 12 and 16 pound shot events, against men who weighed 190 and 230 pounds respectively. Yet, so astounded were the judges at his feat, that they ordered both Mr. Knox and the shot weighed after the games. It was found that the shot was 2 oz. over-weight, and that Mr. Knox weighed 147 pounds.

There are other feats worth mentioning. At Santa Clara, in California, Walter Knox won five firsts. There is a connection between that event and the past olympic games. Mr. Knox firmly believes that the climate of California is so ideally suited to athletics, that records established at the last Olympic games will never be bettered, except in California again. And as he has competed in many climes he should know. At Sudbury Mr. Knox won 10 firsts, and in one hundred yard trial four judges clocked him in 10 2/5 secs., a feat never equalled. In one summer in Scotland he separated the Scotch from 106 prizes and he should get another medal for doing that. He has held the all-round Canadian indoor championship, and the all-round outdoor professional championship of America.

In 1914 he was selected as chief Olympic coach for he British Isles, for the 1916 games. These games of course were never held because of a more strenuous campaign in Flanders.

One is tempted to ask why, with the opportunity of receiving instruction from such a mentor, more Queen's students do not turn out for track and field sports? Is it because we haven't enough of the right kind of Queen's spirit? Surely in this university of some 1700 students, it is possible to field a squad that would bring honor to the Tricolor emblem on the track and in the field.

There are many handicaps in the way of fielding a strong track team even with the expert coaching that Mr. Knox can give. The chief one is that the period between registration and the occurrance of the track meet is quite short, allowing very little time for instruction. If it were possible to have all likely prospects here for even a week prior to the opening of college it would give a coach a much better chance to determine what material he had to work with.

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

SPECIAL
SPALDING BADMINTON RAQUETS HALF PRICE
While they last as now priced as $1.60
Birds 30c each or $3.25 per doz.
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200
Phone 1200 for Rugby Score

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

WE WELCOME YOU TO KINGSTON
And would appreciate being able to include you among the hundreds of Graduates and Undergraduates of Queen's University it has been our pleasure to serve.
Queen's Sweaters and Sweater Coats
Queen's Blazers
Savile Row Suits and Topcoats
Makers of Queen's Gowns and Hoods
VanHorne's
Men's Shop
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM. Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1850

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE
or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

McGill Holds Winged Wheelers To 3-3 Tie

Montreal—The Winged Wheel has ceased its conquering roll; another football hero has been written in sport's scroll; and McGill's smart and rejuvenated rugby squad has gone one step closer to its goal.

Led by the stellar punting of Herby Westman, who out-kicked the M.A.A.A.'s best by five yards on almost every occasion, the Red twelve, minus the services of Hammond, Krukowski, Garcelon and Lee, stood up well to the bruising and battering tactics of a team fighting for its reputation, and before a near-capacity crowd of 10,000 that witnessed one of the fiercest battles ever waged in a local arena, held the highly-touted Dominion champions to a three-all draw, and broke their victorious streak of 18 consecutive victories.

Notable Achievement

The Redmen did that which every team in the Big Four has failed to accomplish. For two years, the Peel Street gridders dominated Canadian football circles in no uncertain fashion, mowing down opposition from all directions, and of all kinds. Last year, in the annual Thanksgiving clash between these two twelves, the Redmen forced the Wheelers to extend themselves before eking out a close victory, and yesterday, the McGilliads called on the Dominion champs to give their best, and even then the latter had to be content with a draw.

It most certainly was no Thanksgiving for Clarry Foran.

Six Single Points

All scoring was the result of energetic punting on both sides. From the very first Westman gave indications that so far as he was concerned, the game would be a kicking battle. When McGill first got possession on their own 35, the freshman booting ace punted 55 yards to Welch on the first down. The Redmen's trio of counters all came from Westman, while two of M.A.A.A.'s were from Welch, and the third from Baysinger.

Both teams were quite unwilling to try many forwards, and so the McGilliads attempted eight, and the Wheelers nine. The former completed six and the latter five, but the collegians only gained six yards more on the whole from the forward flip. But M.A.A.A. was vastly superior on the line, gaining almost 310 yards from scrimmage as compared to the Redmen's 150; Jotkins and Burns were the outstanding plungers for the Dominion champs.

U. of M. Will Return To Senior Hockey League

Montreal, (C.I.P.) — After an absence of five years, University of Montreal will return to the Intercollegiate Senior Hockey League this fall, it was learned last night. During the past three years Toronto University and McGill have operated as a two-club league.

With the return of University of Montreal only Queen's University, Kingston, will be missing from the four-club league which used to operate. The intentions of Queen's the current season are not known here.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

Sports Views

M. J. Rodden in the Toronto Globe says:

"The winning march of the Montreal Winged Wheelers was halted when an inspired McGill University aggregation held the Grey Cup holders to a 3-to-3 tie. Previously the Wheelers had rolled up a total of eighteen victories in succession, but five or six of them should never have been counted in view of the fact that they were registered against intermediate teams, such as C.N.R. and Nationals.

"Queen's University's great record of twenty-six in a row had been threatened by Hamilton Tigers and the Wheelers, but that is all over now, and no challenger will arise for some years to come. Queen's defeated only senior teams in establishing the high-water mark, and aspirants to the laurels should remember this in future.

"Warren Stevens, coach of the University of Toronto seniors, thinks that the Wheelers will hit their stride again, and be the team to beat for the Canadian title, but he also opines that the Montrealers will have to show improvement, and that quickly, if they hope to turn back the Hamilton Tigers, and retain possession of the Big Four title.

"Stevens says that Hal. Baysinger is a great player even if the former Syracuse star has failed to get going to date. The U. of T. Mentor also declares that Wally Masters of the Ottawa Rough Riders will astound the fans and critics. Masters established a remarkable record at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was rated among the best players in the United States. Strange, indeed, it is how Ottawa secured his valuable services!

The wily "T" tutor declined to make any statement regarding his team, but he did say that Queen's showed weakness in last Saturday's game. Jack Sinclair, as smart a ball-carrier as one would wish to see, ran wild at Richardson Stadium, and the Tricolor never had a chance."

FRESHMAN ANSWERS

Cedar Falls, Ia., (I.P.)—Not that you should judge a freshman at Iowa State Teachers' College by the answers he gives in an intelligence test, but then—here are some of the freshmen's answers.

Prosecution—The killing of a large number of persons.

Adulteration — Growth from childhood to maturity.

Jamboree — Shallow one-headed drum with jingles at the side.

Atheist—A plant or animal that lives at the expense of others.

Insull Failure Will Not Affect Chair Of Medicine

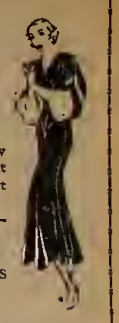
Continued from page 1

Dr. McNeill in conclusion stated, "It is indeed unfortunate that any reflection on the financial status of the University should come into the light of the public gaze. From a mercenary standpoint the position of the University is unaltered, which can easily be seen, as the stock has never paid dividends. Pecuniarily speaking the chair of Preventive Medicine is in no way endangered as the Budget of the University is successfully balanced each year."

"Junior's letter is rather short."

"So is Junior or he'd never have taken the trouble to write."

Loss Of Sinclair Hurts Blue And White Team



Toronto — A pretty formidable looking outfit last week-end with Jack Sinclair, the long-legged pillar of the backfield, running wild for huge gains, booting superbly and generally crushing Queen's under his heel, University of Toronto's intercollegiate team is just a hustling bunch of football boys today with more determination than anyone believed they could muster.

The Varsity band are preparing for McGill's invasion Saturday without hope that "Long Jawn" will be with them in the flesh. The big captain was carried from the field at Kingston with a dislocated shoulder and it will be at least three weeks before he sees more action.

In the meantime, he is helping Warren Stevens and Dr. Harry Hobbs to whip the Blue team into a force strong enough to withstand the McGill charge. Having beaten Western Mustangs in their intercollegiate opener, then come back to hold Montreal Wheelers, Canadian champions, to a tie two days later, the Red menace from the east is considered about the toughest unit to beat in the college union.

Western will be back home Saturday to take on Queen's and try to get back in the running. Ottawa Roughriders bring their Wally Masters, the Pennsylvanian who promises to be the year's sensation, to Hamilton for battle with the burly Bengals in the Big Four and Argonauts journey to Montreal to meet the Wheelers.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

TIES!!
TIES!!
Hard to believe that such fine neckties could be priced so low as this — that neckties from leading Canadian Craftsmen using imported materials could also be priced so low. We're a little concerned that this price may give a misconception of the QUALITY. BUT JUST SEE THEM FOR YOURSELF.
Patterns and color blending are a glowing tribute to continental weavers. They are impeccably finished, generously cut—wear longer, tie neater and easier and wrinkle less—mostly all interlined.
:-: BUY THEM FOR SCHOOL WEAR :-:
39c.
2 for 75c
SOCKS SPECIAL
Fancy Pattern Wool Socks
All sizes—Reg. 65c
3 for $1
BROADCLOTH SHIRTS
Special quality Broadcloth shirts—White, Blue, Sand
Reg. $1.95
Special $1.45
EXTRA SALES PEOPLE TO SPEED UP SERVICE
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR RENT

A number of rooms, double and single, with a private bathroom, Open fire-place and hot-water heating. Comfortably furnished. Would suit a group of men or will rent separately. Board if desired.

Phone 488
123 King St. E., Cor. of West St.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Economy for Students!
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St.

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch-Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Which reminds me

Strong Slushy Stuff

As I was walking down Clergy St. in my usual alert manner this morning one of the "hard-ups" accosted me. "Could ya give me a dime for something to eat mister? I'm kinda hungry."

"Sorry," I replied, exploring the pocket with the hole in it, "but I'm a student and haven't got much money."

"Aw mister, just a nickel," he urged.

After that I couldn't restrain my generosity any longer, and turning my head away to hide a manly tear, I thrust five cents into his hand. "Thanks mister," he said. "So you're a student, eh? Well guess maybe I'll be able to do the same for you some day!" And before I had gulped back my composure he was gone.

RIMES FOR THE TIMES

C.O.T.C. (with apologies to Scott)

Sound, sound the claxon, fill the fife,
To all the sensual world proclaim
One hour of pseudo-martial life
Is worth a fortnight with a flame.

PROVERBS FOR TODAY

People who live with glass bottles shouldn't throw their boots in the cupboard.

What a gumph he is! Spends $12 on a Queen's sweater and he has green nail brush! Be patriotic; buy yourself a tricolor nail brush to-morrow. On sale at all leading stores in greater Kingston. (Advt.)

BRAIN FLASH

If brains were nitro-glycerine, some students couldn't even raise their hats.

LATE NEWS

I have just learned that Professor Mudbottom, whose monumental work on sea horses and horse marines has now become a classic, will attend Convocation this fall to receive an honorary degree, the exact nature of which has not been officially announced. Professor Mudbottom is known to a wide public on account of his research work in the field of marine, ultra marine, submarine and antisubmarine investigation. Bottoms up, Professor! —HAYWIRE.

Campus and Gym

Softball practices will be held at one o'clock for all girls interested in the year teams. Attendance at softball practice on at least two days a week is compulsory for Freshettes, as it takes the place of gymnasium classes.

Rain Delays Men's Tennis Tournament

There are two matches yet to be played in the first round of the Men's Tennis Tournament. Several seeded players advanced in the matches already played. Grant defeated L. Brown, 6-2, 6-1, and Muir defeated Labbath by default. Butler defeated Samuel 6-0, 6-1. Connolly defeated A. McLaren 6-0, -1. Charland defeated R. McDonald 6-2, 6-1, and Low defeated C. Abbot 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. Rollins was forced to default as he is in quarantine since the outbreak of infantile paralysis. The progress of the Tournament has been delayed by the large number of entries and the inclemency of the weather, but already several matches of the second round have been played.

World News Briefly

All is not well in the Soviet Union by any means.

Two high government officials, Gregory Zinouieff and Leo Kamenoff and 18 lesser members of the Communist party have been brauded as "traitors" and expelled from the party for attempting to introduce capitalism.

These men claimed particularly that the collectivization system of agriculture had been a failure.

* * *

The unemployment enigma reached revolutionary proportions in Ireland, Tuesday, when over 10,000 went berserk in Belfast, burning tram cars, looting shops and tying up traffic.

Additional police from six counties around Belfast had to be called in to quell the riot. One man was killed and forty-eight wounded.

* * *

President Hoover's proposal of an all round one-third reduction in armaments to break the Franco-German deadlock was put before Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon in London, Oct. 11th.

Norman H. Davis, U.S. representative, talked with Mr. MacDonald, Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell, First Lord of the Admiralty and Sir Walter Layton, British member of the committee on organization of the world economic conference.

It is understood that Mr. Davis was successful in preparing the ground for three issues, disarmament situation, naval reduction and the world economic conference.

* * *

The Duff Report of the Royal Commission investigating Canada's transportation problem was made public Tuesday.

The report criticizes the policy of expansion and extension of services carried out by the railway without regard for economy. Particularly, it mentions branch lines and de luxe services—hotels, steamship services. A considerable part of the report is devoted to bus and transport competition. The commissioners suggest that these services might be put in the hands of the R.R.

* * *

The Imperial Conference agreements were tabled Wednesday afternoon for the consideration of the House of Commons.

Altogether, changes may occur in 262 items on Canadian Tariff schedules; 76 new classes of goods will be granted free entry; 89 products coming from foreign countries will undergo increases; 49 increases in General and Intermediate tariffs, and decreases in the British preference complete the list.

Iron and steel, automobiles, trucks and motor cycles, also textiles, leathers, chemicals, vegetable oils, and liquors are some of the more important products affected.

RUGGER AT QUEEN'S

A match between a team raised by Professor Bridger of the R.M.C. and a team representing Queen's, has been arranged for next Wednesday, October 19th. The match will be played at 4 p.m. on the R.M.C. ground. It is understood that Professor Bridger's team will be composed, in the main, of Cadets.

It is noteworthy that the Athletic Board of Control has already received an enquiry from the University of Toronto regarding the possibility of a fixture with the newly formed club at Queen's. It is hoped that, if the U. of T. prove willing, an exhibition game may be fixed, to be played in Kingston before the season closes.

Campus Cut-ups

Hello Folksies! Here we are again, bigger than Life, and twict as Handsome 3/8. And how IS your Uncle? I feel so Good, how about a little Mental Arithmetic, can't I persuade you? We have Vanilla Too. Alright, alright, no Mental Arithmetic, but that just proves the Answer is 28, or else 21/2 horses. And if it t'ain't one it's t'other. You can't escape it, it's Relentless, it's Inevitable, it's Friday.

Well, I says to him, 'His name is liddle Oswald, end his Mumma end his Puppa goes out, see, and leaves him wid de Baby Brother, and when they come back, they find die Baby Brother wid his ears Tacked to the Wall, and they laughed, and they laugher, because they didn't know liddle Oswald could use a Hammer.' And he says, we say, you say, They say, 'the Answer mus' be 28.' And I laughed, and I laughed, 'cos that WAS the Answer—, see? 7/16 & 5/11%!

So by this time, see, everythin's whirlin' About, and it's jush too Funny, I mean Everythingsh Awfulsh' Funny. Take the Mike, Chooly. (Ch, says, 'What Mike?') and I says, 'Any Mike.' Ch. S.—Oh, the Mike! They're down they're up they're down they're up, no he isn't, yes he is—just a minuit—yeshe's not. 'Ch,. sys—' You can have it Now, I'm going out to get a Sandwich. So I took the Mike.

Prof. Roy To Speak On Malvern Festival

Professor Roy of the English Department has chosen The Malvern Festival as the theme of his address to the Dramatic Guild at their meeting in the Red Room this evening.

The Malvern Festival was first held only a few years ago, but has gained great popularity with each yearly meeting. Bernard Shaw is the presiding genius and his plays were dealt with during the first meeting. Sir Barry Jackson is the sponsor of the movement. This summer, a period of four hundred years in the development of English Drama was covered, beginning with The Play of the Weather. This was followed by Ben Jonson and the modern age was shown in Shaw's Too True to be Good. The technical development and change from objective to subjective treatment in English Drama was noted.

Professor Roy will outline the work of the Malvern Festival and tell how the actors are chosen, their methods of acting and the technique of the stage.

Kingston Art Association Chooses Executive Officers

A reorganization meeting of the Art Group held at the Douglas Library, Queen's University, on Tuesday evening, resulted in the formation of the Kingston Art Association with the following officers:

President, R. G. Trotter; vice-president, E. C. Kyte; secretary-treasurer, Miss Annie Gibson.

Executive committee—Mrs. W. H. Fyfe, Mrs. Perry Mahood.

The association decided not to attempt to cater to the general public in its activities, but to confine these to persons sufficiently interested in its work to become active members.

Regular practice in drawing and painting, as well as the study of the history and appreciation of art will comprise its activities. Arrangements for these were discussed and definite announcement concerning them will be made in the near future.

WELCOME — —
To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."
To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S
UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

SUITS
$22.50 $24.50 $26.00
$30.00 $33.00 $35.00
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
BEST VALUES IN THE CITY
PHONE 487

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 18th, 1932 No. 6

Queen's Library

Courageous Tricolor Team Goes Down To Defeat In Desperate Tussle With Western Rugby Squad

Unfortunate Fumble Gives Mustang Squad Slight Edge In Game

A courageous Tricolor team went down to defeat at London on Saturday, battling until the echo of the final whistle had faded away. Stung by the overwhelming reverse they had suffered on their own ground in the opening game, the Queen's team showed far better football against Western and might easily have won, but for an unfortunate fumble. As it was the score of 8 to 5, reveals what a close, thrilling battle it was, with a break either way deciding the issue.

There were quite a few fumbles injected into the game and the possibility of a score resulting from them had the crowd on its toes. The break came in the second quarter. Patterson of Western had lifted a spiral to Weenie Day who tore down the field, passing to Davoud when tackled. Davoud who had played a whale of a game before this, fumbled, and Western recovered about fifteen yards out from Queen's line. That was bad enough, but an offside by Queen's brought play to their five yard line, and a Mustang touch was easy. .

That touch and its convert gave Western a big enough margin to win, for while Queen's made a desperate attempt to tie things up, the best they could do was to add one in the third quarter via Davoud's try for a field goal and Davoud's placement from the thirty yard mark in the final quarter. . Western added one in the last period to make things secure.

Howie Carter's hoof was in evidence throughout, while Davoud was outstanding with his all round work. Storms was injured in the third quarter and was forced to retire. It was not thought that he was badly hurt.

The first quarter was all Queen's as they had Western bottled up in

(Continued on page 6)

Illustrated Lecture Reveals City History

An interesting and instructive lecture on the history of Kingston from the first settlement to modern times was given by Prof. McArthur in Convocation Hall, recently, to a capacity audience. An added interest was provided by lantern slides of the city in various stages of its development.

"Kingston's historical significance was primarily due to its geographical location," said Prof. McArthur. "It was on the main highway of travel for both the French and the English, for it could be approached via the St. Lawrence or via the Mohawk-Hudson waterway. The greater part of Kingston's rôle in the history of Canada was played prior to 1840."

"Fort Frontenac was first erected to secure and protect the fur trade with the Hurons in the west. The Tête du Pont Barracks were

Continued on page 3

Warrington To Resign Presidency Of Arts

At a special meeting of the Arts Society Executive held yesterday noon, Stu. Warrington tendered his resignation as President of the Society, to run as a candidate in the forthcoming A.M.S. Elections.

In an interview with one of the members of the executive, our reporter learnt that the resignation had been received, but that nothing would be done until the next general meeting of the Society.

In the meantime Alan Sprague will occupy the chair.

Engineers Nominate Executive Candidates

Frosh Requested To Support Activities

With Sid Parkes in the chair, the first meeting of the Engineering Society was held last Friday afternoon in Carruthers Hall. The meeting was primarily called for the nomination of officers to the Engineering Society, to fill positions left vacant by forced graduations, and also to introduce the freshmen to the mysteries of Society Meetings.

The Frosh were asked to cooperate with the society all year, and also were given th privilege of campaigning in the forthcoming A.M.S. elections. After the meeting the Sophs made a check up on tams and ribbons and also took attendance, and it was surprising how many "Frosh" were absent, even though attendance was compulsory.

The "Scienceers" nominated were: for Second Vice-President, Ken Southern and Milt Buell; for Assistant Secretary, W. Nesbitt and H. Walker; for Treasurer, E. Wright and D. Horie; for third year Representative, H. Elliot and S. MacTaggart; for Vice-President of the Athletic Committee, C. Woolgar and John Kostuik; and for second year Constable D. Hutchison and R. Thoman.

Another Death Of Infantile Paralysis

Another fatality from infantile paralysis was recorded at the Kingston General Hospital yesterday.

The latest victim of the disease was Lilian Conboy, aged 18, of Mountain Grove, Ont. When Miss Conboy came into the city she had already contracted the infection, and died within two days. Dr. Connell in an interview with a Jounral reporter insisted that there was no occasion for alarm as all precautions have been taken in the city to prevent the spread of the disease.

Canada's Population Is Approaching Saturation Point Says Prof. McArthur

"The population of Canada is approaching saturation point," declared Professor Duncan McArthur in an interview with a Journal reporter recently. "I am aware that this will sound like heresy to a great many people, but I am firmly convinced that under the present economic system the population of Canada can be increased only at the expense of the prevailing standards of living."

When asked his reasons for this opinion, Professor McArthur explained, "An increase in population can only be sustained by a proportionately remunerative increase in production. But a moment's consideration will show that an increase in output of wheat for example would have the effect of lowering the price of wheat; similarly an increase in production of manufactured goods would serve to depress existing price levels. In other words the average per capita return from production, would be diminished and the general standard of living correspondingly reduced."

Those who advocate a vigorous policy of Empire immigration for Canada are out of touch with economic realities, considers Professor McArthur. "Since 1900 Canada has not increased her population by permanent immigration, but by natural growth from within; and the influx of European emigrants has been counterbalanced by an outflow of Canadians into the United States."

"It is no longer true today," Professor McArthur went on, "to expect that an increased output is likely to find a market ready to absorb it. On the contrary such increases tend only to reduce the too frequently scanty profits made by the primary producer and generally to reduce the common national standard of life. And so we have the paradox of want in the midst of plenty as a by-product of the failure of the present economic system to effect a more favourable distribution of wealth, especially among those who have done most to earn it."

Serious Outbreak Occurred At Kingston Penitentiary Yesterday

Militia Called to Stand By As Prisoners Stage Protest Against Real Or Fancied Wrongs

A serious outbreak occurred at the Kingston Penitentiary yesterday evening, October 16th.

Although officials of the Penetentiary had been forbidden to make any statement to the press a persistent Journal reporter was able to glean a few facts concerning the outbreak.

There is reason to believe that tronble has been brewing for the past ten days.

This discontent came to a head yesterday when prisoners broke into open revolt. So serious was the situation that the Warden deemed it necessary to call out the Militia and a battery was set up to ensue the quelling of the disorder.

Observers outside the prison say several shots were fired by the guards during the disturbance but so far it is not known whether anyone was seriously injured. It is helieved that some of the guards were shut up in the work shop by the prisoners in the course of the outbreak.

The revolt is the most serious in years or indeed in the history of the Kingston Penitentiary.

The Warden of the Penitentiary when interviewed by a Journal reporter refused to make any statement regarding the disturbance. The revolt which involved over five hundred prisoners hegan at 3 o'clock and was not completely under control by 9.30 last night.

Chemical Society To Hear Dr. Goodwin

The first monthly meeting of the Chemical Engineers will be held in the Chemical Engineering Department of Ontario Hall on Wednesday, October 19th at 4 p.m. when Doctor Goodwin will speak on scenes and conditions of undergradnate life in other Universities, illustrating his remarks with anecdotes drawn from his own days.

This and subsequent meetings are entirely open to all Science students, while a special invitation is extended to Freshmen, and second year students interested in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering. Tea will be served before Doctor Goodwin's talk, and those coming are advised to bring their own beakers.

Grant and Connolly Win Semi - Finals

Play in the men's tennis tournament narrowed down to the finals over the week-end when Doug. Grant, defending champion, disposed of Elton Butler in three hard sets and Charlie Connolly defeated Doug. Muir in another three set encounter.

Despite counter attractions at the stadium these semi-final matches attracted a good crowd. The Grant-Butler proved to be the longer one, as the contestants exchanged strokes for well over an hour and one half. Butler took the first, but Grant evened the count by copping the second handily. Grant went on to win the third and the match. The final score was 5-7, 6-0, 6-3.

Charlie Connolly, former University of Ottawa star, defeated Muir by the score of 6-2, 2-6, 6-3. Both men played a hard hitting game and the rallies, while of short duration, packed plenty of punch, Muir rushed the net on nearly every opportunity and worried Connolly considerably, but the latter never let up, and ran the match out by taking the third set at 6-3.

Election Fever Seizes Students As Campus Politicians Marshall Forces For Coming Ballot Battle

A.M.S. Voting Regulations Article 9

Section 3: The annual election of officers shall be held on or about October 20th between the hours of 12 noon and 5 p.m.

Section 5: Any elector who cannot vote at the polls shall be allowed at any time within 48 hours previous to the poll to vote, deposit his or her ballot in a sealed envelope and hand the same to the Secretary, who shall have it recorded with the votes of the regular poll.

Classic Halls Throb With Discussion Of Election Prospects

After surviving a threat of infantile paralysis, Queen's is in the throes of election fever. Go where you will there is no escape from the topic of the hour. On the campus, in the Library, in the Union, even in the inner recesses of the Meds and Science building wherever two or three are gathered together the talk is of election prospects and personalities.

The lecturer in a fine frenzy is entirely unable to command the attention of his student audience; even the class of Culbertson and crap-shooting are disregarded in the general excitement, while ancient traditions of the student franchise for self-government, jealously held up to admiration throughout the year, now assert themselves, clothed in the majesty of immediate importance.

So far campaigning has been of the peaceful penetration type. As yet no broken windows or paint-smeared automobiles testify to the exuberance of Arts or Science frosh. But still there is a motion in the air that witnesses unusual influences at work. Both parties have adopted election slogans, which passing rapidly from month to month, are likely to prove a potent factor in the final result. "Watch for the Meds.-Science platform," urges one side. "Your interest is our platform," their opponents retaliate.

Campaign managers spend lives of feverish activity organizing for victory. From now until election day, Friday, Oct. 21st., their whole energy will be devoted to "putting one over," "the other party." In the meantime candidates are adamant in their refusal to make political committments and promises before their inaugural speeches, so that to use Lord Oxford's classic phrase, all we can do is "wait and see."

History Of Student Government Traced

Student Interest Has Fluctuated Greatly

Student self-government at Queen's University has undergone an interesting evolution since its incorporation in 1888. Government by the student body first made its appearance in 1858-59. By 1901 it was a well developed organization. In that year the Athletic Committee of the Alma Mater Society was faced with a deficit of almost a thousand dollars and, despite ill success on campus and ice managed to reduce it to eighty-five dollars. At this time the meetings were held at seven-thirty on Saturday evenings. After the business was attended to, there was some special entertainment which usually lasted until eleven o'clock. Saturday came to be known as A.M.S. night. All the Journal Staff was appointed by the Alma Mater Society. In 1902-03 the plans for the building of Grant Hall were finally put into action. The Alma Mater Society was responsible for the building of this memorial as well as for the purchase of about a hundred cushions to be used at entertainments.

In 1905-06 the 733 members polled their votes at one of three polls. Only a graduate with at least four years at Queen's could be president. As there were few candidates this office was generally filled by accla-

Continued on page 4

Next Issue Saturday

The next issue of the Journal will be published on Saturday, October 22nd. It will contain the full story of the A.M.S. elections.

Local Officials Thwart Student Smugglers Cigarette Seizure Provides Customs Booty

Principal W. H. Fyfe's famous remarks made last spring about the students that look like criminals have been justified at last for on Sunday afternoon one hundred and sixteen (116) students, "male and female created he them," were caught in their heinous occupation of cigarette smuggling by zealous Customs Officers.

The exposure of the smuggling ring came as a climax to the special tour of the 100 Islands arranged by the Yacht Edith Lines. The student tourists had sought to combine business with pleasure and make the trip pay for itself by bringing back huge quantities of American cigarettes. All went as merrily as the well-known wedding-bell until the boat docked at Kingston on its return trip and the criminals were caught red-handed with the goods by local officials. It is alleged that the Kingston Customs Office was tipped off by disgruntled Clayton merchants who had taken exception to the souvenir-hunting antics of the visiting students.

Even at that the majority of the coeds had the last langh as the search was limited to males only.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713
BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, OCT. 18th, 1932

The Rhodes Scholarships

Every year these scholarships founded by Cecil Rhodes carry to Oxford University two students from the Province of Ontario. And we have all heard that brawn as well as brain plays a part in their selection.

Since it is high time that Queen's produced another Rhodes scholar — the last was D. A. Skelton in 1926 — some further and more accurate information may not be out of place.

It is not true that brawn is an essential qualification for a Rhodes scholarship. In his will Cecil Rhodes specified four qualifications of which he considered the first two the most important:—

(1) Literary and scholastic ability and attainments;

(2) Manhood, truth, courage, devotion to duty, sympathy for and protection of the weak, kindliness, unselfishness and fellowship;

(3) Moral force of character and the instinct to lead and to take an interest in fellow-students;

(4) Fondness for and success in manly sports as cricket, football and the like.

In short what the members of the Selection Committee look for is intellect, personality, and good physique.

Candidates for a Rhodes Scholarship must be between the ages of 19 and 25, and are usually selected at about the age of 22 when they are not likely to have developed fully the quality of leadership. But it is clear from the wording of his will that Rhodes meant to insist upon a quality which may still be latent, and that he regarded leadership as consisting as much in moral courage and public spirit as in more aggressive and spectacular qualities. Clearly the best candidate need not have captained a football or a hockey squad nor have been elected to office by the votes of his fellow-students. These may be ingredients in the quality of leadership, but it may equally well be shown in resisting ill-founded or ungenerous undergraduates opinion and risking odium for the good of the community.

As to athletics, Rhodes made it clear in his conversation and in letters that he was not looking for star athletes but rather for men of good physique who could play games well enough to make them an easy road of entry into social life. At Oxford all but a small minority of the undergraduates play games, not only those who represent the University, and in this way an undergraduate, whether he is a good athlete or not, finds many opportunities of "mixing" which he would otherwise miss.

In awarding Rhodes scholarships the selectors must necessarily examine the past record of each candidate. But they are more interested in the future than the past. It is "promise" they look for. The scholarship is meant to be not a reward for past success but an opportunity to be given to the man who shows promise of being able to take advantage of it, that is to say the man who shows the clearest signs of intelligence, moral courage, good comradeship and sound health.

Beauty

Most people would presumably agree that they love beauty, although their definitions of the word and their ability to find examples of it would doubtless differ widely. But why is it that beauty is so universally sought? There must be other reasons than an inherent desire for harmony in Nature and life: and yet the most passionate seekers of beauty, who know what it is to hear their souls shout within them at sight of it, are often quite incapable of explaining their feelings coherently. They cannot even say whether they are merely momentarily uplifted by it, or whether they feel morally, spiritually strengthened on their way to Heaven.

What, for instance underlies the sensations experienced when you do what is so inadequately called "admiring the view?" Perhaps it is a sudden realization of the sublime success achieved by Nature in spite of the incredible muddle of mankind: a profound relief that there is after all something satisfying in life. And with that feeling of pure delight comes restlessness, irritation at the pathetic inability of man to stamp beauty on his mind: he must look at it and lose it for ever, forgetting how bright the colors were. Or is it possible to fold it up inside one, to be shaken out and displayed in an empty moment? It does not seem credible that we are not the better for having witnessed beauty: yet have you ever remarked that people are better-tempered after they have seen a sunset?

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Debating

The approaching battle of wits and oratory to be waged by debaters from across the sea against McGill representatives will once again direct the spotlight upon debating. This indeed is one activity which is consistently in the foreground. Rarely does a season go by without several debates of special importance and interest, debates that draw attention from a wider field than the university. McGill men and women for some time past have been building a high reputation in debating, and there is every indication that this reputation will be continued.

Probably the chief benefit to be derived from this debating is mental stimulus, which is felt both by the speaker and the listener. Presentation of two sides of an argument at least has a tendency to awaken thought and an intelligent audience should gain much from an intelligent debate. The debaters themselves are keyed up to think quickly and to speak clearly. Yet debating has this evil: it may lay too great a stress on speaking as an art.

Clever and inspiring oratory can do more harm than inarticulate malice. Many of our cheaper politicians realize this, and draw support by their eloquence alone. Eloquence can wield greater influence than reason, appealing, as it so often does, to the emotions worn upon our sleeves. This, on the face of it may appear to encourage any man with ambitions to acquire eloquence, and let thought be secondary.

It does. But it should do something more — make the world distrustful and suspicious of brilliant oratory. If debating can show to one or two that skill in speaking is merely a show-case, a dressing for thought, it will have accomplished something. And if it can help us to distinguish right thinking from false it will have accomplished a lot more.

—McGill Daily.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

During the first week in November one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

(c) No student shall hold more than two scholarships. For example, a student may hold the Sir Sandford Fleming Scholarship and one of the above new scholarships.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

GET A SLANT OF THIS!

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Pretty, isn't it? But take a look in his pocket . . . we'll bet dollars to doughnuts he's forgotten the most important part of his wardrobe . . . his Turrets. You can succeed socially even when you're minus a trouser button, but without Turrets the best people simply won't know you.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

SUITS
$22.50 $24.50 $26.00
$30.00 $33.00 $35.00
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
BEST VALUES IN THE CITY
PHONE 487

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS !
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores 3

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

FREDDIE DURDEN FOR SECRETARY

PRINTING MINUTES OF A.M.S. MEETINGS INTRODUCED BY MEDS-SCIENCE EXECUTIVE.

VOTE MEDS-SCIENCE In The Interests Of RESPONSIBLE STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout

Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Economy for Students!
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St.

The Observer

"If ye break faith . . ."

"In order to render possible the initiation of a general limitation of the armaments of all nations, Germany undertakes strictly to observe the military, naval, and air clauses which follow." Opening paragraph of Part Five of the Treaty of Versailles.

The continued unreadiness of the ex-allied nations to redeem the promise of disarmament implicit in the Treaty of 1919 and otherwhere specifically acknowledged by them has recently precipitated in Germany a revolt against her continued military inferiority among world powers, and prompted the declaration of General von Schleicher that Germany will advance towards equality of armaments with other great nations by increasing the fighting power of her army unless they decrease the fighting power of theirs.

By those to whom this pronouncement causes dismay it has been suggested that the German desire for equality of military strength with other nations is something new. It is, of course, anything but that; on the contrary, it has been a constant aim of German foreign policy since Versailles; the endeavour not only of reactionary politicians, but of sane realists like Stresemann and Dr. Bruning. It was in the hope of achieving an advance of this kind that Stresemann signed the Treaty of Locarno, and Dr. Bruning sent delegates to the present Disarmament Conference; and always success has seemed beyond reach. So that finally after enduring several months of inconsequential dilly dallying at Geneva an exasperated Germany has attempted to force the issue upon the unwilling attention of the Powers in such a manner that positive action of a drastic nature has to be taken.

Nothing is gained by an invidious attempt to apportion blame for the present critical situation. It has been commonly stated in certain sections of the press that the uncompromising tactics of the French Foreign Ministry constitute a threat to the advancement of good relations between Germany and the victor powers; but less attention is drawn to the indeterminate and undetermined policies pursued by other countries in regard to the armaments problem. Whereas at all events French policy has been consistent, English and American policy in particular has been guilty of a degree of oscillation which has allowed a decisive effort at solution to be postponed far too long. Where therefore all parties must bear a part of the responsibility for the present condition of things, Germany no less than the ex-Allied Powers, no useful purpose is served by attempts at delicate discrimination and differentiation; one clear issue has emerged and needs to be decided; is Germany to approach equality of armaments by levelling up, or by inducing other powers to level down?

Viscount D'Abernon in "Portraits and Appreciations" has written: "The peace spirit in Germany requires nourishment. It must be shewn that if there is faithful execution by Germany of treaty clauses and of reparation clauses the merit of this action is recognized by the countries of the War Allies. It must be manifest that the desire for pacification is real and that the benefit of pacification will be made reciprocal." The withholding of such satisfaction has provoked in Germany today a spirit of recalcitrance which threatens the whole progress and achievement of the post war peace movement and (unless it can be assuaged by remedial action) promises to undermine the structure of the new diplomacy, now also in danger from the development of the Far Eastern situation.

F. S. DURDEN
Meds-Science Candidate for Secretary

The position of France has been so often stated that it is unnecessary to rehearse it here. But it is pertinent to enquire whether, if the French people do not feel safe without large armaments, Germany should not be granted the same argument of lack of security? Logically Germany has better reason to advance this thesis than France, whatever historical foundation the latter may have for apprehension.

The inevitable conclusion emerges that the German demand for equality must be met in a spirit of concession and good faith. In the long run it is not possible, as the London "Times" pointed out some weeks ago, to keep a first class power in a second class position. On the other hand where disarmament has actually been carried out it would be unforgiveable weakness to accord the right of unlimited re-armament. And so only one sane solution of the problem presents itself; the Disarmament Conference must be made sufficient of a success to ensure a generous scaling down of the disparity between the military strengths of Germany and of the other Great Powers. For any attempt to maintain this disparity not only imperils the internal peace of Germany and with it the peace of Europe, but exposes the ex-allied powers to the charge of breaking faith. At this time the World must choose, and choose quickly, between making disarmament a reality and preparing the way for a future war. And for interest and honesty alike there is but one choice.

Prof. McArthur Outlines Fort Frontenac History

Continued from page 1

formerly of wood, but were reconstructed in stone in 1677. In the same year the first civilian habitants settled at Fort Frontenac, or Cataraqui, and the total population was 57. Until the Seven Years' War no particular importance was attached to the settlement, as a new trade channel had been opened on the American side of the St. Lawrence. In the war it served as a naval and military base for the French, though no active fighting occurred.

"In 1758 the fort was taken by the English on account of the advantages in trade and defence which it offered. It was re-named Kingston about 1784, when the first permanent settlement was established. The first English inhabitants of Kingston were the Loyalists under the leadership of Capt. Michael Grass. Later, about 1788, Kingston again became important as a British naval base for the Upper Lakes. Kingston was defended on the land by a series of wooden block-houses, and on the waterfront by stone martello towers. In 1827 a bridge was constructed on the site of the present La Salle rauseway."

Many traditions concerning historical sites in and around Kingston were discredited by Prof. McArthur, especially the popular belief that the first Parliament of Upper Canada met in this city. "Lord Simcoe met his Executive Council here," said the speaker. "Later, after the union of the provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, the legislature met at Kingston until circumstance removed the capital."

Prof. McArthur told also of the more important men and families who took part in the history of this city.

COMING EVENTS

Wed. Oct. 19:
4.00p.m.—Mining and Metallurgical Society Meeting
Nichol Hall
Speaker: C. F. Gibson
Chemical Engineering Colloquium
Ontario Hall
Speaker: Dr. Goodwin
7.00p.m.—Levana Society Meeting
Ban Righ Hall
Dr. Vlastos—The Art of Living
Thurs. Oct. 20:
4.00p.m.—Levana Glee Club Meeting
332University Ave.
5.00p.m.—C.O.T.C. Parade
Orderly Room
Men's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament
Toronto
Fri. Oct. 21:
12-5p.m.—A.M.S. Elections
Intercollegiate Track Meet
Toronto
Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament
Toronto.
Sat. Oct. 22:
2.30p.m.—Queen's vs. McGill
Richardson Stadium
8.30p.m.—Alumni Student Dance
The New Gym

Levana To Hear Lecture On "The Art Of Living"

On October 19 a most interesting meeting of the Levana Society will take place. Miss Laird is going to speak at this meeting, and Dr. Vlastos will give a talk on "The Art of Living."

It is hoped that interest in the Society will be revived by consistent presentation of enjoyable programs. The question of holding one meeting a month, at 7 p.m. will come up at this meeting. A certain clause of the constitution will have to be suspended in order to allow such a procedure to be adopted.

There's Pep in the Clothes you get at
TWEDDELL'S

College men like the snap to Tweddell Clothes. There is something about the fit and workmanship of them that makes them distinctive in any group of men. One glance in our windows will explain exactly what we mean.

Our New Fall Suits and Topcoats are now in stock . . . . a wide assortment is ready for your selection. When you buy at Tweddell's you have the assurance of style correctness and fabric soundness at moderate cost. Our prices are always low . . . . so low that they fit in nicely with college allowances.

College Sweaters
A pure wool tricolor sweater coat is about as serviceable an article as any student can own. We have an unusually attractive range of new ones on display—all soft, warm wools and well made sweaters. Exceptionally good values.

TWEDDELL'S
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Students!

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

ATHOL KENNY FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

LAST YEAR'S EXECUTIVE ESTABLISHED A SURPLUS OF OVER $1000.00.

Vote Meds - Science For Another Year Of Capable Administration

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

FOR RENT
A number of rooms; double and single, with a private bathroom, Open fire-place and hot-water heating. Comfortably furnished. Would suit a group of men or will rent separately. Board if desired.
Phone 488
123 King St. E., Cor. of West St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
— Here since 1922 —

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

TOUR
of
1000 ISLANDS
Yacht Edith Lines
SUNDAY, OCT. 16th, 2 p.m.
Return Fare $1.25
Tickets—Office Foot of Brock St.
Queen's Cafe

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON
CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students.
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

Movies and Medicine

During the last couple of years, as you have probably noticed, movies romanticizing the career of the medical man have been cropping up periodically, the handsome and undoubtedly talented "great lovers" taking turns at being the surgeon of mythical skill, wrestling with his soul and his job in the tense atmosphere of marvellously equipped operating rooms. "Doctors' Wives," and "Alias the Doctor" are examples. These characters have have undoubtedly helped kindle the fires of idealism which will light the paths of some of us to dizzy heights, but movies in a specialized form, serve a more important purpose, or could serve it, bringing knowledge in a readily assimilable guise to all medical students.

It is quite likely that, in time, all medical schools will be provided with adequate talkie equipment, with which instructors will demonstrate conditions and methods which the beginner would otherwise learn by slow experience after graduation, since many such conditions and methods can be found actually in only a few centres.

Certain types of deformities and skin conditions show up exceptionally well in photographs, and many important hospitals now have well equipped photography departments, apart from the regular departments of Roentenology. The logical extension of such departments is into the field of motion pictures. Some medical schools are now provided with movie cameras and projectors, and commercial firms, notable among them the Eastman Kodak Co. have established departments for the sole production of medical films. Such films bring medical students into closer touch with clinical material and cases, providing information, especially in the field of neuroses, epilepsy and the like, which escapes naked eye observation. Both typical and unusual cases can be preserved on the movie films for study at any time. Today many students receive a doctor's degree without having seen certain types of important cases which were not available during their attendance at clinics. These could be demonstrated in the projection room so that the student would have medical school familiar with such cases and ready to recognize them in practice.

A specific example would be provided by motion picture studies of various gaits, such as those seen in cases of ataxia and Parkinson's disease, which would undoubtedly help young physicians in diagnosis.

The "close up" as now applied to photography of the operating table in such a way as to offer no interference to the surgeon, gives a view of surgical procedures, explained by "talkie" equipment as it progresses, that could never be obtained from an amphitheatre seat.

Experiments on medical students, designed to measure the efficiency of motion picture instruction, were conducted by the late Dr. R. Tunstall Taylor. He lectured to one group with the aid of lantern slides, to another with movies, and to a third using neither of these aids. Naturally, when all three groups were tried by the same examination system, the group which had the benefit of movie instruction were found to be best informed, on the average. Highly gratified by the result, the doctor wrote in the Am. Journal of Osthopedic Surgery that "This method of teaching, in conjunction with the didactic lecture, yields a higher mark per student than any other method." That was in 1918. Since then movies have become talkies, and therefore much more valuable as aids to instruction. It is on the whole, surprising that their use has not become much more common in the last fourteen years.

The movie has also invaded more technical fields. Many of us saw the speeded up pictures of cell division presented here by Dr. Warren Lewis. The possibility of speeding up or slowing down the photographed processes and of stopping the film at any stage to examine in detail some particular scene, is of great value in this as in other departments to which living has been applied.

A succession of pictures on film might be helpful in X ray work. Such pictures have been attempted, the movie being taken on the observation side of a fluoroscope screen. Joints in motion and intestinal peristalsis have been photographed in this way. The movie record has not, however, supplanted the older system of a simple series of X-ray plates, and probably will not. Its use is limited by the slowness of exposure and the impossibility of exposing the tissues to X rays for any long period.

The cost of elaborate modern projection equipment is prohibitive, of course, but producers of instruction films, such as are approved by the medical associations, turn out film both in 35 mm. professional and in 16 m., amateur sizes, so that any home projection apparatus may be used. While this department cannot say with certainty at the moment that such films can be rented at reasonable rates, it seems highly probable that such is the case. Divided over a class, or several classes, the cost of such demonstrations would come well within the means of most students.

It is not unreasonable to expect that in the near future this school and most others will be provided with talking picture equipment. An afternoon's lecture in anatomy, for instance would be an easier and less tedious business for both pupil and instructor if a movie of the dissection under discussion could be run off, preceeded or followed, say, by a Mickey Mouse cartoon, or Screen souvenirs.

Queen's A. M. S. Has Long And Colorful History

(Continued from page 1)

mation. This began the loss of general interest in the Society which made itself evident for some years. When the war broke out, however, each member was ready to accept his responsibility and co-operated to aid the country. Many entertainments and benefits were held.

In the ten years up to 1928 the system of election was as follows: Candidates were selected by the committee and nominated at a mass meeting usually attended by 25 or 30 students. When election day arrived the students paid their $2 A.M.S. fee and recorded their votes (they were fined if they did not pay). They marked their crosses on the ballot sheet opposite the names of those whom they knew personally, and if neither was known to them the first name was usually marked. The student went away and student government passed out of their thoughts for another year. Under this system the executive carried on to the best of its ability until finally a crisis arrived and the A.M.S. felt compelled to act in a manner which did not commend itself to the University authorities. The Senate took a hand and the unfortunate student's strike of 1927-28 was the result.

Student self-government failed because it lacked the confidence of the powers-that-be: the students as a whole were unfamiliar with the way in which the governing body had been using its powers and framing its policies. But 1928-29 saw a revival of interest with the introduction of the faculty party system, and since then a steady improvement has been made until today the Alma Mater Society has secured for itself a position of unique authority at Queen's with all its former prestige restored.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

A. S. Kenny
Meds-Science Candidate for Vice-President

Music Club Reorganizes

The Queen's Music Club held its reorganization meeting recently. Dr. Frost was elected Honorary President, Nunn President, and Macphail Secretary. Levana was poorly represented. A warm invitation is extended to them, and to all who are in any way interested, to attend the next meeting.

When the business was disposed of, the meeting, which had begun in a room in the Library, continued in the President's apartment, where the season was opened with Dvorak's New World Symphony as played by the Halle Orchestra, movement of Tschaikowsky's Symphonie Pathetique interpreted by Stokowski.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor
of the Journal.
Dear Sir:

It would appear from casual observations, that the patrons of the Students' Union are, more and more, beginning to appreciate the comforts of a well regulated Club. They no longer spread themselves all over the tables. Hats and coats are conspicious for their absence. Even the deplorable habit of casting cigarette ash and lighted stubs upon the floor and the carpets, has almost disappeared. In short, students are respecting the new floor and the other fine appointments of the Union. In one respect, however, education is still required. In a well regulated Club it is customary for members on completing their perusal of a newspaper to return it to the place set aside for its accommodation.

In the Union, however, the newspapers are scattered, trodden upon, sat upon with the result that but few persons ever see them while they are still unscathed. Surely the large table would provide a good place for the deposition of a newspaper, neatly folded, after completion.

Yours,
STUDENT.

ARTS '34 TO MEET

Arts '34 will hold a year meeting Wednesday at 4.15 p.m. in Room 101, New Arts Building. Professor Prince will be the guest speaker. Plans for frosh entertainment will be discussed.

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

The Marrison Studio
Portraits - Frames
Group Photographs
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

ELECT CHARLIE CLAPP FOR PRESIDENT

RETIRING MEDS-SCIENCE EXECUTIVE REDUCED A. M. S. FEES 33 1-3%.

WATCH FOR MEDS-SCIENCE PLATFORM

The Theatre

AT THE TIVOLI
DOWNSTAIRS
with
John Gilbert, Virginia Bruce
Paul Lukas, Baclanova

In a recent conversation which had taken a culinary turn, the interlocutor was rescribing peanut and onion soup. "You'd think it wouldn't be any good, now wouldn't you?" he asked brightly. "It sounds nauseous," we answered, playing up as we were expected to. "Well, it wasn't any good."

You'd think John Gilbert's latest starring vehicle, written by himself, wouldn't be any good. Well, it wasn't. If Mr. Gilbert has heretofore felt savage and resentful because the powers that be have not given him what is popularly known as a break, he has now only himself to blame. His own story hits a new low, even when judged in the light of the stuff released by most of the tripe-writers of Hollywood. Now that is an accomplishment in itself.

To begin with, Mr. Gilbert has made himself a villain of so infamous a character that he would not even seem plausible in the roaring eighties when stock types were accepted with relish. Then, the general effect of Downstairs is weak, flimsy, and fatuous. It isn't even bad enough to furnish vicarious amusement. So why bother? Take our oath on it, and stay away from Downstairs. A much more interesting evening may be spent in the cellar. C.

Campus and Gym

In the recent matches of the Levana Lennis Tournament, several players advanced to the Quarter Finals. Doreen Kenny defeated Norah McGinnis, and Ruth Fishleigh defeated Carmel Milne. Leslie Dorey defeated G. Cameron, and Lilianna Demitrova defeated G. Thomas. Miss Murphy announces that players in the Quarter Finals are eligible to challenge any of the winning players in order to secure the best possible material for the team. These include Doreen Kenny, Ruth Fishleigh, L. Denitrova and Leslie Dorey.

* * *

Badminton may be played from 1-3 p.m. any day except Saturday, by all except Freshettes. Freshettes will play Badminton later in the year, in the regular gymnasium classes. If fair weather continues, baseball games will start next Monday.

* * *

The preparation for the Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament is progressing and the various colleges are selecting the strongest teams possible. Varsity, the present title holders are depending upon Ted Gray and Betty Carter to form the basis of their team while the other members will be selected from new material.

C. W. CLAPP, B.Sc.
Retiring A.M.S. Secretary and Meds-Science Presidential Candidate

World News Briefly

With a serious gunshot wound in his abdomen Dr. More, young Toronto dentist, fought nine days for his life, only to succumb Friday. Two suspects are held charged with murder.

* * *

The Literary Digest poll looks like a bird of ill omen for Herbert Hoover. To date, Franklin D. Roosevelt has 53 per cent. of the votes covering 38 states in the Literary Digest straw vote.

* * *

The Department of finance has issued 18,000,000 one-cent pieces in the past 12 months, the greatest number ever issued in one year, it was made known Friday. They used up 66 tons of copper, and if placed side by side mathematicians declare they would extend 221 miles.

Kingston Whig-Standard.

* * *

Word comes from London, Eng., that the President of the Huddersfield Chamber of Commerce is in a stew over the recent tariff changes at Ottawa. This gentleman, Mr. Bennie Gray, represents the woollen interests and he is ably seconded by Sir Kenneth Stewart of the cotton trade who said "They have taken away our loaf and given us back a crumb."

* * *

High hopes of a settlement in the Anglo-Irish dispute were dashed to the ground Saturday when it was announced that negotiations were at an end. Controversy revolves around the issues arising from the Free State's refusal to remit land annuities to Great Britain, and her subsequent act of reprisal in erecting a tariff wall against the Irish Free State. Mr. Eamon de Valera returned to Dublin immediately after the two days' discussion with Mr. J. H. Thomas in London.

* * *

Premier Herriot's party (Radical-Socialists) made a net gain of nine seats in the Senatorial elections to replace 116 senators Sunday. This gives the Democratic left (R.S.) a total of 155 out of 314 Upper House seats.

* * *

Johannesburg, British South Africa is all agog over one of the most sensational murder trials in its history. Mrs. Daisy Louise de Melker appeared in court yesterday to answer to a treble charge of murder. She is accused with killing her first husband, W. A. Rowle, in 1928; her second husband, Robert Sproat in 1928; and her son Cecil Rhodes Rowle in March, 1932.

* * *

A tall hunting story comes from Ketchikan, Alaska. Mickey Wells, a prospector, shot at a deer moving in the woods, dropped him and Clyde Hannagen, with a bullet wound in his arm. Hannagen had already killed the deer and was bringing it into camp.

Which reminds me

"Tell me," I said, giving my old friend the Literary Editor a hearty stab in the back, "how does one opine something? I've just found this in the paper, "Russia will not make war on Japan, the speaker opined."

"Well-er—of course, opine means to venture an opinion," came the reply, quick as a Journal newsflash.

"Aha," I opined cunningly, "this has possibilities." Think what a chance has been missed by the poets; for instance:

O stay, O stay, the maid opined.
(Longfellow).

or Opine, Opine, oh-oh, opine.
(Gertrude Stein).

or—but the Literary Editor was gone.

A MATTER OF OPINION

My old friends Lean and Hungry assure me that a meal is a good thing to avoid.

WHAT ARE YOU?

There is a craze today for advertisements which scremin at the unwary reader out of the pages of otherwise reputable magazines. I was reading McAwful's the other day and had already had my stomach turned by a picture of a sixteen ounce baby who developed into the world's most perfect moron, when I came across three pictures, famous or infamous*, actresses shrieking in large type, "I'm twenty," "I'm thirty," "I'm forty." I'm disgusted.

—HAYWIRE.

*Readers are invited to strike out one adjective according to taste, if any.

At College Headquarters!

Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"

SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
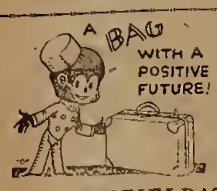
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop



Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours
Member F.T.D.

WELCOME — —
To those students who have been here before, we say—"Glad to see you back again."
To those who are registering for the first time, we extend a hearty welcome, and an invitation to come in and get acquainted.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

PRINTING
FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.
The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE BARBER SHOP WHERE THE STUDENTS GO
FRANK ROBBS
SIX CHAIRS —— NO WAITING
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-W

OUR GLADSTONE BAGS are worth looking into—they're full of travel satisfaction.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

HOWIE CARTER FOR ATHLETIC STICK

PRINTING AUDITED STATEMENTS OF STUDENT SOCIETIES INTRODUCED BY MEDS-SCIENCE EXECUTIVE.

VOTE MEDS-SCIENCE In The Interests Of RESPONSIBLE STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT

Queen's Seniors Lose Game To Western Team

Continued from page 1

their own end for the entire period. However a single point was the best they could get, but we would have had a few more.

Two forward passes paved the way for the trying point in the second period. McKay and McLaughlin snaring them to bring play to Queen's twenty, and Patterson punted one over for a rouge..

Play ranged around midfield until the unfortunate fumble gave Western an opportunity, and half time came with the score 7 to 1.

Queen's had the better of play all through the third quarter, and Davoud narrowly missed a field goal when his try went wide. His attempt went for a single point which ended the scoring for the quarter. Three quarter score Western 7, Queen's 2.

Western opened the last quarter with two forward passes that netted them fifty yards, and Patterson quickly kicked a rouge to give them eight points. It was do or die for Queen's and the team responded nobly. They tore into the Western team and had them on the defensive throughout. Davoud's nice placement finally rewarding their efforts. That made the score, Western 8 and Queen's 5, and while the Tricolor tried hard to get into position for a touch, Western held safely and the game was over.

Western—Flying wing, Gillies; halves, Awde, Patterson and M. Valeriote; quarter, Ward; snap, Rockey; middles, Tweedie and S. Valeriote; insides Still and Quigley; outsides, McLachlin and McKay; alternates, Duncan, Schnarr, Veroni, Ferguson, Stapleton, Bryant, Mugan, McDermott.

Queen's—Flying wing, Storms, Halves, Carter, Davoud and Day; quarter, Carr; snap, Kostuik; insides, Hoskings and Thoman; middles, Hamlin and Kennedy; outsides, Ralph and Gorman; alternates, Davis, McNichol, Purvis, Buell, Byrne, Peever, Dargavel and Teskey.

Refree—Joe O'Brien, Montreal.

Umpire—H. Foster, Toronto.

Head Linesman—Gar Kiell, Ottawa.

A temporary discontinuance in electrical transmission occurred in the city yesterday afternoon about 5.30 p.m. The breakdown lasted for about an hour, during which the block between Brock, Bagot, Wellington and Princess Streets was plunged into darkness.

Varsity Seniors Best McGill Team 15-9

Minus John Sinclair and Don Young, McGill and Varsity clashed at Varsity stadium before a huge crowd. It was expected that McGill would give the big blue team a tight chase for the honors, but Varsity had rather an easy time.

The first period was scoreless, fumbles putting both teams into dangerous situations, but other fumbles relieving the pressure..

Varsity scored first when a McGill kick was blocked on their own line, a Varsity man falling on the ball for a touch, which was converted. A boot to the deadline added one to Varsity's score and brought it up to 7 for the period, which the Red team could garner a solitary.

Forward passes, two of them by Craig which were completed was McGill's mode of attack to open the third quarter and these with a Varsity fumble almost tied the score, Craig scoring an earned touch and converting it.

McGill missed another point when their tacklers did not give Arnup yards on a kick.

Two placements and a safety touch were Varsity's earnings in the final quarter, while McGill were not successful in netting one, and the game ended, Varsity 15, McGill 6.

Junior Team Defeated By Toronto Rugby Squad

A relatively small crowd saw the Queen's Jnior and Intermediate teams go down to defeat before Varsity teams in a double header played at the Richardson Stadium, the Juniors losing 33-0 and the Intermediates by the score of 43-0.

The Junior encounter was perhaps more disappointing from the local angle than the other game. After their victory against R.M.C. much was expected of Bill Shaw's charges. Inexperience and wide open football paved the way for a one-sided Toronto.

The Intermediates cracked early in their clash and proved to be pet-ups for the Blue team.

QUEEN'S BAND PRACTICE

Tuesday, October 18th, 7 p.m. sharp. Old Gym. Every member requested to attend.

Shall we tell the one about the cheer leader?

Now, now, no rot jokes.

FORWARD PASSES

The basketball heave was quite popular in last Saturday's games, Western, McGill and Varsity all being very proficient in the toss and catch.

* * * * * *

The gang lost a tough one at London. They had enough of the play to win almost any rugby game.

* * * * * *

Davoud worked like a Trojan and his toe counted most of Queen's points. His one fumble was regrettable, but the best players make them.

* * * * * *

McGill are not as strong as we thought. Varsity, with Sinclair, would have beaten them badly.

* * * * * *

What a day for Queen's. Three rugby games in the red ink and two of them by awful scores. What's wrong?

* * * * * *

Wish the Track and Field team plenty of luck on its invasion of Toronto on Thursday, for the Intercollegiate meet.

* * * * * *

R.M.C. Intermediates and Toronto look to be the pick of the group. The meeting between these two will be no picnic.

* * * * * *

All the ballyhoo anent the Ottawa Rough Riders wonder team faded away in the shadow of Tigertown's mountain.

H. W. CARTER

Meds-Science Candidate for Athletic Stick

Tricolor Track Team Leaves For Toronto

Thursday at noon the Track team leaves for Toronto.

The Intercollegiate Meet is scheduled for Friday the 21st and the Tricolour representatives are out to do their best.

Phil Edwards of McGill, with two Olympic games and the British Empire games of 1930 behind him may be unbeatable, but 2nds and 3rds have often won meets in the past.

In the Inter-faculty Meet the other day the Queen's boys gave a very creditable showing. We all know how the constant rain has hampered them—both by making training distasteful, and by making the track "slow" (or soggy). With this in mind our performances rate very well with those of McGill and Varsity, the two other senior teams.

Several of last year's stars are not available, new stars have risen to take their places.

The team should do well. Better perhaps than our teams have done in this sport before, since Toronto's aggregation is not of last year's high calibre.

Coach Knox is of course handicapped by the shortness of the training period, but he has done his best and with the Tricolour representatives doing theirs we're sure of a good showing Friday.

University Of Montreal Tennis Team Ineligible

Montreal—The entire University of Montreal tennis team of 1931 will not be eligible for Intercollegiate competition, it was learned last night. This stunning blow to the fortunes of the local French college in the annual meet which takes place next week at toronto came yesterday when it was discovered that Roland Longtin, Henri Paul Emard, Jacques Demers and Leo Boucher all fail to come up to the scholastic requirements to participate in an Intercollegiate tourney.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

(The Journal welcomes communications, but does not undertake to hold itself responsible for the facts or opinions submitted. All such communications must be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good faith).

Dear Mr. Editor:

The student body is growing tired of the consistent misrepresentation by that organization known as the "Technical Supplies Department of Queen's University." It is high time that the A.M.S. or some other body with the necessary authority and power should instruct the Engineering Society, which operates the Tech. Supplies, to call a halt to its campaign of deliberate falsehood. How many of its customers know that the Tech. Supplies store is owned and operated by a comparatively small group, namely, the members of the Engineering Society? What is the normal impression of one who reads the advertisement in a widely circulated handbook that "our profits go to the Students' Union?" The Engineering Society is defied to prove this statement for the operating years of 1929-1930 and 1930-1931. Not a nickel went to the Union, according to audited statements.

When anyone, frosh,, soph, junior or senior reads in the current advertisements that the Tech. Supplies is a "student enterprise for the benefit of all students," he is inclined to patronize a store that is apparently turning over its profits to a worthy cause. But such an impression is entirely wrong. Aside from helping to maintain an employment office which spends most of its time finding positions for Science men, the profits have gone to establish the present Tech. Supplies building and to provide a smoking room for Science students only. And if, as has been claimed, a trust fund has been set up, we have been told that only third and fourth year Science men can borrow from it. These things are hardly fair to the rest of the students.

Probably very few of us know that in one year, that of 1931-1932, almost $10,000 in gross profits was taken from patrons. That's a lot of damage in times like these.

This letter is not a piece of Arts - Levana - Theology propoganda but it does seem as if Meds ought to know what profits their confreres have been making out of their high-priced books.

A Meds-Science A.M.S. last year did a lot of "dirt-throwing" at the Arts controlled Tricolor, Journal and Directory Committee, but when discussion arises about the profitable Tech. Supplies the cry goes up to "Keep Hands Off." If the store is strictly the private affair of the Engineering Society, why not advertise it as such so that everyone may know the true facts?

As a suggestion, the Tech. Supplies could be operated as a non-profit store. That would cut prices enough to remove a great deal of the present dissatisfaction. Or, to be further constructive, the store could operate, at cost, a trade-in department for used books instead of charging the unreasonably high rate of 20% of the selling price which is currently effective.

ARTS S——.

Queen's Theological Society will meet on Wednesday at 3 p.m. Prof. Gilmour will speak.

ARTS '33 EXECUTIVE

The following executive for Arts '33 was elected yesterday afternoon:

Hon. Pres., Prof. W. C. Clark; Pres., Hill Clarkson; Vice-Pres., Jo Tett; Sec.-Treas., "Chuck" O'Neill; Ass't. Treas., Peggy Boyd; Repres. to Debating Soc., Don McCaig; Reporter, Art Sutherland; Athletic Director, Jerry Byrne.

McGill Students Find Error In Calculations

After considering course after course, several students decided on a class in psychology, made their schedules, and thought themselves registered. They went to their first class, waited an hour for the professor and were gleefully preparing to enjoy days of like business. Just about this time they discovered the course was scheduled for the second semester.

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00

FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN

THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.

X-Ray Shoe Fitting

ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

SPECIAL
SPALDING BADMINTON RAQUETS HALF PRICE
While they last as now priced as $1.60
Birds 30c each or $3.25 per doz.
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200
Phone 1200 for Rugby Score

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

JACK FINLEY FOR TREASURER

CAREFUL MANAGEMENT OF QUEEN'S JOURNAL EFFECTS SAVING OF OVER $300.00.

For a Conscientious Administration Vote Meds-Science

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1852

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE
or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

Freshette Initiation Was Colourful Affair

Another Batch of Freshettes. Another Ban Righ Initiation. Sad to Relate, physical initiation has been abolished, so the occasion was not as Hilarious as yesteryear of the Chamber of Horrors, and the Confessionals. Nevertheless, it was a pretty good Show.

The Freshettes were requested to attend dinner on Thursday evening, clad in Bath Towels held together by safety pins and three different colored stockings. Bedroom slippers on stockingless Feet. Bobby socks on Helpless Hands. Hair done up in a Top-Knot secured by an elastic band and Ribbon. The absence of Make-Up made us fail to Recognize erstwhile Acquaintances. Thus it is, and a Girl's Best Friend is her Powder.

The ingenuity of the Get-ups was Surprising. Scrawny Ghandis rubbed shoulders with Buxom, Bustled, Belles of the Eighties. Rompers vied with Smart Pyjamas, while Others wore Mere Bath Towels held together by Safety Pins and three different colored Stockings.

These Oddly Attired Females were commanded to sit through their Dinner in Silence, and to Partake of all their Food by means of a Spoon. The Silence in the Dining Room was appalling. I have come to the Conclusion that if Seniors are left alone by the Noisy, Pesky Freshettes, they will sit in silence for Hours, playing.

After Dinner, we adjourned to the Common Room where the Seniors took up Advantageous Positions for the Forthcoming Fun. The Freshettes paraded around to the Strains of 'The Road to Mandalay,' which unaccountably struck me as being very very funny. A Prize was awarded to a Belle for Being the most Imaginative as regards to Costume.

Then the Freshettes assumed Postures of Ease on the Floor, and the Fun started, at least it was Fun when it started, but it soon became a Trifle Boring. Contrary to the Performances of other years, each Freshette was required to Cavort in Solitary Grandeur, and after the first Dozen, the Performances ceased to be Amusing, and Yawns were the Order of the Day. Despite their Smart Appearance, the Freshettes are Woefully lacking in Senses of Humour, and Imagination. Maybe the Awesome Presence of so many Seniors put them off their Form.

Anyway, it was a Nice Party, and the Chocolates were Good.

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

J. C. FINLEY
Meds-Science Candidate for Treasurer

A. M. S. Candidates

Charlie Clapp (President)

Mr. Clapp is a graduate of the Science faculty, and occupies the position of Secretary on the retiring A.M.S. executive. A brilliant student, Charlie brings to his office an acute business insight. He has had wide executive experience.

Athol Kenny (Vice-President)

Mr. Kenny came here with a B.A. degree from Bishop's College where he was President of the Students' Council. He has held the offices of vice-president, and president of his year executive at Queen's, and is a past president of the Intercollegiate Track Union. Last year he was manager of the Senior Basketball team and this year is Secretary of the Intercollegiate Basketball Union.

Freddie Durden (Secretary)

Mr. Durden has been prominent in year executives and dance committees. The contacts formed in these activities have resulted in making him well known around the campus.

Jack Finley (Treasurer)

Genial Jack has been active in undergraduate organizations. He has been chief of police on the A.M.S. court for the last two years. He has also held the position of sheriff of the Aesculapian Court.

"Howie" Carter (Athletic Stick)

A brilliant student, Carter, has not limited his activities to the lab and lecture room. For the past several years he has been an outstanding performer on Queen's rugby teams, and climaxes his grid career this year by being captain of the team. He has also performed ably on several Queen's senior basketball teams.

Stu. Warrington (President)

"Stu" jumped into prominence from his first year in college. He is on the Arts '33 Executive, and Arts Concursus. He has been vice-president of the Debating Society, and the Commerce Club. He was Junior Judge on the A.M.S. Court last year. He also was president of the Arts Society.

Doreen Kenny (Vice-President)

Prominent in undergraduate activities since her first year in college, Doreen has played the No. 1 position on the Queen's Intercollegiate tennis teams, winning the doubles last year with Eileen Bogart. She has also been the outstanding player in the women's basketball league. She was secretary of the L.A.B. of C. last year.

Weenie Day (Secretary)

Weenie has figured prominently on several Queen's football teams. He has played on Junior, Intermediate and Senior teams. He is a regular half on this year's senior squad. He has also acted as Constable for the Arts Concursus. He was Senior Prosecuting Attorney on the Arts Concursus last year.

Pete Lewis (Treasurer)

Pete has acted as manager of Junior and Intermediate basketball team. He played senior rugby until an injury forced him out this year. He was on the Arts Society Committee last year and is at present on the House Committee of the Union.

Evelyn Poynter (Athletic Stick)

Evelyn has garnered an enviable reputation as a tennis player, having played on two Intercollegiate teams. She was Prosecuting Attorney in the Levana Court last year. Miss Poynter is also a very able student.

Track Team Officers Elected At Meeting

At a meeting of the Track Team Monday at 5 o'clock, Frank Anderson, last year's Captain, was elected manager. Other officers were elected as follows:

President—Chas. Woolgar.
Captain—Roger Numn.
Secretary—Bill Fritz.

Coach Knox gave a talk on the track situation at the University and advocated summer training.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Queen's Journal.

The omission of the Freshman Reception from this year's social activities has cause keen disappointment among freshmen and freshettes.

Allow me, Mr. Editor, to make through your columns the following suggestion that there be a reception under these provisions: charge an admission fee of 25c per person and omit refreshments.

This fee, although small, and within the limits of the depression pocket-book should go a long way to help defray expenses. Trusting this will meet with popular approval.

Yours hopefully,
—"One of the Many."

SCIENCE '33 MEETING

Science '33 will hold a year meeting Friday at 1 p.m. in Carruthers Hall. Several business matters will be discussed. Plans for a year dance will be drawn up.

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

ONLY 2 Weeks more

at such a SENSATIONAL bargain!

Substantially reduced in price! A most convenient payment plan! Your pocket book can EASILY accommodate this portable Underwood typewriter.

Amazingly simple to operate! It will dispatch your notes, thesis, and essays more quickly and pleasantly—and turn your work from a tedious grind into an exhilarating adventure.

Remember! This price is for OCTOBER ONLY. Mail the handy coupon today for complete information to United Typewriter Company Limited, 135 Victoria St., Toronto.

THE NEW PORTABLE UNDERWOOD

United Typewriter Co. Ltd.,
135 Victoria St., Toronto.

Without obligation, please send me your illustrated booklet "Just Arrived." Also tell me all about the special price and terms good for October only.

Name .....
Address .....

Equipped with DRUG—MEDICAL—CHEMICAL—and ENGINEERING keyboard.

GIVE THESE CANDIDATES YOUR "X"

VOTE
ARTS - LEVANA
THEOLOGy

FOR PRESIDENT

STU. WARRINGTON

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

DOREEN KENNY

Vote For These Candidates and

SUPPORT YOUR OWN INTERESTS

FOR SECRETARY

WEENIE DAY

EXPERIENCE

ABILITY

FOR ATHLETIC STICK

EVELYN POYNTER

ECONOMY

EFFICIENCY

FOR TREASURER

PETE LEWIS

YOUR INTEREST OUR PLATFORM

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22nd, 1932 No. 7

Queen's Library

CHARLIE CLAPP ELECTED TO A. M. S. PRESIDENCY

Tricolor Will Give McGill Strong Opposition In Determined Effort To End Losing Slump This Afternoon

Queen's Seniors Hope To Vanquish Invaders On Local Grid Iron

Red And White Team Confident of Winning From Queen's Today

With all teams in the Intercollegiate approaching the half-way mark of the schedule, Saturday's games loom as mighty important ones for all concerned.

At Toronto, Western will be making their bid for a continued place in the spotlight with a win over Varsity, while at Kingston both McGill and the Tricolor will be clashing in a battle that might easily decide the fate of either team for this season.

As might be apparent, the showing of the Red team to date has not been one about which their admirers can cheer. They did win their first game against Western, but many consider the long pass and its resultant touchdown, as a decided break, and that they were more or less fortunate to win the game. Again last Saturday at Toronto, they did not show the form expected of them and a rather easy victory for the Blue and White resulted.

Now McGill has many friends who firmly believe that their team has all kinds of ability, but has not yet learned to click when the pressure is required. True, injuries have had something to do with their rather indifferent playing, but all teams in the race have suffered to a like degree, and that's no alibi. These supporters are convinced that the Red team has the stuff and that the game in Kingston will show the stuff in evidence. In other words they look for McGill to play up to their true form, and make the issue decidedly doubtful of a Tricolor win.

(Continued on page 6)

The Red team was given a great sendoff by the students when it departed to engage the Queen's team in a do or die struggle at Richardson stadium on Saturday.

With Captain Don Young on the line-up the Red team are confident that they can step right into the home of the Tricolor and take them in their stride. While having great faith in their own ability McGill realize that the Queen's Seniors are not to be trifled with. The game the Tricolor put up at London last Saturday was enough to convince the McGill team and supporters that Queen's have finally struck their stride and will be a tough team to down, especially on their own gridiron.

With the game at Kingston looming as a mighty important one, it is expected a great number of McGill supporters will be on the road Saturday with Kingston as the goal.

McGill will likely line-up as follows:

Young, flying wing; Olker, Riddell, Craig, halves; Krukowski, quarter; Halpenny, snuap; Wilson, McMorran, insides; Watson, Letourneau, middles; Griffiths, Lee, outsides.

Tricolor Net Men Lose At Toronto

Toronto—Queen's tennis hopes were unmercifully blasted in the opening day's play in the Men's Annual Intercollegiate Tennis Tourney as all four entries went down to defeat in their first round matches. The standing at the end of the day's play saw Varsity leading McGill by one point, University of Montreal in third place, with R. M. C. and Queen's tied for last place.

Connolly, No. 1 man for Queen's, was the first to taste defeat as he dropped his match to Carruth of Varsity by the score of 6-2, 6-4. Muir, captain of the Queen's team, was forced to bow to Paradis, University of Montreal, the score was 6-3, 1-6, 6-2. Rollins, Queen's No. 3 player, was taken easily by Marier, University of Montreal. Rollins lost by 6-0, 6-3. Low's defeat at the hands of Bob Murray com-

Continued on page 8

Spirit Of Irony Not Yet Dead At McGill

Cartoon Shows Ideal Recruit For C.O.T.C.

Montreal—The gentle spirit of irony is not yet dead at McGill.

Friday morning groups of students walking up the campus towards the Arts Building, stopped to congregate and laugh around a cartoon posted up on the notice board, alongside a recruiting advertisement for the McGill C.O.T.C., and immediately above one of those diamond-shaped signs advising students to "Join the C.O.T.C. now."

The cartoon has been torn down—by some outraged member of the corps, perhaps—but also gone from the notice board are the two C.O.T.C advertisements.

The title of the cartoon was "Recruits for the C.O.T.C." Quite large and outstanding, it contained the immense figure of a man, a billowy mass of muscle, a second edition of the awe-inspiring Earl Liederman advertisements.

The sad part of this abnormal specimen was that the gorilla-like neck did not bulge out into a powerful head, but merely tapered into an unintelligent looking knob. Beside him was a puny-looking army medical inspector, in the process of examining him, and gazing up at what stood for a head. And the "unkindest cut of all" was the subtitle—"Ah, at last a perfect recruit."

Continued on page 7

Prominent Kingston Man Supports Editor

The Editor,
Queen's Journal.

Dear Sir:

Your editorial in the issue of the 14th inst., "Gridiron Invasion" is indeed more than timely.

The misbehaviour of the youngsters is far worse than stated.

Having sat in the bleachers in the Intercollegiate games I endured their shrieking and yelling under great restraint. They think nothing of occupying reserved seats until ejected, climb over anyone in their way, take possession of the roof of the Press stand from which position they maintain a continuous yelling intermingled with bad language and expectorating on anyone unfortunate to be beneath them as a pastime.

If this nuisance is to be allowed to continue the football supporters will refrain from attending in disgust.

P. DU MOULIN.

New Officers Chosen By Levena Society

Elgin House Report Read By H. MacNab

The Levana Society held its first meeting at Ban Righ Hall on Wednesday evening, with Hilda Landon, the President of Levana, in the chair. It was agreed that the regular meetings should in future be held at 7 p.m. instead of 4 p.m. Clause 7 of Article I. was suspended to do this.

The following officers were elected: Junior Curators, G. McKenna, M. Byers; Convener of Freshette Reception for Oct. 25th, J. Roberts; Convener of Mortarboard Bee, G. Harvey; Intercollegiate Debating Representative, M. Johnson; Convener of Tea Dance for Oct. 22, D. Bannister; Convener of Ban Righ Musicales, E. Williamson; Convener of Fireside Talks, J. Doherty.

The Elgin House report was read by Helen MacNab, who with Hilda Landon has represented Levana at the conference. Miss Laird then spoke to the meeting on the history of the society. Her talk was followed by a piano solo played by Marjorie Hart, and then Dr. Vlastos was introduced as the Guest Speaker of the evening.

The subject of Escape Mechanisms, with illustrations from Rockwood Hospital, came as rather a shock to the audience, particularly when the speaker proceeded to point out the links between day dreams and mania; and it was stimulating to be faced with the realisation that drink, smoking, novels and movies are mere escapes from the facts of life. Pointing out the forms of escape most common among average people, Dr. Vlastos explained that the cynic, the irresponsible person, the isolated, superior person and the day-dreamer are all unconsciously obsessed with the same object—to avoid facing the truth about themselves or their position in society. And the man who insists that he is

Continued on page 7

Q.T.S. Conference Will Start Monday

W. Brown To Deliver Chancellor's Lecturer

The fortieth annual conference of the Queen's University Theological Alumni Association will open on Monday, October 24th, and will terminate on Thursday evening, October 27th. The Chancellor's lecturer this year is W. T. Brown, Phd., principal of Victoria College, Toronto. A most interesting programme has been arranged for the occasion.

The ceremonies of the opening day will consist of luncheon at 1.15 p.m., the dedication of the Morgan Memorial Chapel in Queen's Theological College at 4 p.m., and a lecture in the evening entitled, "The Old Regime in Canada," to be delivered by Hon. Senator Rodolphe Lemieux.

The morning and afternoon sessions will consist of discussions, while the Chancellor's lectures will be given in the evenings. The annual business meeting will be held in the Students' Union on Wednesday afternoon. The morning devotional services will be held in Morgan Memorial Chapel and the lectures in Convocation Hall.

The meetings of the Conference are open to the public, to ministers, to graduates of all Universities and to the students of Queen's.

Alumni Dance To Be Held In Gymnasion

Good Orchestra And Dance Floor Assured

Without a doubt one of the highlights of the week-end should be the Alumni Dance to be held at the Gymnasium tonight. In the past these Dances have been very popular with the visiting alumni and the students themselves have attended in large numbers.

This event offers an excellent opportunity of meeting your friends after the game and passing a delightful evening whether the team wins or loses.

The Secretary of the General Alumni Association assures us that a good orchestra has been retained and that as the Gym. is the lieu of the dance the guests will not suffer from crowding.

Famous Battle In Kingston Hall Destroyed Doors and Windows Nineteen Years Ago

In an interview with Mr. Sinclair, caretaker of the New Arts Building, we learned some facts regarding past and present history, and for variety's sake we will ask Kingston Hall, through its interpreter, Mr. Sinclair, to tell us its story.

"Being so young, I am a little nervous as a speaker, but Mr. Sinclair tells me that being a member of one of Canada's finest colleges—Queen's University—I may well be proud to narrate my story. With his support for he seems to be a friend to everybody, I will endeavour to give you a few historical facts about myself.

I was erected in the Spring of 1931, following my father's death by fire in the previous fall. In appearance I lack the historic aged

Continued on page 7

Meds - Science Party Repeats Last Year's Victory By Taking Four Offices At Polls Yesterday

C. W. CLAPP, B.Sc.

Carter Pulls Largest Majority — Day Was Only Arts Winner

Charlie Clapp, the candidate of the Meds-Science Party, was elected President of the Alma Mater Society yesterday evening. The other successful candidates were: Vice-President, Athol Kenny; Treasurer, Jack Finley; Secretary, Weenie Day; and Athletic Stick, Howie Carter. It will be seen that the Arts-Levana-Theology Party only succeeded in returning one candidate, while Meds-Science secured four representatives on the A.M.S. executive.

The total poll was well over the thousand mark and emphasizes the keen interest displayed in Student government at Queen's.

The University was the scene of great excitement yesterday night as the results became known, and a Soph-Frosh pyjama parade provided an enthusiastic climax to a colorful campaign.

The voting was as follows:

President

C. Clapp (M-S)—545.
S. Warrington (A-L-T)—490.

Vice-President

A. Kenny (M-S)—520.
D. Kenny (A-L-T)—510.

Treasurer

J. Finley (M-S)—535.
P. Lewis (A-L-T)—490.

Secretary

R. Day (A-L-T)—562.
F. Durdan (M-S)—476.

Athletic Stick

H. Carter (M-S)—767.
Ev. Poynter (A-L-T)—246.

Visitor's Car Was Daubed With Paint

Friend Of Principal Victim Of Vandals

A group of students, believed to be known to the College authorities stand under suspicion today of daubing the car of a friend of Principal Fyfe who was visiting the latter from Ottawa. This episode came as a climax to the unfortunate painting operations of Thursday evening.

The car, we learn, was smeared generously with red paint, of the same shade as that which appeared so prominently on the West wall of the Mechanical laboratory and on the tennis courts Friday morning.

The painting act, it is believed, came as a climax to initiation festivities which were carried out with utmost secrecy. Frosh initiation has been banned by the A. M. S. and the regulations of the Society demand a heavy penalty for offenders.

A Journal representative learns that action will be taken at once to ascertain definitely who the guilty persons are and that severe punishment will be enacted.

It is regarded as especially unfortunate that this incident should have occurred to mar an election campaign conducted with such admirable restraint by both parties contending for representation on the A. M. S. executive.

Maple Leafs Arrive And Begin Training

The long awaited arrival of the Maple Leafs hockey team became a reality when the team accompanied by their manager, Connie Smythe, and their coach, Dick Irvin registered at the La Salle Hotel.

In accordance with previous arrangements the athletic facilities of the University have been opened to the team and already they have made excellent use of the stadium track and have played soft ball on the field. The gymnasium is also available for the team's workouts.

The squad consists of about thirty players, including the first string team of the Leafs and their farm team from Syracuse. There is already a thin sheet of ice in the Arena, although the rink will not be in use for three or four days. There is a possibility of an exhibition game being held here before they leave for their schedule of games, and there should be a large turnout of Kingston and Queen's hockey fans to see the Leafs in action.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713
BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ——MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 —— NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 —— SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 —— LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 —— LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE —— SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON —— MEDICINE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22nd, 1932

Congratulations

The student body has spoken. It has bestowed on one of its members the highest office within its power to confer. We feel that in its choice of president for the Alma Mater Society the will of the majority has been done. The new president has a very capable executive to work with him. The four other successful candidates at the polls yesterday bring to their office a spirit of enterprise, efficiency and an eagerness to do all in their power for the propagation of good will among the student body.

The Journal takes this opportunity to extend hearty congratulations to the victorious candidates and to call upon all sections of the campus to rally behind their new president so that undergraduate activities and the student government of Queen's may continue in their road to progress.

Student government here has had several "mauvais quart d'heures" and the new executive will be called upon to traverse many snares and pitfalls. It is our belief that the newly elected officers will bring sincerity to their positions and that the year 1932-33 will be most successful.

College Journalists

Very few of the students engaged in journalistic activities on the college publications during their undergraduate days ever join the ranks of professional journalists. This statement may come as a surprise to many.

Miss Mona Clarke, Editor of Gossip, speaking before the Toronto Women's Press Club, presented a very tangible reason for this situation. "There is a feeling," she says, "that University students do not enter journalism after graduation because, during their studies, they give prime importance to the obtaining of high marks rather than the development of individualism and the perfection of style."

While this allegation is a just one and is a rapier-like challenge to our system of education, it is not difficult to advance many more reasons which bear directly on the case. From his first smell of printer's ink the college journalist falls prey to a feeling of futility. He learns that a reform is never liked whether his reform is successful or not. He finds that friendships are as evanescent as cumulus clouds on a summer day. He becomes conscious of mighty barriers hovering over him. He learns to expect his intentions to be misinterpreted no matter how obvious his motive. He also knows that few care or will long remember his work. The ten, twenty or thirty hours a week he spends on the college paper carry little significance and in no way serve to absolve or expiate low grades and assignments not completed.

Is it surprising that the student journalist is somewhat taken aback and that his aspirations are cooled by these experiences? The impressions of the formative years at college form an inseparable part of the graduate. He carries them into life with him and unwittingly moulds his future according to these concepts, which become his standards.

The college journalist, who really enjoys himself and who enters the professional ranks after graduation, is the one who lives on miniature volcanoes, who will have none of the epitaphs written for him in advance, and who is serious about his calling.

Whether the graduate continue in the journalistic field or not, his contact with the college paper will have given him one thing which cannot be taken from him—the ability to write simply, clearly and forcibly.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

The Decline of Self-Expression

The final blow to freedom of thought and expression has been dealt to the students of Columbia University by Nicholas Murray Butler and his administration according to a recent article in the Columbia Spectator. Under a new rule put into effect this year it becomes impossible for any student organizations connected with the university to meet in public unless some member of the faculty agrees to act as chairman of of the meeting.

No doubt this extended campaign against liberalism is an out-growth of the anti-freedom movement started by Butler last year when he expelled Reed Harris, the fiery editor of the Spectator, supposedly because of certain vigorous attacks against long founded institutions at Columbia.

That Mr. Harris was obviously a radical minded agitator, that his militaristic editorial policy lacked discretion, that his publicity urge was greater than his altruistic desire for a better Columbia, that his martyrdom was not all that the newspapers would have had it to be, are facts that time has emphasized. Clearly, some disciplinary action should have been taken with the crusading Harris. Whether it should have been such serious and publicity attracting action alone concerns Dr. Butler. It is a matter which has been tabled.

But the recent action dictating that faculty guardians should watch and guard the affairs and the expressions of the entire student body is something more serious than curtailing the expression of the opinions of one radical. By that prohibition on unchaperoned meetings, Dr. Butler appears to admit the students of Columbia are not capable of thinking for themselves, not to be trusted with the responsibility of their own reasoning—in short just a mite more responsible than babes in arms.

Just why a man with the reputation for intelligence that Dr. Butler has acquired should make such a concession is beyond our comprehension. Perhaps in the wisdom of his years he sees the college student as the picture of immaturity in both thought and expression.

Admittedly the college student of today is not the essence of everything that is mature. If he were, he would not be in college. The university as we see it should be a place for training in that thought and self-expression. There is no better school of thought than that which grants its students that privilege. There is no better training in the exercise of self-expression than accepting the responsibility of that expression. There is no place where liberalism should be espoused more than in our colleges and universities.

Dr. Butler, by his strict regulations and close supervision, is destroying all of these things at Columbia.

—The Purdue Exponent.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

McLeod and McLean Scholarships

Two scholarships of $42 each. Awarded each year to the two most promising and deserving students entering any Faculty of Queen's University from the Kingston Collegiate Institute.

Students from the Collegiate Institute who are attending the University this year are invited to apply for these scholarships.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

During the first week in November one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying,

(c) No student shall hold more than two scholarships. For example, a student may hold the Sir Sandford Fleming Scholarship and one of the above new scholarships.

2. (a) In the second year six srholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Where Knowledge Helps QUALITY!

Knowledge of quality tobaccos and years of experience in blending are back of the phenomenal growth in the sales of Winchester Cigarettes... their popularity being exceeded by no other blended cigarette sold in Canada today!

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes.

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

The CLINGSWELL
STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

STUDENTS !
Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

WELCOME!
QUEEN'S STUDENTS
Freshies, Sophs, Seniors
ALL will find prompt, safe, cheerful
Drug Store Service
AT
WARD & HAMILTON
3 Convenient Stores

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

FASHION CRAFT

SALE
TOPCOATS

Former Values $35.00 Now $17.50 — 1/2 — Former Values $20.00 Now $10.00

This is a real bargain coming in the midst of the Topcoat season. Pure Camel Hair, Scotch Tweeds and Harris Tweed Coats in all shades and styles and every coat Gnaranteed by Fashion-Craft.

$35.00—Pure Camel Hair Topcoats $17.50
$35.00—Harris Tweed Topcoats $17.50
$30.00—Scotch Tweed Topcoats $15.00
$25.00—Camel Hair Topcoats $12.50
$20.00—Imported Tweed Coats $10.00

SHOP OF FASHION-CRAFT

STYLE and QUALITY...

Are the standards we use in selecting merchandise for your approval.

The prices here are always as low as they can be, consistent with Quality.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES

Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop

There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer

Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.

213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM. Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

The Steam Shovel

Now in those times there flourished in the land of Canad a great city called Kin. Now the Kin was inhabited of divers men and women of Kin were despised of the gods, being of no account, nor work a darn of a tinker, nor of any understanding whatsoever; yet did the gods spare their wrath from the city for in the centre of the city was pitched a great house, yea, many great honses, which men called Kweanz. Now to Kweanz each sun, the harvest time being come, did congregate a great number of young men of the land, yea from all the land, from Toron the wicked and Ottaw the devlish, Bell the beautiful, but of all these the most did come from Hicksville and Birdseye Centre.

Likewise there did come to Kweanz a number of young virgins, who did belong to the tribe of Levan. Now these maidens were of surpassing giddiness, pursuing the sons of men and seducing them from the worship of the great god of Kweanz, called Learning.

Now the reason of the coming of the young men and virgins to Kweanz was this. The city of Kin was inhabited of divers wise men, men of great learning, who understoodeth all mysteries and all knowledge, so that they could remove mountains. Yea, a mount, a mount of any size was as a mole-hill to a Civil. The wise men of the city of Kin, being very wise, bartered their wisdom with the youths and maidens for shekels of gold and silver. So became the young men and virgins learned, also, Selah. Maybe.

Now of those who sojourned at Kweanz, some studied the Arts. Now these men of Arts were men of unseemingly speech, being given to shooting the bull. No other animals did they shoot, the Cow did they not shoot, for the Cow is an beast of much use, in particular to men of Arts.

Likewise many men inquired into the wonders of the art of Healing, learning great things about little things. Now did the Meds not call a bone a bone. Called they it a name passing the understanding of men. Yet were they of great learning. Verily which being translated is maybe.

Of the virgins of the tribe of Levan much shall be said hereafter. Suffice it to say they were of great frivolity. Likewise to the city of Kin came many young men of the tribe of Scienz. Now the young men of Scienz were of great wisdom and possessed of great learning, both Civils, Miners, Electricals and divers others.

So abode at Kweanz, Arts, Meds, Levan and Scienz but the greatest of these was Scienz.

AMEN.

Poor Marion, she snorted up too late this week to get into print, but sends her apologies and hopes the above will satisfy you.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Queen's University,
October 17th, 1932.

The Editor,
The Jornal,
Queen's University.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE INITIATION COMMITTEE

Dear Sir:

The time is opportune to air the subject of initiation in public. The writer has attended two Canadian Universities besides Queen's, and has taken part in several initiation ceremonies, so feels he is not "fresh" in discussing the attitude and methods of the sophomore class in "welcoming" the freshmen.

The writer takes no objection to the belief that some form of initiation ceremony is desirable, but when the personal liberties of the freshmen are taken away for three months by the "no fussing" rule, it appears that the real reason for an initiation ceremony is completely misunderstood.

In other universities the ceremony is given to initiate the freshman into the new life—not to keep him out of it! But apparently at Queen's the sophomores are only too anxious to prevent the freshies from "beating their time" under the guise of initiation. One will find that practically all welcoming addresses to freshmen stress the advantages of social contacts to be made at a university, and it is difficult to understand why the governing authorities tolerate such a rule. It not only penalizes the freshmen, but also the freshettes. The freshmen are practically precluded from the advantages of a mixed social life during their first year and those students who, through force of circumstances are unable to return again, are forced to miss the most interesting part of college life—all because of the bigotry and narrow mindedness of a few sophomores who are trying to perpetuate this abominable rule.

There are many other satisfactory ways of educating the freshmen to his new life without the "no fussing", rule, which is very detrimental and serves no useful purpose.

Yours truly,
J. F. CLARK,
B. Com.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor of the
Queen's Journal.

Dear Sir:

We wish to apologize for occupying space in your most worthy Journal, but we are attempting to draw your attention to an escapade on Sunday of one of our Sophomores who is very fond of the gay, hilarious night life. This gentleman has been complaining about financial embarrassment since the opening of school, but on the day previously mentioned, he met while strolling down Princess Street, a brilliant young country school mistress. After enjoying a pleasant dinner at Kingston's palatial eating house, the La Salle Hotel, he and his fair companion spent the afternoon cruising and "lollygogging" among the Thousand Islands on board the Yacht Edith. Returning to the city about eight o'clock, he discovers to his deep amazement that his lady friend resides at a beautiful country estate, very conveniently situated at a mere sixteen miles from Kingston. Not wishing to show any discourtesy, our young sheik therefore finds it necessary to hire a taxi for a pleasant little drive among the highways and byways that are so pleasantly situated east of Kingston. We are reliably informed that our brave young cavalier will find constant employment for the next two weeks driving a taxi unless his efforts to raise a loan among his cronies of Stuart Street prove successful.

Your truly,
Horace Vigilance.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

To University Students

SENSATIONAL OFFER OF YOUNG MEN'S

SUITS

WITH TWO PAIR TROUSERS
TAILORED TO MEASURE
FOR

$24.95

Made single or double breasted in any of the new styles desired. We feature two special models, popular with students, which accentuate the athletic type. Absolute satisfaction in fit is guaranteed.

FOR EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS WE HAVE BEEN STUDYING THE NEEDS OF WELL DRESSED MEN

Remember! Every Suit Has Two Pair Trousers

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.

IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00

FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN

THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.

X-Ray Shoe Fitting

ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small saving accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817
Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

TOUR of 1000 ISLANDS
Yacht Edith Lines
SUNDAY, OCT. 23rd, 1.30 p.m.
Return Fare $1.25
Tickets—Office Foot of Brock St.
Queen's Cafe

THRIFT CARDS AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Progress of Medicine

The British Medical Association rounded out a century of history with its memorable 1932 meeting which attracted medical men from various parts of the Empire. Ontario and Toronto furnished a complement of distinghished members of the profession, who crossed the Atlantic to participate in the association's deliberations. The century just closed gave to mankind Pasteur, Lister, our own Banting and other men whose names generations to come will have reason to revere and honor. The advancement in preventive medicine has, however, been an outstanding feature of the century's medical history.

The achievements of the past hundred years were recalled in a survey presented to the association by Sir Leonard Hill, who said in his review: "Patients affected with diabetes, a fatal disease, are kept well by the daily injection of insulin, an active principle discovered in the pancreas, a sufficiency of which they lack. There are thousands of people now walking about in good health who would speedily die if their supply of insulin were suddenly cut off,' say, as the result of a revolution.

"Pernicious anaemia, another deadly complaint, has been cured by daily administration of the membrane of the stomach and liver which contains an active principle necessary for the health of the blood.

"Surgery has been helped forward immensely by the discovery of the X-rays. By their use fractured bones, foreign substances when swallowed internal abscesses and tumors can be made evident: test meals containing bismuth can be taken and their passage along the alimentary canal followed, so that the locality of disease may be found and operative measures of relief made possible.

"Radium has been introduced as an alternative to the knife in the treatment of cancer; the great importance of early diagnosis, and early removal of cancer has been made clear.

"In the old days people lived on natural foods, but they often suffered from shortage, and endured scurvy owing to the want of fresh vegetables and fruits in the Winter. In these days the supply is ample, and fresh food is obtainable in quantity all the year round, but too much meddling with the natural food by millers and cooks still goes on.

"By the discovery of vitamins, the necessity for securing all the active principles of natural foods has recently been made clear; the need for a reform in dietetics is now in process of being learnt. A disease like rickets and the curse, now almost universal, of decay of the teeth, can be stopped by proper attention to diet and access to open air and sunlight. The new fashion of sun-bathing, properly controlled, will do great good, and not only right choice of food, but abstinence from overfeeding is necessary."

By better discipline of life, improved ventilation of rooms, less stagnant heat, better selected diet, strain and more rest daily, Sir Leonard would endeavor to over-greater temperance in food, less come diseases of the heart and blood vessels, respiratory diseases and rheumatism. To humankind, medical science's progress in the past hundred years but brings confidence that the world is at the dawn of the era of preventive medicine, which seeks not to make the physical man well, but to keep him well. —Mail and Empire.

The Black Eye

Physiologists have told us that the black eye is the result of an extravasion of blood into the subcutaneous spaces around the orbit, and the subsequent degeneration of the erythrocytes of this blood into bile salts by cellular activity of the loose areolar tissue in the neighbourhood. But there are more things in heaven and earth than can be dismissed with a merely physiological explanation.

The black eye is the mark of Cain raised, the mother of all alibis, and the token of both glory and shame. It is the badge of honour to the gladiator and such as engage in traditional conflicts, such as those growing out of sophomore-freshman feuds; it is the imprint of Judas' kiss to the occasional inebriate. Swinging doors without number have been maligned in attempts at explanation of these adornments. The only way to obtain a "mouse" from such a source is to climb the door and hook the eyebrow over the free corner. Running into a door may sometimes result in a twisted nose or a fractured skull, in a black eye, never.

Explanations are in any case futile and unnecessary. He who would excuse his degenerated extravasion shows himself ashamed of it, and arouses in the minds of his deviders visions of ignominious modes of acquiring the decoration.

The discreetly mysterious victim fares best. Men should carry their bruises with solemn pride.

World News Briefly

The House of Commons was galvanized into life Wednesday when Hon. Maurice Dupre said in reference to the government's fiscal policy, "We may be right or we may be wrong, the country will decide and we are ready to go before the country and find out.

* * *

All was going merrily as a marriage bell in Berlin Wednesday night in a debate between Nationalists and National Socialists until Otto Schmidt, Nationalist debater, aroused the crowd's venom and was booed down.

* * *

Eamon de Valera characterized Great Britain as a greedy shylock, demanding her pound of flesh from the Free State, yet trying to get out of her war debt obligations to the U.S.

* * *

The Morrisburg Canal may be forced to suspend operations because of low water. This situation has been aggravated by the withdrawal of many cu. ft. for power plants. Hydro Commission officials have the matter under discussion.

* * *

Soviet Russia who has, for some years flooded world markets with grain, has never become a substantial importer of wheat, it was learned Thursday.

* * *

Veterans' bonus malcontents in the U.S. will not be pleased with Governor Roosevelt's statement that he is opposed to payment until the Federal treasury accumulates a surplus.

* * *

John A. Machray, now serving seven years for stealing $500,000 from University of Manitoba trust accounts will probably be interested in the discovery of an investigating commission that he knew about the Press of the funds 10 years ago. Machray was at one time bursar of the University and member of Machray and Sharpe investment brokers.

COMING EVENTS

Sat. Oct. 22:
2.30p.m.—Queen's vs. McGill Richardson Stadium
4.30 p.m.—Levana Tea Dance Ban Righ Hall
8.30pm.—Alumni Student Dance New Gym.

Mon. Oct. 23:
Theological Convention Opens
1.15p.m.—Luncheon Students' Memorial Union
4.00p.m.—Dedication of Morgan Memorial Chapel, Queen's Theological College
8.00p.m.—"The Old Regime in Canada" lecture by Hon. Senator Lemieux Convocation Hall

Tues., Oct. 25:
8.00p.m.—Freshette Reception Grant Hall.

TEA DANCE

Girls, invite your boy friend to the Levana Tea Dance to be held in Ban Righ after the McGill-Queen's rugby game. Attendance is being limited to seventy-five couples.

The music will be peppy and those able to procure tickets may count on a good time.

Remember the date—Saturday, October 22nd, and the time—4.30 p.m. to 6.00 p.m. Admission seventy-five cents a couple. Secure tickets from Dot Brooks, Gordon House.

SCIENCE '36 MEETING

A Science '36 meeting was held in Carruthers Hall. Class pins were ordered and by movement it was decided to buy them from the Ryrie-Burke representative in the college. The Soph-Frosh banquet night was set for Tuesday, October 25th in the La Salle Hotel ballroom. Friday this week was set for a snake dance probably including Freshmen from all faculties. Colonel Wilgar made an appeal for greater enlistment in the C.O.T.C.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

The largest selling chocolate in Canada . . . . .

THE BEST MILK CHOCOLATE MADE

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.

A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.

For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR.

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE TIVOLI

HERITAGE OF DESERT ——.

By Zane Grey

Zane Grey can write some thrilling stories, but the acting makes this one just another "boss-opera". Randolph Scott, the hero, is very strong, and very, very, silent. Sally Blane, the heart interest, appears in form-fitting frocks that make me wonder if pioneer women really did wear brassiéres or not. And so pretty, too.

Knute Rockne—pardon me—J. Farrel McDonald, plays the honest pioneer. David Landan is the bad, bad rustler, and is he bad! No heart at all. There aren't any half tones to this picture.

David Landan wants J. Farrel McDonald's land for his cattle, and J. F. McD. says no. That starts something. Yes sir! Sally Blane's Paw has been bumped off in the gun war, and J. F. McD. has looked after her, rejoicing that his son Snap is going to marry Sally. But Snap is no good. Gambling, girls and everything. Just rotten Snap is.

Enter the hero in the form of a surveyor. He is directed out into the desert instead of to J. F. McD's ranch, and has his horse shot from under him. The girl rescues him just in time to save him from dying of thirst. He makes a miraculous recovery, and it's love at first sight. Think of the difficulties in the way, but they can't stop the happy ending. It's inevitable.

These pictures usually have tense moments, but I regret to say that the only tense moments were when you were waiting for the actors to speak. C—.

"The Cure" with Charlie Chaplin is a revival of a silent picture with sound effects thrown in. It's pretty awful.

GRAND TWO NIGHTS WED. MATINEE OCT. 25-26

THE DUMBELLS

14th ANNUAL REVUE

"Here We Are Again"

WITH A SPLENDID CAST OF OLD FAVORITES, NEW STARS AND BIG BEAUTY CHORUS OF CANADIAN GIRLS

NEW REDUCED PRICES Evenings 50c, 75c, $1.00 Matinee 25c, 50c, 75c

Seats Now Selling

PRINTING

FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.

The JACKSON PRESS

173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

FRANK ROBBS

BEAUTY PARLOUR

SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS

Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving

185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

CLUB BAG

The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.

SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP

Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS

FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING

Local and Long Distance Ambulance

Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.

230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

The Dumbells Are Coming!

"Here We Are Again," and this means the Dumbells. The old favorites of the Canadian stage are returning to the road with a brand new revue which includes all the old stars, Al Plunkett of singing fame and his well-known company. This ever-new company will present their current revue—"Here We Are Again" at the Grand Theatre on October 25th and 26th. In the cast will be found Curley Nixon, Scotty Morrison, Tod Rafferty, Harry Binns and Don Domaine.

A special feature is the chorus "The Dumbellettes," who will add youth and beauty to the revue.

Medieval University Described To Arts '34

Arts '34 had a successful meeting last Wednesday when they were addressed by Prof. Prince, their Honorary President.

The subject was "Students of Mediaeval Universities. He compared the two universities of Paris and Bologna. Bologna was a great law school and the students there were most mature than at Paris—In Paris boys of twelve and thirteen started at the university.

Professor Prince struck a sympathetic note when he said the students of that day banded themselves together to resist profiteering landladys. The students in those days, we were informed, ran the University of Bologna. A professor was fined if he could not get five students to come to his class, for starting lecturing more than a minute after the bell, and for not covering the course in comprehensive fashion.

In Paris, on the other hand, the students were under the domination of the staff.

The present organization of the teaching staff divided in various faculties headed by a dean dated back to mediaeval times said Professor Prince.

The students in those days were less moral than their present successors, according to Professor Prince. Some of our information concerning them was found in the police court. The lecture emphasized the point, however, that the moral students were like happy nations in that they left no history.

The students warmly applauded the president's expression of thanks to the speaker.

The principal item of business was the election of Orion Lowe to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Frank Anderson, the secretary-treasurer.

A report of yesterday's Commerce Club Luncheon is held over for our next issue.

Queen's will play R. M. C. at English Rugger next Tuesday afternoon. Full details will will be announced later.

DRAMATIC GUILD

Professor Roy addressed the first meeting of the Dramatic Guild, speaking on the "Malvern Festival."

"Malvern, he said, was a very old city situated in the midst of an historic countryside. William Langland, author of "Piers the Plowman," went to school there. The first morality plays were held in the old Malvern church which was the centre and cradle of English drama. It is a famous beauty spot of England, and the home of the revival of old and modern English drama. The modern Malvern theatre stands in the shadow of the old Malvern church, and for the first time since the Middle Ages, Church and Drama were united by a service held in the old church.

Sir Barry Jackson, the sponsor of this new movement, gained his knighthood through his untiring work on the stage. He organized the Pilgrim Players in Birmingham, and when he fell heir to a vast fortune, he gathered about him a brilliant and enthusiastic group of amateurs. He built the famous Birmingham Repertory Theatre which became the centre of modern English dramatical art, and became a great power in British dramatic circles, made friends with brilliant playwrights and discovered others.

The Birmingham Repretory Theatre became a clearing house for talent. If the actors were successful there, they were put on Barry Jackson's lists. These people were of every vocation, but when their call came they were put through a severe training course, and through this method, the amount of talent brought out was incredible. Bernard Shaw helped Sir Barry Jackson in making the Malvern Festival a success.

In six night, 400 years of English drama were enacted by a most brilliant cast of people. "The Play of the Weather" by Heywood from 1528, opened the Festival, and it was carried out as closely as possible to the original production. From this the old English comedy began to emerge with satire and the beginnings of vice. The next play was from about 1550, and showed a development from the first, hinging in boisterousness, tenants, thieving servants and the boastful soldier. "Ralph Roister Doister" carried on the line of development. "The Alchemist" by Ben Jonson was a play from the Shakespearean age which showed a tremendous leap forward in technique. Hypocrites and quacks were mercilessly exposed. The next play showed the transformation which 60 years wrought in the English drama. Any woman who touched the stage at this time gained a bad reputation, but a woman's play "Oronoco" met with great success at this time. The "Noble Savage" comes to rebuke the humanitarian principles of the people sent out to govern the blacks in the colonies, and sets forth a plea for understanding. This play, besides the object of entertainment now has a moralistic purpose. "Tom Thumb" the next play was from the eighteenth century, and was a satire on stage pomp, exposing stage armies and making fun of the heroism in the drama of the previous age besides the present one. Because of such plays, the censor was introduced, and has remained ever since. A play was chosen from the 19th century as the next offering. It was a clever parody, a frivoloris play. The "horsey woman" enters the scene, much to the shock of the Victorian theatre-goers. Asides, and a minimum of conversation between the actors, made this play very amusing. Shaw's play was a great contrast to the trivolous play, since he cut aside all theatricals, and made arguing the main point of interest. Shaw was doing all the audible talking.

The Victorian play was objective, depending on technique. Shaw is subjective, and makes you wonder what it's all about.

Professor Roy was struck with the brilliance of the acting. The actors were all young, but were amazingly versatile. The make-up was remarkable. The actors skilfully progressed from the earliest and crude form of technique, from the church influence, the reformation, the romantic period, the social changes, the artificial comedies, to the intellectual and social drama.

Sir Barry Jackson is doing a tremendous thing for drama. He began from very small beginnings, worked very hard toward a definite objective, and is trying to keep drama alive, and show his own and other countries that drama is an intellectual and spiritual thing which is a part of our heritage.

Mr. Walter McLaren acted as chairman for the business meeting that followed. He welcomed all

Continued on page 8

Which reminds me

"Where are you going to, my pretty maid?"

"I'm going a-voting sir, she said."

I wonder whether she was telling me the truth? Because if I suspected for one moment that she was lying to me I'd—bnt it gives me a goosey feeling every time I think of it.

W. R. M. ELECTIONS

Elections are in the air these days. Today is polling day for the election of an editor of the "Which Reminds Me" column in the Journal. As I am the only candidate for the position in the field I do not expect very keen opposition. But remember, I want your vote. VOTE HAYWIRE AND BE SURE!

RIMES FOR THE NURSERY OF TODAY

Little Jack Bunyan*
Played, in the Union,
Bridge on the Culbertson plan;
He screwed up his face,
And pulled out an ace,
And said "Now beat that, if you can!"

*To rime with union, not onion.

PROVERBS FOR TODAY

Honesty is the best hypocrisy.

I asked my Muse for something appropriate to the occasion, for my eager public. This is what she gave me:

Time was, in manly days of old,
When candidates by worth were told.
But since the women had a vote
'Tis quite a different tale we note
And candidates are oft elected
And other candidates rejected
Simply because their taste in ties
Confirms the colour of their eyes.
Observe, my friend, that this frivolity
Is what is known as sex-equality.

HAYWIRE.

STUDENTS

Can save quite a few Dollars trading at Bibbys

If a choice Suit or Overcoat means anything to you, we would strongly advise that you see the

New Suits and Overcoats we are offering at $15.00

Note the newness of style, the smartness of the models, the tailoring, the variety of models.

Positively the Best Suit and O'Coats Values ever offered for the money

See our New Hat The Highgate $2.95

See our Goat Skin Gloves at $1.25

See Our Glendale Shirts at $1.45

We'll be lookin' for you!

BIBBY'S

CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms

For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own

"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream

204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

DOUG. GRANT

Grant managed to retain his top ranking position in Queen's tennis circles. Unfortunately he is not eligible for Intercollegiate play.

DOUG. MUIR

Muir who has played on the Intercollegiate team for three years, heads Queen's squad in their Toronto invasion.

Doug. Grant Retains Tennis Supremacy

Douglas Grant, last year's Queen's titlist, once again proved his superiority by defeating Charles Connolly, Ottawa net star, in five closely contested sets, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

At the outset of the match both players played very cautiously with Connolly doing practically all the aggressive work. Connolly was first to find himself, and began shooting long, fast drives to the far corners of the court. Invariably, after getting Grant out of position by these shots to the corners, thus forcing him to make weak returns, Connolly would dash to the net and skilfully put the ball away. Finding his net game so effective, Connolly adopted these tactics more and more frequently; often he would rush to the net on his first service and taking Grant by surprise would quickly finish off the point. Grant strived valiantly to stem the tide by lobbing, but most of his lobs fell short and were swiftly and surely polished off by Connolly's reliable over-head smash. The first set was thus won by Connolly 6-3.

At the beginning of the second set Grant changed his tactics and began to send low chops over the net. This proved a more effective game for Grant, as Connolly had difficulty in returning the low bouncing balls. Both players again became cautious and long rallies ensued. The play became more even with each man winning his own service. Connolly, however, still held a slight edge on the play and managed to take the second by the score of 6-4.

With such a large lead it seemed that Connolly would be a certain winner. The threat of defeat, however, only served to increase Grant's efforts and as play continued he was obviously becoming surer of his strokes. Each player was again winning his own service and with the score at four all and Connolly's service, it seemed likely that Grant would lose in straight sets. Grant, however, forced the play at this point and succeeded in taking the set 6-4 by brilliant net-work.

After a short period of rest the match was continued. Both players seemed to let themselves out to the limit and they began to play a hard driving game. They both dashed to the net whenever possible and the spectators were given a fine display of volleying. Grant obtained an early lead in this set and then went on to even up the score at two sets all.

Grant was now stroking much better and as the fifth and final set opened it was evident that he had finally assumed control of the play. Grant displayed his best tennis of the match in this set, serving several aces and making many beautiful placement shots. With the score 5-2 in Grant's favour, Connolly made a last attempt and breaking through Grant's service and then winning his own he managed to bring the score up to 5-4, but to no avail, as Grant captured the following game.

Thus, after trailing by two sets and having had to fight uphill most of the time, Grant finally battled his way in true championship style to a well deserved victory.

It is unfortunate that Grant and Butler, who lost to Grant in the semi-finals, are ineligible to compete in the intercollegiate meet. Queen's, however, under the captainship of Douglas Muir, will be represented by a strong team. The Intercollegiate team is composed of Connolly, Muir, Rollins and Low.

Queen's Seniors Hope To Break Jinx This Afternoon

Continued from page 1

Coach Milt Burt had to dig deep in his building process and that meant the inclusion of players who had never seen action in senior company before. It was only natural that these men would not be able to demonstrate their true worth in the first time under fire and the play of the tried veterans would naturally suffer when inexperienced players were alongside them.

The faith of the fans was justified, however, in last Saturday's game when a greatly improved Queen's team were beaten at London by one little error of judgement, a faulty pass from one back fielder to another, as might happen in any game. The play during the remainder of the game and before that was such as to believe that the Tricolor had arrived and will show a marked change with every game.

However, the schedule is being gradually completed and if any accomplishments in the way of wins are to decorate our records this season, it is high time to begin winning.

The spirit of the players in getting down to serious work after such a sorry showing against Varsity was remarkable. Their belief in their own ability, and their courage was always unquestioned and their showing has pleased all their supporters.

Playing before a home crowd, with hearty student cheers to inspire them, it is believed that the Tricolor team will reveal to its followers an exhibition of the great fall pastime that will send them home, heartened by a well earned win over the Red team.

Coach Burt has again given special attention to those points that he considered needed it and with the exception of an injury to Lackey, and one to Bill Glass, the team is in the pink of condition, ready to push aside all opposition in their determination to stay in the race with a win.

Everything being considered, Saturday's game has all the appearances of being a titanic struggle with both teams needing the win badly. Can you expect anything else than a tight, grim battle to the end. On form there is little to choose between the teams and those who pass up this game will surely regret it.

Queen's will likely line up as in the Western game, with Storms at flying wing; Carter, Davoud and Day on the half line; Carr at the quarterback position; Kostuik as snap; Hoskings and Thoman at inside wing; Hamlin and Kennedy at middle; Ralph and Gorman at outside wing. Alternates will be McNichol, Davis, Buell, Purvis, Byrne, Peever, Dargavel and Teskey.

Sports Views

While Queen's and McGill are battling it out at Kingston, in the Queen's City, the Big Blue team will be hosts to the Mustangs. The Western team doesn't give a hang for anyone. They have a line that will bother any team, and a half in Patterson who will outboot any half on the Varsity lineup now that Sinclair is on the sick and injured list. In addition they have been fortunate with their forward passes this year, and their win over Varsity last year with this play might well be repeated.

A win for Western right now would make things decidedly interesting in the Intercollegiate circuit and would help Queen's materially, provided they down McGill today.

Varsity have not been idle in preparing for the game with Western. Coach Stevens is not the man to be overconfident and he has driven his players to a high degree of perfection, in an endeavor to obtain a strangle hold on the title. And a win for Varsity would just about do this.

Starting under two defeats the Intermediates journey to Bytown on Saturday, with every hope of a win. They have changed their tactics completely and by their own statements, Ottawa are in for a tough time.

The University of Ottawa team has not been too successful this year with losses to Varsity and R. M. C. and the game with Queen's will be one either pull one team out of the cellar or shove it farther down. Let's pull for an Intermediate win. They have worked earnestly this past week and are very much improved.

I hear Wally is getting married next week.

Good! I never liked the fellow.

FORWARD PASSES

McGill always plays a mighty pleasing game from a spectators standpoint, and a good crowd will likely view it.

* * * * * *

If they realized just how badly each team needed this win, the place would be packed.

* * * * * *

Incidently, if ever a Tricolor team needed the support of the students, it is today. The cheering should be gilt edged.

* * * * * *

Western and Toronto Varsity tangle today also. It is hard to see how the Mustangs can beat the Blue team. They will have an edge on the backfield if Patterson is in shape to do himself justice.

* * * * * *

Queen's line should compare favorably with McGill's while our backfield is probably a bit better.

* * * * * *

Look out for forward passes on Saturday. McGill can be counted upon to use this form of attack, while Western will need to if they hope to win over Varsity.

* * * * * *

Tigers or Montreal? That's the burning question that will be swered only by a torrid affair at Montreal.

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY . GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco , Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE
or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

Levana Hears Dr. Vlastos Lecture On Art Of Living

Continued from page 1

the Emperor of Japan is simply allowing the obsession to warp his whole personality. Having roused anxiety by implying the connection between complete regression (second childhood) and indulgence of the imagination, the speaker suggested that a release—not an escape—from the pressure of everyday life, can be found in Art. From the contemplation of art we return refreshed and strengthened to our immediate problems, prepared to make the best of realities we cannot alter. Victory over realities can be achieved through religion; by the identification of self with the good in the world, by seeing the good objectively and loving it for its own sake. This, said Dr. Vlastos, is the maturity of outlook which most of us lack.

Having given Levana a great deal to think about, the speaker offered a final stimulation in objecting to the unwillingness of women in an equal community to bear equal burdens with the men.

Kingston Hall Tells The Story Of Its Long Career

(Continued from page 1)

appearance of my brothers, but I suppose that will come in time.

Grant Hall, my next door neighbour, has had many years of college life and just the other day he related to me stirring stories of my father's time.

It seems that "the Old Order changeth", for in the good old days everyone looked forward to their initiation, a phase of college life that seems to be lacking in my time. I do think that some of the pranks were a trifle dangerous for Grant tells me that about nineteen years ago my father was severely wounded.

It seems that a freshman hand was a little too strong for their seniors, and when the war began Science and Medical men had to be called in to reinforce the older boys. The battles waged so strenuously that not a single window, door, or railing was left intact.

Times are differnet now! My family are quiet and tidy and although the inter-class bell is a little grating, on the whole, times are very quiet.

I have advantages, however—my floors are cement, my class rooms larger, my heating better, and I have a third storey of very fine offices. In days gone by they tell me that accommodation was very crowded and that classes were sometimes greatly handicapped. Not so today. My spacious lecture rooms are well lighted and heated and I enjoy every advantage.

My only hope is that my thirst may be quenched by the installation of a few fountains and that the freshmen will become a little livelier so that I may recall times gone by when Queen's initiation was like their rugby team. It could not be beaten."

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

Book Chats

By R.M.

Pearl S. Buck author of the Pulitzer prize novel "Good Earth" has achieved outstanding success in "Sons" a colorful saga of a Chinese family. The first printing by the John Day Co. reached the huge figure of 50,449 copies. Another 20,000 were ordered in advance of publication. If one can judge from the extremely favourable reviews in the London Times Literary supplement and the New York Times "Sons" is one of THE novels of the year.

* * *

It is rumored in literary circles that J. Y. T. Greig will publish a Life of David Hume shortly.

* * *

Two authoritive books on "Painting" and "Chinese Art" have just been published by the Encyclopedia Britannica. These were compiled from the new 14th edition. It is understood that two more treatises on 'Mammals' and Birds" and "Insects, Fishes and Reptiles" will be ready soon.

* * *

Warwick Deeping's new novel "Smith" is attracting considerable attention.

* * *

Another book among the newcomers that should prove deeply interesting is "Thoughts and Adventures." Winston Churchill.

* * *

Lloyd C. Douglas, a Canadian author, has taken the critics by storm with his novel "Magnificent Obsession." This is Mr. Douglas' debut in the field of fiction and to all appearances not an inauspicious one. He was a year and a half writing the book. It will be reviewed in the near future in this column. In the meantime I should like to acknowledge receipt of a copy from Thomas Allen, publisher, Toronto.

* * *

It seems the custom when literary wits get together to make George Bernard Shaw the butt of ridicule.

W. Arton Tewson, in his column the Attic Salt Shaker relates the following story:

"One night Nathan and Theodore Dreiser sat together "contemplating the literary scene." Presently, they got around to George Bernard Shaw. Said Dreiser:

"The old fellow makes a sad idiot of himself trying to convince himself through other people that he's still young and spry. I had lunch with him in his flat when I was last in London and guess what the bug did!

"After each course, he jumped up from the table, grabbed hold of two chairs, placed them some five and a half feet apart, adjusted his chin on one and his feet on the other, and then — in a horizontal position — chinned himself up and down on them for a couple of minutes. When lunch was over, and I was safely out of the place, he probably had to go to bed and rest up for twelve hours from the exertion of having impressed me, as he believed, with his remarkable youthful vitality."

By the way, Mr. Shaw's latest play "Too True to be Good" is scheduled to be presented by Messrs. Colborne and Jones in Toronto, October 24th. The critics, needless to say, are involved in controversy as to its merits.

Incidentally, if anyone wants to get an intimate sketch of Bernard Shaw they should read "The Real Bernard Shaw" by Maurice Colbourne published in the Everyman edition by J. M. Dent and Sons.

The Scott Centenary has brought forth a wealth of critical and biographical material which is valuable for the new light it sheds on this great figure in English literature.

Among some of the more important contributions are:

Sir Walter Scott, 1771-1832. By John Buchan.

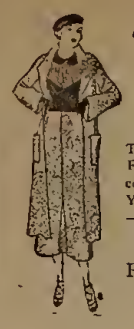
Sir Walter Scott: A character study. By John A. Patten.

The Waverly Pageant; selected by Hugh Walpole.

Sir Walter's Post Bag. By Wilfred Partington.

Mr. Buchan, author of many romantic novels such as "The Courts of the Morning" is particularly well fitted for the task of revaluing Sir Walter Scott. His book is well-written, understanding and discriminating.

Mr. Patten's work is divided into, three parts: Scott and His Journal, Scott and His Critics, and the Genius of Scott.



The Waverly Pageant is an anthology of Scott's novels. Mr. Walpole is a pronounced admirer of Scott, has made a real study of his writings and therefore writes with authority.

Sir Walter's Post Bag, as the name suggests has to do with Sir Walter's letters. Most of them are to Scott,—from Wordsworth, Byron, members of the royal family and a host of others.

Mr. Walpole's "Waverly Pageant" has been ordered and will be available in The Douglas Library shortly. I understand that John Buchan's informative study is now on the shelves.

College is a matter of give and take.

Give money and take examinations.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

SEE OUR SPECIAL
MEN'S ENSEMBLES

Are you satisfied with your personal appearance? If not you are greatly handicapped in the battle of life, and you cannot win. Eliminate this handicap—we make it easy for you to buy Good Clothes on terms to suit your convenience.
NEW FALL SUIT
WINTER OVERCOAT
FELT HAT
SCARF SHIRT
2 TIES
2 SUITS UNDERWEAR
2 PAIR SOCKS
MODERATELY PRICED
$49.50
AND UP
TUXEDOS FOR RENT
New Tuxedos to Rent —— Come in and book your Tuxedo for the next Social Event
—— Moderate Prices Charged ——
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

SUCCESSFUL A. M.S. CANDIDATES

A. S. KENNY

WEENIE DAY

H. W. CARTER

J. C. FINLEY

FURS

GOURDIERS

78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC

BURKE'S

244 PRINCESS ST.

'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT

Witch - Elk

SHOES FOR MEN

For years we have sold and recommended them.

Priced at

$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00

Solid Leather Throughout

Locketts

LIMITED

Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?

For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of

DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS

by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50

AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE

PHONE 230

Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.

WE DELIVER

Economy for Students!

We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.

THE CROWN CAFE

203 Princess St

Campus Cut-ups

The Freshettes who live in the Residence are now properly chastened. The Sophs had their first court on Monday evening, and the proceedings were quite searing for the little innocents. Everywhere, everywhere were trembling little figures holding the dread slips that summoned them into the grim presence of Honourable Marjorie Gray and her awesome court.

Needless to say the court resembled an elementary etequette class, but instead of the mild reproofs of other years, Evelyn Poynter as the prosecuting attorney, rose to new heights and eloquence. So much so that some of the seniors winced at times, accustomed as they were to the soft handed method. Some of Miss Paynter's remarks were so devastating that the Freshettes couldn't take it, and stood with wilting figures among that dread gathering. They were told to watch for "fines that had no hooks", and admonished to answer 'phones promptly, since the gentleman who called today might not call tomorrow. The punishments were as usual, holding open doors, books in laundry, bags, dark glasses and black cotton stockings, etc., etc.

After the court, the simple and impressive ceremony of the oath of the fire took place. After the ceremony refreshments were served.

Campus and Gym

Women's Intercollegiate Basketball is getting an early start at McGill. Practices have been called and as last year's team is still intact, McGill should present stronger team than in the past.

Varsity has also made plans for their Intercollegiate tournament and are expecting to produce another team of championship calibre.

C. Clapp Is Pleased With Election Results

Although unwilling to say much until he had had more opportunity to consider the complete results of the election, Mr. Clapp, the new Meds-Science President of the Alma Mater Society, in an interview with a Journal reporter shortly after the announcement of the ballot returns had been made, declared himself gratified with the results of the poll. He also expressed his determination to do all that he could to carry on the admirable work of the retiring A. M. S. executive.

Q.T.S. Hears About German Conditions

Prof. Gilmour Tells Of German Adventures

Addressing a meeting of the Q.T.S., Professor Gilmour related some of his experiences as a graduate student in Germany. Professor Gilmour confessed to difficulties with the language when he first went into the country.

Because of the great German debt, the currency was inflated. This was successful for a short period, but the inevitable reaction set in and the paper currency became almost valueless. In 1924 the work was established on a gold basis, but unemployment has increased and forty per cent. of the people are dependent upon state charity.

Hitlerism, before the general depression of '29, was of small importance, but since then has steadily been gaining power.

The German university students are members of strong fraternities and there is still a fighting corps in existence which requires its members to fight and win at least six duels.

A knowledge of Theology is necessary for the teaching profession in Germany and classes in this subject attract large crowds. There is also a strong atheistic movement which has been helped rather than hindered by the church, where the sermons are deeply theological.

G. G. Fuller Spoke To Commerce Men

The relation between the Consular and diplomatic branches of the United States Foreign Service was traced at the first of the fortnightly Commerce Club luncheons held yesterday, by G. G. Fuller of the U. S. Consular Force.

The speaker pointed out that the service aims to break down all legal and technical barriers to international trade. At the same time it supplies valuable information to the home office.

The Consular service is not for a man who wishes to accumulate wealth but for one whose sense of duty to his country is strong enough to allow him to make financial sacrifices on his behalf.

Mr. Fuller declared in conclusion that the opportunities which the service offers are innumerable, and that the student should give them all due consideration.

BAND TAG DAY

Queen's Brass Band tag-day! Yes this is the day and dig down deep into your much maligned pocket book and give generously and heartily. The Band needs your support. Whether the boys accompany the team to Toronto depends upon the generosity of the entire student body. Once again we say—"Give generously!"

Tricolor Tennis Players Eliminated At Toronto

Continued from page 1

pleted the rout of the Kingston players. The score in this match was 6-2, 6-2.

No results of the doubles matches were available as we went to press.

DRAMATIC GUILD

Continued from page 5

new-comers to the Guild and invited their co-operation in the many departments that make up the Guild. He gave a short history of the Guild from the days of its union with the A.M.S. and it's private performances and selected membership. The chief executive power is vested in a directorate which consists of four students: Violet Kilpatrick, Helen Blackwell, Walter McLaren and Ted Sherwood. Mrs. Reed, wife of Dr. Reed of the Medical faculty is again supervising in her own capable fashion. Jack Weir was elected the new business manager.

The Dramatic Guild is a Little Theatre organization, and tries to give every student a chance to act, and express themselves on the stage. Students are needed for such interesting stage work as lighting, making cenery and wardrobes. Any student interested in these is invited to attend the Guild meetings.

One play under consideration for this Fall, goes to the beginnings of English drama. "Gammer Gurton's Needle," by Mr. S., has 10 characters and takes 45 minutes to perform. It is pure comedy, whereas "The Garl Gate" by Lady Gregory is a grim contrast. Three characters are needed in the latter.

In the past, the directorate was always busy with the plays on hand, so the other members of the Guild were inactive. It has been suggested that as soon as the regular performances are cast and are busy, that a mock directorate made up of unofficial understudies may pick out one or two short plays, cast them themselves, and put them on in Convocation Hall as Club performances. In this way new talent will be brought out.

The membership fee for the Guild, which includes admittance to all plays put on by the Guild is $1.

At College Headquarters!

Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"

SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR

Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop

COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.

FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY

No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention

Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515

Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE

Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited

Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia

Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years

We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's

Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE

Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students

REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.

Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer

165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE

The Most Popular Place in Town For Students

REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.

Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly

235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar

PRINTERS

Dance Programmes Constitutions

Printing of Every Description

177 Brock Street

Phone 1510

Stone's Flower Shop

231 Princess St.

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

We can deliver flowers to any part of the world in a few hours

Member F.T.D.

Doyle's Haircutting Place

THOROUGHLY MODERN

4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES

J. McCORMICK, Prop.

167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S

Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring

Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50

Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50

—5% Reduction to Students—

Bring us your repairs and pressing

Walsh & Derry, Tailors

PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25th, 1932. No. 8

Queen's Library

QUEEN'S SENIORS TIE WITH McGILL

Doreen Kenny and Ruth Fishleigh Win Women's Singles and Doubles In Intercollegiate Tennis Tourney

Co-ed Players Beat Varsity Easily And Secure Tennis Title

Queen's Girl's Tennis Team covered themselves with glory in the recent Tournament in Toronto, when they easily captured the Intercollegiate championship. The winning girls are Doreen Kenny, Ruth Fishleigh, Carmel Milne and Lilianna Demitrova. Doreen Kenny won the singles championship and with Ruth Fishleigh took the doubles championship. The Queen's girls were the leaders all through the Tournament for neither Varsity nor Western proved a serious menace. Honors go to Doreen Kenny, who was the outstanding player. Agnes Gardiner, Toronto's first player, did not live up to her former reputation. Their second player, Kay Symons, showed more skill, and Celia Moore of Western deserves honorable mention.

The singles matches brought the following results:

Pat Callen (Toronto) vs. Lilianna Demitrova (Queen's). Pat Callen proved the superior player in a short battle which resulted in the score 6-0, 6-2.

Ruth Fishleigh (Queen's) vs. Anna McManus (Western). Anna McManus was speedily overcome by the brilliant playing of Ruth Fishleigh, former Junior Champion. The score was 6-3, 6-0.

Kay Symons (Toronto) vs. Betty Clarke (Western). In a hard-fought match Kay Symons defeated Betty Clarke by 7-5, 6-3.

Jean Davey (Toronto) vs. Carmel Milne (Queen's). Carmel

(Continued on page 6)

DOREEN KENNY

Doreen's victory in Toronto brings the coveted Ladies Singles Intercollegiate title to Queen's.

Natural Historians Hear Dr. R. O. Earl

Tea will be served at every meeting of the Natural History Club this year, it was decided at a recent gathering of its members.

Dr. R. O. Earl was the speaker at the meeting. He welcomed old and new members, and stressed the value of the Natural History Club to the biology students of the University. It was needed, both socially and for its more serious aspects. On the latter side, as a gathering of field naturalists it would appeal to many students. They would find such study an interesting and valuable outlook. Many of the foremost scientists were primarily field naturalists. Dr. Osler of McGill was the outstanding Canadian example, his interest in Natural history being lifelong. Dr. Earl then spoke of the change in the staff and welcomed Dr. J. Stanley, the new member, on behalf of the Club.

A. M. S. Regulations Limit Social Events

Societies Required To Get Permission

"Any organization desiring to hold a dinner or a dance must apply to the A.M.S. executive at least ten days in advance." This is one of the leading regulations regarding Social Functions, introduced into the A. M. S. Constitution at the end of last session, and now in force.

It is not generally known that last spring the constitution of the A.M.S. was amended to include a series of provisions regulating all social functions held by college organizations. These amendments were advertised at the time and submitted for approval to a general meeting: nevertheless few people then realized the significance and far reaching importance of the new rulings, and only now that they are in force

Continued on page 4

Engineering Society Fills Vacant Offices

Five new members were elected to the Engineering Society Executive as a result of Saturday's supplementary elections held to fill the vacancies occasioned by the non-return of several officers chosen last year.

The following students were victorious at the polls. K. Southern, vice-president; W. Nesbitt, Assistant Secretary; E. H. Wright, Treasurer; H. A. Elliot, 3rd year representative; C. Woolgar, vice-president of the athletic committee; R. Thomas, second year constable on Vigilance Committee.

Sid Parkes, elected to the presidency last year, heads the executive of the Engineering Society.

SCATTER-BRAINS

(An Editorial)

The climax has been reached. The latest episode of college rowdyism which culminated in the daubing with paint the car of a visitor of Principal Fyfe, has convulsed the general student body with utter disgust. Every year sees the list of affronts against decency and common sense grow to alarming proportions. But the latest act of campus hoodlism assumes the most serious aspect.

Whether it is just someone's idea of having a little fun, no one knows, but the asinine foolishness of the act cannot absolve the guilty group from the responsibility of their deed. The material damage caused must be repaid and the offenders should be forced to pay the entire cost. We feel, however, that in honouring the cost of the damage the blot against Queen's has not been erased. The affront inflicted to a visitor of our Principal cannot be measured by a yard stick and paid off in gold. An indelible mark has spotted our College. What can the conservative mind of the public do but gain a very unfavourable impression as result of the deviltry of Thursday night?

The offenders are known to the officials and the evidence points to the group that painted several freshmen in a secret initiation on Thursday, as the depraved members of the vandalism pact.

It is unfortunate that this incident should have occurred at a time when the student body was in the throes of an election campaign, but we are happy that the evidence at hand proves definitely that the student campaigners had nothing to do, whatsoever, with these painting operations. Both parties conducted their campaigns with restraint and good taste.

There are times when all of us grow weary of serenades, talkies, and crap games, times when the hell-raising spirit prevails, but one would think that college students could at least act as if they were older than five years of age.

Prof. W. Clark Leaves Queen's University To Become Deputy Minister Of Finance

Premier R. Bennett Announces Appointment Of Commerce Head To Government Position

Prime Minister Bennett announced early Monday afternoon that Prof. W. C. Clark, M.A., head of Queen's Commerce Dept. has been appointed to the position of Deputy Minister of Finance to succeed the late J. C. Saunders. This marks the culmination of Prof. Clark's career as a public servant, for he served on a committee for monetary reform during the Imperial Conference, in the Dept. of Labour after the War, and on President Hoover's advisory committee on unemployment in 1930.

It is not known whether this will mean Prof. Clark's permanent separation from Queen's, for at present he has only been granted temporary leave of absence. This appointment comes as a fitting climax to Prof. Clark's distinguished attachment with the university over a period of some twenty-five years. After completing post graduate work at Queen's he spent three years at Harvard, then returned to join the Economics staff here, where he remained from 1915-1923. During the years 1923-1931 Prof. Clark resided in the States occupying the positions of director and vice-president of a prominent investment firm.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ELECTION

Now that the election is past and the A.M.S. Executive assumes its rightful place as the representative of university opinion there comes to light an inside story of election escapades.

Grant Hall Tower has been the scene of many a stirring fracas, but none so stirring as the series of events of last Thursday night. The lofty clock had glimpses of Arts and Meds.-Science election appeals —all to no avail, as was evident in the morning light. Banners strung between Fleming and Ontario Halls were seen by the stars, by the Meds.-Science Freshmen who put them there and by the Arts men who tore them down. No sign of the frenzied election advertisements was seen by the students as eight o'clocks claimed their attention. And so an apparently peaceful A.M.S. election obscured an epic struggle which few so much as even heard about

Tricolor Holds Fast McGill Squad To 12-12 Tie By Brilliant Playing In Second Half Of Thrilling Game

PAUL DAVOUD

Who showed once again that he is one of the best halves in the Intercollegiate. He was a thorn in McGill's side Saturday.

Fumbles Made Tussle Uncertain But Added Zest To The Conflict

As predicted the meeting between Queen's and McGill turned out to be one of the most thrilling and hard fought battles of recent years on the Kingston gridiron, as the 12-12 score indicates.

Everything was made to order for a high class rugby fixture. Crisp autumn weather with a warm brilliant sunshine provided a fitting setting for the tussle that two highly trained, and evenly matched machines staged.

The crowd, while not as large as expected, were treated to a display that left them exhausted when it ended, so uncertain was the outcome.

Rugby experts would agree that perfect football was not played, there were far too many fumbles on both sides for that. The forward pass was something of a failure as a total of 14 tried by both teams, only netted four completed ones. The line work was not so spectacular, McGill gaining yards through the line on five occasions while Queen's made theirs only once. Yet in spite of all the foregoing, the afternoon's play was one that the crowd would not want to miss.

McGill always trot out a fast, tricky aggregation and the Red team of last Saturday was no exception. They presented a big, strong and fast team that brought out the very best in Queen's.

While winning the game would have been sweet to the Tricolor supporters, there was one feature of the game that sent the fans home singing the praises of the Queen's Seniors and that was their courage. Off to a slow start they were soon

(Continued on page 6)

Prof. Clark Sorry To Leave Queen's

Issues Statement To Journal Interviewer

"I can't help regretting leaving Queen's. I have been very happy here and would have liked to put into action some ideas I have in mind for the Commerce Department," said Prof. W. C. Clark, when interviewed by a Journal representative shortly after the announcement of his appointment to the post of Deputy Minister of Finance yesterday afternoon.

Prof. Clark went on to say:

"My appointment has provided me with a great opportunity to assist the Minister of Finance in the work of settling some of the outstanding financial problems of to-day and so the University has given me a year's leave of absence. Prof. Clark added modestly, I am sure that my successor will administer the Commerce Department rather better than I have been able to do."

To the Editor
of the Queen's Journal.

Dear Sir:

I should like to avail myself of the hospitality of your columns to thank all those who gave their time and energy to the organization of the Arts - Levana - Theology Party. I am especially grateful to the Party Campaign Manager and to the election committee.

I appreciated very much the whole-hearted co-operation of the Arts Faculty in the efforts made this year to keep electioneering free from the customary displays of hooliganism and from the use of the paint pot around the campus.

Yours truly,
Stu. Warrington.

Dr. J. Delahaye To Be Medical Officer

Dr. John Delahaye has been chosen as the Queen's Medical Officer to succeed Dr. H. S. Angrove, who has resigned from the position.

The office hours have been slightly altered:

Office at the Gymnasium—telephone 1718. 4.30 to 5.30 p.m. except Saturdays and Sundays. 10.00 to 10.30 a.m. Saturdays.

Office at 230 Johnston St.—telephone 780. 10.00 to 10.30 a.m. Sundays.

Ban Righ Hall—telephone 2407. 1.15 p.m. except Sundays.

For house calls and emergencies Dr. Delahaye can be reached at any time by message to 230 Johnston St. or by telephoning 780.

Dr. Delahaye, however, will not assume his new post until November 1st, when Dr. Angrove's term will expire. Students are asked to note the slight changes in the office hours.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713
BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
I. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25th, 1932

War-Mentality

During the first months of the War it was, we are told, a not uncommon thing in England to see a girl walk up to some pale young civilian in the streets, and hand him a white feather—as a forcible hint to enlist. Although most of us only emerged from our cradles during the War years, and consequently do not qualify as individuals who have experienced war-life, we have no right to be as ignorant as all that of what it means. If there were another war should our womanhood commit such acts of frivolous cruelty? Should they go about making our friends' lives miserable until they had sent them to an unnecessary and horrible death? Of course not, you say: 1932 is far too sane to countenance such depravity. But is it?

The younger we are, the more danger there is of a repetition of 1914 mania. As soon as modern youth allows itself to wallow in "far-flung battle line" stuff and all the Kipling war sentiment, it will become just as heartless, just as callous as pre-war youth. To provide an antidote to this possibility, let us read all the war-books we can lay hands on: we mean the type of which there has been such a spate in recent years. They are often repellent reading, but we need the horrors they give us, and the pacifist influence of books such as "Journey's End," "All Quiet on the Western Front," and Edmund Blunden's "Undertones of War" can save our generation.

It is only by steeping ourselves in literary war that we can reach a higher mental level than that of 1914. If it came to a crisis, our sanity would be swamped as their's was, unless it was fortified by a practical realization of war's horror.

C. E. Montague and Erich Maria Remarque are more forceful in their peace propaganda than the experts who talk in terms of National armaments. These books are the heritage of our post war generation: let us respond to their appeal and not allow ourselves to be dragged by the old "Charge of the Light Brigade" jargon.

Be Prompt

Of the many good traits of character and one that plays an essential part in the responsibilities of life is that of promptness, and it is surprising to note the number of people who place no stress whatever upon it. Students and professors belong to the latter class. We are not thinking of lectures but of meetings and gatherings where the late-comer seems to be in style.

It is quite a common occurrence to attend a meeting and find that although scheduled for 7.15 it does not commence until 7.45. Either the guest speaker has not arrived or his auditors are tardy.

This habitual tardiness may seem to be a trivial thing but it is a pernicious habit and least to be expected in an institution which ostensibly is training young men and women for responsible positions. In the business world the lack of punctuality is regarded as a major offence.

In the publication of the Journal we are constantly troubled by the dilatoriness of reporters and others who disregard time limits quite cheerfully. Contrary to popular conviction women are more punctual than men—in their Journal assignments at least.

One reason for the lack of interest in undergraduate organizations is that the average student has not the time to waste waiting for the meetings to start. Officers of campus organizations can sound the death knell to this habitual tardiness by starting their meetings on time: The ultimate result would be a renewed interest in these activities and the elimination of wasted time.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

The University of Toronto and It's New President

Dr. Cody, as president of the University of Toronto, is "off to a good start" if we may use a sporting expression. Sports have become an important feature of college life everywhere, and they help to carry out Juvenal's motto of a sound mind in a sound body. At this time of the year our students turn chiefly to football, and Dr. Cody has already on two public occasions shown an interest which has been keenly appreciated. This interest has a two-fold effect. It not only encourages wholesome sport, but also brings the president into close contact with individual students.

At the other end of the scale we have the action of that august body, the Senate of the University, representative of graduate opinion throughout the country. It has passed unanimously the following resolution: "At this, one of the earliest meetings of the Senate since the appointment of the new president, the Senate congratulates the university on the acceptance by Dr. Cody of the presidency. His distinguished career in many lines of intellectual activity, his intimate knowledge of university affairs, his entire devotion to the interests of the institution justify the confidence that his administration will form one of the most successful periods of progressive university life. The senate pledges to him its loyal co-operation and support."

With the loyal support of the senate and the good opinion of the students, Dr. Cody may look forward to a successful career at the head of the most largely attended Canadian university.

—Mail and Empire.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

Beginning on October 21st one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

(c) No student shall hold more than two scholarships. For example, a student may hold the Sir Sandford Fleming Scholarship and one of the above new scholarships.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

OMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Oct. 25:
1.00 p.m.—Softball Game, Lower Campus. Levana '35 vs. L. '34.
4.15 p.m.—Meeting of Arts Society, Room 201, Kingston Hall. Business, Nominations. Guest Speaker.
8.00 p.m.—Freshette Reception, Grant Hall.

Wednesday, Oct. 26th:
3.00 p.m.—Rugger Game, Queen's vs. R.M.C. at R.M.C.
3.30p.m.—Soccer Game Queen's vs. Kingston City. Cricket Field.
4-6 p.m.—Arts Freshman Reception, La Salle Hotel, given by Arts '33 and '34. All Levana cordially invited.

Thursday, Oct. 27th:
5.00 p.m.—Water Polo Meeting, New Gym.

Friday, Oct. 28th:
4.00 p.m.—Music Group, Red Room.
4.15 p.m.—Math. and Physics Club Room 200, Arts Bldg. Speaker, Dean Matheson.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

The Power of REASON..

It's only common sense that a cigarette made of selected golden Virginia tobacco of the highest grade should give you a cool, frogront, mellow smoke full of satisfaction. That's why you'll like Turrets, for years the most popular Virginia cigarette in Canada . . . and with good reason.

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Students...
We do not give advice on love matters, stock markets, or weather conditions, locate lost articles, missing relatives or buried treasure—
But for Dependable Drug Service — that's us!
Prompt, Cheerful, Careful and —Reasonable—
WARD & HAMILTON Limited
4—Convenient Stores—4
Where students like to shop

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

Sports Views

TRACK AND FIELD

Following their clean up win in Intermediate Intercollegiate Track and Field athletics, McMaster will make application for entrance into Senior Intercollegiate competition. And they cannot be kept out. In winning the intermediate championship this year McMaster athletes established better marks in the 220 sprint, half mile. Pole Vault, 16 pound shot put and Javelin throw than did the winners in the Senior meet at Toronto on Friday.

The bigger universities had better get busy and pay a little attention to the track and field squads if they hope to keep the considerably smaller university in Hamilton from scoring their first win next year.

CADETS VERSUS VARSITY

On account of the death of Cadet Buck, R.M.C. notified Varsity that they would default the games. But courteously, Varsity suggested that the games be postponed until a later date.

Just before Queen's second team and Ottawa began their battle on Saturday, both teams stood in silence for a minute out of respect for the dead player. It was a fitting touch.

RUGGER

A meeting of the Rugger Club was held some days ago with a view to electing officers. The result of the elections were as follows: Ranald Macdonald was chosen Captain with Alec Barrie as Vice-Captain. Kenneth Ruffman was elected secretary. Ian Panton was named as the third member of the selection committee, which, it was decided, should be composed of the Captain, the Vice-Captain and one other.

The first game with R. M. C. had, unfortunately, to be postponed owing to their lack of practice, but it is to be played to-morrow at 3 p.m.

Negotiations are under way with Toronto and it is almost certain that a team representing Queen's will play Varsity on Nov. 12th, either in Toronto or here.

The Club at Varsity is doing everything in its power to help the new Club at Queen's to gain a regular footing, in order that the latter's aim of entering Intercollegiate Rugger next year may be realized.

The team which will represent Queen's at 3 p.m. to-morrow is as follows: Full back, Marriot; three quarters, G. McLaughlin, C. Finlay, P. Austin, Corlett; halves, A. O. Barrie, R. C. Ruffman; forwards, R. Macdonald (Capt.), R. A. Harvey, Ralston, Brydon, R. Fleming, Gibson, Macdonald, J. Malen. Reserves, Fainbridge, Baker.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Editor:

As a rabid graduate supporter of Queen's teams it makes my blood boil, in spite of rapidly hardening arteries, to hear the student section "ride" a football player because his playing fails to come up to their expectations. If the senior football team were a professional outfit I believe that it would be okay to state one's opinions freely but when a student is in the game through pure love of playing I don't see why he should be panned for making the odd miscue.

Any athlete will have an off day and no person will feel the situation more keenly than the player himself. It is obvious that he isn't making mistakes on purpose but in spite of himself and it is the Coach's duty to remedy this by sending in a substitute. If the player is left on the field to stew in his own juice it doesn't help one iota to know that the stands aren't back of him.

And now that the coach has been mentioned I might as well go the whole hog and ask why he doesn't feed the boys a little red meat before each game. A vegetable diet may appeal to elephants but after all the gridiron is a far cry from the jungle. A team composed of George Bernard Shaws is laboring under a terrific handicap.

Lest it be thought that my milk has been soured entirely may I add that the coach has achieved excellent results in spite of the deficiencies already pointed out. And the college has every right to be proud of her representatives on the football field this year.

GRADUATE.

And it came to pass that, the time of the harvest moon being come, their did approach unto the city of Kin a great multitude, both young men and old, and matrons and virgins. Of this multitude, some were of great learning, having bartered their wealth for knowledge, in times past. But the most were from Magil, in the city of Montre the Red, verily another seat of great wisdom second only to Kweanz. And of this gathering there were several of great daring, who did give their coins to give battle to divers of the new of Kweanz.

Now it happened on the evening of the day before the battle, that their did congregate, near the site of battle, a great multitude of men from the tribes of Scienz. Art, and Meds, in Kweanz. Now these three tribes are divided into four major tribes, those of Senior, Junior, Soph and Frosh, and the most of the gathering were of the last named. But the Soph did lead the gathering and the Frosh did heed their word. By law of the Soph, the Frosh did wear their night attire, and many were the strange sights seen by the inhabitants of the city of Kin that night. Yea and many were their of the tribe of Levan whose hearts did beat faster and whose breasts did heave. For the Frosh did form into line and did march past the dwelling of the Levanites, past the abode of the sick and dying, and through the centre of the city, throwing such a fear into the hearts of the inhabitants that they did lock and guard their dwellings, and protect their daughters, against the ravages of the Frosh, who are known for their unseeming conduct. Yea, even some of those from the tribes at Magil did view the happenings of the night and tremble with unaccounted fear for the result of the battle on the morrow.

And the next day having come, many from the tribes of Magil and all from those of Kweanz, did collect in the great stadium, to view their warriors, who did prepare for pitched battle in the centre of the field. And those of Magil, did shout for Magil, while those of Kweanz, did plead with their gods, and did shout for Kweanz. For those of Magil were seemingly cocksure, but those of Kweanz, were not given to cocksureness, but did they trust in their gods.

Yea, and verily, what a great battle was fought. Paul, son of Davoud; Howard, son of Carter; and Richard, son of Storms, were the most valiant for Kweanz, giving an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, and not yielding an iota to the men of Magil, who, led by Don, son of Young, did push and pull to no avail. But the gods in their kindness, were yet unkind, permitting neither side to win, and thus the great fight was called a draw, and none of they from the tribes from Magil, nor yet from Kweanz were happy, but were they content that the gods should see thuswise.

And on the eve after the battle, did the men of the tribes of Kweanz and Magil, take unto themselves virgins, largely from the tribe of Levan, and did mix freely, in the city of Kin, at divers places of pleasure, and much was the money that was passed, and many were those who did pass out.

Amen.

Ottawa College Beats Queen's Intermediates

With a changed set of plays Queen's seconds invaded the capital with one idea in mind, and that was to score their first win of the season, but they found the Ottawa collegians too strong and were forced to accept defeat by a score of 20-12.

In the first quarter Queen's had the high wind and used it to get a one point lead. It was a case of Ottawa trying to buck the ball and Queen's hoofing it. The quarter ended with Queen's one and Ottawa nothing.

But when Ottawa got the pill it was different. They blocked a Queen's kick to get a five point lead. They added two points to make the half time score, Ottawa 8, Queen's 1.

With the wind still in their favor Ottawa recovered a Tricolor fumble one yard out and soon had it across for a touch and convert. That made it 17 to 1 at three quarter time.

Queen's earned a touch by a forward pass and line plays to start the last spasm and that made it 17 to 6. The Tricolor are playing good football here and are getting results. Another five points came their way when Ottawa fumbled behind their line, 17 to 11. A convert added one. But Ottawa came to life and scored a field goal to end the game 20 to 12.

The teams:

Ottawa:		Queen's:
McAndrew	Flying Wing	Storr
Barnabe Benoit Farell	Halves	Hall Wing Galway
Cowley	Quarter	McIntosh
Veale	Snap	Dafoe
Desjardin Lewis	Insides	Ketchen Murphy
Cannon McDougal	Middles	Code Anglin
Jordan Dorian	Outsides	James Anderson
Corrigan Devine LaFleur Phillips Jordan Sweetman	Subs	Davidson Connor Dalton White Anglin Simpson Parsons Caplan Pesner

Officials: Gleeson, Starr, Kealey.

SOPH-FROSH BANQUET

Continuing the time honoured custom, the "Frosh" of Science '36 are going to treat their sophomores to a banquet. This sumptuous repast will be held this evening, Tuesday, Oct. 25th, in the ball-room at the La Salle Hotel at 7 p.m. sharp. A string orchestra will accompany this husky soup band. Science "Sophs" are reminded that this affair is free, so a full turn out is expected, and the "Frosh" are perfectly welcome provided they have paid their year fee. Anyone desiring more information can get same from Bob Hay, he convener of this Gargantuan gorge.

There's Pep in the Clothes you get at TWEDDELL'S

College men like the snap to Tweddell Clothes. There is something about the fit and workmanship of them that makes them distinctive in any group of men. One glance in our windows will explain exactly what we mean.

Our New Fall Suits and Topcoats are now in stock . . . . a wide assortment is ready for your selection. When you buy at Tweddell's you have the assurance of style correctness and fabric soundness at moderate cost. Our prices are always low . . . . so low that they fit in nicely with college allowances.

College Sweaters

A pure wool tricolor sweater coat is about as serviceable an article as any student can own. We have an unusually attractive range of new ones on display—all soft, warm wools and well made sweaters. Exceptionally good values.

TWEDDELL'S

137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Stone's Flower Shop

231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.

FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00

FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN

THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.

X-Ray Shoe Fitting

ALLAN M. REID

SHOE STORE

FASHION CRAFT

SALE TOPCOATS

Former Values $35.00 Now $17.50 — 1/2 — Former Values $20.00 Now $10.00

This is a real bargain coming in the midst of the Topcoat season. Pure Camel Hair, Scotch Tweeds and Harris Tweed Coats in all shades and styles and every coat Guaranteed by Fashion-Craft.

$35.00—Pure Camel Hair Topcoats $17.50

$35.00—Harris Tweed Topcoats $17.50

$30.00—Scotch Tweed Topcoats $15.00

$25.00—Camel Hair Topcoats $12.50

$20.00—Imported Tweed Coats $10.00

SHOP OF FASHION-CRAFT

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817
Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Headquarters for
ARTS
SCIENCE
MEDICINE
Year Pins and Rings
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Vitamins

The pursuit of the elusive vitamin has resulted in the cornering of six or seven important members of the species. These discoveries have been hailed as being the dawn of a new day to dietetics and no child's diet is now complete without the full array. The isolation and classification of the guiding principles of nutrition have resulted in a too enthusiastic chase after the benefits of their fruits, and vegetables.

The general diet of the people of the western civilizations has, during the past hundred years, lost much of its resemblance to the system of feeding to which the digestive system of the species man is best suited, and regained some of it within the last decade or two. Since the war of 1812, for instance, the consumption of cane sugar has increased from 8 to 108 lbs. per capita. Cereals and meats have been produced in more and more refined forms, and, in general, all foods reduced to concentrates. On the other hand, the constant efforts of those in charge of public health, and the improvements in the fields of canning and refrigerator transportation have done much recently to bring to our menus a higher percentage of health maintaining foodstuffs.

The deficiency diseases did not result so much from insufficiency of rare and complex chemical compounds as from general malnutrition. If a proper variety is observed in diet, the letters of the alphabet will take care of themselves. It is known that vitamin D is essential to the proper utilization of calcium and phosphorus in the formation of bony structures. Cod liver oil is the recognized remedy for this, and is widely known as the principal source of the anti-nachitic vitamin. However, the U.S. department of agriculture has published, as the result of comprehensive investigation, the statement that "It is quite apparent that there is more vitamin D in the canned salmon retailed throughout this country than in the cod liver oil used for both animal and human feeding.

Now it would hardly be practical to feed a ricketty child a steady diet of canned salmon, though most children would prefer it to a similar course of cod liver oil, but so much is unnecessary. All vegetables grown in the sun contain the principle. Sea foods are especially rich in it.

Moreover, the special nutritive qualities of green vegetables are retained through the process of canning. In extensive experiments, animals have been fed on diets consisting wholly of commercially canned foods, for generation after generation, and they throve on it, not merely as well as may be considered average, but in an optimum condition. The animals used were never in the sunshine. Ultra violet rashation of either food or animals was never employed. No cod liver oil, no raw vegetable or fruit juice, no vitamin preperation was ever used. Nothing but canned foods from retail stores were fed. The results are on record in scientific literature. Since it is maintained by authorities that deficiency of vitamins in the diet results in deficiency diseases, it is evident that all the vitamins were present in those grocery-store cans.

On the first discovery of vitamins, attention was given to the effect of gross deficiencies. Thus vitamin A became associated with growth, and is still designated by some as the growth producing vitamins, whereas it is only one of the essential factors in growth. Also because vitamin A frequently develops pus in the sinuses and ears, and along the respiratory tract, anti-infective and cold preventive properties are attributed to this vitamin. But in the "Journal of nutrition" for January 1932, occur the following statements, "The upper respiratory tract, nasal cavities and middle ear were free from suppuration in all of the deficient animals . . . it appears that withdrawal of vitamin A from the monkey does not develop a characteristic susceptibility toward infection of the upper respiratory tract." Now the monkey is much closer in biological habit to the human animal than is the rat.

There are vitamins. Their existence is undeniable. Their position as absolute essentials to our health is beyond question, but they have not the covness attributed to them by patent food advertisers and other over zealous persons. They swarm in myriads around every garden and orchard; they are imprisoned by the ton in low-priced cans; they are so prevalent in Kingston boarding houses as to have become almost a pest. Apart from the insidious power of the newspaper advertisement, there are forces in the lives of well fed people which make escape from the benefits of vitamins practically impossible.

Library Bulletin Board Needs To Be Set In Order

To say that the bulletin board in the entrance to the library is a mess would be putting it mildly. Here notices advertising books, rooms, board, etc., are three and four deep, making it almost impossible for anyone to find what he is looking for. If lucky enough to do so he will probably learn on phoning that the books have already been sold, the rooms quite soundly slept in, or the board chewed to a frazzle. His time has been completely wasted, all due to his answering a dead ad. which should have been taken down and buried long ago. After several such futile attempts he will probably give up in disgust and buy his books at the Teeh., eat at the Union and sleep in the park.

All the trouble arises it seems from these dead ads. which clutter up the board and make it a matter of extreme guess work to find the good ads. from the bad. The result is that although there are plenty of second-hand books for sale and more than enough prospective buyers, the two never make contact. New books must be bought and the old ones go to waste. And so we have a minor depression right here at Queen's.

MEDS '38 EXECUTIVE

Members of Medicine '38 met recently to choose their year officers.

The following were elected: President, Alex J. Finlayson; Vice-President, Douglas H. Pollock; Secretary, Howard B. Drysdale and Treasurer, William E. Allison.

Short Wave

A glance into the new shortwave radio station of the Physiological Institute of the Vienna University reveals the absence of artistes and of the usual paraphernalia of a broadcasting station. For this station has been built not to amuse patients or to make them forget their pain, hut to eliminate pain, to cure their diseases.

Hundreds of experiments have proved that short radio waves possess almost miraculous healing and microbe killing properties. Thus, one of two rabbits innoculated with identical organisms was subjected to the short wave treatment during only one week, at the end of which time the ulcer which it had developed proved entirely free from bacteria, and was healing up satisfactorily, while the wound of the other rabbit was swarming with microbes.

Two important conclusions may be drawn from this experiment. First that the short waves have a powerful disinfectant action and can destroy the bacteria right at the seat of the infection. Second, that this action must be due to certain special properties of these waves, for in all cases a heating of the exposed tissues by the rays has been avoided. This seems to indicate that the short wave treatment may prove of the greatest value in case of infectious inflammation, accompanied by high temperature.

More than one hundred patients have so far been treated successfully for boils, carbuncles, phlegmons of all kinds. Viennese specialists are now engaged in experiments which, should they turn out satisfactorily, would lead to the application of short wave therapy against tubercular infections. It has already been employed, with gratifying results, in cases of tubercular pleurisy. After a few applications, the fever and exudation, as well as the pain, subsided. Similar results have been achieved in the treatment of infectious inflammations of the articular joints.

It has not as yet been proved decisively whether the waves actually possess microbe-killing properties, or whether they release in the organism subjected to their action, certain hidden, healing forces. It is certain, however, that this discovery opens up new and vast possibilities for medical therapy. The waves have been very helpfnl in the treatment of ear trouble and defective hearing, while specialists are now studying the means of performing a new, bloodless, tonsil operation with these waves.

It is hoped ultimately to arrive at a point where short waves can be combined with the usual radium treatment into a powerful weapon against all forms of cancer.

(Condensed from News Weiner Vienna, June 19, 1932).

MUSIC CLUB

Next Friday at 4 p.m. the Music Club will meet not as formerly in the Douglas Library, room 111, but in the Red Room.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

MOVING OUT?

Comfortable single and double room, with board, if desired.
183 Clergy Street, East
Phone 1597-W

Number Of Dances Limited By New A.M.S. Regulations

Continued from page 1

are students beginning to enquire into the situation.

Among other regulations affecting social evenings are these: that they continue no later than 1 a.m.; and that there be no decorations. It is also provided that normally not more than one social function, whether an At Home or a Social Evening will occur in one week, but that when unavoidable two may be permitted at the discretion of the Social Functions Committee. The last named body consists of six members, three from the Senate, three from the A. M. S. executive, and alone can give permission for afternoon functions to be held.

Under the new regime, which is an experiment for one year only, the A.M.S. is responsible for every social function (whether inside or outside the University) held by a college organization.

Other regulations provide: that At Homes shall not continue later than 3 a.m. and that all plans for decoration must be approved by the Social Functions Committee and those in charge of the building to be used: that all dinner dance and social evening committees shall pay a fee of $5 to the A.M.S.; that the president of the organization or organizations holding the function shall be responsible for the proper conduct of the function; and that Patronesses must be present at all University functions.

Opposite Miller Hall
One front double room, very bright. With board.
37 Union St. West

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Queen's University
Established by Royal Charter 1841

HIGH SCHOOL ASSISTANT'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the professional course leading to an ordinary High School Assistant's Certificate is the degree of Bachelor or Master of Arts, Bachelor or Master of Science, or Bachelor of Commerce.

SPECIALIST'S CERTIFICATE
The academic standing for admission to the Ontario College of Education for Specialist's Certificate is the Honour degree from Queen's University in any one of the following groups: Greek and Latin, English and History, English and French, English and German or Spanish, French and German or Spanish, Mathematics and Physics, Science, Commercial subjects, provided such course extends over five years from Pass Matriculation, or four years from Honour Matriculation.
A graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science may obtain the standing required for Science Specialist by taking certain additional courses, information concerning which may be obtained from the Registrar, Queen's University.

PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE
The academic requirement for a Public School Inspector's Certificate is the Honour B.A., or the Pass B.A., under the conditions set forth on page 78 of the Arts Calendar.
For further information regarding courses apply to
THE REGISTRAR

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE TIVOLI

LOVE ME TONIGHT
with
Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Charles Ruggles, Charles Butterworth and Myrna Loy

Chevalier fans will find Love Me Tonigbt one of his best pictures. Those who can't see the French star for trees, however, will probably writhe throughout the entire presentation for Chevalier gives one of his typical performances.

Maurice is assisted by an excellent supporting cast that leaves little to be desired. Jeanette MacDonald can sing in my bedroom any time that is convenient for her. Charles Ruggles, for once, is given a good role that doesn't call for a drunken stagger in every reel. Myrna Loy has an obscure part and it will always remain one of life's unsolved mysteries to me that the girl with the oriental eyes is not given bigger and better breaks.

The much-heralded smutty dialogue of the picture fails, except on rare occasions, to materialize, for the censors, may the good Lord rot their blistered souls, have had a field day with the scissors. Wisecracks are left hanging in mid-air and one song has every juicy line deleted until the lyric scarcely makes sense, much less entertainment. The guardians of this country's morals must believe that Canadian audiences are composed entirely of Y.M.C.A. secretaries.

In spite of what the scissor-wielders have done, Love Me Tonight is still good entertainment. Maurice sings several catchy lyrics as well as one that might have been well omitted. The action is rapid, laughs are plentiful, and the plot, although negligible, is adequate for a musical farce. A—.

AT THE CAPITOL

SHOPWORN
with
Barbara Stanwyck, Zasu Pitts, Regis Toomey.

Miss Stanwyck and a non-supporting cast do their best to remove the last trace of entertainment from an already fatuous story. Shopworn is an incredibly bad film. If your reviewer has to be bored beyond belief, you at least should be warned.

A fairly amusing comedy offers some compensation. Small comfort, however.

To add to this reviewer's gloom, which deepened as the reels dragged on, a person nearby sniffled audibly at poor Miss Stanwick's predicament. Betrayed at every turn, with the Salvation Army band playing mournfully ontside The Home for Fallen Women, Miss Stanwyck's career rose and fell, rose and fell. with unerring accuracy. This reviewer was too immersed in self-pity to be very deeply stirred at each successive dilemma which overtook the poor working-girl. Anyway, it was so painfully apparent that slandered virtue would soon receive its reward, and that misjudged innocence would be eventually reinstated in the home. Only a question of time and much blah-blah. D.

Book Chats

By R.M.

Excepting The Fountain no novel written within the past year has had such a fascination for me as Lloyd C. Douglas' Magnificent Obsession (Thomas Allen, Toronto).

A book that holds your interest from first page to last, that somehow annihilates time and space must have something in it. And Magnificent Obsession has a great deal in it. There is religion (not of the conventional type) life, colour, and movement in this absorbing novel. What perhaps makes the book so captivating is the fact that Mr. Douglas has woven his theme through a multi-coloured pattern of real life, has combined the essential art of the realist with that of the idealist.

The story of Magnificent Obsession is briefly as follows: Bobby Merrick, wealthy son of a car manufacturer is saved from drowning at the price of a great brain surgeon's life—Dr. Hudson. The doctor's pulmotor was in use on Merrick while he himself was drowning on the other side of the same lake. This incident works a powerful change in Bobby Merrick's life. He goes in for medicine; strives to replace Dr. Hudson; but the secret of the great man's success is as a locked door to him until he decipers a private journal revealing the key to greatness, power, depth of personality. Stated in a few words, this sounds like pelmanism, but Mr. Douglas has set forth this fine ideal in his book with restraint yet with powerful appeal—namely, "to lose a friend in whom one has invested something of one's personality is to have lost a certain amount of one's self."

The characterization is good, particularly that of Merrick's uncle, Old Nicholas, Joyce Hudson, a wild young thing, adds a touch of colour. But perhaps the finest character is Mrs. Helen Hudson, 25-years old, whose love affair with Bobby Merrick, is depicted with such idealistic artistry as it is hard for one to appreciate in this materialistic age. I heartily recommend Magnificent Obsession as one of the most inspiring, worthwhile novels that Canadian literature has yet produced.

Congratulations are due to Muriel Miller Humphrey, the wife of Dr. Humphrey of the Philosophy Department, who has just published a small collection of poems, intitled "Twenty Sonnets".

The favour in which it has been held by centuries of poets suggests that perhaps the sonnet is really less like Procrustes' bed than our own verse—for it does lend itself with peculiar adaptability to the expression of a thought. A just reading of Mrs. Humphrey's sonnets serves to emphasize this idea, for a perfect harmony of thought and form characterizes most of them. The lines run with an ease that implies ready composition, hut these are not facile verses; the words are too carefully chosen, too polished to have been born without effort.

Deeper than the sympathetic surface one hesitates at first to go, for here is a sincerity too intimate to be fingered by every curious critic. So the first opening sequence must speak for itself and indeed its eloquence needs no introduction. To be a poet one must first have something to say, and be able to find poetry among all phases of the common places of life; and here too, Mrs. Humphrey is a poet. her imagination provides fantasies such as "The Silver Flute", and she finds food for her inspiration also in "A Little Room", in joy and even in the telephone.

An occasional limp in the rhythm is apparent to the captious eye; but this is amply out valued by a varied, untisual vocabulary, a dexterous use of words, and behind the words, there shines out a series of beautiful and sincere thoughts. Innately chaste in substance as in form, this slim chap-book whets our appreciation to hope for more such sonnets as these.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor
of the Queen's Journal.
Dear Sir:

I wish to take this opportunity to reply to a letter that recently appeared in your columns under the title of "An Open Letter to the Initiation Committee," not as one who has any connections with that committee, but as one who has also attended two Canadian Universities besides Queen's, and who holds contrary views. The topic of initiation appears to be a very timely one, in the light of recent happenings about the campus, and it is quite apparent that Mr. J. F. Clark, B.Com. is not alone in his opinions. For in his letter he states that he does not object to initiation of some kind. but that he does object to the system in vogue at Queen's. This can mean only one thing: that he favors physical initiation.

And this type of hazing has its own particular merit—the merit of being the most effective measure for erasing insubordination and cockiness. But the great majority of freshmen are not cocky. True, they are unaccustomed to a University student's way of doing things, and many are quite green: but very few indeed come to Queen's to tell us how to run our University. The heaviest indictment against physical initiation is that it leads invariably to excess. It was excess at the initiation of Arts '29 that outlawed the system here. And the recent vulgar display at Dalhousie University proves that the rule holds true elsewhere.

In place of the physical initiation we have our present set of Freshman Regulations. These are based on the assumption that until a man has completed his first year, he has no right to the privileges of the rest of the student body. And this seems to me to be eminently just. I fail to see how a freshman, by having his head dipped in tar, can be elevated thereby to the same status as the sophomores, juniors, and seniors. The present system gives the first-year student a goal to be attained. He has to earn his upper-class privileges, not by baptism, but by his own efforts and merits.

Secondly, with regard to nonfussing. I believe that this is the most sensible rule in the whole freshman programme. When a freshman arrives at Queen's, he finds that he is no longer compelled to study. His time is his own, to use or abuse as he will. As junior lecturer of another University, I was in an admirable position to see that at least fifty per cent of college failures occurred in the first year, and that this was mainly because freshmen over-emphasized this fetish called "making social contacts." I truly think most of those who failed thought it more important to know everyone on the campus than to know their work.

The business of the student is to study, not to become a member of the University four hundred. By refraining from fussing for the first half-year, one is much more likely to be able to fuss for the next seven. "Making social contacts" is a very important by-product of student days. but it should always remain a by-product. I only wish Mr. Clark were correct when he implies that this fussing rule is in force the whole year. For the saneness of the rule is a tribute to the good sense and mature thought, both of those who originated it and those by whom it is maintained.

Sincerely yours,
J. H. KENT, B.A.

CALIFORNIA CO-ED. — — —.

Los Angeles—A group of women students at the University of Southern California have agreed to pay the full cost of dates if their escorts can measure up to their standard of "the perfect man."

Here's how the model man will be rated by the girls; intelligence 20 percent, cultural background 15 percent, courtesy 10 percent, sense of humor 10 percent, physical fitness 5 percent, clear understanding of the meaning of the word 'no' 5 percent, social poise 5 percent, dancing ability 5 percent.

BANDER SNATCHES

"Oh," said Alice, as she stepped off the train," this is beginning to look like a brand new adventure."

Four young oysters hurried up with yards of Queen's colours pinned to their coats, and streaming in the wind. They pointed accusing fingers at her and enquired in loud and important tones, "Are you a freshette?"

"Why, I guess I must be," said Alice, jumbling for her haggage check, "just wait till I"—

"Oh, we'll see to that when we get to Ban Righ Hall," interrupted the first oyster, and before she could say anything further they had bundled her into an aged Ford car, and she was being jolted over the roads in the direction of the university.

"You know," she said, turning to the oyster sitting nearest her, "I've always wondered what it was like to go to college, and now I really think"—

"You're not supposed to think," shouted the largest oyster of the four, "You're only a freshette!"

"But who does the thinking at Queen's?" she inquired.

"Oh, the Principal and a few of the professors, and the A.M.S., and —"

"But do they really think?" she interrupted.

"That will be enough from you," they shouted in chorus, and relapsed into a stern silence, which lasted until they drew up beneath the portals of a very impressive looking edifice.

"Ban Righ Hall!" announced one of the reception committee, in stentorian tones, as though conducting a Cooks Tour.

Before she had a chance to properly appreciate its dignity, she found herself being pushed up the stone slpes and through the great door into the hall, and thence to the Dean's office.

"My goodness!" she said to herself. "I believe this must be my old friend, the White Queen. She's looking well, too." A slightly harrassed looking person who seemed to know her at once, welcomed her so sweetly that Alice was quite touched. One of the oysters grabbed her unceremoniously by the arm and hurried her upstairs to her room and left her with the announcement that dinner was at six-fifteen, and that she had better not be late on her first night at college. The door slammed and Alice realized that at last she had become established in one small corner of the Halls of Learning.

A sudden sense of the newness of it all descended upon her and she said aloud, "Oh dear, this is such a big place I wonder if I'm going to be lonely here, I believe I feel a little lonely already," she added plaintively. Two large tears coursed down her cheeks, but she suddenly remembered the White Queen's advice of the past, and after considering what a great girl she was, how far she had come, and what o'clock it was, the prospect of registering the next day and seeing the campus (she hadn't the faintest idea what a campus was) occupied her thoughts and she felt much better.

TREACLE AND INK,
X their mark.

(To be continued)

C. O. T. C.

TRAINING SEASON 1932-33.

Part I.

No. 20
Lectures and Tactioual Exercises.

1. Commencing Thursday, October 20th and until further notice candidates for Certificate A Infantry and Engineers, will meet Major Campbell, R.C.O.C., in room No. 1 of Carruthers Hall at 5.00 p.m. on Thursday of eaeh week.

2. Commencing October 25th and until further notice candidates for Certificate B Infantry will meet Lt. Colonel P. G. C. Campbell in Kingstone Hall every Thursday at 5,00 p.m.

3. Commencing Friday, October 21st candidates for Certificate A and B. Medical will meet Lt. Colonel L. J. Austin at the Old Medical Building on Tuesdays and Fridays at 5.00 p.m., until further notice.

No. 10.
Musketry Training,
Intercollegiate Competition.

1. Officers and cadets who are candidates for the Intercollegiate team will report to Lieut Huggins at the Orderly Room at 1.30 on Tuesdays and Fridays until further notice.

Transportation to the butts will be supplied.

Part II.

No. 11.
Promotion.

1. 1297, Pte. Anderson, W.A.B., to be L/corp from Jan. 1st, 1932.

No. 12.
Strength Decreases.

The undermentioned are struck off strength with effect as follows to date from August 1st, 1932.

1297 Pte. Anderson, W. A. B.; 1328 Pte. Ward, F. S.; 1147 Pte. Ewing, J. W.; 1097 Pte. Gray, K.C.; 1041 Pte. Kerr, N. W.; 1103 Pte. Burr, R. C.; 799 Pte. Christie, W. L.; 853 Pte. Duval. H. R.; 1281 Pte. Baker, J. E.; 1277 Pte. Abramson, E.; 1120 Pte. Hunt, G. G.; 1040 Pte. McGuire, J. J.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.
A/Adj., Q.U.C.,
C.O.T.C.

ON OTHER CAMPUSES

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA —Several pin-hole camera photographs of the recent solar eclipse taken by two students will shortly be published in scientific magazines.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS —The department of romance languages at Illinois is beginning a series of French lessons over the university radio station. These lessons will be broadcast twice a week.

PRINTING
FOR YOUR SOCIETY, YEAR OR DANCE, LOOSE LEAF REFILLS, NOTE BOOKS, INKS, YEAR CREST STATIONERY AND ALL STUDENTS SUPPLIES.
The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Tricolor Holds McGill Team To 12-12 Tie By Strong Come-back After Inauspicious Start

Continued from page 1

down many points and at half time looked to be a badly beaten team. But this, rather than slowing them up, seemed to inspire them to greater efforts and they pounded away viciously not only to tie the score but add another to take the lead.

The game showed a few stars that twinkled merrily. Howie Carter playing his last year of Intercollegiate rugby, turned in a game that was a treat to watch. While his work on the secondary defense was above the average, his kicking astounded the fans at time, when with a fair breeze behind him, he punted fifty-five, sixty and on one occasion 70 yards to gather points. What a hoof!

"HOWIE" CARTER

"Howie" played one of the best games of his career against McGill, punting, tackling and knocking down passes in finished style.

Davoud again showed that he is never cornered on the back field until he is under about four men. Time and again he wiggled out of impossible corners to tear down the field, and on more than one occasion he relieved the pressure nicely with long runs.

Storms, tackled like a fiend, and made a good job of a special assignment, that of blocking forward plays. He roamed around the secondary defense area, and it was mainly due to his work that McGill only completed four passes.

DICK STORMS

Tackler "par excellence" Storms has been doing effective work for the Tricolor.

Bud Gorman was another who was always on the job. His tackling featured the game, and he sent the crowd dizzy when he fell on the loose ball for a touch, after the McGill half had fumbled.

The line played much better football than on their last appearance in Kingston, and while McGill made yards five times, the Tricolor line held when it was needed. They had to play good football to hold this McGill team and they did.

After scoring a rouge on a fumble, McGill got a gift touch when Carter attempting to kick from his own line, had the hoof blocked and Lee of McGill fell on it for a touch.

A backfield fumble gave McGill the ball in Queen's territory and they added one to make the total 8 to 0 at the end of the first quarter. The Tricolor looked as good as McGill, in spite of the score and this game was not lost yet.

With the wind against them in the second quarter, McGill changed tactics, and elected line plays instead of forward passing. They had much the better of plunging and gained yards from scrimmage four times while Queen's just couldn't Carter now has the wind and watch those punts go sailing. Early in the second, he kicked from his forty, and the ball travelled almost to the McGill line. It was a tremendous lift. Queen's scored their first point when Carter punted to Craig who was forced to rouge. A second long kick by Carter made the score 8 to 2. McGill earned their next three points by nice line plunging and a pretty forward pass, Gilbert to Lee. And we are now down 11 to 2.

Davoud's kickoff after the above field goal went to the deadline before McGill woke up and we now had three points. The boys were pressing and just before the half time whistle blew Queen's had the Red team on their own line, and another score seemed likely. The half ended 11 for McGill and only 3 for Queen's.

The Queen's team play snappy football in this third quarter to score nine points, hold the opposition scoreless, and we take the lead.

Keeping the wind behind them the Tricolor adopted a kicking spell and Carter repeatedly forced the Red team back. Bob Ralph got his nose tangled up and it had to be repaired. Bud Gorman replaced him. Davoud went crazy, and literally smashed his way for forty yards, running back a punt. Carter's boot did the rest, giving Queen's another point. Play waged in McGill's twenty-five yard area, but Queen's couldn't score. Finally from Davoud tried a placement from the forty yard mark, but it didn't get Queen's a thing.

Queen's were fighting mad and they couldn't be kept out for ever.

"TAFF" BYRNE

One of those unsung heroes on the line whose work cannot go unnoticed.

Davoud tried a second placement and over it went. McGill 11 Queen's 7. The crowd couldn't take their eyes off the field for a moment, you never knew what would happen.

Davoud tried a third placement that went wide. The McGill half slipped and the ball bounced off his head, good old Bud Gorman snaring it for a touch and five points. Queen's 12 and McGill 11. The convert did not go over.

Fifteen minutes to go and one point up. Won't this be a fighting quarter, and it was. McGill with the wind could do little and relied on forward passes, five of them for results. Two were converted for good gains, but as nobody wanted to keep the ball for long it didn't matter. Fumbles were in order, due no doubt to tension and the ball changed hands every few minutes.

Queen's had the ball in McGill's backyard, but couldn't score. Forward passes brought play to Queen's 15 and McGill kicked a point to tie it up 12 all. McGill lost a good chance when Craig hurried a kick in the last minute of play and booted a short one to Queen's 15 and it was all over.

The teams:

McGill:		Queen's:
Young	Flying Wing	Storms
Olker	Halves	Davis
Craig		Carter
Stevens		Davoud
Gilbert	Quarter	Carr
Halpenny	Snap	Buell
Wilson	Insides	Byrne
McMorran		Hoskings
Watson	Middles	Hamlin
Latourneau		Kennedy
Newton	Outsides	Ralph
Lee		Gorman
Griffiths	Subs.	Day
Riddell		Dargavel
Krukowski		Kostuik
Hammond		Purvis
Fyshe		Thoman
Freeman		McNichol
Byers		Peever
Hillard		Teskey
Harvey		Conquergood
Garcelon

Officials: O'Brien, Foster, Kiell.

FORWARD PASSES

Win or lose, Queen's always show plenty of fight.

* * * * * *

Fumbles may mean poor football, but the crowd likes them especially when the other fellow makes them.

* * * * * *

The A. B. of C. are to be congratulated on keeping the gridiron clear at half time. The bands got a chance and put on a real show. Let's make it a habit from now on.

* * * * * *

Mr. O'Brien will get razzed as long as he is anywhere near a football. And sometimes he has it coming.

* * * * * *

Montrealers made enough on bets to lay in the winter's coal when Tigers were licked 9 to 4.

* * * * * *

How can you figure this Western team. Varsity only beat them 7 to 6 and had to score a more or less lucky touch to do it.

* * * * * *

One of Carter's kicks must have sailed about 80 yards. There may be longer kicks on record, but they will be in "Believe It Or Not," and that's not so reliable.

* * * * * *

The McGill half, Craig, gets a tear for a tough break, when the ball bounced off his head when he slipped. And wasn't Gorman handy?

B.W.F. Team Needs New Men This Year

Last year Queen's B. W. & F. team won the Intercollegiate Assault-At-Arms, this year the B. W. F. gang intends to repeat its performance and keep the laurels in Kingston.

To do this the coaches must build, practically a new team, and to do this they want, or more than want, need, new men. And it's any man's right and privilege to be on the team. So to the freshmen in particular we send this invitation to turn out, and try out for a place on the B. W. & F. squad.

We have two of the best coaches that can possibly be found. Mr. Bews is one of the finest trainers in the country, while Jack Jarvis not only knows all he needs to know about boxing, but has held championships himself. These two men were instrumental in winning the assault last year, and it's our duty as Queen's men to help them this year.

So Freshmen, get out now and train. There are conditioning classes every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 o'clock, and condition as everybody knows is the most important thing in an enterprise of this sort. These conditioning exercises will count towards Physical Training attendance, if you come regularly and ask for your attendance. So turn out at once and join the gang. There are over 100 already taking the classes, but three times that number would give the coaches more choice for a good team. So come on Freshmen, don't be bashful but step right into the squad and let us know that you're here.

Intercollegiate Tennis, Title Taken By Queen's

Continued from page 1

Milne put up a hard fight against the Toronto girl, and at first it looked as if she would be successful. Jean Davey staged a snappy comback however, and took the match by 2-6, 7-5, 7-5.

Ruth Fishleigh (Queen's) vs. Agnes Gardiner (Toronto). Agnes Gardiner did not put up much of a fight in this short match, which resulted in victory for Ruth Fishleigh by the score 6-1, 6-4.

Doreen Kenny (Queen's) vs. Jean Davey (Toronto). Cool thinking and brilliant strokes of Doreen Kenny broke down any resistance that Jean Davey, spirited Toronto player, had to offer. The match resulted in victory for Doreen Kenny, 6-0, 6-0.

Kay Symons (Toronto) vs. Grace Rath (Western). Kay Symons gained a place in the singles finals by defeating Grace Rath, 6-2, 6-3.

Doreen Kenny (Queen's) vs. Ruth Fishleigh (Queen's). One of the best singles matches played was this, between the two Queen's stars, for a place in the finals. Doreen Kenny, a steady player, outclassed Ruth Fishleigh with many clever strokes. The match ended in her favor, 6-0, 6-2.

Kay Symons (Toronto) vs. Celia Moore (Western). Celia Moore tried hard to get in the finals, but was unable to defeat Kay Symons. Score 6-3, 6-4.

Doreen Kenny (Queen's) vs. Kay Symons (Toronto). This exciting match resulted in victory and the singles championship for Doreen Kenny, stellar Queen's player. In the latter half Kay Symons looked threatening, but her attempt to win was vain. The score was 6-1, 7-5.

The Queen's girls were even stronger in the doubles than they had been in the singles. They won three of the four matches in which they engaged, thus taking the doubles championship. The following matches were played:

Grace Rath, Betty Clarke (W) vs. Kay Symons, Pat Callen (T). The Toronto girls looked dangerous at first, but soon gave way to the steady team-playing of G. Rath and B. Clarke, who won, 1-6, 10-8, 6-3.

D. Kenny and R. Fishleigh (Q) vs. A. Gardiner and J. Davey (T). Brilliant team-work by the Queen's players overcame Agnes Gardiner and Jean Davey. Jean Davey gave a great display of net-playing in this exciting match, which resulted in 6-4, 6-2, for Queen's.

L. Demitrova and C. Milne (Q) vs. C. Moore and A. McManus (W). These well-matched players put up an exciting game, and the victory was won at the last moment. 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, for Western.

D. Kenny and E. Fishleigh (Q) vs. C. Moore and A. McManus (W). The Queen's girls again proved themselves superior by defeating Celia Moore and Anna McManus of Western. Score, 6-1, 6-3.

D. Kenny and R. Fishleigh (Q) vs. G. Rath and B. Clarke (W). This was a brilliant match which gave Queen's the doubles championship. Grace Rath exhibited her extraordinary ability as a net player, but she and her teammate were not equal to the combined skill of Doreen Kenny and Ruth Fishleigh, who won the match by the score of 6-1, 6-2.

Doreen Kenny and Ruth Fishleigh are the new Intercollegiate Doubles Champions. Doreen Kenny is an experienced player in whom admirable control and quickness of thought and movement are combined to a high degree. Ruth Fishleigh, though not as experienced, gives evidence of great promise as a brilliant player, and with Doreen Kenny makes a team difficult to defeat.

Did you hear of Jack stepping in front of the train.

No. Was he killed?

No, the train was backing up.

(Another case for the police court.)

Western Beaten By Varsity Rugby Squad

Without Patterson their ace half for the greater part of the game Western fell before the Blue team in a strenuous struggle before a huge crowd. The final score was 7-6.

Awde made a poor job of the kicking duties for Western, a kick of his being blocked early in the first quarter to give Varsity a soft five points.

Patterson came on limping badly and after being roughly used in a couple of tackles he was taken out. Varsity knew what a threat he was, and made sure of his withdrawal.

Varsity added two in the second quarter mainly through Western miscues, and half time found them with a lead of 7 to 1.

Western threw a scare into the big crowd by staging an offensive that coupled with a Varsity backfield fumble gave Western the ball on Toronto's eight. A forward pass surprised the Blues and Western scored five. The convert failed. Varsity 7, Western 6.

Patterson came on in the fourth quarter to throw three successful forward passes, one for 45, one for 15, and one for 5 yards, to bring the play to Varsity's 30. Awde had a wonderful chance to tie it up but bungled his kick and the game was over. Varsity 7, Western 6.

STYLE and QUALITY...

Are the standards we use in selecting merchandise for your approval.

The prices here are always as low as they can be, consistent with Quality.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.

Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear

170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS

SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON

BADMINTON RACQUETS

HALF PRICE

WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP

202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES

Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted

GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE

216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN

BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES

The Room of Distinction

First Class Equipment First Class Service

TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.

233 Princess St.

VanHorne's

Men's Shop

There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer

Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.

213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE

Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,

FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT

Sakell's Tea Room

"We are proud of our Clientele"

QUEEN'S VEGETARIANS

The Queen's University Rugby team is blaming its defeats on a vegetable diet. From experience, we can hazard a guess, and we'll wager it's correct, as to who is the instigator of the barrage of onions, carrots, tomatoes, etc., under which the Tricolor men are labouring. Let the boys eat what they want, and you'll at least keep them happy, Milt. —Western Gazette.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE
or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

(Courtesy Kingston Whig-Standard)

Hugh Way, Queen's, is here shown crashing to victory in the 100 yard dash in the Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet held in Toronto. Way was the only two event winner of the meet. His victories in the 100 yard dash and 220 were easily the feature of the Meet which saw but one record broken—the discus throw.

Toronto Man Shatters Discuss throw Record — Hugh Way Of Queen's Wins Two Events As McGill Takes Track Title

McGill University retained the intercollegiate track and field title by a wide margin at the annual meet held yesterday at the U. of T. Stadium. The Red and White athletes captured eight of the fifteen events and amassed a total of 73 points. The University of Toronto team collected five firsts and 47 points, while Queen's took third place with only two firsts and 15 points in all events.

Ronald Westheuser of the School of Science was the only athlete to eclipse a record during the afternoon. Westheuser, who shattered both the intercollegiate and interfaculty records for the discus throw in the recent interfaculty meet, lived up to advance notices when he hurled the missile for a distance of 119 feet 3¼ inches. The former mark of 118 feet 9¾ inches was made by K. I. Carruthers ten years ago. Crowley, also of the University of Toronto, placed second, while Costello of McGill was third in this event.

Hugh Way of Queen's proved to be a sensation of the meet when he captured both the 100 and the 220 yard sprints, giving his university its only victories. Phil Edwards of Olympic fame, but who is not a printer, finished second in the 220-yard dash. Edwards, however, came through as expected in the quarter mile. In the half-mile he permitted his teammate Sampson to win.

Ed Hymmen came within a quarter of an inch of equalling the record for the running broad jump when he leaped 22 feet 2¾ inches to bring another victory to Toronto. Ken Ford, from London, Ontario, was crowned intercollegiate high jump champion when he soared to a height of 5 feet 9½ inches. Ford failed in an attempt to better the intercollegiate record ofk 5 feet 11¾ inches.

100-yard dash—Way, Q.; Crabtree, M.; Smith, T. Time, 10 1-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—Way, Q.; Edwards, M.; Running, Q. Time, 23 2-5 seconds.

440-yard dash—Edwards, M.; Sampson, M.; Stewart, T. Time, 51 seconds.

Half-mile—Sampson, M.; Edwards, M.; Macfie, T. Time, 2 minutes 5 sec.

One mile—Goode, M.; Fronkton, M.; McLennan, T. Time, 4 minutes 38 4-5 seconds.

Three miles — Fronkton, M.; Kibblewhite, T.; Thompson, T. Time, 15 minutes 55 seconds.

Relay—University of Toronto (Byrne, Macfie, Penlington, Stewart). Time 3 minutes 35 seconds.

110 yards, high hurdles—Drew, M.; Worrell, M.; Hickey, T. Time, 16 seconds.

220-yard low hurdles—Worrell, M.; Hickey, T.; Hutchins, M. Time, 26 2-5 seconds.

High jump—Ford, T.; Drew, M.; Worrell, M. Height, 5 feet 9½ inches.

Running broad jump—Hymmen, T.; Drew, M.; Crabtree, M. Distance, 22 feet 2¾ inches.

Pole-vault—Wallace, M.; Hamilton, T.; Stewart, T.; Height, 10 feet 11 in.

Discus-throw— Westheuser, T.; Crowley, 2.; Costello, M. Distance, 119 feet, 3¼ inches.

16-pound shot-put—Fulton, T.; Stewart, T.; Painter, M. Distance, 37 feet 3¾ inches.

Javelin-throw — Monahan, M.; Hubbell, Q.; Painter, M. Distance, 148 feet 7 inches.

S. C. A. Shrapnel

We live in a generation which has no enthusiasm for the ideals and institutions of its fathers, and feels itself hopeless to create new values to replace the old. The old gods are crumbling and the new do not yet compel allegiance. Institutions unquestioned since the fourth century are again suffering analysis. Problems of sex, of the family, of social life, of peace and war, and of the ultimate value of existence have slipped their leashes. King Whirl refuses his subjects a perspective which gives life the Poise of Power.

The potentially creative capacities of man must act as a unified organism. The modern must co-relate the conflicting forces within him, to a common objective. How to determine this ultimate objective value is the great problem which confronts the modern student.

Now You
CAN
Afford Quality

In TIP TOP clothes is found the greatest value in custom-tailoring obtainable anywhere — fine British woolens — expert custom tailoring — superb fit and style. Each TIP TOP suit and overcoat is individually cut and tailored to one's own personal measurements. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
TAILORED TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

World News Briefly

Most economists are agreed that the reparations problem is one of the factors promoting the depression. Yet there is no unanimity of opinion as to what should be done about them. President Hoover is strongly against cancellation. Now France according to a La Presse depatch wants repudiation. She bases this attitude on the parliamentary resolution of July 1929 which declared that France would pay her allies no more than she should receive from reparations. The problem was opened for discussion Friday evening in the French Chamber of Deputies.

Italy's iron-handed dictator, Benito Mussolini, in an address at Turin, Sunday, appealed to the United States for the cancellation of war debts. He also upheld Germany's demand for armament equality.

* * *

Characterizing republican campaign tactics as melodramatic and Herbert Hoover's Gold Standard bugey as an "artificially created eclipse of the sun," Governor Roosevelt launched into a vigorous denunciation of the republican party and outlined his own platform in a speech at St. Louis, Friday evening.

* * *

Protests from representatives of prairie governments, and of the wheat pool, have had the effect of reducing the freight rates on grain half a cent a bushel, Ottawa announced Monday.

* * *

Developments of international importance may accrue from the meeting of Nanking Government officials in Shanghai, begun last Friday. Sentiment in the constituted government is favorable to arbitration of Sino-Japanese disputes but so unrepresentative is the Nanking administration that it dare not show its hand.

* * *

It would almost appear from a despatch from Nairobi Kenya, Africa, that a white girl was sacrificed to appease the wrath of a Menagai volcano. The body of Winifred Stevenson, 20 years old, of Glasgow, was found near the Menagai mount a week ago. Police say the girl was shot, however.

McGill Tennis Players Win Toronto Tournament

Finding themselves deadlocked with 12 points each at the end of the scheduled matches in the Men's Tennis Tourney, McGill and Varsity were forced to hold a deciding series of matches to break their deadlock and determine the winning team.

Six matches were played—four singles and two doubles, McGill winning handily by taking five events.

By virtue of his victory in the singles competition, Laird Watt of McGill is the new champion. Another McGill pair also forged their way to a Canadian title. They are Ken Farmer and Bob Murray, who disposed of their opponents in finished style to win the much coveted doubles title.

After being defeated in their first singles matches the Queen's players met with no better fortune in the doubles, dropping their opening matches.

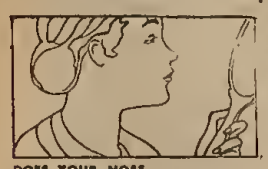
Summary:

Team winners—McGill.

Singles winner — Laird Watt. (McGill).

Doubles winners—Bob Murray —Ken Farmer (McGill).

Arts '33 And '34 Holding Tea-Dance For Arts Frosh



Arts '33 and '34 are holding a tea-dance for Arts Freshmen on Wednesday, October 26th, from four to six o'clock at the La Salle Hotel. All of Levana is cordially invited. Other years may gain admission to what promises to be a most successful party on paying the small fee of fifty cents at the door. The Committee in charge are Norah McGinnis, Alan Sprague, Art Sutherland, Dick Hall and Andy Bell.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT
Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Throe Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

Economy for Students!
We courteously serve to students and other patrons. Meal tickets priced at $9.00 now reduced to $6.00. We cater specially to Banquets and Private Parties.
THE CROWN CAFE
203 Princess St

Levana Tea Dance Was Successful Affair

The first Levana Tea Dance, held on Saturday in Ban Righ Hall after the Queen's-McGill game proved a great success. The fortunate males who managed to receive invitations to Ban Righ affairs, can put down a few credits on the side of personality. Until 6.30 Beauty and Chivalry tripped the light fantastic on the best dancing floor in Kingston, to the rhythm of Bill Gummer, who certainly knew his ivories. Miss Laird and Miss Allen poured tea, and as usual the refreshments were delightful.

Miss Doris Bannister, convener, and her committee deserve much credit for the capable way in which the Tea Dance was managed. Margaret MacGregor had charge of the refreshments and Dot Brooks looked after the sale of tickets. The fact that no smoking is allowed in Ban Righ Hall and the Annexes does not seem to be generally known. It is regrettable that guests at Ban Righ Hall seem unwilling to comply with the rules of the house.

Captain J. O. Watts Again Leads Forum

The Forum, under the leadership of Capt. J. O. Watts, resumed its term activities recently. The subject under discussion was what should he the attitude of a student towards the various movements he comes in contact with? Capt. Watts reviewed the rise of industry from the time when each person was self sufficient until the present time, with the factory as the unit.

The cost of machines has of necessity put the control in the hands of the rich. Personal responsibility for workers has disappeared in the process of mass production. The purpose is manufacture for profit and not for necessity.

The Discussion group which met last year with Prof. C. E. Walker, met recently to discuss the year's program, under the leadership of Mr. J. C. Cameron of the Economics Department. Topics of general interest will be discussed and all are invited to attend and to contribute. Next Wednesday evening the group will meet in Room 212 of the Library at 7 p.m. to discuss "Why are Thousands Starving in the midst of Plenty?"

Such questions as these were thrown into the meeting. What of socialism's ideal that production should be primarily for the satisfaction of human needs? What are the benefits of present system? What are the evils of present system? What place has money and the Gold Standard in this system. What of nationalism.

The necessity that students keep their minds open and not to argue for argument sake but to get the facts, was urged.

Next weeks topic will be "Fluctuations in Money Values with special reference to the Fluctuations in price of Stocks."

FIRE CHIEF INJURED

Chief James Armstrong of the Kingston Fire Department was involved in a collision with a truck and a Ford car near the corner of Wellington and Brock Streets, early yesterday morning.

Mr. Armstrong was removed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital. At six o'clock last night his condition was reported to be much improved.

Campus Cut-ups

I hereby suggest that a chair be established in the old university for Tag and Programme-selling research. Vast unexplored territory, a broad education, and a worthy cause. Mon., Tue., Wed., Thur., Fri., Sat., at 7 o'clock. Standing room only.

Case A: There is the Freshette who approached a fast-scattering group of young men, with determined step. "Wanna buy a tag?" Hemming and hawing, at last a burst of speech. "But we're McGill men!" A gay wave of the hand, and she disappears beneath an oncoming truck.

Case B: The lady who would buy a tag if the Pipe Band learned to play the National Anthem.

Case C: or what Medical students are to Freshettes. (Tag sellers of course, of course.) Freshettes led astray in Richardson Clinic, rose nobly to the occasion. Did brisk business among internes rushing patients to emergency operations, and among specimens hiding behind newspapers. Give the little girls a hand. They're here today to tell the tale. Lest we forget.

Case D; or ten nights in a bar room with one case. The two Freshettes with devastating lines, who break records in the history of tag-selling. Their smiles lead young men to reach into pockets bravely, and to come out of places of hiding reserved for times such as these. The ones who caused some Science students to throw a fellow sufferer out of a window (Hopeful thought—a third story window?) on his refusal to indulge. The same Freshettes who were heartily booed at the Rugby game because of the conspicuous absence of the marks of their station, namely: Tams.

Well anyway, if the University doesn't approve of this course, I suggest that Queen's students take 10 easy lessons in the art of successfully dodging taggers. There are so many fine points to this game, and I'm sure everyone is interested.

Campus and Gym

The Softball season opened with a game between Levana '33 and Levana '34, which was won by '34. The final score was 17-2. Jean Stewart, Dot Clemens and Sally Farlinger were the stars of the winning team, while Doreen Kenny was the outstanding player for '33. The teams were:

'34—Jean Stewart, Dot Clemens, Sally Farlinger, Isa Galbraith, Evelyn Cornwall, Jean Nelson, Ruby Cordy, Marg. Chambers, and Norah McGinnis.

'33—Doreen Kenny, Jo Tett, May Mills, Peggy Boyd, Marg. Walker, Hilda Landon, Fay Kimmins and Hetty Bolin. Miss Murphy refereed the game.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

A word of commendation is due the members of Levana who so loyally supported the Arts candidates in the recent A. M. S. elections, and we would like to take this opportunity of thanking those who turned out to vote. We understand that five per cent of the members of Levana did not take the time to visit the polling booths. This is certainly to be regretted because we feel sure, that had they done so, at least one of our own Levana candidates would have been successful.

HILDA LANDON,
Pres. of Levana.

International Bridge Under Consideration

An international bridge in the vicinity of Kingston would undoubtedly encourage the tourist traffic which is such a financial benefit to Canada. Two proposals have been made concerning such a bridge.

The first site necessitates a bridge over the International Channel at Cape Vincent, a highway across Wolfe Island, and thence a crossing of the Canadian Channel either by a single span from Brophy's' Point, about four miles below Kingston, or alternately, by two shorter spans from Wolfe Island to the head of Howe Island, and from there to the mainland in the vicinity of Kingston.

The Kingston Chamber of Commerce has employed the firms Monserrat and Pratley of Montreal, and Fay, Spoffard and Thorndike of Boston, Mass., to prepare a report on this upper, or Kingston site. Navigation requirements demand a clearance of 152 ft. above the water across the main channel. For this first site the plans provide an opening of 1,000 feet between the piers. A 16 foot roadway and a 4 ft. sidewalk is provided. The cost is estimated at approximately $5,-000,000. Exhaustive traffic surveys have been made to ascertain the probable toll revenue of the bridge, and it seems possible that its gross earnings annually may amount to 10% of the capital cost.

The second site would cross the American channel about four miles above Alexandria Bay, and would connect by a highway on Wells Island, with a bridge across the Canadian Channel about 10 miles below Gananoque.

This site requires shorter spans than the Kingston site, and does not necessitate placing piers on the river-bed. Hence its cost is considerably lower.

While this bridge is the more economical from a strictly engineering point of view, the Cape Vincent to Kingston bridge has a much better geographical location, as the most thickly populated part of New York State and of Ontario lies to the west of Kingston and Cape Vincent. Also a bridge at this site would give a shorter route to traffic from the United States going to North and West Ontario and the Trans. Canada highway. It is therefore a question as to whether this advantage is offset by the lower cost of the bridge at the Gananoque site.

Which reminds me

There are all kinds of rumours current to explain why the King's College Coach refused to allow one of his star men to take any part in last Saturday's Rugby game. I am now reliably informed that the coach adopted this form of disciplinary action because he caught the player in question biting his finger nails.

DARWINISM A LA MODE

"The four other successful candidates at the poles yesterday, bring to their office a spirit of enterprise . . . ," Last Saturday's Journal.

PROVERBS FOR TODAY

Money is the fruit of all evil.

RIMES FOR THE NURSERY OF TODAY

Mary had a little Chev,
She also had a dog,
But since she caught it with the car
The dog has been incog.

A CO-ED COMES THROUGH

A few out of my myriad readers have been moved to protest by the piece of verse I published dealing with the co-ed franchize. This is taken from one letter chosen at random out of my enormous daily mail bag:

"I was disgusted by your attack on the extension of the vote to women. Your remarks (in verse form) are not only unfair, they are an insult to Levana; in fact your whole column is revolting to people of good taste and understanding.

Levana '33."

So now I know. Avaunt, highbrows and priggish uplift-absorbs, here is no grazing for the intelligentsia. HAYWIRE.

WATER POLO MEET

A water polo meeting is announced for next Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. An invitation to attend is extended to all players and especially to those remaining from last year's team. The meeting will take place in the New Gymnasium.

WOMEN TELL LIES!

Girls tell twice as many white lies as boys, according to researches made by the psychology department at Columbia University.

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

RANGER'S
UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Dance Programmes
Constitutions
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28th, 1932. No. 9

Queen's Library

Memorial Chapel Flils Long-Felt Need At Queens

Chapel Unveiled In Theological Hall On Monday Afternoon

With the opening of the Morgan Memorial Chapel in the Theological Hall, last Monday afternoon, a long-felt need has been filled. The chapel is a memorial to the late Professor William and Mary Morgan. The windows are in memory of Principal Donald Ross, Rev. Daniel James Macdonnell and George Milnes Macdonnell.

The Chapel was made possible by the gift of the late Dr. Morgan's nephew, Mr. A. Cameron Badenoch of the Indian Civil Service. The central window was given by the Misses Mary and Isabel Ross, while the two smaller windows were gifts of a number of private benefactors and of the Theological Alumni Association.

Dr. W. G. Jordan gave the memorial address on the late Professor and Mary Morgan. Dr. Morgan came to Queen's from Scotland in 1912, while here he wrote two books which showed his "wide scholarship and reverend faith."

Rev. G. A. Brown gave the dedication memorial address on the window in memory of the late Principal Ross. Dr. Ross was born in Glengarry County. After work in the Pastorate he joined the staff of the Theological College and was principal from 1912-1917.

Dr. S. W. Dyde paid tribute to the Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and his brother George M. Macdonnell. The former was the first president of the Theological Alumni Association and an outstanding graduate of Queen's. His brother was a prominent lawyer in Kingston and a friend of the university.

Principal H. A. Kent was the presiding minister and was assisted in the service by Prof. Gilmour and Dr. Shaw. Dr. G. B. Frost was the organist.

The Chapel will fill a long-felt want in the Theological College. Previously there had been no accommodation for the morning service of the College. The Chapel will adequately serve this need and be a main feature of Theological life.

Wearing of Academic Gowns Compulsory

The President of the Levana Council wishes to remind Levana that academic gowns must be worn to all classes in Kingston Hall (the new Arts Building) and that a special Levana Court will be called to fine all those who do not comply with this regulation.

It is not necessary for members of Levana to wear academic gowns in other buildings other than the New Arts Building. Last year a vigorous policy was pursued in regard to delinquents, and the Levana Council intends to continue this policy and to hold two courts, one before Christmas and one in the spring term, at which offenders will be fined.

Senator Lemieux Describes Old Regime At Theological Conference

Course Of French Settlement In America Traced And Subsequent Influence Shown

"There cannot be success if there is dishonesty among the government officials," stated Senator Lemieux in an address to Queen's Theological Alumni on the opening of their annual conference. Referring to incidents in early French-Canadian history of wholesale graft and corruption, Senator Lemieux deplored such a state as one that would never lead to success.

In his delightfully amiable manner, the Senator outlined his address as a "Brief Review of the French Regime in Canada." The early history of Canada is like an old tapestry with the figures of dauntless priests, wandering voyageurs and stolid habitants woven into its undying fabric. This should be the inspiration of French and English alike, who are joint trustees of these glorious traditions set up in New France.

The period covered by the address extended from the first voyage of Cartier till the formal occupation of England—in all about two hundred and twenty-eight years. The development was first along the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes, then later widening out from Hudson's Bay to the Gulf of Mexico and as far west as the Rocky Mountains.

The men who carried on these explorations were for the most part scions of the noblest families in France. They were adventurers and wanderers, following the natural trails and routes of the country and so, unknowingly blazing the way for future railroads and highways. Their camps and trading-posts have grown and become great centres of civilization, Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul and numerous other cities were founded in these early days of exploration.

The real settler of Canada, however, was the habitant, and from him has sprung the modern French-Canadian. At first their number was few and Talon had great difficulty in starting the tilling of the soil and the handicrafts which are to-day again becoming popular. In speaking of these handicrafts encouraged by Talon. Senator Lemieux contends that it is the duty of the ladies to-day to encourage and carry on with this characteristically distinctive means of displaying the genius of a country.

The three main factors in French government were the Governor, Intendant and Bishop. At first the power of the Intendant

Continued on page 4

Arts Society Election Scheduled Oct. 31

The Arts Society will hold a by-election next Monday, October 31st. between the hours of 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The following have been nominated for the several offices to be contested:

Vice-President, Pete Lewis, John Parker; Treasurer, Andy Bell, Henry Cohen; Asst. Secretary, George Matheson, Bob Eclin.

Arts Concursus by-elections:

Chief of Police, Roy Sharp, Richard Clarke, Bill Agnew; Hel Halpenny, Orian Low; Crier, Tandy Davoud, John Parker; Constables, '33, Stu. Major, Chick Godwin; '34, Fritz Gussow, Walter Perry, H. Conqnergood, Bill Burnett; '35, Eric Gilmonr, Doug. Waugh; '36, Doug Barr, Malcolm Bews, Howard Knight, Larry Cromien, Lyle Perrier, David Sabbath.

In past years the number of votes has been very light, but this year the election slate is unusually long and involves the major offices in the society.

Queen's Seniors Travel To Montreal With High Hope Of Securing Victory

Squad In Fine Shape For Tomorrow's Clash

Still in quest of their first win of the current season, the Tricolor Seniors packed their rugby ensembles and boarded the rattler for Montreal where they again face their foes of last Saturday. And if determination means a thing in this vale of tears, the Red team will know the taste of defeat.

On their play last week-end, the Tricolor and Red teams are fairly closely matched. It is only natural to suppose that both teams feel that they should have won the game, and there were moments when Lady Luck smiled upon them both, and other times when she gave them the cold shoulder.

One thing the Tricolor are determined upon; there will be no slow starting in this game. In both games played upon the home field this year, Queen's have played poor football in the early stages and consequently have had an up-hill battle to fight for the rest of the game.

The past week has been a busy

(Continued on page 6)

McGill Plans Aerial Attack Upon Invaders

(Special to the Journal)

Montreal, Que., Oct. 26— Facing certain elimination if they lose to Queen's on Saturday, McGill's senior gridders underwent a stiff workout last night in preparation for the crucial tilt with the Tricolor twelve at the Molson Stadium here at the end of the week. Although the practice was full of action, coach Shaughnessy was loath to send his men through any scrimmages, because of the numerous injuries from the recent games. From present indications, the forthcoming tussle will be a battle royal. To offset Carter's

(Continued on page 6)

A. M. S. Confirms Quill Appointments

The following appointments were made at a recent meeting of the Queen's Quill Editorial board and have now been approved by the A. M. S.

Editor - in - Chief, Eric Gilmour; Assistant Editor, Margaret Fyfe; Business Manager, W. A. Agnew; Circulation Manager, Mary Fraser; Advertising Manager, Leslie Dorey.

A complete list of the Editorial board will be published later.

It has been decided to publish only one issue of the Quill this semester, and at least one other after Christmas. The future policy of the Quill will in any event depend upon the support received both from contributors and from subscribers.

Skits Feature Grant Hall Levana Party

The Freshette Reception held in Grant Hall was a colorful spectacle. The skits given by the Freshettes and the Levana initiation ceremony made it a memorable evening.

Jeanie Roberts, the Convener of the Reception Committee, acted as chairman and introduced the skits.

Marion Paul's group, who gave a very dramatic reading of Pooh's Visit, by A. A. Milne, were judged the best.

The skits were followed by the costume parade. The judges, Mrs. Matheson, Miss Gordon and Miss Macdonnell awarded first prize to Evelyn Poynter, very lovely in an old-fashioned costume. Kathleen Morrison, dressed as a negro Mammy won the prize for the funniest costume.

College yells and songs under the leadership of Lorna Corneil were followed by the Levana initiation ceremony during which the Freshettes were capped and gowned as members of Levana.

An Appreciation

The following letter has been received by Principal W. H. Fyfe:

Oct. 25th, 1932.

The Principal,
Queen's University,
Kingston, Ont.

Dear Sir:

I am informed that, previous to the opening of the Ottawa University - Queen's University game in Ottawa, on Saturday last, a one minute silence was observed by the teams in tribute to the memory of the late Gentleman Cadet M. D. Bucke, a member of our football team.

I wish to express my appreciation of this action, and to inform you that the College, as a whole, is deeply touched by this expression of sympathy.

Yours sincerely,
W. H. P. ELKINS.
Brigadier.
Commandant
Royal Military College.

"STU" WARRINGTON

Who was reinstated to the Arts Society presidency at its recent meeting.

S. Warrington Again President Of Arts

Resignation Is Not Accepted By Society

At the recent meting of the Arts Society, Stu. Warrington was reinstalled as President by an unanimous vote. Mr. Warrington had resigned when he became a candidate for the A. M. S. Presidency, but due to his defeat in the elections his resignation was not accepted.

Alan Sprague, Treasurer, read his report, and announced that there were no damage bills to be paid this year. The following proposals were then put forward.

(I) That the Chief Justice of the A. M. S. be appointed by the Executive, and not elected as formerly.

(2) That Year Presidents be members of the Arts Society Executive.

Professor McArthur was the speaker at this meeting and in his speech told of the origin of the Arts Yell. "Arts Huzza" was composed by a Latin II class, in an attempt to outdo the singing of a rival class, English II. During the course of the lecture Prof. MacArthur emphasized the value of courageous and independent thought during the restless present.

After Prof. MacArthur's address, President Stu. Warrington introduced Charlie Clapp, President of the A.M.S., who spoke to the meeting, urging the Arts Society to support the A. M. S. Nominations to vacant positions on the Arts Executive and Concursus were then made.

Retailing Becomes An Exact Science

Retailing has for many years held an important place among the professions, which place has not been recognized until quite recently. Mr. Hougham of the Canadian Retail Merchant's Association pointed out that it is fast approaching an exact science and as such is worthy of the attention of students of Commerce. Mr. Hougham gave an impressive account of the astonishing results of an experiment conducted at the Eastern School of Commerce. A class of twenty-two students were given part time employment

(Continued on page 5)

No One Chosen To Assume Prof. Clark's Position

Dr. Mackintosh Takes General Control Of Dept. Of Economics

"No successor to Prof. W. C. Clark, in the direction of Commerce courses, has been appointed as yet," stated Dr. W. E. McNeill, the Vice-Principal, in an interview with a Journal representative yesterday. "Meanwhile Prof. W. A. Mackintosh will assume general control of the Economics and Commerce departments."

Although Professor Clark has only been granted a year's leave of absence it is unlikely that he will return to the University, at the end of that period, the Journal learned from a high official source.

The Deputy Minister of Finance is not a Civil Service appointment. But while it is the perogative of the Prime Minister to appoint a Deputy Minister by Order in Council, it is not customary for such an appointment to be upset by a change in Government, and it may therefore be regarded as permanent.

Prof. Clark's curricular work will be taken over by J. L. McDougall of Toronto, who has been appointed to the University staff for the remainder of the present term. Mr. McDougall will begin his new duties on Nov. 1st, when Prof. Clark will assume office as Deputy Minister of Finance in the Federal Government.

Mr. McDougall is a graduate of the University of Toronto and has also taken graduate work at Harvard University, and the London School of Economics. He has served on the staffs of the University of Texas and the University of Toronto, and was formerly economist to Canadian General Securities, Toronto. Mr. McDougall was temporarily a member of the Queen's staff during the absence of Dr. C. A. Curtis.

Irate Medicos Call On Journal Editor

The Printing Offices of the Journal were invaded yesterday afternoon by a deputation of Meds Sophomores who wished to express to the Editor their indignation at the editorial entitled "Scatter-Brains" which appeared prominently in the last issue of the Journal.

The deputation protested vigoronsly that none of those responsible for last week's initiation ceremony were concerned in the car painting episode of the same night, and demanded that action be taken to remove the slur cast upon their year.

The Editor listened attentively to their case and then made it clear that they had not only misread the editorial in question but were mistaken in supposing that he could modify the offending paragraphs in any manner. "The editorial board of the Journal do not commit themselves to statements or criticisms without due consideration and good reason," he said. "The example you quote is no exception to this rule."

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2008-F

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 28th, 1932

The Band Needs Support

With the keen interest being displayed by McGill and Varsity in their student bands and recalling the fine performances these organizations put on in their visits to Kingston this year, a study of the situation confronting our own brass band is both timely and appropriate.

The Queen's Brass Band is an independent organization functioning with its own executive board, composed of members of the band. It is the duty of these officers to attend to the financial and technical matters of the organization. In the past the band has been able to make a trip with the rugby team only through pecuniary sacrifices of each of its members. The Athletic Board of Control makes a yearly contribution and a tag day is also held. But the total proceeds have barely been enough to cover transportation expenses. Last year each man received the small sum of $5.00 for the Montreal trip. The finances have never been such that an outlay on much needed equipment could be made.

This year the band is faced with an even more acute situation. The tag day held recently and the subscription drive have netted approximately $100. Equipment is urgently needed. The band possesses but 18 blazers, while there are about 30 willing and capable players who form part of the organization. Budgeting on the most stringent lines, it is at once apparent that the proposed trip to Toronto will take $125, while uniforms and music will inflate the expenses to approximately $185. These figures are most conservative, but prove conclusively that the band needs our support.

Few of the people in the grand-stand or the bleachers at a rugby game ever stop to think of the hard work the band men must put in order to make a worthy appearance. Yet what is a rugby game without a band to enliven things before the clash of the teams, or to give zest to the half-time period? In an editorial appreciation of their own band the McGill Daily makes the following observation: "Anybody who has ever been away, either as a player or as a spectator, when the band was present, cannot have failed to note the difference it makes to the whole affair. It puts life into the proceedings as nothing else can."

A band adds much to the color and spirit of the great encounters of the Intercollegiate football teams, and is a worthy asset to any University.

We see but one permanent solution to the matter, a solution which would establish the organization on a solid base and ensure a smart band to represent Queen's in years to come. The A. M. S. should take over the control of the band. They could continue the practice of a yearly tag day, and the Athletic Board would be more disposed to lend their financial assistance under such conditions. We believe that this is the only possible scheme which will allow us to build up a band that will compete favorably with McGill and Varsity.

The actual executive work could be carried out by the board of officers as at present after their appointments had been confirmed by the A. M. S. Thus the only extra work it would entail for the student governors would consist in checking up on the band executive.

There need be little fear from the part of the A. M. S. that this scheme would involve a financial loss, for with the band established on a sound basis, everyone would be more encouraged to do his share towards its maintenance.

A Worthy Promotion

The announcement that Professor William C. Clark, head of the Commerce Department, was chosen as Deputy Minister of Finance to succeed the late J. C. Saunders should come as pleasant news to all who have the interest of Queen's at heart. It is a distinct step forward in a career already marked by achievement and success. Every one who has known Professor Clark will rejoice in his elevation to this important post, but for Queen's a note of sadness will temper the general spirit of approval for it will mean the severance of his ties with the University—for a time at least.

Professor Clark's new appointment, we believe, marks the culmination of his career as a public servant, for he served on a committee for monetary reform during the Imperial Conference, in the Department of Labour after the War, and on President Hoover's advisory committee on unemployment in 1930.

Both in training and actual business practice Mr. Clark is well fitted for his new post. After graduation from Queen's he spent three years at Harvard taking post graduate work in economics. He later returned to Queen's and joined the Economics Department staff, being associated with Dr. O. D. Skelton. During the years 1923-1931 Professor Clark resided in the United States occupying the positions of director and vice-president of a prominent investment firm. He returned to Queen's last year to assume the position he now vacates.

The Journal extends congratulations to Professor Clark on his appointment and hopes that this promotion will not mean the end of an association of such long standing and advantage.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

Beginning on October 21st one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

(c) No student shall hold more than two scholarships. For example, a student may hold the Sir Sandford Fleming Scholarship and one of the above new scholarships.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Oct. 28:
2.30p.m.—Arts '35 Rugby practice
Lower Campus
4.00p.m.—Queen's Music Club
Red Room
4.15p.m.—Math and Physics Club meeting
Room 200
New Arts Bldg.

Sat. Oct. 29:
2.30 p.m.—Ottawa University vs. Queen's Intermediates, Richardson Stadium.
Queen's vs. McGill
Montreal
8.00p.m.—S.C.M. Fellowship meeting with Murray Brooks
Red Room

Sun. Oct. 30:
9.45a.m.—Student Volunteer Movement
Theological Hall
2.15p.m.—S. C. A. meeting
Sydenham St.
Speaker: Dr. Murray Brooks

Mon. Oct. 31:
5-6p.m.—Classes for non-swimming freshmen begin
New Gym
8.30 p.m.—Maple Leafs vs. Syracuse Stars,
Harty Arena.

Wed. Nov. 2:
4.30p.m.—Press Club meeting
Red Room

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—During the more than three-quarters of a century that has passed since the founding of the University, a grand total of 37,358 first and higher degrees have been awarded to graduates.

EARLHAM COLLEGE — Enrollment figures for the first semester show a total registration of 461 students, representing 22 states and five foreign countries.

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes

The supreme quality of Winchester Cigarettes comes from years of experience in making fine cigarettes.

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

Students...
We do not give advice on love matters, stock markets, or weather conditions, locate lost articles, missing relatives or buried treasure—
But for Dependable Drug Service — that's us!
Prompt, Cheerful, Careful and —Reasonable—
WARD & HAMILTON
Limited
4—Convenient Stores—4
Where students like to shop

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Queen's University,
October 24th, 1932.

The Editor,
The Journal.

Dear Sir,

Comparisons are odious; comparisons are also very useful. For one thing, they usually make us stop and think and it is high time that every student started thinking of the very unfavorable way our University Band compares with those from Toronto and McGill.

In the first place, we ought to consider that Queen's Band is an organization belonging to us and that any inferiority on its part is directly reflected back on the student body. Secondly, the fact that we have a band at all is solely due to the unselfish efforts of the present members in an uphill fight against student apathy and indifference. Thirdly, we should remember that the Law of the Conservation of Energy sees to it that we do not get something for nothing in this world. Bands, like almost everything else, cost money to maintain. At present the band gets, from the proceeds of a tag day, barely enough money to take one trip each season. If we want a college band let us recognize our responsibilities towards it in honest, intelligent fashion; if we are unwilling to assume these responsibilities, let us do without a band, anything but constructive. May I, with all due respect, now submit a few suggestions for remedying the present state of affairs and placing our Band on at least a par with those of Toronto and McGill?

1. The first and most pressing need of the Band is money. I have it on good authority that from one thousand to twelve hundred dollars is the sum required. To raise this amount I would suggest that each and every student be asked to contribute seventy-five cents on the understanding that this sum is to be collected this year only. This money would be paid into the treasury of the A.M.S. and paid over to the band only on the presentation of an itemized account of the way it is proposed to spend it.

II. Once given funds to start with, I would suggest that the Band be maintained on a strictly budgetary basis by grant from the A.M.S. and from the A.B. of C., the former assuming the major grant. The Band would, of course, have regular officials including a secretary and a treasurer who would annually submit statements of all expenditures for the year audited by legally recognized auditors unconnected with the University. I would further suggest that the least sign of inefficiency or graft on the part of these officials be dealt with severely by the A.M.S.

III. As a third remedy, I would suggest that the Band be given a room in which instruments, music, uniforms, etc., might be safely kept and stored, and access to which be given to one or two responsible persons only, who would be held strictly accountable for all property thus placed in their care. Further, I would suggest that some definite place suitable for practices be assigned the Band. Lack of these provisions has, in the past, resulted, I understand, in the gradual disappearance of Band property.

IV. And next, I consider it imperative that some person who knows music and band organization from a musical standpoint be selected as permanent leader or conductor. If necessary, he could be paid an honorarium and, if possible, should be a member of the Faculty.

V. Lastly, with a good band at our disposal, we should use it on every occasion possible. Instead of making it a feature of the Rugby games only, we should see to it that it is in attendance at all intercollegiate games and sports as well as any other function whose success might be enhanced by the presence of a band.

Queen's Band is what it is solely because of lack of student interest. It is quite within our power to have a band here that would be even superior to those of Toronto and McGill. We have the talent, so why not use it? I, for one, would cheerfully "cough up" seventy-five cents to see our Band make at least an even showing with those of the other two universities. And now is the time to get this reorganization under way so that we can start next season with a bang insofar as bands are concerned. All our band needs is student co-operation. Given that, they will give us the music we will have a right to expect.

Yours very truly,
ROBERT H. HAY,
Science '35.

Editor's Note: The present organization has a permanent leader—Bandmaster Christmas of the P.W.O.R. Band. The Honorary bandmaster is Professor H. L. Tracey.

UNIVERSITY OF WEST VIRGINIA—The smallest class in the University is a course in experimental pathology given to one student.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—Students in journalism last semester wrote enough material to fill 500 columns in the average newspaper.

Now there did abide at Kweanz certain men of prodigious valour and great comeliness. And these men did band themselves together and spoke thus: "Let us join the C.O.T.C. that we may understand how to shoot a gun and wave a sword in the accepted manner." Now it came to pass that the C.O.T.C. being weary unto death of boarding-house fodder, did throw a dinner. And when they had broken their fast, they said unto the Princ which is called Vice, "Speak unto us."

And the Vice-Princ spoke unto them a parable saying.

"A certain hen scratcheth in the garden and findeth a seed of grain. Then called she unto her the dog, the cat, and the pig. Said she unto them: "Who will plant this seed, water this seed, cultivate this seed that it may flourish in the land of kin."

"Not I", saith the cat.

"Not I," saith the dog.

"Not I," saith the pig.

"Then I will," said the little red hen, and she did."

Then the C.O.T.C. marvelled among themselves saying. "What meaneth this parable—explain it to us for we are slow of understanding."

Then the Vice-Princ reopened his face and spoke thus.—

"Verily, the seed is the "Seed of manliness" which none cultivated at Kweanz. Now the hen is the C.O.T.C. which cultivated the seed of manliness, causing it to flourish amongst them."

Still did they marvel saying, "Who are the dog, the cat, and the pig.

And the Vice-Princ answered, saying, "The dog is Arts, the cat is Levana, and the pig is Meds. Selah."

Then did the C.O.T.C. cheer him mightily, marvelling at his wisdom. Said they, "This man flappeth his chin right well. Let us give him three cheers." Then did they cheer as only Real Men can cheer.

Now the report of these sayings and doings did spread abroad over all the land, and did cause great controversy. But all men said — "This man is right, for verily the Arts are dogs, the Levanites are cats, the Meds. are verily pigs, and the whole world knoweth that the C.O.T.C. are hens. —A. MEN.

* * *

Add the Science Sophomore who won't put his name in the Students' Directors because he doesn't want to be bothered with telephone calls from Levanites.

* * *

And the Science cheer leader at a rugby game who said to Levana —"Come on girls, show you're Tricolor supporters."

* * *

A HINT TO LEVANA FROM THE STEAM SHOVEL

Ladies Favour Walking,

Resolution Regarding Cabs

At a meeting of the Levana Society held on Wednesday last, the motion was read, and unanimously passed, that henceforth the members of the society, owing to the exorbitant cab rates would walk to the dances and not use cabs. It was agreed that the dances were becoming so extravagant in price, as to have already prevented many of the men most worth cultivating in the university from attending, and that the girls should do everything in their power to remedy this hurtful tendency in college functions.

—An extract from the files of the Queen's Journal of 1912.

Science '33 To Start Whirl Of Year Dances, November 4

Science '33 will initiate the 1932-33 whirl of year dances on Friday evening, November 4th, when the La Salle Hotel will be the scene of this epic event, always one of the best dances of the year.

Bob Warmington and his Orchestra have been retained for the occasion, and will furnish a delightful program from opening to closing time.

As this dance falls on the eve of the Western-Queen's game, and there are no lectures on Saturday morning, a large gathering is assured.

The dance will start at 9 p.m. to finish at 1 a.m. The tickets are selling for $1.25.

INTER-YEAR RUGBY

Interyear rugby will get under way next Monday afternoon at 4 p.m., when Science Sophs. and Frosh will take over the Lower Campus for their annual gridiron clash. On Tuesday afternoon the Juniors and Seniors will settle their rugby supremacy question in a tilt which promises plenty of action and sixty-minutes of hank-up football.

Everyone is invited to turn out for these games. Interyear rugby games have always been good drawing attractions and the games this year should prove as popular.

Hurry down Mary, your male's just arrived!

Science Soph-Frosh Banquet Big Success

Once more the Science Soph-Frosh banquet is over and done with, but what a banquet. The Committee, headed by Bob Hay, superseded all expectations, and contrived to put over one of the best affairs of its kind, seen for a long time. The food was delicious, and no time was lost in serving it, the string orchestra provided music that soothed, not jarred, and the speeches were not long enough.

Vern Oille as president of Science '35 acted as chairman, and very ably started the speeches with a toast to the King. Charlie Clapp, giving his first public speech as president of the A.M.S. proposed the toast to our University. He congratulated the Freshmen on their choice of university and hoped that they would have as pleasant a sojourn as he has experienced. In the absence of Dean Clarke, Doctor Neish replied to the toast, but was not able to give his usual lecture, he said, since he had no Doolan with him. Professor Jackson, announced as the most popular Prof. in the Science faculty, lived up to his name in making the toast to the Engineering Society. Professor Jackson is a fixture at all Science affairs and is known for his speeches.

Sid Parkes, president of the Engineering Society replied to the toast, thanked the Frosh for their campaigning activities, and the Sophs for their support of the Society as far as initiation is concerned. Bob Hay, the convener, toasted Science '36 and showed that his ability as a speaker is as good as his executive ability. Gordie McMahon, president of Science '36, in reply hoped that the relations between the two years would keep on the same grounds as they have already been, and thanked the Sophs for the banquet.

Doctor Munroe, known to most of us, only as the professor in those darned chem. labs and lectures, rounded the affair off neatly, and kept all in fits of laughter; his list of jokes and experiences is unbeatable, and we advise anyone looking for a good speaker, to pick on Doc. Munroe, they won't be disappointed.

All thanks is due to Bob Hay and his helpers and may they attend many functions as successful as the one they staged themselves.

A LUCKY ESCAPE

A certain 3rd year Science man had a lucky escape the other day upon finishing his work in the evening, he withdrew from his pocket his briar and filling the bowl from his pouch he lit up. Half an hour later, his smoke completed, he proceeded to knock the ashes out of the pipe. It was then he received a hasty shock, for what should fall out with the burnt tobacco but an alive .22 cartridge with leaden bullet complete.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

The Students' Christian Movement of Queen's University is meeting Murray Brooks, the Canadian Secretary, at 8 p.m. Saturday evening in the Red Room, Kingston Hall. The aim and basis of this Movement and its relation to the life of the modern student will be discussed. Refreshments will be served and ten cents collected to cover expenses. All interested friends of the Movement are invited to attend.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

New Fall Hats
All Shades
All Styles
SPECIAL 2.95

DRAWING TO A CLOSE
LIVINGSTON'S
— SALE —
OF
Made-to-Measure
SUITS
with Two Pair of Trousers
$24.95
Fine English Worsteds
Guaranteed Perfect Fit

FOR YOUR FALL & WINTER
COMFORT
Stanfields Unshrinkable Underwear
Soft Warm
Durable
$1.50 to $4.50

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities
ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817
Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2080
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Mesmer

All the recently opened domains of psychology-hypnosis, autosuggestion, psychoanalysis—are to be traced to Frank Antan Mesmer, 18th century physician and discoverer of psycotherapy, whose unenviable fate it was to be born a hundred years before his time, and to be stigmatized as a charlatan. Building better than he knew Mesmer, like Columbus, discovered a new continent.

In Mesmer's day the unfortunates who suffered from nervous or mental ailments were treated with purgatives and bloodletting; some were flogged into insensibility, or bound to a wheel, they were spun round till they foamed at the mouth. When Mesmer was able to relieve such maladies by his "magnetic" method, the physicians who should have been the first to appreciate his work declared the whole thing to be hocus pocus. A hundred years later, the profession began to reconsider that verdict.

Born in 1733, on the shores of Lake Constance, Mesmer studied divinity for a time, then, removing to Vienna, he applied himself to medicine, and in 1768 won the degree of doctor of medicine. Having already become a man of independent means, he had no intention of coining more ducats by practising immediately as a doctor. He preferred epileptics and completely insane, recognizing that his system could bring relief solely in cases of deranged nervous function, and that it could not work a miracle where the organic structure was at fault.

As a medical man, Mesmer desired to prosecute his investigations in the new realm of therapy, but saw instead his system become a fashion and a theme of gossip. There is nothing more perilous to the integrity of a science than that it should be taken up by fashionable society.

The French revolution swept Mesmer and his works into oblivion. Mesmer fled to Switzerland where he made a slender livilihood. His end came in March, 1815.

A hundred years after his death mankind began to realize the significance of his work. He was the first to meet one of the most important problems of modern times, and advanced a considerable way toward its solution. It is undeniable that Mesmer stumbled upon the recognition of the power now called suggestion, and, however, crudely, maintained the practice of the first scientific application of psychology to healing, in the face of the ridicule and contempt of an unduly mechanical science. These facts suffice to give him a place in history, to follow the latest discoveries in the realms of physics, chemistry, and other sciences.

In the summer of 1774 a distinguished foreigner and his wife were visiting Vienna. The lady developed a neurosis and was said to have been cured by the application of a magnet. Mesmer was profoundly interested in the report and made various essays with magnets on his own account. To his surprise he achieved some success. The news spread like wildfire and within a year he was famous throughout Austria. But just as others were acclaiming his miraculous cures, he himself realized that the attitude of the mind displayed by the patient towards the magnetizer was what restored health. The upshot was that after 1776 Mesmer's practice consisted entirely of suggestive and hypnotic treatment, and the fundamental secret of his success lay mainly in his impressive personality.

As his fame grew, he became aware that his colleagues in Vienna were looking askance at him, and he sought a new home in Paris, where in a few months "animal magnetism," as it was termed, became the vogue. A place in his treatment rooms had to be reserved days in advance. Mesmer excluded patients exhibiting sores.

Tartar Catching

While freshmen as a rule suffer persecution by sophomores with good-natured tolerance, there are, upon occasion, those who rebel and wreak havoc in the traditional sense of superiority enjoyed by second year men. This has happened recently enough that sophomores now living whisper the dread tale in the security of their own labs.

During the last pantless procession a rabid soph announced to all and sundry his intention of "coming after' a frosh in the line-up. He came and went. Next day he obtained only a one-sided view of the McGill game, the other side being temporarily sightless.

Assembling the pack in the traditional sophomore fashion, the disgruntled one led an attempt at forcible abduction of the recalcitrant frosh and appropriate chastisement. The plan went the frequent way of the best-laid plans of sophs and men. The frosh from the spaces where men are men long before sophomore age, now has both might and right on his side, since his self defence was within the law. In the lucid words of a primitive people, the sophomores are up stump. Sic ttransit gloria mundi.

(N.B. The foregoing is not, worse luck, a freshman contribution. T. R.)

Meds '34 Find Value Of Good Organization

You cannot do a thing without organization. Meds '34, the premier year in Medicine, found that out during the early days of this term, when they were awaiting the return of Past President Tom Nugent from the Grand Banks, where he spent a profitable summer.

One by one the other boys struggled in, and eventually the entire year was in the throes of Fifth year subjects. So far the sherrifs have not caught up with anyone of them, and where the boys got their money for the present term is a mystery.

The first gathering was not the noisiest but it accomplished something. Even with everyone talking at once, we elected officers to pilot us through those pitfalls that beset the path of every good and pure Med.

Bob, "Ace" Stewart got the President's job and salary, and already Bob is finding the pace a punishing one. So far his duties include; getting the boys out of the hay in the morning and to lectures on time; seeing that they purchase the proper books, when the Prof. says; and keeping trtack of numerous squads for clinics and labs.

Scotty McGowan, being married and sort of settled down, was awarded the Secretary's lucrative position, in order that he might have some excuse for getting out nights.

Oh Yes. "Cougar" Rastus Clarke, who hails from Vancouver when he hails at all, will be the Prexy's right hand man, if the Prexy can locate him.

Meds '34 have always had honest treasurers and this year is no exception. They never have any money to handle anyway, but still they are honest, and Perry White has already tried to collect my year fees. That's the kind of a treasurer we have.

Shell Hazen was instituted as Reporter again, this being the steenth time. They must like my line—or perhaps no one else wants the job.

Snre we are going to have a dance. Or will we? Well just in case the A. M. S. says yes, our standing prancing committee of Jack Baker, Geo. Elliott, Leo Limoges and Bob Ralph will look after things.

Printing of notes has been the biggest item of discussion so far this season, but it doesn't take much to start a year meeting.

MOVING OUT?
Comfortable single and double room, with board, if desired.
183 Clergy Street, East
Phone 1597-W

FOR SALE
Jewet Coach in best running order. Must be sold. Excellent chance for party of six going to Queen's-McGill game.
Tel. 3112-W

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

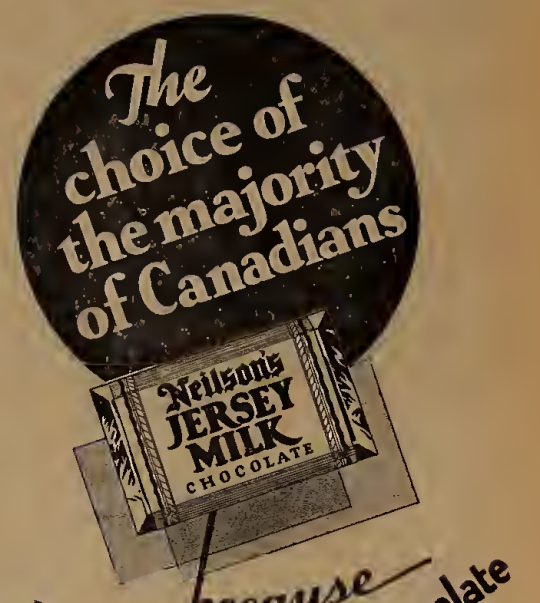
V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haireutting
20c and 35c

Senator Lemieux Gives Outline Of French Regime

Continued from page 1

was limited and was connected more with municipal affairs. Later, however, he became even more important than the Governor. This position and duties were likened to those performed to-day in parliament by the Leader of the Opposition, in keeping the ruling power in eheck.



The seigneurial system in Canada was really not the Feudal system in the proper sense of the term. It was rather a means of colonizing. The dues and obligations were not at all burdensome to the habitant. The fundamental civil law was the Coutume de Paris and its principles are still involved in the modern civil code. As in other countries at that time the Criminal Code was quite severe.

The possession of America resolved itself into a struggle betwen England and France, as the other countries had not the energy or the means to continue. In this struggle the English had greater advantages than the French in many respects. The colonists in America from England were in America voluntarily and were much more independent than the French colonists, who had come out under governmental regulations. As Senator Lemieux said, "People, not monarchs; settlers, not soldiers, build empires."

In closing, the Senator urged his audience that, although at times the political views of English and French conflict, they should be drawn together by the ideals common to both races. The combination of the English spirit, typified by the phrase "Je veux," and the idealism of the French will build a great Canadian nation, which from this diversity of temperment will build a unity.

Queen's Soccer Team

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock a soccer game was played between the Kingston General Hospital team and members of the student body and staff of Queen's. Due largely to the efforts of Dave Galt, Leach, Dr. Vlastos, Gordon Porter and Mr. Walpole, the Hospital team were held to one goal. Queen's was unable to score, several good tries being hampered through lack of team practice. The first practice will take place on the Lower Campus, Friday, Oct. 28th, at 2.30 p.m. All who like the game are urged to turn out. See Scarth MacDonald, Secretary for further information.

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

ONE-WAY PASSAGE
with
Kay Francis, William Powell, Aline MacMahon and others

One-Way Passage is perhaps the most interesting film to appear in town this season. Out of the welter of third-rate talkies which it has been our pleasant task to review, here is one which "arrives," and for that we are grateful.

One-Way Passage is sheer melodrama. Due warning to the unimaginative. But it is melodrama that burlesques reality with so much sincerity, (if a paradox is permitted) that one is compelled to admire. The concomitants and coherence of reality are so faithfully adhered to throughout, that one is in no way disturbed by a borrowed guise.

Kay Francis gives a charming and sincere characterization. Her voice has a lovely resonance, and is admirably suited to her role. Her clothes are in good taste, and she does not fall into the current temptation of patent fashion display.

William Powell plays up to Miss Francis in a thoroughly satisfactory way. He is convincing, as always. Be it to their everlasting credit, neither he nor Kay Francis once transgress the rules of restraint in a film that would suffer from any intrusion of overacting.

But it is Aline MacMahon who steps off with the Grand Prix. Her handling of character work that calls for eminent skill is admirable. In One-Way Passage Miss MacMahon even eclipses her memorable work as the secretary of Five-Star-Final. As a pseudo-countess, Aline MacMahon achieves a degree of histrionic excellence that this reviewer has not seen surpassed in the cinematic realm.

Capable direction; clever and amusing dialogue, ingenious photographic effects furnish those extra flourishes for which one is sincerely appreciative. A—.

AT THE TIVOLI

THE PHANTOM PRESIDENT
with
George M. Cohan, Jimmy Durante, and Claudette Colbert

Usually when a stage star deserts Broadway for the movies he is given a perfectly deity-awful vehicle in which to meet his new public. In addition to this handicap the actor is frequently so addled by Hollywood technique that he gives a very mediocre performance. This is not true, fortunately, of George M. Cohan, in The Phantom President.

Cohan, an actor, playwright and composer, had turned a deaf ear for years to all overtures to invade the realm of talkies. Finally he was offered such an attractive contract that he could not refuse and thus we see a new screen comedian. Not satisfied, apparently, with having signed Cohan on the dotted line at last, his directors have him play a dual role in his introductory picture. Cohan makes good with a vengeance and the Phantom President is easily the best comedy to visit Kingston in some time.

With all due respect to the famous George, the spotlight is stolen by Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante. For once in his hilarious career Durante is given a fat part and how he comes through! He is a natural from the time he first appears to the fadeout. Funny at all times he has a couple of scenes in this picture that should leave you gasping in the aisles.

The Phantom President is an excellent satire on political hokum and coinciding, as it does, with the present presidential campaign across the line, it is rendered doubly effective. Campaign speeches, electioneering methods, conventions, and radio blather are cleverly burlesqued until one wonders if a good song-and-dance man in the White House wouldn't make a hit with the country.

Charming Claudette Colbert is given very little to do, and it is a pity too, for this petite young lady is a distinct asset to any picture.

For real belly-laughs do not fail to see The Phantom President. A.

Commerce Club Hears Authority On Retailing

Continued from page 1

in various retail stores while taking an academic training. These have all obtained satisfactory employment and furthermore a class of thirty, which will complete their training next April, have all been assured of positions on graduation; an astounding result for a period of depression.

Mr. F. H. Boselly indicated by reference to a typical instance how the gross margin of the butcher shops may be increased, not by raising selling prices or buying cheaper, but by paying more attention to the cutting of the carcasses and increasing the efficiency along this line. The first barrier to be broken down is the stubborn resistance of the individual retailer to outside suggestion. Many retailers have already been saved from bankruptcy by adopting carefully the suggestions made by representatives of the association. The relative placing of the slow turnover stock to that of faster turn is an important factor in promoting sales. Buying has been given a great deal of study for it has been found that in general the man who overbuys because of quantity discounts or other inducements is most frequently in financial difficulties.

All Commerce students are invited to attend the luncheons of the Commerce Club, and make use of this wonderful opportunity of hearing the views of Canada's leading business men.

The club regrets Professor Clark's imminent departure to take up his duties as Deputy Minister of Finance at Ottawa. That he is held in high esteem is evidenced by the presentation made at the close of the luncheon.

Art and Music Club

The Kingston Art Association has announced a programme of varied activities for this winter that will attract any students as well as townspeople who are interested in art. For the small membership fee of fifty cents it offers opportunities for regular practice in drawing and painting, affords special facilities for the study of the exceptionally fine art collection in the Douglas Library, comprising books and photographic reproductions for the study of the history of art, and promises a series of illustrated talks for members at intervals throughout the winter.

Convenient and ample quarters for the working group have been secured in the Douglas Library, where it has been arranged that it will begin its regular meetings next Monday evening at 7.15. A wide range of activity will be engaged in by this group, including work from life and studies of still life as well as work more directly connected with landscape problems and design. Members will be encouraged to follow their own individual preferences, both as to subject and the medium used in depicting it. A model will be on hand on Monday evening for those interested in portrait sketching, as well as objects from which to draw or paint, but each member should bring whatever drawing or painting materials it is desired to use. A cordial invitation is extended to all who may be interested in the work of the group to attend this first working meeting, and to join the association at that time.

Casts For Dramatic Guild Productions Made Public

The Dramatic Guild is producing two plays this semester and is already hard at work on them. The first production will be a curtain raiser, "The Gaol Gate," a tragedy by Lady Gregory; the second, "Gammer Gurton's Needle," is an early comedy by Master S.

The cast is as follows:

The Gaol Gate:

Mary Cahel—Dbrothy Stuart.
Mary Cushin—Lebo Ware.
The Gamekeeper — Jack Corbett.

Ted Sherwood will direct.

Gammer Gurton's Needle

Gammer Gurton, Hazel O'Kilman; Hodge, Bertie Gardiner; Dame Cat, Jean Doherty; Diccon, Erskine Morden; Dr. Rat, Scarth Macdonald; The Bailey, Art Sutherland; Tyb, Jean Nelson; Cove, Scarth Macdonald; Doll, Marion Hayes.

Bill Wilgar will direct.

SWIMMING LESSONS

Freshmen are reminded that classes for non-swimmers are now being held on Monday and Thursday evenings between 5 and 6 o'clock. These lessons rank as Physical Training and exempt those who need to take them from gym classes.

CONVERSATION versus
PROCRASTINATION

WE ONCE KNEW a College Man who took three weeks to write a two-page letter!

Not that he was cursed with inflammatory rheumatism or anything like that, no sir. He could do the hundred in very nearly ten flat; and play as neat a game at outside wing as you'd want to see.

But when it came to answering letters from home, it took him a long time to make up his mind and a longer time to get the words on paper.

* * *

Gentlemen, we are agin this College Man's habit of stalling on the folks at home. They deserve more consideration. Don't say to yourself that you haven't the time. It only takes a minute to get to the nearest telephone!

TALK, don't balk. A pleasant chat with the home folks takes a lot less time than a letter.

Just for fun . . . telephone Home tonight.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA — LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE

Capitol THEATRE

SAT. MON. TUES.

The Worst Crime That Ever Darkened This Town Happened

"THE NIGHT OF JUNE 13"

What were our police doing? Where were you, Fellow Citizens?
Now it can be told. The inside story of our greatest local scandal!

with

CLIVE BROOK
LILA LEE
CHARLIE RUGGLES
GENE RAYMOND
FRANCIS DEE
MARY BOLAND
ADRIANNE ALLEN

COMING — WEDNESDAY, NOV. 2, 3, 4
KAY FRANCIS HERBERT MARSHALL
in "Trouble in Paradise"

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The JACKSON PRESS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

STUDENTS
Can save quite a few Dollars trading at Bibbys
If a choice Suit or Overcoat means anything to you, we would strongly advise that you see the
New Suits and Overcoats we are offering at $15.00
Note the newness of style, the smartness of the models, the tailoring, the variety of models.
Positively the Best Suit and O'Coats Values ever offered for the money
See our New Hat The Highgate $2.95
See our Goat Skin Gloves at $1.25
See Our Glendale Shirts at $1.45
We'll be lookin' for you!
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Ottawa University To Meet Intermediates

The chief attraction at the Richardson Stadium this Saturday will he the visit of Ottawa University in the Intercollegiate Intermediate series.

Last Saturday in Ottawa, the Tricolor seconds lost a battle to Ottawa mainly by loose playing in the early part of the game. Later on they woke up and gave Ottawa a merry time keeping them out. The Seconds vow that this game will be their first win.

Abe Zvonkin has had them out drilling continnously this week and they will be ready for anything when the game starts. Beaten by Varsity and R. M. C. by rather huge scores, the intermediates feel that Ottawa is their meat and they will be on their best behaviour before a big crowd on Saturday. It is up to the fans to turn out and cheer them on their quest.

The Seconds will line up with Hall, flying wing and Galway on the half line; McIntosh at quarter; Dafoe at snap; Kitchen and Murphy at insides; Code and Anglin at middle and James and Anderson at outside. Davidson, Connor, Dalton, White, Anglin, Simpson, Parsons, Caplan and Pesner will be in reserve.

Crucial Struggle At London Tomorrow

After the wonderful game that Western's Mustangs put up at Toronto last Saturday, football fans all over the country will be awaiting with interest the return clash between these two teams scheduled for tomorrow at London.

There are those who figure that Varsity should win and win easily, and perhaps they are right. But a perusal of last week's game shows that Varsity were mighty fortunate to be on the long end of the score when the whistle blew. With a few seconds left to play Western had the ball only thirty yards out from the Varsity line, and a tie seemed likely. But Awde, who ordinarily boots a football a proverbial mile, could only smack the all important one a few yards and away went the game.

Had Patterson been in condition to play the entire game, there is little doubt but what Western would have trimmed the Blue team. As it was, crippled and all he nearly turned the trick in the last quarter. His playing is still uncertain, but if he is ready to go, the game at London will be a thriller.

Western still have a chance for honors if they can beat Varsity. In order for the Mustangs to repeat their championship drive of last year, they would have to win in addition, their games with Queen's here, and McGill at home, while Varsity would have to lose to McGill at Montreal and Queen's in Toronto. It may be that Queen's can have a say in the disposal of the bunting yet.

Rugger Team Wins First Game 26-0

Queen's newly organized English Rugby football team defeated R.M.C. 26-nil. This match, the side's first game, was played at R.M.C. on Wednesday afternoon in very windy weather. It is to be the precursor of several other games, so students who are interested in Rugger will be sure to see some good games in the future. If support from the student body is secured there is no doubt that the cause of Rugger at Queen's will be promoted.

Queen's, due probably to a longer period of practice, were superior to R.M.C. Both teams showed definite promise. The excellent footwork of Ranald Macdonald, Queen's captain, opened up many scoring possibilities for the three-quarters, who ran and passed well. The R.M.C. "threes" seldom had the ball, for their scrum, though heavy were slow, and the passing of the halves was slow. Queen's tackled well, Ruffman and Ralston being prominent. Team work and co-operation on the part of Queen's was striking.

Queen's won the toss and kicked off down wind. Play went at once into the R.M.C. "25", a fine forward rush led by Macdonald gaining ground. Then, after barely two minutes' play, Barrie took the ball from the scrum half to score a try rather far out. Marriot converted with a fine kick. Queen's 5, R.M.C. 0.

Spurred on by a good start Queen's soon brought the play into the College "25" again. The Tricolor pack heeled the ball cleanly from a tight scrum and Ruffman scored at the corner flag. Marriot again converted. Queen's 10, R.M.C. nil.

As the game progressed the College pack improved, though it never seemed to have the ball fully under control, despite one or two good rushes. Good tackling by the Queen's "threes" rendered the improved attacks of R.M.C. of no avail. Play centred around the half way line, but though the Queen's threequarters started various movements bad handling terminated these with little gain for the Tricolor. Shortly afterwards, Barrie (Queen's) was forced to leave the field with two dislocated fingers. Though playing a man short, Queen's were able to outmanoeuvre R.M.C. and a good three-quarter movement took the ball well within the College "25".

The Tricolor pressed hard twice. In the ensuing 3 minutes R.M.C. were forced to touch down behind their own goal line.

Play following a drop kick from the R.M.C. "25" terminated in a try by Finlay. Austin was prominent in this movement. Marriot failed to convert and the whistle went for half time.

Queen's 13 pts., R.M.C. nil.

R.M.C. played down wind in the 2nd half, but despite concerted rushes were unable to score. Corlett, left wing three quarter for Queen's, made a good run into the College "25", but R.M.C. quickly took the ball back to the centre of the field. Close play followed, until a run by Ruffman and R. Macdonald again threatened R.M.C.

Finlay then scored again from a scrum near the line. Failure to convert left the score at 16-nil.

Queen's were heeling well and though kicking on the part of the College put the Tricolor temporarily on the defensive, good dribbling by R. Macdonald and a run by Ruffman brought the ball close to the R.M.C. line. Excellent work in the scrum resulted in a score under the posts by Ralston; Marriot, converted. Queen's 21, R.M.C. 0.

Almost immediately afterwards strong running on the part of the Queen's "threes" resulted in another try beneath the posts by McLaughlin. Marriot again converted. Queen's 26, R.M.C. nil.

R.M.C. rallied and brought the play into the Queen's "25". At this point the final whistle was sounded.

Both sides lacked experience, but the result was none the less encouraging, and a little more practice will prove helpful. The Queen's back played well throughout, Fleming being prominent in the loose.

A good spirit on both sides marked the play all through.

Fullback, S. Marriott; threequarters, C. F. Finlay, G. MacLaughlin, P. Austin, J. Corlett; standoff half, A. O. Barrie; scrum half K. C. Ruffman; forwards, R. Macdonald (captain), J. J. Gibson, J. Macdonald, R. Fleming, R. A. Harvey, M. Bryden, J. Malen, K. M. Ralston.

I. Panton, touch judge.

B. W. F. Squad Has Need Of Recuits

Most people have little or no confidence in themselves, and won't believe that they are able to do a thing, until they try, and in many cases find that they are far more proficient at it than they ever thought they could be. This is especially true of the B. W. and F. contenders, and we have or have had many examples of this here at Queen's. Bobby Seright, last year won the intercollegiate boxing crown in both the 118 and the 126 classes. Bobby took his M.Sc. last year and when he came six years ago as a freshman he had no more intention of boxing than we have of losing the Intercollegiate B.W. and F. meet. Baker won the 112 lb. class in boxing, he graduates this year, but learnt all he ever knew about boxing at Queen's. Henry Hoskings took an Intercollegiate title in wrestling, he hopes to have a B.Sc. next spring, and learnt all his wrestling at Queen's, under the guidance of our excellent trainers and coaches.

So Freshmen, there's a good chance for you yet, you'll never know until you give it a try, and so long as you are interested and turn out conscientiously, who knows but what you are Queen's hope in future meets. And don't get the idea that you don't belong; the present B.W.F. squad are a good bunch, and are willing to help any of you along if you'll show a little interest.

Once again let us remind you that conditioning classes are being held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 o'clock, and that these classes will count towards your attendance if you ask for it.

Tricolor Team At Full Strength For Coming Tilt

Continued from page 1

one for the Seniors and full advantage has been taken of every minute. The fumbles of the previous game, while exciting from a spectators viewpoint, should and will be corrected, and the coming struggle will reveal better timing in the plays. Queen's line held Montreal in all but the second quarter last Saturday and Coach Burt has paid extra attention to this aspect, with the result that Queen's should present a stonewall front to the Red team's buckers.

As was expected McGill was partial to the forward pass and hurled about a dozen of them last Saturday. It is equally certain that they will rely on this method of advancing the sticks if Queen's line holds. Only three of their passes were completed last week and Queen's will look after most of them in tomorrow's tangle.

The team has improved with every game, and they should be right on edge for their next big test of the season.

The team will likely line up much the same as last week, with a few minor changes possible. No casualties have marked the drill of the week and the team is about ready. Storms will start at flying wing, Carter, Davoud and either Day or Davis on the half line. Carr or Dargaval at Quarter. Buell at snap. Byrne and Hoskings at insides, Hamlin and Kennedy at Middle and Ralph and Gorman at outsides. Kostuik, Purvis, Thoman, McNichol, Peever, Teskey and Conquergood will act as reserves.

Aerial Attack To Nullify Carter's Kicking Planned

Continued from page 1

lengthy punts, the Redmen plan to wage an aerial warfare, in which the forward pass will play a prominent part. The forward flip has not been used at all extensively in the McGillians' last two games, due to the absence of quarterback Al Krukowski, who was out because of injuries received two weeks ago. Krukowski has been the chief passer on the squad, and now that he has returned to the line-up, the forward pass will feature heavily in the Redmen's attack.

Lee, stellar outside and dropkicker par excellence, will sit out this game, due to a sprained ankle, which is a souvenir of last week's McGill-Queen's game in Kingston. This is a serious loss to the local foothallers, since Lee accounted for no less than nine points in that encounter. "Slip" Gilbert emerged from the contest with a sore shoulder, but will most probably be back by Saturday.

Hammy Hammond is still a doubtful starter, and although his knee is quite recovered, he is not yet certain as to how it will act under fire. Shaughnessy hopes, however, that the fleet back-fielder will play. Gus Garcelon and Hib Watson, both very effective linemen, will not be on the roster, and to fill these vacancies, "Shag" has moved up two members of the McGill Intermediate squad. Captain Don Young is fully recovered from his injury, and will again line up at flying wing. Dodds Hilliard's weak ankle may keep him out of the game, as it has the past three weeks; the hefty lineman's vacancy is a hard one to fill, and his appearance on the starting line will do a great deal to bolster the Redmen's chances for victory.

The squad will, with just a few changes, line up in the same way as last Saturday: Don Young, flying wing; Stevens, Craig, Olker, halves; Krukowski, quarter; Halpenny, snap; Griffits, Newton, outsides; Wilson, McMorran, insides; Letourneau, Pierce, middles. Substitutes: Riddell, Gilbert, Freeman, Bishop, Markham, Fyshe, Corbett, Sangster.

FORWARD PASSES

On to Montreal and our first win of the season.

* * * * * *

The Boxing, Fencing and Wrestling team needs recruits and needs them out now. All freshmen interested, are urged to get busy and register with Jimmy Bews.

* * * * * *

Varsity will have no picnic in London, if the Mustangs fight as they did last Saturday.

* * * * * *

Incidently if there's a high breeze blowing, McGill had better buy themselves a few footballs, because Howie Carter will push a few of them out of the Stadium.

* * * * * *

Western must win to retain a chance for a second championship. So many "ifs" come into the picture that their chances are as good as the well known snowball's.

* * * * * *

The Intermediates have been doormats long enough. They say a flock of worms will turn on Saturday and smear Ottawa.

Where Did You Go Last Night?

Wherever you went, if you wore a TIP TOP suit, you carried with you the distinction of being well-dressed.

Every TIP TOP suit is hand-cut and tailored to 21 personal measurements. There is a quality to a TIP TOP suit or overcoat that reflects the good judgment of the wearer. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

STYLE and QUALITY...
Are the standards we use in selecting merchandise for your approval.
The prices here are always as low as they can be, consistent with Quality.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN  WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1850

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

Chancellor's Lectures

The first of a series of lectures known as the Chancellor's Lectures was given in Convocation Hall, Tuesday evening, to a large audience of Theological Alumni and their friends. The lecturer for this year is Principal W. T. Brown, Ph.D., of Victoria College, Toronto. Rev. N. M. Leckie, President of the Theological Alumni Association, introduced the speaker.

Dr. Brown announced that the subject of his lectures would be, "Authority in Life, Morals and Religion." The introductory lecture dealt with the question, "What is Religion, and what influence has it in the life of individuals and of the race?"

"We are apt to consider our civilization the product of science," said Dr. Brown. "Religion has had a far greater influence in moulding our civilization, for it has existed since earliest times, while science is still in its first stages. The student finds the origin of religion a most difficult thing to decide, for there are many plausible theories regarding the cause of religious development. Theology alone does not bring us in contact with religion—we examine it and it eludes us. Religion is not bound by creed and theological laws, nor can it be expressed in terms of moral conduct. Every attempt to isolate or define religion ends in failure, yet it is a vital and dominating part of human life.

"Religion is the 'salt of the earth'," continued Dr. Brown. "It is the flavour of life, which cannot be taken from it, but goes inseparably with it. Christ expressed it as the "Light of the World", which gives meaning to the lives of individuals and the civilization of the world. Religion is bound up inseparably with all the varying elements in life, and it is the unifying element.

"History shows the realistic side of religion, for example the institution of sacred days, sacred literature and sacred places. There is perpetual controversy between those who believe that religion is "Life at its highest and best" and the supporters of Institutional Religion. I do not think," said Dr. Brown, "that these ideas will ever be reconciled, but they can be harmonized, and are harmonized in our daily life. We can glimpse the eternal only through the temporal.

"What has this to do with Authority? As there are no peculiarly religious problems, there is no problem of authority in religion. Any problems dealing with religion come under the head of the problems of life, where life is faced in its most comprehensive form. The institution of Authority appears in all branches of our civilization, in the family, the community, all social and business organizations, political relations, and in the moral sphere. Authority in the moral sphere is especially important now, when the wholesome scepticism of youth questions past and existing standards."

Speaking on authority in the Field of Morals, in the second of the series of Chancellor's lectures before the Queen's Theological Conference, Principal W. T. Brown, Ph.D., of Victoria University, maintained that the basis of authority in morals is a spiritual, but not a supernatural influence. The present great chaos in the world concerning the authority of morals lies in the fact that there have been three theories of authority produced. The first of these theories was that of a religious influence, the second a sociological, and the third and most prevalent to-day, that of an idealistic authority.

The outstanding objection to the Religious theory was that when religion becomes realistic, any moral authority which it may have possessed, vanishes. Therefore, this theory has been rejected by philosophers.

The sociological theory was identified with the written and unwritten laws of society, and was first offered by the Greek Sophists. Although it was supported by such eminent philosophers as David Hume and John Stuart Mill, they offered no definite commendation of the theory that the welfare of the individual conflicted with the welfare of society as a whole. This theory also maintained that the chaos of the modern world is a condition of moral bankruptcy, and that this state was reached by the fact that this morality theory is social rather than religious.

The third theory and the one recommended by Dr. Brown was the Idealistic theory, which depends upon imminent ideals tending to control the conflicting desires of human life. There is no adequate theory of morality which does not consider this fact. This condition is best exemplified by the Idealistic theory as a source of authority in morals.

A. M. S. Minutes

Present: Misses Kimmons, Landon, Messrs. Charland, Clapp, Parks, Thompson, Warrington, Wilson, Wright and the Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

The meeting was called to order by the Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

1. Parks-Wilson: That C. W. Clapp be elected Acting President. Carried.

Mr. Clapp took the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

2. Parks-Wright that in accordance with A.M.S. constitution as amended 1932 the Acting President and Permanent Secretary-Treasurer be empowered individually to deposit and jointly to withdraw funds for the legitimate purposes of the Society from the A.M.S. account in the Bank of Montreal and the Journal Account in the Bank of Toronto. Carried.

3. Charland-Wilson: That the following contra accounts be approved. J. R. C. Dobbs, rental of typewriter, $8.50; Grinham's Book Store, books for review, $8.50.

4. Wright-Wilson: That H. J. Hamilton receive 5% on all advertising contracted for in excess of $500, and that J. L. MacDougall be appointed as Business Manager of the Journal for the year 1932-33. His remuneration to be 5% on all Hamilton's contracts over $500.00 which he collects and 10% on all other advertising sold and collected. Carried.

5. Parks-Wright: That Charles G. O'Neil be appointed to take complete charge of the Students' Directory at a salary of $50.00 to be paid when an audited financial statement of expenses has been received and approved by the A.M.S. Carried.

6. Clapp-Thompson: That Mr. Warrington be appointed to take charge of the Tricolour Accounts and to submit a report on them as soon as possible. Carried.

7. Wright-Wilson: That Mr. Wade be appointed to the position of Chief Cheer Leader; that his expenses be borne by the A. B. of C.; that the A.M.S. grant him at the close of the football season an Honorarium of $20.00 and that Mr. Clapp and Mr. Parks be empowered to complete arrangements. Carried.

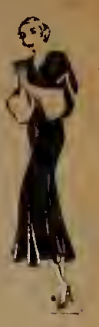
8. Warrington-Wright: That Mr. H. W. Clarkson be appointed to take complete charge of A.M.S. elections at an honorarium of $10.00 to be paid when an audited statement of his expenses has been received and approved by the Executive. Carried.

The Permanent Secretary-Treasurer was authorized to convey, unless otherwise provided for, the decisions of the Executive to the persons concerned; to arrange for his own bond to the Society as provided for by the Constitution; to request from Queen's Pipe Band a financial statement as required when a grant was made to it last fall; to get in touch with Mr. Eric Gilmour regarding the Quill; to arrange for the printing of the Constitution; and to notify the Faculty Societies of the pertinent parts of the Constitution regarding the conduct of the Annual Elections.

NOTICE

Dr. John Delahaye has been appointed Medical Officer for the University to succeed Dr. H. S. Angrove. Dr. Delahaye will assume his duties on November 1st.

The office hours have been slightly altered:



Office at the Gymnasium—telephone 1718. 4.30 to 5.30 p.m. except Saturdays and Sundays. 10.00 to 10.30 a.m. Saturdays.

Office at 230 Johnston St.—telephone 780. 10.00 to 10.30 a.m. Sundays.

Ban Righ Hall—telephone 2407. 1.15 p.m. except Sundays.

For house calls and emergencies Dr. Delahaye can be reached at any time by message to 230 Johnston St. or by telephoning 780.

Dr. Delahaye, however, will not assume his new post until November 1st, when Dr. Angrove's term will expire. Students are asked to note the slight changes in the office hours.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

Co-ed Ensembles
—Buy a complete outfit — Coat — Dress — Hat — Gloves — Hose —at a Big Saving — Collegiate Clothes for College—
FUR TRIMMED COAT FALL DRESS HAT
1 PR. GLOVES 1 PR. HOSE
Moderately Priced
$30.00 and up
SILK HOSE
— CHIFFON OR SERVICE WEIGHT —
Popular makes of hosiery—featuring all the seasons new shades—Silk to the top.
These stockings sell regular for $1.25 and $1.50 pr.
Special 79c. Pr.
Reg. $1.75 hose — Special 89c pr.
Just arrived — a large shipment of all wool Crepe skirts — wine, burgundy, black, Navy, blue and green — with Jumper tops — All sizes 14-20 — Reg. $5.00 — SPECIAL $3.75
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
ONLY
FREE
A PAIR OF RUBBERS WITH EVERY PURCHASE OF SHOES
Buy Now And Save

Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50

AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Campus Cut-ups

Hell popped in Ban Righ and the Annexes on Tuesday night, all right, all right. Tourists thought that a fresh riot had broken out behind these walls. It was only the expression of the sense of injury of the Freshettes who came back from the Freshette's reception and found their rooms resembling a scene after an air raid, and the shocked grief and horror of the Seniors to find that the Freshettes, contrary to the best Queen's traditions, had retaliated by wrecking all the Senior's rooms. It was all good clean fun, with each side wanting to mop up the other.

The sporting instinct is now dead. Long live the sporting instinct—of Levana '36. In former years at Queen's in the deadly struggle between Sniors and Freshettes, a referee and a set of rules weren't necessary. In those dear, dead days, Freshettes who arrived home to find their beds in the wardrobes, springs in the basement, mattresses on the stairs, dresser drawers indiscriminately distributed along corridors, curtains tied in knots, intimate articles of feminine apparel adding spots of local color, with three men on the bases and the pitcher out, well anyway, those l'il women of yesteryear came smilin' thru, yassuh, and heroically cleaned up the mess, with hopeful thoughts of next year's Freshettes. Gone—all gone.

Latest reports from the Grapevine Intelligence Corps reveals a state of active unrest among the Seniors, which forebodes an imminent ernption, and would indicate that Freshettes should wear gloves to avoid getting their fingers hurt when they're stepped on.

Campus and Gym

Levana '35 won the Softball Semi-finals by defeating Levana '36, 13-8. All that the Freshettes seemed to lack was practice, for they came back strong at the end of the game. Jean Cameron, Margaret McGregor and Jennie Roberts played a good game for the winning team, while Aileen Mason and Ev. Rickard were the stars of '36. The teams were

'35—Lola Billings, Jean Cameron, Jenny Roberts, Gertrude Warrell, Dolly Woolsey, Margaret McGregor, Barbara Brown, Marian Paul, Honor Bailie.

'36—Hetty Bolin, Dorel Smith, Ev. Rickard, June Roth, Aileen Mason, Nadine Austin, Mildred Robertson, May Boyle, Frances Read.

Levana '34 are the Inter-year Softball Champions by their victory over Levana '35, winners of the Semi-finals. The score was 16-3. There was little choice between the fielding of the two teams, but '34 proved the better batting team. Good pitching by Jean Stewart held '35 to few hits, which were bunched in the last inning. The teams were:

'34 — Dot Clemens, c.; Jean Stewart, p.; Sally Farlinger, 1b; Isa Galbraith, 2b; Evelyn Pownall, 3b; Jean Nelson, ss; Ruby Cordy, rf; Norah McGinnis, lf; Marg. Chambers, cf.

'35 — Lola Billings, c; Jean Cameron, p; Jenny Roberts, 1b; Margaret McGregor, 2b; Helen Hamilton, 3b; Gertrude Warrell, ss; Honor Bailie, rf; Barbara Brown, lf; Marion Paul, cf.

Home runs—J. Stewart.

Struck out—By Jean Stewart, 6; by Jean Cameron, 2.

Bases on balls—Off J. Stewart, 1; off J. Cameron, 2.

Vital Questions Are Discussed By Group

Professor Walker's discussion group has been reorganized under the leadership of Mr. Cameron. The topic for their first discussion was "Why are Thousands Starving in the Midst of Plenty?"

It was decided that there was something wrong with the present economic system. There was considerable discontent among the people, but not to the extent that they would rise to drastic measures. Money seemed to be the root of it all. Though the business enterprise carries on to satisfy the consumer, its success is measured in money profits. Though quality creates quantity production, the success of this product is measured in money. Russia has a plan to produce directly for the wants of the consumer, and it is their policy to support that idea. We have been educated to understand that the function of our state is to support the indirect method which leads to profit seeking.

Should we produce for profit or for use? Under the present system we produce for the consumer while the consumer works for the producer. Since the producer expects only profits, he allows his production to out-number his sales. Hence he reduces his production by reducing the number of workers. Now the workers are out of work and have no money to buy the goods. Thus we have reached a point where everything is almost at a standstill; except that those who still have money continue to purchase, and thus reduce the stock on the producers hands. Since the stock has been reduced, the producer begins work again and hires more labourers. This creates more purchasing power, and the system is away on another boom.

What can the University do to help overcome these depressions? The Universities can educate business men who are able to face the world and point out the facts. Educate them not only along the business line, but the ethical. Similarly the Church should educate them morally. Therefore we shall have business men who will deal with the facts squarely and honestly.

The topic chosen for next week is the "Faults of the Capitalistic System." The success of a discussion group depends on the enthusiasm for discussion, and above all, the participation of the whole group. So we should like to see a large number next Wednesday evening.

Queen's Medical Graduate Honoured In New York

Dr. J. Wilfrid Forster, M.D., Queen's graduate of 1928, practicing in New York City has been appointed to the staff of the New York Post Graduate Medical School as instructor in medicine. He has also been appointed to the staff of the Bellevue Hospital, gall bladder clinic. He has had remarkable success for so young a doctor, being but twenty-eight years of age.

Prof. Clark Will Remain Arts '33 Hon. President

Prof. W. C. Clark, the new Deputy Minister of Finance, has consented to continue as honorary president of Arts '33. As his new post takes him away from Kingston, Professor Clark suggested that a new honorary president be chosen, but on request of the year he consented to remain its honorary head.

World News Briefly

Considerable confidence has been manifested in Canada's financial stability by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York which has just subscribed for $2,000,000 of the new 4%, $80,000,000 bond issue which goes on the market Monday in Montreal.

* * *

Judge Stubbs of Winnipeg in handing down a decision of acquittal yesterday, gave forth-right expression to his opinions, characterizing our penal system as "antiquated, barbarous and unscientific."

* * *

A crowd of 2,000 unemployed encamped around London, demand a hearing from Premier Ramsay MacDonald in connection with the "means test" applied to dole applicants.

This test requires each man to prove his eligibility for financial aid, that he has no other means of sustinence. Evidently injustice has been done in applying this measure.

* * *

Great Britain has executed a major coup against recalcitrant Ireland by disallowing her all advantages accruing from the Imperial Conference.

On Nov. 15th an additional tariff over and above the 20% already levied on certain goods coming from the Irish Free State will go into effect. Other classes of goods will be taxed 10%.

* * *

A new element in the disarmament situation is hinted at in a despatch from Japan, Wednesday, which states that Japan will propose an entirely different plan of naval reduction at Geneva in February.

The details of the plan are a close secret, but the Japanese press believes the country's stand on President Hoover's all round 1/3 reduction is still that of opposition. The kingdom of the rising sun would rather keep certain categories of her navy intact, scrapping the 10,000 ton cruisers and long range aircraft carriers.

International Relations Club Former At Queen's

At a meeting convened by Mr. Harrison of the History Department a selected list of undergraduates met to form the International Relations Club. The purpose of this organization is to act as a clearing house for information on international affairs and as a medium for the exchange of national points of view.

The following officers were elected.

Honorary President—Dr. Fyfe.
President—Phil Stuchen.
Vice-President—Miss Ward.
Secretary - Treasurer — George Wallace.

Librarians and heads of various committees were elected and enthusiastic comment was general.

NOTICE TO ARTS '35

Members of Arts '35 are reminded that year fees are due and should be paid as soon as possible to avoid imposition of a fine. Payment may be made to Eric Gilmour, Al Sillery or Jenny Roberts, for Levana.

Eric Gilmour Elected Editor Of Tricolor

At a meeting of the A. M. S. last Tuesday evening, October 25th, Eric Gilmour was appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Tricolor, and Tom Nugent Business Manager.

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar
Commanding Queen's University Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Season 1932-1933.
Part I.

No. 9.

Certificates. Proficiency in riding. Capt. W. C. Blackwell, 77081; M. O. L. Barrie, 77082; Lt. N. E. Berry, 77083; Lt. P. J. Biglow, 77084; Lt. A. G. Moffatt, 77085; 2/Lt. D. T. R. McColl, 77086; 2/Lt. W. R. MacLaren, 77087.

No. 10.

Training General.

1. Parades. All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room at 5.00 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and will be marched to their lectures and training exercises.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
A/Adj. Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1st, 1932. No. 10

Playing Finest Football Of Season Tricolor Scored Decisive Victory Over McGill Seniors At Montreal

Queen's Team Played Fast And Determined Football Throughout

(By J. S. Hazen)

Playing their finest football of the current rugby schedule, Queen's downed the Red Team of McGill by the decisive score of 12 to 1 on Saturday last.

It was a real Queen's machine that stepped onto the Montreal gridiron, a machine that played fast, clever and determined football from start to finish. The Tricolor got the bit in their molars early and were never headed, the score at the ends of the quarters being, 3 to 0, 3 to 1, 6 to 1 and 12 to 1.

Those who expected a grim struggle between two very determined squads, were not disappointed, and while McGill fought every inch of the way, the Tricolor were always a bit better. For the greater half of the game McGill were on the defensive. There are those who will say that the Red team were off color. Be that as it may, Queen's pressed everlastingly and never gave McGill an opportunity to get set.

It was a perfect day for rugby, fair and cold, with only a vagrant breeze blowing down from the west during the first quarter. It changed when the teams switched around to begin the second spasm and then blew from the east. During the last half the breeze came only in puffs that benefited no one. The sun was in evidence before game time but was only touching the tops of the distant hills when the starting whistle blew.

The repeated statements in this paper that Queen's needed only time to develop team play was amply demonstated on Saturday, when the Tricolor reached the peak of their playing form and simply could not be stopped.

It would be grossly unfair to attempt to pick any stars in the game because every man seemed to be where he was most needed at the right time. The line showed far greater strength than in

(Continued on page 6)

Memories Of The Big Week-End In Montreal

The Tricolor fans rushed the East goal posts and had them out of the soil and pulled apart before the McGill bleacherites realized the game was over. A few fights followed because something had to be done about that. As one McGill fan in the press box remarked, "Let them have the posts, we're through with them."

Dr. "Blurp" Stnart was serenaded in the big stand by a trio of spirited gentlemen at half time, who beseeched that newly married M.D. to get up and say a few words. He did, too, but what words.

Just as the second quarter began, the ball went flat. Was someone loose in there with a knife?

About one hundred and fifty of the faithful made the tour and Montreal knows it. We may be small as universities go, but you cannot surpass Queen's pep anywhere.

One old lad in Cornwall, seeing two Queen's men approaching with ribbons flying, whispered, "Walk up straight boys, the cop is down the street." Apparently Cornwall knows when the football trek is on, and what to expect.

The McGill band put on a show at half time, similar to that they gave us in Kingston. It brought out a burst of cheers from the Red fans, and that is about all they had to cheer about for the afternoon. The Queen's pipe band made the trip and got a big hand from the crowd.

The McGill stadium is picturesquely situated on the slope of Mount Royal. Above it the Royal Victoria Hospital and Ross Memorial Hospital occupy a conspicuous site, while higher still, the great Cross tops the peak. Far below the busy city sprawls, with stately towers and buildings studding the skyline. Farther North and East blue patches of the St. Lawrence can be seen, and beyond the Laurentian hills pile up into the gray sky.

Queen's Hotel was Queen's in more than name only, on Friday and Saturday evenings. It was a mecca for all faithful Tricolor fans and they won't forget our visit.

McGill's band renders the "Barbarsol" tune very effectively.

The city did not lack excitement after the game. The students paraded behind the band to the Queen's Hotel, and more than one cop cursed the students who danced around him.

Press Club To Hear About Country Papers

How is a country newspaper run? Aspiring journalists will be interested to hear Mr. W. H. Agnew discuss the aspects of this question at a meeting of the Press Club, Wednesday afternoon at 4.30, in the Red Room.

Mr. Agnew has had reporting and editorial experience on several newspapers. All those who are interested in this line of work, especially the opportunities on the weekly paper, should attend this first meeting.

Owing to the pressure of other activities on those in charge of this organization, the Club has been late in getting started. It is hoped, however, that several speakers will be lined up before Christmas.

Pete Lewis Elected Arts Vice-President

Arts By-Elections Fill Executive Vacancies

The results of the Arts Society By-Elections for the vacant offices in the Executive and the Arts Concursus are given as follows:

Vice-President—Pete Lewis.
Treasurer—Andy Bell.
Assistant Secretary — George Matheson.

Arts Concursus:
Chief of Police—Bill Agnew.
Clerk—Orian Low.
Crier—Tandy Davoud.
Constable '33—Stu. Major.
Constables '34—Fritz Gussow, H. Conquergood.
Constable '35—Doug. Waugh.
Constables '36 — Doug. Burr, Malcolm Bews.

The poll was situated in the Arts club room and voting went on from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The percentage of the members of the Arts Society who exercised their right of suffrage was deplorably small. The Journal learns that only 150 votes were cast, while the membership of the Society is much greater than this.

The election was held to fill vacancies caused by the non return to college of several executive members, due in part to premature graduation and financial stress.

The new list of officers will work under the leadership of the Arts Society president, "Stu." Warrington.

Levana Glee Club Plans Year's Work

May Render Cantata With Male Glee Club

Under the able direction of Mrs. Tracey, the Glee Club intends to achieve some of its ambitions this year. If sufficient enthusiasm is shown by members of the Levana Society, it is hoped that in co-operation with Mrs. Williamson's male Glee Club a rendering of Bach's "Peasant Cantata" may be given after Christmas.

The Glee Club meets 4 p.m. Thursdays at 332 University Ave.

Queen's To Observe Centenary Of Scott

Prof. G. H. Clarke Has Interesting Memento

One hundred years ago, from Sept. 21 last Sir Walter Scott died. This fact has been blazoned across the heads of so many literary papers recently that it hardly seems necessary to call attention to the centenary of Scott's death .

How many, though, are aware that this event will be celebrated at Queen's on November 21st?

That date is still some weeks away so there's still time to get out that dusty volume of Scott's poems and brush up a bit. If you are a particular admirer of his novels re-read Ivanhoe, The Bride of Lammermoor, the Antiquary or others.

Until recently the Douglas Library had two letters written by Sir Walter. One belonged to Mrs. Marshall, wife of Professor Marshall and has been sent to England. This letter was written in 1805 to Scott's partner Ballantyne warning him against the trickiness of a certain party. Professor G. H. Clarke, in his interesting collection has an extract from one of Sir Walter Scott's letters from Abbotsford, the 23rd of July, 1820. The University library also has a first edition of Ivanhoe in three volumes.

Among the works about Scott, Lockhart's biography has long been regarded as one of the best in the English language. Some critics would rank it second only to Boswell's "Life of Johnson." This book was begun by Sir Walter and continued by John Gibson Lockhart. The edition in the library is the second published at Edinburgh, 1853; the best modern edition is published by Houghton 1901. Andrew Lang's biography is more or less a rehash of the material in Lockhart.

As for the novels the series edited by Andrew Lang is admirable for an introductory essay and notes. While among poetical works the Oxford complete edition, London, 1910, is the most modern and perhaps most satisfactory.

Anyone who wishes to go into this subject still further will find a very complete bibliography com-

Continued on page 7

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

Now it can be told! Blue Monday!

'Struth! Oh my yes! Recently the whole college was thrown into a lather of no mean proportions. The Chemistry department in particular reverberated with despairing groans — completely disorganized. Students of Chemical Engineering were distinctly hurt; they felt it to be a little hard. Why? Because the one essential detail of their daily routine had that day been noticeably lacking. Without it they felt they COULD NOT face another day's toil.

Behold! Dr. Goodwin had arrived at College on Monday morning afoot. Concern and resentment charged the air. That familiar sight of Dr. Goodwin and his bicycle both arriving at College at exactly the same time every morning had come to be a source of inspiration to all; and now — WHERE WAS THE BICYCLE?

This demand became so insistent that the Journal—fearing for the morale of our worthy institution—detailed one of its cub reporters to seek out an answer whereby the college might resume its duties with a light heart.

Our cub reporter wandered into the Chemistry Building and

(Continued on page 5)

Lord and Lady Bessborough and Premier G. H. Henry Will Receive Honorary Degrees At Convocation

Mathematicians Meet To Appoint Executive

The first meeting of the Math. and Physics Club was held in Room 200 of the New Arts Building on Friday, Oct. 28th, at 4.15 p.m. The following officers were elected:—

Honorary President — Professor W. C. Baker.
President—J. Kent.
Secretary-Treasurer — E. T. Palmer.
Reporter—Miss M. Grant.

Following the election of officers Dean Matheson addressed the club and chose as his subject, "Form in Mathematics."

The science of Mathematics is primarily concerned with these ideas: (1) Quantities, referring to constants and variable, (2) Logic or reasoning, and (3) Machinery including methods. In both the Logic and Machinery of Mathematics form plays a very important part. The story of the development of our number system, first devised by the Hindus and brought to Europe about the twelfth century by the Arabs was very instructive.

The use of formulae as a means to crystallize the work that precedes it and to sum that work up in a convenient form for use was stressed. The idea, common to many unacquainted with mathematics, that it was merely a memorization of lists of formulae to be called up when and where needed indicates an abuse of form in mathematics. The reasoning behind the formula should be mastered and then its use becomes intellectual.

Judgment Reserved By A. M. S. Court

At the first meeting of the A.M.S. Court, held last Thursday evening in Kingston Hall, the Sophomore year of the Medical Faculty was charged with "infraction of the A. M. S. Constitution" by having held an initiation of the freshmen.

Before electing to plead, the Sophomore year, through its representative, wished to know if the charge were against individual members of the year, or the year as a whole. On being assured, by Chief Justice Stanyar, that the charge was against the Year as a whole, and that it conveyed no further implication than that read by the Clerk, the Counsel for the defense proceeded by pleading guilty and asking for the leniency of the Court in dealing with the accused.

Defence Council pointed out that Initiation regulations had changed frequently in the past few years and that minor infractions of the A. M. S. Constitution in former incidences had been treated leniently.

Judgment was reserved for one week, when the Court will again meet in Room 201 of Kingston Hall on Tuesday, November 1st.

Alumni Will Flock To Queen's By Land And Air For Big Reunion

The visit of Their Excellencies the Governor General and the Countess of Bessborough, and of the Hon. George S. Henry, Prime Minister of Ontario (all of whom will receive honorary degrees at Fall Convocation) will feature the crowded week end of November 4th and 5th.

The program for 1932 Reunion will include: on Friday, November 4th, Class Reunion dinner at 6.30 p.m.; and on Saturday, November 5th, the Annual Business Meeting of the General Alumni Association in Convocation Hall at 9.15 a.m.; Fall Convocation in Grant Hall at 11 a.m.; the Queen's-Western game at 2.30 p.m.; Class Reunion dinner at 6.30 p.m.; and the Alumni Reunion Dance in the New Gymnasium at 8.30 p.m. Alumni are invited to proceed, as soon as they arrive, to Registration Headquarters in Miller Hall, where full information about the various class events may be obtained.

The Journal learns that arrangements have been made to bring graduates to Reunion this year by airplane, one starting from Carleton Place, Ont., and another from Long Island, New York. It is also possible that a Queen's medical graduate will fly from Jamaica to attend the Reunion ceremonies.

Forum Discusses Value Of Money

History Of Monetary Development Traced

"The Changing Value of Money" was discussed at the last meeting of the Men's Forum held in the officers' mess in the Students' Union on Thursday. Captain J. O. Watts who led the group last year, was in charge of the discussion.

The history of money was traced from its earliest conception, as a means of facilitating trade to its present position in the economic and capitalistic structure. The original purpose of money has been overshadowed by the trading instinct. Men, today, are questioning religion, the banking system, and the moral code. Why not also question this trading instinct which allows certain men gifted with the instinct to take advantage of the general public though the shifting value of currency? The decline in stock and bond values was also discussed and its effect on the average investor.

Already this semester the discussions have attracted a large number of students. The subject for this week is, "The Standards of Morality In University Life." This subject should be of distinct value to every thinking student, and anyone interested is invited to attend. The next meeting will take place in the Students' Union at 6.45 p.m., on Thursday, Nov. 3rd.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ——— MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ——— NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ——— SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ——— LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ——— LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MUNE ——— SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ——— MEDICINE

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 1st, 1932

Hoover or Roosevelt?

The life of our neighbours to the South presents at this time a very interesting study. They are in the midst of a general election while the country as a whole is suffering from depression and unemployment. Taxes have been increased extraordinarily. Cities are confronted with unbalanced budgets. Farms are being abandoned. Mortgaged homes are being surrendered. Increase in taxation is out of the question.

Naturally the Democrats censure the Republicans for the present distress. The Volstead Act figures prominently in the platform of both parties. The former favour the elimination of this outgrown statute and advocate the sale of beers and wines as a means of striking a death-blow to public enemy No. 1—depression. Anticipating a Roosevelt victory at the polls on November 8th brewers are preparing actively for the coming season. The St. Lawrence waterway received its share of publicity in the earlier stages of the campaign but of late has not received the attention we Canadians would expect. Tariffs have been closely scrutinized and have remained a feature of the political debates. Refusing to read the writing on the wall the Republicans have again taken their stand for high tariffs and protection of the home industries. Roosevelt and his cohorts have opposed this protectionist concept from the outset and have tried to prove to the American public its utter futility.

To our way of thinking, however, the campaign has been one of personalities. A spirited contest between two great men.

The Roosevelt campaign has been featured by a succession of whirlwind tours and sensational sallies. New York, the political melting-pot, has attempted to vie with the Democratic candidate in stealing public attention. But the Walker investigation and the rampage of the Tammany Tiger only resulted in solidifying his cause in the eyes of the public. It required courage to institute an investigation of the Walker administration, knowing that it would likely mean the loss of New York to his cause. In Roosevelt the "forgotten man" has found a sincere champion. From the opening of the campaign he has shown a sympathy for his distressed countrymen, a sympathy which comes from his sensitiveness to the basic social necessities that the existing order does not meet. He has not dealt lengthily with economic theories. He seems to have realized that after all theories count for less than sympathies and has thus rested his case on the personal emotions of his people rather than on their reasoning power.

Hoover has based his appeal primarily on the people's faith in the old order, faith in the Republican party and faith in himself. Regarding the Volstead Act Mr. Hoover has emphasized the necessity of a change. While being a firm believer in prohibition he feels that the present lack of co-operation in its enforcement makes a change advisable. Yet the return of the saloon must be avoided. He thus tries to appease the drys and give hope to the wets.

In presenting his cause to the voters he has stressed the achievements of the past administration. He has said in part: "We have maintained the financial integrity of our government. We have co-operated to restore and stabilize the situation abroad. As a nation we have paid every dollar demanded of us. We have used the credit of our government to aid and perfect our institutions, public and private. We have provided methods and assurance that there shall be none to suffer from hunger and cold . . . Above all we have maintained the sanctity of the principles upon which this Republic has grown great."

Hoover has been painted as the 'Saviour of the Country,' but the country had to ask what it had been saved from. Calvin Coolidge was brought in to furnish the answer.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

The Cave Man at Harvard.

Professor Earnest Hooton, of the anthropological faculty at Harvard, is a pedagogue with a happy faculty of putting such a novel slant on his instruction that, like Chauncey Tinker, at Yale, or Dr. Daniel Clark, of Columbia, he is able to engage the unqualified attention of his students and, incidentally, to make himself frequent news copy. Only last spring Professor Hooton told the flower of the youth of Boston in his classes that they were mere "anthropological upstarts," without any very ancient claim to dominion of the biological scene. Now, because undergraduates find prehistoric man "a remote, hairy figure," culturally and esthetically unworthy of their attentions, he has set his classes to work hammering out flint knives and arrowheads to show them that sweetness and light are the hard-gained usufructs of a long, hard trek toward civilization.

Centuries hence the dwellers in the "Brave New World" of Aldous Huxley's devising may, if Professor Hooton's new pedagogy becomes an established practice, be taught the merits of our own era by having to make a living out of the stock market or achieving culture while riding in the subway. And Professor Hooton's name, recovered from ancient tablets, may then be familiar to students as a light of learning in that far distant age whose record will be discovered from the Harvard Cantabrigian rock strata.

—New York Herald Tribune.

Official Notices

Classes on November 5th.

On Saturday, November 5th, classes meeting at eight and nine o'clock will be held as usual. The nine o'clock classes will close at five minutes to ten in order that students may hear the Hon. Mr. George Henry, who will speak in Convocation Hall. No classes will meet after ten o'clock.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Rhodes Scholarships

Candidates for Rhodes Scholarships must make application by November 1 to D. R. Michener, Esq., National Building, 347 Bay Street, Toronto. Application forms and full information may be obtained at the Registrar's Office.

Attendance and Work

Students are expected to attend all lectures and all laboratory exercises. Grades are affected by deficiencies in attendance or work. No candidate will be admitted to final examinations whose attendance or work is less than 87½ per cent. of the total in Applied Science or 80 per cent. of the total in the Faculty of Arts. In applying this rule no consideration is given on account of late registration or illness. Students in the final year of Applied Science are subject to the attendance regulations.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

November Hour Examinations, 1932

Beginning on October 21st one-hour examinations will be held in all First Year Science classes except Surveying, and in every Arts class numbered A, 1, 2, (History 1, 2, 3).

Except in the period when an examination is submitted for a lecture, class work will proceed as usual and regular attendance is required.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Master of Arts

All candidates for the degree of M.A. in 1933 must have their courses of study approved by the Board of Studies before their registration can be fully accepted. In order that there may be no oversight all such candidates are asked to write to the Registrar submitting their plans of work.

Queen's Music Group Heard Fine Program

Last Friday the Music Club held a record meeting. Levana responded nobly to the invitation extended them and turned out in force, almost but not quite outnumbering the men. It is sincerely hoped that the interest of all who attended will be maintained throughout the year. The Kingston Music Group invites all members of the Queen's Music Club to attend their meetings, which take place on the first Wednesday of each month; the next is tomorrow (November 2nd.) at 161 King St. The week following the Club will hold a meeting of its own.

The Musical programme consisted of three compositions by Tschaikowsky, the Nutracker Suite originally written as ballet-music, the ballet being concerned with a poor girl who on Christmas was given a pair of nutcrackers, which subsequently joined her other toys in a dance); Marche Slave, commemorating the defeat of Napoleon at Moscow, and a Song without Words. This was followed by Mendelssohn's Spinning Song and as a finale the Raymond Overture was played.

Arts man after shaking hands with Science chap—Farewell, may you be a foreman where you go and not a common coal heaver.

Famous Yale Rugby Coach Nominated For Congress

New Haven, Conn.—(IP)—T. A. D. (Tad) Jones, one of the most famous of Yale football coaches who retired two years ago to go into the coal business here, was nominated last week at the Republican Convention here as a candidate for the seat in Congress held by Representative John Q. Tilson.

Tilson, who lost the party leadership in the last session of Congress to Bertrand Snell of New York, recently announced his retirement after 22 years in Congress. Tilson himself placed Jones' name in nomination.

In accepting the nomination, "Coach" Jones said:

"I have long been an advocate of temperance, and I still hold that view. I have a strong conviction, however, that real temperance cannot be obtained through legislation, and therefore I am unalterably opposed to the present prohibition law—the Eighteenth Amendment."

Tilson, placing Jones in nomination, said:

"This might be called the celebration of my passing out. If it is a funeral, it is the most joyous I ever attended."

New roomer—My last landlady wept when I left.

Landlady—Well, I won't—you'll pay in advance.

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

Students...
We do not give advice on love matters, stock markets, or weather conditions, locate lost articles, missing relatives or buried treasure—
But for Dependable Drug Service — that's us!
Prompt, Cheerful, Careful and —Reasonable—
WARD & HAMILTON
Limited
4—Convenient Stores—4
Where students like to shop

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Queen's University, Kingston,
October 28th, 1932.

The Editor,
The "Queen's Journal."
Dear Sir,

The new gymnasium is a building of which we, the students of Queen's University, may be justly proud. Not the least are we proud of our magnificent swimming-pool, which is one of the finest in the whole of Canada. Yet, may I enquire, what actual use is being made of the pool? Last year we were accustomed to see water-polo practices and swimming and diving being undertaken by some of the more ambitious students, who saw in the pool an excellent and rare opportunity for encouraging these pursuits in the university, if not actually entering Queen's eventually in intercollegiate competition. Yet what became of all the tronble taken? Nothing. The pool remained simply an ornament. And an ornament it is going to remain, unless something is done in the near future to make the use of it that it deserves.

There are in this university many students who are interested in the sports of swimming. Frankly, it came as a very great disappointment to them last year when after all the practice they had undertaken, they were denied by the A. B. of C. even the opportunity to use their own pool in which to have a meet, much less that of an out-of-town meet. Now, there is very little question but that such a meet, if properly planned, would pay for itself. Is it not possible, then, that we be permitted sometime during the present academic year, to put the matter to the test? There is evidence of ample support of such a course among the student body. I should like to suggest that the Athletic Board of Control permit us, if only once,

1. To demonstrate to them that "all finery is a sign of littleness."

2. To let at least the City of Kingston know that we have a pool, and are using it.

3. To show them that swimming is one of the most interesting of sports, and that enough interest would be shown by the students of Queen's and the citizens of Kingston, to make a well-organized meet pay for itself.

Yours faithfully,
"ARTS SENIOR."

The Editor.
Dear Sir:

In our brief sojourn at this venerable institute we have been surprised at the lack of use, or should we say abuse, of our swimming pool.

Knowing that it is one of the finest indoor pools in our fair dominion, it has brought us great sorrow to see that all attempts at organized use have been nipped in the bud or calmly disregarded by those guardians of our physical welfare, those controlling geniuses, who administer so proficiently our athletic affairs, and whose promises are a mere nothing, and are given for the sole purpose of staving off immediate action.

There are interfaculty track meets, B. W. F. meets, and so on, ad infinitum, and yet the poor fish find it necessary to remain separated from their natural environment, the placid waters of a cool, deep pool.

Are the ruling powers not cognigant of the fact that swimming is the perfect exercise?

We hope that this comes to the attention of the "old man that rules the waves" and that he takes immediate action.

Bill and Joe Neptune.

The 4th Chapter of the Chronicles of Kweanz in which the Prophet discourseth on Frosh.

When the fame of Kweanz had spread abroad through all the land, divers young men and maidens spake thusly "Let us go up unto Kweanz, that we may learn the knowledge of the ages." Thus it came to pass that each harvest time there did come many new members to the tribe of Kweanz.

When the Profs had seen these young men, they murmured among themselves saying, "What is this truck which is visited upon us? Let us give it to the Sofs." Then did the Profs say unto the Sofs. "Take thou these babes and sucklings and make men of them, that they may do honor to Kweanz."

Now when the Sofs saw these young men they spake, thus "Verily they shall be called Frosh." These commandments gave they unto the frosh.

1. Honor the Sofs, thy betters, that thy days may be long at Kweanz.

2. Thou shalt not let the hair of thy face (if any) grow upon thy upper lip, lest it be removed by force.

3. Thou shalt adorn thyselves with tams and ribbons that all men may know thee for frosh.

4. Thou shalt not fuss, for the Sofs will not hold him guiltless who dateth a frail.

Now when the frosh heard this they waxed exceeding wroth, so that they frothed at the mouth and ears. And some few transgressed the commandments of the Sofs and were punished according to the law.

There was one among the wise men at Kweanz called Neish, who being exceeding wise, spoke to the frosh after the manner of one speaking to children, teaching them all manner of mysteries, both reactions and ionization and test-tubes.

And there was another, called of men Cave, who did speak to them of Fizziks, which verily did they need badly, and which did them great manner of good.

And there was one called Dik, son of Lo, who did gather together the frosh of the tribe of Scienz and leadeth them to an open place. Then did he put instruments into their hands, and said unto them "Survey."

Then the frosh, after the manner of all frosh, did upset transits and break chains and do all things wrong. Then did Lo become angry and verily did he bawl them out, so that they quaked in their number tens.

And it came to pass when a year had passed, that the frosh did become Sofs, and did grow moustaches and did fuss exceeding much, and did annoy the frosh, even as their predecessors had before them, and as Sofs shall, henceforth and forever more.

AMEN.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

Mr. Murray Brooks, General Secretary of the S. C. M. met a group of Queen's S. C. M. members Saturday evening in the Red Room and explained the purpose of the Movement.

When a student comes to University, he is faced with facts, of whose existence he was hitherto unaware. Scientific study may disturb his religious tenets, if he has such; his contacts with people from other parts of the country or the world, who have widely varying backgrounds of thought and training stimulate modification and expansion of his views of his fellow men. In such circumstances he has three alternatives, namely, to hold grimly to the opinions which are his; to reject the old and neglect the new; by patient and diligent effort seek out the truth and follow it.

The purpose of the S. C. M. is to guide and encourage students in the last alternative. The Movement exists that students may gain the freshness of living joy, eyes to see beauty, wills to follow truth, courage to face a hostile world," said Mr. Brooks, quoting from another Movement Secretary.

Mr. Brook's talk was preceded by an Elgin House report. Miss Doris Bannister gave her impressions of that ten-day conference vividly and capably.

This is a reply to the writer who stated his problem in the Shrapnel of last issue. He is concerned about the need of getting "enthusiasm for ideals, which he thinks will give this generation "Poise of Power" and dethrone King whirl.

I gather that he has given up hope of getting us enthusiastic about the ideals of our fathers. He also feels that these "new ideals" of our generation are no less hopeless and unfruitful. This is a conclusion few students have reached. The sooner it is reached the better. For what are the respectable "new ideals" of our generation? They are nothing more than the "ideals of our fathers" rephrased in new terminology so as to comply with the theories of evolution and relativity. We have no new ideals at all. We just have new phrases formed, mainly so as not to cause friction in the intellectual camp. Our new phrased ideals succeed in passing off as meaningless and important utterances. Obviously the ideals of our fathers have no more magnetism or dynamic when expressed in their new form.

I think it is becoming clear that ideals which stir up enthusiasm are not formed in this way. I should suggest that this writer forget all about "enthusiasm for ideals," as such, and about Poise of Power as such, and interest himself in some practical problem, such as social injustice, poverty, unemployment, superstition among labour, or the illusions of the intelligentsia.

A conscious rejection of these so-called ideals, I believe, is necessary to rid oneself of impotency. Then as one becomes absorbed in one or more of such practical problems, his mind will begin to form possible solutions, and certain standards of improvement to be attained. These mental pictures of possibilities will be his ideals, though he may not call them such. Further as he tries to make these possibilities into realized facts, his mental, physical and spiritual capacities will be so co-ordinated as to give him "Poise of Power."

The point I wish to make clear is that he who wishes to be aware of the "Poise of Power" or the pull of an ideal must sink himself in a practical situation. They are the by-products of a hard task seriously attempted. If this generation wants satisfaction, it had better forget "enthusiasm for ideals" and get seriously to work at the problems of our own age.

The various groups of the S.C.M. turned out en masse Sunday, Oct. 29th to hear Mr. Murray Brooks speaks at Sydenham United Church.

Mr. Brooks, popular leader at Elgin House, and guest of honour in Kingston over the week-end, stressed the importance of applying the teachings of Jesus to modern life. He pointed out that it is not such a far cry after all, from the man of Galilee to our present day life. Basing his remarks on the parade of the pearl of great price. Mr. Brooks gave striking and practical illustrations from his missionary experience in Ceylon and other places of the far East. With these illustrations from his own life, he impressed his audience with the fact that the teachings of Jesus Christ had been of vital importance in his own life, as they had given him an ideal of self-sacrifice and devotion.

In the discussion following the talk, the speaker stressed the necessity of students thinking for themselves and presenting their doubts.

Thinking Individual Is Authority In Religion

"The individual is the authority in religion after he has assimilated the contributions of the Church and the Bible and rethought them for himself," said Principal W. T. Brown, of Victoria College, Toronto, in his concluding Chancellor's lecture in Convocation Hall. This address brought the fortieth annual conference of the Queen's Theological Alumni Association to a close.

Dr. Brown said, in opening, that in practically all the religions of the world, both Christian and heathen, there has always been the problem of authority. "All the religions of the world are divine revelations with the exception of the Chinese belief," the lecturer said. He added that Confucius was a philosopher and a political economist.

The Toronto theologian remarked that there are three claimants to finality in religious authority, the Church, the Bible and the individual.

In speaking of the Church as the authority in religion, which is the belief maintained by Roman Catholicism, Dr. Brown said that it has been shown that the Church has many stains on its career and is not infallible and therefore cannot be taken as the final authority. With the coming of the Reformation a few centuries ago, the authority in religion was transferred from the Church to the Bible by Protestantism said the lecturer. Dr. Brown then proceeded to show that Biblical historians had conclusively proved that the Bible was not infallible and this was eliminated as the final authority in religion.

Dr. Brown then went on to speak on the third theory — the authority of the individual. He stated that the intellect, the conscience, and the emotions, could not be accepted as the final authority as these were not infallible, either. In closing, he said, that each individual must consider the great men of the Church and the Bible with their traditions and then rethink for himself. "This is the final authority in religion," he emphasized.

THE STANDING

Interprovincial

	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Montreal	3	1	33	23	6
Hamilton	3	1	48	14	6
Argos	2	2	47	34	4
Ottawa	0	4	23	80	0

Intercollegiate

	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	Pts.
Varsity	3	1	0	54	42	6
Western	2	2	0	32	20	4
McGill	1	2	1	26	45	3
Queen's	1	2	1	37	45	3

FOR RENT

Rooms Hot Water Heated. Reasonable rent. Five minutes from College. Board if desired.
123 King St. East, Phone 488

MILLER CLUB MEETING

Next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a meeting of the Miller Club will be held in room 218 of Miller Hall when Dr. J. E. Hawley of the mineralogy department will speak on the "Application of the strain ellipsoid to Pre-Cambrian structures."

While intended primarily for club members, graduates and students interested in geology are welcome.

At the rifle range a miss is a miss, but around university many a "miss" is a "hit".

Don't say to your girl "I'll give you a ring when I get back." Always say "I'll phone you." It is safer.

YOUR NEW WINTER
OVERCOAT
IS HERE!

Worthy companions to your new Fall Suits

Style?
The very last word.

Long Wearing Fabrics?
Dependable quality cloths; none better.

New Fall Shades?
The Newest

Perfect Fit?
Man, just slip one on and see.

Value?
The trustworthy Tweddell standard of quality assures this.

$15 to $35

NEW FALL AND WINTER
SUITS

See the new ENGLISH DRAPE effect in our smart Fall and Winter SUITS. Our veriety covers all THE FASHIONABLE MODELS AND WEAVES. Sizes to fit all builds.

$15 to $35

TWEDDELL'S
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Private Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

The Snake Symbol

How many medical students have a correct knowledge of the design of the profession? The following editorial from "Annals of Medical History" will no doubt correct a long-standing error in the minds of many students.

As an instance of the persistence of an error due to a lack of fundamental cultural knowledge the continued misuse of the Caduceus as a medical symbol is one of the most persistent, and in view of the contributions made by Garrison and other medical historians, one of the least excusable. In a recent publication, Stuart L Tyson, D.D., of Pelham Manor, N.Y., gives a most authoritative and delightful summary of the subject. Dr. Tyson points out that the term Caduceus is the Latin adaptatiton of the Greek word signifying a herald's wand; originally it was a shepherd's crook, a forked olive branch adorned at first with two fillets of wool, then with two white ribbons, and later with two snakes intertwined, representing the magic wand of Hermes (Mercury), the messenger of the gods. Hermes was the son of Zeus and Maia, and his only connection with the healing art is that he is said to have been the half-brother of Asklepios, and to have married the latter's daughter, Hygieia. Dr. Tyson sums up the functions and characteristics of Hermes to show how inappropriate is the use of his emblem by physicians.

As god of the highroad and market place, Hermes was above all else the patron of commerce and the fat purse. As conductor of the dead to their subterranean abode, his emblem would seem more appropriate on a hearse than on a physician's car.

He was a king of robbers, and to crown his character he was a murderer.

On the other hand Asklepios, the divine realter was always depicted with a knotted staff with but one serpent coiled about it, at his side, or being fed by his daughter Hygeia. It is tolerably certain that originally Aesculapius was neither more or less than a serpent, which at a later time was transformed into an anthropomorphic god with a serpent symbol. The ancients explained the connection of the serpent with Aesculapius by saying that it is the natural symbol of the healing art, since it periodically renews itself by sloughing off its old skin.

Sir William Butts, the famous physician to Henry VIII., who figures in Shakespeare's play of that name, used the wand with two serpents, and Dr. Carus, founder of Gonville and Caius college, Cambridge, presented to that institution a caduceus. In 1844 it figured on the III. title pages of the London medical book publisher Churchill, and Dr. Tyson thinks this is the last instance of the use of the Caduceus as a medical symbol in England. Both the R.A.M.C., and the French Medical Military service use the correct Aesculapian emblem. In 1856 the two snakes re-appeared, this time on the chevrons of hospital stewards in the U.S. army; later on the seal of the U.S. public health service, and in 1902 on the uniforms of the U.S. Army Medical officers.

Probably from such official governmental action, the error has been disseminated widely throughout the United States. In the course of six months, Dr. Tyson questioned thirty-one physicians as to the emblem of Aesculapius and in twenty-seven instances was told that it was a wand with two snakes.

It is to be hoped that students will carry away from this university a correct impression of the symbol of the medical profession, in spite of the frequency with which the Caduceus appears on the backs of American books in the medical library.

Football Fatalities

This year, as in other years, there has been considerable to-do over accidental deaths resulting from participation in college football. This and other Canadian universities have escaped such misfortunes, but the usual quota of fatal accidents has been reported from United States schools.

In the November Hygeia is an article which is largely a defense of the sport and of the coaches who direct it. Many of the deaths reported by newspapers so as to give the impression that they occurred in sport are really attributable to entirely different causes. As an example is cited the case in which a headline appeared: "Boy Killed. School Gridder Succumbs"; the story was that of a student killed in the street by collision with a truck.

A number of deaths do actually occur in football, however, and measures are on foot to decrease as far as possible the risks of the game. Mr. J. W. Heisman has proposed that a physician be included in the list of officers, not on the bench, but actually on the field, keeping close watch on every play and having authority to stop the game at any time to investigate a possible injury.

While such an innovation would without doubt be unfavorably received by many players and watchers of the game, it would probably cause many over enthusiastic players from the serious consequences of remaining on the field after sustaining some injury.

When students have so evolved as to be able to walk almost normally on a broken leg, it is time for closer guardianship.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—A survey taken for a period of over three years shows that students professing some religious belief greatly exceed those who have no religion.

Colour Prints To Be Exhibited This Week

Colour wood block prints of flowers, birds and landscape will be on exhibition next week in Room 111 of the Douglas Library. The collection which has been lent by the art gallery of Toronto, includes the work of some of the foremost Canadian, English, Austrian, American and Japanese wood block artists.

Thirty prints comprise the collection which will undoubtedly have a wide general appeal. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome.

ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY—After Mr. Kelly spent thirty years collecting stamps, some thieves broke into his home while he was away and stole them. He will start a new collection soon.

ARKANSAS POLYTECHNIC—Flourishing business is being done by the "dating bureau," a newly established institution. Four names are given by the girl or boy who desires an engagement with someone. The charges are 25 cents for the first choice, and the second is 20 cents, while the third costs the "dater" only 15 cents, and the fourth has a depression price of 10 cents.

COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Nov. 1st.
1.00 p.m.—Commerce Club Luncheon, Speaker, Mr. Graham Towers, Students' Union.

Wednesday, Nov. 2.
3.45 p.m.—Queen's Theological Society Meeting, Old Arts Bldg.
4.00 p.m.—Miller Club Meeting, Room 218, Miller Hall, Speaker, Dr. J. E. Hawley.

Thursday, Nov. 3rd:
4.15 p.m.—Debating Soc. Meeting, Room 101, Arts Bldg.

Friday, November 4th:
9.00 p.m.—Science '33 Dance, La Salle Hotel, Bob Warmington's Orchestra.

There's a dear little nurse named Nell,
Whom the boys all like very well;
She will laugh, she will smile,
And be gay all the while;
Why they like her—there's no need to tell.

Two line soliloquies—
College days are here once more,
And we're just as lazy as before.

When in doubt about kissing your girl—give her the benefit of the doubt.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Which reminds me

PERSONAL

If the students who were responsible for the painting episode of the night of October 20th will communicate with Haywire, the Journal Office, the Union, they will learn a great deal to their discomfort.

THE HEIGHT OF MEANNESS

The Scotsman who refused to give way.

RIMES FOR THE NURSERY OF TODAY

Old Mother Gantry
Went to the pantry
To find the poor bum some bread,
But all there to take
Was her own home-made cake,
And so the poor bum is dead.

RUMOUR

It is whispered round the campus that the rugby team has adopted a new song—"Vegetarian, here I come."

PROVERB FOR TODAY

Is there not honor, even among politicians?

—HAYWIRE.

New York Times prints a list of enrollment figures . . . for American colleges and universities . . . some fell . . . some went up . . . with the majority in the former condition . . . among co-educational schools the biggest gain was at Westminster, 15.2 percent . . . among the latter schools, University of California gained 5.4 percent . . . University of Illinois dropped 11.9 percent, Michigan 8.9 percent, Wisconsin 10.7 percent, Purdue 8.7 percent. . . . Except Notre Dame, which has a 12.5 percent drop, men's schools remain near or above last year's figures . . . women's colleges, on an average . . . remain the same.

—Purdue Exponent.

LANDSCAPE

The ragged maple leaves are fluttering in the sun,
Rich and red, lucent in splendid freedom.
The delicate tracery of maples sways against the morning sky,
And a birdnote is calling,
Rising and falling, concerto-like, against the orchestra of earth,
While heaven is lifted up with joy.
High overhead the clouds are poised
Stately in autumn glory.
Ecstacy dwells in earth, in air,
And in the heart the echo of a song.

—E. G.

Social Reconstruction League Organized

A new force has been heralded on the campus. A league for social reform has been formed. The league is not new. At Toronto where a similar organization has been operating for some time, vigorous opposition has been felt, the professors who joined it receiving severe condemnation from the press.

At Queen's a more tolerant attitude speaks for its favorable growth. The members are mainly students who are dissatisfied with the present social and economic conditions and are persuaded that society must be organized on a saner basis.

The League for Social Reconstruction wants the moral suasion of the pulpit and the clear analysis of the class-room on its side, but believes that ideas alone will not avail against entrenched power.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Queen's University,
Oct. 31st, 1932.

Dear Mr. Editor.

Are Arts' men degenerate? Or is it merely that they are so exhausted by their multifarious activities as to be unable to meet theeir obligations as members of the Arts Society? I have known Arts Society meetings to be poorly attended in the past, but never before have I seen such a meagre turn out as was evident last Tuesday.

It is difficult to find words strong enough to describe the prevailing apathetic attitude towards meetings of the Arts Society. On the last occasion that this worthy body assembled the number of members present from senior years could be counted on the fingers of two hands. Nor have previous meetings this year shown any reason for hope that whole-hearted support and co-operation may be expected from students.

I therefore suggest that an end be put to the ridiculous farce of compulsory freshman attendance, and that, unless the number of seniors present at the next meeting shows very considerable increase, the Arts Society be disbanded. It is a sheer waste of time to continue to run the Society as it is at present.

Yours etc.,
A. N. ARTSMAN.

—Freshman thoughts—
All girls I see just remind me
Of the one I left behind me.

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

THE NIGHT OF JUNE 13
Clive Brook, Lila Lee, Adrianne Allan.

An excellent cast, clever acting and amusing dialogue lift "The Night of June 13" far above the usual murder play.

As it is a story of four suburban families living side by side, it gives the author an opportunity for some good character sketches. Clive Brook plays the part of John Currie, a young lawyer whose wife is insanely jealous of him, and believing him in love with Trudie Morrow, shoots herself. At the trial each of the witnesses, for some petty reason of his own, testifies against Currie.

The play has some intensely dramatic moments, and affords many opportunities which the cast does not permit to slip past. Clive Brook as John Currie and Lila Lee as Trudie Morrow are satisfactory. The inimitable Charles Ruggles as Mr. Sprawn, and Mary Boland as his wife provide many laughs throughout the play, and prevent the trial scene from being the long dreary affair it so often seems in such movies.

The laurels, however, undoubtedly go to Adrianne Allan as Elna Currie. Miss Allan possesses a charming voice and is a particularly finished player, who never at any time over acts, which anyone less skilful might have done in such a difficult part.

Nevertheless, The Night of June 13 opens up a question which occurs almost inevitably in such plays. In the first part, before his wife's death, John Currie denies to her that he is in love with Trudie. The audience believes him and sympathises with him. The natural reaction is partly to pity and partly condemn Elna Currie for her lack of faith in him. Yet immediately after the trial, when the unfortunate wife has been dead only a short time, Currie, with apparently no compunction, announces calmly his love for Trudie. The audience accepts it as natural and right and still believes Currie to be a splendid and noble character which, if one stops to consider carefully, he certainly is not.

No doubt it is all because the public simply cannot do without its happy ending.

In spite of this apparent deficiency The Night of June 13 is excellent entertainment and deserves an A—.

Many college students this year are both tall and "short".

AT THE TIVOLI

ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENSE
with
Edmund Lowe, Evelyn Brent, and Constance Cummings.

Remarkable how these producers get one idea in the back of their fuzzy heads and grind out a hundred variations on that theme. In pursuing this path of least resistance, they have given us Attorney for the Defense. This film is a composium of all the murder and courtroom pictures ever screened. The result is a rather noticeable lack of continuity, a sort of patchwork production.

An inveterate movie-goer returning from a protracted absence in, let us say, the wilds of the Persian interior where the cinema curse has not penetrated, might conceivably enjoy Attorney for the Defense. To us, resigned recipients of civilization's blessings, the film offered spurious thrills.

It would be comparatively easy to tabulate the story of Attorney for the Defense into a list of commonplace situations and devices. And it is always annoying to have a film start off on a note of promise, then bounce off along a dozen or more cliches. Far be it from us to assume a derogatory attitude towards aimlessness: it has often enough provided a sort of glib amusement, or else a few scattered thrills. But in the case of Attorney for the Defense, aimlessness as per se seems to be the leitmotif.

Evelyn Brent—she of the lantern jaw—plays an unsympathetic role. Hers to be an unmitigated toughie.

Edmund Lowe — he of the quizzical eyebrows — is convincing as a clever lawyer who handles himself as advantageously as he does his cases.

Constance Cummings has little required of her. But there is a certain sincerity in her work, and she has a charm that is uot at first apparent.

Preceding the feature, there is a British Films production which takes the form of a revue. This is undistinguished, on the whole, save for one lovely, haunting little tune. B.

There was a young co-ed called Sue,
Who classwork just never could do;
She hasn't a brain.
Said the professor with pain,
Which from personal contact we knew.

NOW FOR SOME OLD STUFF

Co-ed—Ted says my mouth is the prettiest he has ever seen.

Herb—Well I'll put mine against it anytime.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Book Chats

By R.M.

Paradoxically, many of our classics in English Literature have been branded by nouveau—marxists in late years as "bourgeois." Isabel Paterson refers to these so-called Marxian ideologists in her column Turns With a Bookworm, (New York Herald Tribune, Books). Miss Paterson relates a conversation with the author, Elisabeth Sanxay Holding on this subject. One of Mrs. Holding's books was seized upon by critics as bourgeois literature, and as the author was not aware of any sociological implications in her novel she felt rather keenly about the matter.

The other day, in talking to someone, I mentioned bourgeois literature, and the party looked at me rather strangely as if he thought writing this column had left me mentally deranged. Just what books are bourgeois and what not? Well, it's rather hard to say. The critics who apply this epithet are really attempting to distinguish two types of culture, bourgeois (that ofthe ruling classes) and proletarian (that of the working classes). They would go farther than that by characterizing bourgeois culture as "an instrument for class dominance and oppression." Presumably, all of us who are not professedly communists come within this group. And so most of the great writers and poets of today must be dismissed from our minds as odious protagonists of a capitalistic order.

Such a theory of literary criticism is political or social in nature, not esthetic. For you and for me the genesis of a work of art is immaterial. What we are concerned with is the immediate apprehension of beauty. In plain language it doesn't matter one iota whether the author was a bloated capitalist or an irresponsible Don Juan as far as the appreciation of a book goes. One's attitude should be objective and detached. Great literature is great because it has universal appeal and transcends the narrow limits of age, nationality, sex and caste. I include caste because, certainly, the barriers between social classes are no more insurmountable than age, nationality, and sex. So I don't see how the value of a work of art can be minimized because of the authors' private opinions, prejudices and social inhibitions. It may be that the critic should point out such personal traits for the guidance of unwary readers. Nevertheless, a book can be appreciated without proselytizing the author to communism, or any other faith.

I may not have made myself very clear on that point, viz the relation of literature to class. Certainly, it is bound to be coloured by class characteristics. But the critic or person who studies a work of art can make allowance for this. Karl Marx maintained "that the social ideas and religious and political institutions of every epoch depend upon the method of producing and distributing commodities." But his only utterance as to the relation of literature to class is that "at certain periods in the development of art there is no connection with the development of society." Moreover, Karl Marx had an unbounded admiration for great writers like Goethe, Lessing, Shakespeare, Dante, Fielding and Sir Walter Scott. He was particularly fond of Scott's Old Mortality. To ban any of these authors from his library shelves because they might be called bourgeois would have been an absurdity to Marx, founder of communism.

Lenin, disciple of Karl Marx was also detached and objective in his appreciation of literature. Only Leon Trotzky has stressed the "essential class character of art." But he holds out no hope for the establishment of a proletarian culture. "The duty of the proletarian intelligentsia is the imparting of existing culture to the masses," he wrote. And "it is childish to think bourgeois belles-lettres make a breach in class solidarity." Some American critics and particularly the ones who hailed Don Passos, Harvard graduate, as a great proletarian novelist might take noe of this intelligent attitude adopted by the leaders of the communistic movement. It is no more justifiable to introduce social standards into literary criticism than it is to judge a work of art soely from the standpoint of morality.

Why is a co-ed like an old Ford? They're easy to start but you never can tell how far they'll go.

Arts chap to co-ed—Why do you keep going out with that Science man?

Co-ed—Oh he's a bad egg and I am afraid to drop him.

World News Briefly

Mexico evidently believes in regulating the number of people brought into the world rather than getting rid of them after they reach maturity.

According to Dr. Salvador Mendoza of Vera Cruz initiator of the new civil code. Birth Control will be established in that city shortly. Parents desiring children must appear before a board which will determine their economic fitness. The measure will also try to decrease the number of physical and mental defectives.

An index of the general employment situation, compiled under the guidance of Professor Gilbert Jackson of Toronto University, has just been made public and it reveals a growth in employment.

Professor Jackson used the average conditions for the years 1925-29 as a base of 100. And his survey finds the percentage employment on Aug. 1, 76.2; Sept. 1, 77.4, and Oct. 1, 78.8.

It is interesting to note that employment in general industry fell to this same figure 78.8 in 1922. The peak was reached in Sept. and Nov. of 1929 at 114.1. Conditions, however, are no worse than they were 10 years ago.

Cavorting madly through the Niagara peninsula Friday and Saturday would-be pheasant hunters literally sprayed the landscape with shot in a fruitless effort to bag the birds.

Three harmless pear-pickers in an orchard near Niagara Falls, were nicked with stray shot. Another man received some in the eye.

A cursory estimate of the casualties by game wardens reveals that few pheasants suffered injuries.

Policemen Recover Dr. Goodwin's Bicycle

Continued from page 1

quite by accident came upon Dr. Goodwin's office. It virtually rose right up on its hind feet and poked said c. r. on said c.r.'s honorable nose. With a touch of Old World courtesy c. r. rapped on the door and entered—to be received by Dr. Goodwin who had the air of a man from whose shoulders an enormous burden had been lifted. After the usual preliminary remarks on the weather the following explanation was received.

Vandals, whose mental plane could only have been of the lowest degree had made off with Dr. Goodwin's trusty steed. After untiring efforts our police-force—with its well-known reputation for bravery and integrity — had muffled through on Wednesday with the bicycle — "returned to owner slightly damaged."

A possible explanation of the damage may be found in the fact that this bicycle, of English make —possessed three-speed gears (just like an automobile, Lady Godiva). Of course the brakes may have needed relining.

Dr. Goodwin described another mishap which befell his bike (not the same one—may we remark) 'way back in '14. This one also was of English parentage. One of the Dr.'s sergeants being slightly—well—er—shall we say stinko—was overcome with a terrific desire to go joyriding. As a result we have the picture of Dr. Goodwin's bicycle—in alien hands — roaring down Princess Street at an alarming rate. The intricacies of its brakes were understood only by the owner—and although its rider made frantic and bewildered attempts to stop, he only succeeded after making a forced landing in a shop window.

Now that the even tenor of our ways has been successfully re-established—the Journal wishes to break down and confess that it strenuously objects to any such vandalism and also issues a solemn warning to all that, in the event of further mishap to Dr. Goodwin's bicycle—steps will be taken to convict the offender and mete out a gruesome but just punishment.

In one of our large cities a lady whom we will call Mrs. Brown, heard a knock on the front door. She answered and there stood the postman in a very gay mood reeling in the doorway. As he didn't hand out any letters she asked—"Aren't you going to give me any mail?" The answer came back, "Well Mrs. Brown, if you'll tell me your name I'll look and see."

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY—Individual photographs of members of the junior class will be included in the annual of the University this year for the first time.

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar
Commanding Queen's University Contingent, C.O.T.C.
Training Season 1932-1933.
Part T.

No. 11.
Parades.
Physical Training Exemption.

Cadets must attend 80% of the regular Battalion parades, to obtain credit for the physical training prescribed in the university calendar.

No. 12.
Lecture.

Commencing on Wednesday, November 2nd and until further notice, candidates for certificate "A" and "B"—Infantry and Engineering will meet on Wednesdays at 5 p.m., in Room No. 1., Carruthers Hall, for lectures on Map Reading and Field Sketching.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
A/Adj. Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

COLLEGIANA

Ban Coffee

The International Collegiate Snoring Association encourages a boycott of coffee. President E. Stant Postum explains the unusual move: "When we students drink coffee for breakfast, we can't sleep well in the morning classes."

Oldest Building

The University of North Carolina charter was granted in 1789. In 1793 the corner stone was laid at Old East building, the oldest university building in the United States.

"Lay On, McDuff!"

William Shakespeare is enrolled as a freshman at Notre Dame, and is trying his hand at football.

Shouting Platform

A candidate for president of the senior class at the University of Wisconsin, promises if elected to erect a platform near the college stock pavilion where anybody can shout to his heart's content.

Maybe that would be a solution for the present problem at A. and M., only the cows might object.

Both Stumps

Albie Booth, sensational Yale football player of the past three seasons, is stumping Connecticut for President Hoover. He came to this decision as soon as he heard Mr. Roosevelt was a Harvard grad.

Northwestern's Opinion

The Daily Northwestern, Northwestern university newspaper, comments on the prohibition question.

"We feel that prohibition has miserably failed to accomplish what its enthusiasts claimed for it. However, the return of legalized beer and wines will not be the grand cure-all for our national condition. We are too closely linked up with international economics; too snarled up in our individualistic program, to ever make such a tremendous recovery by such simple means."

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Tricolor Grid Men Defeat McGill 12-1

Continued from page 1

the first game with McGill, the wings showed deadly tackling, while the backfield was impressive.

Elsewhere will be found a table of statistics, for the benefit of those who like figures. A glance at them will show that Queen's made only two fumbles and recovered them both, while McGill made five and only recovered three of them. The Red team lost when their greatest threat, the forward pass failed. They hurled no less than twenty of them, and completed only three for a total of 56 yards, while Queen's intercepted 2 of the total. The table will also show that Queen's lost a total of 100 yards in penalties but were still able to forge ahead.

It did not take Queen's long to get going, Carter planting a long kick in the first few minutes that resulted in a rouge and the score was 1 to 0. Queen's narrowly missed a touch when a similar kick placed McGill near their own line. They fumbled and a half dozen Tricolor players missed the bounding ball, a McGill man finally falling on it for a safety touch and we were three up on McGill.

The Red team battled in there all the way. These points were not coming as easily as they sound, though Queen's should have had another point or two on the quarter's play. They looked better.

McGill got going in the second quarter but their forward passes [illegible] never have taken the heart out of the team. They collected one point, however, when Davoud, who played his usual smart game was ronged on a long kick. The half time score was Queen's 3 and McGill 1. It was still anyone's game.

A McGill half, Stevens by name, fumbled and the Tricolor had the ball on McGill's 15. Davoud's artistic toe came into the picture and a nice placement sailed over the bar to give us three more points. The quarter ended 6 to 1 for Queen's.

Give the Red team credit. They put up a grand battle but it wasn't their day. It wasn't their day for forward passes and they should have resorted to straight football. A forward pass was attempted in the final quarter, but Stevens was tackled before he could throw it, and the ball bounded back 25 yards, Byrne grabbing the pigskin and galloping to McGill's 32. Carter kicked to Hammond who made a terrible mistake in fumbling with Dick Storms around. That speedster gobbled up the loose ball and a touch resulted, which with the convert gave us another six points and the game was in the bag, 12 to 1.

Instead of taking the steam out of McGill, that reverse put pep into them and they staged an offensive that had the Tricolor stunned for a few minutes. With forward passes and bucks, they worked the ball into a scoring position only to lose it when they put all their faith in a forward pass to give them a touch. It was grounded and the game was all over.

The teams:

Queen's—Flying wing, Storms; halves, Day, Davoud, Carter; quarter, Carr; snap, Kostuik; insides, Thoman, Bryne; middles, Haulin, Keunedy; outsides, Gorman, Ralph. Subs—Davis, McNichol, Purvis, Buell, Peever, Dargavel, Tesky, Conquergood.

McGill—Flying wing, Young; halves, Hammond, Riddell, Craig; quarter, Krukowski; snap, Halpenny; insides, Pierce, McMoran; middles, Wilson, Letourneau; outsides, Newton, Griffiths. Subs—Stevens, Fyshe, Olker, Watson, Garcelon, Sangster, Bishop, Robertson, Byers, Lee.

Officials — Bartlett, Barton, Plaxton.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—The "Athletics for All" policy will reach its climax this fall at the university in an increased and expanded program of intramural competition.

STATISTICS OF MONTREAL GAME

A few statistics of last Saturday's game which should be of interest to all footfall fans.

	McGill	Queen's
Yards gained from serimmage	106	72
Yards gained on 1st down	6	1
No. of kicks	28	30
Distance in yards on kicks	1007	1172
Average distance on kicks	36	39
Kicks blocked	0	0
Fumbles	5	2
Own fumbles recovered	3	2
Other fumbles recovered	0	2
Forward passes tried	20	1
Forward passes completed	3	0
Forward passes intercepted	0	2
Yards gained by forward passes	56	0
Penalties in yards	55	100
Individual penalties	0	2

HARRIER RACE

As 1932 is the year for R.M.C.'s home run, the Intercollegiate Harrier's race will be held at 10.30 a.m. Saturday, November 5th, over the R. M. C. course. This Intercollegiate Harriers meet will be held on Tuesday, November 1st over the same course. Information concerning these meets may be obtained from Mr. Bews, who will also have a map of the course.

FORWARD PASSES

Shaughnessy advocated the forward pass for years before it was finally introduced, but what he said about McGill's method of tossing and receiving them on Saturday is worth printing—if we could get it.

* * * * * * *

It's all up to McGill now. Can they stop Varsity next Saturday, while we down Western? Surely we will do our part.

* * * * * * *

That Mustang gang. If they aren't the surprisingest team! What they did to Varsity is narrowly approaching manslaughter, or mayhem or sumpin.

* * * * * *

That game has given Queen's all the confidence they need to take their remaining battles.

* * * * * *

Incidently Coach Burt must be given a heap of credit for the team's splendid showing. His work is just beginning to bear fruit, and it's ripe too.

* * * * * *

There didn't seem to be a weak spot in the team on Saturday. The presence of Day on the backfield made all the difference, as he and Davoud work well together.

* * * * * *

We still have a chance though it is a bit slim. This being the open season for surprises, you never know what will happen in Montreal next Saturday, but we hope McGill either improves their forward passes or discards them.

* * * * * *

The Intermediates lost another but they clearly showed they were the better team.

Intermediates Beaten By Ottawa Collegians

Striving desperately to score their first win of the season, Queen's Intermediates battled Ottawa University at Richardson Stadium on Saturday. Rain fell during the contest and made the footing uncertain, and the ball greasy for handling.

The first quarter was productive of a kicking game on both sides and ended with Ottawa scoring a touch in goal to put them on one up. Queen's were on the defensive for the greater part of the period, but held the visitors to one point.

Queen's came to life with a vengeance in the second quarter to block an Ottawa kick and White galloped over for a touch, which was converted. That put Queen's up 6 to 1.

Ottawa came back strong to force Queen's into their own end of the field and finally forced them over their own line for a safety touch. It was poor football. Ottawa 3. Queen's 6.

Play seesawed back and forth in the third quarter, and Queen's with the wind in their favor could do little. Ottawa scored the only point of the period with a touch in goal. Ottawa 4, Queen's 6.

Facing a deficit of two points, Ottawa began to press and a fizzled attempted drop kick by the Capitol city boys went for a single, and they were one down. Two rouges followed in quick succession and Queen's were behind 7 to 6. A third one made it 8 to 6 for Ottawa. White of Queen's tried to punt the ball out from behind his own line just before the game ended, but Ottawa blocked the ball and fell on it for a touch. Game over, Ottawa 14, Queen's 6.

AMERICAN RUGBY

Pittshurgh 12, Notre Dame 0.
Colgate 31, Penn State 0.
Michigan 14, Princeton 7.
Yale 6, Dartmouth 0.
Rhode Island 13, Coast Guard Acad. 0.
Lehigh 25, Muhlenberg 6.
Purdue 34, N.Y.U. 9.
Army 33, William & Mary 0.
Brown 14, Harvard 0.
Boston College 3, Fordham 0.
Ithaca College 12, Allegheny 0.
Maine 6, Colby 0.
Michigan State 27; Syracuse 13.
Wesleyan 7; Trinity 0.
Mass. State 21; Amherst 6.
Pennsylvania 14; Navy 0.
Western Reserve 11; Buffalo 0.
Columbia 6; Cornell 0.
Hobart 6; Rochester 0.
Nebraska 6; Kansas State 0.
Cincinnati 26; Wittenberg 6.
Illinois 13; Chicago 7.
Villanova, 13; Bucknell, 0.
Georgia, 33; Florida, 12.
Minnesota, 7; Northwestern, 0.

Quaint Old Kingston

Molson Stadium, Oct. 29th—Queen's University might have won the Intercollegiate football game here this afternoon, 12-1, but all the glory of the day did not go back to Kingston. McGill Undergraduates beat the Queen's supporters at the favorite Kingston pastime, "Steal the Goalposts", directly after the rugby match in a contest that brought the afternoon to a decidedly lively conclusion.

It seems to be a quaint old custom with Queen's students to march off with the goalposts after a football match, provided, of course, that it is not on their home grid. So immediately after the final whistle today there was a general Kingston movement in the direction of the East End goal-standards. Before the supporters of the Red team fully appreciated the motive, down came the red and white goal-posts, as a triumphant band of tricolor collegians began their march off the field. A few seconds later there was a mad rush towards the intruders . . and then the fight started!

Plenty of punishment went both ways in the wild melee that followed. If any McGill students are sporting black eyes or other visible scars tomorrow, they can stick out their chests and proudly say that they did their bit for the honor and glory of "old M'Gill", while battle-scarred Kingstonians can at least aver that they uprooted the standards, and got them half way across the field before they went down.

—Montreal Standard.

Varsity Badly Beaten By Western In London

What happened at London is old news by now, but the report that Western had downed Varsity to the tune of 22 to 8 was almost unbelievable. They scored all their points in the third quarter and that is the only quarter worth writing about.

Playing as if possessed, Western blocked two kicks and grabbed an onside kick to score three touchdowns, while a few singles aided in piling up the tremendous total for one period.

Varsity scored three in the first quarter on three kicks, and finished with a burst of pep in the last quarter to score a touch and make the final score, Western 22 Varsity 8.

Committee Appointed To Investigate Columbia Rugby

New York (I. P.)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, to-day appointed a committee of six to investigate reported irregularities connected with football at Columbia.

The subjects of the investigation are to be six charges made a year ago by Reed Harris, then editor of the Columbia student publication "The Spectator." These charges were revived recently by articles in the publication.

Harris' points were that (1) football at Columbia was a racket. (2) the game was "organized murder." (3) the coach was overpaid. (4) players were subsidized. (5) players were given preference in the assigning of scholarships, and (6) passing marks were given to players who had not earned them.

The committe includes an alumni trustee, the president of the University club, two professors and two representatives of the students. The way for the investigation was cleared to-day when Dr. Linsley R. Williams, senior alumni trustee, sanctioned it.

Any Number of Examiuations!

TIP TOP custom-made clothes withstand the most critical of tests—the closest of scrutinies. There is only one answer: QUALITY. Especially-selected British Woollens—custom tailoring of the highest order—meticulous care in respect to fit—each suit fashioned to the 21 personal measurements of the individual — these have made TIP TOP clothes the outstanding value in custom-tailored clothes on to-day's market.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS.
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches, Hot Drinks, Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

TOAST and COFFEE
or HOT CHOCOLATE
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
Where the students meet

BANDER SNATCHES

Alice was just getting to the stage where she could manage to arrive for her classes at the proper time and place. She had successfully engineered her registration with the help of the Mock Turtle who, in an advisory capacity had O.K'd her course. She had enrolled in an Honours course with compulsory classes in Dancing I., and Library Love-making 16a and 23b. She had protested that she was not interested in love-making, but on being informed that the Vice-Principal insisted on it, as a big concession she was allowed to take a course in studying as an extra—to fill in her time table.

That morning as she entered the Arts Building attired in her Beautiful New Tam, she was confronted by a large bulletin announcing the election of something called an A.M.S.

"A.M.S.?" she said to herself, "what kind of creature can that be?"

"Say, you are dumb!" said a voice behind her, although she had not spoken her thoughts aloud. Alice jumped; and turning, encountered something which seemed to be all grin.

"Oh, I suppose you're the Cheshire Cat!" she cried.

"Quite right, Freshette," it answered, blinking one eye slowly and then the other. "Now about this A.M.S.—it's not, my little ignoramus, a creature, but creatnres. That's the Student Government! Why every year they elect a few lobsters and so on to run things around here—and the elections will be tomorrow—and you can't vote because you're only in first year and wouldn't know how."

"Do they really run the College?" Alice inquired.

"They're supposed to, my child —but—well—the faculty — "Here the voice died to an unintelligible whisper and Alice found herself quite alone.

* * *

(Owing to the fact that the board of censors has been busy with the clippers, Alice's adventures of the week-end of the McGill game at Queen's must be left to the reader's imagination. We will now follow her through the dizzy throes of the Freshette's Reception.)

"Now hurry up," said the Red Queen, "You'll have us both late." Alice quite out of breath valiantly stumbled into Grant Hall attired for her skit and carrying a mortar-board and gown.

No sooner were they inside the door than the Red Queen announced that she was going to sit in the balcony where she could keep close tab on all below and think about executions and things.

"Come up when your skit's over with, "she said, mounting aloft.

Alice got through this in no time and mounted the stairs to join her mentor, the Red Queen, and watch.

"Well, I must say your skit was rather dull," said her Red Majesty grumpily. This remark made Alice sit in thoughtful silence until the time came to go down for the Initiation ceremony.

As she stood in the great circle listening to a rather startled-looking person reading something aloud, Alice could not help wondering why this creature seemed to be carrying on a hurried conversation in undertones with Itself. The Red Queen nudged her very hard when she asked for an explanation and said—"Shush! that's the vow to Levana. Speak out now! "Alice accordingly shouted with all the other Freshettes and received a mortar-board placed on her head with a bang, and a gown on her shoulders.

Behold, she was now part of Levana and had the right for many years to come, to call herself an undergraduate.

(To be continued).

TREACLE AND INK,
X Their Mark.

Boxing Is Excellent Exercise and Sport

(McGill Daily)

Boxing is a game that every man should know something about. One of the very best of all exercises, it brings into play practically all muscles of the body, and strengthens not only the arms but the stomach and back as well. It is of greatest importance that a boxer's muscles be as supple and loose as possible. Hence all training or exercising with weights, dumbells or apparatus work must be avoided as tending to make the athlete "muscle-bound." Since thorough physical conditioning is an almost indispensable prerequisite in the attainment of proficiency in the "game" those who become interested in boxing strive to build up their strength, speed and stamina.

Because of its inestimable value as a health and character builder, boxing should be, and is, taught in practically every college on the continent. I personally hope to see the day when boxing will be compulsory and considered as much an essential of the physical education as swimming. Every intelligent man knows just how it feels to be in the pink of condition. When a man is satisfied to go along year after year in less than his best condition he is clearly showing or indulging in a weakness. Good health is absolutely impossible without a certain amount of regular physical recreation. Boxing is one of the best possible conditioners.

That workout with the boxing squad is as indispensable as the cleaning of the teeth or even taking a bath. Twenty minutes of well thought out floor calisthenics, followed by twenty in learning the Art and another twenty split up in a few rounds of boxing with opponents of your own weight and ability and you are on your way to attain that which you most need "condition." Boxing breeds confidence, gameness, self-denial and most important of all sportsmanship. It enables you to stand a lot of knocking about and to take misfortune with a grin—and to take good fortune without a "swelled head." It teaches self-control under the most trying circumstances and respect and consideration for your opponents.

No one is born a football star, a miler or a champion boxer. An athlete in my opinion is made and that sometimes from the most unlikely material. Any one can learn but few will turn out to be Dempsey's, Tunney's or Leonard's. "Practice makes perfect." The more practice and conditioning you get the better you are bound to be. So go at boxing just as intensively as is necessary to make you as good a boxer as you want to be.

A freshette quite pretty and meek,
Resolved college life was too bleak,
Till an ardent young fellow
In slicker of yellow,
Impressed a kiss on her cheek.

There was a student named Charley
Who was fond of a drink made from barley,
When he'd get kind of full,
He'd yell like a bull
And forget himself almost entirely.

There was a young doc called Hugh,
Went around curing the flu;
"I cure them," he said,
"Or else kill them dead;"
What a terrible thing to do.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor
Queen's Journal.
Dear Sir:

Why is it that Kingston seems destined to isolation from theatrical culture; to be cut off from an opportunity to see companies such as those of Messrs. Colbourne and Barry Jones?

Many no doubt have wondered why this city, with such a large theatre-going body should be "left out in the cold." Why Kingston is not blessed with visits from the many English and American Companies which frequent the other Canadian cities?

The principal barrier is that a powerful cinema organization has bought up, wherever possible, all the play houses in the smaller towns. This organization realizes that their returns will be greatly endangered if they allow the legitimate stage to gain a foothold in this country. They cannot run the risk of losing even a handful of this theatre-going public. Thus, rather than lease these play houses to those companies which would prove serious competition, they keep them closed, except upon infrequent occasion.

It was the writer's pleasure to have spent an enjoyable hour with Mr. Barry Jones on his last trip to Canada. He assured the writer sincerely that his was only one of many companies anxious to play in Canada. He went to to say that if it were possible to accommodate the companies, Kingston and every fair-sized city in Canada would have the legitimate stage for at least six months in the year. Stimulation of interest in the legitimate stage, and not material gain, is the sole object of these companies. This was the opinion expressed by prominent members of Sir Barry Jackson's British Players.

To-day it is almost impossible to fight this powerful cinema organization. It is up to the citizens of each city to get behind their "little theatre" movement and support it to such an extent that they may be able to present these companies and offer them an auditorium worthy of their performance.

People in Kingston would not have to seek far for the necessary accommodation. The new Technical School auditorium is capable of catering to any touring company.

Mr. Jones recalled the happy hours that he spent in Kingston years ago and expressed the sincere hope that he may be permitted to renew his acquaintance with this theatre-going public.

J. M.

NOTED LINGUIST

Berlin — (IP) — Dr. Tassilo Schultheiss of this city is believed to have brought to Germany the world's record for number of languages one person can read, write and speak as well as understand.

The professor has mastered 140 languages, which is believed to be all the languages there are in the world.

He speaks perfectly ten Germanic, eleven Roman, fourteen Slavonic, twelve East-Indogermanic, four West-Indogermanic, eleven Finnish-Urgian, fourteen Asiatic, fifteen Indian, fourteen Semetic, eighteen African, six South Sea Island and four American languages.

Moreover, he knows all the artificial languages, of which Esperanto is the best known. Says he:

"My purpose in learning all these languages was to get at the root of the origin of the world's tongue. I believe every nation's language to be the most reliable gauge of its civilization."

University To Celebrate Centenary Of Walter Scott

Continued from page 1

piled under Mr. E. C. Kyte's direction, printed below:

Collected Works—Poetical:

PR5306—E11. Ballads and lyrical pieces. New York, 1811.

PR5305. The poetical works of Sir Walter Scott, with life by William Chambers. Boston, n.d.

PR5305—.E19. The poetical works of Sir Walter Scott. New York, 1818-19. 6v.

PR5305—.E48. The poetical works, containing Lay of the last Minstrel, Marmion, Lady of the Lake, Don Roderick, Rokeby, ballads, lyrics and songs. With a life of the author. New York, 1848.

PR5305—.E54. The poetical works, containing Lay of the last Minstrel, Marmion, Lady of the Lake, Don Roderick, Rokeby, Ballads, lyrics and songs. With a life of the author. London, 1854.

PR5305—.E57. The poetical works. With a memoir of the author. Boston, 1857. 9v.

PR5305—.E94. The complete poetical works, with an introduction by C. E. Norton. Biographical sketches by N. H. Dole. (Astor ed.) New York, (c1894).

PR5305—.F07. The poetical works. (Globe ed.) With a biographical and critical memoir by F. T. Palgrave. London, 1907.

PR5305—.F10. The poetical works. Ed. by J. L. Robertson . . . Oxford complete ed. London, 1910.

Collected Works — Waverley Novels:

PZ3—.S43A1. The Waverley novels, with the author's last corrections and additions. (Rev. ed.) Philadelphia, 1852. 5v.

PR5315—.E77. The Waverley novels. Author's ed., entire. Edinburgh, 1877. 4v.

PZ3—.S43. The Waverley novels. Library ed. (London, 1900) 25v.

PZ3—.S429. The Waverley novels. With an introductory essay and notes by Andrew Land. Border ed. illus. with etchings. London, 1901-20. 24v.

PR5334—.A66—1930. The private letter-books of Sir Walter Scott, with a letter to the reader from Hugh Walpole, ed. by Wilfred Partington. London, 1930.

Works about Sir Walter Scott:

PR5332—.C3. Carswald, Donald. Sir Walter: a four part study in biography. London, 1930.

PR5332 — .G4. Gilfillan, George. Life of Sir Walter Scott. 3rd ed. Edinburgh, 1884.

PR5332—.G9. Gwynn, S. L. The life of Sir Walter Scott. London (1930).

PR105—.E5—v.47. Hutton, R. H. . . . Scott. London (1907) (In English men of letters, v.47).

PR5332—.L2. Lang, Andrew. Sir Walter Scott. New York, 1906.

PR5332—.L8. Lockhart, J. G. Life of Sir Walter Scott, bart. Begun by himself and continued by J. G. Lockhart. 2nd ed. Edinburgh, 1853.

PR5332—.L83. Memoirs of the life of Sir Walter Scott. Fireside ed. Boston, 1910.

PR4735—.H3Z6. Logan, J. D. Scott and Haliburton. Halifax, N.S., 1921.

PQ657—.M2. Maigron, Louis. Le roman historique a l'époque romantique; essai sur l'influence de Walter Scott. Nouv. ed. Paris, 1912.

CS479—.S4R7. Rogers, Charles. Genealogical memoirs of the family of Sir Walter Scott, bart., of Abbotsford, with a reprint of his Memorials of the Haliburtons. London, 1877.

PR5341—.V8. Vissink, Hendrik. Scott and his influence on Dutch literature. Zwolle, (1922).

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
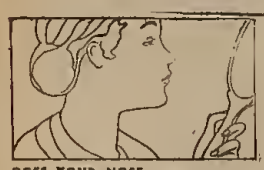
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities
ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.



Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St., Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

FRIDAY & SATURDAY
ONLY
FREE
A PAIR OF RUBBERS WITH EVERY PURCHASE OF SHOES
Buy Now And Save

Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50

AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Morgan Memorial Chapel

COURTESY OF KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD.

The above shows the interior of the Morgan Memorial Chapel in Theological Hall which was dedicated on the opening day of the Annual Theological Conference of Queen's Alumni. The Chapel was made possible by the gift of the late Dr. Morgan's nephew, Mr. A. Cameron Badenoch of the Indian Civil Service. The windows are in memory of Principal Donald Ross, Rev. D. J. Macdonnell and G. M. Macdonnell.

Campus and Gym

Basketball prospects are being considered these days as the Freshettes are showing their stuff on the gym. floor. Members of previous Intercollegiate teams are warned that there are several Freshettes ready to fill places on the team. Queen's is fortunate in having a long test of eligible girls, including Doreen Kenny, Isa Galbraith, Doris Anderson, Hilda Rice, Norah McGinnis, Dorothy Napthali, Jo Tett, Sally Farlinger, Eileen Hancock. Freshettes who show promise include Beatrice Gird, Kay Whaling, Evelyn Rickard, Ruth Fishleigh and Libby Stumback. With all this available material, Queen's should produce a team of championship calibre.

Practices will be arranged for a convenient time in the near future. In the meantime any one interested is asked to get in touch with Miss Murphy.

Varsity, present holders of the Intercollegiate Trophy, the "Bronze Baby", are determined to keep it for another season, and although it has lost such prominent players as Loretta McGarry and Sally Balland, Wilma Hazlett, Louise Crouch, it expects to take a strong team to the Intercollegiate Meet in Montreal.

The swimming pool is open to Levana daily from 2-3, except Saturdays. If a sufficient number of girls wish to swim on Saturday from 10-11 it may be possible to reserve the pool. On Mondays special attention will be given to diving; on Wednesdays and Thursdays there will be classes in Life Saving for those who wish to take their Bronze or Silver Medal. Any one wishing an honorary instructor's certificate may teach the bronze classes. Arn Wright is present to instruct on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. These classes do not mean that non-participants cannot swim as usual. Information may be obtained from Miss Murphy concerning the Bronze Medal classes.

BAND PRACTICE

Queen's Band Practices will be held on Tuesday, November 1st and Thursday, November 3rd in the old Gym at 7 p.m. sharp. All members are urgently requested to attend.

New Grant To Aid Study Of Folk School

The Carnegie Corporation of New York has made available, through the American Association for Adult Education, a limited sum for grants in aid of Canadian students who wish to study Danish and other Scandinavian folk high schools. Applications are now being received from students interested in rural sociology and adult education who believe that a brief study of the folk school would be available in their present or future work.

The folk high school has played an important part in the work of national adult education in the Scandinavian countries. The movement dates from about the middle of the last century when Nikolai Gruntvig, living in a period of land reforms and political upheaval, recognized that if popular government were to be a success, the citizens must be educated, without being separated from their life work. He conceived the idea of gathering adults together for a short period each year for the purpose of obtaining a general, well-rounded education without specializing in any particular subject. Denmark alone in 1930 had sixty schools, with an attendance of 6500 adult students, founded upon this principle.

The International People's College at Elsinore, built upon the tradition of the Danish folk high schools, is of particular interest to foreigners, and all persons who receive grants should plan to study there. The aim of the school is to bring young men and women from different countries together for mutual study. Peter Manniche, principal of the Collegelege, describes it as follows: "Just as the Danish Folk High Schools have educated Danish farmers towards a national cooperative commonwealth, it is hoped that the International College should be instrumental in educating students from different countries towards international co-operation. It places stress on the education which is gained through close personal intercourse between teachers and students and between the students themselves."

Applications should be filed with the American Association for Adult Education, 60 East 42 Street, New York, N.Y., on or before January 31, 1933.

The application should give the educational background of the applicant, his present occupation, age, and his reasons for wishing to undertake this study abroad. It should also include a proposed itinerary and schedule of study. The period of study in Scandinavia will be limited to three months or less. The application should be accompanied by not more than six references from persons qualified to testify as to the applicant's ability to make use of such an opportunity for study. It should also be accompanied, if possible, by a recent photograph of the applicant.

Campus Cut-ups

Miss Murphy announces that there will be no ground hockey played this year. Bad weather has held up the progress of girl's outdoor sports, and it is now time to consider basketball. The basketball teams are being organized and it is hoped that many will be interested enough to turn out and practice.

Anyone wishing to play badminton is urged to report to Miss Murphy, for if regular matches do not take place, the game will be given up.

GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club will provide choral work at the Fall Convocation.

The Glee Club is also studying a group of part songs, and Mrs. Tracey hopes to be able to present a program at a Ban Righ Hall Musicale in the near future.

ARMOUR INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY—A new course, Higher Algebra for Actuaries, is to be offered this fall to assist those students of Life, Health and Accident Insurance so that they might meet their examinations offered by the different insurance companies.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI
Students from forty-three states and eleven foreign countries are enrolled in the University.

If women dress to please the men. Then why long skirts again???

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA—By class vote the photographers' fees for junior and senior pictures are to be paid from class dues rather than by the individual student.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY—Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the University, has 30 academic degrees. He has had the degree of Doctor of Law conferred on him 17 times.

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

Hanson & Edgar
Dance Programmes Constitutions
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4th, 1932. No. 11

Queen's Library

Two Highly Trained Rugby Teams To Wage Epic Battle For Victory At Richardson Stadium To-Morrow

Carter's Kicking Will Give Advantage Over Purple Grid Experts

What a menu for the rugby fans of this neck of the woods. Western with their admittedly powerful team, visiting Queen's fresh from their decisive win over McGill in Montreal. And a loss for either team might well mean that it is definitely out of the race.

That is the situation, and while the Varsity-McGill battle is a mighty important one for all teams, the struggle in Kingston should attract the largest crowd of the current season.

In addition the presence of Lord and Lady Bessborough, will add interest and dignity to the occasion and if anything else was needed to spur the teams on to greater efforts, it will be the knowledge that the Governor-General and his wife are among the spectators. Lord Bessborough is very keen about Canadian rugby and it is certain that he will witness a grim struggle for supremacy.

Western send along a team that is more or less of a surprise. In their first game in Montreal they didn't look so good, and while they won over Queen's in London, they hardly deserved the victory on play. Again at Toronto they lost to Varsity, but showed enough to make the Blue team very wary about the return engagement. And Varsity and cause to be, for Western uncorked one of the most astonishing scoring bees in rugby history to utterly demoralize Varsity and smother them. Any team that can do this is mighty good.

(Continued on page 6)

Mustangs Practicing Forward Passing For Offence And Defence

(Special to the Journal)

London, Ont.—The Tricolor's overwhelming victory in Montreal came as no surprise to the Mustangs, who remember their own difficulty in squeezing out a win over the Queen's team here. For this reason the Purple squad are expecting one of the hardest games of their season in Kingston next Saturday, and have been training hard.

Monday's workout, due to the deluge of rain, took the form of a cross country run, but beginning Tuesday, the champions started in to hard drill. While the forward pass was not a feature of last Saturday's game, due to the strong winds, the Mustangs are practicing the aerial attack in anticipation of favourable weather in Kingston. They are also concentrating on the defence against it.

With the backfield once more intact, and Paterson in good condition, the Mustangs will probably resort to more open play. On the other hand, the famous Purple line regained its old time form against Varsity and Joe Breen may decide on a line plunging game.

With the discovery of Jack Schnarr, as a placement kicker, Western has a new scoring threat. Having lost two games this season, due to their inability to score when within the twenty-five yard line, this new factor should make considerable difference to the Mustangs.

Paterson averaged over fifty yards on his punts in the game against Varsity last Saturday, and is prepared to give Carter a battle for the kicking honors. A win is essential if the Mustangs are to have any chance of retaining their title, and they are not expecting a victory to be dropped into their laps.

Jack Mugan came through in good style last week and will probably be included in the starting line-up. Awde and Paterson will be the other halves, Valeriote not being fully recovered from his shoulder injury. Few changes will be made in the rest of the line-up.

Drama Guild Present Initial Offering Nov.8

The Dramatic Guild will present its initial program of the year on November 8th. The casts have been chosen with care, and although the rehearsals began in earnest only last week, the plays are progressing splendidly and already show great promise.

The first production, a curtain-raiser, is "The Gaol Gate" by Lady Gregory. It is an intensely dramatic tragedy, and is written in the beautiful, rhythmic prose which characterizes Lady Gregory's works. The scene is laid in Ireland. The play tells how Mary Cahel on her way to plead for her husband's release from prison, receives a letter. Unable to read, she can only guess at the contents, but believes that her husband has gained his own freedom by exposing his confederates. The psychology in the play is particularly interesting.

The second play, "Gammer Gurton's Needle" is a decided contrast. It is the first genuine English comedy and was written, supposedly by a Cambridge Professor or student, about 1575. It tells how Gammer Gurton, while sewing Hodge's breeches, unfor-

Continued on page 8

Guests of the University.

Their Excellencies, the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough, who will attend Fall Convocation to receive honorary degrees. Lord and Lady Bessborough will be present on Saturday afternoon at the Queen's and Western rugby game.

Another distinguished visitor to the University tomorrow will be the Hon. George Henry, Prime Minister of Ontario, who will also receive an honorary degree.

All Students Invited To Giant Pep Rally

Les Williams To Be Chief Cheer Leader

"The whole university is invited to attend the Pep Rally to be held in Grant Hall on Friday evening at 7 o'clock," Cheer-leader Les Williams told a Journal representative yesterday.

"At Saturday's game," he continued, "there will be present some very distinguished visitors and a large number of Queen's alumni. It is even more than usually important that on such an occasion the whole student body should get behind the rugby team and cheer it on to victory. The team turns out to practice very nearly every day of the week. Is it too much to expect that for once all their loyal supporters will turn out at such a critical time to practice cheering in order to give the team all the assistance possible?"

The meeting will last for an hour and an interesting and entertaining program has been arranged. A prominent member of the rugby team will address the gathering.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK-END

Friday, November 4th:

Afternoon: Alumni Registration, Miller Hall.
Visit of University Buildings.
6.30 P.M.: Class Reunion Dinners.
7.30 P.M.: Meeting of Directors of General Alumni Association, Room 221, Douglas Library.

Saturday, November 5th:

Morning: Clinics for visiting doctors, Kingston Hospitals.
9.15 A.M.: Business Meeting of General Alumni Association, Convocation Hall.
10.00 A.M.: Address by Hon. G. S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, Convocation Hall.
11.00 A.M.: Convocation. Grant Hall.
12.30 P.M.: Class Luncheons.
2.15 P.M.: Queen's vs. Western, Richardson Stadium.
6.30 P.M.: Class Reunion Dinners.
8.00 P.M.: Meeting of Trustee Board.
8.30 P.M.: Alumni Dance. New Gymnasium.

Principal's Message

May I offer through The Journal a very hearty welcome to all Queen's graduates reunited here for this week-end? Queen's can never be again quite what it was when you were in residence. You all feel that, whether your year is 1850 or 1932. And quite right, too. But change is not always decay. We are struggling to do our best, and we count upon your loyal interest and support. Assured of that, Queen's will continue to flourish and to produce new graduates worthy to join your company. Floreatis et alumni et alumnae.

W. H. FYFE.

Students Of Geology Make Merry On Trip

One afternoon last week more than one hundred and twenty would be geologists boarded the Wolfe Islander for their annual trip to the Island. Armed with geological hammers and box lunches this mighty army disembarked on the limestone shores and invaded the village of Marysville under the able leadership of General (Dr.) Rose. There was very little resistence shown on the part of the insular inhabitants although, from their apprehensive expressions, one could readily see that they had not forgotten last year's invasion. Last fall, when the time came for the class to return to the Limestone City, the wind had risen to such a storm that the faithful ferry was unable to make the trip and everyone was forced to remain on the island all night. On Thursday many of the freshmen and freshettes were heard to remark that they hoped the wind would rise, but the weather remained calm and cloudly.

Later in the afternoon, when it had become quite chilly, the class was standing on a rock outcrop which Dr. Rose explained to be at least five hundred million years old. One shivering freshette in the rear murmered, "Oh God! Is he going

Continued on page 8

Unstable Exchanges Hindrance To Trade

Foreign Exchange Of Interest To Bankers

"Foreign Exchange is a matter of greater interest today in banking circles than it has even been," said Mr. Graham Towers, Assistant General Manager of The Royal Bank of Canada, and an outstanding example of a University-trained man who has arrived at the top of his chosen profession at an early age.

Banks have been accused of making exorhitant profits from the premium on foreign funds and Mr. Towers attempted to reveal the fallacy of these accusations. Banks with a large system of branches such as exist in Canada must keep close account of the daily sales and purchases of foreign funds throughout the system and must counteract in the foreign exchange market any excess of sales over purchases or vice versa. This can only be done at the current rates and the banks on the whole make no profit but their commissions

Fluctuating exchanges are a very serious barrier to international trade and therefore to prosperity. Exporters and importers are loath to run the risk of fluctuation and a condition of stagnation results. Mr. Towers expressed the hope that in the near future some international arrangement for stablization would be worked out and made effective. A return to parity is in many cases out of the question. The

Continued on page 4

Alumni Dance To Be Held In New Gym.

The gym will be the scene of another Alumni - Football Dance on Saturday evening and should provide a merry time for both guests and students. The usual good floor and good music should prove an ideal opportunity to celebrate our hoped for victory.

Graduates Flock Back To Queen's For Big Reunion

Many Distinguished Guests Welcomed To Annual Convocation

Queen's will welcome many distinguished guests to Convocation this week-end. Already a large number of alumni and alumnae have entered Kingston for the 1932 Reunion; and tomorrow morning in Grant Hall the University will confer honorary degrees upon Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough, and upon the Hon. Mr. George Henry, Prime Minister of Ontario.

The address by the Premier of Ontario to the meeting of the General Alumni Association in Convocation Hall at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning is expected to draw a capacity audience, while the visit of Lord and Lady Bessborough to the Queen's-Western game on Saturday afternoon is likely to prove the occasion of a great demonstration.

The following instructions regarding attendance at Fall Convocation are issued by the University authorities for the benefit of students: The whole of the gallery will be available to students, who will enter by the campus door of Grant Hall. There will also be a few seats available in the body of the hall under the gallery, but students are asked to fill the gallery first. Women students will wear gowns. Everyone is expected to be seated before 11 o'clock, when Convocation opens.

Debate Society Elects New Executive Staff

Resignation of the entire executive of the Debating Union necessitated the election of a new staff Wednesday afternoon. George Wallace replaces Al. Sprague as president. The other officers are as follows:

Vice-Pres., R. U. Mahaffy.
Sec'y-Treas.—John Parker.
Committee—Eric . Gilmour, H. Waisberg, Joe Delaney, Jack Corbett, Harry Martin, Stuart Warrington (ex-officio).

Attendance at this meeting was regrettably small. The executive plans to conduct a big drive to stir up enthusiasm in the activities of the union. There certainly are a number of good debaters at Queen's and these men will be given ample opportunity to show their wares.

George Wallace, the new President of the Debating Union, in an interview with a Journal reporter declared his intention of making a determined effort to stimulate interest in the Debating Union around the campus. "We must build up the Union carefully," he said, "but once a promising beginning has been made I am sure that ample material will come to hand to ensure a real future for debating at Queen's. The executive have assured me of their whole-hearted co-operation in carrying out such a policy."

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

FRIDAY, NOV. 4th, 1932

Hail Alumni!

Once again the University opens wide its stately portals and extends a welcoming hand to its alumni. For starting to-day a program of unusual interest gets under way in a special effort to make the homecoming of the old grads a memorable one. Nothing has been left undone to make this reunion a complete success and it now remains with the student body to lend their good will and support.

Cordially, we welcome the grads back to the old strand. They will find enough old landmarks too, we believe, to remind them of the deeds of their happy days at Queen's.

Alumni! Your visit should be a pleasant one. You will enjoy again the autumnal beauty of the old campus; you will visit your old class rooms; you will visit new class rooms, laboratories, where the facilities for superior academic work are growing from year to year; you will visit the new gymnasium — a veritable temple erected for the furtherance of athletics and the promotion of a sound body; you will renew the ties of friendship with members of the faculties, with whom you studied in the Queen's of other days; you will spend a joyful reunion with the class mates with whom you shared such delightful days here; but above all you will join again with the care-free exuberance of youth in cheering on to victory another Tricolor football machine—a machine displaying the aggressiveness and spirit of old.

In a week-end so crammed with events of interest the Alumni should realize that there is nothing languishing about Queen's. The new buildings, and the large student body should attest to the fact that the University is on the road of progress.

This is a great day for us all! The Queen's of the past, the present and the future are making merry together on this annual Reunion. Through the unity of purpose that this homecoming exemplifies an even greater Queen's may result.

On behalf of the undergraduate student body the Journal takes this, its first occasion, to extend to the Alumni a heart-felt welcome.

Caution

Caution is a valuable quality of character, but it is possible to over-develop it to such a degree that it becomes a handicap and discourages effort. It is a pretty safe wager that the human, who boasts that he has never made a mistake, never took a chance—and the man who never took a chance never accomplished very much.

Success seems to attend conscientious endeavour. The ultra-conservative person stands still. His motto may be "Safety First" but he may slip on a banana peel and kill himself. He may have his first dollar, but he hasn't added anything to it.

Every one is entitled to make a mistake—now and then. The world does not hold it against one who has tried valiantly. Sauding one's tracks may lead to safety, but consider how slowly you go.

Ask the man who has done things in the world and he will frankly admit that he has made mistakes. He will likely add that he used the bricks he stumbled over to lay a solid foundation for his later success.

The best system is to do your best according to your knowledge and ability, then if you take a tumble, look around and find out what tripped you up. Then use this stumbling block as a stepping stone.

Recklessness does not pay. A careful examination before the leap assures an adequate pay-off. Yet it is obvious that as long as you are haunted by the fear of skidding and lend an ear to over-caution, you will continue to creep along in the old rut.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

The Exam Trouble

College is just under way, yet professors and students are worrying already about terminal examinations. Every lecture topic is viewed in the light of its possibility as an examination question. Professors often conclude their classes with the warning that work covered during the hour would be fine for examination purposes and the nervous listener resolves to add it to the special material set aside for the final cramming. Everybody is slightly on edge about the whole system.

Of course it is easy to understand the habit of catering constantly to written examinations. The marks obtained serve to rate the ability of the individual and they place a numerical label upon his general intellectual power. This acts as a guide to promotion.

Yet few will seriously maintain, that the usual exam is an adequate test of a person's ability in a broad way. That it is merely a test of his efficiency in tabulating the results of a frantic revision of matter studied, is widely believed. Such a method seems to be a simple measurement of ability to concentrate during a hectic period of mental forcing when the student's nervous state and sheer luck exert great influence. The present system presupposes that everybody will study regularly; but students being human always take advantage of a method that offers a chance to pass with the minimum of effort.

Evidently the existing situation is far from good and the colleges seem to be waiting for a new method to lead them out of the wilderness. One such method, appearing as a refreshing departure from custom, is that in use at Oxford University for honor subjects. In this case the student is required to concentrate on a few problems, of such scope and importance that a lot of serious thought is needed to understand and relate them. Success in such a course requires consistently steady work during the year. Last minute cramming is utterly fruitless. The student works at these problems in an independent way and he must think them out step by step. In this case the written examination is a natural process where the candidate sets forth the conclusions at which he has arrived. We understand that this honor system has been tried at a few American universities and that it has been successful and well liked without exception.

If the Oxford system becomes generally accepted for honor courses and the illogical comprehensive examination in ordinary subjects is changed to a series of periodic tests each covering a fair amount of work, the examination hysteria might be considerably reduced.

—The Brunswickan.

Official Notices

Classes on November 5th.

On Saturday, November 5th, classes meeting at eight and nine o'clock will be held as usual. The nine o'clock classes will close at five minutes to ten in order that students may hear the Hon. Mr. George Henry, who will speak in Convocation Hall. No classes will meet after ten o'clock.

Armistice Day

All classes will meet as usual on November 11th, Armistice Day. Two minutes' silence will be observed at eleven o'clock and all ten o'clock classes will remain in their class rooms until the ringing of the bell at two minutes after eleven.

A. J. and Margaret Grant Bursary in Arts.

This Scholarship is now worth $595.75. As it was not awarded on Matriculation it is now open in the first instance to properly qualified students in the Faculty of Arts who have come from the high schools of Glengarry. All students from the high schools of Glengarry who are registered in the Faculty of Arts are asked to send their names to the Registrar by November 15th in order that the Committee on Scholarships may be in a position to draw up proper regulations for the award of the Scholarship.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

General Examinations

Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Blended Right!

A thorough knowledge of blending is an absolute essential to a delicately flavoured, fragrant cigarette such as Winchester.

This knowledge comes only after long years of experience in handling choice Virginia, Burley and Turkish tobaccos and the facilities which are available to Canada's largest manufacturer of cigarettes ensure a blend which is perfection itself.

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes

Winchester
CIGARETTES

Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

The CLINGSWELL
STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Students...
We do not give advice on love matters, stock markets, or weather conditions, locate lost articles, missing relatives or buried treasure—
But for Dependable Drug Service — that's us!
Prompt, Cheerful, Careful and —Reasonable—
WARD & HAMILTON
Limited
4—Convenient Stores—4
Where students like to shop

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

S. C. M. Shrapnel

For the information of the readers of this column a note on the organization and work of the local group of the S. C. M. might be in order.

The S. C. M. is the successor to the Student Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. in Canada, and has been organized at Queen's for the past ten years. The Advisory Board is the senior part of the local executive. It consists of sympathetic citizens of Kingston, members of the University staff, and several students. The Principal of the University, and of Queen's Theological College are ex-officio members. The student executive, called the Cabinet, attends to the details of the work. For the past three years the chief executive has been a student secretary drawing a small salary.

Under the auspices of the executive groups are organized for the study of living problems of the day. This year Prof. Smails and Mr. Cameron of the Economic Department are leading such groups. The Men's Forum under Captain J. O. Watts, is also sponsored by the S. C. M. From time to time delegates are sent to district, National and International Conferences where they meet world-known leaders, and from whence they return to share a newer and wider vision and deeper inspiration. The annual Elgin House Conference is just such an event with just such results.

But the organization only exists for a purpose, which is to help students to a realization of the most abundant life.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Queen's Journal.

Dear Sir:

Let me add slightly to what has already been brought forward by others in previous letters to your paper.

Since the opening of the new gymnasium two years ago there has been great interest taken in water-polo by a large number of the student body. Indeed, last year, after much hard practice, the students succeeded in developing a fine team. Their efforts seemed to be in vain, however, for, although there were many outside teams who were willing to sage a home and home sries with the Queen's team, the Queen's team did not play one single game.

As I understand it Queen's University have not made application for entrance into either the Intercollegiate Aquatic Meet or the Intercollegiate Water-Polo Union. That, however, is more or less beside the point, for there are undoubtedly good and sufficient reasons why Queen's should not enter either of the above mentioned unions at this time.

The fact, though, that Queen's University is not entered in the Intercollegiate Aquatic series seems to me to be all the more reason why the water-polo team should be allowed to play outside games. Indeed, if Queen's ever expect to make full use of their splendid aquatic facilities, every effort should be made to encourage aquatic sports.

I sincerely hope that if the students, in the face of such a disheartening precedence, again decide to form a water-polo team, that they shall at least be given a chance to test their worthiness to further support.

ANONYMOUS.

And the great battle of Kweanz-Magil having been called a draw, the elders of the tribe did call even another gathering of the multitude, unto the city of Montre the Red, and did command the valiant again to gird their loins and prepare for slaughter. And so it came to pass that many of the dwellers of Kin did journey by train, which is called C.N.R., and others of more daring did gather into their chariots and did take themselves hence unto the site of battle.

Of these many were there who did approach unto the walls of Montre on the eve before the battle and they being used to the country of Ont. did travel with less speed when they had come to Que. for Que in these times was known far and wide amongst the unbelievers for the taverns which did quench the thirst of the tired and weary, which being translated means beer and wine, yea verily more beer and more wine.

And so did those of the tribe reach Montre the Red, and thus did they prepare for the morrow, for blessed are they that partake of beer and wine for it shall rise again.

The hour of fight being close, those of Kweanz, who were able to see and walk did stagger up the mountain to the field of war, those of Magil being infidels did abide in the mountains, for they believe in gods that do like the mountain tops to bellow from, yea, verily, their great god Bull and their great god Ass. For the bull and the ass are beasts of great word and little work. In this place then did the tribes come together as they had in the past, and in this place did they see the downfall of Magil. Yea, verily, Magil were as paper in the hands of the men of Kin, and did those of Kin push and push and great was the falling back of those of Magil. Taf, begotten of Byrne, and Howard from the loins of Hamlin, did gather unto themselves the hide of the pig and did step on the faces of those fain to resist them. Then did the pig squeal for mercy near the start, so that there had to be found a new pig, and be it said of the first pig, even unto the fourth generation, that he couldn't take it.

Yeah, and this time did the gods see eye to eye with those of Kweanz, and did declare a win throughout the provinces so that all might know. Now those of Kweanz who had fought in word but not in deed, did swarm onto the field after win and did attack the wooden gods of Magil and did pull these heathen gods to the earth, and were the Magilites exceeding wrath, but were their gods on the ground and verily were they made to like it.

Many were there from Kweanz, who could beat the pig, and they being men of great hardiness did dress as women-folk, nor cared they a whit what was said by the heathens for they were men of great learning. So gathered they together after peace had come and did beat their pigs and march in glory to the hostel, whence they had taken unto themselves beds. And many from Kweanz did fall in and sing praises to their gods who had visited and redeemed their people.

And then even as before, the men of Kin did gather unto themselves virgins from Montre the Red, and did pass through many swinging doors, and almost all did come at last to the Well-Lit gardens, did pass in, and verily, did pass out again. For be it ever said amongst men of Kin; great is the passing out in Montre the Red.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Nov. 4th.
1.00 p.m.—Commerce Club Meeting. Speaker, Mr. Rogers, Sec. of Canadian Bankers' Association.
4.00 p.m.—Arts '35 Meeting, Room 201, New Arts Bldg.
7.00 p.m.—Pep Rally, Grant Hall.
9.00 p.m.—Science '33 Year Dance La Salle Hotel, Bob Warmington's Orchestra.
Saturday, Nov, 5th.
11.00 p.m.—Convocation, Grant Hall.
2.30 p.m.—Queen's vs. Western, Richardson Stadium.
4.00 p.m.—L.A.B. of C. Tea Dance Ban Righ Hall.
8.30 p.m.—Alumni Reunion Football Dance, New Gym.
Sunday, Nov. 6th.
2.30 p.m.—Newman Club Meeting, K. of C. Hall.
Tuesday, Nov. 9th.
4.00 p.m.—Arts Soc. Meeting, New Arts Bldg.
8.00 p.m.—S.C.M. Masquerade Party, Sydenham United Church.

The young woman at Cottonwood Falls who married a man just before he was taken to the state reformatory at Hutchinson, will be one of a few women who will know where her husband is every night for the next several months.

—Winfield Courier.

World News Briefly

Twice liberal amendments were thrown out in parliament at Ottawa, Wednesday. The measure making acceptance of British-Canadian treaties dependent on inflation of the Canadian dollar was defeated 109 to 71.

Press despatches infer that the opposition (Liberals and Progressives) may attempt a dissolution of parliament to prevent ratification of the treaties.

Canadian wheat shipped in bond to the U.S. pending sale will not profit by the six cent preference accorded by Britain. But wheat transported by way of the States on a through order of consignment will receive the preference. This is the interpretation put on the Ottawa treaty by Great Britain.

Strange and hyperbolic accounts of the London "hunger strike" appear in the press these days. The New York Times states that 20,000 took part in the riot Tuesday. The Ottawa Evening Citizen in a despatch direct from London points out that 95% of these were mere onlookers and the real strikers were no more than 2,500. In any case the mob rule has been suppressed and W. A. L. Hannington, communist leader, along with his comrades in arms reposes in jail.

The following "skyrocket" yell will be used on Saturday:

s-s-S-S BOOM, RAH, RAH, QUEEN'S!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Queen's Journal.

Dear Sir:

Queen's University has been a noble and esteemed seat of learning for ninety-two years. In that lengthy space of time buildings and ground have been added and to-day this college is known throughout the North American continent as one of the few small colleges to make such a name for itself

Any college finds it of very great advantage to advertise. The one great way which a college is able to do this is by sports. Queen's sports have never been troubled for any support from the source of finance. All her teams, not matter what their rating, are sent to the various meets. It is expense, yes, and even although the enthusiasm surrounding the trip and players is not very evident, they go anyway. Why? Because the name of Queen's must be kept befor the public, both scholastically and athletically.

Two years ago Queen's campus had the addition of one of the finest gymns in Canada. Strange as it may seem along with this gym was one of the finest swimming pools in Canada.

I say strange because this expensive addition of a pool is really little known. The school has many boys and girls interested in witnessing, in some form or other, a contest within this spotless, tiled, expensive bath of filtered, heated and chlorined water. Is there any reason why they shouldn't?

Being one of those in a position to answer, I say there is a reason. For any kind of a meet or polo match those who spend their time and energy conditioning for the contest, must receive a little support from the source of finance — and if not help in this direction, they should at least be able to use the pool to prove their sport.

Queen's has an enthusiastic swimming circle — but to what avail? Preparations are made for a polo match — the team themselves guarantee to cover any deficit and still the powers that be do not give consent for the use of this expensive, attractive, advertising swimming tank.

We have the pool—we have the seating capacity—we have enthusiastic supporters, yet to be initiated into this new sport—we have a group of men, willing to pay their own expenses for a chance to show off this pool—but—we also have—yet to be given an opportunity, by those in control, to see what can be done with all these assets.

Yours truly,
R. WEMAD.

Many Laid Low As Mighty Interyear Teams Collide

To climax a bloody battle between Arts '33 and '34 yesterday, in which the latter won, Jeff Bull received slight concussion of the brain and Davy Galt got a fractured ankle. At 5.30 last night Jeff was still unconscious.

The teams were evenly matched '34 having a slight edge in weight which showed in the final score of 4to 1. The bucking of Fritz Gussow and Bull was a feature of the game from '34's side of it. Jerry Byrne was a pillar of strength at middle for '33. An assortment of officials handled the whistle and lines, giving the players a much needed breathing space when they went into a huddle over some technicality.

ARTS CONCURSUS

The following is the complete list of officers for the Arts Concursus.

Sr. Judge—Al. Sprague.
Jr. Judge—Doug. Muir.
Sr. Pros. Att.—R. Day.
Jr. Pros. Att.—George Fletcher.
Sheriff—C. O'Neil.
Chief of Police—Bill Agnew.
Clerk—Orian Lowe.
Crier—T. Davoud.
Constables, '33 — W. Carr, S. Major.
'34—Fritz Gussow, H. Conquergood.
'35—Doug. Waugh, H. Jenkins.
'36—Malcolm Bews, D. Burr.

WATER POLO

There will be a Water Polo practice in the pool this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Members of last year's team are asked to turn out, and an invitation is extended to all swimmers interested in the game to be present at the first practice.

Prospects for a busy season are bright. The A.B. of C. have promised their support, and it is likely that outside fixtures will be arranged this year.

There's a certain little co-ed
Who every single night
Starts out making whoopee
That lasts till broad daylight.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

Get Your New
OVERCOAT
AND BE WARM AND COMFORTABLE
WATCHING THE
WESTERN AND QUEEN'S GAME SATURDAY
THE BEST VALUE
IN TWENTY YEARS
HEAVY WARM
Overcoats
$20.00

TUXEDOS
OUR SPECIAL SHOWING
AT $25.00
Reg. Value $35.00
Everything in Full Dress Accessories

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1235 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

A Graduation Address

The recently graduating class in medicine at Edinburgh University received from their 'promoter' an address couched in the gracious phraseology that is the legacy of a few hundred years of tradition, and, what is more important, containing advice which has behind it wisdom gleaned during a long experience and the earnest desire to pass on a little of that wisdom. It is a great pity that this address, printed in full in the last Edinburgh University Journal, cannot be in the hands of all those who expect to graduate from medical schools next year and in the years to come.

The principal part of the speech deals with the opportunities of the young graduate, his responsibilities, and the means by which he may make the most of these.

Professor John Fraser, the promoter, said; "You are entering medicine today at what may well be a most interesting phase of its progress. I do not allude so much to matters of scientific advancement and technical improvement as to those social and economic changes which appear at intervals in the life and work of mankind. Medicine in the past has been in large measure free from influences of this description, in fact she has often taken a pride in the sense of detachment which she has observed towards matters which lie outside the immediate interests of professional practice. No doubt the circumstances of our lives in large measure explain this attitude of isolation, for the majority of medical men fulfill perhaps more fully than any other class, the truth expressed in Matthew Arnold's line. "We mortal millions live alone." Our profession is fortunate in that there have always been a few individuals whose interest or talents have led them to scale the delectable mountains of medical politics, and we leave a great deal to the altruism and judgment which these men have displayed in their guardianship of medical interests. In a similar way the great corporations of our profession have been time and again the Horatiuses who have held our bridges. So far as the great mass of the profession is concerned, however, we have been satisfied to concentrate upon the practical and scientific aspects of our work, hopeful that we have been the constant friends of the suffering sons and daughters of men, proud to think that we have blunted and sometimes averted the arrows of death, and in Bartlett's beautiful words 'glad to render less rugged and precipitous the inevitable pathway to the tomb.' These are high and splendid ideals, but none the less we are reminded from time to time that we are a cogwheel, and a most vital one, in the national life, and insomuch as we are intimately dovetailed into a complex whole, we must accept the fact that we are likely to play an increasingly important part in the economics and for the security of national health."

Rah Rah Days Gone Says Noted Educator

Columbus, O. — The bright lights, the rah-rahing, the princely apartments and the lavish fraternity and sorority entertaining will disappear this year from the colorful life of the collegian, President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University is convinced.

For, believe it or not, due to economic conditions the student body is coming to college this year to study.

President Rightmire, in an interview, declared that this year is an ideal one for the student who wants to study History and Economics rather than Co-eds and Gnzzling.

"The experiences in these times of economic stress are going to make it easier for students to cut off excesses, to give less heed to competition among student groups in social entertainment and to live more nearly according to their individual desires and conditions," asserted the educator, who long has been an advocate of the "simple life" for students.

"We shall all make a closer approach to our ideal of individual life and independence."

Of course the year may not produce so many memories, but there is a feeling in educational circles that such a result would not be unfortunate.

Asked how much cheaper a year in college can be purchased now, Dr. Rightmire predicted that the average expense for a year will be $100 lower in 1932-33.

College campuses will be filled with students coming back to take advantage of this situation, he said.

"If it is at all possible, if they can locate the means, the young people of college mind and age should continue their studies this year, on a falling market of college living. Young men and women of the normal college age will be wise in making a desperate effort to go on to school this year."

MEDICAL AT HOME

The committee in charge of arrangements for the most important social event of the fall term, the Medical At Home, have announced that it will be held on Friday, November 25th, in the Gymnasium. Further details will be announced in each Journal issue.

True To Man Doctrine

Psychologists and brain specialists may be called into consultation to determine effective ways and means of combating the sudden craze which has spread over the Northwestern university campus. It was mentioned some time ago that a group of women students had formed an organization based on the "true to one man" doctrine. Each woman in the club wears a yellow ribbon around her neck signifying that her interest is payable in full to some man who is not attending Northwestern.

The men, not to be out-done by the "widows," have organized a "widowers' union" with a membership of men who refuse to date the local coeds. With pomp and ceremony they gathered on the shores of Lake Michigan and buried a casket containing all their love for Northwestern women.

Exact Medicine

Recently this department has discovered the idea among students in other faculties, and more particularly among those who follow physics, that medicine is not an exact and practical science. Now most cases of advanced physicism are regarded as incurable, and allowing of only palliative treatment, but the most delirious utterances sometimes contain odd words of wisdom and it behooves us not to pass too lightly over even a mathematician's ideas of medicine, however absurd they may appear at first glance.

In the eye of the public, a science is represented by its practitioners and the results they achieve—a solemn thought, that, for prospective sawbones, if they could be induced to consider it. The public, therefore, recognizes surgery as a quite exact science. The similarity in the forms of men, so discouraging to women in search of brute perfection, is regarded as a fortunate dispensation by the surgeon. Slight complications are brought in by minor variations, such as those found in the thickness of skulls and degrees of obesity, but in the main, a competent man entering any incision is reasonably sure of his position and the probable outcome of his labours.

On the other hand, the public is prone to regard the medical side of the profession at times as a rather hit and miss affair, occasionally with reason. But advancing science is proving more and more conclusively that different ailments may be referred to specific causative factors and that the proper treatments, such as we know of them produce quite uniform results in corresponding conditions.

The human body may be missused, as for instance when it is used as an incinerator, but it may still be regarded as a physics and chemistry lab. in which chemical material, food, is consumed, usually in quantities to horrify professors with economical ideas, and where bacteria, like students, gain entrance and interfere considerably with the smooth progress of the reactions.

All these reactions are as exact as any series of physical or chemical reactions can be and the day will come when they will be fully understood and properly controlled.

In the meantime, we must admit, with all due modesty, that the medical senior understands and uses more exact science than any undergraduate in another faculty. The remark contained in one of the recent loads of dirt scooped out by the Steam Shovel, that 'a Med calleth a bone by a name passing the understanding of men' may be taken as indicative of the awe in which medical erudition is really held by the unfortunates in other departments.

Trade Hindrances Caused By Fluctuating Exchanges

Continued from page 1

effects in Great Britain and France are comparable. France returned to the gold basis at about one fifth of pre-war parity and when her currency was slightly overvalued. An adjustment of prices took place and France experienced the pleasant sensation of a rising price-level with a stimulus to trade. Great Britain on the other hand returned to the pre-war parity prematurely and thereby overvalued the pound sterling. The adjustment was one of falling prices with its characteristic depressing effects.

Tuesday's luncheon was marked by the presence of six members of Levana. A hearty welcome was extended to them by the executive on behalf of the club.

The membership fee is only one dollar ($1.00) and all students in Commerce are urged to join and take an interest in the club and its activities, the benefits of which cannot be obtained in the classroom.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

TROUBLE IN PARADISE
with
Herbert Marshall, Miriam Hopkins, Kay Francis and Charles Ruggles.

It is difficult to diagnose just where the weakness lies in Trouble In Paradise. But miss the boat it does, if only by inches.

Ernst Lubitsch, director par excellence, is assuredly not at fault. His stress on décor, photographic effects, and resourceful devices is as successful in this film as in any other which has the good fortune to be under his direction.

Herbert Marshall is endowed with that particular and distinct charm reserved for the portrayal of the gentleman crook. He exerts every ounce of it in trying to establish whether Miriam Hopkins, as his accomplice, or Kay Francis, as the widow of a perfume magnate, is responsible for the title of the film.

Perhaps the most fitting adjective for Miss Hopkins's brand of acting is—electric. Miss Francis plays the femme fatale in a way so devastating as to make the conclusion of the film improbable. B+.

AT THE TIVOLI

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
with
Jack Oakie, Thomas Meighan, Marian Nixon and others

Once more a racket gets screen prominence and this time it is the fight racket and the scene of operations is the fight-promoter's dream—Madison Square Garden.

With a life-long ambition to become the match-maker for the Garden, Doc Williams (Thomas Meighan) hits New York with two protégés in tow. Due to fortune's smile, the miracle, as in most movies, happens, and after a series of successful fights, Eddie Burke (Jack Oakie) finds himself scheduled for the garden. But this is where the racket pulls the strings, and honesty as the best policy seems due for a fall. In spite of Oakie's attempts to play straight the fight goes much as arranged. Justice, however, meets the racketeers in a convincing way.

The laurels in the picture go, not to any of the actors, but to the photography. The unusual angles of the story are stressed, and the series of flashes showing the sport-writer's reactions to the combat are among the best in the film.

The feminine element, fortunately not over stressed, for this is a man's picture, is represented by Marion Nixon, with her blond beauty. A—.

The Observer

The Oriental Renaissance

The rise of modern Turkey out of the ruins of the Old Ottoman Empire was one of the most remarkable and unexpected results of the Great War. Few political observers even as late as 1919 expected that "the sick man of Europe" would display such amazing powers of recovery as would make possible, in the face of the armed hostility of Greece and the diplomatic opposition of France and Great Britain, the establishment of a strong nation-state under the dictatorship of the soldier-statesman Mustapha Kemal. This development, however, is symptomatic of the political renaissance of the East in the twentieth century. National movements in Japan, China and India especially, must be regarded, not as isolated phenomena, but as part of a larger movement to be traced throughout Asia, a movement which is gaining increasing strength as the present century progresses. This whole political, economic, and spiritual process may be summed up in one phrase—the Oriental Renaissance.

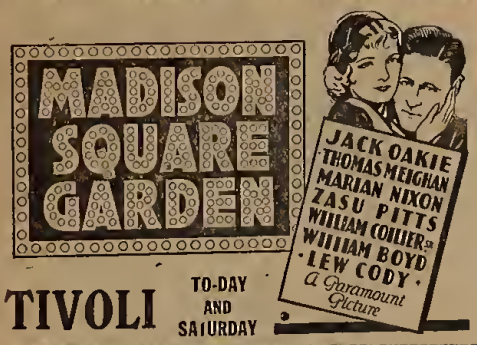
There have already been a number of phases to this movement. The first signs of the awakening of Asia to its own potentialities are to be found in Japan, after 1854, and the rise of the Japanese nation to a position of equality with the great Western powers (a position finally confirmed by the Russo-Japanese war of 1904 to 1905) forms the first phase of the Oriental Renaissance. The second phase includes the development of national feeling in China and India particularly; we may regard this period as lasting up to the conclusion of the World War, not indeed because the movement towards self-determination by that time was completed, but because after 1919 the condition of the movement in its relation to the outside world was changed; this is essentially a period of transition from the older order to the new for the greater part of Asia, a time of groping towards certain ideas which recognizably begin to crystallize by about the end of the second decade of this century. The third or modern phase is still being worked out, and will not be complete until those Asiatic countries which today are evincing a lively desire politically to control their own destinies have gained a real measure of satisfaction.

The emergence of Japan into the position of a great power was of extraordinary significance. Here was proof positive that it was possible for an Asiatic nation to organize itself politically and economically in such a way as to be able to confront the great western nations on terms of equality. The prestige of Japan, stimulated by her victory over China in 1894-5, was enormously increased by her alliance with England and her triumph over Russia. The old balance of power was completely upset, and Japan stood out as the dominant power of the Orient, an example to the rest of Asia of the wisdom of learning the secret of the superiority of foreign nations.

The lesson was not lost upon the Chinese in particular, many of whom were convinced of the advantages to be derived from adopting European methods and for appropriating European knowledge. From the Treaty of Portsmouth, which concluded the Russo-Japanese war in 1905, up to the present time, China has been striving towards the realization of national independence and stable domestic government. The work of Dr. Sun Yat Sen in promoting this advance has been very great importance. To him primarily must be attributed the overthrow of the Manchu Imperial dynasty and the establishment of a republic in 1912; to him also must be attributed the establishment of the Kuomintang, a party which aims at securing political reform along the lines of Sun Yat Sen's Triple Demoism or three principles of nationalism, democracy, and socialism. His premature death in 1925 cannot be considered other than a severe blow to the development of China.

The second phase of the Oriental Renaissance includes the development of national feeling not only in China, but also in India. It is true that before the World War the nationalist movement in India was not of serious importance; during the war, however, nationalist aspirations grew in strength and popularity; many Indians came to feel that the participation of India in the war entitled her to a measure of self government; and the Mohammedan population became disaffected. As a result of their agitation for swaraj the India Act of 1919 made an attempt to set India on the road to dominion status, and a system of so-called "dyarchy" was established which gave to the native a measure of participation in the provincial government.

The close of the Great War marks the end of the second or transition phase of the Asiatic renaissance and the beginning of the most recent phase which is characterised by a new spirit of determination. Up to the years of the Great War, despite the successes of Japan, the greater part of Asia tended to regard the power and position of the western nation as virtually unassailable. But the Great War shattered this concept, and the development of Turkey into a sturdy nation-state in the teeth of the opposition of the Allies finally dispelled all trace of illusion. The history of the past decade has displayed the steadily increasing strength of the forces of nationalism in Turkey, Persia, India, Afghanistan, Thibet, Burma, China and the Philippine Islands. But it is a mistake to suppose that the Oriental renaissance is purely political in essence; it is far more than that. The work of Amanullah in Afghanistan failed because he neglected to take account of the spiritual forces of Mohammedanism; the spirit of nationalism in India is weakened because of the inability of nationalist leaders to weld together the diverse interests and cultural affinities of separate elements of the population. The search of Asia today is not altogether after the ideals of the West, but for a synthesis of western political ideas and eastern culture and spiritual values. The reawakening of Islam has led to the harnessing of its expansive constructive powers towards the realization of a new national idea, owing much to Western civilization, but resting upon its own cultural foundations. At present Turkey, led violently along the path of westernization by Kemal Pasha would seem to be an exception; but here, it must be remembered, Islamic influences have ever been less firmly rooted than in the Mohammedan countries, while during the nineteenth century the Turks displayed more and more a tendency to move away from Islamic beliefs and customs, to hark back to their Turanian past, and to respond to the infiltration of European influences.



The Oriental Renaissance is the most important political development of our time. How far it is likely to be influenced by the ideas of the Russian Revolution is one of the most interesting problems of the modern age. Inevitably this movement will have its own peculiar contributions to make to history, contributions of extraordinary significance, culturally, economically, and politically. The East, awakened out of its secular lethargy is now developing with remarkable rapidity towards a goal which is not yet revealed to us. The tide of the Oriental Renaissance is rising.

NOW! A MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF TALENT IN ONE GLORIOUS HOUR YOU'LL LONG REMEMBER

"The Big BROADCAST"

KATE SMITH
VINCENT LOPEZ
ARTHUR TRACY
STUART ERWIN
THE MILLS BROS.
BOSWELL SISTERS
CAB CALLOWAY
BURNS and ALLEN
LEILA HYAMS
BING CROSBY

Capitol THEATRE
SATURDAY
MONDAY
TUESDAY

TIVOLI TO-DAY AND SATURDAY

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

SOLD EXCLUSIVELY AT
LUCILLE'S Ltd.
160 Princess St.
Chiffon
Semi-Service 69c | Service $1.00 | $1.50
The Usual Students' Discount Prevails

PENMANS
NEW SILK HOSIERY
ALL OUR HOSIERY IS GUARANTEED

STUDENTS
Can save quite a few Dollars trading at Bibbys
If a choice Suit or Overcoat means anything to you, we would strongly advise that you see the
New Suits and Overcoats we are offering at $15.00
Note the newness of style, the smartness of the models, the tailoring, the variety of models.
Positively the Best Suit and O'Coats Values ever offered for the money
See our New Hat The Highgate $2.95
See our Goat Skin Gloves at $1.25
See Our Glendale Shirts at $1.45
We'll be lookin' for you!
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Queen's Ready For Tussle With Purple And White

Continued from page 1

Possessing a line that has always been noted for its pushing power and its ruggedness on defense, the Mustangs can generally be considered as a poor team to trifle with on line plays. Queen's, however, had nothing to fear in the game at London and should hold Western again.

Paterson on the Western backfield, is the spark plug of the team, and it was his presence that defeated Varsity. He is a kicker par excellence and is also a field general of no mean ability. In addition he has Awde to help him carry out his chores.

But the Tricolor should not suffer in comparison and in fact we should have an edge over Western on backfield play. In Howie Carter we have a hoofer as is a hoofer, and if he gets the protection he needs, Howie will attend to the booting duties nicely. Davoud has already proven himself to be a wonder at broken field running and Western will have to tie him up before they have disposed of a real threat. His ability at drop and placement kicking likewise constitutes trouble for the Mustangs. Either Day or Davis will give him ample help on the backfield.

Prior to the McGill game, forward passes were considered as a weak spot in the Tricolor's armour. But the able manner in which Coach Burt solved the problem in the last battle at Montreal, should fill Queen's with confidence that they can take care of that type of play. Western have had plenty of luck with the forward pass and can be counted upon to use it.

At this date it is not possible to figure out what plan of attack the rival coaches will decide upon. That of course will depend upon ground and weather conditions, but Queen's should be ready for any eventuality.

Coach Burt is satisfied that his charges have reached the peak and that they are every bit as good as the opposition and then some. The students are mighty proud of the progress of the team to date and its courage under fire. With their never-say-die spirit, they have proven themselves a true Tricolor squad.

Anyway you look at it, this game appears to be hand picked for those who like their rugby games, close, exciting and strenuous. A big hand should come from the students, and that means all through the game. It means much to the boys.

McMaster Aspires To Intercollegiate Honors

Since being transplanted from Toronto to Hamilton, McMaster university has grown like the famous green bay tree and if they have their way it won't be long before they are in with the Big fellows in Senior Intercollegiate circles, not only in basketball, but in other branches of sport as well.

In the recent Intermediate Track and Field Championships, at Hamilton, McMaster ran away from Western and O.A.C., piling up a huge total of points. In addition they bettered the times and records of the senior meet in seven events, and right now they possess a track and field squad that would give any senior team a licking. They have applied for senior rating and can hardly be kept out.

And now McMaster, along with R.M.C. and O.A.C. have made application for senior basketball rating. If their application is successful, they will be grouped together to form a three team group, while McGill, Varsity and Queen's will form another group, playoffs between winners of the respective groups deciding the Senior Intercollegiate champs. This will be debated at the meeting in November of the Canadian Intercollegiate Amateur Union.

Varsity Victory May Assure Championship

While the struggle at home between Queen's and Western will take up most of our attention, all rugby fans in this district will be exceedingly anxious to know the result of the game in Montreal.

And there's a reason. A win for Varsity will just about end the picture for all other teams but Western. Should Western win here and Queen's beat Varsity in Toronto on the 12th, Western and Varsity would still be tied regardless of Torontos winning in Montreal.

Just what McGill's chances are of beating Varsity is a toss up. Against Queen's last Saturday they looked very ordinary but they can be depended upon to play much better football. They have it in them, and all Tricolor fans will be looking for it to come out in large measure.

FOOTBALL GLOSSARY

ASSISTANT COACH: gentleman who takes care of coach when he swoons following dumb move of quarterback.

ANTS: small insects with poisonous sting; found in pants of substitutes whom the coach has ordered to warm up.

ALUMNI: see inebriate.

ALUMNAE: persons to whom alumni report.

BACKFIELD: essential part of team; employed to make game more interesting because they give linesman opportunity to make tackles, thus preventing backfield men from running off with ball and breaking up game.

CAPTAIN: brains of team; sometimes unusually intelligent team has brains enough for two captains.

COPS: see "Halton's Dictionary of Obscene Words;" known, also, as flaticet, dicks, bulls, etc.; employed by city to take joy out of life and annoy alumni.

FLASK: container carried by alumni who have innate fear of being bitten by snakes; also used as fortification against the rigors of thirst and cold.

FORWARD PASSES

You need three eyes for this game. Two to watch the field and one to peek at the scoreboard to see how Varsity and McGill are faring.

* * * * * *

A McGill triumph is imperative to the Tricolor's further climb. With Sinclair still out the Red team has a chance.

* * * * * *

Western will present a fast powerful team to the fans. And they possess a half back in Patterson who takes a back seat to no one.

* * * * * *

Queen's students have a royal chance to show the Governor General how we can cheer our team on. The cheering has not been up to par as yet and you cannot put all the blame on the cheer leaders. Let's do better.

* * * * * *

The Intermediates will require a lot of luck in their invasion of Toronto. They have improved since the Varsity visit here and should put up a much more respectable battle.

* * * * * *

The race is nearing the end on all fronts. Sarnia are in there but the Big 4 sprint is still undecided.

Maple Leafs End Pre-Season Training And go to Toronto

Winding up their pre-season training with an exhibition game with Syracuse, the Toronto Leafs broke camp and transferred their workouts to the Arena in Toronto.

It has been an inspiration to all hockey fans and players to have such stars here, and while most of the students could not afford to pay the steep prices asked for the exhibition game, they derived considerable pleasure and profit from watching the daily workouts.

A huge crowd attended the game which was won by the Maple Leafs 5 to 3. At that it was a front line loaned to Syracuse that scored the three goals and it was only due to the good work of Chabot in the Leaf net that the score was not higher.

The interest of the crowd was centered upon the famous "Kid" line of Connacher, Jackson and Primeau, and everything that has been written about this trio appears to be true. They have speed to burn, plenty of tricks and play very well together.

Andy Blair, Bob Gracie and Ken Doraty composed a new kid line and was loaned to the Syracuse Stars for the evening. This trio also showed up very well and scored the three goals.

Sing Sing Lost Rugby Star By Graduation

"Jumbo", (Powerhouse) Marino, big cog in the green and white Sing Sing gridiron machine, has been ruled ineligible for further play this season. The Sing Sing coach, John Law, former Notre Dame football luminary, ruled that the big fullback could no longer participate in the institution's sports; because Marino's sentence ran out last Wednesday.

There may be depressions, jobs may be scarce, but this does not apply to the late inmate of Sing Sing. The swarthy young back smashed through the hard line of life for a long gain when he succeeded in obtaining a job with the Patterson, N.J., Night Hawks, a professional football eleven in the Eastern League, immediately upon his release.

Goodbye Forever!

Marino's valedictory to his pals and dear ol' Sing Sing will go down in the annals of the institutions as one of the most memorable. Last Saturday before a crowd of 4,000 spectators, Powerhouse reaped sweet revenge over the Port Jervis, N.Y. police gridsters. The representatives of law and order trounced the convicts last year 13-0, but this year the prisoners saw to it that the disgraceful beating was forever erased as the Sing Sing eleven whipped the policemen 7-0.

Although Marino did not do the scoring for Sing Sing, he did pave the way for the victorious penitentiary. He let the honors of scoring go to his team mate, Joe Lewis, a comparative youngster. However, when "Jumbo" came off the field, all battered, bruised, and hobbling, the victory clearly in the hands of dear ol' alma mater; the whole audience arose as one man to shout his name as none other has been shouted before or will be—that's the ol' fightin' spirit, you know.

The absence of Marino in the Sing Sing line-up will surely be felt, but Warden Law and the Powerhouse, himself, were very anxious for the release. "Jumbo" came to Sing Sing three years ago on a theft charge when the boy was only seventeen years old.

—Daily Tar Heel.

Intermediates Battle Varsity To-Morrow

While the senior team is in a death struggle with Western here the Second team will be battling the Varsity Seconds in a game that means little to either team. Varsity appear to have a strangle hold on Junior as well as Intermediate crowns and while it is hardly likely that Queen's will take a fall out of them, still the Seconds are looking better every time out.

Coach Abe Zvonkin has laboured long and mightily to get the team in shape, and while they have shown an improvement, they still lack the services of a good kicker, to compete with the other teams in the race. A good hoofer would have made all the difference in the world to the Seconds in both their games with Ottawa.

Nevertheless the Intermediates will journey to the Queen City ready to battle Varsity to a fare thee well and record their first win. We're passing them plenty of luck, something tells us they can use it all.

R. M. C. Easily Beat Ottawa Intermediates

R. M. C. Intermediates had little trouble in smearing Ottawa 19 to 1 in a scheduled Intercollegiate fixture at Richardson Stadium Wednesday afternoon.

Half time found the Cadets leading 13 to 0 as a result of powerful drives that netted two touches, two converts and a rouge.

The third quarter was scoreless and produced the best rugby of the game.

Ottawa's lonely point was garnered in the final quarter via a rouge. The Cadets blocked an Ottawa kick and scored a third touch, which with a single point ended the scoring.

The Cadets' line was far too powerful and this decided the issue.

Sing a song of students,
Stomachs full of rye,
Many worthy fellows
Feeling kind of spry.

Smoke
Buckingham
—and Smile

Not one cent has ever been paid to people for Buckingham testimonials—yet Buckingham has received more praise from people in every walk of life than any other cigarette

20 for 25¢

B-339

Twenty-One to One!

A TIP TOP suit or overcoat is cut and tailored to your own twenty-one personal measurements. Fashioned with care from the finest of English Woollens, fit and satisfaction are guaranteed absolutely. Yet you pay only TIP TOP TAILORS' "Price of Quality."

A winner every time.

$22.50

MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS

119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —

Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.

Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear

170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS

SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON BADMINTON RACQUETS

HALF PRICE

WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP

202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN  WATCHES

Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted

GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE

216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN

BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES

The Room of Distinction

First Class Equipment First Class Service

TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.

233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop

There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer

Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.

213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE

Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,

FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT

Sakell's Tea Room

"We are pround of our Clientele"

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"

MILLS

FURS

IN OUR NEW BUILDING

A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.

GEORGE MILLS & CO

Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1852

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Shop
280 Princess Street
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
Fresh Tobacco Soft Drinks
Magazines
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

NEILSON'S CHOCOLATES
(Reduced Again)
60c Boxes now 50c
2 lb. Boxes now $1.00
19c Bars (plain) 15c

M. R. McColl
Prescription Druggist
260 University Ave.
Your nearest Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor

C. O. T. C.

Regimental Orders by
Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar.
Commanding Queen's University
Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Season 1932-1933.
2nd November, 1932.

Part I.

No. 13.
Examinations, Supplemental.

The written examinations of Certificate "A" and "B" will commence on Monday, 7th November, 1932, and will be conducted in the following order.

(1) Certificate "A", First Paper, Tuesday, 8th Nov. 4-6 p.m.; Second Paper, 8th Nov., 7-9 p.m.

(2) Certificate "B" First Paper, Monday, 7th Nov., 4-7 p.m.; Second Paper, Monday, 7th Nov. 8-10 p.m.; Third Paper, Tuesday, 8th Nov., 7-9 p.m.

(3) All examinations will be written in the draughting room, Carruthers Hall.

No. 14.
Parades.

(1) All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room, Tuesday 7th Nov. at 7 p.m., and will be marched to the armouries for Battalion drill.

(2) Dress Church parade order, uniforms with side arms.

(3) This parade will cancel the regular Tuesday afternoon parade as called for in Regimental Order, Part 1, No. 10.

No. 15.
Uniform Issue.

All members of the corps who have not yet drawn uniforms will do so between the hours of 4-6, 7th Nov.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
A/Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

Part II.

No. 5.
Attachment.

Lieut. D. T. Burke, C.C.F.G., ceases to be attached for duty with effect from 1st April, 1932. Auth. M.O.—191/1932.

No. 6.
Strength Increase.

The undermentioned are taken on the strength of the contingent with effect from the date set opposite their names.

1414 Legris, A. J. 6-10-32
1415 Slack, W. C. 7-10-32
1416 Cowie, M. C. 11-10-32
1417 Cooney, A. E. 11-10-32
1418 Andrew, R. M. 11-10-32
1419 Millican, J. A. 11-10-32
1420 Brennan, F. C. 11-10-32
1421 Thomson, W. M. ...12-10-32
1422 Anderson, J. B. 12-10-32
1423 Plexman, A. E. 12-10-32
1424 Henry, G. E. 12-10-32
1425 Ross, A. H. 12-10-32
1426 Reid, L. G. 12-10-32
1427 Macdonall, J. A. ...12-10-32
1428 Skinner, A. G. 12-10-32
1429 Pelletier, C. R. M....12-10-32
1430 Poole, R. F. 12-10-32
1431 Crawford, J. S. 12-10-32
1432 Worral, J. D. 12-10-32
1433 Paterson, R. B. 12-10-32
1434 Clancy, G. D. 12-10-32
1435 Ball, R. W. 12-10-32
1436 Swartz, M. 12-10-32
1437 Gherman, E. 12-10-32
1438 McGill, D. I. 12-10-32
1439 Walker, C. M. 12-10-32
1440 Smith, A. 13-10-32
1441 Wong, W. Y. 13-10-32
1442 Janes, T. H. 13-10-32
1443 Ross, R. J. 13-10-32
1444 Culbert, W. H. 13-10-32
1445 Chase, C. E. 13-10-32
1446 Binm, E. 13-10-32
1447 Forsyth, C. W. 13-10-32
1448 Chong, Y. 13-10-32
1449 Lum, Q. S. 13-10-32
1450 McNabb, D. 13-10-32
1451 Morden, E. 13-10-32
1452 Burr, D. G. 13-10-32
1453 Currie, C. 13-10-32
1454 Neil, T. A. 13-10-32
1455 Hoch, M. F. 13-10-32
1456 Echlin, R. H. 14-10-32
1457 Leslie, A. M. 14-10-32
1458 Fair, G. H. 14-10-32
1459 Elmsley, A. M. 14-10-32
1460 14-10-32
1461 MacRae, W. J. 14-10-32
1462 Molloy, R. J. 14-10-32
1463 Fairbridge, R. W. ...14-10-32
1464 Gorlett, J. 15-10-32
1465 Fritz, W. D. 15-10-32
1466 Lukes, H. N. 15-10-32
1467 Kitto, W. C. 15-10-32
1467 Kitto, W. C. 15-10-32
1468 Kamm, C. C. 17-10-32
1469 9Alsop, S. E. 17-10-32
1470 Wenger, P. 17-10-32
1471 Maylew, P. 18-10-32
1472 Barber, W. D. 18-10-32
1473 Saunders, K. W. 18-10-32
1474 Nicholson, R. M. ..18-10-32
1475 Knight, H. M. 18-10-32
1476 King, F. W. 18-10-32
1477 Handcock, C. B. 18-10-32
1478 Joy, F. W. 18-10-32
1479 Dalton, J. E. 18-10-32
1479 Dalton, J. E. 19-10-32
1480 Thomas, J. A. 18-10-32
1481 Robinson, C. E. 18-10-32
1482 Grabb, J. E. 19-10-32
1483 Warwick, H. 19-10-32
1484 Cimon, M. A. 19-10-32
1485 Gombola, P. 19-10-32
1486 Tkach, S. 19-100-32
1487 Kent, A. D. 20-10-32
1488 Walker, G. C. 20-10-32
14699 Wesley, W. R. ...20-10-32
1490 Elliott, T. J. 25-10-32

No. 7.
Appointments.

Lieut. D. T. R. McColl, to be acting Adjutant with effect 1st Oct. 1933.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
A/Adj. Q.U.C., C.O.T.C

Book Chats

By R.M.

Private lives that are romantically immoral make enthralling reading. Why this is so is difficult to explain. One might say that it's just human nature and let it go at that. Somehow, dull people who have done great deeds don't make good subjects for successful biographies. Of course this is looking at the thing wholly from the point of view of entertainment. The really great biographies are much more than an exposé of the petty vices and moral turpitudes of historical figures.

Emerson went so far as to say that "There is properly no history, only biography." But the view that significant movements in history were caused by great men might be challenged. However, we will not go into that. A more reasonable attitude would be that of Goethe's who believed that the object of biography is to show how man is affected by his environment and how his environment is affected by him. If this opinion is accepted the question arises—how deep should an author dig into the private life of the character he attempts to portray. This is a question of literary values. And despite the art for art's sake enthusiasts, I believe that there should be some limits, else the "great man" should turn in his grave at merciless revelation of his mortal sins. Enough should be told to show the character and his achievements in proper proportion.

What qualities are necessary for a good biography? This can best be answered by examining some of the works that have stood the test of time. In the first place the reader wants a picture that will live; that has the characteristics of a good portrait, with its selectiveness and faithfulness to life.

ings of the deceased or place undue emphasis on trivial incidents. The chief fault with modern biographies very often is that they are ponderous, stereotyped and exceedingly uninteresting. If the author has the temerity to introduce new facts he treats them in a conventional manner; if he adopts a new point of view usually his material is superficial.

It is not possible to obtain complete agreement as to the best biographies in the English language. Few, however, would take issue with me for mentioning such works as the following:

Boswell's Life of Johnson.
Lockhart's Life of Scott.
Rousseau's Confessions.
Benvenuto Cellini's Autobiography.
St. Augustine's Confessions.
Samuel Pepy's Diary.
Casanova's Memoirs.
De Quincey's Confessions.

How's Your Laundress?

If your laundress has no college degree and didn't learn how to wash clothes in a college laboratory, then she can't begin to compete with the girls in the home economics classes at Oklahoma A. and M., where the method of washing clothes correctly is taught in class. Table linens and towels, used when luncheons and dinners are served at the home economics building, are washed with several different kinds of electric washing machines and the advantages and disadvantages of each machine charted.

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street

Welcome Queen's Students

To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.

"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

Forty issues of the latest in campus news at Queen's and other Canadian Universities

ONE YEAR'S SUBSCRIPTION $1.75

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

Now In Progress
And Going Strong!!

ABRAMSKY'S

$50,000

CASH SALE!!

NEVER IN OUR ENTIRE BUSINESS CAREER IN KINGSTON HAVE WE EVER SLASHED PRICES SO RIDICULOUSLY LOW.

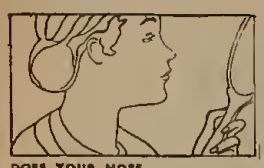
ENTIRE STOCK

MUST BE TURNED INTO READY CASH AT ONCE, HENCE THESE DRASTIC PRICE CUTS ARE NOW IN EFFECT IN OUR MEN'S AND WOMEN'S DEPT.

Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.



Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout

Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT
Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Faults Of Economic System Considered

Mr. Cameron's Discussion Group met on Wednesday evening to consider the faults of the present economic system.

From the first it was decided that there was considerable discontent among the employees. This is due to the discipline which is required in the factory system. Under this system the employee is under a very weak bargaining position with his employer. Thus he feels that he is at too great a disadvantage.

There is also inequality as regards the opportunity of persons. That is, a person who has the ability is kept down by the fact that his surroundings are limited. However, the present system is trying to overcome this situation by rewarding that person who has the ability.

Under our present economic system, waste is a predominate weakness. There is considerable waste in distribution through the lack of co-operation on the part of the distributors. Advertising creates the greatest waste in our competitive system. Large fortunes are spent by firms each year in order to compete with its rival. There is also considerable waste in production, though here, competition tends to make the corporation be more saving with its discard material to the point where he uses that waste material for by-products.

Then too, the work seems to be most unevenly distributed. There is an unlimited amount of work to do yet many men are out of work. Why not organize the work so that all shall receive a share?

The discussion broke up and the group was left to consider "Remedies for the Present Economic System," as the topic for next Wednesday at the same time.

Dr. Hawley Explains Strain Ellipsoid Use

"Cleavage fractures and the strain ellipsoid are used in interpreting fault problems" stated Dr. J. E. Hawley in a most instructive lecture given to the Miller Club last Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Hawley who is head of the Mineralogy Department explained that "the strain ellipsoid is a convention used in interpreting fracture cracks." He told that there are two types of fractures which cross each other at right angles and which can be due to the same rotational stress. One is the tensional fracture usually open at the top and closed at the bottom, and the other is the cleavage fracture brought about by shearing and which is usually slickensided with mica present.

During the course of his lecture, Dr. Hawley drew a number of diagrams on the board illustrating in a clear, lucid style the various phases of his speech. He showed how the tops and bottoms of beds can be determined by fracture cleavage. Towards the end of the lecture Dr. Hawley pointed ont the relation of the molybdenum deposits in LaCorne Township, Quebec, to drag folds. The meeting was well attended by professors, graduates and members of the club and as the first meeting of the year it was a great start to this year's activities.

There was a freshman from Quebec
Who sure knew just how to neck
And co-eds galore
Implored him for more,
Till now he's a nervous wreck.

College days once more have come
When students throng the town,
Get into some rooming house
And dream of home's eiderdown.

Campus and Gym

The Arena is expected to be open for Levana hockey practices soon.. There is material for Intercteryear and Intercollegiate teams, with such players as May Mills, last years captain, Jean Nelson, Jean Cameron, Margaret Chambers, Dot Clemens and Margaret McGregor, last year's goalie. Gradnation has deprived us of Gladys Simmons, but otherwise there is the same line-up to choose from, as well as all the Freshettes, who are hockey-minded. ed.

* * *

Queen's basketeers will be interested in the news that Gladys Munnings of last year's Intercollegiate team is at O. C. E. and is expected to make a place on their team in the Interfaculty series at Varsity.

Kingston Group Entertains Queen's Student Music Club

The members of the Queen's Music Club were the guests of the Mnsic Gronp of the Kingston Art and Music Club at their recital last Wednesday. An unusually fine program was presented. The sincerest thanks are due to those who provided such excellent entertainment.

Young Liberals Organize

Those on the campus who have long wished to be affiliated with a club sympathetic with the Liberal party in Federal and Provincial politics, are now to be given that opportunity. Whether or not the organization is to become a branch of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association is not yet known, but those in charge are assured of the support of that group.

The proposed elub is not limited to male students, nor is it confined to the university itself, but extends throughout Kingston, embracing both the city and the college. Jim Davis, Crawford Hall, and Chuck Cochrane are in charge or organization, and have been promised help of various kinds from the Executive of the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

Owing to the shortness of time until the Annual Convention of the Twentieth Century Association on Nov. 12th, it is necessary that the local club organize as speedily as possible and make arrangements for its delegates. The convention will be held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Dramatic Guild presents Initial Offering November 8

Continued from page 1

tunately loses her needle. As may be imagined, the opportunities for comedy are many, and the author never permits any to slip past him.

The Dramatic Gnild has been happy in its choice of plays and as the casts are exceptionally good, the prodnction is sure to be highly successful.

Public Notice

The Arts Society of Queen's University hereby notify the publie that they will not be responsible for any debts contraeted in the name of said Society, which have not been authorized by a requisition slip, signed by the President and Treasurer.

J. STUART WARRINGTON,
President.

ANDREW B. M. BELL,
Treasurer.

Judgment Delivered By A. M. S. Court

Judgment was passed by the A. M. S. Court last Tuesday night on the Meds Sophomore Year which pleaded guilty to contravening the University prohibition against physical initiation of Freshmen.

The sentence handed down by Chief Justice Stanyar provided that a fine of $2 and a bond of $3 be imposed on each of the offenders. Furthermore, the year was prohibited from holding any Dance or Dinner and from calling classes, any breach of these regulations by any man to be deemed sufficient by the Court for all members to forfeit their bond.

The fine and bond must be paid by or on November 9th. In the event of such payment not being made the A. M. S. will recommend to the Senate that the offender or offenders be prevented from attending classes until payment shall have been made.

Judge Stanyar made a few remarks from the bench regarding the offence on which he had just passed judgment. The rules contained in the A. M. S. Constitution, he said, have been made by the student body through the A. M. S., its own organ of government. If Student Government is to continue a reality, he added, these rules must be observed and enforced.

Embryo Geologists Make Merry Field Excursion

Continued from page 1

to take up each year separately?" By this time news had travelled around that the United Church was throwing a chicken dinner for fifty cents a plate. Many lunches were forgotten and the Community Hall was captured by the fossil-hunters with little effort. Afterwards the benches were cleared away and a dance was started with Bill Gummer at the piano.

"Soft eyes looked love to eyes which spake again,
And all went merry as a marriage bell."

"But hush! hark!—the ferry whistle blows. Couples walk arm in arm down the dim street to the wharf and the party returned to Kingston with happy memories. "This", say the frosh, "puts us one up on the sophs." "That," return the sophs, "remains to be seen."

L. A. B. of C. Tea Dance Scheduled For Tomorrow

The L.A.B. of C. is sponsoring a Tea Dance to be held in Ban Righ Hall on Saturday, Nov. 5th, after the Western Queen's game. Good music is assured and the Common Room in Ban Righ Hall is well known as a good dancing floor. Tickets at 75c a couple may be secured from Sally Farlinger in the Red Room and from Dorley Woolsely in Ban Righ Hall.

Co-eds Must Wear Gowns At Annual Convocation

Members of Levana who wish to obtain seats in Grant Hall for the Fall Convocation are reminded that they may best secure seats by wearing academic gowns which will identify them as students. There has been a large number of tickets issued to graduates and Kingstonians, so the student accommodation will be limited.

—Don't try it again—
"Students are back in town,"
Said the registrar with glee,
And this year we've got a lot,
Although I have raised the fee."

At College Headquarters!
Complete display of
QUEEN'S SWEATER COATS
QUEEN'S GYM JERSEYS
FOOTBALL SWEATERS, ETC.
"All That's New — That's All"
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choieest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes Constitutions
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors.
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8th, 1932. No. 12

Queen's Library

Degrees Conferred Upon Eminent Visitors At Convocation Ceremony

Vice-Regal Guests And Premier G. S. Henry Received Honourary Degrees On Saturday

The seating capacity of Grant Hall was taxed to the utmost on Saturday morning by an audience eager to be present at the laureation of Their Excellencies, the Governor-General of Canada, and the Countess of Bessborough, and of Premier George Henry, Prime Minister of Ontario, while the platform seated more than a hundred graduates as well as members of the staff and of the Vice Regal cortege.

The presentation of His Excellency for the degree of Doctor of Laws was the signal for a Queen's Yell from the body of the hall. In presenting the Earl of Bessborough to Chancellor J. A. Richardson, Dr. Fyfe spoke of His Excellency's wide legal and legislative experience; and also referred to his enthusiasm for the development of culture, "especially in that most excellent form of self-expression Community Drama."

In presenting the Countess of Bessborough, Dr. Fyfe made reference to the pioneer work of Queen's in the field of co-education, and paid a graceful tribute to Her Excellency's personal charm "which has won the adherence of all sections of the Canadian people."

EARL OF BESSBOROUGH

Who with his consort, the Countess of Bessborough, was recipient of honorary degree at Fall Convocation.

Presenting Prime Minister Henry, Dr. Fyfe alluded to the valuable work done by the Hon. George Henry as "The Chief Highwayman of Ontario," and to his later services to the province as Prime Minister and Minister of Education.

After the honorary degrees had been conferred His Excellency made a short speech in which he said.

"I appreciate very highly the honor that your University has done me today; I value it both for its intrinsic merit and also for the permanent association that it gives me with Queen's, an association which will endnre beyond the limit of my residence in Canada."

"Today, at any rate, if it is principally in my capacity as His Majesty's representative that I stand before you thus academically robed, I am equally sensible of the very pleasant personal note in the welcome which Queen's has given me. That note has been emphasized from the outset by the fact that the University has invited Lady Bessborough to share with me both in its welcome and the acceptance of the highest honour that it can confer upon its guests."

In the course of his speech His Excellency referred to Mr. E. R. Peacock, Queen's graduate, and a director of the Bank of England, describing him as "a valued personal friend of my own." He also said, "I may say that few recent items of news have given me greater

Continued on page 4

A.B.ofC. Supports Water Polo Team

The Athletic Board will do all in its power to promote water polo at Queen's, Charlie Hicks, the Secretary, told a Journal representative yesterday. The Board, acceding to requests last year, opened negotiations with an Ottawa team, but the plans could not be carried through. Mr. Hicks said that the small number of water polo teams made the task of arranging matches very difficult. This year it is hoped to arrange a home and home series with a team of our strength.

Newman Club Holds Discussion Groups

Religious Questions Discussed By Groups

During the first four evenings of last week the discussion groups of the Newman Club met in St. James' Chapel. A chaplain had been appointed for each group and the meetings were well attended. Questions pertaining to religion and student courses at Queen's were discussed.

On Sunday, Nov. 6th the 2nd monthly meeting of the Club was held in the K. of C. Hall, King St. The regular business of the meeting was carried out and it was decided that a social evening be held in the near future in St. Mary's Hall.

The speaker for the day, His Excellency Archbishop O'Brien, addressed the Club on the Separate School question. The subject was well treated by the speaker.

Dr. Harbeson moved a hearty vote of thanks for the address which was heartily seconded by the Club.

Following the serving of refreshments the meeting adjourned until Dec. 4th.

Levana Tea Dance Well Attended Event

Tea Dance Popular Alumni Rendezvous

The L. A. B. of C Tea Dance was one of the many ways of celebrating the week-end, and about sixty couples availed themselves of the privilege. The music, as supplied by Bill Gummer, was in his usual diverting style. Miss Gordon and Miss Allen poured tea in the hall, which was beautifully decorated with baskets of mums.

Levana tea dances have become popular and are highlights of any week-end in which they occur. Dancers are always assured of a good floor and an atmosphere of gracious hospitality customary to Ban Righ Hall.

The very capable committee in charge included Doreen Kenny, convener. Jean Nelson, Sally Farlinger and Dot Brooks.

Meds Formal To Be Gala Affair

If all plans of the Medical Formal Committee carry, and it is confidently expected that they will, the Medical At Home of this year will prove to be the finest of a long line of colorful successes of the Medical Faculty.

The music will again be supplied by Wright Bros. Orchestra, the famous band from the Brant Inn of Burlington.

It was the consensus of opinion that Wright Bros. music was the finest ever heard at a formal of any kind in Kingston, and dance lovers are assured that this band of 10 pieces can make a success of any dance.

In addition to the above, the committee is arranging for other details that will aid in making the Medical Formal of 1932 an outstanding success.

The date is November 25th. Those intending to go are advised to make reservations early.

Importance Of Queen's In Province And Dominion Stressed By Premier Henry

Premier Henry Pays Tribute To Queen's

"The importance of Queen's University in the Province and in the Dominion cannot be overlooked" declared Premier Henry speaking at the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association, on Saturday morning.

Mr. Henry went on to pay tribute to the invaluable work of Queen's in Canada with special reference to the Province of Ontario. "I wonder whether we realize how comprehensive a University is expected to be" he said. "The functions of a University are many. To students it is a teaching organization. I look on it as home for intellectual leaders." The Premier of Ontario then alluded to the outstanding work of Queen's in the Dept. of Extension, and in the advancement of research.

Along the line of educational work Queen's had, he stated, played a prominent part, notably in the training of teachers for the universities of the Dominion.

"But more important still," he stressed, "has been the contribution which she has made to elementary and secondary education through the facilities which she has offered for teachers in elementary and secondary schools to improve their educational standing and to qualify themselves for higher positions in the service.

"Queen's," said Mr. Henry, "has contributed 33 per cent. of the graduate teachers, 48 per cent. of the school principals, 60 per cent. of the school inspectors, and 43 per cent. of the specialists in high schools and collegiate institutes. It may be added," he said, "that many of these teachers are occupying some of the highest positions in the province.

The Premier made a special reference to the Queen's spirit which he had found so notable a characteristic not only of students

Continued on page 7

HON. G. S. HENRY

Who addressed the Alumni over the week-end. Mr. Henry was also honored by the University at Convocation.

Plans To Renovate Grant Hall Approved

Alumni Takes Steps To Finance Project

At the semi-annual meeting of the General Alumni Association, held at the University on Friday evening, it was decided that the Association should undertake the raising of a fund for the purpose of renovating Grant Hall.

Grant Hall was built by the graduates of Queen's in 1904 as a memorial to George Monro Grant, who was Principal of the University from 1877 to 1902. Perhaps Queen's owes more to Principal Grant than to any other single man. Not only was he a great educator; he was a great Canadian.

In almost thirty years nothing beyond very superficial repairs have been done to the Hall, and it urgently requires thorough restoration if it is to remain the credit to Queen's that both graduates and students will al-

Continued on page 4

Queen's And Western Tie Score After Hard Battle For Supremacy

Western Line Held Better Than Tricolor But Queen's Showed Superiority In Backfield Play

Battling desperately for the advantage, Queen's and Western fought tooth and nail for the full sixty minutes last Saturday, only to finish on an even footing, the final score being 4–4.

Incidently the Tricolor aided considerably in wrapping up the championship for Varsity, by removing the Blue team's last possible threat. No matter what the outcome is in the final scheduled games next week-end, Varsity are at the top of the heap.

Sensing the importance of the game, and realizing that the two teams would not yield while there was a hope left, the largest crowd of the year turned out to see the struggle. At that the grandstand crowd could have been larger for at starting time, the monied pews were only about two-thirds occupied. Over on the opposite side of the field every seat was taken up and the crowd, particularly the students, showed more pep than in any previous game.

The game was featured by the presence for a short time of Lord and Lady Bessborough. The Governor General and his Consort arrived well in advance of game time, but departed shortly after the start of the second quarter, thereby missing the most thrilling portion of the game.

No one can complain of 1932 brand of senior rugby weather. For the third time this year, the teams have galloped out into perfect weather conditions. A brisk wind blew almost straight across field, while a warm sun took the chill off the spicy November air.

Western appeared on the field early, and indulged in a warming up bee. They were at full strength, their ace Paterson being ready for a full game.

Queen's were late in appearing and had only a minute or so of limbering before the officials gathered the flock together in centre field for a list of the does and don'ts.

In some respects it was a replica of the McGill game for Queen's were trailing at the end of the first three periods, mainly because of Western's accurate forward passing. The Mustangs got into scoring position three times in the first half, by the use of the basketball heave, and Paterson did the necessary.

Along the wingline, the battling was hard but clean, and while Western, with their giant wall, had the better of it, the margin was not great enough to affect the score. Queen's did mighty well to hold the Western line as thoroughly as they did, as this Mustang front has steam and power enough for two teams.

(Continued on page 6)

Dramatic Guild To Meet November 9

The regular monthly meeting of the Dramatic Guild will be held on Wednesday evening, November 9th, at 8.00 p.m. in Room 211, Douglas Library. The Guild is very glad to welcome Professor Alexander as guest speaker for the evening and it is hoped that all members and interested students will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing this able speaker. During the meeting, a play "Helen's Husband" by Philip Moeller will be read.

Angler-Fish Shows Effect Of Habitation

Lecture Illustrated With Reproductions

Mr. J. Stevenson was the speaker at the last meeting of the Natural History Club. He spoke on the fishes of the deep-sea, taking the oceanic angler-fishes as an example; and illustrated his lecture with a series of reproductions of paintings, drawings and British Museum sketches.

The abyss of the ocean is the largest and most uniform single habitat that is known. Fishes of the same species have been found in nearly all the great oceans. These fish show remarkable adaptations to the conditions under which they live. Absence of light, which in turn causes absence of plant life; pressure up to 3 or 4 tons per square inch; low, uniform temperature and viscosity; food ultimately derived from the falling bodies of dead plants from the upper layers; and the vast size of the habitat, are among the many factors that influence the animal life.

The oceanic angler-fishes show many exceptional adaptations to these conditions. Their teeth are so arranged that once they start eating, they cannot possibly let go of their prey; and once it has started down it must continue. To accommodate fishes of large size, the stomachs of the "anglers" are distensible to an extraordinary extent, and are able comfortably to hold fishes many times their captor's size.

Probably the most peculiar habit is the parasitism of the males on the females. The males, at first free-swimming, later attach themselves to the female. The mouth-parts degenerate, and the blood-streams of the two become continuous, as in Siamese twins. Tate-Regan, of the British Museum says that probably the vast size of the habitat, and the consequent small chances of a male ever meeting a female cause these fishes to do this as early in life as possible, even before maturity.

In conclusion, Mr. Stevenson stated that our knowledge of these forms is very limited.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8th, 1932

A Memorable Week-end

The visit of Their Excellencies, the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough, should long remain in the memory of the undergradnate body. Since coming to Canada they have endeavoured to earn a place in the esteem of the Canadian people, and they were not long in finding out that the Nation could not remain lukewarm to their graciousness, affability and concern for the material and cultural welfare of the Dominion. Canadians have taken them to their hearts.

Queen's is thankful for the opportunity just afforded of expressing its heart-felt esteem and affection to the Earl of Bessborough and his charming consort. The geniality and amiability of the Earl and the beauty and charm of the Countess took the student body by storm and the rousing cheers sent up at the Convocation ceremonies and upon their departure from the Richardson Stadium came from a deep-felt admiration

While the vice-regal visit afforded Queen's an excellent opportunity of expressing in a direct way its loyalty to the present occupants of Rideau Hall, our tribute to these distinguished guests was also a sincere token of allegiance to our Sovereign. Occasions such as these can only result in strengthening our ties with the Mother Land, and do more towards prompting a spirit of good will than Imperial Conferences and tours of politicians as ambassadors of "bonne entente."

The presence of Their Excellencies, the Honorable George Henry, Premier of Ontario, and the many Queen's gradnates here for the annual Alumni reunion, contribnted in making the past week-end a truly memorable one, a festive occasion that shonld remain for long a cherished memory to all students and well wishers of Qneen's.

Sentimentality

The dictionary calls it "mawkish tenderness" but it is fundamentally an evasion of facts. The girl who automatically describes any child, however disagreeable as "the sweetest little thing," is just sliding happily over reality and closing her eyes to it. She misses a good deal, because she is deliberately grouping variety into one great uninteresting category. She never sees the finer shades of life. The same class of person has a horror of independent thought, and will always draw a red herring of a formula across what might have been an original trail. The sentimentalist may well sympathise with the Athenians in their treatment of Socrates: it is so much easier not to bother as to why one does things, and so irritating to be cross-questioned about one's meaning. Fortunately the average modern inquirer is satisfied with one of those useful clichés, "Isn't life like that?" or simply "Oh, say" will be found useful in this connection. Although it may be disconcerting, it is generally worth while to go into the problem more thoroughly and to discover that one meant nothing at all. But the sentimentalist abominates such thoroughness.

Another dangerous kind of sentimentality is that which gives a halo to anything "old." This word may be applied to any object or tradition dating from fifty or more years ago, irrespective of the beauty, utility or wisdom of the thing in question. These qualities may be as doubtful as you please: it is solely on account of its age that the object is venerated. Because it is old (and therefore apparently "ente") it must be admired. It is a pity that so many people have such a low standard of age. There is very little merit in the mere fact of survival from the Victorian era, yet often the so-called "antique" has nothing else to recommend it. One is tempted to wonder whether a world without sentiment would not be a healthier place.

The Arts Society

A vigorous campaign has been instituted by the Arts Society Executive in answer to the charges of inefficiency and degeneracy recently cast at the Society. A circular letter to all its members has already been sent as a means of throwing light on its operations to date. A plea is also addressed to every member for his whole-hearted support.

In our opinion, this constitntes a direct challenge to all Arts men. Their faculty organization has suffered only through their unexplainable lack of interest and support. An efficient, concientious, and self-sacrificing executive is at the head of the Society and success rests with the students themselves.

May we be permitted to repeat once again the plea for support recently made by the Executive. It is the duty of every Arts man to boost his Society by taking a keen interest in its operations. Start today by attending the meeting at 4.15 in Room 201, New Arts Building.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Queen's University and Women

When the Countess of Besshorought received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at Queen's University Satnrday morning, she became the third wife of a Governor-General of Canada to accept that mark of honor from the Kingston seat of learning. Queen's was the first university to bestow the degree upon a woman, Lady Aberdeen accepting it in 1894 when Lord Aberdeen was the popnlar Governor at Rideau Hall. Then Lady Byng was accorded the honor when her distingnished husband was in office as Canada's Governor. Now the Countess of Bessborough, who has been a leader in the affairs of womanhood, has been added to the distinguished graduates of the old university established here by the Church of Scotland in 1841.

Queen's has always led in co-education. It was the first university in Canada—and, perhaps, America—to admit women to its arts and medical courses. It was the first university in this country to establish a women's medical school in the year 1880, and it led in giving honorary degrees to women when Lady Aberdeen became one of its alumnae.

—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Official Notices

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

Armistice Day

All classes will meet as usual on November 11th, Armistice Day. Two minutes' silence will be observed at eleven o'clock and all ten o'clock classes will remain in their class rooms until the ringing of the bell at two minutes after eleven.

A. J. and Margaret Grant Bursary in Arts.

This Scholarship is now worth $595.75. As it was not awarded on Matriculation it is now open in the first instance to properly qualified students in the Faculty of Arts who have come from the high schools of Glengarry. All students from the high schools of Glengarry who are registered in the Faculty of Arts are asked to send their names to the Registrar by November 15th in order that the Committee on Scholarships may be in a position to draw up proper regulations for the award of the Scholarship.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

The Carton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Trainer: "Know what a martingale is?"

New Boy—"Yessir—a kind of swallow that sings by night.

A naturalist has said that certain birds go to England for the summer once, but never return again. It is easy to understand.

ARTS '35 YEAR FEES

On Thursday morning from 9 to 12 noon, Arts '35 Year Fees will be collected in the Arts Club Room. All Year Fees should be paid by the end of this week, either to Eric Gilmour, A. C. Sillery, or Jenny Roberts.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

WE BOW GRACEFULLY

●● but with becoming modesty, to acknowledge the enthusiastic loyalty shown by smokers of Turets everywhere. Turets have for years had the largest sale of any Virginia cigarette in Canada . . . a tribute to their outstanding quality and mildness.

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

Students...
We do not give advice on love matters, stock markets, or weather conditions, locate lost articles, missing relatives or buried treasure—
But fof Dependable Drug Service — that's us!
Prompt, Cheerful, Careful and —Reasonable—
WARD & HAMILTON
Limited
4—Convenient Stores—4
Where students like to shop

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

Bander Snatches

"Come on," said the Red Queen. "We'll never get a seat if you don't hurry up. We want to be in the front row, you know."

She and Alice horried up the steps in Grant Hall and rushed into the gallery where they managed (by dint of much unseemly pushing on the Red Queen's part) to get seats in the front row, right over the centre aisle ("So we can drop chocolate-bar wrappers on the procession as it goes up," the Red Queen remarked.)

After several whitings (without bread-crumbs) had made divers undistinguishable noises on violins and so on a very dignified procession, attired in academic robes filed slowly up the centre and onto the platform. Here they seated themselves in a body and all sat looking forbiddingly (she was SURE of it) at Alice.

"What lovely gowns!" she whispered into the Red Queen's ear, "Who are they?"

"Oh, the professors, because they represent so many different colleges in the prettiest color combinations; then there are the Church Dignitaries — one from each Church. You know and —"

"But aren't there more churches than that?" Alice interrupted.

"OF COURSE," said the Red Queen, "But their clergy haven't such showy trimmings!"

"Who else is in the procession?" inquired our little Freshette.

"Well, there's the Mayor—because he has a gold chain, and the Military representatives because they have lots of gold braid on their uniform and the doctors —you see, they aren't business men —"

"But," Alice interrupted again, "Isn't that the banker we had to pay our fees to?" (Alice hadn't gotten her Lower School Grammar, you see.)

"Certainly! He's here too. Now my good girl, don't ask me any more questions about it because I don't know any more answers. Besides, this is the Mock Turle's party—he helps run it and the Princ. lets him hold the hoods. There are lots of people he doesn't know, and lots of people who don't know him. Now do shut up — here comes the Governor-General and his wife and the Premier and the Princ. and the Chancellor and —"

"Oh!" said Alice. "Isn't he the cutest ever!"

"Shush," hissed the Red Queen. "That's no way to talk about our ruler's representative!"

"Why I don't mean him: I mean that wonderful man in the kilts. Don't you just —"

"Huh!" the Red Queen cut in grumpily, "That's just the way with Freshettes. I don't know why we ever let you into College."

Alice was so humbled by this remark that she scarcely saw or heard any more of the ceremony. She missed the Principal's remarks, the Governor-General's speech and that of the Premier. She didn't recover her poise until the whole thing was over.

After a hurried lunch, Alice and the Red Queen set out for the Stadium to watch the great gridiron struggle. (Alice, who was rather dumb, more than most Freshettes, thought this must be a cooking lesson.) Her chrysanthemum had such a long stem that it kept bobbing up under her chin as she walked and by the time she arrived, her face had taken on an unusual yellow tinge.

A rugby game was a new thing to Alice's young life and she had some difficulty in understanding the fine points of the plays as the Red Queen explained them to her.

Their seats were near the 55 yard line and when the Governor-General and his party had become settled opposite them (on the other side of the field, of course) the game began.

As the game progressed, Alice became more and more bewildered. Both teams seemed undecided now and then. She soon began to think that they resembled the Lobster Quadrille. She recalled the Gryphon's excited description and decided that it fitted the situation before her eyes.

The players formed in two lines ("Exactly like it," Alice remarked to herself) and each seemed to have a partner. They advanced (having first of course, cleared the water-boys and things out of the way) into a regular melee of flying feet.

"Now why do they shout all those numbers?" she asked the Red Queen.

"Why those are the plays. For instance when they yell 17 that means "Fumble." was the matter-of-fact answer.

Just then the team in possession went into kick formation and Alice heard a confused jumble of numbers called, among which was 17.

"Oh my," she cried excitedly. "They're going to fumble now." And sure enough they did!

The game went on interminably. The bleachers emitted a cheer here and there and the odd groan. At last the score was tied and things seemed to brighten up a little, but in spite of brilliant kicking on the part of the home team, the game ended in a draw.

"Well, that's that," said the Red Queen, as they rose to leave. "I guess we don't get the championship THIS year!"

TREACLE and INK.
X (Their mark)

(To be continued)

There once was a co-ed named Jean
Who wanted to be slim and lean,
The doc told her to diet,
She decided to try it,
And now she is like a sardine.

There was a smart co-ed called Sue,
Sized up all the men that she knew;
"I'll concentrate on Tom," she said,
For he's a coming factory head;
Now Tom is paying bills for two.

Being the 6th Chapter of the Chronicle of Kweanz.

Now a twain of feagues distant from the city of Kin there was a great house, called by men the Pen. For in the land of Canad there was much sin, surpassing that of Babylon and Sodom and Gomorrah, both murdur and arson and robbery. Now it came to pass that the Police of the land did discover various sinners in the midst of their iniquity and did enclose them in the Pen, saying "Verily it serveth thee rightly." And of all the Police of Canad, the Police of Kin were the greatest, and did live longer than most Police, being able to run faster than all the robbers of Canad.

Now it came to pass that the prisoners of the pen, called Konviks, did say to the Gards, their keepers, "Give us to Smoke."

And the gards did give them of tobacco, but no papers did they give them. So that the Konviks were fain to use the paper called unclean, which the Gards did issue in rolls of thirty score.

And the Konviks did grow unruly and did murmur among themselves, saying "Give us of real paper, for we are tired of this issue of tissue. And they did cause a great commotion so that the Gards, being scairdy-cats, did call in the troops.

And the people of Kin asked, saying, what doth happen at the Pen, and the newspapers did answer them in this wise.

"We asked the Warden saying, What about this and thus, and he answered "I cannot tell."

"And we asked him concerning divers things and he said 'we cannot tell'."

And the newspapers did publish many extras of such news, until the people of Kin did grow disgusted and did turn their eyes to the great election at the south, forgetting the Riot, so did the Konviks return to their cells and the unclean paper.

AMEN.

Being the 7th Chapter of the Chronicle of Kweanz.

And times being hard, the elders of Kweanz called unto themselves a meeting of the wise and learned. One of great wisdom arose and spoke to his fellows thus. "Presently there shall come unto Kin many of the men of Lon, who like unto those of Magil and Toron, will gather unto the Stadium to boot the hide of the pig. Let us therefore at that time call to Kin the rulers of the land, who are called the Govgen and the Primin. Let us give unto them honours, on the skin of the sheep, and let us lead them to the scene of pig-chasing that they may draw crowds of the curious."

Therefore were bearers sent to the Govgen and the Primin, carrying messages of obeisance, and welcomes to the land of Kin.

Then did the rulers accept, and it came to pass that they did gather with the wise, the learned, the to be learned, and the curious unto a hall of learning in Kin. And there the Princ. did open his mouth and did beg of the Chancellor of Kweanz the mighty, to present unto the Govgen, and unto his spouse, the Lady Govgen, skins of the sheep, upon which were written many words that passeth the understanding of most men.

And the Govgen being a man of much understanding, did accept the sheep's hide not as a man himself but verily as a Govgen.

Then did the Princ. in a very wise manner, becoming the leader of all the learned, present also, unto the Primin of Ont. a sheep's hide of the same sort, as given unto the Govgen. For the Princ did hope, among many, that the Primin couldst see the poverty striken coffers of Kweanz, and would be governed accordingly, by the gods of his mind.

Thus did the wise of Kweanz, and may she ever profit.

AMEN.

Final Year Science Men Hold Very Successful Dance

Carefully planned by the capable committee in charge of the affair, the Science '33 year dance, held at the La Salle Hotel, was one of the most successful and enjoyable events of the big week-end. A large crowd danced to the music of Bob Warmington's excellent orchestra. Mrs. Arkley and Mrs. Rutledge received the guests at the entrance to the ball room.

The dance was well attended by members of the year and faculty, and of other faculties.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of a tap-dance by Mr. Leo Trembley.

The committee in charge is to be congratulated for successfully initiating this series of year dances.

THE PIPE BAND

On Saturday the Pipe Band was at its best. It may now fairly be said to have got going. It's numbers compared with those of last year have doubled.

There are vacancies in the band for either pipers or drummers. Recruits should come preferably from first year students. Those interested should get in touch with Ranald Macdonald. Phone 602-M.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

That the world today is out of joint, many of us will agree. But just how to set it right again is a problem not easily solved. If a quack doctor were to treat a person with a dislocated arm or leg, no doubt he would do it by means of bandages and ointments to relieve the pain. The trained physician, however, knowing at once the cause of the difficulty, with quick, skilful hands would pull the injured joint back into place.

What we need to solve modern problems is not a lot of quacks, but trained experts who will know just where and how to give the right kind of tug. And from where are these experts to come than from among the ranks of our educated men? So often the man with a B.A. degree thinks that he has achieved his ultimate goal in life, and steeped in placid, self satisfaction, is content to enjoy mediocre books and mediocre amusements. Sometimes men with only half the advantages of some of our college trained business and professional men, rise to higher positions, have broader interests, and are fairly brimming over with noble ideas for public service. Often, too, they possess along with these ideas the initiative to put them into practice.

In our recent convocation exercises we saw a splendid procession of men in gowns and hoods of every color representing many different colleges. These various academic gowns symbolize many years spent in training for lives of self sacrifice and devotion. Many of our professors are men who have not been content with seeking degrees to satisfy their mere personal vanity, but have striven for higher goals that they might prepare themselves to be leaders of modern youth. A good leader in present times need not only be a teacher. Men in every kind of work can by sheer force of character and outlook on life be leaders of other men.

A college training is a good character builder. Not only in college does much of the broadening influence come from contact with others, but also from the sharpening of one's mind and the clarifying of one's ideas.

S.C.M. discussion group, although not directly connected with classes go hand in hand with college training by permitting students to broaden their outlook, and strengthen their beliefs.

With the aid of good leaders such groups can be a real benefit and fill a great spiritual by promoting lively discussions.

QUILL ANNOUNCEMENT

Date of publication for the Queen's Quill is not yet announced, but it is expected to be about the last week of November. Intending contributors to the Quill are urged to submit M.S.S. at the earliest available opportunity to Bill Wilgar or Connie Grant, care of the University Post Office, or to Eric Gilmour, the Editor-in-chief.

FRESHMEN REGULATIONS

Arts Freshmen will wear their socks outside their pant legs all this week, and will use only the cinder paths around the campus.

Dancing lessons may be substituted for gym at the University of Pennsylvania.

The University of Wisconsin was host to the fathers of its students this fall.

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

YOUR NEW WINTER
OVERCOAT
IS HERE!
Worthy companions to your new Fall Suits

Style?
The very last word.

Long Wearing Fabrics?
Dependable quality cloths; none better.

New Fall Shades?
The Newest

Perfect Fit?
Man, just slip one on and see.

Value?
The trustworthy Tweddell standard of quality assures this.

$15 to $35

NEW FALL AND WINTER
SUITS
See the new ENGLISH DRAPE effect in our smart Fall and Winter SUITS. Our veriety covers all THE FASHIONABLE MODELS AND WEAVES. Sizes to fit all builds.

$15 to 35

TWEDDELL'S
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Prineess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances ineluded
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Journalese

The characteristie style of newspaper writing is a matter frequently discussed by lovers of language as language. The term Journalese has come to be used with something of contempt, and while the language of journalism needs few excuses, some defense of it is necessitated by the attacks of the purists, who, having through years of labour acquired a second-hand knowledge of dead form, profess to hold in contempt the modern argot.

Language is primarily a means of conveying information and only secondarily an intellectual ornament and the immense amount of subject matter dealt with in the comparatively small space of a newspaper sheet compels an emphasis on the primary function. Addison and Steele and the other fathers of Journalism were not newspapermen and their periodicals were not newspapers. They were stylists producing magazines of the "serions" type. Their work exists now only as part of our literary curiosity shop. The plays of Shakespeare have lived and will live, not because of the intrinsic beauty of Shakespeare's diction but because of the vigour of the ideas they conveyed. In the century or two after Shakespeare the idea producing mechanisms of English writers underwent a slow atrophy. The paucity of real meat in their writings was only hidden by their superlative style in word-building. It is the lack of such style in the newspapers of today that is bemoaned by the literati. Newspaper word sketches of contempory life in plain black and white do suffer from lack of colour but they fulfil their purpose. They represent news so that he who rideth a bus may read. The literary extreme is to be deplored, no doubt, but this one is infinitely preferable to the opposite extreme found in the works of the Victorian essayists which we study as models of near perfection. There we find a language ornamental but inarticulate, in the modern phrase beautiful but dumb, varying from the pseudo-grandeur of rugged pomposity to the tender fragile beauty of senescense. Word beauty reaches its greatest height in the nonsense writers, in for instance the beautiful meaningless mind tickling fancies of Edward Lear.

In the matter of style newspaper writing leaves room for improvement but the fault does not lie in a stubborn clinging to beautiful ways, and the improvement will never be produced by adverse criticism alone. When writers arise who can offer newspaper ideas more elegantly clothed than they now are, and still as lucidly brief, they will be welcomed by editors as heartily as by anyone.

Eminent Guests Receive Degress At Convocation

Continued from page 1

pleasure than that which announced that Mr. Peacock had been given an honorary degree at Oxford—a distinction which, I am sure all alumni of Queen's will agree, was a fitting acknowledgement of the great services he has rendered in the realms of national finance."

The Governor-General paid tribute to the Scottish background of Queen's University and commented on the beauty of the handsome limestone buildings.

Alluding to the purposes of the University Education, the Governor-General quoting T. H. Huxley's words, that "The great end of life is not knowledge, but action," said:

"That is a precept which I would commend to those of you who are still 'in statu pupillari.' Before long, you will be called upon to translate into action the knowledge that you have acquired at your University; your success in life, your usefulness to your country and to your fellow-men generally, will depend on the extent to which your knowledge bears the fruit of action. Meanwhile, in the pursuit of your chosen careers, you carry with you the best wishes of Lady Bessborough and myself; we are both most grateful for the friendly nature of the welcome given us at Queen's today, and we shall long remember it."

His Excellency was given a great ovation at the conclusion of his speech and resumed his seat to the roar of another Queen's Yell. Premier Henry then made a short speech of appreciation for the honor conferred on him by the university after which Grant Hall re-echoed to the Varsity yell, a compliment to the Hon George Henry who is a graduate of Toronto.

Stadium To Be Scene Of Interyear Rugdy

The following is the schedule released for Interyear rugby in the Medical Faculty. All games are to be played under the Marquis of Queensbury rules and the team gaining possession of the yardsticks will likely win. Final year will please assemble to have their pictures taken as champions one day this week.

Tuesday, November 8th—Meds '38 vs. Meds '37.

Wednesday, November 9th—Meds '36 vs. Meds '35.

Thursday, November 10th—Meds '34 vs. Meds. '33.

Playoff games will be arranged immediately following the completion of the regular schedule. That is, the winner of the '36 vs. '35 class will meet the victors of the '38 vs. '37 fight, and the winners of that struggle meets the winners of the clash between the two upper years for something or other.

The status of the Med. Soph year is unknown and should they defeat the Frosh it is expected that the Freshmen will protest that Meds '37 not being organized as a year are not fit and proper persons to play any other respectable year, much less beat them.

Anyhow, should there be any disputes about games or dates, class presidents should see Denny Smith, the corpulent member of final year who will arbitrate.

All games are to be played at the Stadium.

These are the days when English teachers are drilling their pupils on synonyms, but it always seemed to us the domestic science teachers should know more about them, what with teaching girls how to bake synonym rolls and all—Ft. Scott Tribune.

Long Life

Much has been written of late years concerning the supposed lengthening of man's span of life, much that is encouraging and much that is fallacious. The biblical three-score and ten is still a mark that is hopefully shot at and very frequently missed. The application of medical discoveries has done much toward the amelioration of man's suffering, but more intensive and more dangerous living, a fuller use and more rapid exhaustion of the actual living time which in man and other animals seems limited by species heredity, these things prevent much increase in the number of years that the average man may remain with the living. As a matter of fact smaller and smaller percentages of the populations of civilized countries are reaching venerable ages, although it may be that the age of discretion has been lowered to be within the reaeh of larger percentages than formerly.

Optimistic reports on the durations of average lives are all based upon a simple division of the years of life accomplished in a country by the number of persons who do the living. In the past thirty years the dividend has steadily increased, but as the coffee-haters say "there's a reason" vital statistics laboriously exhumed from the depths of the library stacks show that in Ottawa, for instance, in 1884 deaths at an age of less than one year accounted for 458 of each thousand deaths. In 1929, deaths in the first year of life accounted for 212 of each thousand deaths. The infant death rate has been cut down by more than half. As a result statisties may be compiled to show that the average span has increased, has been increased, to be exact, but the addition to the total of large numbers of short lives, which before the development of pediatrics as a successful branch of the profession would have been very much shorter.

But to live is not merely to be. Not many of us would hesitate long over a choice between fifty years of effort and accomplishment, and ninety years of vegetation. A month of concentrated effort is more beneficial to the individual and more likely to add to the world's knowledge than a year of leisurely absorption, although it will be a long time before college curricula are designed to take advantage of the fact.

Meds Formal Committee Welcomes Suggestions

The committee in charge of the Med. Formal is busily engaged in planning all details. This is a medical dance and the committee would welcome and appreciate suggestions regarding any feature of the At Home.

Address all suggestions to Ben Brachman of final year.

Book Chats

By R.M.

The Middle West has been provocative of many novels, some exceptional, some mediocre, some realistic, others unrestrainedly romantic and a few in a satirical or humorous vein. These varied interpretations of the same background are due partly to the gradual impress of civilizing influences from the east, partly to the varying temperaments of the authors. Hamlin Garland and Herbert Quick wrote about the early frontier days when the spirit was essentially progressive. Sinclair Lewis satirized the conservatism of a middle west small town with its worship of materialism. Now Phil Stong, native of Iowa, and son of the soil has given us a delightful story of farm life in "State Fair" (The Century Co.)

Only a man who has an appreciation for the elemental could have woven a romance around Blue Boy, a prize hog. Able toiis and prays for Blue Boy to win the title of the best Hampshire hog in Iowa. And the state fair ranks large in the thoughts of the other members of the family too. Mrs. Frake concocts marvellous pickles in her shining kitchen. Wayne practices assiduously with embroidery hoops so he can revenge himself on a hoopla stand. Margy thinks great thoughts and builds castles in the air. To us Canadians, in this section of the country at least, such a cast of mind is nearly incomprehensible. Yet Phil Stong with rare detachment, humour, and just a trace of fatalism, has reincarnated the country fair with all its glamour.

This is Mr. Stong's first novel but twelve others were "born to blush unseen and waste their sweetness on the desert air." The success of his book is one more proof of the dictum that an author should know his field, should write about that which he has experienced. And because of this "State Fair" always possesses verisimilitude, even when Wayne and Margy follow their primary impulses to sin a little, only to find an outlet for the potency of desires repressed in the humdrum life on a farm. The author's own philosophy (if it is permissable to introduce it here) seems to be an intense consciousness of the evanescence of love and beauty. Our exaltation of the moment cannot last. The practicalities of existence and the fatalistic influences that mould our lives haunt us like spectres. One's happiness must be seized before it vanishes.

For one glorious week Wayne and Margy Frake escape from chores and farm tasks; for a few brief nights they realize love's young dream. But before divine discontent can disrupt their lives, the fair breaks up, the Frakes return home, and things resume their normal course. Only the storekeeper (an inimitable character who knows all and sees all) pessimistically ruminates on this worst of all possible worlds as he sells calico over the counter. Mr. Stong, however, has introduced this more sombre element so subtly into his novel and garished the tale so well with his humour that the effect of a happy ending is left with the reader. In one instance perhaps Abel Frake speaks out of character when he uses a big word like "prodigality." In all other instances he uses the simplest language. On page 12 there is a misprint or a mistake in tense when the third singular "astonishes" instead of "astonish" appears. These minor faults, however, cannot detract from the charm of this novel of Iowan country life.

Alumni Decide To Renovate Grant Hall At Meeting

Continued from page 1

for some years past well recognized this serious need, but other necessary expenditures have absolutely precluded the renovation being undertaken.

The Alumni of Queen's have always had a kind interest in Grant Hall — not only because they have felt that it was theirs, but because of the many pleasant hours they have spent within its walls. The General Alumni Association feels confident that when the appeal on behalf of Grant Hall goes out to the graduates it will be met with a ready and generous response.

The Alumni Association is wished every success in its very worthy undertaking on behalf of the University.

MUSIC CLUB TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Queen's Music Club at the residence of Dr. Vlastos. 220 Division St., Wednesday, November 9th, at 7 p.m. Mozart's Jupiter Symphony and some old English sacred music will be among the recordings played.

We have yet to find him,
A great big soph
With a hearty laugh (English pronounciation)
No address left behind him.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

Special Dinner Dance To-Night
EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
George Saltstone's Broadcasting Orchestra
ADMISSION 50 CTS. PER COUPLE
9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m.
MEALS EXTRA MINIMUM CHARGE 25c
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL
THE BIG BROADCAST

The Big Broadcast is one movie that really has an all-star cast in every meaning of the term. Just cast an eye over this list—Stuart Erwin, Bing Crosby, Leila Hyams, Burns and Allen, Kate Smith, Mills Brothers, Boswell Sisters, Arthur Tracy (The Street Singer), Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, and Cab Calloway and his orchestra. The cream of the talent of the air brought before the movie public for their first appearance together!

There is little continuity, of course, and the picture needs none for the performance of each star stands on its own legs. Bing Crosby proves himself to be a far better actor than Rudy Vallee, but even at that as an actor he is a good singer. He moves about the stage like a wooden soldier, but all can be forgiven and forgotten when he sings, which is at frequent intervals.

Acting honors go to Stuart Erwin, who plays one of his typical "I'll take the big nickel" roles. Dumb as ever, Erwin adds to his laurels by his splendid efforts. The best scene in the entire picture is where he pinch-hits for Crosby on a radio program.

All of the radio stars make excellent contributions to the picture. Burns and Allen are given numerous opportunities for their rapid cross-fire dialogue and Miss Allen is especially good.

Kate Smith's appearance on the screen was the signal for a spontaneous "oh" from those of the audience who were not aware that this radio star was built like a pro wrestler. Miss Smith's singing left nothing to be desired, however, and it might be said that she registered in a big way.

The Mills Brothers and the Boswell Sisters rendered their various interpretations of hot harmony. These people can certainly play house with the conventional manner of yodeling.

The orchestras of Vincent Lopez and Cab Calloway contribute some of the best features of the show. Lopez band specialized in smooth rythmic dance tunes, while Calloway threw caution to the wind and let drive with such hot music that the celluloid fairly smoked at times.

The success of the Big Broadcast will undoubtedly induce the directors to unleash a flock of similar pictures in the near future. The trade can stand it if they are as good as this production. A—.

AT THE TIVOLI

HAT CHECK GIRL
with
Sally Eilers, Ben Lyon, Monroe Owsley and Ginger Rogers.

Hat Check Girl is precisely the sort of film you can sit through once with no particular effort, but a second performance of which would be a hardship. It can be dismissed as light entertainment, making no demands upon the spectators, and very few upon the actors. Mr. Ben Lyon's subdued clowning time and again pulls Hat Check Girl out of the fire. The rest of the players muddle along, Miss Eilers trying valiantly to be a foil for Mr. Lyon's spontaneous foolery.

The story is commonplace enough, and the outcome obvious. Sally Eilers plays the working-girl who is a little more refined than her sisters, one of nature's noblewomen, in fact. This movie type always finds herself a personable young millionaire who offers marriage. Meanwhile, she is annoyed by at least one other gentleman with the other thing in his eye. Monroe Owsley's bland smirk is brought into play in the detestable part of a Park Avenue parasite and blackmailer. He is a sort of cheap Winchell, but with no tinsel. He is eventually put on the spot to the general relief of everyone except the criminal investigators.

Ben Lyon, as the playboy plutocrat, wins the hat check girl's romantic and pragmatic fancy. He removes paternal opposition to a match that would never secure the aegis of the social register. "After all, who was my grandfather?" he reminds his surly father, "Just a truck-driver."

There is little to distinguish this film from a dozen others which barely escape the stigma of mediocrity. Since artistry is usually discarded in favour of less exacting requirements, it remains for us, in reviewing most Hollywood productions, to distinguish between shades of mediocrity. B.

An Acknowledgement

The splendid appearance of the Tricolor cheer-leaders at the game Saturday evoked a considerable amount of comment from the stands. Credit must be given to the generosity of two Kingston business houses. The sweaters were bought from Bill Shaw at cost price and the sweat-shirts were donated free of charge by Tweddell's.

MUSIC

The following is a report of the second meeting of the Kingston Music Club held at Mrs. Davoud's, 161 King Street.

If I seem to overburden this account with digressions, be merciful, for I heard all this music for the first time, which leaves me as it were without a leg to stand on. When I go to the light opera and hear a song repeated over and over again, I do not forget it, but music which I hear once and then no more is difficult to remember much less to talk about. To say that a song was beautiful conveys little, I fear.

A most expressive instrument is this human voice. I was thinking of those baritone solos we heard, the French love songs and the brave ballad of the fishermen. There is something deep within me which the notes of a Baritone seems to stir; I think of mighty nature of the mountains and the sea. Here I go wandering off; but music is a great spur to the imagination. The artist sang an Epic of the sea. It symbolized the spirit of fishermen who go down to the sea in ships. I thought of a little fishing village in Nova Scotia; I could hear the Atlantic sweep in at dawn, into a bleak harbour where tiny houses huddled against the rocks—a place where men came close to God.

Mrs. Lyster played two piano selections by Debussy. Her first was the "Girl with the Flaxen Hair," the second the well-known "Wind on the Plain"—(Yes I had heard this once before). It is a miracle, I think, of condensed description. The wind is heard in all its changing aspects. I was reminded of Hardy's Egdon Hearth where the night wind weaved amongst the grasses and the gorse. But what a difficult thing to reproduce wind on the piano—for it seems to me that the wood winds would reproduce the effect more successfully—their timbre is more like the quality of the wind I should think. Mrs. Lyster also played two Preludes of Chopin, the first movement of a Beethoven Sonata and later on two brilliant numbers, the Valse Scherzo of Tschaikowsky and the Tarantalle of Moskowski.

Mrs. Tracy then sang three charming little German songs by Hugo Wolf. The second "Sebstgestandnie" is about a little girl. Usually there are six or seven in a German family, but she is the only child. It dawns on her that she is getting all the love and affection which ordinarily would be bestowed on six or seven—and suddenly she wonders "But why not all the spankings?" The third is a marden's song as she longs for the land of her birth, a little island in the ocean. She sees her beloved island rising in the mist, sees the waters rejuvenated like a child as they envelop it and sees all kings that ever were bowing in homage to its godhead.

Even the great composers must have their jests in music. Mendelsohnn had his country dance in the "Overture to Midsummer Nights Dream," Dukas had his "Sorcerers Apprentice" and Dvorak, the Scherzo in his new world symphony. And a jest if ever there was one is this Minuet of Haydn's which the Music Group Orchestra played. Haydn's landlord was a butcher; the daughter of the house was to be married. So Haydn "wrote" her a present and called it the "Ox Minuet!" Now whether the composer intended to depict an ox I know not, but if he did, just imagine an old ox trying to foot a dainty minuet!

Then followed "Musette" by Rameau Mott; and then an Air for strings from the Orchestral Suite in D by Bach. There always seems to be an upward lift in Bach's music, an attempt as it were to raise earth to heaven. And so it was here, where the violin notes soared high above the pizzicatos of the cellos. The orchestra which was composed of flute, strings and piano, played The Allegro and Andantino from Mozart's Concerto for Flute and Harp. Dr. Gummer enlightened us on the history of the concerto. It was, he said, a development of the Sonata form, a development in form much less standardized than that of the Sonata. This selection illustrates Mozart's fondness for the unusual combination, since he has picked out as the prominent instruments the flute and harp. The other string instruments are only used to give tone color. And Mozart has accomplished a difficult task in keeping the strings subordinate to the flute, which is very weak in intensity of tone.

Do you know that golden star in Orion called Betelgeuse? It has fired the imagination of astronomer and poet alike. For it is one of the largest stars in the universe. Humbert Wolfe has written a poem about it which Gustav Holst has set to music. Mrs. Tracy sang it for us along with three other poems, "Dream City," "Now in These Fairy-lands", and "A Little Music," all written by Wolfe and composed for the voice by Holst. I have never heard anything like this Betelgeuse. Those astonishing chords in the left hand of the piano accompaniment were like the strides of a giant walking through the stars. And the "Dream City with its seven-four time stretching out the words in a dreamy yet definite rhythm. Holst is not content with catching the general sense of a poem; he pays attention to each word, and the important ones are timed accordingly. Further they are sung in a tone which will best convey their meaning. In the "Dream City" there is a verse which runs: "And we will have a river painted with the dawn's wistful stratagems of dusted gold." The music is written in the key of G., but here the notes climb to the second octave above middle C. and play F natural to reproduce in a startling manner the equally startling imagery of the words. There were places in "Now in these Fairylands" where I fancied I was walking through an oak forest whose floor was carpeted with bluebells and where strange forms appeared and vanished in the still shadows. . . . . —R. N.

CAREFREE DANCE

Sat. Nov. 12th

The Honour Science Club of University of Toronto offer "Carefree Dance" at U.T.S. corner of Bloor and Huron Sts., 2 blocks from Stadium. $1.00 per couple.

ART EXHIBIT

One of the finest collections of colour wood-block prints in North America is now on view in room 111 of the Douglas Library. The collection which has been lent by the Art Gallery of Toronto includes the work of noted Canadian, English, Austrian, American and Japanese artists and will be available for the next week.

On entering the room one is impressed by the great contrast between the landscapes and the flower and bird subjects, the more sombre tones varying with the gay in pleasing effect. Of the landscapes the Stonhenge prints by Urushibari are outstanding. One called "Stonhenge by Moonlight" shows the shadowy old stones standing up like evil spirits underneath the full moon. The picture is a mass of deep blue grays and greens and the whole scene seems weird, inhuman. On the other hand "Stonhenge by Day" has a shepherd guiding his flock of sheep past the old Druid sacrificial altar and it is lucky for them that the Druids aren't there now. Another interesting landscape is "Winter" by Leo Frank, an Austrian. It depicts a farmer with big rubber boots leading a weary horse homeward. The black ravens overhead lend a solemn aspect. Rich colour quality marks E. L. Lawrenson's "Harvest Moon" with its tall trees and flickering moonlight. "Harvesting" by Alfred Hartley is striking but the green is a little out of harmony to give a pleasing effect. However the men loading hay in the foreground lend interest. Robert Gibbing's "Retreat from Serbia" with the old arch stone bridge in the foreground and the mountain peaks towering beyond is pleasing. "Picardy Poplars" by Charles Mackie hints at modernism with its broad splashes of colour. L. Griffiths has an interesting study in "Winter" showing a big snow flurry coming down in a crowded city street causing a traffic jam. Note how the blaze of light from the department store windows adds that extra touch of yellow necessary for balance. W. J. Phillips of Winnipeg, the foremost Canadian exponent of the art, is represented by two excellent prints. One "Mt Schaeffer" is water-colour like. One would almost think it was done by Lucius O'Brien somewhere in the Rockies. The other "Waterlillies" depicts a girl in a canoe in amongst some water lillies idling her time away. From the point of view of technique, the picture abounds in warm hues of purple and red and is full of blended harmonies.

Several prints of buildings are in the group. "Boston Church from the River", by F. Garret Rice, is a remarkably fine cut wood block. It shows the church towering in the background with old sailing ships lying in the harbour at the river's mouth—perhaps at the very spot the famous "tea party" was held. "At Lake Como" by Dorothy McEwen has nothing to do with lakes. The picture is full of Spanish type houses with sharp peaked mountains in the background. A tree seems to be growing out of the roof of the house on the left, but perhaps it is meant to be a roof garden. "House at Kingston" by Fred Haines, a Toronto artist is easy to look at. An old plaster house is standing beneath big elm trees, stars are twinkling overhead and you can tell the moon is out although you don't see it by the yellowish tinge on the plaster. Note that the plaster is falling off at the left end, still there is a cheery light within—It is someone's home.

Turning for the moment from landscape to flower and bird subjects we find that Allen Seaby has two interesting bird studies. One "Snow Buntings" is Japanese-like in presentation. Two red breasted birds are sitting very daintily on a snow laden tree. The other "Red Grouse" depicts a big bird with a red comb sitting in a very alert manner. A clever sketch is "Moon, Flower and Hawk Moth" by Allan Smith. The large moon in the background acts as a fine setting in which to show up the moth which is only interested in getting honey out of the flower. "Frosty Morning" by Rigden Reid the English artist shows white geese going for a morning stroll. The light blue of the picture gives a very dainty effect. Hans Frank's "Peacock" is a delightful study, as is his "Swans" a picture which brings out the graceful character of the birds. You can just imagine yourself looking at a pond in some zoo. Sofie Noskie's flower prints are gay. The deep red flowers in the rococo vase remind one of an old Roman Senator robe. The green cloth on the table helps to make a pleasing balanced effect.

In closing we must not forget to mention "The Fingerpost" by Charles Mackie done in big blotches of colour, grays and reds predominating. The landscape, however is rather a swirl. Alice Coate's "Little Weir" is lace-like. It shows foaming water pouring over a cement dam. "Winsor Canyon" by Gustave Bauman is a blaze of Autumn colour and if you look carefully you can see a huntsman with his red coat. Dorothy Lungley's "Danger" is amusing. A sick duck which has eaten too many oysters is standing at the edge of the water with a pained expression on its face and a frog is coming slowly up wondering if he can get some of the food—he is a little afraid of the duck and is leaning forward in an alert manner—Why not go over and see for yourself?

—B. C. R.

A new story says that American colleges and universities are "carrying on" in spite of the business slump and there are doubtless plenty of parents of collegians who will agree."—Garden City Telegram.

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Sixty Minute Struggle Between Tricolor And Western Squad Terminates in 4-4 Tie Score

Continued from page 1

"HOWIE" CARTER

But if Western were better along the line, Queen's had a distinct margin on the backfield. Carter, Davoir and Day turned in a game that gladdened the hearts of the fans, and their work was a treat to watch. The combined kicking of Davoud and Carter, offset that of Paterson by a few yards, and Davoud and Day had much better luck in running back kicks.

The tackling on both sides was deadly, possibly the finest witnessed in Kingston this year. That meant that the halves had little enough chance to get away, but Day and Davoud made the best of their opportunities.

Forward passing played a considerable part in the struggle, Western tossing 15 and completing 6 for a total of 145 yards, while Queen's tried 7 passes and completed 2 for a total of 40 yards. The forward passing game of Western seemed destined to ruin Queen's hopes for a win, in the early stages of the game, for the teams were battling along evenly, except for that feature.

However just to show the Mustangs that Queen's can also use the forward pass effectively, the gang tried six of theirs in the final quarter and completed two of them to get into a scoring position where Davoud's toe tied the score via a pretty placement. Davoud tried a placement in the second quarter but due to the sticky ground, the lift was short by a few feet, and we did not get even a single point out of it.

For Queen's the backfield was exceptionally good, and the outside wings, Gorman and Ralph gave Western little chance to get away. The snapping of Kostuik was perfect and while the line play was not spectacular, Hamlin, Thoman, Hoskings, Kennedy and Byrne did a mighty nice job of it.

Both teams trotted out together and presented an inspiring sight. Western chose to take the south end of the field and had the advantage of the sun at their backs and some slight assistance from the wind, which blew diagonally across the field from the southwest.

The Mustangs adopted a kicking game, but Patterson could not offset the hoofing of Carter. Queen's were playing a smart game and Western's huge line could do little with them. Play see-sawed back and forth until well on into the quarter before either team got into what could be called a scoring position. Western were getting nowhere with their line or their kicks and resorted to forward passes. They completed two in succession, Paterson to Schnarr and Paterson to M. Valeriote, to put themselves on Queen's 25, from which point Paterson lifted one to Davoud who was forced to rouge. Score, Western 1, Queen's 0.

A Paterson to Schnarr pass for 30 yards again put Western in Queen's territory and Paterson easily pushed one to the deadline. The quarter ended Western 2, Queen's 0. In this quarter Queen's got yards on three occasions via first downs, while Western made two. Completing two out of four forward passes gave Western their two points.

The second quarter had barely started when Paterson heaved a third successful pass for 25 yards to Stapleton and again Western were not far out. Paterson's kick was taken by Day, but he hadn't a chance to get out, and the score was Western 3, Queen's 0.

"LULU" KOSTUICK

Western's line showed to better advantage in the second quarter, and they got yards on three occasions by first downs. Queen's, with the wind in their favor resorted to kicking and did not make a first down.

For the remainder of the quarter the teams battled desperately with honors about even. Queen's had a grand chance when they gained possession thirty yards out, but Davoud's placement was short. However on the next play Carter kicked a long one to Paterson behind Western's line and Ralph and Dargavel staged a tackling party to drag him down. We got one point back on that play and the quarter ended Western 3, Queen's 1.

DICK STORMS

The third quarter saw Western add one point to boost their total to 4 when Paterson forced Davoud to rouge. The period saw slow football with neither team making a first down and forward passes of little help.

"WEENIE" DAY

As far as Queen's were concerned the final quarter was their big one and they had Western plenty scared for a time. As related, they got a first down and began to heave forward passes to advance the ball to Western's 25. It was their only hope for Western were fighting mad to retain their lead. Storms gobbled up a loose ball on Queen's 40, and on the next play heaved a nice pass to Carter who made 15 yards on the play. A second pass was grounded, but the following kick pushed Western back to their line. They were held there and Paterson was forced to kick. Day taking the ball on Western's forty and running it back 8 yards. A Carter to Storms pass gained 10 yards and Queen's was sitting pretty on Western's 20. Davoud made no mistake on the placement and the score was tied 4-4. It was courageous playing on the part of Queen's. Queen's played the last three minutes one man short when Storms was penalized, but Western were held safely. Final score, Western 4, Queen's 4.

The teams:

Queen's—Flying wing, Storms; halves, Carter, Day, Davoud; quarter, Dargavel; snap, Kostuik; insides, Byrne, Thoman; middles, Hamlin, Kennedy; outsides, Ralph, Gorman; subs, Davis, Glass, Hosking, McNicholl, Fuell, Purvis, Peever, Conquergood.

Western—Flying wing, McLachlan; halves, Awade, Paterson, Mugan; quarter, Ward; snap, McDermott; insides, Stull, Veroni; middles, S. Valeroite, Quigley; outsides, McKay, Schnarr; subs, M. Valeriote, Gugino, Bryant, Tweedie, Duncan, Rockey, Gillies, Ferguson, Stapleton.

Officials—Bartlett, Bowman and Plaxton.

"HOW" HAMLIN

FORWARD PASSES

Congratulations to Varsity. They had a rocky and precarious road to the championship but made the grade.

* * * * * *

Queen's gave a real example of turning the other cheek stuff. Last year they put us out, this year we helped them win the bunting.

* * * * * *

It's a good thing for the other teams in the race that Queen's got off to a wobbly start. Right now they are as good as any.

* * * * * *

Western can surely toss forward passes. For a change Queen's used that feature with fair success.

* * * * * *

Argos like Queen's, started slowly but are they ever finishing strong. They upset Montreal's apple cart, and the Winged Wheelers will have to start importing again. Maybe they have already sent a scout across the line.

* * * * * *

Let's give Coach Burt a big hand. He has done far more than many expected he could do. He had a tough assignment and came through nicely.

* * * * * *

Over the week-end Queen's Juniors won a game, the Intermediates lost a battle and the Seniors tied. That's variety for you.

* * * * * *

This is Varsity's big rugby year. They have the Senior and Intermediate and the Junior Intercollegiate is likely in the bag. Page Mr. Stevens.

FOOTBALL GLOSSARY

CHEERING SECTION: creation of politicians minds to make reason for electing cheer leader.

CHAIN, ball and: see alumnae.

DRUM MAJOR: juggler: model for displaying uniforms.

DOWN MARKER: used not only on football team, but in classroom by instructor who marks down grades and cuts.

DOUBLE REVERSE: deceptive play invented by friends who sought to win by foul means or fair; to gain ground by leading opponents to believe you're going to run one way, then double-crossing them.

END RUN: run that ends game.

BENCH: uncomfortable seat which players hate with great dislike; a great leveller of men, since coach and waterboy also sit on it. —Daily O'Collegian.

Greta Carbo in one of the late magazines—Liberty, if you must know—takes several hundred words to explain "Why I Will Not Mary." The story, however, could be told in half a dozen. Nobody's asked her.—Chanute Tribune.

Smoke
Buckingham
—and Smile

Buckingham has received more voluntary praise from people in every walk of life than any other cigarette

20 for 25¢

B-340

Now You
CAN Afford Quality

In TIP TOP clothes is found the greatest value in custom-tailoring obtainable anywhere — fine British woollens — expert custom tailoring — superb fit and style. Each TIP TOP suit and overcoat is individually cut and tailored to one's own personal measurements. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
TAILORED TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup.'"
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104-Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

NEILSON'S CHOCOLATES
(Reduced Again)
60c Boxes now 50c
2 lb. Boxes now $1.00
19c Bars (plain) 15c
M. R. McColl
Prescription Druggist
260 University Ave.
Your nearest Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor

Junior Team Downs R.M.C. By 2-0 Score

The Juniors came through on Saturday morning to put Queen's in the win column by downing the Cadets in a scheduled game 2 to 0.

Those who witnessed the battle are marvelling how Queen's were held to only two points, when they had such a distinct margin on the play. The two points were scored early in the first quarter by forcing the Cadets over for a safety touch.

In the second quarter Queen's had little trouble advancing the ball until they were within scoring distance. At that point something happened and invariably they lost the ball, or lost their pep. The quarter saw no further scoring by either team, but the Tricolor youngsters should have had a flock of points on the play.

The third stanza was a replica of the second. Fumbles played a part and prevented both teams from scoring when they had the ball in favorable positions. There was no scoring.

Both teams had chances in the final quarter but could make little use of them. Queen's in particular had a golden chance to score when they had possession only a few yards out. A single was hoped for but Queen's tacklers gave no yards and the ball was handed over to the Cadets.

The game ended Queen's 2, R. M.C. 0.

Intermediates Lose To Varsity Seconds

Queen's Seconds and Varsity grappled in the final scheduled game between the teams on Saturday and as expected the Blue team had little trouble in overcoming the Tricolor opposition, winning 33 to 2.

It was queer that Queen's scored a point in the first minute of play when Hall kicked from Varsity's thirty yard line and a Varsity half was forced to rouge. From then it was a parade with Varsity in the lead. They pushed their way up the field and topped off the triumphal march with a touch, and convert. An intercepted forward pass gave them their second try on the quarter which ended, Varsity 11, Queen's 1.

Varsity added another eleven points in the second period, via two touches scored on long forward passes. Hall gave Queen's a chance to score when he raced thirty yards to Varsity's 25, only to have Queen's lose the ball on a fumble. Half time score Varsity 22, Queen's 1.

Varsity's line got into the limelight again with repeated plunges and Queen's couldn't stop them. It was a parade and resulted in another touch that wasn't converted, Varsity 27, Queen's 1.

The final quarter was a succession of fumbles with both teams offending often. They stopped fumbling, however, long enough to score. Queen's adding one to their total when McIntosh booted one over the line, while Varsity added six when they plunged over for a try. That made the score 33 to 2 for Varsity and it ended that way.

HOOVER?

Receiving a plurality in 31 of the 47 co-operating colleges, President Hoover amassed almost half of the 58,686 votes cast in the nation-wide campus presidential poll. His total was 29,289, while Governor Roosevelt received 18,212. Norman Thomas 10,470 and William Z. Foster 715.

Varsity Triumphs Over McGill Team

Varsity visited with Old McGill on Saturday afternoon, and realized all hopes by taking the Red team into camp. While they were doing the job properly, it must have cheered them immensely to hear the news from Kingston that Queen's had removed their big threat to the title, by tying up Western.

Rain which fell all during Friday night left the Molson Stadium in a very sticky condition, and it promised to slow up the teams. John Sinclair, was on deck in an effort to pep up the Blue team, after their woeful exhibition at London the week previous.

Play was fairly even during the first quarter, Sinclair featuring with his kicking and by tossing a forward pass to Don Wood which was completed. However scoring was limited to one point, Varsity getting that when Sinclair, trying a placement, kicked wide and the ball went for a point The quarter ended, Varsity 1, McGill 0.

The second quarter saw action of a kind. Sinclair's hoofing very early had McGill in their own end, and he scored another point for Varsity on a long kick. McGill tried a long forward that Sinclair intercepted, but the tackle injured his previously dislocated shoulder and he had to retire. A second McGill forward went better and put the Red team into scoring position, Craig kicking for a point. A McGill fumble gave Varsity another chance to hoof for a single and just before the quarter ended, a fourth single was registered. Half time score, Varsity 4, McGill 1.

McGill had a big chance in the third quarter by securing the ball on Varsity's ten on a Blue fumble. But they could do nothing with Toronto's line and tried an onside kick, which went for a rouge. Varsity 4, McGill 2. After an exchange of kicks, Craig let loose a tricky one to Fenner who fumbled but followed the ball back over his line and fell on it for a safety touch. Varsity 4, McGill 4.

Varsity forged ahead on a touch in goal scored as a result of Fenner's kick. They got another when a Varsity man grabbed a fumbled McGill pass, and Fenner kicked for a point.

McGill tried forward passes and had plenty of luck until Varsity got the ball for failure to gain yards and Fenner kicked for a point. McGill attempted forwards by the gross but could not get the ball into Varsity territory. The game ended, Varsity 8, McGill 4.

Mr. Henry Pays Tribute To Queen's University

Continued from page 1

but of graduates. Alluding to the present financial position Mr. Henry appealed to graduates to remember Queen's with financial assistance and while remarking that Toronto as the provincial university must receive first consideration expressed the hope that before long the government of Ontario would be table to make a more adequate contribution to Queen's exchequer. As a last word Mr. Henry added "You should be proud of your history over the last ninety years. You have played—you are playing a wonderful part."

CORRECTION

The Dramatic Guild Productions are to be presented on Nov. 18th and 19th, not as announced in the last issue of the Journal, this week.

McGill Won Harrier Meet On Saturday

McGill won the Intercollegiate Union Harrier Meet on Saturday morning when their runners finished first, second, fifth, sixth and thirteenth. Varsity finished second, R. M. C. finished third while O. A. C. were fourth. The team scores were: McGill 14, Varsity 26, R.M.C. 49 and O.A.C. 54.

R. C. Goode of the Red team made the fastest time, doing the 5.5 miles in 31 min. 303/5 sec. to gain first place. Jamieson of the same school finished second.

A total of twenty runners started the event and every one of them finished, testifying to good condition and training. After a night of rain the course was soggy and a bit slippery but the times made were exceptionally good.

The race was run over the picturesque R. M. C. course, the race beginning on the soccer field, encircling the track once, then up around the famous stone wall of old Fort Henry. Barriefield Common to the rifle ranges was the next leg of the course, and from there it led along the shore line to the main highway, then through R. M. C. Memorial arch and back to the gym.

The teams were, McGill: Goode, Frankton, State, Jamieson and Peck. Varsity: Kibblewhite, Gilbert, Thompson, McLennan and Kerracker. R. M. C.: Wisdom, Deblois, Martin, Wickson and Cooner. O.A.C.: McCathy, Buckner, Powell, Riv and Fuller.

Officials:
Referee—Brig. Elkins.
Chief Judge—Lt.-Col. Pearks.
Judges — Professors Day and Richardson.
Chief Recorder—Major Logan.
Recorders — Professors Gelley, Twiss, Cook, Rand and Latourneau.
Time-keepers — Major Grant, Major Fenton, Prof. Chabot.
Clerk of Course—S. M. I. Harper.

Fabian Society History Examined By L. S. R.

At the meeting of the local group of the L.S.R. the organization and early development of the Fabian Society was discussed.

A few of the most highly developed personalities of Great Britain, in the intellectual, social and moral sphere, came together in the later part of the nineteenth century. Finding themselves in positions of eminence, and conscious of their debt towards a society which had done so well by them, they embarked on a program of social reconstruction. They confined their efforts solely to permeating every stratum of society with a sense of the possibility of social justice. Their attitude was expressed in the first resolution of the society. "The members of the society assert that the competitive system assures the happiness and comfort of the many and that society must be reconstituted in such a manner as to secure the general welfare and happiness."

A striking parallel is seen in the inception of the League for Social Reconstruction in Canada. In January of this year the first unit was organized in Toronto. Since then the movement has spread to the prairie provinces as well as to the larger centres of the east. Three weeks ago the nucleus of a group met on the campus, and weekly meetings are now being held.

One of the fraternity houses at Marquette University has a skunk as a mascot. However, the animal underwent a minor operation before being initiated.

COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Nov. 8:
4.15p.m.—Arts Society Meeting
Room 201
Prof. Conacher will speak.
7.00p.m.—International Relations Club.
Red Room.

Wednesday, Nov. 9:
5.00p.m.—Graduate Students Club
Room 221.
7.00p.m.—Queen's Music Club
22 Division St.
Dr. Vlastos will speak.
8.00p.m.—Dramatic Guild Meeting
Room 211, Douglas Library
Prof. Alexander will address the club.

Friday, Nov. 11:
7.00p.m.—League for Social Reconstruction
22 Division St.

Saturday, Nov. 12
2.30p.m.—Queen's vs. Varsity at Toronto.

J. E. Cameron's Discussion Group Meets In Library

Mr. J. C. Cameron's Discussion Group will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday evenings in room 221, Douglas Library. These weekly meetings are for the benefit of all students who are interested in discussing topics of current interest. The discussion is informal. Everyone is invited to participate. Contrary to the opinion which is common on the campus, the meetings are not held solely for the benefit of students in the Arts Faculty.

If you are interested in the weaknesses of the capitalistic system, we shall be happy to welcome you at our next meeting. If you come prepared to say something you will be given ample opportunity to do so.

Likes Queen's Yell

After the ceremony of Convocation one of the Governor-General's aides de camp remarked to a Journal representative: "I like your Yell; it has a fine Highland warlike flavour."

JOIN THE BIG QUEEN'S PARTY!
FOURTH ANNUAL QUEEN'S FOOTBALL NIGHT
Saturday, Nov. 12th
AT THE Silver Slipper
"WHERE ALL TORONTO DANCES"

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

A.W. Rogers Speaks On Blue Sky Laws

A. W. Rogers, assistant secretary to the Canadian Bankers' Association and formerly connected with the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto, gave a most interesting address to the Commerce Club of Queen's University. Mr. Rogers addressed the students on the provincial law restricting brokers and real estate operators from making excess profits, or "bucketing" as it is often termed.

The speaker traced the Blue Sky Law, as it is commonly known, from its origin in the United States. The Western Canadian Provinces adopted this law but enforced it so rigidly that many legitimate firms ceased to operate. Ontario adopted the law in a modified form, and Quebec copied Ontario's law. He cited one instance that led to the passing of this legislation in the province. A real estate operator would induce prospective salesmen to sell their friends some property; the profits in this case would be about 30% as compared with the legitimate real estate commission of 3%.

Prof. W. A. Mackintosh, in introducing the speaker, said that Mr. Rogers played a great part in apprehending the stock market brokers in the scandal a few years ago.

ARTS '35 MEETING

On leaving the lower campus after Arts '35 had so easily defeated the frosh, a regular year meeting was held. The feature of the programme was a talk by Professor Prince on "Reminiscences of the Near East." Several matters of business were brought up, the most important of which was the frosh-soph banquet to be held at the La Salle Hotel on Wednesday, Nov. 9th, at the expense of the freshmen. As well as reviving the cinder-path rule for the frosh the question of a year dance arose, but nothing definite was decided.

Women's Intercollegiate Debate Try Outs Nov. 10

The tryouts for the Women's Intercollegiate Debating team will be held in Ban Righ Hall on Thursday, November 10th at 7.30 o'clock.

All those who have debated or who are interested in debating are urged to attend. The speeches which may be on any topic should be from three to five minutes in length. For further particulars please see Jo Tett.

Campus and Gym

Any members of Levana who wish a swimming hour on Saturday mornings from ten to eleven o'clock, please get in touch with Miss Murphy, as this hour can be saved for Levana if arrangements are made soon.

Any one interested in Badminton is asked to see Miss Murphy, as the hour for Levana may be cancelled if there is not sufficient interest shown.

Although the Interyear basketball games will not be played till after Christmas, the candidates for the Intercollegiate team are practising diligently and expect to produce a good team. There is prospect of an exhibition match with K.C.I. in the near future.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

There will be a meeting on Wednesday, November 9th at 5 o'clock in Room 221, Douglas Library, for the organization of a Graduate Students' Club. All graduate students are asked to attend.

Buildings Lighted Up For Returning Grads

Friday night the appearance of the campus was quite different from its usual dark and sombre look. Practically every building was ablaze with light and the brilliance of the glow flooded from the windows to light up the surroundings. It was the annual invasion of the graduates of Queen's, and in those buildings old acquaintances were being renewed and old days being recalled.

After registering in Miller Hall on Friday afternoon the returning grads were free to look up old acquaintances till the General Meeting at 9.15 on Saturday. Some had their class dinners while others found the time all too short to discuss old times. After the address by Premier Henry and the Fall Convocation there were the various class luncheons to attend. In the afternoon, the rugby game with the Governor-General in attendance, and finally came the Alumni Dance in the New Gymnasium at which there were more than four-hundred and fifty people.

Mr. Gordon Smith, the Secretary of the General Alumni Association feels quite sure that the reunion of 1932 has been the best ever held. Mr. Smith said that every graduate with whom he spoke was of the same opinion. Although many of the returning graduates did not trouble to register, the number present was about four-hundred.

This year, there were represented, fourteen different classes from the three Faculties. Arts headed the registration with Science a close second. Science, however, can lay claim to having an Alumnus coming from the greatest distance, as a member of '07 came from Arabia.

On both Friday and Saturday evenings Class Dinners were held in various places throughout the city. Of the fourteen years registered, twelve had Class Reunion Dinners.

Morality Discussed By Men's Forum

"Morality in a University" was the discussion topic at the last meeting of the Men's Forum under the leadership of Captain J. O. Watts.

This subject was made to include morals of the home because the basis of mature morality is founded on the early home training. The belief was expressed that, in university life, personal moral standards were as high or higher than those of the average community, but that group morality ran much lower. The idea is prevalent that university students, as a mob, should be allowed to commit, and get away with, acts of defranding, which if committed by a group of the general public, would immediately lead to court action.

The morals of a student were summed up under his relationship to his home, his class, his university, sports, and social activities.

This week the discussion will centre upon "Penal Institutions of Canada and other Countries."

The Forum meets Thursday evening at 6.45 in the officer's mess room, Students' Union.

Coats, Kan., is complaining because it has had no rain for a long time. A suitable headline for this kind of thing ought to be, "Coats Pants for Rain."

—Fort Scott Tribune.

World News Briefly

The presidential campaign wound up yesterday and by the time the next Journal appears the election results will be known.

In his address at St. Paul, Minnesota, Herbert Hoover reiterated his main planks which aim at protection for agriculture and continuance of his reconstruction program.

Franklin D. Roosevelt officially closed the campaign at Madison Square Gardens, New York, Saturday night. Mr. Roosevelt stressed the ineptitude of the Hoover administration to deal with unemployment and industrial stagnation. He stated that 13,000,000 were out of work in the U.S.

Communists secured 100 seats in the German Reichstag as a result of general elections Sunday when about 90% of the electorate voted. No party obtained a sufficient majority to form a government.

It is estimated that the Nazis will have 195 seats; the Socialists 121; the Communists 100, the Centrists 70; the Nationalists 49, the Bavarians 18; the Economic party 2, the Populists 11, the States party 2, the Christian Socialists 5, and miscellaneous 7, making a total of 580.

Prisoners to the number of 5,000 will be affected by Italy's amnesty published Sunday. Five to ten year terms will be reduced by three years and all sentences over ten years will be lowered by five years.

All freed prisoners, by the terms of the decree, may hold public office; fines are abolished and military offences condoned. Tax payers will not have to worry about punishment for not paying their taxes. Offenders against compulsory military service laws are pardoned.

Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald will preside again at the Native Indian Conference which resumes its work soon, in order to dispose definitely of the details of the new constitution which will give India a larger share of autonomy. It was announced yesterday evening there would be seven delegates at the new conference, of which three members would not belong to the government; the Labour Party will not be represented, having declined all participation in the conference. The conference will comprise nationally, some representatives from the Indian groups and from the native states, probably from the National Hindu Congress.

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar
Commanding Queen's University Contingent, C.O.T.C.

Training Season 1932-1933.
4th Nov., 1932.

Part I.

No. 16.

Parades.

(1) No. 14, Part I, is here by cancelled and the following substituted.

All ranks will parade at the orderly room, Wednesday 9th, at 7 p.m., and will be marched to the armouries for battalion drill.

(2) Dress church parade order, uniform with side arms.

(3) This parade will cancel the regular Tuesday afternoon parade as called in the Regimental Order, Part 1, No. 10.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
A/Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

WINNERS!
The snappy new Queen's White Pullovers, as worn by the cheer-leaders at the Western game, were designed by Shaw's—of course!
See the new ideas FIRST at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Dance Programmes
Constitutions
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11th, 1932 No. 13

Douglas Library Given $15.000 Carnegie Grant

Three Annual Grants To Increase Student Interest In Reading

$15,000, payable in three annual instalments, have been granted to Queen's University by the Carnegie Corporation, for the purchase of books to encourage undergraduate reading. The first payment of $5,-000 will be made on December 1, and payment of the remaining instalments is contingent upon the use made of the first allotment.

A committee composed of Principal W. H. Fyfe, Principal H. A. Kent, Mr. E. C. Kyte, Librarian and three students yet to be appointed or nominated by the A.M.S. will select the books designed to stimulate student reading.

The gift expressly stipulates the class of books to be purchased. The books must be of a nature to appeal to undergraduate readers. Text books are banned. Extensive novel purchases are not favoured, but certain collections of outstanding novels may be acquired. Failure to fulfill these conditions will result in cancellation of the grant.

The Carnegie Corporation Trustees have suggested the class of purchases they favour and have sent a circular called, "Books For College Libraries" to all the Canadian universities and colleges benefiting by this monetary offer.

The committee in charge of the purchase of books under the terms of this grant welcome suggestions. These can be sent to any member of the committee which will endeavour to fulfill demands of individual readers within the limits of the Carnegie grant.

Canadian Universities will profit to the extent of $125,000, as a result of these Grants. There is no definite information available as yet regarding the names of all the beneficiaries.

Silence Imperative In Douglas Library

Extract From Letter Written By E. C. Kyte

"A few days ago the following notice was placed on the stairway in the Douglas Library: 'On behalf of students in the Reading Room silence on the stairway is desired.' Three examples of this notice were fastened in conspicuous places and within twelve hours all three had been removed, presumably by the students whom it was hoped to benefit. Apart from the senseless nature of this destruction there is a point of real urgency. The increasing use made of the Douglas Library renders it important that as little noise as possible shall be heard when students are coming in or are leaving, and the tearing down of notices, courteously bringing this fact to the minds of students, is therefore of importance."

Morgan Memorial Chapel

The Chapel is open to all faculties daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for meditation and prayer. It is requested that quiet be maintained at all times.

Morning prayers are said daily except Sunday and Monday at 9.07 o'clock. Students and staff of all faculties are invited to attend when possible.

Service of Holy Communion and other services will be held as announced from time to time.

German Conditions Described To I.R.C.

Prof. Henel Answers Queries Of Members

Speaking at the first regular meeting of the International Relations Club, Professor Henel of the German Department gave a graphic description of present day conditions in his native Germany. In response to questions from members, the speaker discussed the significance of the Hitler movement, the status of the church, the Polish corridor and the complete change of mental outlook of the German people. Dr. Henel stressed the conditions of the youth of his country and pointed out the dismal future of university and high school graduates. The utter impossibility of finding employment has led to radicalism and dissatisfaction among the younger people. It is among these discontented portions of population that Hitler has found his strength. But the iron rule of Von Papen has completely overshadowed any other feature of government. Representing a forgotten aristocracy and under authority of a doubtful section of the constitution, Von Papen has completely disregarded all claims of other parties that he follow the principles of democracy.

Another feature of the meeting was the reading of papers on current affairs. K. C. Ruffman discussed the British situation, C. A. H. McLean reviewed the current session of the Canadian parliament and A. L. Teal covered Enropean activities. Mr. Vernon gave an interesting talk on the Sino-Japanese situation while C. L. Huggins outlined the disarmament conference and remarked on the apparent breakdown of this important gathering.

Levana Hockey Team Starts Practice Nov. 14

Jock Harty Arena will be available for Levana hockeyists beginning on Monday, November 14th. Mr. Roy Dougal will be in charge as in past years, and expects to produce a championship team. Practice will be held from one to two o'clock each day and all Freshettes interested in hockey are asked to turn out, as there are vacancies on the team.

Queen's Will Make Supreme Effort To Humble Intercollegiate Champs In Final Rugby Tussle Of Season

Spectacular Playing Will Feature Game At Varsity Tomorrow

What a difference between this year's clash with Varsity in Toronto and the battles of the last few years. Then it was a case of prying off the rugby cover at the first of the season. Huge crowds piled into Varsity stadium to see the Tricolor, the highways were filled with all sorts of contraptions conveying eager students at uncertain speeds in the direction of Toronto.

This season finds the trophy, already garnered in by the Varsity team, and little importance attached to the final meeting of the two teams.

But if Queen's have their way, Varsity will have to go mighty hard if they have to keep their record from having another defeat chalked upon it. Right now Queen's have little to lose and some prestige to gain if they can step into Toronto and show the folks a winner.

And Varsity cannot afford to let this game go. They have not at all demonstrated this season that they were so very much better than Western, if at all, and Queen's with their tie game with the Mustangs to bolster up their courage, feel that they are just as good as the title-holders.

In addition, a few of the Queen's players will perhaps be playing their last game under the Tricolor banner. This is certainly true of Howie Carter. Howie is in final year Meds., and will receive his just rewards next June at graduation. He has been a wonderful point winner for Queen's, and it would be a fitting reward if he could make his last scheduled game a winning one.

It is expected that the team will be at full strength for this game,

(Continued on page 6)

Varsity Will Fight Hard To Prove First Defeat Was No Fluke

(Special to the Journal)

Toronto, Ont. — With four of their regular players on the injured list, Varsity will be no means at full strength for the annual invasion of the Tricolor on Saturday at Varsity Stadium, but the men out on the field will be fighting hard to prove that the defeat in Kingston at the opening of the Intercollegiate schedule was no fluke. The Blues will be minus Captain Jack Sinclair, Hal Richardson, Grady, Laing, their best plunger, and Skin Dewar, regular middle wing and one of the best blockers on the team.

In the absence of these stars a couple of the Intermediates will be held back from their trip to Ottawa College and they must be used in the lineup against Queen's. Litchy, who has been burning up the Intermediate

Continued on page 7

Dr. McNeill Enlivens Soph-Frosh Banquet

Freshmen Fete Sophs At Annual Ceremony

La Salle Hotel was the scene of a merry gathering on Wednesday evening when the Soph-Frosh Banquet was held. After a most enjoyable dinner had been disposed of the attention of both hosts (the Freshman Year) and guests (mainly Sophomores) was turned to the speeches which accompanied the customary toasts.

Following the toast to the King, the University was proposed by Charlie Clapp, President of the A. M. S. and the response came from Dean Matheson, Honorary President of Arts '36. The toast of the Arts Society was given by Prof. H. Irvine and replied to by Stu Warrington, President of the Society, while Arts '36 was proposed by Eb. Stevens, President of the Sophomore year, and Alec Deans, Freshman President, replied.

The speech of the evening was made by Dr. W. E. McNeill, the Vice-Principal, who, speaking in a brilliant vein of post-prandial humour, kept his audience in fits of laughter.

After a few preliminary humorous remarks Dr. McNeill made a gesture of welcome to the Freshman year. Referring to the various forms of welcome which had been extended to Arts '36, he said "I am going to welcome you, as the treasurer of the University, and I welcome you because you are so many." Dr. McNeill went on on to explain that despite rumours of depression, freshman registration at Queen's this year was only fourteen short of the number recorded last year.

Continued on page 3

Medical Formal To Surpass All Others

Unique Decorations And Favors Chosen

With all plans completed, the Medical Formal committee have no hesitation whatever in declaring that this year's At-Home will surpass all others in every respect.

With the most important feature of the dance already taken care of (the securing of Wright Bros. Orchestra) those who are fastidious about their dance music, can feel that the ultimate has been reached by the engagement of this famous band from the Brant Inn at Burlington. It is no exaggeration to say that Wright Bros. band created a sensation when they played for last year's Medical At-Home. Their music is so distinctly different that those who heard them will want to be present this year.

Decorations are always an important aid in making a Formal dis-

Continued on page 4

FRENCH CLUB

The French Club will hold its first meeting of the present session at 4 p. m. on Wednesday, November 16th. Professors W. M. Conacher and Marcel Tirol will be the guest speakers. They will render two most interesting works of French literature:

Toine by Maupassant and Le Curè de Cucugnan by Daudet.

These presentations will be illustrated.

A general invitation is extended to all

Arts Society Holds Interesting Meeting

Prof. Conacher Gives Amusing 'Chalk Talk'

The Arts Society had a large turn-out on Tuesday in response to the appeal for support mailed to each member last Monday morning.

The president, Stu Warrington, asked the members to help the executive by continuing to turn out and invited suggestions as to how attendance could be boosted. It was proposed that entertainment should be provided. This met the approval of the president who agreed to procure talent for future meetings.

The guest speaker, Prof. Conacher produced a mirthquake with his humorous chalk talk. It was historical, dealing mainly with King Richard's experiences in the Holy Land. Another feature was the "Dishing of the Dinosaur" in which Professor Conacher depicted how our cavemen ancestors dealt with the deadly dinosaur.

The meeting unfortunately had to be brought to a speedy conclusion owing to the persistent interruption of the janitor. But although it was found impossible adequately to deal with all the issues which had been raised by the circular letter sent to the senior members of the Arts Society, President Stu Warrington has expressed his expectation that it will not be long before further opportunity to resume consideration of these matters will be afforded.

No Decision To Join In Retailers' Survey Reached

Dr. Mackintosh Gives Statement To Journal About Toronto Story

"No final decision has been reached as yet, Dr. W. A. Mackintosh declared in an interview with a Journal representative yesterday, concerning the report which appeared in the Mail and Empire regarding co-operation between the Retail Merchant's Association of Canada and the Commerce Department of Queen's in a survey of the domestic market.

The report ran as follows:

The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada announced last night it would co-operate with the Commerce Department of Queen's University, Kingston, in plans for an exhaustive study to formulate definite information regarding domestic distribution of Canadian products.

The survey will be under the joint direction of the Queen's faculty of Commerce and the business management bureau of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Commerce students will be used for detail work such as interviews with Government officials, financial and manufacturing leaders, economists, statisticians, importers, wholesalers, jobbers and retailers, while a house-to-house canvass will be made to determine consumers' needs and desires.

The information obtained in the survey will be used as a nucleus for the formation of a permanent economic laboratory to work out practical business problems in Canada, the announcement said, which will be similar to that operated by the United States Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Harvard Bureau of Statistical Research.

Saturday Morning Declared Holiday

A general holiday has been declared for to-morrow morning. Today at 10.45 a.m. a special Remembrance Service was held in Grant Hall. All classes were resumed at 11.10 a.m., after this brief ceremony of commemoration.

Letters To Dr. W. McNeill Reveal Aspiring Students' Ideas About Queen's University

The following extracts are from letters of enquiry received by the University and quoted by Dr. McNeill in his speech at the Soph-Frosh banquet.

Dear Sir:

I notice that you give the degrees of B.A., B.Sc., M.A., M.Sc., D.Sc., Ph.D., LL.D. I intend to take them all and would esteem it a great favour if you would advise me as to the best order in which to take them.

Dear Sir:

Received your letter . . . Are there any boys who wear short pants in the University and about how many?

I am getting a Fall suit and would wish to know if the Queen's University have any special colours for a suit and any special style; if so please give me details and samples, if possible.

Dear Sir:

I have received from you the Calendar of the Faculty of Arts . . . . I have left now only my duty to thank you.

Then follow five pages from which a few sentences are quoted.

Continued on page 3

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ——MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ——NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ——SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 —— LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 —— LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE —— SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON —— MEDICINE

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11th, 1932

After Fourteen Years

To-day, Armistice Day, should arouse poignant memories in the hearts of all citizens worthy of the name. Fourteen years ago to-day peace came to a world weary and war-racked by the most gruesome and intensive struggle ever visited upon us. We need not stress the sufferings, blood-shed, and evils of this four year period of massacre. But this day should have a special cachet for all of us. Our first thoughts should be of thanksgiving to Him Who in His mercy let peace descend upon helpless peoples. This fourteenth anniversary can no better be employed than in reserving it for consideration and meditation upon the evils of war and the quality of peace.

The gigantic struggle which ended in 1918 was looked upon by many as the final blow to the spirit of war. This was the struggle that would end all wars. But once again the hopes of the people were to be shattered by a siege in the Far East, whose short duration was all that foiled world reperenssions. Unfortunately the Armistice of 1918 was not final or true peace. We have treaties containing pledges to the cause of peace. Yet the rumblings of war have ever been present to mar its quality, and cast doubt as to its duration.

The action of Governments in officially designating one day as a civic holiday is not primarily meant to honor our veterans, but to pay homage to those who fell in the great strife. It is hoped by so doing, youth will be impressed with the utter destructiveness of war and the needless sacrifice of lives that it entails.

A special remembrance service is being held for the student body. But during the day let us bear in mind that one hundred and sixty-nine Queen's men gave their lives in the Great War.

We are indeed sorry that the officials have not declared a general holiday on this occasion. True, a service is being held, but one might be led to believe that the years are succeeding in obscuring the importance of Armistice Day.

Another Angle

Sometime ago we had occasion to comment editorially on an act of hoodlism on the campus—the daubing of a visitor's car. Acting on information given us in good faith we deplored this irresponsible act and demanded an investigation of the case. While charging no one with the act we said that circumstances pointed to the group who had held a secret initiation on the night of the car painting as the authors of the deed. This group pleaded guilty to the initiation offense and were sentenced accordingly.

While we have no new information on the case, the group in question has not been proved guilty of the car painting. In view of this and after a consideration of their sincere plea of innocence we willingly bring to the attention of all that they cannot in justice be held as the authors of the deed on the present evidence. We are glad of this opportunity of presenting this angle of the case to our readers.

Progress

Readers of the Western Gazette, official undergraduate newspaper of the University of Western Ontario, were happily surprised recently by the announcement that this publication would become a semi-weekly. This decision was reached after a study of the project forecast an immediate success for the new venture. After carrying on worthily for many years as a weekly the Gazette is now prepared to render better service than ever before.

We can infer but one thing from this decision—that Western is enjoying a period of rapid progress.

We are happy to congratulate the Gazette Board and to wish them every success in their new venture.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Pro Or Con?

It is a well-known fact that many university students try to earn as much money as possible while at college; neither are the ways nor means of obtaining money limited. This year, particularly, since Old Man Depression has been let loose, many novel ideas have been introduced. For some time past we have had representatives of all kinds —from newspaper reporters to laundry and stationery agents—but never before have we had peanut vendors. They are absolutely nouveaux at Mt. A. and may not have appeared on other campuses. The originators are worthy of congratulation for their forethought and enterprise. Evidently there are still a few people who are unwilling to be gripped by the depression.

Selling peanuts, however, is a form of work that can be done by assistants. In that way the promoters have only to direct. But all the kinds of work performed by students on this campus for remuneration are not as easy. Many of the student employees are obliged to rise at an earlier hour than those who do not work; they have to arrange to leave classes in order to wait in the dining-room, and even then they eat hurried meals. That such a condition should exist among university students, many of whom have difficult courses, is unfortunate. William B. Munro, in an article some time ago in Harper's Magazine, on "Quack-Doctoring the Colleges," says:

"There has been too much deification of the boy who works his way through college——A few fellows derive benefit from the experience of having to earn their way, but the vast majority do nothing of the sort. To them it simply means that these plastic years of young manhood are clouded by financial anxieties which haunt the soul and depress the spirit.

——It involves a denial of leisure moments at a time when these would be of the greatest value. It compels the student to cut corners, to forego many cultural advantages which the college environment provides (?) and sometimes to undermine his health as well. Many a man does not learn the real cost of working his way through college until he has passed into the fifties. Then he finds that there are prematurely frayed-out nerves to be entered on the debit side of the account.——"

The above quotation is all too true. Students themselves do not realize the effect of extra work until the deed is done. University authorities would do well to check up more thoroughly on such matters. Only they can enforce a remedy.

—Argosy Weekly.

Official Notices

Holiday, November 12th

As there was no holiday on Remembrance Day a half holiday has been declared for Saturday morning, November 12th.

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

A. J. and Margaret Grant Bursary in Arts.

This Scholarship is now worth $595.75. As it was not awarded on Matriculation it is now open in the first instance to properly qualified students in the Faculty of Arts who have come from the high schools of Glengarry. All students from the high schools of Glengarry who are registered in the Faculty of Arts are asked to send their names to the Registrar by November 15th in order that the Committee on Scholarships may be in a position to draw up proper regulations for the award of the Scholarship.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

The Garton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Garton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

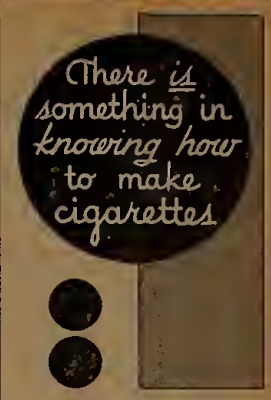
A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Collegiana

Football vs. Knitting

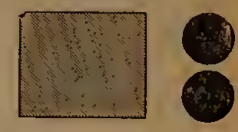
Football is so important at the University of Melbourne, Australia, that co-eds have taken up the sport. They threaten to challenge the regulars before the season is over. Latest reports from Australia are that the men have turned to knitting for respite.

The presidential race, interscholastic debates, and all-university elections are forgotten on all the campus now. There is only one subject that every collegiate reader is interested in. It's no nse. We must bow to the great King Foothall.



But even a King's throne sometimes totters. Emporia college in Kansas will have no more football — they will even stage the greatest Homecoming yet, without a football game!

—University of Washington



An editorial in The Daily Northwestern states that socialists are the only politically conscious students on campus.

Lecture assemblies at the University of Chicago have been discontinued because of lack of student interest.

When the University of Oregon gridders met Santa Clara college last Saturday, they saw a real movie star. Jackie Coogan, youthful movie actor, was Santa Clara's yell leader.

How else can anyone account for the growth in popularity which is enjoyed by Canada's favourite Blended Cigarette?

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor.

We have been reading during the past few weeks through these columns, slurs and slaurs and objections to our Queen's brass band. It is time the students knew a few things that will awaken them to the fact of how rotten and bigoted our A. M. S. Executive is along with the keen interest we as a student body have shown.

The band have played faithfully at all our home games, and there are few of us who will not agree that the part they played in putting a real show on for Lord and Lady Bessborough, was a grand effort. For these home games they received the sum of $30.00 from the A. B. of C. The McGill band gets $50.00 a game —together with a grant. Maybe our A. B. of C. cannot afford more. We will not dispute it.

As I said before the band has played faithfully without reward. Now they come to claim their reward. "A Trip to Varsity." They have $100 in the treasury. They need $150. Before the election they were promised a grant of $50 from the A.M.S. Tuesday night at the A. M. S. executive meeting they were turned down flatly.

The whole executive: "We can't afford it."

First of all. Who of you with any brains would set out for Toronto with only $3 in your jeans. Of course the band don't need to eat.

Last of all. Who asked our A. M. S. to reduce our fees to such an extent that they are unable to support the student interests. Not the students. We can safely say that any executive that does nothing will spend nothing doing it.

We as students owe our hand something for the color they add to our games. It is up to our A. M. S. executive as our representatives to support them.

As a result of our A. M. S. executive's brainlessness the band cannot make their one trip. (McGill makes two. Varsity all three).

In return I hope the band in future years repays them by refusing to play at any games or even organizing.

An interested student who can't even play a picolo.

AN EXAMINATION?

The closing bell soon tells: and thus
I bid a fond farewell to calculus.
It was my hope, that, barring adverse fate.
With pencil deft, I'd differentiate.
And sneaking up on unsuspecting sums,
I'd see at once if they were maximums.
How I would laugh, in wholesome fiendish glee,
As I prepared the cubic root of three.
And boxes I would make, of greatest size,
A treat to modern, cynic blinded eyes,
And not a darn scrap wasted—But behind
Are all these faery fancies of the mind.
I sit and think until my brain cells hum.
And still these awful limits will not come.
I cannot find the angles, woe is me,
At every single point I'm up a tree.
And so I go—With pain I cannot tell,
Adieu to thee: fair calculus, farewell.

B.W.K.

Being a History of the City of Kin.

Kin is to Can what Rome was to the Roman Empire, what Sparta was to Greece, what Carthage was to the Carthaginians, and what Montre the Red is to the American tourist. Verily a necessary evil.

Many ages past there lived a Christian named Noah. Of all those living on the land at that time he alone was warned of a great flood. Noah, was a man of great wisdom, so to prolong his earthly sojourn he built himself an ark. Into this ark he took all his relations. He also took with him two of each species of animal here below. When everything was ready the flood came.

After floating for several months. Noah grew anxious and sent out a pigeon. It soon returned with a leaf, and thus encouraged, Noah sent him out again. But this time he didn't come back at all.

Finally all the flood was carried away by the waters of the Rideau Canal and Noah and his ark came to rest on a level stretch of rock.

Firstly Noah named this spot and he called it Kingston after the large number of rocks lying around. This name was shortened to Kin about 1500 B.C.

Secondly he released all the imprisoned animals. The snakes and serpents took a due west direction and their exact courses are now known as Union and Earl Streets. One of Noah's sons had an argument with his spouse and the route over which she chased him has since been called Division Street.

Here duty bids us relate a pathetic part of our history. While out for a stroll one day Noah found the remains of his dead carrier-pigeon. As a suitable monument he erected a large limestone building, and since he could not call it the pigeon house, he named it the Hen-Coop. The same has changed little little since then, and is now heard of as the Pen-Coop.

In Noah's party there was a very, very mean man—the meanest man in the world so to speak. He never laughed and hated to see anyone else have a good time. To punish him Noah built a huge jail and put him in it. Out of cynicism, more than anything else he called it a big name—The Grand Theatre. As a point of information we might add that it was not until 100 B.C. that the Capitol and Tivoli were built, but when they did come were a much needed improvement.

Thus did Kin begin. From a humble start it has grown into a hustling metropolis. "From humble beginnings came all great things," saith the sage, and it is ever thus. we are all hopeful. As an afterthought we might mention that the original ark still plies between Kin and Wolfe Island.

November Edition Quarterly Appears

The November edition of the Queen's Quarterly is the Scott Centenary Number and contains four articles in honour of Sir Walter. The first, entitled Our Debt to Scott To-day, by the Regius Professor of English Language and Literature at the University of Glasgow, is part of an address delivered at the annual dinner of the Edinburgh Sir Walter Scott Club. Edmund Blunden is the author of a rather hurried appreciation of the poetry of Scott, while the Rev. M. O. Smith contributes an essay on Scott and His Modern Rivals. The fourth article entitled Through a Scottish Layman's Eyes is by Dr. James Miller, Professor of Pathology at Queen's.

The Quarterly contains a number of other articles of outstanding interest and importance. The World in Conference is the subject of a paper by Mr. George Glasgow of the Contemporary Review; Professor Frank Underhill writes on Bentham and Benthamism; Dr. Jordan under the title A Frenchman's Tribute to Shakespeare, reviews a book of lectures on Shakespeare by Louis Gillet; there is a study of School Readers As An Educational Force by the President of Western University; and there are the usual departments for Current Events and Book Reviews.

The Quarterly also contains new poems by John Drinkwater and Charles Roberts, a short story by Mrs. Duthie, and a sketch in lighter vein, called Three Men in a Boat, by Malone K. Malone.

Letters To Dr. McNeill Contain Wit And Humor

Continued from page 1

I am looking forward to the termination of this term's work so that I may be able to pursue my studies in Arts at your University. The past four years years which I have spent in the X Collegiate Institute have been a succession of pleasant events, which have made me feel part of the Institute itself. And I am sure that the coming year is not going to prove an exception. As much as I dislike to leave the X Collegiate Institute, yet I feel that I will be able to adapt myself to the life of Queen's in an incredible time and that I will feel as much at home there as here in X. This belief is established in me because of the illustrated Calendar you were so kind to send me. I am sure from the illustrations in this book, that Queen's will be just like a home for me. No higher compliment could I pay you.

Application for admission. Letter Sept. 1930.

"For some reason that I cannot understand I failed in all my matriculation examinations except one. But I am not discouraged. I hope you will admit me. I have to offer an undaunted ambition and a pass mark in Physics."

A CORRECTION

Owing to a curious typographical error whereby two whole lines of print were dropped from the account of the L. S. R. meeting in the last issue of the Journal, the resolution of the Fabian Society there cited was misquoted. It should read:

"The members of the Society assert that the competitive system assures the happiness and comfort of the few at the expense of the suffering of the many and that Society must be reconstituted in such a manner as to secure the general welfare and happiness."

Miss Bama and Mr. Barber

"Miss Baba—'s new Empire coiffeur was being much admired." Gossip in Weekly Paper

S. C. M. Shrapnel

At a recent meeting of one of the discussion groups of the S.C.A. under the leadership of Prof. Smails, the position of the unfortunates who are unemployed was discussed and it was generally accepted that those whose capacity for labour has failed, or who cannot find work to do should be honourably maintained by the labour of others.

It was also suggested that the present economic structure is a world of impersonal forces which respond only to the stimulus of self interest. At this point a warm debate ensued regarding the position of the ethical impulse in modern society and its relation to the self interest of the individual and the nation. Leading out of this argument the ultimate trend of the present system was discussed and this problem will form a starting point for the discussion next Monday night.

Many students of to-day were wearing rompers when their predecessors of fifteen years ago were under fire and suffering unthinkable things in soul and body. But how many, one wonders, will remember that? Yet any lesser remembrance would be sacrilege. If there are any harvests from their sowing we ought to reap if we have the stamina required.

The proposition seems to be this. That student generation flung in everything they had to destroy an old system, and they did the job well. This generation has to create a new system on this reclaimed ground; a less foul job, and more hopeful. If we don't do that then we sell out the fellows who fought and enlist ourselves as quitters. They have given us the chance. The only suggestion made is that this student generation shake off the anaesthetic and remember to live.

Frosh Fete Sophomores At Soph-Frosh Banquet

Continued from page 1

Dr. McNeill then quoted samples of letters of enquiry received from students wishing to enter Queen's. Further reference to these may be had on page 1.

In his peroration Dr. McNeill became serious and sought to discover what it is to be a University man. He found the answer in Hamlet and noticed that Shakespeare in answering this enquiry placed particular emphasis upon the cultivation of god-like reason. The cultivation of intellectuality, is the principal aim of the University. Dr. McNeill stressed, and went on to appeal for greater student interest in lectures by distinguished visitors especially. He concluded "It is the glory of a University man to be interested in intellectual pursuits."

Preston Hockey Player Departs For Switzerland

Preston — Harvey ("Barney") Reist of Preston has received a scholarship in the University of Zurich, Switzerland, and sailed Friday from Montreal to take up his studies there. It is also understood that Reist will play hockey for the university, their season opening the day after his arrival. Reist's absence will be a serious loss to the local hockey club for this winter, his training with Queen's University for the past few winters, both in hockey and football, being expected to bolster the local club.

Unfortunately Princeton cannot engage a new football team as it can acquire a new coach.

—Boston Herald.

Raze Kansas Hall

Snow Hall, one of the oldest buildings on the University of Kansas campus, will be razed this winter, following an order of the board of regents. The building has been unoccupied for several years.

Hitch-Hikers Fined

Seven Carolina students were brought before recorder's court and fined recently after they were caught "bumming" rides from the highways. They were enroute to their respective homes. What a sin! What a crime!

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

Without Doubt The Greatest Value in O'COATS

$18.50 AND $20.00

SALE
Sample Sox
Plain
And Fancy
Patterns
English Make
Regular 75c
For 55c
2 pair for $1.00

TUXEDOS
Be prepared for the coming social events
See our Special Tuxedo Suit at $25.00
All Dress Accessories

SALE
Sample Sox
Fancy
Weaves and Patterns
Jaegar
English Make
Regular $1.00
For 79c
2 pair for $1.50

Dressy Gloves—Genuine Goat Skin $1.50

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Halitosis

Are you afraid to take off your shoes in a drawing room? Your best friends won't tell you, but its a poor creature that hasn't a sister and few good enemies. They tell you, emphatically. That's the invidious thing about halitosis. To mask the condition with a pipe is to give an undeserved bad name to man's best friend. To gargle engenders homicidal thoughts in the mind of the roommate who was out late the night before. The subject must be faced squarely, if the subject may be induced to accept such treatment under the circumstances. When telephone operators hang up without giving you your number, it is time to begin drastic measures, such as pharynegectomy.

"Hygeia" says, "The sad feature about halitosis is that it usually develops with treacherous slowness. The affected individual thus becomes accustomed to the condition and does not notice its progress. A most unbearable stench may develop without the hearer being cognisant of the fact. He is sometimes suspicious, but he rarely knows the extent to which the odour exists.

But everyone else does even though "your best friends won't tell you." The subject is a most disagreeable one, and people hesitate to tell anyone that he has halitosis. How much better and more sensible it would be if they would. As far as halitosis is concerned it may be said that there is no friend like the dentist. Through the medium of advertising the public has developed a halitosis complex; it has become halitosis conscious. In general, this has proved beneficial, for it has caused many to give their mouths better attention, especially since advertisers have conclusively demonstrated that halitosis is the mortal enemy of sex appeal.

The word teeth covers a multitude of sins. Among other things, the teeth may be neglected, so that the collected filth emits the unpleasant smell. Again, the condition may be due to the fact that the teeth are brushed the wrong way, so that dirt remains instead of being removed. In other cases it may be caused by the work of a quack dentist, who has inserted a plate or other dental restoration in such an insanitary manner as to produce inaccessible pockets of dirt. When a bridge, for example, is made in such a manner that the toothbrush cannot reach all parts of it, debris accumulates, and it is perfectly natural for a fetid breath to develop as a result. Cavities in teeth literally invite halitosis, while inflamed gums exuding pus or blood may cause the condition. Pyorrhea, trench mouth, and forms of stomatitis also give rise to distinctive odours.

On the other hand, halitosis may not be caused by teeth at all. It may be produced by the tonsils or the tongue, which may also accumulate debris and harbour putrefactive foodstuffs and bacteria.

However, it is even possible in some cases that mouth conditions may not be the cause of halitosis. More pronounced and disagreeable odours may result from other than oral ailments. They may be produced by abnormal conditions of the respiratory tract. Pathologieal sinus conditions may create the objectionable odour: gastro intestinal or other more serious disturbances may be at the root of the trouble. Disease of the aesophagois, cancer, and other malignant processes in advanced conditions are also causative factors.

The important fact to be kept in mind in reference to halitosis is that it is not a disease, but a by product of an unhealthy mouth or other condition. Do not expect to remove the cause of halitosis simply by the use of a mouth wash or tooth paste, however excellent they may be. One must find the cause; mouth fetor is only the result of other ailments.

Heed halitosis. It may be the first indication of a more serious disturbance.

Medical students must regard this condition as an objective as well as a subjective phenomenon. It is pathognomic of many quite serious conditions, and, remembering the identification of mouth cleanliness with sex appeal the coming generation of physicians must be prepared to do its share in combating the well-known tendency to race suicide. As a personal matter, the consideration of halitosis is also important. Students already handicapped by lack of sock suspenders cannot afford to overlook other details.

Even if one's enemies should happen to be as reticent as one's friends there are still ways of determining whether or not one is an offender against the accepted rules of oral pagrance. The doubtful one may, for instance, stop in the street and confront one of Kingston's rapid transit delivery horses, wakening the beast if necessary. An expression of disgust, or even one of pained surprises on the horse's part is suffieient reason for a trip to the dentist. If, on the other hand, the animal seems frightened, a plastic surgeon would perhaps be better. Canaries are said to be especially sensitive to unpleasant and dangerous gases, but they are so frequently inclined to be surly brutes that their apparent disapproval is not necessarily significant of this particular offence.

In this case, as in very many others, Socrates' 'Gnothe Seauton' is the best advice that may be offered.

Bander Snatches

Alice's courses were all wrong. She was sure of it!

After six weeks of College she had arrived at a point where she felt that she was not getting a a thing out of them. Her course in Dancing 1 was rather fun, but she had had no particular opportunities in which to put her new knowledge into actual practice. You see, there had only been a couple of Frosh Tea Dances and a Year Dance which really weren't much, considering all that Alice had heard about Queen's night life and Youth Dashing to its Doom and so on.

To make matters worse—here was the Meds Formal approaching and she had to get to that! Alas, however, (Oh, don't think she didn't know any of those fine fellows) she was 'way behind in her studying — and had to get caught up if she was ever to become a Frantic Flapper.

For instance, there was Library Love-Making 16a and 23b — awful courses. Alice had tried and tried to get things for reference in the Lib. without success. ("And how am I to do exercises and things in this course if I can't even learn a little about Hand-Holding there?" she had complained).

Now, she didn't realize this—but her time-table had been made out wrong in the first place. The Mock Turtle had no intention of telling her this until she wanted to gradnate. Then he'd make her take a couple of extra courses "just for the sake of argument." (And the College Exchequer).

Now Alice had taken Library Love-Making in one of its less vicious forms in High School, but did not know that she needed the grounding in 2 or 3 and 10 before she could hope to get anything out of such advanced half-courses as 16a and 23b. She should know that she could never get the required seconds with just an ordinary amount of work. She needed intensive study and expert tutoring. But she didn't know it!

The poor child had gotten into the habit of lingering in one of those "dark corners" and waiting for hours at a time in forlorn hope that one of the C. O. T. C. hemen would happen along. Alas, though she would stay till the last possible minute and would be late for meals and classes — no one ever appeared.

Then suddenly, out of a blue sky, the Red Queen got her a bid for the King Edward Supper Dance in Toronto after the game. She was thrilled at the idea, especially because she knew she'd be able to get caught up in her courses and thus be able to go to the Formal when she got back to Kingston.

TREACLE and INK.

X their mark.

OLD COLLEGE

Canada's most famous academy of learning has been sold for the princely sum of $20. The "Old College," Pictou Academy, N.S., which was built in 1816, and has given Canada some of her most distinguished sons in all fields of endeavour, has been sold for the firewood it contains.

It was originally built as a nucleus for a Presbyterian college in the Maritimes, but due to Anglican control of the Legislature, this plan was thwarted; out of this quarrel arose the struggle for Responsible government in Nova Scotia.

This once-famed institution numbers among its graduates Sir William Dawson, for many years the Principal of McGill University.

—McGill Daily.

Medical Formal Promises To Be Successful Affair

Continued from page 1

tinctive and plans have been well and truly laid for this year's to be unique, original and beautiful.

The committee believe that the favors will prove to be one of the greatest surprises of recent years. Novel, tricky, and exclusive, they will be a treasured keepsake for the ladies.

Everything else has been well and truly cared for. There will be bridge for those who care to play, a dainty supper to tempt the appetite, and quiet resting places for those who would rest and listen to the music.

Tickets are now on sale to members of the Medical Faculty and can be secured from any of the following committee. Ben Brachman, Convener, Phones 1005-J, 4199. R. D. Howitt, Phone 3772-W. W. L. McDonald, Phone 4167; W. Taylor, Phone 3274; J. S. Hazen, 4167; F. G. Elliott, Phone 1411-F; J. E. Baker, Phone 4199-W.

JUST LIKE HOME

A Chinese student, en route to Oklahoma University for the first time, was held up by four highwaymen, who forced him to lie down on the ground, took off his shoes and ransacked his car. As they left his watch as a "receipt for goods received," the Oklahoma Daily reports, he found "nothing particularly distasteful in the holdup."

—Columbia Spectator.

Southern Hospitality

At a rushing party recently given at Louisiana State college by a sorority, the hostesses were dressed as southern gentlemen of the Civil war period, while the rushees appeared as southern belles. The entertainment was held in an old southern mansion Southern hospitality, suh!

—Daily O'Collegian.

Student Loans

Five hundred and fifteen of the 2,500 students so far registered in the University of North Carolina are depending upon the student loan fund for aid in attending school this year, the Daily Tar Heel reports. The fund showed a cash balance of $40,792 before registration this term.

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

CAREFREE DANCE
Sat. Nov. 12th
The Honour Science Club of University of Toronto offer "Carefree Dance" at U.T.S. corner of Bloor and Huron Sts., 2 blocks from Stadium. $1.00 per couple.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

SOLD EXCLUSIVELY
AT
LUCILLE'S Ltd.
160 Princess St.
Chiffon
Semi-Service Service
69c $1.00 $1.50
The Usual Students' Discount Prevails

ALL OUR HOSIERY IS GUARANTEED
PENMANS
NEW SILK HOSIERY

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

The Theatre

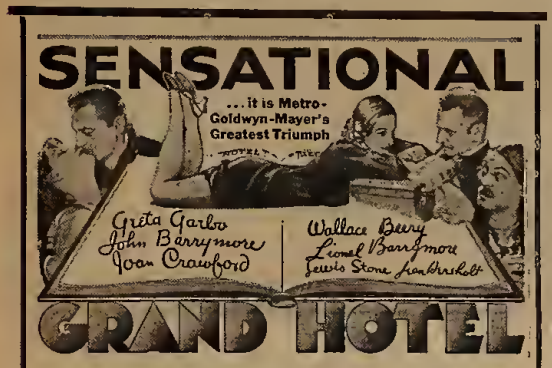
AT THE CAPITOL

THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME
with
Joel McCrea, Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong.

The Most Dangerous Game is a movie bloodthirsty enough to rival even Frankenstein. The actual story is not new. John Buchan, for one, has used it.

Joel McCrea plays the part of a big game hunter who is shipwrecked in the South Pacific. He swims to an island and seeks shelter in Count Zofari's fortress. Zofari, too is a hunter, but under a pleasant exterior he hides a maniac's brain, for he hunts not wild animals, but MAN. Possessing a thoroughly sporting nature, he gives half a day's start to his captives, who are armed only with hunting knives. He, himself, equipped with hounds, rifles, bows, arrows and sundry other implements of warfare, sets out to track them down.

Joel McCrea gives only an average performance. Fay Wray is satisfactory as the damsel in distress, but the laurels undoubtedly go to Leslie Banks, who plays the part of the maniacal Count to perfection. B plus.



AT THE TIVOLI

NIGHT AFTER NIGHT
with
George Raft, Constance Cummings, Mae West and Alison Skipworth

The accelerated tempo and sustained interest of Night After Night are strong enough to compensate for its defects. George Raft plays a lovable and tough speakeasy proprietor who is trying to inoculate himself with a little culture by dint of lessons from an aged school teacher. He takes a terrific loop for an aristocratic young lady who comes, unescorted, into his speakeasy. Events and dialogue move swiftly and amusingly, assisted by that old trouper, Mae West.

This film departs from the precedent by having a new anti-climatic twist. As against the generally pleasing effect of Night After Night, one scene is inserted which deserves Mr. Nathan's Croix de Boloney. I refer to the fatuous gag of a love-crazed gunman's moll counting ten with a pistol aimed at his heart.

George Raft is convincing as a "modern pirate." Constance Cummings brings a new timbre into her portrayal of the lady. She injects, quite effortlessly, into her part a certain clear charm. B plus.

The One Picture the whole world is waiting for! The picture that eclipses all previous stage and screen entertainments! With Hollywood's aristocracy of stars enacting each thrilling role! No wonder crowds storm the doors of theatres all over the country, comes direct to Kingston from its long run at the Astor Theatre, New York, where it smashed all records in screen history. Don't miss screendoms proudest triumph!

: SHOWING AT OUR Usual Prices :

Capitol THEATRE SAT. MON. TUE. WED.

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG

The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.

SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Book Chats

By R.M.

In this day and hour, cancellation of debts, private and public, is a moot question. Suppose you and I were to cancel all the debts of the people who owe us and are afraid to face us, so that they can afford to cancel the debts of the people who owe them. This is something like what Lloyd Douglas had in mind when he wrote, "Forgive Us Our Trespasses" (Thomas Allen, Toronto).

Mr. Douglas is before the public eye just now as the author of a best-seller, Magnificent Obsession. His second novel was published November 2nd. As a Canadian with a distinct talent for problem fiction his work deserves attention. For the first few chapters or so I did not agree with the blurb that this novel showed "a new ease and a new power," but found it difficult to pick up the thread of the narrative. Mr. Douglas jumps with rather confusing rapidity, from introspection to description of outward circumstances It seems to me a little more continuity, a better linking up of incident would add to the interest of the story. On the whole, however, character and event are true to life. The dialogue of the crude Miller family is natural and in keeping. Julia Miller is a distinctive type who is vividly real.

Besides the ordinary mechanics of novel writing, however, there is a powerful theme which has already been hinted at. After all the merit of a book must be judged from the affect it has on one. Form and colour may be appreciated as objective entities. Yet no matter how distilled or detached from life these qualities may seem to be even they have a subtle though discernible connection with life. Therefore, I should answer the critics who would bar religion from fiction that religion is life and fiction attempts to portray life. Mr. Douglas has set forth an ideal of personality in "Forgive us Our Trespasses" that throws out a challenge to narrow orthodox religiosity.

There is no false nicety in the treatment of his theme or overlooking of the unpleasant facts of life. He shows how a spirit of hatred and unforgiveness can cause needless harm in people and the world at large. Dinny Craig, the victim of perverse fate, who becomes a writer with a bitter, rather clever satirical talent is the central figure. He is attracted to Joan Braithwaite, but the gall of his disillusionment obtrudes itself to thwart their love. How reconciliation is brought about is told convincingly and without insipid sentimentality. Anyone who has not dipped into Mr. Douglas' first novel should certainly read this one and those who have sampled Magnificent Obsession will find his latest book a rare vintage.

Among some of the recent books that have been favourably reviewed are two by Canadian authors: The Broken Journey—Morley Callaghan, and Tayville—J. K. Robertson. Mr. Robertson is a member of the physics department at Queen's. Morley Callaghan is a Canadian author who served his apprenticeship on the Toronto Daily Star. His is recognized as one of our leading litterateurs.

Two American novels are nearing the top of the best-sellers' list. These are Beyond Desire by Sherwood Anderson, and Death in the Afternoon, by Ernest Hemingway. Both of these writers are in the foremost rank of American novelists.

A. M. S. Minutes

A meeting of the A.M.S. Executive was held on October 24, 1932, at 7 p.m. President Clapp in the chair.

Present — Misses Landon and Kimmons, Messrs. Carter, Charland, Clapp, Day, Finley, Hamlin, Kenney, Morrison, Parks, Sprague, Wilson and the Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

Minutes read and adopted.

Mr. Warrington reported that no reply had as yet been received from the letter sent to last year's Editor of the Tricolor. Mr. Clapp reported that the matter of carrying Queen's cheer leader with the team to out-of-town games was favourably received by the Athletic Board of Control. The Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to reply to a communication from the National Federation of Canadian University Students regretting that for this year the A.M.S. could not see its way clear to re-affiliate with the Federation.

Wilson-Carter — that Messrs. Finley, Parks and Currie be appointed to draw up a budget and submit it at the next meeting. Carried.

Finlay-Charland—that Mr. Hamlin be appointed our representative at the Hart House Masquerade. Carried.

Clapp-Landon—that Miss Kimmons and Mr. Morrison be appointed to act with the President as members for the A.M.S. on the Social Functions Committee. Carried.

Charland-Day—that the following bills be paid for the Journal: Kingston Lock and Key Shop, keys, $2.10; Dobbs, Typewriter, $2.40; Bank of Commerce, Safe Deposit Box, $3.75. Carried.

Morrison-Day—that the following accounts be paid for the A.M.S. —C.P.R. Telegrams, $1.18; Hanson & Edgar, Stationery, $9.50; Jackson Press, Constitution $53.00; Professor Walker, Auditor, $50.00. Carried.

The following appointments to the A.M.S. Court were approved by the Executive:

Chief Justice—Stan. Stanyar.

Junior Justice—J. D. Herman, Tom Watts.

Prosecuting Attorney—Les Williams.

Sheriff—Henry Hoskings.

Chief of Police—Bob. Stewart.

Clerk—Alan Sprague.

Crier—G. W. Porter.

Finley-Morrison—that the President of the A.M.S. and of the three Faculty Societies be constituted a committee with power to fill vacancies on A.M.S. Court, if any. Carried.

Morrison-Kenney — that Tom. Nugent be appointed Business Manager of the Tricolor at a commission of 20% on all advertising received and paid over to the A.M.S.—Carried.

Parks-Hamlin—that the remaining Tricolors be sold at a price of $1.00 per copy. Carried.

Hamlin-Wilson—that Eric Gilmour be appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Tricolor at an honorarium of $100. Carried.

QUEEN'S - VARSITY NIGHT
DANCE WITH THE RUGBY TEAM
Silver Slipper
TORONTO
Gene Fogarty and His Orchestra
Phone for Reservations
At the Queen's Table
Strictly Informal

We think we can save you quite a few dollars on
Your Suit or Overcoat
We offer no Baits, but we do offer Extra Value
TUXEDO SUITS
Thee Piece
Coat, Trouser and Silk Vest
Newest Model, Silk Lined and Beautifully Tailored
Bibbys Extra Value
$22.50
Suits and Overcoats
AT
$15.00
The Best this price can Buy anywhere in Canada
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

: The English Rugger Game :

In view of the exhibition game between the Westward Club and Toronto in the Richardson Stadium on Saturday and also of the Queen's game against Varsity at Toronto on the same day it has been deemed advisable to set forth the main points of the game for the information of those who may see either of the matches.

The team is composed of 15 men. There are no substitutes. The forwards, who take the place of the line in the Canadian game number 8 men. There are two half-backs, the scrum half and the fly half. They act as the link between the forwards and the three-quarters. The latter are 4 in number. The full-back is the 15th man on the side. His job is mainly that of a last line of defence in the event of a break-through.

The chief merits of the game are its continuity and, ordinarily, its openess and speed. The stoppage of play is caused chiefly by the ball going out of play—i.e. into "touch" —or by fouls on the part of the players. The most common form of foul is the "knock-on." If one player passes the ball to another and the receiver of the pass does not take the pass cleanly, but fumbles, drops it forward or allows it to bounce off his chest, he is guilty of "knock-on". The penalty is a scrum, in this case a "tight" scrum is formed on a regular pattern. The ball is put into the scrum from the side and both "packs" try to heel it. One side will succeed and the scrum half will take the ball and pass it to the fly half. Thus a three-quarter movement is started. Each three-quarter will try to draw his opposing man, but he should also get rid of the ball before being tackled. Though possession is needful before a side can score, the loss of it does not mean as much as it does in the Canadian game.

If a man is tackled with the ball, the ball is not necessarily "dead." The forwards gather round in a "loose" scrum and substantially the same movements are gone through as in the "tight" scrum. Whether the forwards gather round or not the ball may not be picked up again until it has been played with the foot.

On no account must the ball be passed forward. Only the man with the ball may be tackled. There is no blocking or obstructing other players than the man with the ball. A man shall be deemed "off-side" whenever he is in front of the ball though he is not necessarily penalized for being so. Unintentional "off-sides" are unavoidable.

"Kicking is done mainly with the object of gaining "touch", that is to say putting the ball over the side lines. When this happens the forwards line out and the ball is thrown to them from the touch line. Means of scoring are as follows: A "try" counts 3 points (touchdown). If the place-kick which follows it succeeds, 2 points are added and the whole is called a "goal".

A drop kick over the bar from the open field counts four points, while a drop kick or place kick over the bar resulting from a penalty, counts 3 points. There are no other means of scoring.

A.B. of C. To Choose Senior Hockey Coach

In a few days, probably Monday, the A. B. of C. will choose a hockey coach for the Queen's senior team.

Last year the University had a first rate team, but unfortunately most of its members have either graduated or left, and the coach, whoever he may be, is going to be left with the job of picking practically a new squad.

Gibson and Patterson will probably be the only too of last year's men to turn out this winter, while it is quite likely that Storms and Kennedy, both having played for R.M.C., will continue to shine in Intercollegiate athletics and chase the disk for Queen's this season.

Anybody who can play is asked to turn out and try out for a place on the team. Any one desiring further particulars can find out some from Rink Manager, or by watching future copies of the Journal.

There is a possibility of an International Intercollegiate schedule this winter, taking in Varsity, McGill, Queen's, Harvard, Princeton, and possibly Yale, but just what will be arranged lies with the Intercollegiate Hockey Commission and with our own A.B. of C. In which case a position on the team will be one of envy. So how about it fellows, get out as soon as the coach is appointed and get started right away.

Queen's Rugger Club Makes Appearance In Toronto

The Queen's Rugger Club will make their first appearance in public at the Varsity Stadium on Saturday. The game against the Varsity team is scheduled for 1 o'clock sharp and is to be played as an opener to the Intercollegiate contest. Queen's students who are going to Toronto are earnestly requested to turn out and support the team in this, its initial endeavour.

The team for Saturday will be: Forwards—R. Macdonald (Capt.) Harvey, Ralston, Brydon, Fleming, Gibson, Macdonald, Malen; halves, Ruffman and Panton; three-quarters, MacLaughlin, Barrie (Vice-Capt.), Finlay, Corbett; Full-back, Marriot; reserves, Clark, Fairbridge.

FORWARD PASSES

A win for Howie Carter playing his last game for Queen's. Wouldn't that help?

* * * * * *

The Intermediate game scheduled for Saturday with R. M. C. has been called off. The moths can resume their meals off the Intermediate team's outfits, as the boys have called it a season.

* * * * * *

They shouldn't feel too badly. They gave their best and that's a lot anytime.

* * * * * *

The Juniors can get somewhere by taking Varsity on Saturday; that is if they defeat them by about 33 points.

* * * * * *

Rugby fans are reminded of the Exhibition of English Rugger to be played at the Richardson Stadium on Saturday afternoon. Elsewhere is an article on the English game that will enable spectators to understand and appreciate it.

* * * * * *

The riot squad will no doubt be required to separate Tigers and Argos when they meet in Hamilton on Saturday. There never was love lost between the teams, and no quarter will be asked by either outfit.

* * * * * *

McGill goes to Western and the Mustangs should be peeved enough to tear them apart. Western weren't at all pleased when Queen's tied them. They figured on beating us.

Freshman Assault To Be Held On Nov-23

With Jack Jarvis back in our midst once more, we turn again to the B.W. and F. squad. To start the ball rolling properly there will be a Freshman Assault on the evening of Wednesday, November 23rd. There will probably be two exhibition bouts, both in boxing and in wrestling, to give the newcomers an idea of what to strive for, but the remainder will all be staged by the Frosh, and as usual the fight fans can expect a good show for their money.

There are several out training every night now, but there is still plenty of room for more, and anyone interested should get out and give it a try. The coaches like to see big squads and every one has an equal chance until they prove their worth.

Jack Ewing, the McGill boy, who was put out by Peever, in the Intercollegiate Assault here last winter, is with the Tricolor this year, but is unfortunately ineligible for competition. He can be seen any night in training, however, and will remain a threat for next year, to say nothing of the Interfaculty fights after Christmas.

Jack Jarvis, the boxing coach, and Mr. Bews, the wrestling coach, have practically to build a new team, so we ask everybody who is able to give them all the help they possibly can, and that means turn out now and show us you can fight.

Water Polo Players Are Training Steadily

With the A. B. of C. at last backing them the Water Polo crew under the coaching of Arn Wright will finally get underway. The boys have been out training for a week or more now, and with most of last year's disappointed players and a few newcomers, can be expected to put up a good show whoever they may play against.

There has already been arranged a Water Polo and Swimming Meet with the Kingston Swimming Club for the evening of Tuesday, 22nd of November, in the pool of the new gym., and all those interested in aquatic events, and in seeing the old university win, are asked to turn out and give their support to a gang that most certainly deserves it.

Seniors To Make Supreme Effort To Defeat Varsity

Continued from page 1

with Bill Glass back at outside wing, and Bill Carr at the quarter-back position. The team is in good shape and feel right now that they have reached their peak, and can step right into Toronto and take Varsity.

If we cannot win the Intercollegiate, the next best thing would be to throw Varsity right on their own field, and the boys will be in there trying just as hard as if the flag depended upon it.

It is only natural that the game should be more open than in former battles. Queen's can afford to take plenty of chances and will undoubtedly do so. The forward pass which has not been such a feature of their attacks as it might have, will probably get a thorough trying out, and it may prove to be a good weapon.

HISTORY IN FULL

Rule No. 7 for freshmen at Cedar Crest College reads, "Signs worn in the middle of backs with cord around neck, with full name, nickname and size of brassiere."

—Lehigh Brown and White.

Montreal Rugger Men Meet Varsity Here

Kingston is very fortunate to have an exhibition of English Rugger staged at the Richardson Stadium on Saturday afternoon. With no other attractions, and with no admission charge, a good crowd should witness this game.

Two of the finest teams in Eastern Canada are, at their own expense coming to Kingston to demonstrate English Rugger. The Montreal, and Toronto Football Clubs were finalists last year in the Ontario-Quebec playoffs, and the Toronto team won the Ontario championship in the Spring season of this year.

It perhaps is not generally known that Queen's has a team playing English Rugger this year, and while only beginning, they handed R.M.C. a defeat on their own grounds. They are playing Varsity Rugger team in Toronto on Saturday prior to the Queen's-Varsity football match.

In order that those who care to attend, but who do not know much about the style of play, may follow and understand the Rugger game, an article will be found in this issue of the Journal explaining it.

Followers of Rugger claim that it is by far the most interesting game played with a football, and many who thoroughly understand both the English and Canadian games, have no hesitation in declaring the English game superior.

Fans should not miss the opportunity to see this game and compare Rugger with Canadian football.

New Pep Song

Purdue university has adopted a new football song to augment the famous alma mater song, "Hail, Purdue." The new pep song, entitled "Purdue Battle Cry," was composed, words and music, by Prof. E. S. Emrick, director of the Purdue Boiler maker band.

Sold-Up

Bandits recently took $11,000 from the bank messenger who had just received it from Pasadena Junior college.

Smoke
Buckingham
—and Smile

People want quality.

Buckingham gives quality.

People want value.

In Buckingham you get the biggest value ever given in a popular priced cigarette.

20 for 20c.

B-341

Where Did You Go Last Night?

Wherever you went, if you wore a TIP TOP suit, you carried with you the distinction of being well-dressed.

Every TIP TOP suit is hand-cut and tailored to 21 personal measurements. There is a quality to a TIP TOP suit or overcoat that reflects the good judgment of the wearer. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN  WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are pround of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

YES
Cigarettes reduced in price "here" too!
M. R. McColl
Prescription Druggist
260 University Ave.
Our Ice Cream Parlor closes at 11 p.m.

Daily Kansan Takes Interest In Queen's

The following editorial appeared in the Daily Kansan, official undergraduate publication of the University of Kansas:

Collegiate interest in football is not entirely a phenomenon of the United States, if we may take a sports story and column in the Queen's Journal, twice - weekly newspaper of Queen's university, Kingston, Ontario, as an indication of Canadian interest in the sport. Theirs, however, is rugby, not American football

"Queen's Footballers Get Baptism of Fire Against Ottawa Rough Riders at Stadium Tomorrow" is the two-column head on the front page of the September 30 issue. Reading further into the story, we find that the Queen's coach has "a wealth of talent." A columnist says that if Queen's isn't rugby crazy, then Rockwood is a school for Einsteins. About seventy-five players have turned out for rugby already.

Evidently the university has its stadium already paid for, inasmuch as students' tickets for the game are selling for thirty-five cents. But they made a familiar plea in "A big crowd would surely put pep into the boys. How about it?"

The senior, or varsity, intercollegiate schedule for the Big Four conference — Queen's, Toronto, Western, and McGill universities —calls for two games with each school. Western, says the Journal, has two complete sets of uniforms this season. "At half time they can have a bath, change their togs, and polish their molars."

The forward pass is coming into vogue in rugby, but its use will be somewhat limited. A Toronto team, the Journal notes, spent an entire evening practicing forward passes, with the result that three or four out of around a hundred attempts were successful.

Athletes from the United States are very popular in Canadian colleges. These men have had experience in forward passing in grade and high schools, and therefore prove a valuable addition to rugby teams, especially since no adequate defensive play has been worked out. Some colleges have refused to pursue such methods, but others condone it on the ground that the example and advice of the United States players are educational.

DRAMATIC GUILD

The forthcoming productions of the Dramatic Guild are shaping very well during rehearsal and promise to be up to the usual high standard of excellence of the Guild's performances. Particular interest attaches to Gammer Gurton's Needle, an early English comedy of perennial appeal.

The date of presentation of the plays is fixed for November 18th and 19th.

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS

IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Fifth Year Squelched By Senior Saw Bones

Wallowing around in mud shin dig Final and Fifth Years met in a regular Medical interyear game yesterday afternoon. Final year winning 7 to 1.

The battle would have been much closer, but for a bad heave early in the first quarter on the part of '33's snap. In possession a few yards out from '33's line, and a point certain, Cecilioni of '34 snapped the ball far over halfback McKee's head. Athol Kenny of '33 scooped up the ball on the run and galloped 90 yards for a touch. The convert failed. He was led away and well rewarded.

Both lines played good rugby considering the muck. Fumbles were few and far between and had little effect on the score.

The first quarter was fairly even except for the unfortunate snap and touch. Josephson tackled well and Baker of '34 supplied a thrill when he took McLaughlin's kick and galloped back 40 yards, finally being forced into touch.

The second quarter had barely got under way when McKee of '34 kicked a point—a touch in goal.

Penalties were ruining '34's chances; and helping final year a whole lot.

Alexander tried three kicks and on the third he smashed through '34's line, passing the ball to Ben Lersman when tackled. Ben tore off another 20 yards to place the ball on '34's 25. McLaughlin's placement failed but '33 got a point. Half time score '33—6, '34—1.

No scores were recorded in the third spasm. Play was very even with both lines holding and the tackling good.

Susman's tackling was a feature while Bill Slack of '34 got the only game penalty for piling on.

At three-quarter time '33 insisted on taking time off to have their picture taken as champions. Most of the officials were included as was very fitting and a couple of profs. The photo would have resembled a year meeting.

Forward passes featured the final quarter. '34 tried a few with indifferent success.

Another '34 fumble on the backfield gave '33 the ball only a few yards out and Kenny kicked a rouge, making the score 7 to 1. And it remained that way.

For '34—Ace Stewart, Mintice McKee, Josephson, and Baker starred. For '33 Susman, Kenny, McLaughlin and Alexander supplied the thrills.

The teams:

'34 — Halves, Baker, McKee, Morrison; flying wing, Elliott; snap, Cecilioni; insides, Lemoges, Slack; middles, Bateman, Mutrie; outsides, Josephson, Remus; quarter, Stewart; subs, White, O'Connor, Stoddard.

33'—Halves, Kenny, McLaughlin, Hitz; flying wing, Susman; snap, Smith; insides, Lehto, Muirhead; middles, Putman, McGuire; outsides, Casselman, Sherkman; quarter, Alexander; subs, George, Gray, Taylor, Rennick, Pugh, Forster, Pinch, McDonald.

Officials:

Umpire, Bob Ralph '34; referee, Bennie Morris '33; head linesman, Bill Purvis '33; yard sticks, Bill Clark '34, Ben, Brachman '33; timekeepers, Bill Taylor '34, D. Clint White.

Managers:

Bud Gorman '34; Al Larkins '33.

Varsity Seniors Hope To Triumph Over Queen's

Continued from page 1

League with his kicking may appear on the backfield to give Arnup and Fenner a rest.

Last week in Montreal, Varsity played safe football all the way, attempting only one forward pass, and completing it and making only one end run for a gain of twelve yards. This week they will open up with all the plays in the bag. They have not used one sixth of the plays on their chart so far this year, and they have all worked well in practice. Saturday the fans will be treated to a wide open game.

Although Stevens will take no chances on getting any of the men banged up, the best team possible will be out there. Queen's with their record of three games without a loss will be hard to beat and maybe they won't be beaten.

PLAYING SAFE

Four trial presidents were elected by the members of the Freshman class at Penn State. Each of these men will conduct one regular business meeting before the elections are held.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

The University of Southern California is suing the lady who lives across the street from the gym and who insists on hanging out her clothes in plain sight, much to the students embarrassment.

—The Lafayette.

FRENCH LESSONS
Good conversational French taught
Reasonable rates
GASTON HOUDE
21 Division St. Phone 1265-W

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

ABRAMSKY'S
50,000 CASH SALE!!
SWEEPS RIGHT ON — OFFERING VALUES AND BARGAINS ON CANADA'S FINEST MERCHANDISE AT UNHEARD OF LOW PRICES
WOMENS! MISSES! COATS! DRESSES! MENS AND YOUNG MENS TAILORED SUITS — O'COATS AND FURNISHINGS.
BARGAINS THAT SHOUT BUY NOW!!

Very Special Selling Feature
Womens - Misses
FURRED COATS
Coats that are the real thing this very minute. Coats that you will be proud to wear—a personal inspection will prove a revelation.
Group No. 1 COATS
Reg. Values to $26.50
$18.88
Group No. 2 COATS
Values to $32.50
$22.88

MEN'S OXFORD GREY-BLUE MELTON
O'COATS
Reg. $18.50
$12.85
Men's Reg. $26.50
SILVERTONE
O'COATS
Very Special
$16.85
MENS AND BOYS
LEATHER COATS
Priced for quick disposal
SEE 'EM, BUY 'EM

EXTRAORDINARY BIG VALUE
One no one can afford to overlook
MENS 2 PANT SUITS
In finest quality Indigo Blue Serge with 2 pairs of pants. Also beautiful quality English Worsteds tailored for particular men — See these Suits before you purchase elsewhere. — Reg. $26.50.
$16.85

Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

First Student Service At St. James' Sunday

The first of the winter series of monthly University Services will be held in St. James' Anglican Church, on Sunday evening, Nov. 13th, at 7 o'clock. The preacher will be the Rev. Canon A. P. Gower-Rees, M.C., D.C.L., of Montreal. Dr. Gower-Rees had a distinguished record as a chaplain during the war, and is one of the best known preachers in the Anglican Church in Canada. Other preachers who will be heard through the winter are Bishop McConnell of New York (December), Rev. D. A. MacLerman of Montreal (January). Dr. Trevor Davies of Toronto (February), and Dr. Lynn Harold Hough of Drew University, New Jersey (March).

LEVANA MEETING

The second meeting of the Levana Society will be held in Ban Righ Hall on Wednesday, November 16th at 7 o'clock. The program will be supplied by members of the Dramatic Guild, and refreshments will be served.

GIRL'S GOWNS

Patterns for girl's gowns are on sale at the office of the Dean of Women in the Arts building.

Dr. Vlastos Explains Early Church Music

Dr. Vlastos, outlining the beginnings of modern music at the Music Club meeting last Wednesday, began with the early church melodies. To modern ears the unsophisticated Veni Sancte Spiritus, which dates from the eleventh century, seemed cold and harsh with its parallel fifths and octaves. These "consecutive fifths" were strictly forbidden in classical times, but recent composers, such as Gustav Holst, are returning to them. By the fourteenth century the Church, as a concession to the flesh, permitted the more sensuous thirds and sixths, and a century later ecclesiastical music reached its height in the compositions of Palestrina, whose Nunc Dimittis represents a tremendous advance. Secular music reached a peak in its development in the Elizabethan age; as a sample Weelkes' As Vesta was Descending was played.

The harpsichord, for which a great deal of music was written, had a plucking action, instead of the hammer action of the modern piano. This necessitated a delicate style, full of rapid scaly passages. A set of Divisions i.e. variations on o Ground Bass with harpsichord accompaniment was played as an introduction to Bach's Violin Concerto in E major, a refinement of the same sort of thing. By this time the music sounded no longer archaic, and it was pleasant to hear the occasional pompous bass and other familiar Bach effects. Some of Purcell's and Handel's music was played, then two Bach chorales, the second being the well-known one from the Matthew Passion, O Sacred Head, sore wounded. This was a special favourite of Bach's; he delighted to make different settings of it. As a grand climax Dr. Vlastos played Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring.

A vote of thanks was given Dr. Frost for the loan of his records.

CLEAN FUN

Three Washington University students were arrested for attaching a Freshman to a flagpole and running him to the top.

—The Pennsylvanian.

Early English Drama Described To Club

Professor Alexander addressed a meeting of the Dramatic Guild in room 221 of Douglas Library on Wednesday evening. He congratulated the Guild in its choice of plays for its initial bill, and especially for striking out in a new line by its selection of "Gammer Gurton's Needle." He spoke on the early history of drama in England, leading up to "Gammer Gurton's Needle."

Through the efforts of the priests to make the Latin service intelligible to the common people, the miracle play grew up. This was definitely a part of the church service. The drama gradually developed out of the church and away from biblical subjects until it diverged into the morality plays which were a great deal shorter than the miracle plays. The action in them was more definite since there was the beginnings of a plot. The subjects treated were abstract. The plays were now spoken in English in the free and easy style of the times. The interlude was a short play very often put on at banquets. It was an improvement on the morality plays because of its more human touch, although some of the abstract names remained. Vice plays an important part in these as playing pranks on the Devil. This character develops into the clown.

The plays were often very solemn and serious, the central figures being treated impressively. There was a humorous side centred around the minor characters which was the germ of native English comedy. The plays then gradually got away from the moral purpose and into the realm of pure comedy.

"Gammer Gurton's Needle" comes in here. It is a picture of the contempory rural free and easy life of the time. It was played at Christ's College in Cambridge. All the comedies at this time were sponsored by very eminent people, and were usually put on in schools. They are the earliest university plays.

Prof. Alexander was thanked for his interesting talk. The business meeting held after threatened to grow into great proportions. The subject of the plays to be put on by the Mock Directorate proved very interesting, and a great deal of discussion was held on the subject. The directorate suggested two plays for Schnitzler's "Anatole Series", with three characters in each—two men and one woman. When the directors are chosen they will proceed to choose a play and cast it from the unoccupied members of the Guild.

Since Convocation Hall has been remodelled the scenery is now of little use. Equipment is needed, so the fees of $1 which admit members to all performances are very necessary.

The Guild needs technical advice and would like to hear any ideas from the students. They are endeavouring to get various members of the faculty to deal with the evolution of modern English drama, which should prove very interesting as well as instructive.

TRICOLOR NOTICE

The Editor of the Tricolor announces that all photographs for the Year Book should be taken as soon as possible and should be handed in to him not later than December 1st. Final year students, and Faculty and Year Societies are asked to co-operate to this end.

World News Briefly

Rising on the tide of 40,000,000 votes that innundated Republican candidates from coast to coast Franklin D. Roosevelt, on Wednesday was president-elect of the United States.

The second reading of the bill ratifying Imperial Conference Agreements was passed by a vote of 92 to 57 in the House of Commons yesterday.

Mahatma Gandhi has threatened to renew his fast on New Year's Day unless the pact of Poona is carried out by caste Hindus.

All governments at home and abroad are struggling under the bugbear of debt. Few, however, have realized that the public is not an artesian well from which incessant drafts of taxation can be drawn.

British Columbia may lead the way in budgetary reform next January by drastic cuts in the old scale of expeditures. Municipal grants, departmental expenses and salaries will be affected.

On October 28th Rome celebrated the tenth anniversary of the Fascist regime and reviewed the accomplishments in the fifteen-year scheme for rebuilding the capital.

Ancient monuments which were surrounded till recently by buildings of a later age have been liberated. Well-known streets and squares have vanished, hills have been levelled, and public gardens replace more than one group of seventeenth-century houses.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Nov. 11th.
7.00 p.m.—League for Social Reconstruction, 22 Division St.
Saturday, November 12th.
2.30 p.m.—Queen's vs. Varsity, at Toronto.
9.00 p.m.—Alumni Dance, Royal York Hotel, Toronto.
Tuesday, Nov. 15th—
"Cranberry Corners" Play in Sydenham Sunday School Hall, Auspices Queen's S.C.M.
Sunday, Nov. 17th.
7.00 p.m.—Monthly University Service, St. James' Anglican Club, Rev. Canon A. P. Gower-Rees, M.A., D.C.L., M.C.
7.00 p.m.—Q.P.S.A., St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Prof. S. K. Robertson.

Local Boy Makes Good

? ? ?

Programme Prepared For St. Andrew's Student Group

A program has been prepared for St. Andrew's student group, which meets each Sunday afternoon at 2.15 in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church (Clergy Street entrance).

Nov. 13—Professor Robertson.
Nov. 20—Professor Johnston.
Nov. 27—Discussion.
Dec. 4—General meeting of all S.C.A. groups.

These men are discussing the general ideas of "Science and Religion" under the broader theme of "Religion and the Modern Temper". These men will have something interesting to give; and there will be a chance to discuss the ideas afterwards. Everyone is free to come, and will be very welcome; we hope for a good attendance.

WINNERS!
The snappy new Queen's White Pullovers, as worn by the cheer-leaders at the Western game, were designed by Shaw's—of course!
See the new ideas FIRST at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop.

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes Constitutions
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15th, 1932. No. 14

Queen's Library

Westminster Act Natural Outcome Political Growth

Westminster Statute Subject Of Lecture By Legal Authority

Declaring that the Statute of Westminster of 1931 was the culmination of a constitutional development towards responsible government, Mr. J. E. Read, formerly Dean of the Law School at Dalhousie University and now legal advisor to the Department of External Affairs, Ottawa, delivered an informal lecture to a group of Queen's students yesterday morning.

Beginning with an empire which was in theory as well as in fact a unitary state, imperial evolution led naturally to the British North America Act which remained a model for all later Dominion Constitutional Acts. Royal prerogative retained the right of controlling foreign relations, a control vested in the Crown, exercised by Downing Street, and represented in Canada by the Governor-General. Westminster retained supreme legislative power, and could in fact repeal the British North America Act in addition to any colonial legislation repugnant to the laws of the English Parliament.

"The Canadian Constitution was the child of the old Colonial regime, and as it stood in 1867, it bore little resemblance to the constitution as it actually exists in our day."

The Conference of 1929 dealt with both legal and political questions, which included the power of the Westminister Parliament for the disallowance or reservation of dominion legislation, the power of dominion legislatures to enact extra-territorial legislation, and the question of the Colonial Laws' Validity Act.

The report on Inter-Imperial Relations presented to the Imperial Conference of 1930 was a statement of the position reached after 60 years of constitutional development. The fundamentals of the statement are expressed as; first, common allegi-

Continued on page 8

Notice to Staff

Subscription forms were sent some time ago to all members of staff. Only those replying have been left on the mailing list.

No injustice is intended to those who formerly paid in the Spring semester, but, unfortunately, the Journal has not complete records of all who have been in the habit of paying. It is therefore necessary for members of the faculty to indicate their desire to subscribe in order to receive copies.

Members of staff are not entitled, ex officio, to take the Journal from the reading rooms. The A.M.S. Executive is required to pass on all complimentary copies.

Tricolor Team Outclassed By Superior Varsity Squad In Last Game Of Series

Warren Stevens' Proteges Took Lead In Second Quarter And Held It Through Game

Facing an inspired championship team the Tricolor Seniors went down to defeat at the Varsity Stadium on Saturday to the tune of 21-2. The Varsity team played wonderful football and overcame the Tricolor squad easily. At times the Queen's gridders rose to the occasion and played brilliantly for short periods but these efforts always petered out after giving all the spectators an exhibition of what might have been done. The battle see-sawed back and forth for the first quarter which ended with the Tricolor holding the Varsity team 1-1. After the first quarter Varsity ran wild and with a succession of lucky breaks soon piled up the rest of their huge total.

Varsity men plunged through the Queen's line time and again. The game was much more open than usual. Forward passes and fake plays kept the fans on edge. Carter's kicking overshadowed that of his Varsity opponent and Davoud kicked several unusually good ones. Varsity end runs were spectacular and well-timed and came at the most unexpected times. This, with forward passing kept the game humming. The superior playing of Varsity soon became evident and the Blue and White team marched steadily to victory. The Tricolor put up a stubborn battle and fought gamely but were outclassed by the heavier Varsity team.

"HOWIE" CARTER

Who had one of the greatest seasons of his career. His punting, tackling and forward passing ability were features of Queen's play.

Kostuick made a sensational tackle in the second quarter. Arnup got away on a well-timed end run and eluded all his tacklers. It looked as if he was going to get a clear field for a touchdown when Kostuick tore up and snagged him. As it was Varsity made a considerable gain on that single play.

Varsity got two touchdowns by smashing through the Queen's line when the Tricolor were fighting with their backs to the wall. The Queen's line seemed unable to withstand the onslaught of the Varsity plungers and Varsity soon learned this fact and profited thereby. On one occasion a Queen's forward pass went askew because the passer was buried beneath an avalanche of Varsity men before he could get the ball away. Varsity, however, was unable to block any of Queen's kicks but it looked probable more than once.

Queen's pulled a smart forward pass combination by making a short throw instead of a long one. The Varsity team saw that a forward was planned and spread out in all directions, but the passer fooled them all by tossing the ball

(Continued on page 6)

Strong Will Needed To Preserve Peace

Dr. W. H. Fyfe Speaks At Memorial Service

Are we willing to pay the price of peace? What is lacking is a strong will to put in motion our peace machine—the pledge of nations to abjure war. This in substance was the challenge made by Dr. W. H. Fyfe at the special Armistice Service given in Grant Hall. Rev. H. A. Kent led the gathering in prayer.

In his opening remarks Dr. Fyfe said that the purpose of the gathering was to pay a simple tribute to the Queen's men, Canadians, and all others who lost their lives in the Great War. Their loss has impoverished the world.

The speaker said that this occasion should bring back to memory in a vivid way all the friends of each one of us—friends who died to save their country from the enemy. But these brave souls were fully aware that the enemy was War itself. Age cannot wither them. They made war for peace. Yet after fourteen years of so-called peace we are as near as ever before another great calamity. But we have learnt that war can be averted. Sixty nations have abjured the use of war. What is lacking is a strong will to use our peace machinery. This is where we come in. Individually we may feel powerless, but it is up to us to pay the price of peace by sincere and devoted service to this great cause. Our heroes did not shirk their duty. If we fail we are but traitors to their memory.

POT-SHOTS FROM TORONTO

Howie Carter played a fine game at Toronto. All agreed to that. Hats off to Howie—a true sportsman and a great rugby player.

We hear that someone tried to hold up the Ticket Clerk at the outer station. One of the two students who remained in Kingston must have run short of cash.

It did our hearts good to see one of the local painted flivvers parked among the sleek roadsters in front of Hart House. Seemed rather expressive.

Toronto had another good laugh at the officious Queen's freshman who ordered a taxi to take him from the Union Station to the Royal York Hotel. And he got it too.

The gang in Toronto left-righted the portly policeman with great gusto. When he stopped a friendly voice enquired; "Hey! Where did you get the corporation?"

The Queen's Band made a better showing at Varsity than ever before. The two bands marched

Continued on page 7

Western Gazette Editor President Of C.I.P.Union

College Journalists Held Conference To Re-organize Service

W. Turner, Editor of Western Gazette was elected president and Allan Talbot, Editor of McGill Daily was chosen as executive secretary of The Intercollegiate Press Union at the annual meeting held in toronto on Saturday morning. DeCourcy Rayner, Editor of The Varsity was elected president of the local division. The meeting was held to attend to the business of the Intercollegiate Press Service which was organized last year. W. F. Payton, past president of the Union was in the chair and at the conclusion of the meeting was given the position of Honorary President.

The four Eastern Universities were represented as well as the Universities to the west of Winnipeg. Questions affecting the interests of the participating members were discussed and means of making the service more efficient and helpful. The new executive was authorized to re-organize the Intercollegiate Press service to conform with certain amendments to the original constitution which were carried at Saturday's meeting.

W. F. Payton outlined four ideas which he thought would benefit college papers throughout Canada. These are Co-operative news and sports service, national advertising, syndicated Intercollegiate Feature articles and united editorial policies on subjects considered important enough to warrant this step. An effort will be made to carry out these recommendations as far as possible.

The Intercollegiate Press Union is an organization for the efficient distribution of university news and was organized last year. McGill, Queen's, Toronto and Western form the present Eastern division of the Union. Universities of Manitoba, British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan form the Western division. It is hoped eventually to bring universities in the Maritime provinces into the Union and make the service nation-wide.

Meds Devise Feudal Castle For Formal

Guests To Dance In Medieval Courtyard

Guests of this year's Medical At-Home will not spend the evening in the new gymnasium as planned. Instead, they will find themselves, carried back through the years, to the courtyard of an English castle of the days of feudalism.

The Medical Dance Committee will wield a magic wand that will reveal frowning battlements on every side, bristling with Medieval implements of warfare. From narrow slits in the masonry watchful eyes will follow every movement of the dancers.

The massive entrance into the stronghold will be occupied by Ye Wright Bros. Olde English Bande, and none can surpass the bars of melody this justly famous orchestra produces. Lords of the Medical Faculty and their ladies will dance to its music, or listen to its flowing notes with immense enjoyment.

A smaller courtyard leads off the main one and here devotees of the cards may try their fortune should they so choose. Supper in true baronial style will refresh and cheer the revellers, as the festivities approach the midnight hour.

Continued on page 4

Prof. Rogers Speaks To L.S.R. Members

Capitalistic System Severely Criticized

It is reported that there is courage in numbers. If so, it is significant that the attendance at the meetings of the L.S.R. has reached thirty-five.

At this last meeting Prof. Rogers spoke to the group, outlining the program of the L.S.R. and giving his opinion of the nine proposals. Since he is personally acquainted with the sponsors of the movement, he was able to give a keen, sympathetic criticism of the task which the Movement has attempted. His talk was followed by an animated discussion.

It appeared that the Movement is stimulated by no mere reaction to the present disastrous days. Rather it is by a vision of a wider life"—what life might be beneath the sun, if the lives of all men were woven into a single tissue of life, that throbs and thrills as from a central heart." Clearly the chief aim of the Movement is an educational one.

The inherently vicious nature of the present Capitalistic structure was vigorously denounced. An organization which necessitates three or four years of feverish employment followed by four or five years of unemployment has little social value. Under such circumstances, fear is the dominant note in life, and is the most effective weapon for destroying self-respect.

Queen's Receives $50.000 Grant By Leonard Will

Lt.-Col. R. W. Leonard Leaves Sum To Found Queen's Scholarships

On December 17th Queen's University is to receive the first interest payment on a new endowment founded by the late Lieut.-Col. Reuben W. Leonard who died on December 17th, 1930.

Lieut.-Col. Leonard is a graduate of R. M. C. who entered the engineering field. In this line of work he was very successful and came to be associated chiefly with the C. P. R. In 1882 he entered the surveys and construction department and served in these and other branches till 1899 when he changed to mining engineering in Michipicoten and Sudbury districts for the C. P. R. In later years he was chairman for the National Transcontinental Railway Commission and then the President of the Coniagas Mine and of a steel and engineering company of Welland, Ontario.

The connection of Lieut.-Col. Leonard with Queen's has been quite close since 1910 when he became a member of the Board of Governors of the School of Mining. When in 1916 this department was changed to the Faculty of Applied Science, he was retained as a governor. He was elected to Board of Trustees in 1918 for one year by the benefactors, but was not re-elected.

Lieut.-Col. Leonard has always taken pleasure in aiding and supporting educational institutions. His liberal means have permitted him to show his interest in schools and colleges, by giving grants for scholarships or other purposes. He and his wife have been great benefactors of schools and colleges in Canada and Great Britain. Among the institutions to receive grants is Queen's.

The University is already in receipt of an endowment subscription of thirty-five thousand dollars as well as of the gift of

Continued on page 4

Leonardo Da Vinci Lecture Given Today

"Leonardo da Vinci" will be the subject of an illustrated talk to members of the Kingston Art Association by Mr. E. C. Kyte, the University Librarian, this afternoon in the Douglas Library, Room 111. Reproductions of Da Vinci's work will be on view from four-thirty and the talk will begin at five o'clock sharp.

This is the first of a series of talks on art and artists which have been arranged by the executive of the Kingston Art Association. All who are interested in these talks or in the Working Group which spends Monday evenings drawing and painting in the same room, are invited to join the Association. The season dues of fifty cents may be paid at the meeting.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1932

To The Champions

Saturday's victory over Queen's left no doubt in the minds of the sports fans that Varsity was the best team in the Intercollegiate Union. Playing masterly football from the opening of the season they did not let up at any time and as generally expected they romped away with the Yates Trophy in easy fashion.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of their determined march to victory was the cleverness, and perfect timing of their plays. Coupled with the aggressive spirit which the boys displayed in their encounters they formed a fine rugby machine.

Behind all the manoeuvres the hand of a great football tactician could readily be seen. The coaching of Warren Stevens resulted in molding a scrappy, and willing team into an aggressive, smooth-working, dangerous and confident machine.

We take this, our first opportunity, to extend hearty congratulations to the new Intercollegiate Champions.

A Balanced College Life

Students have settled down to the matter-of-fact realities of university life and Freshmen in particular are beginning to forget the flood of oratory with which they were greeted on entering this institution. Perhaps this is just as well but one point which was stressed should not be allowed to drift into the limbo of forgotten things. This is the need for a well-balanced college life.

University life may be all study or all fun. Both courses have certain, disastrous, though different results. The student who applies himself completely to his books, to the exclusion of other interests, is missing one of the most important purposes of college life.

After the degree is obtained we are judged no longer by narrow academic standards but rather by our own all round qualifications. The student who has participated in the activities of the Debating Union, the Dramatic Guild, the literary circles, the Faculty Societies and social life has an intangible asset which cannot be measured but which is of inestimably greater use than the extra book-learning which could have been acquired in the time devoted to these endeavours.

We must be masters of more than learning. The best qualifications for life are knowledge and experience and we contend that a great deal of this knowledge and experience can only be attained by free and equal participation in campus activities. Entrance into the world of campus affairs gives the student an elementary insight into the conduct of affairs as well as human nature. It prepares the student against the day when he will be inevitably cast out into the hard realities of a world which is more accustomed to smile at the erudite learning of the college gradnate than to accord him honor.

Student aetivities may be regarded as trifling by some but they are essentially a calm backwater where the bewildered navigator of life's stormy seas can prepare and estimate the strength and value of his equipment before venturing forth.

In conclusion, let us sound a note of warning. The undergraduate who goes into these practical activities to the exclusion of academic studies may find himself as badly off as the studious bookworm who loses himself in the sheltered world of kind but unreal experience.

Politics and Public Speaking

There was once a man who called his small boy "Politics," because it was so difficult to keep him clean. That difficulty is deadly to democracy and is seriously aggravated, if those who can keep their hands clean take no share in public administration. Queen's ought to contribute to the political life of the Dominion and the Province the sort of men who are badly wanted.

Few can be leaders, but we all have votes. That the majority of students should leave the University without a clear idea of the importance and use of their votes, is disastrous to the best interests of the country. And what hampers the country's progress inflicts a hurt on each individual citizen. Therefore for selfish as well as patriotic reasons, we ought all to take an interest in politics.

How is this best done? Newspapers and Reviews are unreliable guides, until you learn how to read them and to extract the kernel of fact (if any) from the wrapping of bunk and ballyhoo. For this end the best means is discussion—discussion with people holding every shade of political opinion, full, frank and free discussion. That is the way to become a useful voter: it is also the way to become a good Conservative or a Liberal or a—what do Communists call themselves now?

Frank discussion is apt to lead to quarrelling and violence. Therefore a chairman is desirable and some rules of procedure. A society for political discussion can best perform its functions by becoming a debating society. But it should not carry formal regulation further than is necessary to secure orderly discussion. Truth not rhetoric should be the aim of each meeting. It should minister to the training of thinkers rather than speakers.

In such informal speaking the aim is to seek, not to prevail; the mind is fixed not on the audience but on the argument; and it is in just that sort of debate that the art of the public speaker is best developed. He should not start with any audience in view. An undue interest in the "gate" is as fatal to debating as to football. What he needs first to acquire is facts and arguments and facility in presenting them vivâ voce. When he has filled his mind and achieved fluency in discharging it, then and not till then is it time for a formal debate with honorable openers, seconders, opposers and an audience on which to work.

It is strange that among so many student societies at Queen's, the society devoted to debating and political discussion should find it difficult to flourish. There is no society which should attract so many different types of men and women. At present it is only those who study history or economics, and not all of them, who learn anything of public questions. The rest of us are likely to be a positive public peril.

Apart from the need of political education, surely the chance of learning how to speak should be attractive. There is only one way to learn how to speak, and that is to try, and try, and try again. Later, when practice has brought fluency and an audience is faced, a frank critic, appointed for the purpose, may give valuable hints and enable the speakers to see themselves through others' eyes. But practice is the prime necessity.

It is astonishing that so many men and women enter professions in which the art of speaking is essential to success without any attempt to acquire that art. Let us be wiser, for whether we belong to Arts or Medicine or Science we shall find it hard to get far without it.

Official Notices

A. J. and Margaret Grant Bursary in Arts.

This Scholarship is now worth $595.75. As it was not awarded on Matriculation it is now open in the first instance to properly qualified students in the Faculty of Arts who have come from the high schools of Glengarry. All students from the high schools of Glengarry who are registered in the Faculty of Arts are asked to send their names to the Registrar by November 15th in order that the Committee on Scholarships may be in a position to draw up proper regulations for the award of the Scholarship.

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

The Carton Foundation

The University has been asked by the Trustees of the Carton Foundation, London, England, to recommend a candidate for this Studentship in the Social Sciences.

The Studentship is intended to enable exceptionally qualified students to undertake a research in the social sciences and is intended to benefit those who are largely, if not entirely, dependent on their own resources.

The Studentship will be of the value of £400 per annum with conditional allowances, and will be tenable for two years.

Particulars may be obtained from the Heads of the Departments of Economics, and History, or from the Registrar's Office.

Any students interested may apply in writing to the Registrar before December 31 to be considered for this Foundation.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

It must be that the "corner has been turned." Two or three times recently the request has been for a match instead of a coin.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Egg marks the spot where the hen laid.

"M. Herriot makes his bow today.

Delicate task to preserve his equilibrum."

Headlines in Evening Paper

He ought to try the pop-on bow.

It's a wise Bird . . .

who smokes Turret cigorettes. He knows from experience thot only the choicest Golden Virginia tobocco can give thot smooth, mild quolity for which Turrets are famous. There must be mony wise birds in Canado, becouse there are more Turrets sold in the Dominion thon any other Virginio cigorettes.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

12 for 15¢
20 for 25¢
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

Whig-Standard Reader Disagrees With J. O. Watts

Editor's Note: The following letter which appeared in the Whig-Standard is of special interest to Queen's.

To the Editor of
The Whig-Standard.

Sir:—I read in your paper on Friday night an account of an address given by Mr. J. O. Watts at a meeting of the Men's Forum of Queen's University. Mr. Watts undertook to tell the students something about the penal institutions of Canada and other countries. If he was correctly reported, I am sorry that he did not take the trouble to inform himself on conditions in Canadian prisons. Mr. Watts spoke as though he were entirely familiar with conditions in the Kingston Penitentiary. It looks to me as though he knows very little about conditions there.

Mr. Watts told the students that the librarian was a convict and also that the convicts were taught by the more educated of their own number. This is only partially true. My opinion is, and I think it is correct, that there is a qualified school teacher in charge of the school although he may be assisted by the better educated convicts in his work. This same school teacher is also in charge of the library and has control of it.

Mr. Watts stated that all the lights in the prison are turned off at seven-thirty p.m., and that complaints from the men are numerous. The retiring bell does not go until five minutes to nine and lights are turned out at nine o'clock. The corridors are always lighted, but I am told that reading is not permitted after nine o'clock.

The speaker also told the students that the meals were good, but that there was a tendency towards monotony. The meals are not only good but they are varied. The menus are being continually changed and the prisoners get lots of variety in their food.

In my opinion one of the reasons for the overcrowding of our penitentiaries is the misplaced zeal of well-meaning but ill-advised people in connection with our prison reformatories. If more severe discipline and proper punishment were carried out in the reformatories instead of coddling first offenders who go there, it would, in my opinion, have a big effect in lessening crime and lighten the burden of our penitentiaries.

READER.

Kingston, Ont.,
November 14th, 1932.

Toronto Club Beaten By Montreal Team

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 12.—Montreal Westwards defeated Toronto in an English rugger game played here this afternoon by the score of 11-6. It was the first time within the memory of the present generation at least that a rugger game was played here. It aroused little interest, however, and only a handful of people turned out to see it. The game was interesting and was featured by the speedy and accurate passing of the Montreal three-quarters and halves who were largely responsible for the win of the Montrealers and provided the outstanding plays of the day. Montreal led at half time by the score of 8-0 but right after the second half started, Toronto came to life and romped over with two trys which were not converted. Montreal scored three trys and a convert, two of the trys and the convert being in the first half.

Being the 8th Chapter of the Chronicle of Kweanz.

In which the Prophet discusseth on the divers dives of Kin.

Now the sixth day of every week, called Satur, the young men and virgins of Kweanz did set apart to the worship of Bacchus, of Venus, and of Fockstratux, the god of the dance. To various places of amusement and dives did they gather, in particular to the Hostel of Sal.

Now the keeper of the hostel was one, Ran. Now Ran in former days had been a packer of sardines, which stood him in good stead at the hostel, for only a former packer of sardines could so confine twenty score young men and virgins in the ballroom of the Sal without recourse to a shoe horn. And the days of his youth did cling to him so that to this day he smelleth of fish, like unto him in the parable of the blind man and the fish-store. And even as he enclosed his sardines in air-tight cans, so did he seal the young men and virgins in an air-tight room, sealing both windows and doors, for Ran well kneweth that the night air was harmful to the young of Kweanz. And when the young men and maidens had danced some hours, the heat did surround them, so that they did become hot and did seek cooler rooms in the regions above.

Now many of the young men being short of pocket or short of wind were unable to pay homage to Fockstrotux; so therefore did they escort the willing of the foolish of Levan to the Cap or to the Tiv. Now in these houses of pornographic pleasure there were screens on which young men and some virgins of Holwod did disport themselves. Now the owners of these halls of pleasure being born of thieves, did rob the innocent young of Kweanz, demanding two score and ten shekels for the veriest frosh, when one score and five would have more than sufficed, for they were men of great meanness, despised of the gods.

Likewise there was a den of iniquity called by men the Soop, and thither did gather the Freshettes of Kweanz, for they were of supreme giddiness being easily led by the evil gods of the land of Canad. And there, being out of the guidance of their elders, did they partake of smoke. Which being unused to, they did become ill thereon, which verily is the cause of the greeness of the Freshettes of Levan.

Of all these dives the greatest seat of wickedness was Modom Cones, despised of the elder young men of Kweanz, but verily greatly beloved of the home-sick Frosh.

AMEN.

Articles Of Unequal Value In Quarterly

The latest number of the Queen's Quartely contains four articles on Sir Walter Scott of very unequal value.

The first, by Dr. Macneile Dixon, is frankly eulogistic, and performs a real service to the memory of Scott by showing clearly what deep devotion and delight his work can stir up in his readers. It is spoiled, however, by an unnecessary and uncritical condemnation of modern writing and poetry, a failing which is too frequently discernible in the work of the older generation of critics. When Dr. Dixon, carried away by his admiration for the color and heroic quality of Scott's work seeks to contrast it with the gloomier style of modern writers, he declares that today "it would seem that only what is ugly is true, and beauty another name for falsehood." Possibly the reviewer had some particular reference in mind as he wrote: to me it appears not only bad criticism, but bad sense.

The paper on the Poetry of Scott by Edmund Blunden has not much to recommend it. As an analysis it is hasty and superficial. Moreover it deals with the long poems, virtually to the exclusion of a consideration of the shorter lyrics which in the field of poetry constitute Scott's most substantial claim upon the attention of posterity.

The most interesting article on Scott is that by Dr. James Miller entitled Through a Scottish Layman's Eyes. Here the reviewer searches the Waverley Novels in an effort to discover the secret of their fascination, and the reader is carried along again through the realm of the Scott mythology.

This number of the Quarterly is characterized by a heavy seriousness which is not adequately relieved by the charming sketche entitled Three Men in a Boat by Malone K. Malone, (Mr. J. B. Carswell) or by the rather flimsy short story Via Brussels. The verse is mediocre and I doubt whether it would have been considered worth a place had it not been for the reputation of the authors concerned. Mr. Drinkwater's "A Zany Song" is faintly reminiscent of the madman in Masefield's Good Friday, but though marked by a certain ingenuity of rime, especially in the last verse, it is eminently undistinguished.

For the rest there is an instructive but rather dull article on School Readers as an Educational Force, an illuminating political review of The World In Conference, a critique of Bentham and Benthamism, an article Of Disillusionment in Freshmen, and a long book review entitled A Freshman's Tribute to Shakespeare. Current Events and Book Reviews find their customary place in this issue of the Quarterly.

E.H.G.

Debating Society Notice

The Debating Union will hold its first open meeting on Thursday evening at 7.30 p.m., in Room 221 of the Douglas Library. The following motion will be debated: That this house approves the sale of beer and wines in licensed hotels and restaurants.

LIFE SAVING CLASS

There will be a Life Saving Class this afternoon at 4.45 p.m. The class will meet in the Swimming Instructor's Office in the New Gymnasium.

ARTS FORMAL

The date of the Arts Formal has been announced for Jan. 27th, 1933.

World News Briefly

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt was invited Sunday to confer with President Hoover on the war debts situation. The United States is the principal creditor nation. Great Britain and France have both requested the Hoover administration to relieve them of payments due December 15th.

On Friday a delegation of French industrialists headed by M. Raymond Patenôtre conferred with a group of German business leaders in Berlin. A discussion of industrial problems ensued in which other nations may be asked to participate.

A huge tidal wave coming in the wake of a tropical hurricane in the West Indies last Tuesday literally removed Santa Cruz del Sur from the map and exacted a death toll of 2,500 lives.

Liquor smugglers operating across the border between Canada and the U. S. have increased their operations in the sanguinine expectation that the 18th amendment will be abolished. Enforcement of the law has become very difficult.

The main substance of the French three-point armament plan, to be sent to the Geneva disarmament conference, is a world pact to renounce neutrality in time of war, a general convention for armament reduction, and an European agreement to provide a general staff, available to any state made the victim of agression. This much was learned Monday from the Radical-Socialist party congress.

Imagine an elusive comet balking the efforts of wily mathematicians to locate it. A news despatch from Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, states that Tempell's comet is due for an appearance. Last seen and first seen sixty-six years ago, this heavenly body is supposed to re-appear every thirty-three years.

Sharp criticism of Premier Bennett's exhortation to the Canadian people "to put an iron heel on Communism" was voiced by Professor F. R. Scott of McGill in Ottawa Sunday.

John Galsworthy, author of The Forsythe Saga, has been awarded the nobel prize in literature for 1932.

Senator Borah (Republican) of Idaho, head of the United States foreign relations sub-committee, has invited witnesses to testify on the St. Lawrence Waterways agreement negotiated last July by W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister at Washington. Franklin D. Roosevelt's opinion will also have considerable bearing on whether the present senate will ratify the treaty or not.

The crystallization of German national sentiment toward France is contained in an article in the Koelnische Illustrierte Zeitung, that a strong French army stands before the gates of Germany, awaiting the order to advance.

One of the most striking statements in the article is that France could put into operation 46 infantry, 5 cavalry, and 4 air, divisions, in the space of one week.

Competition among butchers in Mascot, Australia, has reached such extremities that one firm has decided to give away loaves of bread containing gold sovereigns.

QUEEN'S
CREST PINS and RINGS

SNAPPY, DISTINCTIVE, DIFFERENT

A. E. Edwards
Insignia Jeweller
22 Yonge St. Arcade Toronto, Ont

SAMPLE MAY BE SEEN THROUGH THE FOLLOWING
Kingston Representatives:
SMITH BROS. LTD.
Jewellers, Etc.
102 Princess St. Kingston

Make sure your pin is stamped "Edwards" on the back. We guarantee them. They're distinctive and different.

TWEDDELL'S
WINTER
SALE
Is under way.
Don't miss it
OVERCOATS
SUITS
TUXEDOS
FURNISHINGS
— at —
Drastically Reduced Prices
See Our Windows.
TWEDDELL'S
WHERE THE COLLEGE MEN DEAL
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1...7 ...t Roy-York Cafe
...H ... in ... 1922 —

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Reading

To learn the set formulae of diagnosis and procedure is not enough for the man who would give his best to the practice of medicine, and derive from his profession the benefits which accrue to the giver of self-losing concentration. He must live in his work, must be so steeped in professional lore as to have the possibilities of assimilation and application continually before his mind's eye.

Medical students, associating with their kind during nearly all of their working hours, live in a medical atmosphere, but perhaps not all of them establish habits of reading in a wide field against the time when books and periodicals may be largely responsible for their continued contact with the general science.

In a late issue of the Medical Librarians' Bulletin, a newly appointed president is quoted as saying:

"Centuries ago Hippocrates wrote 'to see, to touch and to hear' as the three essentials for a good physician to be fully acquainted with. Many years later Auenbrugger and Corvisant added the words 'to percuss.' Not long afterwards Laennec invented auscultation and 'to auscultate' became an additional requisite to the four existing tetrads. Again, in France Louis, the great clinician added 'to record' as one more.

But there is still another phrase which must be considered to round out the necessary qualifications of a doctor, and that is 'to read.' It is important to keep abreast with the modern trend of the times by becoming acquainted with the discoveries in the art and science of medicine. This is an important part of a doctor's life, so he should read medical journals, monographs on special subjects, and books on the history of medicine, to become better acquainted with the different diseases that the flesh is heir to, and also to have a knowledge of the past history of his profession. It is true that a knowledge of history is not an essential, but some acquaintance with it makes one a better physician. A doctor, to be modern in every sense of the word, must not live in sleepy hollow, but by constant application to the study of Journals, Monographs and books, he should become as much acquainted as possible with the past and present literature of his profession."

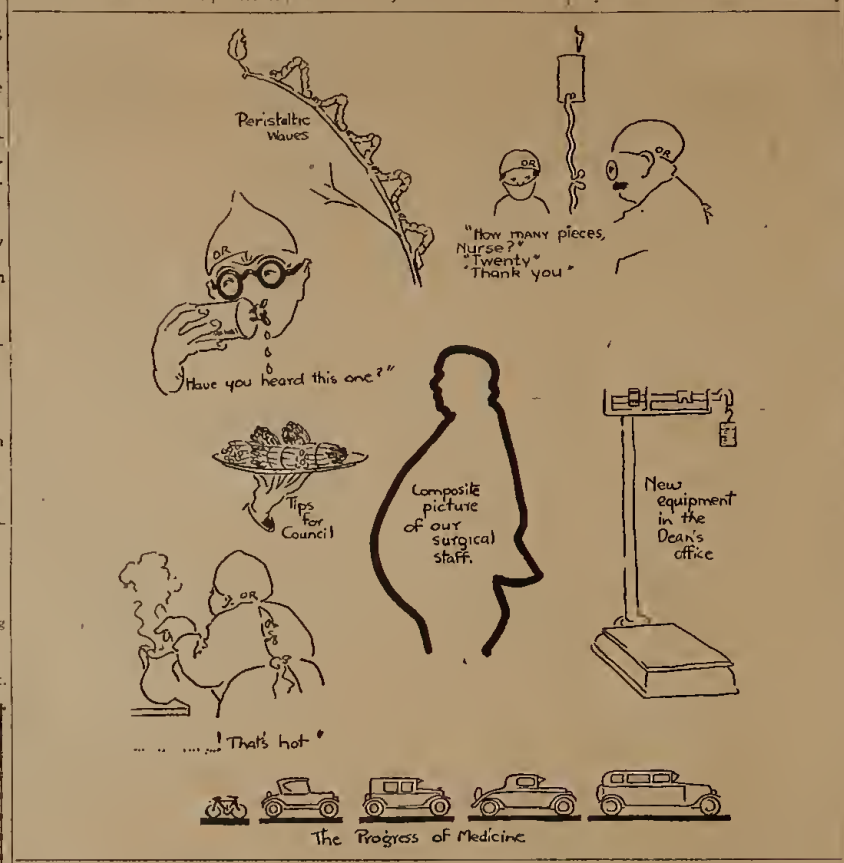
The library offers a wide variety of periodical literature and no wise student neglects the opportunity of becoming familiar with the various journals.

Wills

It takes no more than ordinary optimism to believe that some of us may possibly accumulate before death worldly goods in sufficient quantity to warrant the drawing up of a will. There are usually legal gentlemen at hand when that task is undertaken, but physicians have been known to settle the matter without advice from the other professions. The following, for example, is the duly recorded and executed will of Dr. William Dunlop, one of Ontario's early physicians.

In the name of God, Amen. I, William Dunlop of Fairbraid, in the Township of Colborne, County and district of Huron, Western Canada, esquire, being in sound health of body, and my mind just as usual, which my friends who flatter me say is no great shakes at the best of times, do make this my last will and testament as follows, revoking of course all former wills.

I leave the property of Fairbraid and other landed property I may die possessed of, to my sisters, Ellen Boyle and Elizabeth Dunlop, the former because she is married to a minister whom, God help him, she henpecks; the latter because she is an old maid, and not market ripe; and I also leave to them and to their heirs my share of the stock of implements on the farm, provided always that the enclosure around my brother's grave be preserved, and if either should die without issue, the other to inherit the whole. I leave my sister-in-law, Louisa Dunlop, all my share of the household furniture and such traps, with the exceptions herelnafter mentioned.



I leave my silver tankard to the oldest son of old John, as the representative of the family: I would leave it to old John himself, but he would melt it down to make temperance medals, and that would be sacrilege. However, I leave my big horn snuffbox to him; he can only make temperance horn spoons of that.

I leave my sister Jenny my bible, and when she knows as much of the spirit of it as she does of the letter, she will be another kind of Christian than she is. I also leave my late brother's watch to my brother Sandy, exhorting him at the same time to give up wiggery, radicalism and all the other sins that do most easily beset him. I leave my brother Allan my big silver snuffbox, as I am informed he is rather a decent Christian with a swag belly and a jolly face. I leave the parson Chevasse (Maggies' husband), the snuff box I got from the Sarnia militia, as a small token of my gratitude for the service he has done the family in taking a sister that no man of taste would have taken.

I leave John Caddle a silver teapot to the end that he may drink tea therefrom to comfort himself under the affliction of a slatternly wife. I leave my books to my brother Andrew, because he has been so long a jungley-wallah, that he may learn to read with them.

I give my silver cup with a sovereign in it to my sister, Janet Dunlop, because she is an old maid and pious and therefore will necessarily toke to horning, and also my granma's snuff box as it looks decent to see an old woman taking snuff.

In witness whereof I have set my hand and seal this 31st day of August in the year of our Lord 1842.

The Progress of Medicine

Lt.-Col. Leonard Bequeaths $50,000 To University

(Continued from page 1)

Lonard Field. To these very generous donations to Queen's made during the life time of Lieut.-Col. Leonard, must be added the additional grant, made in his will, of fifty thousand dollars.

Lately the legal strings have been severed and a recent communication from the trustees to the University states that the funds will soon be available. The Toronto General Trusts Corporation is the trustee of the grant and the funds for the scholarships to be founded will be available to the University on December 17th.

The division of the money and the nature of the scholarships or fellowships to be established is to be decided by the Board of Trustees and Mrs. Leonard after a consultation with the Board of Governors of the University.

The amount which will be received by Queen's is expected to be in excess of fifty thousand dollars.

Formal Decorations To Resemble Feudal Fortress

Continued from page 1

In all the land no Lord has showered his guests with such appropriate and unique favors, as damsels to this party will receive. What are they?

Come to the At-Home in the castle. November 25th is the date. Medical tickets are now available. See any of the following committee. Ben Brachman, Convener, Phones 1005-J, 4199; R. D. Howitt, Phone 3772-W; W. L. McDonald, Phone 4167; W. Taylor, Phone 3274; J. S. Hazen, 4167; F. G. Elliott, Phone 1411-F; J. E. Baker, Phone 4119-W.

"I like a game with a kick in it," remarked a columnist. He should play bridge and break any one of 17,000 "conventions."—Ottawa Journal.

Some girls imagine they are as pretty as a picture because they are painted. — Chicago Daily News.

Morgan Memorial Chapel

The Chapel is open to all faculties daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for meditation and prayer. It is requested that quiet be maintained at all times.

Morning prayers are said daily except Sunday and Monday at 9.07 o'clock. Students and staff of all faculties are invited to attend when possible.

Service of Holy Communion and other services will be held as announced from time to time.

LOST
Party who took grey fedora by mistake on excursion train to Toronto may have his own hat on exchange by applying to the undersigned.
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL
Room 211 Phone 2088-F
Douglas Library 475 Johnson St.

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar.
Commanding Queen's University Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Season, 1932-1933.
14th Nov., 1932.

No. 18.

Parades.

(1a) All ranks will parade at the Drderly Room, Tuesday, 15th Nov., at 5 p.m., for Infantry Training.

(II). All ranks will parade in uniform at the orderly room on Saturday, 19th Nov., at 1.30 p.m. Side arms with greatcoats.

No. 19.

Lectures.

(1). On Tuesday, 15th Nov. at 5.00 p.m., "A" and "B" Certificate Medical will report to Lt.-Col. L. J. Austin, at the Old Medical Building.

(II). On Wed., 16 Nov., at 5.00 p.m., "A" Certificate Infantry and Engineers will report to Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar, D.S.O., in Carruthers Hall, for map reading.

(III.). On Thursday, 17th Nov., at 5.00 p.m., "A" Certificate Infantry and Engineers will report to Major H. Campbell, R.C.O.C., for a lecture on Tactico.

(IV.). On Friday, 18th Nov., at 5.00 p.m., "A" and "B" Certificate Medical will report to Major J. V. Williams, at the Old Medical building.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

HIGH SCORES

Some questions were being asked the other day about large scores of senior teams in the Canadian game. It is hard to recall just what the largest one has been, but here is one that I dug up in some clippings. It was back in 1895, when the senior series of the O.R.F.U. consisted of Hamilton, Toronto, Queen's, R.M.C., Osgoode Hall, Toronto University and the 48th Highlanders. In the first round Osgoode Hall played the Highlanders and the score was 80 to 1. The second game of the round was not played, as the soldiers thought they had had enough.

The largest score that has been made in senior Canadian Union finals was when Queen's ran wild through the Regina team in 1923 to the tune of 54 to 0.

—Toronto Star Weekly.

Dramatic Guild Presents Two Plays This Week

The Queen's Dramatic Guild is working hard at the rehearsals of "The Goal Gate" and "Gammer Gurton's Needle," and will present them on Friday and Saturday, November the 18th and 19th in Convocation Hall.

"Gammer Gurton's Needle," by Master S., is a play that should have a great popular appeal through both its unique place in the history of English drama and its unending stock of most amusing situations. It is a play that has great opportunities for fun, and these are made the most of by the cast, some of whom are already well-known in the College for their acting abilities, and some of whom are new people, who have proved to be real finds for the Guild.

The part of Gammer Gurton is being played by Hazel O'Kilman, who, for the last two years has been Queen's premier comedienne as well as the tragic mother in the never-to-be-forgotten, "Last Man In." Gammer is one of the best parts that Miss O'Kilman has ever been cast in, and she is making the most of her many opportunities for mad clowning. During the course of the play Gammer, and Dame Cat, who is being played by Marjorie Bishop, have a good old English street quarrel, Miss Bishop, one of the new comers in the Guild, has proved herself an excellent actress, and this scene should remain long in the memories of those that witness it, as one of the most priceless pieces of fun that has ever been written.

The Guild is very fortunate in having Bertie Gardiner back this year, as the part of Hodge has undoubtedly been cut out for him, and although he is well-known for his amusing King in "The Fatal Rubber," and Seton Cram in "Holiday", Bertie breaks all records for laughable characterization in "Gammer Gurton." The almost imbecile simple-mindedness of Hodge is an admirable foil for the sly Deacon, portrayed by Erskine Morden, another new arrival in the Guild, who handles his part with great skill. Scarthe Macdonnell is in a dual role, being both Cocle, the urchin, and Doctor Rat, the priest. Arthur Sutherland is taking the part of the Bailly, which the two maids are Tyb, Jean Nelson, and Doll, Marion Hayes.

The play is being rehearsed every day now, under the keen supervision of Mrs. Reid, who has contributed an untold amount towards the success of the Guild productions.

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Book Chats

By R.M.

William Arthur Deacon, writing in the Mail and Empire throws out a timely challenge to Canadian authors. He asks, "What have they done to help our country in this time of trial?" The question is a pertinent one, but unfortunately Canadian writers have been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

Only one writer in recent times has interpreted literature in the broad sense—its influence on human life and developinent The others may be fine writers, pretty verse makers, yet they seem to be unaware of their special function in times of stress. Our great reviews, quarterlies and monthly's are still the entrenched strongholds of conservatism A recent writer glorifies our shipping and grain growing industries, seemingly oblivious to the fact that service on a great steamship line has been cut in half, while millions of golden grain lie rotting in our elevators. Economists it is true have made exhaustive and rather instructive surveys of the present condition of Canadian industries. But what we want is not an intricate mass of statistical information nor compilations from reference books; rather, to know "how our own kind fare from sea to sea."

This requires the peculiar gifts of our authors; men trained to think, plan, foresee; to have ideas. We want the fresh direct observation of a Griffin or a Sinclair. Yet as Mr. Deacon puts it: "They sit as mute as so many bumps on a log." Voltaire and Rousseau, for right or for wrong, wielded their pens with such power that a new France was made and their doctrines became the imperishable heritage of mankind. Addison and Steele were energetic pamphleteers in their day. So was Joseph Howe.

Why then do contemporary Canadian authors retire from the social scene and cleave to their art as a thing apart? Morley Callaghan's Broken Journey is a valuable realistic interpretation of Canadian life. And several recent books might be justified because of their educational value. Still, few have turned their attentions to the most important issue of the times Here is where the writer as a citizen and a maker of phrases should step in. Peculiar problems face us Walter Lippmann has called the major problem one of plenty; the scarcity enigma has been solved; the dilemma of poverty amid plenty puzzles contemporary thinkers.

The halcyon days in the evolution of human society are past. New blood must be infused into economics with its obsolete tenets and out-of-date nomenclature. For our ideas about such things as capitalism and socialism are in a state of flux and change; yet the old connotations still consort with the words. What we need is new terms symbolic of new ideas.

Undoubtedly, new ideas are needed for this age is faced with a problem without a precedent, a crisis without an historical parallel. Yet it is within the power of man to effect his own salvation and rational discussion led by our writers should be one of the first steps toward this end. Canadian authors have a magnificent opportunity to shape the destiny of a nation. The power of the pen is mightier than the sword; the dynamic energy of original human thought can remove mountains of distrust, prejudice and conservatism.

(Ed. Note) — Canadian Book Week, an annual event, was celebrated last week, November 5th-November 12th.

Able Men Given To Canada By Queen's

The following article of special interest to Queen's students and alumni appeared in the last issue of the Montreal Standard:

Queen's University has been the recruiting ground for some of Canada's ablest public servants and the latest addition to that distinguished list is W. C. Clark who comes to the important post of Deputy Minister of Finance.

Years ago when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was looking about for an able man to run the first Civil Service Commission he picked the late Dr. Adam Shortt, of Queen's, as its first chairman and the subsequent activities of that able student and administrator proved the wisdom of his choice.

Later Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King induced the brilliant Dr. O. D. Skelton to leave the purely academic field to undertake the duties of deputy minister of external affairs, a position for which he was eminently fitted by his study of national, international and imperial affairs.

Now Mr. Bennett has selected still another Queen's man for the onerous job of deputy to the Hon. E. N. Rhodes.

There may have been some criticism of this appointment on the score that a number of well qualified permanent officials were passed over in favor of Mr. Clark, but on the other hand it is believed that an occasional selection without the regular ranks may make for increased efficiency.

The post of Deputy of Finance is one of the highest paid in the public service, as he receives not only $10,000 as deputy but another $5,000 as Secretary of the Treasury board.

But while the salary may be large the responsibilities are equally so.

The deputy is the direct adviser of the Prime Minister and the Minister of Finance on all questions of expenditure and revenue and of hundreds of problems affecting public finance.

In questions relating to public loans, currency and revenue he may save the country many millions of dollars and be so valuable that his services would he cheap at many times the figure paid for his services.

It is understood that Mr. Clark's appointment developed as a result of the Imperial Conference when he was loaned from Queen's to act as an economic adviser to the Government.

Mr. Bennett was very much impressed with his capabilities and decided at that time to offer him the financial post.

Mr. Clark is a product of Glengarry where the young idea seems to imbibe ambition before it is well out of primary school.

Not over-burdened with wealth he won a scholarship at Queen's when still in his teens.

There he specialized in history, economics and business administration.

The new deputy went on to Harvard and took post-graduate studies on similar lines to those pursued at Queen's.

Coming back to his Alma Mater, he joined the lecturing staff in economics and had his earliest connection with Government work when he was loaned for a time to the Department of Labor at Ottawa in 1919.

For some years Mr. Clark resided in the United States, was an economist and director of a banking and investment house, served on President Hoover's unemployment committee and finally returned to Queen's as director of the department of commerce and administration.

The youngest man to hold this high post, Mr. Clark is only 43, his varied experience in Canada and abroad should be of great value in undertaking a particularly difficult post.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

A few weeks ago the hope was expressed that this column could be used as a forum for the expression of student religious thought. Two articles have been promised and the first will appear either Friday or Tuesday. These will be under the heading of "My Religion."

We think that among students, the unconcern regarding religion is more apparent than real. In boarding houses and student rooms discussions are going on which give evidence of genuine interest in this force in human life. Looking over human history it would be unreasonable to expect anything else. The greatest figures the race has produced have been in some real sense, religious. That force has been a unifying factor in their lives. It is perhaps not too much to say that the greatest need of the modern student is some power which will unite all conflicting forces within him and give purpose to life. We heard Principal W. T. Brown of Victoria College, make a statement to the effect that there is no such thing as a distinctively religious problem; any religious problem is a problem of life. If we accept that, then a lack of interest in religion is a lack of interest in life, which is the final bankruptcy.

It is hoped that a wide range of opinion will be given expression in order to stimulate a wide interest. Articles will be signed in as many cases as possible.

Natural History Meeting

The Natural History Club will meet on Thursday at 4 p.m. in the Old Arts Building. The Secretary of the Club, Mr. W. Dore, will be the speaker. Mr. Dore worked during the past summer at the Ottawa Experimental Farm, and should have an interesting discussion for the members.

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

GRAND HOTEL
Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery.

As one of the characters says in "Grand Hotel—People come and people go—Nothing ever happens." The play has little action. Rather it is a series of episodes woven around the people who are staying at the hotel. Consequently it is better as a book than as a play. Yet Vicki Baum has presented these episodes with a subtle artistic touch which never falters and which is never heavy. The play is a series of highly dramatic moments which form a complete unity.

Fortunately the cast is very well chosen and the acting exceptional for incompetent players would ruin such a story.

The incomparable Garbo is excellent as the dancer who is becoming passé, but who inspired with the Baron's love, rises to new heights. Equally good is John Barrymore as the Baron. Perhaps the most dramatic moments in the play is when the dancer, unaware of the fact that the Baron has been shot, leaves the hotel in the seventh heaven of happiness at the prospect of seeing him again." The best performance was given by Lionel Barrymore, in the rôle of the book-keeper, Kringelein. The screen does not know his equal.

A.

AT THE TIVOLI

THE UNDESIRABLE LADY
with
Elissa Landi, Paul Lukas and Warner Oland

Well, well! Where have we seen this before? Shady lady trying to tread the straight and narrow—no chance—German West Africa military stuff. A marriage with a young German officer to save herself from a prison camp (England has declared war, you know, and she's English) life in a native village—tom-toms and so on. Paul Lukas supplies the love interest as the third corner of the eternal triangle. Then spy-stuff—maps of German plans—the father-in-law's big hate of Elissa—and so on—you've seen it before and will probably see it again. But don't let us bust up all your illusions. If you like melodrama—go ahead. Paul Lukas plays the usual stiff-neck role Warner Oland as the father-in-law —Miss Landi is good-looking and is good. A native girl with kleptomaniac tendencies supplies a little comedy occasionally. With an old-fashioned plot the characters manage to bear up under the strain rather well. Warner Oland has a good part and does the disapproving father-in-law stuff well. The native atmosphere, what there is of it, is authentic enough—but we did suppress a snort when the heroine attired in filmy chiffons puts on a snooty white hat and nose-veil in preparation for her trip into the wilds.

It's not bad. C+.

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

OUR NEXT SPORT ?

Tricolor Team Outclassed By Blue And White Champs

Continued from page 1

a comparatively short distance ahead of him where it was caught by a Queen's receiver who ran up the field for a gain.

The forward passes opened up the game and some fine throws were made and completed. Queen's made a better showing at forward passing than at previous games. Varsity, too, showed some excellent forward pass plays.

The b. shield playing was sensational. If the field had been less slippery the score might have been materially different. As it was several unfortunate fumbles and skids gave Varsity an unexpected advantage. McNicholl was hurt in the last few minutes of the game when he was tackled by two Varsity men behind his own line, and had to be carried off the field.

Arnup, for Varsity, gave an exhibition of tricky backfield playing. He twisted and turned himself out of many tight corners and easily eluded Queen's tacklers many times.

Line ups:

Queen's—Flying wing, Storms; halves, Day, Carter, Davoud; quarter, Dargavel; snap, Kostuick; insides, Thomas, Byrne; middles, Kennedy, Hamlin; outsides, Gorman, Ralph; subs, Buell, Carr, Conquergood, Davis, Glass, McNicholl, Purvis, Peever, Hoskings.

Varsity — Flying win, Ferguson; halves, Copp, Arnup, Wood; quarter, Miller; snap, Sees; insides, Booth, Rodgers; middles, Laing, Peacock; outsides, Gibson, Henderson; subs, Fenner, Smith, Sinclair, Gray, McQuigge, Elson, Cutler, Fitzpatrick.

Mustangs Win Final Game From McGill

Before the smallest crowd of the year and in tough rugby weather, Western finished their 1932 rugby with a win from McGill, 13 to 8.

There was little of interest in the game other than the fact that each team wanted to add one more win to its total before winding up the schedule.

The first quarter was scoreless with both teams missing chances to get points.

McGill forged ahead by means of a placement just as the second period got under way, but Awde of Western added one by way of a rouge, and a few minutes later a safety touch scored against McGill evened the score. The Mustangs were pressing hard and Paterson hoisted one over the line to put them one up as the half time whistle blew.

Western still had the wind in the third and used it to carry them within scoring distance. Schnarr kicked a placement and Paterson a single to bring their total to 8 at the end of the quarter, while McGill could not do much.

The scoring ended when Western interrepted a McGill forward pass, successfully completed a couple of their own to get themselves in a hot position three yards out from McGill's line and Ward plunged over for a try. McGill still had a little pep left and by means of forward passing travelled up the field and over Western's line for a touch, but the convert failed. Final score Western 13, McGill 8.

Many divorces are caused by two people who are in love with themselves getting married. — Kingston Whig-Standard.

FORWARD PASSES

When Varsity does lick us, they invariably lay it on heavy.

* * * * * *

Only a small crowd turned out for the exhibition of Rugger at Richardson Stadium on Saturday. The teams came here at their own expense and put on a splendid game.

* * * * * *

Argonauts played over their heads for one game only and beat Montreal. Saturday they were not in the picture at all.

* * * * * *

Nice going Varsity. Three wins in Intercollegiate competition is mighty fine, and we offer hearty congratulations. Give Warren Stevens another seegar.

* * * * * *

With the Tricolor Seniors finished, there's no harm in asking whether a lack of harmony between coach and players has had anything to do with the team's standing. There are rumours and plenty of them floating around.

* * * * * *

Did you know we had a rugger team? It upheld our football prestige somewhat by churning up Varsity at Toronto on Saturday by the score of 12-0. In their first season they have accomplished a lot. Their entry into Intercollegiate sport is a very good thing for Queen's.

JACK "SENATOR" POWELL

"Senator" has long been regarded as one of the best in his line. There's no sore spot he cannot treat successfully.

Juniors Defeated By Varsity On Saturday

Queen's Juniors passed out of the picture in the final scheduled game at Toronto, Saturday when Varsity handed them a 14 to 0 licking. Incidently Varsity chalked up their third Intercollegiate championship, as the Seniors and Intermediates also captured the honors in their divisions.

The Tricolor Juniors fought hard and Varsity had no easy task downing them. The score at the end of the third quarter was Varsity 4, Queen's 0, a long kick to the Queen's deadline and a placement by Gray of Varsity adding up the points. For half the battle Queen's made it decidedly interesting and had every bit as much of the play as Varsity.

The last quarter proved to be a big one for Toronto and Queen's could not do much with varsity's line. Ten points were scored by Varsity while Queen's couldn't get a nicker, on the gun handle. Queen's down by five points began to heave forward passes, and one of them was intercepted by Dennison of Varsity, who galloped over for a touch. A placement by Gray of Varsity ended the scoring, and the Toronto school emerged winners by the score of 14 to 0.

Young, Sheppard, Cumming, Fraser, Zimmerman and McAskell were best for Queen's, but all the boys tried hard and gave their best. It just wasn't their day.

Title Claims Made Clearer On Saturday

Canada's rugby situation assumed more definite shape as a result of the games played on many gridirons Saturday. Hamilton Tigers, on the threshold of the Interprovincial championship a week ago, made certain of that title when they overwhelmed Toronto Argonauts, 19-1, and thus stamped out any chance that Argos and Montreal had of creeping into a three cornered tie for leadership.

Montreal's overwhelming 30-1 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders therefore was merely the observance of the closing exercises in the Big Four, but nevertheless provided a good spectacle as far as wide open football was concerned.

In the Intercollegiate Union, Toronto Varsity, already installed as champions, asserted their class against Queen's and wound up the season by trouncing them, 21-2. In the other game Frank Shaughnessy's McGill team went down before the husky University of Western Ontario squad, 13-8, and ended the schedule in last place in their union.

Glad tidings for Montreal rugby followers was the triumph of Doug Kerr's Westward clan at Royal Avenue, their 21-3 win over McGill giving them the championship of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, and ousting the present holders, Ottawa Rangers, from the leadership. Westward now proceed into the Dominion Intermediate eliminations, and have a squad that looks powerful enough to take the title they brought to Montreal in 1929.

Another intermediate title came to Montreal when Paul Haynes' Loyola team outscored Bishops College, 3-1, at the N.D.G. Campus, to give them the Eastern championship. The M.A.A.A. juniors, already installed as junior winners, were inactive, and are marking time, preparatory to going into the Canadian eliminations.

Smoke Buckingham —and Smile

Pleasure is the beginning and ending of every Buckingham —a mild —cool and mellow cigarette

20 for 20c.

R-342

Any Number of Examinations!

TIP TOP custom-made clothes withstand the most critical of tests — the closest of scrutinies. There is only one answer: QUALITY. Especially-selected British Woollens — custom tailoring of the highest order—meticulous care in respect to fit—each suit fashioned to the 21 personal measurements of the individual — these have made TIP TOP clothes the outstanding value in custom-tailored clothes on to-day's market.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN  WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes. New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

YES
Cigarettes reduced in price "here" too!
M. R. McColl
Prescription Druggist
260 University Ave.
Our Ice Cream Parlor closes at 11 p.m.

Pot Shots From Toronto

Continued from page 1

through each other in mass formation and a Queen's student was heard to say, "Gee! I wish the team could go through Varsity like that!"

One eminent authority declares that the scenery in Toronto is marvellous . . . says he never saw so many pretty girls in his life.

The towns on the way to Toronto knew Queen's was on the move on Saturday morning. The stentorian bellows of Queen's cheerers woke up many a startled hamlet and urged mothers to see if their children were still safe.

A Meds. soph tried to catch a prize Cheshire cat in Toronto for dissection, but the wily beast escaped. Experience stood it in good stead.

By the way: Did you notice how the Toronto Police Force watched us get off the Choo choo? How many faces were familiar?

One stude created quite an effect when he tottered up to a bell hop and declared pompously, "Boy! Call us a street car."

That little brown dog seemed to find the Varsity game program very unpalatable. And he had such an enjoyable time with our cheerleaders, too.

Charlie Hicks nearly fooled them all. A sign on his door informed all comers that Mr. Hicks would be out until noon. But he was selling tickets all the time. Tut, tut Charlie, is that how you do business?

About what happened at the Royal York and elsewere, we feel that we can't be misquoted if we say nothing.

The Police Force joined the Varsity parade. Looks as if Toronto citizens think Varsity students are irresponsible, illogical, and dangerous when let loose among their superiors.

Pity the poor student who had a friend named Smith in Toronto and tried to look up his address and number in the telephone directory. A few random attempts were dismal failures.

We learn that certain young ladies from Whitby are very interested in Queen's. Very encouraging Queen's! Very encouraging!

Water Sports Take University By Storm

Swimming certainly has taken Kingston by storm. A swimming meet scheduled with the Kingston Swimming Club for the twenty-second of this month has now developed into a three club meet with the introduction of the Y.M.C.A., and great things are expected from these boys led by Jack Watt. "Dutch" Dougall's crew, too, is practicing hard, and with the boys in excellent condition from a strenuous summer, will be hard to down. Rumour has it that Kelly, Samwell and Walpole, will be included on the Kingston team and the Kingstonians know what that means.

Meanwhile the Queen's boys are by no means idle. Anglin, Whiteford, Pesner, Perry, Stevenson, Low and others, are training hard for the swimming and with several new members on the water polo squad will be a hard nut to crack. Forsberg, Southern and McKercher are to play india rubber men off the high board and it is hoped that an exhibition of combination diving will be forthcoming from these boys. They are just good enough that those who know have classed them as prospective Olympic material.

R.M.C. have been invited to take part, but have not yet replied.

It is brought to your notice that the events are open to any student at Queen's and the program follows:

List of Events:
1. 50 Yds. Free Style.
2. 200 Yds. Breast Stroke.
3. 100 Yds. Free Style.
4. 50 Yds. Back Stroke.
5. 200 Yd. Relay—4 man teams.
6. Diving Competition — Swan, Back, Front, Jackknife compulsary, 2 optionals.
7. 440 Yds., Free Style.
8. Diving Exhibition, Queen's.
9. Water Polo—Queen's vs. Kingston, all stars.
10. Candle Race—Novelty.

Sports Views

It wasn't exactly a blaze of glory in which Queen's wound up their season at Varsity, but they at least showed that an earlier development of the forward pass might have made a big difference in the college series.

They certainly opened up the play with 23 forwards, but costly fumbles and the retaliatory methods of Varsity proved too much for them.

The Tricolor's football season wasn't a success, artistically or financially. They got off on the wrong foot and failed to show a winning form until too late in the season.

Buell, Purvis, Peever, Glass and Conquergood, all "sat out" the game on Saturday. It had been expected that all the players would have been used, but the five subs sat huddled in blankets the full game. And Jim Davis was only sent into the game when McNicholl was hurt in the last few minutes.

It was the last game in Queen's uniforms for several players, including Howie Carter, Bill Purvis, Jim Davis, Henry Hosking and probably, Day, Davoud, Storms, Kennedy and Carr.

Johnny Copp, who did little more than sub while Jack Sinclair was able to play this season was easily the finest player on the field. He was used in more than half the Varsity plays and gave a wonderful exhibition all the way.

The first forward pass completed by Queen's was a masterpiece. It was most cleverly executed and paved the way for the Tricolor's first point.

Of the three Queen's teams, the best showing was made by Bill Shaw's juniors. They won two games to split even on the season, and on Saturday gave Varsity a hard battle until well into the last quarter.

—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Rugger Team Beats Varsity Fifteen, 12-0

Toronto, Nov. 14.—Playing their first match against an intercollegiate team, the English rugger team of Queen's University trounced University of Toronto by 12 to 0 in an exhibition match on the Varsity back campus Saturday afternoon. The Tricolor squad was far superior in every department of the game and showed themselves as a team worthy of obtaining entry into the intercollegiate series, for which they will apply if their athletic board can dig deep enough. The Kingston team had much the better of the play throughout the scrum having a big advantage and the halves getting the ball out fast for smart passing gains.

Queen's scored the only points of the first half when their captain, R. MacDonald, counted three on a penalty drop kick. Panton, who was the best man in the game, added four more to the Tricolor total with a drop kick from the field. Ralston went through the Blue team for a try which Marriott converted just as the whistle sounded. Varsity played most of the game with a man short as Trites was injured in the first few minutes of play. Panton, Fleming and R. MacDonald were the best of the winners, while Archibald and Losier were the best of the Blue backs with Magner doing some nice tackling.

Just after half time an incident occurred which was greatly appreciated by the new Tricolor squad. The big team passed the field in a bus on their way to the Stadium, and they gave their brother team a rousing Queen's yell; it was a friendly gesture and indicative of the good feeling which it is hoped may link the exponents of the two games. It is noteworthy that the crowd which watched the game was the largest that a Rugger fixture has ever drawn to the back campus.

Line-up:

Queen's — Fullback, Marriott; three quarters, McLaughlin, Finlay, Barrie, Colett; halves, Panton, Ruffman; forwards, R. MacDonald, Harvey, Fleming, Kalston, Brydon, J. MacDonald, Malen, Gibson.

University of Toronto—Fullback, Harcourt; three quarters, Hahnstead, McCaltchie, Archibald, McLeod; halves, Losier, Lawson; forwards, Morley, Trites, Caverhill, Williams, Hilliard, Wagner, Telford, Wilson.

Referee—Norman Segger.

Score by halves.

Queen's	3	9—12
Varsity	0	0— 0

Graduating Class Notice

Members of the Graduating Classes of 1933 are reminded that photographs should be handed in to the Tricolor not later than Dec. 1. Biographies will also be required at an early date

"During the week-end three 'young marrieds' have returned to England from abroad."—Daily Paper.

Who missed the boat?

Bander Snatches

After Big Ben had vainly whispered that the zero hour of 2 a.m. was approaching and that it behove Alice to rise to the occasion, he resorted to a shrill yell which awakened her at last.

"Oh dear," she yawned—"I'd much rather stay in bed than make the effort of catching that train. What a beastly hour to have to get up!"

She managed, however, to drag a few clothes on and after hurling her best bib and tucker into a suitcase, tore out the door and into the waiting taxi, which arrived at the station just in the nick of time. Once on the train she and the Red Queen, who had been awaiting her on the platform, found seats amid a Bedlam which bade fair to last the entire trip. After what seemed more like 4 years than 4 hours the train pulled into the Union Station.

Alice and the Red Queen stumbled into a taxi which took them to their hotel. After unpacking and eating a huge breakfast the Red Queen forced Alice into bed again but the poor child was much too excited to get any rest.

Luncheon was somewhat of an ordeal, as Alice didn't feel much like eating.

They arrived at the Stadium just in time for the first kick-off and settled themselves to watch what they hoped was to be a good game (It was—from the Varsity standpoint). The Red Queen became more and more grumpy as the playing went on, until the game being really over she flounced out in disgust. Alice tried to follow her, but lost sight of her in the crowds that milled around and she realized that she was alone in the big city.

"Please sir," she addressed a big Varsity man beside her, "have you seen the Red Queen?" No, little girl, I can't, but I'll look after you. How would you like that?"

Alice, who didn't know any better than to put herself into a fraternity man's care, said in a small voice, "Well, if you don't think it would be troubling you."

Now you know what fraternity cocktail parties are like! Every one under the sun there and so on? Yes, yes!

Well, Alice met a Queen's senior there and got into a discussion of the game. (His name, by the way, was Bill the Lounge Lizard). This individual being a little the worse for wear, asserted that Queen's should have won. Alice agreed (so do we all—all agree). "Well, it's this way," said Bill, "Queen's thought that they had held the championship ton long, and they had better give poor old Varsity a chance—just to see what it felt like to have a good team."

"Did they really give it to them?" said Alice.

"Oh, not exactly," said Bill, "Nice weather we're having."

Although her spirits had been dampened by the results of the game the thrill of going to a dance at the Royal York helped matters considerably and Alice enjoyed herself immensely. The evening ended at Child's in a blaze of glory.

TREACK AND INK.

WHAT, NO STADIUM?

The most unusual college to make its appearance recently is the "Depression college" at Natrona, Pa. So far, 40 students have enrolled. The "college" consists of a single classroom and no campus.

—Oklahoma Daily.

A Montreal man fell dead when he found four aces in a poker hand. Many a man has been killed for holding five.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
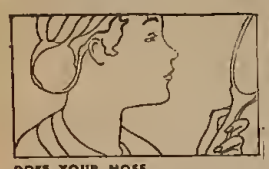
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262



FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream . . . $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2835 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Capt. Watts Traces Penitentiary History

In view of the recent disturbances in Canadian penitentiaries, the discussion at the Forum on "Penal Institutions in Canada" proved to be an interesting and instructive topic.

Captain Watts has acquired complete information in regard to the Canadian Penal system and traced its development from 1854. At that time the first Canadian prison was erected in Kingston. Prison conditions at that time were similar to those in England which brought about the great prison reforms in that country.

Brutality, overcrowding, unsanitary conditions, disease and non-segregation of insane convicts made life unbearable.

The next building, erected on the present site in 1867, was no improvement of the original. The cells were cold, the food was terrible, and it was common practice to commit 8 year old children to the prison, where they were forced to live and mingle with the other convicts. A citizen of Kingston could, at that time, contract for the labour of a group of convicts. For this privilege he paid the government a sum of money and got as much work out of the prisoners as possible. He had all the powers of a warden over them, which at that time were almost unlimited.

Prison affairs continued much the same until the Budapest conference on prisons of 1905. From that time the system has been gradually improved but is by no means right yet.

The Canadian system is much the same in all seven penitentiaries, namely, Portsmouth, St. Vincent de Paul, Dorchester, Bordeau, Stoney Mountain, Prince Albert and New Westminster. However, each has characteristic features suitable to its locality. The cells are arranged in long corridors. Each cell is built to accommodate one man and contains a bed, a wash basin, running water, electric light, etc. Each prisoner is responsible for the cleanliness of his cell. At present overcrowding is serious. These prisons with a normal capacity of 2500 now have 4800 inmates, so that it has become necesary to arrange cots in the corridors. These are occupied by the more trusted prisoners.

The prison food is good but monotonous. It is served cafeteria style and after receiving the tray, the prisoners return to the cells to eat. There are shops of all kinds where trades are taught. School is held every day, and a variety of subjects are available. Several are extra-mural students of Queen's. There is a library of good books and the latest magazines but no newspapers. Books may be taken to the cells but this is not such a privilege as it may seem, since lights are turned out at 7.30 in the evening. Usually the evening meal is not over much before 7 o'clock so that little time is left for reading. There is a freshman regulation at Portsmouth. No prisoner may read the latest magazines or have reading matter in his cell during the first twelve months of his sentence.

Officially, talking is not allowed among the prisoners and so they have developed the grapevine telegraph to a remarkable degree. There are no organized sports or games of any kind at Portsmouth. The only conviet organization is the choir in connection with Sunday church services.

College Life Related To Present Difficulty

Taking as his theme "Where shall wisdom be found?" Canon Gower-Rees of Montreal, delivering the first of the series of University Services, related the university life of to-day to the difficult times through which the world is passing, and which are not merely economical but which are also present in the world of thought. Admitting that we are now passing through a transition period and that mighty cataclysmic forces released by the War, had a deep and lasting effect on mankind. Canon Gower-Rees also argued that a new flood of ideas has been formed and that the secret of the world's life is to be in control of these ideas to benefit mankind. Unless there are competent men one gradnated by the universities, modern trends of thought may be harnessed by unscrupulous men, and exploited so that they harm civilization.

Education, democracy and religion were presented as the main functions which universities should try to produce. Canon Gower-Rees maintained that in education, morals and life should go hand in hand, that democracy is found where the good of the individual is balanced by the needs of society. Religion was defined as the most thrilling adventure that attracts men and women and which gives peace to the mind and rest to the heart. That the challenge of the day was facing the present generation, was the problem which Canon Gower-Rees confidently left to a generation of university-trained men.

Concluding with the statement that if a student comes to university with a Faith in God, and with the intention of better appreciating life, then the best life has to offer is his. Canon Gower-Rees said that Queen's men should strive to keep in mind all that is high and true and that in this way the best of life will be achieved.

COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Nov. 15th.
3.15 p.m.—Arts Society Executive Meeting.
4.00 p.m.—Glee Club Meeting, 332 University Ave.
4.45 p.m.—Life Saving Class, New Gymnasium.
8.00 p.m.—S.C.M Comedy Drama "Cranberry Corners", Sydenham Sunday School.

Wednesday, Nov. 16th.
3.45 p.m.—Q.T.S. Meeting, Students' Clubroom, Old Arts Bldg.
7.00 p.m.—Levana Meeting, Ban Righ Hall.

Thursday, Nov. 17th.
7.30 p.m.—Debating Union Meeting, Room 221, Douglas Library.

It was decided that the first step in prison improvement was to make the men feel that they were getting a fair deal and were being treated decently and humanely. To accomplish this a general revision of the system is needed. Wardens should look upon their work as a life job and be paid accordingly. Guards should be appointed who understand the best methods of handling men, and not because of certain physical qualifications which is the present tendency.

Next week "The Gold Standard and Parity of Monetary Systems" will be the discussion subject.

Senator A Haydon Famous Grad Dead

One of Canada's outstanding citizens, the Hon. Senator Andrew Haydon, M.A., L.L.B. died at his home in Ottawa Thursday morning.

Senator Haydon came to Queen's in 1889 on the Gunn Scholarship from Dr. P. C. MacGregor's school in Almonte. He graduated M.A. in 1893 with both the History and Political Science medals. Mr. Haydon who is also an L.L.B. of Queen's was elected to the Board ofTrustees of this University in 1918 and has been re-elected every year since.

Mr. Haydon has done much to show his love for Queen's. He is the donor of a scholarship in Colonial History, and together with Dr. Adam Shortt he made Queen's the gift known as the Shortt-Haydon collection of portraits and views relating to Canada.

In his passing Canada mourns the loss of one of her most valued citizens. In 1919 he became secretary of the Liberal party and together with the Hon. Charles Murphy was largely responsible for its re-organization. He was considered a right-hand man of the Liberal leader, always keeping modestly in the background while assisting in the direction of his party. In recognition of his services he was offered a senatorship in 1924, which he accepted.

Packenham, Ontario, was the scene of his birth. It is significant that he was born there on June 28th, 1867, the year of Confederation. He was the son of James Haydon, a farmer and one of Lanark County's British pioneers, and Eleanor (Sadler) Haydon.

After leaving Queen's, Senator Haydon studied law in Osgoode Hall, graduated and in 1897 was called to the bar.

Queen's will always honor the memory of one of her sons who rose by sheer ability and character to a leading position in the life of Canada.

Statute Of Westminster Described To Students

Continued from page 1

iance to the Crown, second, equality of status, and third, freedom of association as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

One of the most important results of the Statute of Westminster is that the succession to the Crown can only be altered or affected by combined action of the Parliaments of all the dominions. To-day a position of substantial legislation equality within the Imperial Commonwealth has been established and to quote Mr. Read "the British Empire has been transformed into a family party."

Campus and Gym

Hockey is the predominating interest in Levana circles just now, and all girls interested in hockey are asked to report at Jock Harty Arena at one o'clock for practice.

LEVANA MEETING

The second meeting of the Levana Society will be held in Ban Righ Hall, on Wednesday, November 16th at 7 o'clock. The program will be supplied by members of the Dramatic Guild and refreshments will be served.

WINNERS!
The snappy new Queen's White Pullovers, as worn by the cheer-leaders at the Western game, were designed by Shaw's—of course!
See the new ideas FIRST at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes, Constitutions
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18th, 1932. No. 15

Memorial Trophy Given A. B. Of C. By Evans' Mates

Cup Will Perpetuate Memory Of Famous Player, Late J. Evans

The memory of the late Johnny Evans, perhaps the greatest quarterback ever to wear the Queen's colors has been fittingly remembered by the beautiful Memorial trophy which was presented to the Athletic Board by Dr. "Bill" Campbell on behalf of the team mates of this great players.

This Cup to be known as the "Johnny Evans Memorial Trophy" is to be awarded annually to the outstanding player on the Senior rugby team chosen by his fellow players.

The Trophy in silver, depicts the Goddess of Victory holding aloft a laurel crown while on either side a player is seen. His position is that of a kicker who has just got away a long punt. Inscribed on the base plate is—"In memory of Johnny Evans, Queen's quarterback 1919-1923—Presented annually to the member of the Senior Rugby team who in the opinion of his team mates has been the most valuable player."

The presentation was made at the last meeting of the Athletic Board.

Wally Elmer was retained as hockey coach in recognition of his excellent work last year.

Walter Knox's report on track activities was read, and it was decided to write him expressing the Board's appreciation of his services. It was announced that the receipts from this year's football season were approximately $2700 below last year's figures.

Jack Finley was chosen to manage the Senior Basketball team; Pete Lewis the Intermediate squad; "Pasty" Allan the B.W.F. squad.

The new manager of the Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing team succeeds "Scotty" McGowan, who has managed the affairs of these branches of sports for the last three years. "Scotty" has given of his time unstintingly and the team has enjoyed three successful seasons under his management. The climax was reached last year when the Intercollegiate Title came back to Queen's after an absence of about twenty years.

It was also decided at this meeting that the Board would tender a dinner to the football team.

Professor Wilgar, Dr. "Bill" Campbell, "Howie" Carter and Charlie Hicks were chosen to attend the C. I. A. U. meeting in Toronto.

Med. Formal Tickets

Tickets for members of the other faculties can be secured Friday and Monday afternoons from 3 to 5 p.m. in the basement of the Anatomy Building, on the second floor of the Students' Union, or by phoning any member of the committee.

McGill Society Ends Scheduled Meetings

Students' Executive To Conduct Business

Montreal, Que., Nov. 17. — (C.I.P.)—The students' society of McGill University at a meeting held yesterday afternoon decided by an amendment of the constitution of the society to abolish the annual and semi-annual meetings of the society heretofore held regularly in March and October of every year. This move has been brought about due to the absolute lack of interest shown by students at McGill in their own affairs during the past two or three years. It has been necessary to postpone the regular meetings on several occasions due to the lack of the necessary quorum, and the meeting scheduled for October 15 of this year was postponed on this account. The reason for this apathy on the part of the students is not that the students have no interest in matters of importance but simply because very few matters of great import pass through the hands of the students' society and so undergraduates feel that their presence means little. Management of the society will as before be in the hands of the students' executive council if twenty-five students request a meeting. However the president is constitutionally obliged to call one, he may also call one at his own discretion whenever he considers it necessary.

Scottish Players To Give Dramatizations

Presentations To Be Given In Tech. School

Kingstonians and Queen's students have a pleasant treat in store for them next week when The Scottish Musical Company reach town for a series of four performances to be given in the auditorium of the Technical School. The performances will include "The Cotter's Saturday Night," to be given on Tuesday afternoon and evening; and "The Bonnie Brier Bush" on Wednesday matinee and evening.

"The Cotter's Saturday Night" is a musical adaptation of the poem of that name written by Robert Burns, and which is generally considered to be a picture of the poet's own boyhood home.

The offering on the second day, "Bonnie Brier Bush," is based on the works of the well known Scottish novelist Ian MacLaren.

The presentations consist of singing, dancing and music skilfully woven into drama. These plays should come as a welcome diversion from the usual run of theatrical offerings. The theatre-goes will find herein plays full of homely wit and humour.

The Company has given 3000 performances in the United States and the press has been eloquent in its praises of their work.

It is expected that many will take advantage of this opportunity to attend the excellent bill.

HAVE LEADING ROLES

Reading from left to right—Hazel O'Kilman, talented actress of the Queen's Dramatic Guild, who plays the leading role in "Gammer Gurton's Needle"; Elizabeth Ware, an outstanding performer last year, who will again be seen in a Guild production, "The Gaol Gate."

Producer Feels Confident Dramatic Guild Productions Will Achieve New Heights

Gammer Gurton's Needle And Gaol Gate Will Interest Everyone Declares Mrs. G. B. Reid

"I am sure that the Dramatic Guild will achieve new heights in the presentation of Gammer Gurton's Needle, and The Gaol Gate, to-night and to-morrow night in Convocation Hall." Mrs. G. B. Reed, the producer, told the Journal to-day.

As the second comedy in the English language, replete with ludicrous situations and starring an excellent cast, Gammer Gurton's Needle should hold the interest of every one in the audience to-night. And it certainly deserves the presence of every student in the college.

Heading the cast is Hazel O'Kilman, famous for her characterizations in The Rope and The Last Man In. She plays the part of Gammer, co-operating with Marjorie Bishop as Dame Cat to evoke a laugh in a good old English street quarrel.

Bertie Gardiner, one of the Guild's most talented actors, seen in The Fatal Rubber and Holiday has the role of Hodge, a laugh-provoking imbecile. He is ably abletted by Erskine Morden as a sly Deacon. To complete the cast there are Scarthe Macdonnell, Arthur Sutherland, Jean Nelson and Marion Hayes.

The Gaol Gate, an intense tragedy gives balance to the program. Lebo Ware who has shown exceptional ability in former productions is ably supported by Dorothy Stuart and John Corbett. This play is under the supervision of Ted Sherwood and Gammer Gurton's Needle is directed by Bill Wilgar.

The admission price is 35 cents. Tickets are still on sale.

The Journal Dramatic critic writes:

"The productions of the Dramatic Guild during the past few years have been a notable feature of the Little Theatre Movement in Ontario. The standard of acting has been consistently high and the method of presentation direct, forceful, and appealing. Rehearsals of the forthcoming plays have left no room for doubt that the latest venture of the Guild is going to be conspicuously successful."

Medical At Home Traditionally Considered One Of Outstanding College Social Events

Traditionally, the Medical At-Home is considered one of the outstanding social events of college life. Always vastly different, always beautiful and complete to the last detail, there is an indefinite charm to a Medical At-Home that one cannot afford to miss.

On November 25th in Queen's Gymnasium, the Medical Formal will be held. The decorations will be the most beautiful that have ever graced a formal at Old Queen's. The very atmosphere of Merrie Old England will pervade the ballroom, because of the faithful reproduction of a typical stronghold of a Lord, as a theme for decorations.

It is impossible to realize the majestic grandeur of such a setting unless one witnesses the capacious courtyard of the castle, thronged with bewitching, beautifully gowned ladies and their escorts, gliding to the strains of throbbing melodies.

Wright Bros. Orchestra is without doubt the most famous dance band in Ontario today, and is constantly in demand for formals. Their rendition is something to marvel at, and to dance to the strains of Wright Bros. band is a social achievment.

Favours are always a puzzle. This year an inspiration solved the problem, and our favours will be talked about long after the dance has passed. What are they? Three guesses and then you are wrong.

Additional features of this year's dance are—a wonderful tasty supper, many odd sitting-out nooks, bridge tables in beautifully furnished surroundings, novelties and all features that make a formal a wonderful evening.

Continued on page 4

Guild Presents Play At Levana Meeting

Do. Kenny Appointed Convener Of Formals

Piano solos by Phyllis Smith and a presentation by members of the Dramatic Guild were the features of the program at the recent meeting of the Levana Society held in Ban Righ Hall.

The motion that hereafter one monthly meeting be held instead of two was unanimously carried. This required the suspension of Clause 7 of the Constitution. The report of the Mortar-board meeting was read by Gretchen Harvey. Doris Bannister gave the report of the Levana Tea Dance, and the report of the Freshette Reception was read by Jennie Roberts.

Doreen Kenny was chosen to act as convener of the Levana Formals.

Phyllis Smith then played, with her usual skill and sympathy, selections from such modern composers as Macdowell and Friedmann, and also the Andante from Orpheus by Glück. A few members of the Dramatic Guild read Enda St. Vincent Millay's short play, Aria da Capo, which was very well done and thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience present. Violet Kilpatrick read the stage directions, and the others taking part were: Mrs. Roland Browne, Jane Knowland, Ted Sherwood, John Parker and Scarth Macdonald.

Interfaculty Rugby Play-Offs Tuesday

Arts And Science To Battle At Stadium

The Interfaculty Rugby Playoff between Arts and Science will take place at the Stadium next Tuesday. These ever-popular contests should prove of unusual interest this year.

Arts, handled by the capable coaches Pete Lewis and Bob Elliott, are determined to capture the title which Meds. won last year. Their team will be strengthened this season by Abe Zvonkin, former Tiger star. The team will include four players from the Juniors and also Parsons, player and manager of the Intermediates. Other sterling material is found in Fritz Gussow, Burnett, Fletcher, Schmidt, Winnett, Marks, Quinn, Champlain, Hare, O'Neil, Waugh and Code.

On the other hand, the Science boys have announced that they are out to win, and after two weeks' practice under the coaching of Hallett, Lackey and Storms, they feel confident of victory. Their line-up has not been definitely decided but the following players will be on hand: Pete Austin, Soles, Woolgar, Wilf and Gord MacMahon, Gray and Vern Oille.

Glass, Purvis and Carter will handle the game, and the winners will meet Meds. later in the week for the championship.

Banking Success More Than Mere Money Loaning

Commerce Club Hears Essentials Of Sound Banking Transactions

"Successful banking consists of loaning money and getting it back again; a successful manager knows the difference between a bank loan and a Mortgage," said Mr. J. K. Fraser, manager of the Princess Street branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, speaking at the Commerce Club luncheon yesterday. In Canada, due to the wide system of branches, banks are not faced with the problem of distributing their risk among different industries.

"It is the function of a bank to finance, within the limits of safety, the efficient production and distribution of goods. A loan to a manufacturer to produce goods for market is good, but to buy machinery is bad and should be financed by some other means than the employment of bank credit.

It is distinctly not good banking to finance consumption of goods in advance of or in excess of the earning power of an individual or business. Indeed at least a substantial part of the blame for our late depression could be laid to instalment selling of practically everything we need except food. An American statistical agency shows that over a period of five years manufacturers had done five and one-half years' normal business and the average man had therefore, gone into debt ten percent. If he was to remain six months behind, business would have to fall ten per cent, and if he was to get out of debt within the next five years, it would have to fall twenty per cent.

There is no clearly defined line between distribution and consumption financing. The grocer's weekly or monthly accounts may be considered part of his distribution but for a longer period the legitimacy of a loan on book accounts is doubtful.

Another cardinal principle of good loans is that a periodical clean up be effected. This should be done at the period of low inventory.

Individual applications must be considered on their own merits. The main test is the profit which the business is making and how it is disposed of. Harvard University has undertaken to classify and compile statistics for the United States, and Queen's Com-

Continued on page 7

Levana Mail

Members of Levana, who live out of residence, and who normally have their mail delivered to their boarding-houses, are asked to watch the mailing list for letters which are sent through the University Post Office.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ——MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ——NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ——SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 —— LEVANA EDITOR
R. I. MAHAFFY—280 —— LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE —— SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON —— MEDICINE

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18th, 1932

The Dramatic Guild

To-night the Dramatic Guild presents its initial offering of the current session. The success of this student organization last year augurs well for an increased interest in dramatic art at Queen's. Those who are attracted to drama for art's sake may enjoy these capable performances as well as those who go to be amused.

The activities of the Dramatic Guild are largely directed and conducted by undergraduates. The energy and enthusiasm shown by both actors and managers in the production of these plays is sufficient guarantee that minor deficiencies in acting will be counterbalanced by the sincere efforts of the participants.

The Dramatic Guild is playing its part in bringing the attention of the public to the merits of the Little Theatre Movement. By supporting the activities of the Guild in a monetary way the students of Queen's University can show their appreciation of what is being done. In any event, an evening spent witnessing "The Gaol Gate" and "Gammer Gurton's Needle" cannot but prove amusing and profitable.

Popular Fiction

Among some of the glaring books reposing on the shelves of patented circulating libraries these days are such offerings as Week-End Marriage, The Wedding Night, Love in the Rough, by such extremely prolific authors as Berta Ruck, Ruby M. Ayres and Sax Rhomer. An astonishing fact is that these books get more readers than those of any other class of fiction. College students, school teachers, lawyers, professors and politicians, we are told, form a large percentage of these readers. The question arises just why these novels have so large a following, and could this market be tapped by the really capable young writers trying to carve a niche for themselves in the field of literature?

Psychologists tell us that this prevailing taste in reading is due to its power to provide an outlet for suppressed desires, inhibitions and unsatisfactory life. It is an escape medium utilized by those who wish to relax temporarily from the struggle for existence. All of us at some time or another have turned to light fiction as an opiate for disordered nerves. And without going into the ethics of the matter one has to admit that such a course has utilitarian value.

From a purely practical standpoint reading popular novels seems a waste of time. The reader does not benefit in any way and can only say that he has been entertained or relieved from utter boredom. What does one get out of them besides an escape from temporal things? Not much information certainly nor stimulation in the esthetic sense, although our simple emotions may be stirred somewhat by a sex novel.

In the final analysis, however, the hold these books have on readers cannot be accurately accounted for. Probably the higher class novels are often too remote from life, while popular fiction has all the illusions of reality.

Class Dismissals

Complaints have been pouring in to us from students who are annoyed by the utter disregard of the dismissal bell by many professors. They point out that the professors demand punctuality from the students and are often irritated by violation of this rule. We believe that it is the duty of students to be on time for lectures if they intend to be present. But it is equally incumbent upon the professors to dismiss their classes promptly at the sound of the bell. For a delay at this juncture only results in disorganizing the whole schedule of lectures, and places the other members of the staff in the annoying position of having to interrupt their work upon the entrance of latecomers, who have been detained in other classes. Many students have to hurry to another building for some of their lectures and the failure to dismiss them promptly makes it impossible for them to arrive at the next class on time.

There is another important angle to this situation. After fifty-three minutes of concentration and feverish note-taking a respite is most welcomed and the seven minute recess between lectures affords a brief period for relaxation before carrying on again for another hour.

Without the full use of this rest period the student's concentration and interest in the next class is bound to diminish. We also believe there is little to be gained by holding the class after the noon bell has gone. At this time with the pangs of hunger holding forth the best efforts of well-wishing professors go for naught.

A check up on this matter would go a long way in re-adjusting a situation which seems to profit no one.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Poetry

Poetry has been termed by some, as the loveliest of man's creations; and by others as the idiotic idiocynerasies of man's jaded brain; and by others as mere pretty words. Everyone has a right to his own opinion regarding verse, but these opinions should be based on the bed-rock of study and investigation. Because a certain poem or type of verse is disliked by a reader, that does not give him the license to say: "I don't like poetry." A man who does not appreciate good poetry is like a copy of a painting by an old master: the picture is there, the colors are there, to the untutored it is as good as the original, yet as Browning said, "It's soul is not right. So with a man whose senses of imagination, romance and beauty are so dead that he fails to appreciate verse, his soul is not right. To acknowledge a dislike or indifference of good verse is acknowledging that the sense of beauty is dead within one.

There is one opinion current in some quarters that a person who shows an interest in poetry is an emasculate, weak person. How silly and unfounded is this stupid belief. The great reason for this opinion is a throwback from the Victorian smugness and complacency when poets affected emasculation. A man may appreciate poetry above all earthly things and yet be as masculine as Hercules.

Many people who would read good poetry and like it have had their taste and appreciation for it ruined in the grammar school. They are forced to learn by rote a few standardized selections and are allowed to recite them in an abominable singsong fashion. The result of this outrageous method is a reaction against all verse.

Another popular fallacy regarding poetry is that it is too deep and ponderous. True, some verses are rather heavy but it is not necessary to probe and search for obscure poetry in order to make unjust criticisms. There is an abundance of verse which is plain enough for even the most unimaginative person to read.

The effect of poetry on a reader may be likened to the effect on a pioneer on his first glimpse of the fertile valleys of California: new vistas are opened up: hope surges in his breast and the urge to go forward is predominant. Every human, mood, emotion, and passion are registered by the poet and are placed on the printed page in such a way that the reader cannot possibly escape from, at least, some of their force.

Poetry is the handmaid of culture, learning, and of refinement. It is dynamic and real; it shows us the best that is in human beings and again, it is worthwhile.

—Xaverian Weekly

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

1. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

2. Scholarships to the total value of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard.

The conditions of award will be announced later.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

PREFERENCE!

From coast to coast Canadian smokers are becoming more and more decided in their preference for Winchester Cigarettes. More rapidly than any other Canadian cigarette, Winchesters have won their way to the top in public favour . . .

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes.

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!

Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

The CLINGSWELL
STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

F. Durdan President Civil Engineer's Club

The Civil Club held its first meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 15th, in Carruthers Hall. The following officers for the year were elected:

Hon. President, Prof. W. C. Wilgar; President, F. S. Durdan; Vice-President, J. C. Elliot; Secretary, W. A. McArthur; Reporter, E. L. Hartley.

Mr. Durdan outlined the objects of the club and the programme for the year. The club was first formed with the object of giving its members practice in public speaking. Papers are given on subjects of the speakers' own choice. Membership is limited to members of the faculty and students in the third and fourth years in Civil Engineering.

It was decided to hold meetings on Thursdays at 3.30 (D.V.) in Carruthers Hall, with meetings in the evenings when and wherever possible.

Bander Snatches

Alice was beginning to find life a little complicated. When she arrived home from Toronto she found that her extra courses in Latin and French had gotten a little beyond her. She decided that the only thing to do was to concentrate on her major course in dancing and let the others take care of themselves. So far there had been classes on Saturday nights only with an occasional extra at Ban Righ.

She felt depressed for some reason—and, on confiding this to the Red Queen—was advised to take a trip to that strange place called the Sup. Now Alice had heard all sorts of wild stories about it and felt a few qualms as she prepared to crash the gates. The one bright spot on the landscape was the hope that she might see one of those adorable Cadets. What was her dismay to learn that because it wasn't a Wednesday or a Saturday, or a Sunday, she was doomed to disappointment.

Alice pushed the door open and, throwing out her chest, marched dauntlessly in. Who should she see but the Mock Turtle sitting all by himself in a corner, snuffling into a large red handkerchief and with tears coming down his cheeks. As there was very little room even at that early hour (because Levana seemed to be there in a body to watch their secret passions come barging in), Alice sat down unconcernedly beside the Mock Turtle and studied the menu intently.

"My dear," said the Mock Turtle. "I hope you won't mind me speaking to you. I know you're just a Freshette and I'm a big shot—but I've just been thinking—"

"I-er-beg your pardon?" said Alice. "What was that you said?"

"I said I was just thinking."

"Oh," said Alice, "I see."

"As I was saying—I was just thinking (so you did, said Alice to herself, wondering how much longer this was going to keep up) that perhaps I have been a little unjust to the students here."

"Oh, yes!" said Alice, "Go on—!"

"Well," the Mock Turtle continued. "I've decided that the students should pay more attention to their Dancing Courses than they have in the past. I remember making some unkind remarks about majoring in that branch of the finer arts, but my better nature has begun to get the upper hand and I realize what a great mistake I've made."

Here he paused to gaze sadly into space and after blowing a particularly rousing blast into his bandana went on—all the while leaning over and looking earnestly into Alice's face until she began to fear that he would be weeping on her shoulder soon.

Alice looked him sternly in the eye. "Well," she said, "I've heard a lot about Women's Suffrage—and it's about time someone around here saw the light. They have suffered a great many indig—indigen—well—unjust accusations."

Here the Mock Turtle threw himself on her shoulder and emitted great racking sobs until Alice felt quite sure that they must be attracting a great deal of attention. Her shoulder grew damper and damper. She began to look frantically around for someone who might rescue her—when who should come in the door with an anxious manner but the Red Queen.

"My good girl," said the Red Queen, "That will be all of that. You come along of me. I knew I shouldn't have told you to come down here. You look so messy now after that great creature has been slopping all over your shoulder. Come on! We're going home!"

Alice was so relieved at this that she hounded out, leaving her chocolate milk-shake untouched (it was rather salty from Turtle tears) and hurried back to Ban Righ for dinner with the Red Queen.

(To be continued).

TREACLE AND INK.
X Their Mark.

TRICOLOR NOTICE

The Editor and Associate Editor of the Tricolor announce that all photographs for the Year Book should be in their hands as soon as possible, and certainly not later than the first week in December. Members of the Final Year, the Faculty Societies, and Campus organizations are asked to co-operate to make this possible.

Being the 9th Chapter of the Chronicle of Kweanz

Now it so happened that there was a man of great faith, in the country to the far north of Kin, who had given unto his wife, two male offspring. As were day and night different, so were these two sons. One being well satisfied to stay and till the land, the other restless and eager to travel.

Therefore did the latter say unto his father, "Give me mine inheritance that I may go forth into the world." So his father being of wise mind didst give unto his son his share, and send him forth into the realm of man

This son, therefore, having received his lot, didst set out for Kin, for even into the very most corners of the globe had the fame of Kweanz spread, and many and varied were they who didst seek admittance at her gates. By devious routes did he come, by T. and N. O. (which meaneth of exceeding slowness), by C.N.R. (which verily, also can be translated in the same manner), and by T.A.X.I., translated thus—two bits.

Whence, having found bed, he didst join the tribe of Meds. and there did fall amongst sinners. For those of Meds. were known at Kweanz as men of great foolishness and sinfulness. Yea, spending all their working hours at kraps, which some call seventeen-leven, and at Kontrac, taking shekels from the unwary.

Also he didst partake of wine, and didst lavish his inheritance on divers virgins from Kin, paying homage to Bacchus and Fockstratux, at the Hostel of Sal, at the Soup; yea, even at Modom Cones. Yea, it was even said of him that he didst kiss virgins of Kin, and so sank he into the abyss of iniquity.

So it came to pass in the spring of the year that he didst sit for examinations, but having studied other gods, didst not know his medicine. And his inheritance having all been wasted, his friends didst turn against him and cast him aside. Therefore did he say unto himself, "I will return unto my father." Then did he get out onto the highway, raise his thumb, and so didst reach his father's side.

And being like all frosh, his approach was seen by his father from a long way off. (And he did welcome his offspring with open arms, and did fall on his neck. Then did the father say unto his other son, "Go kill ye a fatted calf, that we may rejoice in the eyes of the gods.". But the elder son stopped him, saying, "Kill ye not the fatted calf, my brother, I have had already, too much of the bull at Kweanz. —AMEN.

We overheard a lady in a downtown barber-shop asking the barber how long his course at college was. From observation, the Steam Shovel decides that one year is more than enough. Witness a few of the cuts on the Science Frosh.

Hockey and B.W.F. Share Interest Now

With the football season over as far as Queen's is concerned, attention is now turning to the B. W. F. squad and the hockey teams.

For some unknown reason, more enthusiasm is being shown by the boys than was evidenced last year, and seventy odd are turning out regularly for work outs. Jack Jarvis and Jimmy Bews are pleased with the way the gang is working, and both are confident that the team will successfully defend last year's title, in Montreal next February.

They have several good prospects in every class, but for anyone who can fight, there are still plenty of chances to make the first team, and the coaches are welcoming all they can get. As yet they won't name any partienlar man for a place, but will have a fair idea after the Freshman Assault next Wednesday.

In one point the squad lacks however, so far no heavyweight boxing contenders have turned out, and anyone over 175 pounds will be welcomed with open arms by the coach.

Come on fellows, whether you fight or not, get in behind Bews and Jarvis and give them all the support the men of this University can, our team won the championship last year and we want them to keep it, and if you can fight, turn out. How about it.

Retaliation

Men at the University of Melbourne, Australia, have started knitting as a protest against the coeds who have adopted football as one of their major sports.

—The Oklahoma Daily.

World News Briefly

Sir Walter Layton, well-known economist said yesterday in a special article in the News Chronicle that the commentaries of American political leaders on French and British war debts showed that the real need for a radical revision of debts is far from being understood in the United States.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, has announced that Canada's $80,000,000 loan is over-subscribed. This was the first time that a 4% government bond had been offered to the public.

Execution of the Ottawa Agreements bill was begun Tuesday as a result of its approval in third reading by the House of Lords. Unless Ottawa sets its seal of approval on the measure the law on the United Kingdom's statute books will lapse.

The Prince of Wales officially opened the new northern Ireland parliament buildings in Stormont, Wednesday, despite veiled threats from Ulster Nationalists. Sections of railway track between Kells and Belfast were mined and ripped up.

Amy Johnson has safely completed the second lap in her flight from England to Capetown, and accordiug to latest reports is somewhere between Gao, on the Upper Niger and Duala, French West Africa. The distance between these points is 1,200 miles.

B. Wragg And G. Wylie Lead Undergrad Discussions

R. Wragg and G. Wylie, Queen's undergraduates led recent discussions of the Queen's Theological Society.

In speaking of the work of the Christian Church Mr. Wragg suggested that its tasks were begun at the wrong end. An attempt should be made to thoroughly understand the problems of the people and, then, a religion brought forth that would be thoroughly adequate. The speaker remarked that man has now conquered nature and, therefore, has no fears in that direction. Fellow-man, however, has proved unconquerable, and our hope of salvation lies in reconciling ourselves with him. We should not be the first to condemn him, but rather the last.

Mr. Wylie continued the discussion by pointing out that the aim of preaching should be to teach people not how to die, but how to live so that the conflicting forces in society might be brought into harmony. A great effort must be made to break away from superficial piousness and hypocrisy for, otherwise, the church cannot hope to be in close touch with its people. As the old theology is losing ground, it is up to the church to provide adequate teachings to take its place. To preach the Gospel is to teach the Christian religion. The speaker concluded by defining the Christian religion as the personal relationship of man with a Higher Power which finds expression in duty to mankind. The primary duty of the Church is to bring people into that fellowship.

That Settles That

Mr. Hoover should feel good, now that the national collegiate straw vote has been taken. The president polled ten thousand more votes than his nearest competitor, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

—Daily O'Collegian.

GARBO WALKS

Carol Hurlburt, who "columns" in the Oregon Daily Emerald, had this to say:

"Most coeds walk with what might be termed a Hollywood slouch—a la Greta Garbo."

But when she went to talk to an R. O. T. C. officer about the way women walk this is what she was told:

"Girls are delightful, but they don't use their ankles when they walk; they are a little humped in the back (well-l); they don't hold their heads up; they take steps that are too long; and their stomachs hang forward."

And he tops it off by saying that he judges a woman's beauty by her feet. Oh, well, I think women like navy men better anyway.—University of Washington Daily.

Bethany Comes Clean

The president of Bethany College, in explaining the removal of admission fee for football games said, "We want our friends to see our team on the field because it is made up of bona fide college students and we shall not continue to parade them like prize horses at the county fair."

—Lehigh Brown and White

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

Without Doubt The Greatest Value in O'COATS

$18.50 AND $20.00

SALE
Sample Sox
Plain
And Fancy
Patterns
English Make
Regular 75c
For 55c
2 pair for $1.00

TUXEDOS
Be prepared for the coming social events
See our Special Tuxedo Suit at $25.00
All Dress Accessories

SALE
Sample So
Fancy
Weaves and Patterns
Jaegar
English Make
Regular $1.00
For 79c
2 pair for $1.5

Dressy Gloves—Genuine Goat Skin $1.50

LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

THRIFT CARDS
AT
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
$4.00 Value for $3.50
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1235 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Food Facts

Since the great one whose name has been lost by his posterity performed the classic and almost successful experiment of teaching his horse to live without eating, the exigencies of poverty and the exaggerated notions of hypochondriasis have produced many wierd systems of diet. It would be hard to decide which is the more deserving of pity, the explorer who is reduced to eating his boots or the victim of faddism who ekes out a joyless existence on spinach and raw cabbage.

Many of those who would lead humanity to paradise by the colon have been smitten by the serene contemplation displayed by the cow and the other ruminants. "We too," they say, "should ingest only vegetable matter and during the short periods between ingestions, rest on our delightfully enlarged stomach and enjoy the glow of self-righteousness and a feeling of contempt for carnivorous barbarians."

In isolated instances in the lazy sunny climes the system has worked and, intoxicated by this measure of success, devotees have preached their glad tidings far and wide, even introducing them in the rigorous climates found north of Wolfe Island. It is said that one proselyte in the first heat of his enthusiasm, went north of Fort Churchill and was eaten that winter by a community of uncivilized Indians, who, from observation of his feeding habits, believed him to be of a deformed species of caribou.

Young men engaging in strenuous exercises during our Fall season are not really good subjects for experimentation in this field. Even those who most emphatically declare their readiness to die for dear old whosis, object to making the sacrificial exit by the way of slow starvation. Football teams on the squirrel diet are greatly handicapped in action by a general shortness of fingernails, which necessary weapons have been gnawed down in moments of introspection, and by the benching of players as punishment for secret indulgence in chocolate bars which are considered too meaty because of their high content of peanut butter.

The human diets most in use are the result of centuries of trial and error learning, a system that is costly and slow, but very efficient in the long run. Science has indeed pointed out defects and offered invaluable suggestions, but a thousand years of experience cannot be discredited by a few hundred laboratory experiments after all. Indeed, the results of experiments may be regarded as valuable only in so far as they are borne out by human experience.

The tendency viewed with most alarm by theorists in their happily omnivorous neighbours—is that toward a high consumption of protein in the form of meats. A diet too high in proteins is admittedly harmful, although no missionary, medical or otherwise, ever impressed that fact upon the esquimaux. Nephritis and other awful things may follow the strain put upon the organs of excretion and the high uric acidic rate frequently results in a certain portliness of figure. We are naturally anxious to preserve our kidneys at all costs, but we must assume a tolerant attitude towards the aldermanic vest-line when we consider its high incidence among our widely revered mentors, as illustrated in the last issue.

In a system congenitally defective or weakened by disease, protein in very small amounts may cause trouble, but the normal animal is well equipped to deal with a reasonable amount, that is, an amount proportional to the rate of wear and tear in his tissues, and the reasonableness of the amount is assured in most cases by economic considerations. Nobody but an idiot would waste time under the present conditions, warning people not to buy beefsteak in excessive quantities, and at any time the relatively higher prices of animal foods assure a preponderance of vegetable and cereal stuffs in the average diet. The very rich may be offenders against themselves in this connection, but what do we know about the very rich?

The business of eating is still a matter governed by the common sense of the individual, and, probably on that account, is subject to many faults, but it is very generally understood that the vegetarian system, while it has been of great service to humanity in curbing the spirits of kicking mules, has not given consistently good results when applied to the human animal himself.

No doubt many exponents of the vegetarian system are really sincere, but this attitude is so unnatural that the average man finds it difficult to believe that they do not enjoy a piece of meat in secret.

College Students Prove Adept At Many Jobs

Students at the University of Washington have obtained many spare time jobs in the past, but none more unique than that which was just offered to the student body. In a news story on this new job the University paper had the following to say:

Can you give a life-like impersonation of a corpse? If you can there is an opportunity for a job waiting for you at the student counselor's office in Education hall. A request was received yesterday by Herbert T. Condon, men's counselor, for a University boy to pose for a downtown artist who is painting a full-length portrait of a dead boy.

The parents of the dead boy, wishing a painting of him, asked the local artist what he could do about it. The artist immediately called the counselor's office for a boy to pose, with the intention of painting a likeness of the dead boy's head from a photograph.

Condon said that modelling was one of the many unique jobs which University students obtain from the office. He cited an instance of last year when a student was employed to act as a "bouncer" for an exclusive dinner party among Seattle's social elite. The student received $6 and a broken wrist for his services.

The department also furnished a "gigolo" to three California school teachers who desired to see British Columbia from a collegiate point of view. At times Condon stated, several students have earned money while attending school by working in the county morgue.

Rings and neckties and earrings are the toys of the grown-up.—Mr. Robert Lynd.

Medical Rugby

The various years in the Medical faculty have had their fling at interyear rugby, and most of them have tossed aside their moleskins and have reached for the liniment bottle, defeat having ended their ambitions.

One can say with certainty that the class of rugby and the manner of conducting the interyear games has improved immensely, and while the elimination series did not produce such high class football this can be partly explained by the soggy condition of the turf. Well we have to have some excuse.

In former years the games were staged on the lower campus and the team that first reached the yardsticks were in a fair way to winning the battle. Os as someone put it, the yardsticks would only move one way, generally away from the senior team's goal. It was an unheard of thing to have a senior team beaten by a junior outfit; even if the junior gang were better. It simply wasn't done.

Another intricate method of winning the games was to have a convenient and friendly timer who could end the game or any portion of it, at any time for the odd swallow. Or you could arrange to have the referee blinded in one eye for maybe two swallows, and they were swallows, as a rule.

But with the early close of intercollegiate rugby, the men in charge wisely decided to have the game played at Richardson stadium and to endeavor to have competent officials in charge. They didn't do too badly and as a result the games produced more enthusiasm than ever before.

The Medical Sophs, those naughty lads, took a fall out of the lowly Frosh in the first game, the final score being in the neighborhood of 26 or so to 0. This game was in the nature of a grudge battle because the Sophs were still smarting because of the triumphant way in which the tam wearers emerged from the initiation scandal.

Fourth year, as a result of last year's finals exams lost quite a few of their former star rugbyists and the wallop left them unable to cope with the present Third year. This aggregation, bolstered by the addition of the players referred to, proceeded to take the honors in the scheduled meeting of Third and Fourth year, by the score of 13 to 6.

On a muddy field Fifth year bowed to the terrible Senior year 7 to 1, and that left three teams in the field.

One of these was eliminated when Second and Third year played off. The Sophs were still good enough to bring the Third year down in their tracks in a tightly fought battle, by the margin of 1 to 0. And that was a close one.

On paper this looks as if Second year should meet Final year for the championships, and the right to have their picture took, but that was on paper. It is extremely doubtful at this writing whether Final year can spare the time from their studies. And besides they cannot risk injuring their precious hands with all these operations coming off. So if the two eligible teams ever meet we'll tell you about it.

Eat More Beef To Have More Numerous Progeny

Eat beef and you'll have numerous offspring. This, in effect, is the conclusion of Professor James R. Slonaker, professor emeritus of physiology at Stanford University and a nationally known diet authority, given in an interview with the Stanford Daily, official newspaper of the University.

What cheese does for a rat, beef does for a man, Dr. Slonaker deduced from a series of experiments carried on over half a lifetime. Beefsteak furnishes man the 15 per cent protein diet which insures the hardiest life and leaves behind the largest family.

Dr. Slonaker has been conducting intensive studies of longevity by means of rats. The rat, being most like the human being, or vice versa, in its physiologic responses, the professor set about finding what was best for people by determining what was best for rats. When he came to proteins he began to make history.

Adults who ate "reasonable quantities of mixed diet" of plain wholesome food, got the most out of life, lived the longest, healthiest, and best, he found.

Proteins were the key. A rat which got his 15 per cent protein diet regularly had the most children and lived to the ripest age. The human problem, the professor found, was much the same.

Beefsteak, cheese, and other protein producing foods really cut a figure in future race statistics, Dr. Slonaker believes, under the theory that he who saves the protein saves all.

Meds. Formal Traditional Social Event Of Season

Continued from page 1

Tickets are now available. See any member of the following committee at once as the number is limited. Deposit receipts in ballot-box in basement of anatomy bldg. Ben Brachman, Convener. Phones 1005-J, 4199; R. D. Howitt, Phone 3772-W; W. L. McDonald, Phone 4167; W. Taylor, Phone 3274; J. S. Hazen, 1167; F. G. Elliott, Phone 1411-F; J. E. Baker, Phone 4119-W.

Heparmone Royalties Go To Western University

London, Ont.—The announcement was made at the University of Western Ontario to-day that all monetary rights in a new "drug" heparmone, have been given to the university by the discoverers, Dr. N. B. Laughton and Dr. Arthur James. Four years were spent in research by the scientists before the drug was perfected. Dr. Laughton is Associate Professor of Physiology at the Medical School. Dr. James is now stationed at Halifax as an officer of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Service Corps. While the research work was being carried on, Dr.. James was Assistant Professor of Biochemistry at Western. Heparmone is a biological preparation made from liver extract, and is valuable in certain types of high blood pressure. It is now manufactured by a firm of chemists in Indianapolis, and the royalties are being paid to Western.

FURNISHED SUITE
Three bedrooms, small sitting-room, three-piece bath, extra washroom. Heat, light and laundry included. Will rent rooms separately.
TWO BED-SITTING ROOMS
Main floor. Running Water. Reasonable Rates.
Bellevue, 450 Princess St.

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 192 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

Capitol THEATRE

Three Times as Long!
100 Times as Funny!

"Pardon Us," the first feature-length Laurel - Hardy comedy, created a world - wide public demand for another like it!
It's here—six riotous reels—and our advice is: Don't Miss It! It's a Howl-a-Minute Joy Ride!

TAN
LAUREL
OLIVER
HARDY
in their feature comedy triumph—.
Pack Up Your Troubles

SAT. - MON. - TUES.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL AUDITORIUM
November 22-23
The Scottish Musical Comedy Company Present
TUESDAY MATINEE, NOV. 22nd, AT 4 P.M.
THE COTTER'S SATURDAY NIGHT
By Robert Burns
WEDNESDAY MATINEE, NOV. 23rd AT 4 P.M.
THE BONNIÉ BRIER BUSH
SPECIAL STUDENTS TICKETS 38 CENTS
On sale at Post Office, Douglas Library

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S DRAMATIC GUILD
Will Present Two Plays
GAMMER GURTON'S NEEDLE
AND GAOL GATE
ON FRIDAY and SATURDAY, NOV. 18th-19th
CONVOCATION HALL ADMISSION 35c

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

CABIN IN THE COTTON
with
Richard Barthelmess, Bette Davis and Dorothy Jordan

Rather good, we might say. The picture has a musical background of singing Negroes and strumming banjos with lots of cotton plantations and a good story which, as the prologue says, is an effort to picturize conditions existing between the Southern planters and the pore white trash workers, the Peckerwoods. Here we have Marvin Blake, a worker's son, educated by the boss planter trying to improve things. He has a hard struggle as the planter's right-hand man to know what is the best thing to do and still look after the interests of his own people. There is a blood-hound chase culminating in a lynching 'n' everything. (If the film hadn't broken twice, we'd have enjoyed it much more).

Bette Davis as the planter's daughter Madge (with a pretty fair suth'n accent) gets the laurels for acting. And is that gal good-looking? Dorothy Jordan plays the role of Betty Wright, the poor gal who triumphs in the end over her rich rival. (Dear me!) Our friend Barthelmess (Marvin Blake) does rather well, though still a little wooden and with the same corporation.

You won't be disappointed in this; it's a good show all round if you like Southern accents in a Southern setting. B + +.

AT THE TIVOLI

SPEAK EASILY
with
Buster Keaton, Jimmy Durante, Thelma Todd and others

Speak Easily is filmed from the serial of that name which brightened the pages of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Durante genre of comedy is here given full play, and Jimmy tears around being intermittently "hoined up." Buster Keaton is a college professor whose ideas about life are strictly academic. As the result of a timely if spurious inheritance, Professor Timoleon Post finds himself financing a troupe of "hamateur" actors who plan an offensive on Broadway. "But, my good friends, I know nothing whatsoever about the—Show Business," he remonstrates. Neither does anyone else, they assure him, that's what has made it such a swell racket.

A premiere danseuse is imported. Thelma Todd plays the girl with sinuosity in her hips and a vacuum in her head. As a blonde on the make she incurs the opposition of Pansy Peets, member of the troupe who is That Way about the Professor.

The show is named Speak Easily, out of deference to the Professor, who is a purist. Actually, it is dull as a wet Sunday. But the Professor unconsciously turns a fiasco into a success, and in the midst of general acclaim finds time for an antatory interlude with the loyal Pansy. B+.

MUSIC

The meeting of the Music Club last Wednesday opened with the curious music of Gustav Holst. Two of the compositions played "(Mars, the Bringer of War, and Mercury, the Winged Messenger)" were taken from a suite, "The Planets," with which the composer first established his reputation, some twenty years ago; the third was entitled "Marching Song." Commenting on these, Dr. Frost remarked that though modern composers have abandoned most of the classic theories of tonality, rhythm and so on, they have not been able wholly to dispense with design. A comprehension of the structure of a composition is essential for its complete enjoyment; in all the finest music a simple theme is worked up by the genius of the composer into a sonata or whatever it may be. As an example, Vittoria composed a Motet and a Mass for the same Saint's Day, achieving unity by borrowing fragments of the Motet, say a short passage in the tenor, and elaborating them into the various parts of the Mass, the Kyrie and so on. Dr. Frost regretted that the students could not meet in small groups at any hour, even between lectures, to go over some one piece, repeating parts if necessary, playing themes on the piano, and following the score. Such a thorough understanding of a single composition would give the key to dozens of others.

These remarks were followed by the chief musical item of the program, Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, and in conclusion Dukas' jest, The Sorcerer's Apprentice, the account of a meddlesome youth who remembering one of his master's magic words used it to compel a broom to fetch water. Then he found he could not stop it, and was on the point of drowning when the sorcerer appeared, and with one stroke of his wand restored order.

Next Tuesday evening the club will be entertained by Mrs. Tracy, who promises a specially fine program. She has consented to sing some songs set by Holst, and is thus assured of a large, appreciative audience.

The largest selling chocolate in Canada . . . . .

. . . because it is
THE BEST MILK CHOCOLATE MADE

Our Fifth Anniversary
SALE
IS NOW IN FULL SWING
Countless Reductions
COME AND SEE WHAT SAVINGS YOU CAN MAKE DURING THIS SALE
LUCILLE'S LADIES WEAR
160 Princess St. Phone 2009

We think we can save you quite a few dollars on
Your Suit or Overcoat
We offer no Baits, but we do offer Extra Value
TUXEDO SUITS
Thee Piece
Coat, Trouser and Silk Vest
Newest Model, Silk Lined and Beautifully Tailored
Bibbys Extra Value
$22.50
Suits and Overcoats
AT
$15.00
The Best this price can Buy anywhere in Canada
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Basketball Prospects Appear Excellent

Don Bews, the newly elected captain of the senior team, is in fourth year Meds, and is playing his fourth year at guard in Intercollegiate competition. Don is not only exceptionally strong defensively, but is a great scoring guard, and is therefore a mighty handy man to have on any team.

Harry Mclaughlin, is the veteran of the team and is playing his last year's basketball for Queen's because Harry is in final year Medicine and graduates in the Spring. He is not the largest guard in the Senior circuit, but is a mighty good one. He specializes on tossing them in from away out.

Ted Hallett belongs to the Science faculty and is a forward of no mean ability in these parts. A very fast worker under the basket, Ted looks to be in for his best year.

Howie Carter, having finished with football is again donning his basketball togs for a final fling at the Intercollegiate baskets. Howie also waves goodbye to Queen's in the Spring, via Medical graduation. As might be expected Howie is centre man and a good one, especially on the defensive. His last year should be a humdinger.

Of last year's squad, the above are the only ones still on the premises, but they form the nucleus for a strong team, and one that Queen's builds great hopes upon. They have been practising faithfully for some time and the opening game should find them fit and ready for a tough season.

In addition to the above Wilf Newman, who was last year ineligible for competition, and who coached the senior team, is raring to get going. Wilf will hold down one of the forward positions and should fit in well. Centre of last year's intermediates, Doug Rooke, will also find a place along the front line and if he plays as smart basketball this year as he did last, he should strengthen the team immensely. Hallett will gallop around in the other forward position and this trio should team up well together.

Another lad, Joe Eby, an intermediate of last year is going to be hard to keep off the team, as his showing to date has been cheering. Several likely looking freshmen have turned out for places on all three teams and some of them will make good. Booth, a guard from Ottawa, looks mighty nice. Practically the entire K.C.I. team of last year are out and should form a splendid nucleus for a championship junior team.

Wilse McMahon returns to the game after a year out of college and should have a good year. He is another Kingston boy who learned his basketball at K.C.I. and the Y.M.C.A. A fast moving forward, he reveals in heavy going, and will likely get it.

With the McGill championship squad practically intact, and with the basketball business booming at Varsity and Western the senior intercollegiate loop promises to be a speedy affair.

Varsity will likely count heavily upon Warren Stevens to do his stuff and produce a winner as he did in rugby, and the wily Warren may do the trick.

Western as yet are an unknown quantity, but can be depended upon to turn out a team that will stage many a determined battle before going down.

With the prospect that McMaster, O.A.C. and R.M.C. may form another senior loop, the winners to play off, the basketball situation is fraught with possibilities and this season should be among the best in the history of the sport.

Secret Ballot To Decide Memorial Trophy Winner

At a meeting of the Rugby team on Wednesday evening, Nov. 16, it was decided that a vote by secret ballot should be taken for the winner of the Johnny Evans Memorial Trophy next Monday evening.

The conditions laid down are that the trophy shall be awarded by a majority vote of the members of the team to the most valuable rugby player of the year.

It was also decided that the Rugby Banquet should be held in the Union on Monday evening, that next year's Rugby Captain should be elected then, and that the photograph of the team should be taken on Monday afternoon.

Bronx Cops Outwitted By Sing Sing Gridders

New York—"You can't win "

That's what the law says to all malefartors. But the "law" was playing in the backfield of the Bronx Parkway A.C. and the Varsity boys at Sing Sing were absolutely helpless against these insurmountable odds; that is, after the first 46 points. In fewer words, the final score was Sing Sing 46, Bronx Parkway 0, and this in spite of the fact that Patrolman James Collins and Cornelius Eckert, former college men, were in there fighting tooth and nail for dear old Bronx Parkway A.C.

Rudy Just Another Man To Cleveland Co-eds

Cleveland, Ohio—Rudy Vallee may be the cause of skipped heart beats on the part of the ribbon counter girls, but to the coeds of the school of Education at Western Reserve University he's just another man.

This, at least, was the conclusion drawn on the Western Reserve campus after it was found that a beauty contest which Vallee had promised to judge was called off because of a lack of interest in the judge on the part of the girls:

"I think someone else would be better fitted for the job," was the comment made by Isabel Ellsworth, president of the student senate.

SPORTS SLANTS

With the big shots of rugby resting after a tough season, the lesser lights of Interfaculty football get their chance to occupy the lime-light.

* * * * * *

The forward pass did not lessen the scoring threat of a backfielder. In the total points scored by various players in the Intercollegiate, backfielders accounted for the vast majority of them.

* * * * * *

It may be that Canadian players have not yet developed the knack of tossing and receiving passes, but it must be admitted that as it was played this year, it did not help the game a great deal.

* * * * * *

Hockey was definitely put on the air when Wally Elmer was again appointed coach of the Tricolor's teams. Wally has plenty of ability and with any sort of material he should have a good season.

* * * * * *

And don't forget our basketball squad has been using up the spare moments, is, preparing for a busy season. Jack Finley thinks the Senior team will b· no man's mark.

* * * * * *

The late Johnny Evans will be vividly recalled each year when the trophy presented to Queen's by his team mates is awarded to the most valuable player on the Senior team.

Arts '35 Victorious Over Second Year

Arts '34, last year's champions, successfully defended their laurels against '35 to the tune of 6-1, in a close, hard-fought game. This successfully concluded another year of "spirited" interyear rugby that always brings to mind visions of what "used to be" in the good old 80's when men were men and women ——". Well it was a good game anyway. Both teams played spectacular rugby.

'35 started out strong and showed to better advantage in the first quarter when their fast extensions and team work outsmarted their rivals, quarter time ending 1-0 in their favor. In the second quarter Winnett managed to tie it up with a long hoist to the dead line. Fletcher's long forward passes, Burnett's thrilling 50 yard run, Gussow's smashing plunges and smart defensive work proved '35's downfall as Winnett finally succeeded in crossing the touch line for a major score. For the losers the halves showed up to advantage with fast extension and broken field running especially by Jake Quinn. On the line Ed Stevens, Augustine and Rainey plunged hard and made good interference. The notorious Doug Waugh pulled some characteristic spectacular football with the "odd" pass (not forward) and tricky quarterback sneaks.

Fencing Club Welcomes Aspiring Frosh Fencers

Any students, especially freshmen, who have as yet not decided on which winter sport they will devote their time are urgently advised to join the Fencing Club. Jack Miller, the President, has succeeded in getting very promising turnouts; seventeen were at the last practice. Mr. Bews, an expert fencer is devoting as much of his time as he can to coaching the boys. Queen's is very anxious to make a fine showing in the coming Intercollegiate assault at Montreal. Now is the time to begin! Fencing is a splendid sport, and a great conditioner. The club meets for practices Monday, Wednesday and Friday at five o'clock p.m.

Walter Perry Elected Captain Water Polo Team

Walter Perry was elected Captain of the Water Polo Squad at a meeting held last Tuesday evening, November 15th.

Walter has had considerable experience in this branch of sport—he has been playing polo consistently for the last three years—and is a swimmer of outstanding ability

Swimming trials over all distances will be held tomorrow, November 19th, in order to allow a swimming team to be chosen to compete in the meet which is to be held in the Pool next Tuesday evening.

R. M. C. have now decided to enter the competition in swimming and diving, so that so that a four way meet between Quern's, Kingston, the Y. M. C. A., and R. M. C. will take place.

Student Directories

It was announced today that the Student Directories will be ready within the next few days. Year Treasurers are advised that the directories will be deposited with the Postmistress in bundle, according to the number of persons listed in the year, and that they may collect them for distribution on payment of a charge of two cents per copy. Additional copies may be obtained from Chuck O'Neill.

Halves Still Greatest Scorers On Gridiron

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away from the various Intercollegiate gridirons, it is interesting to see just what change has been made in a scoring way by the introduction of the forward pass.

Backfielders always were considered the greatest asset a team possessed, because of their booting and running power, and many a game has been won solely by the trusty hoof of a star half.

With the advent of the forward pass, it was considered that the game would open up, to such an extent that other players would become dangerous scoring threats, as they would be used very often to complete the pass.

But such is not the case. The halves are still the great scorers of football not only in the Intercollegiate but in the other unions as well.

This can be partly explained by the apparent unwillingness of most teams to rely upon the pass when they had a halfback on the field who could plant over single points. And it can also be given as a reason for the low scoring of other players, that the poor execution of the passes attempted also destroyed their chances.

In the Intercollegiate series, Paterson, the ace of the Mustangs, led the players, scoring a total of 18 points by his own efforts. Davoud of Queen's, Sinclair and Copp of Varsity, were all tied for second place with 15 points. But as Sinclair was out for most of the games, it is more than likely that he would have led home the pack, had he not been injured.

Lee of McGill with 13, Richardson and Fenner of Varsity with 12 each, Carter of Queen's and Ward of Western with 11 each, Craig and Griffiths of McGill with 9 each and Awde of Western with 9 completes the scoring.

It can be seen from the above just how important th trusty halfbacks were in this season's campaign, and it is equally true of the other unions.

Smoke
Buckingham
—and Smile

Not one cent has ever been paid to people for Buckingham testimonials— yet Buckingham has received more praise from people in every walk of life than any other cigarette

20 for 20c.

R 8214

Twenty-One to One!

A TIP TOP suit or overcoat is cut and tailored to your own twenty-one personal measurements. Fashioned with care from the finest of English Woollens, fit and satisfaction are guaranteed absolutely. Yet you pay only TIP TOP TAILORS' "Price of Quality."

A winner every time.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM. Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1850

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

Book Chats

By R.M.

WHY READ POETRY?

President Hoover has said: "What the United States needs is a great poem." Coming from a hard headed politician such an utterance may seem strange, yet, undoubtedly poetry has a utilitarian value; especially in times of mental depression. It transports one into the land of high romance and relieves the mind from care.

A good many, however, in answering the question, "Why read poetry?" would say because they had to, to get a degree. To this type of person verse is a useless, but necessary evil that must be absorbed in order to pass examinations. One of the most vicious consequences of our educational system is the instilling of this attitude into the minds of men and women. From the lowest grades poetry is taught from the point of view of meaning, interpretation, moral precepts or what not. Pupils are asked to write in their own words the content of certain verses—as if that were the essence of poetry.

The appeal of poetry to me is primarily sensuous. I don't appreciate verse because it fulfills Leigh Hunt's classic definition, but this great critic has summed up the essence of the poetic experience so well that it is worth repeating: "Poetry is the utterance of a passion for truth, beauty and power, embodying and illustrating its conceptions by imagination and fancy and modulating its language on the principle of variety in uniformity."

It is not possible within the scope of this column to go into an exhaustive analysis of Leigh Hunt's definition. But since it tells what poetry is and therefore what you and I may gain from reading it let us examine it briefly. Truth, roughly, from the esthetic point of view is that which can be verified or faithfulness to the facts of nature. Beauty might be termed the "loveliest form of pleasure." It is common to many; is made up of diverse elements; is lasting, selective and definite. The difference between fancy and imagination is merely one of degree, imagination being more serious, profound and exalted than fancy.

Shelley wrote "Poetry awakens and enlarges the mind by rendering it the receptacle of a thousand unapprehended combinations of thought." It is a well-known fact that great poetry can quicken mental activity. One writer used to read Paradise Lost as an inspiration for composition. After reading a good poem, one's senses seem to become more acute; certain aspects of a landscape are noticed and appreciated that before escaped one's attention. Yet the poetic experience must not be isolatd and worshipppd as an esoteric thing. Poetry has no intrinsic value of its own; it is, in fact, enjoyed in its context—the great structure of human life. We read it or should read it because it makes a personal appeal to us; it evokes responses that are partly intellectual, partly religious and partly emotional.

The two most dominant characteristics of good poetry are music and pictures. With this in mind read the following passage from Marmion, (Sir Walter Scott):

"Day set on Norham's castled steep,
And Tweed's fair river, broad and deep,
And Cheviots' mountains lone:
The battled towers, the donjon keep,
The loop hole grates where captives weep,
The flanking walls that round it sweep
In yellow lustre shone.
The warriors on the turrets high
Moving athwart the evening sky
Seemed forms of giant height,
Their armour, as it caught the rays
Flushed back against the western blaze
In lines of dazzling light."

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Gold Has Value Not Merely As Money

"Gold is not of value merely because it is money," J. C. Cameron of the Queen's University Commerce Department pointed out at the weekly meeting of the discussion group held last night under the auspices of the S.C.M. "A five dollar gold piece will buy more today than it would some years ago. It's value arises from the fact that it is a commodity in constant demand." Mr. Cameron led the discussion and gave a brief history of the development of the monetary system.

"The first trade transactions were carried on by means of bartering," said Mr. Cameron. "In order that bartering be possible it is necessary that the trade be beneficial to both parties concerned. As trade developed such goods as copper and hides became staple commodities as they had a general acceptability.

"In time nations became fond of metals as a standard of trading. Eventually gold and silver was made the standard in many countries and was accepted ultimately by all nations. Metal had the advantage over other standards as it was always in demand.

"Coins evolved," said the speaker, "and these, in time, became worn, defaced and 'sweated' and necessitated an expert to tell their value. People grew to be suspicious of coinage. In international trade the value of coins was determined by their weight and consequently the heavy coins were in demand and the poor specimens were left in the country.

"Goldsmiths were consulted more and more to determine the value of coins and were used as a market for worn coins. Later they issued paper certificates for the metal in their possession. They discovered that they could safely issue more certificates than they had metal in reserve. Then banks took the place of the goldsmiths and they used the same principle. Today Canadian banks have only a slight reserve of gold for their bank notes."

A suggestion was brought forward that labor certificates be employed instead of money. That is, that goods be purchased according to the amount of labor expended in their manufacture. The meeting was of the opinion that this system would never work and that the monetary system was infinitely more satisfactory.

It will cause a shock to the average boy mind to know that Tom Mix was injured by falling off a horse.—Brantford Expositor.

Queen's Quill Creates Stir In Realms Of Literature

In an interview with a Journal reporter today the Editor of the Queen's Quill remarked that he had already received enquiries from places as far apart as Regina and Toronto concerning the forthcoming issue of the Quill. "There is no doubt," he said, "that the last number made a very favourable impression both in the University and in the outside world. And, I think," he added, "that when the next number of the Quill is published shortly that it will meet with an even better reception."

Questioned as to the make-up of the new issue, Mr. Gilmour declined to reveal any detailed information as yet, but declared that a number of valuable contributions, both in prose and verse, had been received. "As before," he remarked, "the Quill will appeal to an extensive circle of readers, and cover a wide field of interest."

J. K. Fraser Addresses Commerce Club Thursday

Continued from page 1

merce Department could well undertake this service for Canada. The Commerce Club has here unlimited field for research.

Loans against Real Estate are prohibited by the Bank Act and this is consistent with the theory that the banks' function is to finance production and distribution of marketable goods.

Thursday's luncheon was marked by the election of Prof. W. A. Mackintosh to the post of Honorary President of the Commerce Club filling the vacancy occasioned by Professor Clark's departure.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

NEW - LOW - PRICES ....
TUXEDO RENTALS
$2.50
A NEW LOW PRICE FOR COMPLETE THREE PIECE TUXEDO
— BOOK YOUR SUIT NOW FOR THE MEDICAL FORMAL —
ALL NEW SUITS — NEW 1932 STYLE —
ACCESSORIES
DRESS SHIRTS — COLLARS — BOW TIES — CUFF LINKS — COLLAR BUTTONS — ETC.
- FREE RENTAL -
RENT A TUXEDO THREE TIMES AT NEW LOW PRICE — AND GET A FREE RENTAL — —
Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Princess St.

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream . . . $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

E. C. Kyte Lectures On Florentine Artist

Leonardo da Vinci was the subject of a lecture by Mr. E. C. Kyte before the members of the Kingston Art Association in the Douglas Library on Tuesday afternoon. The lecturer counted da Vinci one of the six outstanding men in history and supported his claim by an account of the great Florentine's life and of his manifold original achievements in the realms of science, letters, and art. The lecture was illustrated by a number of splendid reproductions of the artist's works from the Art Collection in the Douglas Library. The members were enthusiastic over this inauguration of their series of winter lectures and also welcomed the report that the Working Group, meeting in the Douglas Library on Monday evenings, was being well attended and gave promise to a most successful season.

Campus and Gym

The first basketball game of the season resulted in defeat for Queen's girls at the hands of K. C.I. The final score was 18-15.

Mary Pike and Marion Walker were the star players for the winning team Queen's used many players during the game, for the team has not yet been chosen. Doreen Kenny and Norah McGinnis upheld the honor of last year's team, while Ruth Fishleigh and Evelyn Rickard proved promising new material.

There is plenty of material this year, and team-work is the only factor lacking. Miss Murphy is confident that with more practice, the girls will develop a strong team.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Nov. 18:
1.15p.m.—Arts '33 Meeting Room 101
4.00p.m.—Glee Club 332 University Ave.
4.15p.m.—General Meeting Engineering Society. Illustrated Talk by Professor Wilgar. Large lecture room in Physics Building.
8.00p.m.—"The Gaol Gate" and "Gammer Gurton's Needle." Presented by Queen's Dramatic Guild. Convocation Hall.

Saturday, Nov 19:
4-6p.m.—S.C.M. Tea and Sale Grant Hall
8.00p.m.—"Gaol Gate" and "Gammer Gurton's Needle," by Queen's Dramatic Guild. Convocation Hall.

Sunday, Nov. 20:
2.15p.m.—A.P.S.A. at St. Andrew's Church Speaker—Prof. Johnson.

Tuesday, Nov. 22:
2.30p.m.—Interfaculty Rugby Playoff Arts vs. Science Richardson Stadium
4.15p.m.—Arts Society Meeting Room 201.
7.00p.m.—International Relations Club Meeting

Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 22 and 23:
"The Cotter's Saturday Night"
"Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush"
"Tam O' Shanter"
Matinees 4.00 p.m.
Evenings 8.30 p.m.
K.C.V.I. Auditorium

French Club Meeting Attended By Many

Le Cercle Francais had a pleasing turn-out at its first meeting of the present term, held in Room 201 in the Arts Building on Wednesday afternoon.

The guest speakers were Professors Tirol and Conacher who charmed the entire company with their performance. Two of La Fontaine's fables and Daudet's "Le Cure de Cucugnan" were read by Professor Tirol and illustrated on the blackboard by Professor Conacher to the delight of the audience. The speakers were thanked for their entertainment by J. J. Fortin.

A discussion of various projects and election for the year followed. The officers are: President, J. J. Fortin; Secretary, Gertrude Warrell.

It was announced that the next meeting will be held in Convocation Hall on Wednesday, December 7th The program will consist of the reading of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," which should be most interesting to all French students.

New Graduate Class Appears On Campus

A new organization has sprung into existence in the form of a Gradnates' Club. To be a member of this club one need only possess a degree and be actively engaged in university work. The purpose of this club, besides keeping certain members of the "degree-ed" gentry off the streets at night, is to foster and stimulate an association of ideas of all those doing post-graduate work.

The first regular meeting was held on Wednesday evening in the Arts' Club Room. After the regular business was dispensed with, Dr. G. B. Frost of the Chemistry Dept. led the group in an informal discussion and used as his topic "the value of such a club to its members and even to the university." Dr. Frost deplored the fact that when men or women undertook research work it usually meant that individuals isolated themselves with their problems and were soon wrapped up in their own thoughts. That in itself is very good training, but why shouldn't there be an association of ideas with the other fellow's work? Why shouldn't the physicist know something of the problem that is confronting the chemist, and the geologist of what is puzzling the Greek student? "Don't you often come across little problems to which there seems no ready answer?" continued the speaker, "then let this club be the medium for thrashing out such problems before you leave the university. You have access to an exceptionally fine library, you are amongst men of every branch of learning and it is up to you to make use of such assets before you find yourself out in the world deprived of such excellent contacts." The enthusiasm of the speaker was soon caught by the gathering and an animated discussion followed his remarks.

The officers elected at the organization meeting are as follows: Hon. President, Dr. E. L. Bruce; President, Sam McNeight; Vice-President, Homer Zurbrigg; Secretary, Les Williams; Treasurer, Bill Bennett.

The next meeting will be held on the 30th of the month, the place to be announced later. The speaker will be Dr. E. L. Bruce. Every graduate should turn out and get in on the arguments: they're good.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

The Tea and Sale which is advertised for Saturday is given under the auspices of the S.C.M.. This annual event makes available a great variety of Queen's souvenirs, Cushion-Covers, Crests, Christmas Cards, Calendars (not the brand the registrar's office, or your insurance company send out), are stock articles. Of special interest are white bobby-socks with tricolor tops. These are reserved for Levana. If any of the numerous males need a new pair of house-slippers, there are knitted products in the Queen's colours for sale. If you don't like the home-made candy that comes from the factory, you can try a different article of confection. Snaps of the Profs; pictures of the university buildings. Tea and cake is an option. Anyway we venture the bet that Grant Hall will be worth looking at Saturday afternoon from 3-6.

Prof. Curtis. Addresses Varsity Commerce Club

Many professors of Queen's university have visited other universities to speak to undergraduate clubs and societies, and the latest faculty ambassador was Professor C. A. Curtis of the Economics Department, who recently addressed the Varsity Commerce Club on the question of the Reform of the Canadian Banking System.

Dr. Gregory Vlastos is leading a Varsity S.C.M. week-end conference on "Religion and the Modern Mood", at Knox College, Toronto, on Nov. 19-20. This promises to be very popular, and will include two addresses and an open forum.

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
by
Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar.
Commanding Queen's University Contingent, C.O.T.C.

Training Seacon 1932-1933.
16th Nov., 19932.

No. 19..
Parades.

(I) All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room, 2nd Nov., 1932, at 5.00 p.m., for Infantry Training.

(II.) All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room, 22 Nov., 1932, at at 1.30 p.m. Side arms with great coats.

No. 20.
Lectures.

(I.) On Wed., 23rd Nov., at 5.00 p.m., "A" Certificate Infantry and Engineers will report to Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar, in Carruthers Hall, for Map Reading.

(II.) On Thurs., 24th Nov., at 5.00 p.m., "A" Certificate Infantry and Engineers will report to Major H. Campbell, R.C.O.C., for a lecture on Tactics.

(IV.) On Friday, 25th Nov. at 5.00 p.m., "A" and "B" Certificate Medical will report to Major J. V. Williams, at the Old Medical Building.

No. 21.
Equipment.

(I.) All officers and cadets who have ordered boots or other equipment draw same from the stores, on Tuesday, 22nd Nov., between the hours of 5.00 p.m. and 6.00 p.m.

No. 22.
Orders.

(I.) The above schedule for parades and lectures will be followed during the Fall Term and all officers and cadets are requested to make note of them.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.,
Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

WINNERS!
The snappy new Queen's White Pullovers, as worn by the cheer-leaders at the Western game, were designed by Shaw's—of course!
See the new ideas FIRST at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 —— "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continnously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes
Constitutions
Printing of Every Description
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 22nd, 1932 No. 16

Queen's Library

Queen's Pool Scene Of Colorful Aquatic Exhibition This Evening

Expert Swimmers To Give Demonstrations

Aquatic fans, not only at Queen's but from all over the city are expected to fill the pool seats in the Queen's Gymnasium to-night when teams of the Y. M. C. A., R. M. C., Kingston Swimming Club and Queen's, will put on a great water show.

Possessing one of the finest and largest pools in all Canada, Queen's is ideally suited to the holding of such an event which will combine thrills, fun, and skill, to keep the spectators interested throughout.

Those who are devotees of the art of swimming and diving will have an opportunity to see some clever performers in action, while those not so enthusiastic in water sports will have plenty to witness, for there will be swimming races, diving exhibitions, water polo, candle race, and many other features to make the evening a big one aquatically speaking.

Following is an outline of the programme and from this an idea of what a treat is in store for the spectators, can be gleaned.

50 yard race, free style.
200 yard race, breast stroke.
100 yard race, free style.
50 yard race, back stroke.
200 yard relay race, 4 men to each team.

The diving will consist of the following: Swan, back, front, jack knife. These are compulsory, and in addition each competitor may perform two optionals.

A 440 yard free style swimming race will then follow and this should work up plenty of excitement.

Next on the list is a diving exhibition by Queen's. The team will consist of Jean Nelson, Elizabeth Cameron, Tony Forsberg, Ken Southern and Don McKerricker.

One of the most interesting and amusing events of the evening will be the water polo battle which will bring together teams from Queen's and Kingston All Stars. Queen's will line up as follows. Perry (Captain), Anglin, Shapera, Pesner, Myers, Waugh and Butler. Subs: Kornbluth and Whiteford.

A last minute report has it that Levana will take part in this meet. Jean Nelson and Elizabeth Cameron will give a diving exhibition. This should be one of the high-lights of the bill, as these co-eds are excellent performers.

All in all it looks like a gala night for the water babies and the gym should be packed with spectators. Queen's students are urged to turn out and add to the enthusiasm.

This event is the first one of this nature to be held in Kingston this year. Students made vigorous appeals to the Athletic Board for support of this sport and now they have the chance to show their appreciation by turning "en masse." A small admission charge prevails.

Arts Executive Names At Home Committee

The Arts Society Executive has announced the committee which will be in charge of the Arts formal, to be held on Friday, January 27th. The members are Bob Johnston, Walt Horn, Stu Major, Chuck O'Neil, Ken Heath, Art Hall, Max Rapoport with Mel Halpenny as convener. Preparations are already under way and details will be announced within the next few days.

No information is available at the present regarding the decoration scheme for the "At-Home."

Aeroplane Quickens Bush Transportation

Engineering Society Hears Prof. Wilgar

"What a change has taken place in the methods of bush travel in the last twenty years: then it was a matter of months, through virgin bush by canoe and dog-team; now it's only a matter of hours by plane." Professor W. P. Wilgar said to the Engineering Society at its last meeting. With the aid of photos taken by himself soon after graduation he set about to prove his statement.

Soon after graduating from Queen's Professor Wilgar joined a surveying party headed for Northern Quebec. The country was, of course, unmapped at that time and was entirely undeveloped. They left Ottawa in pointers, travelling up the Kippewa River and over into Lake Victoria. The pointers had to be dragged over the portages by twenty to thirty men, mostly Indians, and progress was naturally slow. The country eventually became so rough that they were forced to take to canoes. In these, with the aid of the skillful Ojibways, they were able to shoot some of the rapids and even able to pole their way up others. At the headwaters of the Ottawa they struck an Indian Settlement. Tents were practically unknown to the Indians at that time, and they all dwelt in birch-bark teepees. The women were the workers of the tribe and daily enjoyed their pipes, cigarettes, or even cigars when they were able to lay hands on such a luxury. Near here they established their permanent base, and for four winters and five summers lived under canvas. The temperature often dropped as low as sixty-five degrees below zero, and work became impossible, since but to step outside into the cold meant severe frostbite. Their one luxury was an Indian washerwoman, who with her whole family, called for and delivered their washing, winter and summer. The only buildings of any sort were those of the Hudson Bay Company, which one finds dotted all over Northern Canada, and the Factor did a lively business with the Indians trading the necessities of life for furs.

Continued on page 3

Science Overcomes Arts Gridders 7-5

Engineers Took Lead In Opening Minutes

Science met Arts yesterday at the Stadium to decide who would oppose Meds for the Intertaculty title. It proved to be a regular old battle and anybody's game until the final whistle had blown. Science, capitalising to the fullest extent on the breaks went to town by a score of 7-5. The great work of Zvonkin and Quinn for Arts and Weir and the McMahon brothers stood out over the superb work of both team's.

1st Quarter

Arts kicked off to Science. The kick gave Science at first down as the Science team concentrated on big Abe and succeeded in smothering him. A bad pass by Arts gave Science the ball on Arts 25 yard line. Science were now making holes and moving down the field. Weir on a nice buck went over for a touch. Scott takes the kick off and goes for 20 yards. A blocked kick again gave Science possession of the ball on Arts 25 yard line. McMahon, kicking for Science, sent a long one to Champaign who was grassed for a point. First quarter score 6-0.

Continued on page 4

Arts Society To Hear Dr. J. Miller To-day

The Arts Society will hold a meeting this afternoon at 4.15 in Room 201 of the New Arts Building. This will be preceded by a meeting of the executive at 3.15 p.m.

In accordance with the new policy of securing guest speakers from other faculties the Committee have asked Dr. James Miller, Professor of Pathology, to speak at this afternoon's meeting. He will be introduced by Charlie Pinch, President of the Aesculapian Society.

The executive expect a large attendance at this meeting. Discussion on the future policy of the Society will be resumed.

Ban Righ Musicales Start Next Sunday

Girl's Glee Club To Take Prominent Part

The first of the Ban Righ Musicales will be held in the Common Room on Sunday evening, Nov. 27th at a quarter to nine. The music will be contributed by Mrs. Tracy's Ensemble, Mr. J. A. Percival, baritone, and the University Girls' Glee Club. The program is as follows.

The University Girls' Glee Club will sing, three-part canons; (a) Non Nobis, Byrd; (b) Snow in Spring, Reinecke.

Songs by Henry Purcell; (a) Come If You Dare (words by Dryden); (b) Come Unto These Yellow Sands (words from Shakespeare's "Tempest."

Skye Boat Song, a Jacabean air. Mr. J. A. Percival will sing Adelaide-Beethoven; Der Erlkönig-Schubert.

Two Shakespeare Songs, Music by Schubert. (a) Who is Sylvia; (b) Hark, Hark, the Lark.

The Ensemble will present the Ox Minuet by Haydn. Two movements from the Ballet Suite—Rameau (arranged by Motte); Air for the G. string, Bach; Allegro and Andantino, a concerto for flute and harp.

T. Doherty Awarded Royal Todd Trophy

Toni Doherty, aggressive inside wing of the Queen's Junior rugby squad, will receive the Royal Todd memorial trophy awarded yearly to the most valuable player on the junior team. The Athletic Board has not given official sanction to the award, but the Journal learns that this will be forthcoming without delay.

Doherty, a freshman, learned his football at Sarnia Collegiate and according to Coach "Bill" Shaw, he was the outstanding man among the Juniors. He showed surprising aggressiveness throughout the season and it was not long before he became the backbone of the aggregation.

Shocking Conditions Discovered Near City As Amateur Psychologists Go On Expedition

A group of scientists, after facing almost unbelievable dangers, have returned from an expedition with evidence of flagrant examples of injustice and persecution which exceed any previously reported cases of the depravity of man. They find that men and women of noble family, unblemished character, and unsurpassed ability are being held in captivity by fiends in human form, while others usurp their lawful positions, or enjoy the fruits of their industry and intelligence.

These scientists made Kingston, one of the few remaining outposts of civilization, the base of operations, and prepared there for their journey into the hinterland. The only vehicle available was one old car, vintage of 1900 or thereabouts, and this was not the least of the dangers besetting their expedition. With this car carying their supplies, equipment, and ten of the party, they set out across the uncharted wastes which led to the goal of their expedition.

Only by fightiug their way through a band of the inhabitants of the district could they reach the headquarters of the organization they were tracking down. Though four stragglers were almost cut off and captured, these intrepid men forced their way to the very centre of the place, made their observations, and returned without mishap.

An incident which shows their courage in a most inspiring way has come to light, though all the members are silent about their own parts in the campaign. When their evidence was complete and they were

Continued on page 7

Medical Faculty's Guests To Pass Joyous Hours In Feudal Courtyard

Dr. Fyfe to Address Alumni in Winnipeg

Principal Fyfe will leave for Winnipeg on Thursday, stopping at Port Arthur to address the Queen's Alumni Association there.

The Principal expects to be in Winnipeg for St. Andrew's Day, November 30, and will address the St. Andrew's Society on that day. He will also speak to the local Queen's Alumni Association.

Dr. Fyfe will return via Sudbury, meeting the Queen's graduates resident there, and expects to be back in Kingston by December 3rd.

Noxious Weeds Do Damage To Crops

Natural History Club Hears Secretary Dore

Mr. W. Dore was the speaker at the Natural History Club on Thursday. Mr. Dore is the secretary of the club and the subject on which he spoke, "Spread of Weeds in Canada," is of much interest to biologists at the present time.

"Our worst weeds are those which are of foreign origin and have made their entrance into Canada through our seaports and points of entry along our borders," Mr. Dore said. Thus the Sow Thistle, Mustards, Canada Thistle, Stinkweed and the many others have been introduced and becoming distributed along arteries of trade and travel take no time to become established and cause serious infestations in all parts of the country. Through carelessness man becomes the chief agent in their dispersal when he sows his land with impure seed and carries from place to place his products laden with weed seeds.

Weeds are taken so much as a matter of fact that few realize that losses amounting to forty millions of dollars are sustained annually due to the reduced yield caused by the robbing of the soil of its moisture and nutrients and by shading and crowding out of the crop plants. By increasing the labour necessary for cultivation and harvesting and by increasing shipping charges for about two hundred thousand tons of weed seeds, the loss suffered by our western farmers due to the presence of weeds mounts higher than that due to insects and plant diseases combined.

Weed surveys conducted by the Dept. of Agriculture and the National Research Council keep us much informed as to the extent of distribution and centres of infestation besides detecting the presence of new arrivals. Such information is necessary in the formulation of control and eradication methods.

Every year new weeds are turning up in our country, growing in piles of ballast and refuse about shipyards and harbours.

Unique Favors Will Commemorate Event

With the approach of the Medical At-Home, scheduled for Friday evening, an air of expectancy is spreading over the university. With its reputation for staging wonderful Formals, it is not at all strange that the students should await this year's presentation for the Medical Faculty with great interest.

In order to uphold, and, if possible, to enhance this reputation, the committee have gone very far afield in order to ensure that every last feature, is carefully provided for and as the zero hour draws nigh, the committee can rest from their labours, satisfied that guests will marvel at the beauty and completeness of every preparation for their enjoyment.

The rumour has spread abroad that the decorations will surpass anything ever attempted in Kingston, and it is safe to say that dancers will be able to forget completely that they are gliding in a gymnasium, so perfect is the atmosphere and setting of an old English stronghold of Medieval times. Under the artistic genius of Don Neville a perfect replica of the courtyard of such a castle has sprung into being, providing beauty and majesty, beyond the dreams of the committee in charge.

The music of Wright Bros. Orchestra, has been heard before, at last year's Medical At-Home, and it was due to a wave of popular demand that the committee secured this famous dance band again. Those who enjoyed its melodies last year, believe that it rivals the finest orchestras heard over the air. Surely it is one of the most perfect musical ensembles ever heard in Kingston. If anything was needed to cast a spell over the guests, it is Wright Bros. Band.

From the point of view of the ladies. Favors are treasures that recall in after days, the delights and happiness of an At-Home. In the years that have gone by, many favors have been conceived, by various committees, and have been both useful and unique. It so happens, that occasionally a happy inspiration solves the problem, that weeks of careful thought could not do. This can be said of the Medical Favors of this year. Out of a blue sky the inspiration came, and favors so entirely different, so up-to-date, and yet so lasting will be distributed to the fortunate ladies. Queen's, the Medical Faculty, and the Class of '33 will be inseparately linked, in a favor that defies description.

There are many who perhaps do not care to spend an entire evening dancing. For those, the Committee has provided a beautifully furnished Bridge room, an entrancing nook, from which they can enjoy the melodies floating up from below and observe the dancers. Everything has been thoughtfully prepared for those members of the Medical Faculty and others who do not wish to remain away from a Formal, and yet do not care to dance continually.

Continued on page 4

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... I.EVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 22nd, 1932

Why Indeed?

It really is a question worth considering, because it concerns us intimately and individually: it deserves more than a mere half-column of this publication, but then it never gets its due share of attention. Let us now consider it honestly:—Why do we come to the University?

We should be horrified to discover that it is with the sole object of obtaining authority to write after our names two letters which will qualify us for a higher place in social and economic society—in other words to make money. Yet that would seem to be the aim of the people who tell you that they are not taking Philosophy or Classics or what not "because they will be no use to them afterwards," meaning that the study of these subjects will add nothing to their salaries. This surely is a narrow-minded, indeed altogether wrong-headed view. After you have been a successful insurance agent, or whatever it is, for 40 years, you will have to retire, and then what interests will you have in life? Nothing but the newspaper and a flow of reminiscence to which nobody listens. If you had allowed yourself to be enthusiastic over those "useless courses" at college, you might have preserved your interest in them, and be able to turn to them when you are in danger of becoming an old bore. This is not an idealistic view of the value of university training: and perhaps it is poor-spirited to look ahead to a sort of intellectual old age pension; but the idea suggests another point of view. Suppose that the university is prepared to give us interests which we should miss if we went straight into an office: suppose that it tries to cultivate our latent aesthetic tendencies — But how can it succeed while we are staring fixedly ahead to the good job that a B.A. is going to bring us? Does no-one come to the university with a desire for knowledge, for its own sake? Surely there must be someone who is enthusiastic to get all that the course can give him because he wants to know something. There must be exceptions to the type of student who regards all courses as a tiresome but inevitable preliminary to the glorious label of B.A. or B.Sc.

Cherchez La Femme

Do men enjoy the theatre or the movies more when they are alone or when in the presence of delightful company? If we are to judge by the reports emanating from Churchill, Manitoba, there can scarcely be any question. The predicament of the only theatre in that town serves to show what happens when there are womanless audiences.

For the past year more than 500 men have been encamped at Churchill on construction work, but there are only 15 women —the wives of the officials. The little theatre made desperate attempts to drum up its business and to obtain the patronage of the men. Reckless experiments were tried. Silent pictures were put on. Then amateur night. Then the talkies. Still business was passing by the door. Then a "coup de maitre" was attempted. A sign was hung out: "Tents 50 cents. Ladies Free."

Now, after a year, the theatre has closed. Without the company of women, the men simply refused to attend.

Evidently the officials of the City Hockey League had a similar thought in mind, for certainly it was good showmanship on their part to adopt the policy of giving the women "carte blanche" to all the games. The hockey at these fixtures is very ordinary but large crowds have been turning out.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

A Five-Day Week

The demand for more play and less work is being commended everywhere.

We call this the machine age; machines are doing a large part of what we formerly called hard work. The task of making a living is being made easier; but machines have taken the jobs of literally millions of people, and aided by the depression, unemployment has become a serious menace.

But there is one remedy the effectiveness of which cannot be questioned: lessen the hours of work in every occupation until everybody has a job. Incomes may have to be decreased proportionately; but the amount of money required to live in comfort depends largely upon what one is in the habit of spending, and the comforts of life do not altogether depend upon the amount expended.

The shorter day will leave more hours for leisure, and when this time is used for self-improvement or in body-building recreation it means added pleasure and happiness.

Hard, grinding toil has been the fate of many of our people in bygone generations, in some instances from daylight to dark; but the working hours have gradually grown shorter. At one time they were twelve hours a day. Then they were reduced to ten. Now they are usually eight, although some factories are now working on a six-hour day.

The five-day week is gradually becoming more popular. In a survey recently made of more than 1,500 manufacturing establishments, it was found that 114 had adopted the five-day week. The publishers of this magazine adopted the five-day week during the summer season for several years. The plan was recently made permanent throughout the year, and there is no intention on our part to return to the six-day week. Apparently in no instance has there been a return to the former six-day week after giving the five-day week a thorough test.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" is a quotation that has been referred to frequently, and it could be easily reversed: "All play and no work makes Jack a foolish boy."

It is important to have a serious purpose in life. To be compelled to make a living is advantageous: it builds character, self-dependence, efficiency: it makes life really worth while. The glorification of accomplishment is always desirable.

When our hours of work are not burdensome there is more opportunity for self-improvement. Under such circumstances every individual can look forward hopefully to something better; he has the leisure to fit himself for a business or profession that may have a special appeal.

The five-day week gives one a week-end for recreation and enjoyment that can be made profitable mentally and physically. After a two-day rest one is able to resume his daily duties with more zest and energy; and in practically every organization where this plan has been tested, it is maintained that more work and better work has been accomplished in the five-day week.

Most of us are entirely too serious. And if leisure time can be turned into a joy-fest composed largely of wholesome, recreational health-building, life will appear more complete; we will get more enjoyment out of our work as well as our pleasure.

—Liberty.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

1. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

2. Scholarships to the total value of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard.

The conditions of award will be announced later.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

Worth Investigating

• • • Quality always commands attention. You spot it in Turret cigarettes as soon as you light up . . . you discover a smoothness, freshness and mellowness you have never had before in cigarettes. That's why you should investigate Turrets NOW!

12 FOR 12c
20 FOR 20c
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 — W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing . Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service.
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle
Orchestra in connection

Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
208 Princess St. Phone 505
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery
WHILE-U-WAIT SERVICE
HATS CLEANED AND REBLOCKED

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches, Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

Bander Snatches

"Come on," said the Red Queen, "The Dramatic Guild is putting on two plays in Convocation Hall tonight."

"But do I have to go?" Alice asked plaintively.

"Certainly," the Red Queen answered, "Aren't you interested in Art?

"I suppose I should be, but you see—I've met so many people called . . . "

"Foolish as ever," the Red Queen interrupted. "You can't get away with wisecracks as feeble as that around here. How you ever got into college is beyond me. Come on!" So Alice went.

* * *

After the performance was over and Alice was back in Ban Righ she remarked sadly to the Red Queen:

"I'm afraid I'm very stupid and all that—"

"Of course," said the Red Queen, "All Freshettes are till they get disillusioned and sophisticated."

"But"—Alice began.

"Don't interrupt me!" the Red Queen shouted. You really behaved tonight as though you had never seen a play put on. I was very much ashamed of you. Why, you laughed when the curtains fell down and after the play was all over and everyone was congratulating everyone else—you hung back and never said a word. You'll never learn to appreciate the finer things of life!"

"But," Alice cried, "I didn't like the plays."

"Neither did anyone else," said the Red Queen.

"Then why did they choose them?"

"Because they're Art and because the Dramatic Guild are Artists. Art, you know, is something that is perfectly useless, but very precious."

"But," said Alice, "I'd rather see something nice and pleasant like Uncle Tom's Cabin or Charley's Aunt, or a movie with Marie Dressler in it or—"

"There you go again," said the Red Queen. "If they were to choose pleasant plays and if people came because they liked the plays—see how common they might become. If people ever started coming to be amused, we might get crowds and door receipts and have money to buy scenery that would work. No, no, that would be commercializing the Theatre. That would be unthinkable. Catering to the Box Office—! ! !"

"But see here," Alice remarked. "Didn't Shakespeare cater to the Box Office?"

"Shakespeare, my dear, was in many respects a wonderful man and you'll learn all about him in English IS. But—he was a common playwright. He catered to the Box Office all right. Just like our friend Masters who wrote the play about the Needle. Now take her ladyship that wrote the Gaol Gate. She's quality stuff. She writes for Art's sake. She couldn't bear to have her play, entertaining or amusing or instructive or anything. She writes to express herself."

"Oh, I understand now," said Alice. "Once I saw a teamster and his horse balked and he expressed himself and a policeman came and took him to jail."

"And so he should," said the Red Queen.

"But I don't see," cried Alice, "If they took the teamster to jail—"

"Of course you don't," the Red Queen interposed, "Why should you? And as for the plays you mentioned a few minutes ago. I once saw Uncle Tom's Cabin, but that was before I came to University."

"Didn't you like it?"

"I liked the blood hounds," said the Red Queen, "And Topsy and Little Eva; and when she went to heaven, I cried.

The Red Queen was getting very sad and confidential.

"And I went to the movies once," she continued, "and I saw Charlie Chaplain with a street cleaner's wagon buying flowers from a blind girl and I liked it too—but you know that's not Art. It's commercial entertainment. When you are really educated you will know that only Art matters—and Art is self expression."

"But couldn't they express themselves nicely?" said Alice. "All those kids in the play were nice kids. Suppose they were acting the parts of little Eva and Topsy."

The Red Queen was softening. "It would be fun," she said. "But if we could only persuade the faculty Players to do it."

"That would be splendid," said Alice. "Who would we have in the cast? Let's see—there's Tom and Eliza—and who should we get for the blood-hounds?"

"It's time to go to bed," said the Red Queen. So Alice went to bed; but as she slept she saw in her dreams a procession. Eliza hoping from ice-cake to ice-cake with one of the faculty in her arms—followed by the blood-hounds.

(To be continued)

TREACLE AND INK.

Shades of Brigham Young

Among the freshman commandments published in the Utah Chronicle is: "Thou shalt not keep thyself in the presence of one woman; for it is not good."

Apparently the Mormon tradition still flourishes on the shores of the Great Salt Lake.

—Tulane Hullabaloo.

Being the tenth Chronicle of Kweanz.

And it happend that among the divers scum who trickled into the city of Kin were divers Frosh and these took unto themselves at times women from Ban Righ. Verily they did so not knowing that their hair was not to be long on their heads.

Now there were certain co-eds of Levan who took pleasure in bringing about the fall down of these innocent men. And one of these did tell the Sofs of Scienz that certain Frosh were consorting with their rivals. Now the Sofs decided to take action, verily to take up arms and cut short these activities and they swore a great swore to make the Frosh prominent at Tea Parties no more.

And the Sofs of Scienz took counsel and many divers opinions were reached. One Sof, wiser than the rest took up the telephone and spake thus unto the gad-about-pansies.

"Hello dearest. This is your little entie pop. No! No! Could you come down to our residenz and amuse us, for lo! we are weary?"

And the Frosh blushing from ear did tremble with delight at their conquest and replied. "Verily. Yea! I'll be right over!"

Then did divers Frosh divest themselves of their garments and wash themselves, and try to shave off the fungus growths from their smooth chins. And they powdered their shiny proboscises and pinned back their flopping ears, being of a mind to impress the females of Levan. Then did they don coloured raiment, pink socks, red shirts, blue suits and orange ties and run palpitating to where those of Levan did joke and cavort.

But the wily Sofs laid in wait by the gutter of the Street of Onions and did hide behind trees in Austin, the Doc's yard and wait. And the Frosh rushing down to entertain Levan were met by these big hairy men dressed in their Sunday best. And the Sophs did stop the Frosh and say unto them. "Avast Lubber. Where goest Thou?"

It happened that some Frosh were dismayed and stammered and lo! their locks were shorn. But others were more bold and declared, "I go to see a man about a dog." And lo! the Sofs laughed unto the stars at such and treated the dog fanciers in a barberous manner.

Then was there weeping and wailing and clicking of clippers and the Frosh told how they had done battle to four score and three Sofs but had been conked by treachery. But lo! their heads were cold and the women of Levan, as women do, marvelled at the exceeding boldness of the Frosh.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Queen's University.

The Editor,

The Journal.

Dear Sir:

I wish to express my appreciation to the Levana Society Executive for the splendid attempt they have made to rejuvenate the Levana Society. In spite of the good intentions of previous executives, they were always handicapped by poor attendance and by lack of co-operation. This, the present Executive has avoided by a change in the hour of the meeting, and the transfer of program activities from the various years to the executive itself. This has profited both the Executive who have been gratified by the increased attendance, and the Society members who have enjoyed the excellent programs of the two meetings of this year.

LEVANA '34.

Power of Pork

A University of Manitoba student was stopped by a policeman while walking the streets of Paris late one night last summer. He was released immediatigly when he offered the policeman a ham sandiwch.—Oklahoma Daily.

Chaminade, Driver!

Chaminade College, traditionally a boarding school, in the midst of the depression, has hit upon a new plan to keep its halls filled. Situated in a suburb of St. Louis, the college has arranged with a taxicab company to call for students each morning and return them to their homes each evening.

—St. Bona Venture.

World News Briefly

Premier Herriot and a large party escaped serious injury Sunday when a section of the R.R. track fifteen miles from Nantes was dynamited. The party was on its way to Nantes where a celebration of the 400th anniversary of the union of France and Brittany was to take place. Publication of a false train schelule in a Nantes newspaper is believed to have foiled the conspirators.

Amy Johnson, after a flight of 6,700 miles from England, landed in Cape Town, South Africa, Friday. It took her 102 hours and 56 minutes to cover this distance, thus breaking the record held by her husband, Jim Mollison.

Senator Dandurand advocated a drastic step in the Senate at Ottawa last week when he came out strongly in favour of amalgamating the C. P. and C. N. railways. The Royal Commission had not advised such a step because of the fear that public sentiment would be opposed to it, he said. High officials in both companies felt that only under a plan of joint management could the necessary economies be effected.

Despite European impatience with the tardiness of the United States in settling the war debts problem, the American leaders, Roosevelt and Hoover are taking their time.

Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia, Mr. Roosevelt's economic adviser, conferred with the president—elect Saturday, preparatory to a general discussion of the question with President Hoover.

Adolf Hitler has been offered the position of Chancellor by President Hindenburg of Germany on two conditions:

(1) He must express approval of the general policies of the Von Papen cabinet.

(2) And he must agree to leave the composition of the cabinet in the president's hands.

The "Manchurian issue" still remains an enigma.

Monday, the Lytton report was tabled for discussion before the Council of the League of Nations at Geneva. It charges Japan with unwarranted military action in her seizure of Mukden, Sept. 18, 1931. M. Matsuoka, Japanese representative, emphatically denied that his country was guilty of a reprehensible act. China's views on the report have not yet been published.

Commenting on the elimination of the single point kick in Canadian rugby, a question attracting much attention from sports writers, the "Varsity" has the following to say in part:

We realize that in a few years, perhaps sooner, the single point kick will be abolished. One thing we object to is the statement that intercollegiate kicking has been weak this year. Carter, of Queen's, after a bad start was solely responsible for the two ties and win in three games that the Tricolor got and when in form he can hold his own with any man in the game; Craig was a sensation for McGill with his kicking while our own Jack Sinclair we consider the greatest kicking half-back in Canadian rugby. Turville, Baysinger, Stirling, Box and the rest all included.

The Communist party in Russia is always consistent, at least, in its denial of propagandic interference in other countries. The party organ Pravda has now disclaimed all responsibility for the recent unemployment riots in London.

Prof. W. Wilgar Explains Changes In Bush Travel

Continued from page 1

Throughout the winter the only mode of travel was the dog team. A team as a rule consisted of four or five dogs, each dog being able to pull about one-hundred pounds. The dogs were fed on fish when such was obtainable, and if not, on cornmeal and tallow. The teams and their driver often travelled sixty miles a day, forty of which they would cover on the run. So adept were the drivers at their job that they were able to light and smoke their pipes while on the move, and they never seemed to run short of breath. This proved the most comfortable way of travelling that Professor Wilgar ever struck. One is bundled up in a sled behind the dogs, and for as many as ten hours at a stretch was able to sleep, with hardly any movement of the sled and only the soft sound of the snow crunching under the feet of the runner and the dogs.

After five years of this kind of life the country began to open up, as the railway gang came in behind the surveying crew. Houses started to spring up, men brought their wives in, and bridge and tea supplanted poker and scotch; in fact the men even started to dress up on Sundays.

Professor Wilgar expressed a hope that all the members of the Society would enjoy success in the future, and remember the pioneers when they climbed in their plane headed for a couple of months in the bush.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted, as were also the audited accounts of the Technical Supply store, and the Employment Bureau. There was some discussion as to the profit of the Tech. Supply in the past year, but this was smoothed over when Mr. Wilson, and Sid Parkes, the Chairman, explained that it would all be used to good advantage. Such items as $800 to write off the old building, and $1500 to fix up and move into the new home have a habit of eating into any surplus. The accounts mentioned above are in the hands of Sid Parkes and can be inspected by any member of the Society who cares to do so.

AWAY TO A GREAT START

TWEDDELL'S

WINTER SALE

has been going strong for a week

Now with colder weather here it is a greater attraction than ever

STUDENTS, READ THIS!

If you were away last Friday you may have missed our Full Page Ad. With All Details And Prices of our Winter Sale—and that is something you Should Not Miss. College Men like the Snap To Clothes they buy here—especially because it is Backed Up By Real Quality of materials and workmanship. Come In Tomorrow and see for yourself what Remarkably Fine Overcoats and Suits we are selling at Drastically Reduced Prices.

OVERCOATS SUITS TUXEDOS

FURNISHINGS

All At Great Savings

SEE OUR WINDOWS

TWEDDELL'S

137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!

30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY

C. H. BOYES

TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer

SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS

180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110

Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

BEFORE THE DANCE
SPECIAL RATES
AND SERVICE
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

Capitol Taxi
24-Hour Service
25c
Anywhere in the city. Saturday night dances included
Phone 448

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATIS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

ALCOHOL

All of us—well, most of us—know a lot about the immediate effects of alcohol on the body and the mind. C. F. Sceleth, in a recent Hygeia, goes behind the effect and the cause, seeking the motive in man which leads him to the drowning of his sorrows. People who understand the use of alcohol believe their motives to be the best possible and let it go at that; the Scotch, going as usual a little farther than the rest, believe that no motive whatever is necessary.

Mr. Sceleth believes that 'a contented man does not use alcohol.' This is probably the same contented man of whom Jerome says that he is happy anywhere, as is a Jerusalem pony. Very few men have contented minds, which is a good thing for humanity. Very few of us have conceit enough to offset the disturbing effects of self-knowledge and appreciation of our fellowman. The highly developed brain has given man many material advantages, has enabled him to bring human progress to a point where he can surround himself with comfort giving devices, and obtain more sensory enjoyment than ever before, but it has also saddled him with a burden of desires for further advancement and fears of distant consequences which modify his conduct and cloud his most enjoyable moments. This burden the phrase-makers have dubbed his inhibitions.

Each man has at times the yearning to escape his own intelligence, to get away from himself. He would enjoy the fruits of human endeavour without memory of the labour of production, or too keen an appreciation of the imperfections of the product, believing it unnecessary and undesirable that the husbandman should carry his plough and bushel measure to the harvest festival.

Alcohol offers the easiest and least harmful avenue of escape that man knows. With enough alcohol to subdue his higher centres and raise his thresholds, the normal man is reduced to the level of the contented one, believing that all is for the best in the best of possible worlds. He becomes more amorous, more religious and in general more genial than he naturally could be. As an aid to dancing the juice of the grape is generally thought to be unsurpassed.

There is a gentleman famed in scripture as the first drunkard, but it is hardly likely that he was really the first to discover the releasing effect of fermented liquors. In all ages and in all parts of the world, men have made the joyful discovery and acted upon it. Many varieties of alcoholic beverages have been devised in different countries and now all great races are known by the liquors they produce. Thus we have Scotch Whiskey, French Wine, English Ale and American Moonshine, the first a triumph of scientific ingenuity and business acumen, and the last a symbol of man's ineradicable tendency to find means of escape from himself and his neighbours even in the most discouraging circumstances. The moonshine is also famous as a substance giving the strange impression of kick without body.

Those who find indulgence improfitable or unpleasant assure us that inebriety is a degradation of man's noble intellect, but Bacchus' disciples, on the other hand, believe that it raises man into an ethereal phase above habits of every day life. As they so succintly put it—'the drunk gets to walking on air.' Not all men, however, display a Pickwickian flow of human kindness in their cups. Some are lachrymose and some belligerent and some downright goofy, but anyone who has contrasted a sober crowd with the other kind is emphatic in attributing a sweeter and more likable general temper to the other kind, especially if the observation has been made as one of the crowd.

A mistake very frequently made is that of assigning to medical students the position of the most frequently elevated members of a student body. The vagaries of these unfortunates would pass almost unnoticed in a less significant body of men. A careful investigation shows that a great majority of meds have been so well taught the terrible physiological effects of an excess of alcohol that they avoid the stuff as though it were poisonous.

It cannot be that alcohol causes a great deal of misery. Like the fast automoble it is a good thing irequently misused, and the misuse often leads to the making of laws prohibiting it entirely by that strangely numerous class of people who still believe that man will change his nature when the law decrees it. The results of such legislation are well known to the present generation.

And even with a potential government dispensing liquors with judicious hand, there are difficulties in the way of the man who knows how to use his blessings. With a man who first associated wine, women and song,
'I often wonder what the vendors buy
With all the profits from the stuff they sell.'

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Douglas Library,
Nov. 21st, 1932

Dear Mr. Editor,

The notice in last Friday's Journal of the forthcoming issue of the "Queen's Quill" left a great deal to the imagination.

All those who welcomed the appearance of the undergraduate publication last spring (myself among them) are anxious to learn when the next number will appear. We should also like to know how much the Quill is going to cost and whether it is intended to publish any other issues of it this year.

Yours truly,
SEMPRONIUS.

Queen's University,
Nov. 20th, 1932.

Dear Mr. Editor,

Why is there no English Club at Queen's this year? I am confident that there are a large number of students who would support such an organization if it were set up, but are chary of taking a lead in getting things under way.

There must be a few members of last year's club at Queen's this semester. I suggest that it is up to them to get together to organize again this year and supply this glaring deficiency.

Yours truly,
JACK SPRATT.

Medical At Home Guests To Dance In Feudal Keep

Continued from page 1

The supper and supper room has been the subject of a great deal of thought and this feature is believed to be adequately taken care of. The supper will be the finest ever provided and it will be partaken in restful, harmonious surroundings.

A feature lacking in other formals, but provided for in this one, is the ample accommodation for those who care to rest, between dances. In other years guests did not have sufficient sitting out nooks, and nine to three-thirty is a long time. This year it will be different.

Tickets are going fast for this glorious evening. There are, however, still a few available and those considering going are urged to pick them up immediately. They will be on sale in the Student's Union, (second floor) and the basement of the Anatomy Bldg on Tuesday and Wed. from 3 to 5 p.m.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN—For the first time, the university this year will offer a course in the administration and technique of museum work. This will be one of the few schools in the United States offering such a course. The director of the state historical museum will have charge of the course which "will be open to only a select group of students who are interested in different phases of museum work."

Lively Tune

Beloit College, Wisconsin, students Saturday night danced to the tune of Otto Wuest, a farmer living near the college. Members of the frshman and sophomore classes sponsored the all-college party on the campus to raise $88.35 demanded by Mr. Wuest for damages which students inflirted on a house he owned.

Walk on Grass

Students at Washington and Lee university at Richmond, Va., are requested to walk on the grass of the campus by Rr. Ralph C. Hutchinson, president of the school.

"Why shouldn't students walk on the grass? I want to walk on it myself. I am more interested in the students than I am in the grass," President Hutchinson stated.

Winnipeg Editor Praises Arts Courses At Toronto

Toronto, Ont. (C.I.P.) — "A first rate education received in a good arts course possesses great advantages," stated John W. Dafoe, famed editor of the Winnipeg Free Press in the course of an interview with The Varsity recently. "Four years of a university course should be more beneficial to a person if he applies himself, than entering into business or else there would be little reason for his attendance.

"He must be prepared to start fairly low down on the scale as a junior reporter but will probably be promoted faster than the ordinary man," said Mr. Dafoe in answering the question as to what help a B.A. degree had for a man entering newspaper work. "I entered journalism at the age of seventeen and gained the actual experience. But I have no fault to find with a university training and have had many graduates including three Rhodes Scholars on the staff of the Free Press. The technical training is lacking but if he is willing this will not hinder his progress.

"A short while ago we permitted the staff of The Manitoban to handle a large amount of the news assignments for one issue. They wanted to handle the entire paper and we had girls at the society desk and their reporters had the run of the news room. Some of them turned in really good copy and did a fine job."

Science Overcomes Arts In Interfaculty Game

Continued from page 1

Arts' forward pass to open the second quarter was knocked down. A Science pass was equally successful and on the onside kick which followed Oille dropped on the ball. Play was ruled offside and it was Arts ball on their 20 yard line. Failure to make yards on third down gave Science possession on Arts 20 yard line. A kick from placement went wide and Arts were given the ball fifteen yards out when the Science tackler failed to give yards. Arts were penalized 10 yards for offside on the next play and were penalized on the following play when Marks making a beautiful tackle failed in the opinion of the officials to give sufficient yards for the catch. Science kicked to make the score 7-0. On the returned kick Fletcher, stellar half, made a spectacular catch and tore for 20 yards. Up to this point Science were forcing the play into Arts territory almost continually. Halg time score 7-0.

Arts started off with a vengeance. Zvonkin, with five men holding on to him, plunged for yards. On the loveliest pass of the day Quinn put Arts on the Science 10 yards line, and Zvonkin took it over for a try. Not converted. Fletcher returned to Weir who was dropped in his tracks. A Science pass went wild and on the kick Fletcher went around the end for a pretty gain. Quinn followed around the short end to move the sticks again. Another long pass settled into the arms of the end who dropped it. Big Abe went round the end for 12 yards and added 30 yards on the next play. Arts lost their chance of a score when their kick was blocked and Science, fighting mad, recovered. Third quarter over, score 7-5.

The final quarter started with the Arts ends stopping a Science half in his tracks. Gordie McMahon playing a wonderful game for Science stopped an Arts end run with a smart tackle. Play was fairly even and see-sawed about centre. A Science offside went unnoticed despite the protest from the stands. O'Neill dropped the plunger for no gain. Teak. Science middle, plunged for 8 yards and Weir completed. Arts offside. Zvonkin broke up an attempted forward throwing Weir for a 12 yard loss and was rewarded with a penalty. The final whistle sounded with Arts in possession on their own 15 yard line. Final score, Science 7, Arts 5.

Referee—Bill Glass.

Umpire—Dick Storms.

Head Lineman: Merve Peever.

Al Smith said in his radio address that when he heard Mr. Hoover say that the election of Mr. Roosevelt would mean that grass would grow in the streets of a hundred cities he went right downtown and rented a square on Fifth avenue to be used as a putting green.

ROY M. LONGO
With Geo. Salstone's Orchestra
Teacher of
Tenor Banjo, Mandola, Mandolin, Tenor Guitar, Spanish Guitar, String Bass, Arranging, Harmony.
212 Division St. Phone 1434-W

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES
with Laurel and Hardy

It is a lonely feeling to sit unmoved through reel after reel of a comedy, while the rest of the audience laughs obediently at every snap of the comedian's fingers. Such a status quo can only afford the opportunity for painful self-analysis. Perhaps our responses to the slapstick stimuli are not sufficiently geared. Perhaps we're a little too refined. No, we reflect brightly, not with our unaffected passion for the Marx frères; not when Jimmy Durante is such a little pet of ours.

But we will never (firmly) be a proselyte to this Laurel and Hardy combination. The obvious is all very well, pat in its little corner. But when it is put under the magnifying glass, dilated, analyzed and then synthetized, our personal place is in the lobby with a cigarette.

But we did like the General. He made us laugh. He did quite a good job of being surly when Laurel and Hardy brought garbage to him, instead of caviar.

As for Igloo—for Faust's sake, why did we ever start this—that is a pretty little symposium of life as enjoyed by the Nuwak tribe in the Arctic. Particularly pretty was the shot of a dead baby buried in the snow within accessible distance of a pack of hungry dogs. The rest of this idyll of love in the frozen north is filled with a series of such minor contretemps. B—.

AT THE TIVOLI

DIVORCE IN THE FAMILY
with
Jacbrie Cooper, Lewis Stone, Conrad Nagel, Lois Wilson

If you are the type of person who cries during an emotional scene, Divorce in The Family has several places where sobs would be appropriate. The story, dealing with a broken and successfully patched triangle, has for complication the two sons of the disrupted family, legally under their mother's care, but with an allegiance to their father. This bond is particularly hard to break in the case of the younger son, Terry—(Jackie Cooper). Lewis Stone as the father of the two boys, gives a sympathetic portrayal in a role which grows less important to the children as they are absorbed by the new home atmosphere.

Jackie Cooper, throughout the picture is the exuberant youngster who has been fond of his father's roving life as an archeologist and finds the more restrained life in a doctor's household too confining. The story of his gradual rebellion is natural enough and has all the elements of a thoroughly boyish story. Terry is completely at home in this role and it needs no visible padding by the director to convince the audience that Jackie Cooper understands the situations and acts with the impetuosity of childhood. After all, Terry is but eight years old.

Conrad Nagel plays the difficult role of step-father with a professional calmness. B plus.

International Troubles Require Arbitrators

"The one real hope for the maintenance of peace lies in accepting loyally and heartily the principle of collective responsibility—the principle that in international as in social life we should not take sides with either party, when fisticuffs are in use, but should stop the fight and see that the cause of quarrel is referred to a properly constituted legal tribute," said Principal Fyfe in an address on "Fourteen Years of Peace," given to the Empire Club in Toronto, at the end of last week.

Political

"When the Great War ended," Dr. Fyfe went on, "We looked forward to a disarmed and therefore peaceful world, made up of homogenous, self-governing nations freely sharing with each other the mutual benefit of trade and by means of a committee making and enforcing collective decisions. How far have we succeeded in realising those ideals? The answer to that question is inevitably discouraging, but as one looks back on these fourteen years of failure, misunderstanding and recrimination there are some gleams of hope. And while there's hope, there's life.

"The number of homogeneous, self-governing communities has increased since the war," Dr. Fyfe pointed out. "Fewer people are living under the galling sence of being in an unrepresented minority. Oppression is always a menace to peace. That menace certainly has not passed away, but it has been to some extent diminished. There is plenty of gunpowder still lying about.

"And yet despite these risks it is not, I feel, these problems of nationality that cause the greatest danger, I believe the danger from that source is less or at any rate no greater than before the war and that throughout Europe people are more aware of common virtues,, failings and anibitions; they have a stronger sense of commou destiny. Former enemies have met and compared notes and made friends. So there is one gleam of hope in a troubled and stormy landscape.

Economic

"It was part of our hope at the end of the war that peaceful intercourse between nations would be assisted by freer trade and the clear recognition of the fact that the world has become an economic whole of which each nation is a member, and that if one nation suffers, the other nations inevitably suffer with it," con-tinued the speaker. "Here a review of the last few years seems to offer nothing but discouragement. Whatever may be the proper function of tariffs in the economic life of a nation, we can all see now that the excessive restriction of international trade has proved suicidal. The results engulf us at this present moment. Here the only ray of hope is shed by the coming World Economic Conference, which will be in fact another disarmament conference, since its aim is to reduce those devastating economic weapons high tariffs and war debts, which like all armaments are equally dangerous to all parties concerned.

Military

"Just as no nation seems ready to take the lead in diminishing tariff restrictions, so too the hope of disarmament is frustrated by the fear that if one nation takes the first step the others may not follow. Suspicion breeds fear and fear breeds danger. Germany has threatened to re-arm unless the other signatories to the Treaty of Versailles redeem their promise to reduce their armaments.

"Then look for a moment at the danger on our other flank. Japan has broken the Nine-power Pact made in 1922 and the Kellogg Pact of 1928. Unless the League of Nations can mend that breach the United States is freed from the provisions of the Washington Naval Treaty. That means that the United States would build for naval war. So would Japan. And where should we be then?

"Where are the gleams of hope in this picture?" asked Dr. Fyfe. "The one hope of our children's future depends on the faint gleams in the words "Disarmament" and "Collective Responsibility." The naval treaties of Washington and of London certainly disappointed many hopes, yet from a pre-war viewpoint they were an astonishing and revolutionary achievement.

"The representatives of fifty nations met last February at Geneva. That in itself was another achievement from a pre-war point of view. Their prolonged discussion was confusing and conclusive, but before the conference adjourned two principles were adopted and their adoption gives some excuse for hope. (1) 'Qualitative as well as quantitative restriction is necessary.' That means that certain kinds of weapons, such as long range guns and military aircraft, must be specially restricted or altogether abjured. (2) 'Quantitative reduction must accompany qualitative restriction.' The representatives of the nations voted for 'a strict limitation and a real reduction in the size of standing arms.' This is not much to be thankful for after six months of discussion, but it gives at least some ground for hope. It is easy to jeer but more useful to pray.

"And beside these two principles there has emerged a fruitful idea," Dr. Fyfe pointed out. "Disarmament and security had been regarded as two separate problems. And no-one could decide which ought to be solved first. But during the conference the idea emerged that they were not two mutually exclusive problems, but two aspects of the same problem, and that the treaty by which the nations reduce their armaments must at the same time be effective to increase their security. We can understand that easily in Canada, for our sense of security against the U.S.A. is directly due to those long miles of undefended frontier. If we kept guns there and military aircraft we should indeed be i ndanger."

TRICOLOR NOTICE

The Editor of the Tricolor announces that photographs should be handed in by members of the graduating classes not later than the first week in December. Secretaries of Year Societies and Campus organizations are also asked to co-operate to make possible the publication of the Year Book at as early a date as possible.

Messrs Boyes, Marrison and Timothy are all accredited photographers to the Tricolor.

DRAMATIC GUILD

(By Member of Dramatic Guild)

A great success was scored by the Queen's Dramatic Guild in the presentation of the plays on Friday and Saturday evenings in Convocation Hall. "The Gaol Gate" one of Lady Gregory's tragic Irish plays splendidly portrayed by Lebo Ware, Dorothy Stewart and Jack Corbett, gave ample scope for their dramatic ability. Dorothy Stewart deserves special mention for remarkable portrayal of Mary Cahell, the mother of the prisoner. The grim back-ground of the jail gate at dawn formed a fitting setting for the actors grouped about it. Mr. E. T. Sherwood deserves great credit for this noble production.

"Gammer Gurton's Needle," though one of the most difficult plays ever attempted by the Guild was received enthusiastically by large audiences on both nights. An old English comedy, adapted from the Latin it pictured the village life and customs very vividly. Hazel O'Kilman as "Gammer Gurton" excelled her usual clever acting in this role. She lived her part and together with "Hodge" Bertie Gardiner carried off the honours throughout the play. Scarcely less outstanding was the performance of Erskine Morden as "Diccon" the creator of the plots which culminated in a street-brawl. Playing a dual role of "Cocke" and Dr. Rat, Scarth Macdonnel gave good interpretations of these parts. As "Cocke" he stole all his scenes. Jean Nelson as "Tyb," Gammer's maid, acted the little gamin to perfection and quite won the audience. "Dame Cat," Marjorie Bishop, a new-comer to the Guild, was splendid. This part called for a great deal of histrionic ability and Miss Bishop acquitted herself remarkably well. "The Baily" Arthur Sutherland and "Doll" Dame Cat's maid, played by Marion Hayes were convincingly real.

Much of the credit for the success of the plays is due to Mrs. G. B. Reed who supervised the last rehearsals. Bill Wilgar as director of "Gammer Gurton's Needle" deserves great praise for his work on this highly humorous production. The play was adapted by Mr. Walter Maclaren and W. P. Wilgar, without losing the tawdry humour of the original play. The costumes which were suitable and colorful were designed by Mrs. H. Walpole and Cassie Maclaren. Roland Browne and Margaret Smith who worked out the scenery succeeded in reproducing an atmosphere of an English Country village which added much to the performance.

Hybrid

Believe it or not, the University of Southern California, a Methodist institution, was founded by a Catolic, a jew and an Espiscopalian. —The Orediggerd.

(By Journal Critic)

The fifty-fourth production of the Queen's Dramatic Guild sustained the reputation of the Guild as a producer of well-cast plays. In "Gammer Gurton's Needle" the Guild had every opportunity for creating humorous dilemmas and impossibles situations. Each member of the cast entered whole-heartedly into the spirit of the play, a clever farcical comedy of Early English origin.

If individnal laurels may be granted to any member of such a co-operative production, they should go to Erskine Morden as Diccon and Hazel Okilman as Gammer Gurton, whose lost needle caused hilarious situations. Bertie Gardiner added one more to his long list of outstanding character parts and a new star was found in Marjorie Bishop, whose portrayal of Dame Cat, especially in the street fight with Gammer Gurton, was a highlight of the play.

The minor members of the cast adequately supported the production. Art Sutherland as the Bailly and Scarth Macdonnell in his dual role of Cocke and Dr. Rat were effective.

The short curtain-raiser "The Gaol-Gate" was not on a par with the remainder of the production. But Lebo Ware, as Mary Cushin, and Dorothy Stewart as Mary Cahel gave competent and restrained performances in exacting roles.

The technical side of the production well represented the talent of the University. The scenery as designed by Margaret Smith was the best that has been used for Guild plays. The costumes, designed by Mrs. Hugh Walpole, were expressive of the age and lent piquancy to the scenes. The makeup, which was superintended by Stuart Young and Violet Kilpatrick, was very well done, especially in the cases of the Bailly and Doll (Marion Hayes).

Adaptation By Burns To Be Given Tonight

The initial performance of the Scottish Musical Company which opens a series of four presentations at the Kingston Technical School goes on the boards to-day at 4 p.m. The vehicle for this occasion is an adaptation of Robert Burn's famous poem, "The Cotter's Saturday Night." This play will again be given in the evening.

The Company has chosen as its offering for to-morrow a play adapted from the works of the famous Scottish novelist, Ian MacLaren. It is entitled "Bonnie Brier Bush."

This series of presentations offers an excellent opportunity of enjoying clever performances, witty dialogue, good music and excellent dancing.

ATTEND THE MED'S FORMAL
Rent A New Tuxedo
For Only
$2.00
FIFTEEN DOLLAR CLOTHES SHOP
79 Princess St. Phone 1832-W

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

W. Elmer Refuses To Make Any Statement

Wally Elmer, newly elected coach of the Tricolor hockey squads refused to discuss the puck chasing situation at the present time, and there's a reason. For one thing Wally has had the aspirants out to only one or two practices, and hardly knows one stick handler from another as yet. For another thing, the grouping is not arranged and it is not known definitely just with whom Queen's will be classed.

There are rumours that the Tricolor will be found in a group with Kingston, Oshawa, St. Michaels and Belleville, but this may be only so much horse radish. In as much as the opening of the season will not likely take place until after the first of the year, there is plenty of time to decide all that.

On Saturday afternoon Wally had about 15 players out for a trial spin and some of them showed to much better advantage than others. This, however, may be due to the fact that they have just finished an intensive training for the senior rugby team and the vegetables they have consumed have put them on edge. When the other skaters get into the habit of nibbling the odd peck of carrots between meals, or say half a cabbage, at bedtime, they too will round into condition and show the world what they have.

It is therefore a little early to discuss the merits of the players who have turned out, but many of them showed flashes of form that should earn them a place. With the holding of a few additional practices, Wally will have a much better idea of the players he can count upon.

Meanwhile if there are any other hockeyists who think they can make the senior team, but who have not turned out, they are urged to do so at once and get into condition early.

No Lock and Chain?

All Indiana University coeds who wish to attend football games away from the home town must obtain permission from their dean. They are requested to state how and with whom they are going. Official chaperones are provided.

—Daily O'Collegian.

Gold Bugs?

A professor at Michigan University, upon doing research work on the backs of Yukon bears, with the purpose of investigating as to the breed of their parasites, was surprised to find that the bears in bathing in the Yukon streams had accumulated gold dust in their fur.

—Stanford Daily.

Modest Little Creatures

The zoology department at the University of Kentucky is making extensive research into methods of determining the sex of garter snakes without making the reptile defunct in the process.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

JACK JARVIS

Boxing Coach who is setting out on the quest of further Intercollegiate honours.

DON BEWS

Who is back with the basketball squad. Don is one of the best players on the Queen's roster.

Frosh B.W.F. Assault To Be Held Tomorrow

The Freshmen get their chance to absorb some of the spotlight's glare on Wednesday evening, when the annual Frosh Assault will be held.

This is a mighty important event, for every year some likely looking freshmen are uncovered who fit in very well with the Intercollegiate team.

There will be about ten boxing bouts and the same number of wrestling events, and there will be absolutely no waiting between numbers. A couple of exhibition bouts will be staged by the veterans to give the Frosh an idea of how it should be done. But there will be plenty of action any way you look at it, and enthusiasts will have to be on hand early to get the best seats.

In the wrestling there will be two 3 minute periods, with one minute's rest in between.

The boxing will provide three 2 minute rounds with one minute's rest.

The following is the possible schedule of fights for tomorrow evening.

Boxing—C. Kamm, 140 lbs. vs. W. Fritz, 140 lbs.; H. C. Rodgers, 135 lbs. vs. W. Moody, 135 lbs.; G. Rahn, 112 lbs. vs. L. Orenstein 112 lbs.; R. Binch, 160 lbs. vs. P. Smith, 160 lbs.; Alex Deans, 160 lbs. vs. J. H. Peters, 160 lbs.; C. G. Campbell, 135 lbs. vs. J. Cliff, 135 lbs.; G. F. Ennis vs. J. Corbett. R. Mitchell vs. D McTaggart and Percy White vs. N. Hoch.

Wrestling—G. Greenacre, 130 lbs. vs. L. Sabbath, 133 lbs.; F. O'Connor, 137 lbs. vs. L. Logan, 137 lbs.; R. Burford, 128 lbs. vs. H. Coulthart, 134 lbs.; R. Conklin, 152 lbs. vs. M. Bews, 152 lbs.; W. P. Bruce, 146 lbs. vs. H. A. Davis, 146 lbs.; K. Ginnell, 145 lbs. vs. R. M. Harvey, 145 lbs.; C. McKae, 147 lbs. vs. S. A. Tafte, 148 lbs.; E. J. Tonlinan, 142 lbs. vs. D. H. Barclay, 141 lbs. and W. M. Dundass, 150 lbs. vs. W. J. Hayhurst, 150 lbs.

SPORTS SLANTS

Varsity Seconds kept their record clean and got their uniforms mucky when they downed the Cadets in the final game 19 to 0.

* * * * * *

This followed the smearing of the Cader Junior team by Varsity on Saturday morning to the tune of 52 to 5. It hasn't been a very friendly year for R. M. C. or Queen's either.

* * * * * *

Varsity Seniors have elected to play Tigers next Saturday, for the chance at the Canadian final the Saturday following. If the weather is good, they will get a beating, but make some money. If the weather is stormy, they will not make the money.

* * * * * *

The Water Carnival should attract a huge crowd to-night. There are some clever performers on the bill, as well as excitement and fun for everyone.

* * * * * *

And don't overlook the Frosh assault on Wednesday evening. These boys are working for a place on the big team, and how they try. The night promises to bee full of socks and more socks.

* * * * * *

Basketball and hockey are gradually casing into the picture with squads in both branches of sport down to intensive training. There is no truth in the report that the A. B. of C. is considering the purchase of a truck farm, in order to provide bigger and better vegetables for the teams. Imagine Charlie Hicks dickering for a carload of yams.

Basketeers Preparing For Successful Season

Manager Finlay of the Senior basketball squad reports that the team is fast rounding into condition, and are pointing for their annual trip to Uncle Sam's land, somewhere around the first of December, when they will take on two or three American teams. This should fit them for the opening of the senior Intercollegiate season, and give the coach an idea as to the men who will carry the weight of responsibility for the series.

McGill are going to be hard to topple this year, but if all plans of the Tricolor go through, they will present a squad which will extend the Red team to the limit. Queen's gave McGill their two hardest battles last season, losing out in the final seconds of play and the meetings of the teams this season should be productive of great interest.

Varsity and Western are not saying a great deal about the present campaign, but they can be counted upon to produce strong aggregations. It will be interesting to see what success greets the efforts of Warren Stevens at Varsity. That gentleman has had success with the Varsity rugby team in his first year and they are counting heavily upon him to put their basketball team up with the leaders. Warren is rated as a tricky and fast basketballer, and he will drive the team to the limit.

Western will be trying mighty hard to capture the basketball title since they have been turned back in their quest for their second straight rugby banner. The shaping up of their stars is not known at present, but they have not been idle and with the addition of some promising players, to bolster up their strong team of last year, it is expected that they will provide plenty of opposition.

Debating Union Meeting

The Political and Debating Union more or less foreshadowed the decision of the Ontario Liberal Convention when it expressed itself not in favour of the sale of beer and wine in licensed hotels and restaurants, at its meeting last Thursday.

H. A. McLearn and Harry Waisberg upheld the affirmative, while Alan Sprague and John Parker constituted the opposition. Shortage of time limited the number of speakers from the floor of the house. At the conclusion of argument, pro and con, Dr. McNeil gave a brief criticism and George Wallace, president, expressed his appreciation for these pertinent remarks.

STUDENTS!

Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

Varsity Intermediates Win Rugby Honours

Varsity Second team officially won the Intercollegiate banner on Saturday afternoon, smearing R. M. C. by a 19 to 0 score.

While a defeat of R. M. C. was expected, in view of the form shown by Varsity this season, many thought the Cadets would put up a much better battle than they did.

Only a handful of spectators braved the elements to see the teams put on their show, and they proved to be real fans, for the weather wasn't fit for a dog fight. The field was perhaps in the worst condition of the year as might be expected, a thick layer of mud promising treacherous footing, while the odd pond of water, deep enough to drown any unlucky player who had his nose tucked under it for long, was scattered over the gridiron. And as if to show that the weather still had more to show the boys, rain fell during part of the game.

The greasy ball proved to be as elusive as the famous oiled pig, yet Varsity were able to control it much better than the Cadets who fumbled continually, and gave Varsity plenty of chances to score.

At that Varsity were clearly the better team, their line showing to much better advantage, and their backfield plainly having a big edge on the play.

R. M. C. never looked to have a chance to score on Varsity and that line about sizes up the game. They tried hard however, and never gave up.

The first quarter ended with Varsity one point up, by virtue of a 65 yard gallop by McMullen. This player who did not seem to mind the greasy going, ended his run by kicking over the Cadet line to Irwin who was forced to rouge. In the quarter R. M. C. had a slight edge on the kicking, and kept Varsity out.

Varsity added 6 points in the second clinker by some smart plunging. They secured 40 yards out from the Cadet line, and from there, Hodgetts smashed through for ten yards: and then passed to Stewart who made the other yards to score a touch. The same player converted. Irwin showed up well on the R. M. C. backfield and supplied a thrill when he took a pass from White and made 30 yards on the run. Half time score Varsity 7, R. M. C. 0.

The teams had a peek at the sun when the third quarter began but it didn't help the field any. An attempted Varsity placement went for a point, a long kick by Hodgetts went for a rouge, and 5 more tallies were recorded when Varsity blocked a Cadet kick to dribble the ball over R. M. C. line and fall on it. Thee-quarter score Varsity 14, R. M. C. 0.

Cadet fumbles paved the way for Varsity's final score in the last quarter. White couldn't control the pill and Twaites secured for Toronto 15 yards out. He then tossed a forward to Graham which was completed and that ended the score. Final score, Varsity 19, R.M.C. 0.

Similarity

The student paper of Haverford College tells a tale of two Lehigh students picking up two girls who turned out to be faculty members.

Similar to the above item, is an article in the University of Pennsylvania's Pennsylvanian which speaks of a Princeton co-ed slapping another student in the face.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

Now You CAN Afford Quality

In TIP TOP clothes is found the greatest value in custom-tailoring obtainable anywhere — fine British woollens — expert custom tailoring — superb fit and style. Each TIP TOP suit and overcoat is individually cut and tailored to one's own personal measurements. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
TAILORED TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —

Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop

There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer

Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to, show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.

213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup.'"

MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Prin. ess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

Book Chats

By R.M.

The more lists of best books I read the more I wonder if they don't represent what the compiler hasn't read himself and thinks he should have read. Before this solacing thought came to me I was in danger of developing an inferiority complex because of my utter ignorance of these cherished bequests from posterity.

Last spring Liberty published a list of the "Hundred Best Novels" ranging from Goethe's Wilhelm Meister to Sir James Barrie's Sentimental Tommy. I managed to devour five or six of these books before my resolution waned; and would still be somewhat discouraged if it were not for the reassurance gained from an article in the October "Bookman", on "Books I Have Never Read," wherein Aldous Huxley, among other authors, confesses that he has never read The Vicar of Wakefield. Sheila Kaye-Smith has never read Lorna Doone or Dicken's Mutual Friend; Sir Walter Scott remains practically a nonentity to Beverly Nichols, while Lord Dunsany confesses to an abysmal ignorance of the novelists of the eighteenth century.

All this is not to be taken as casting any reflections on a most excellent list of books for four years reading compiled by Mr. E. C. Kyte. Anyone perusing this list will find, as I do, that there are only a half dozen or so that they are acquainted with. For the benefit of those who wish to be well-read the list is printed below:

Borrow, G., Lavengro, The Romany Rye; Boswell, J., Life of Johnson; Butler, Samuel, The Way of All Flesh; Cellini, B., Life; Cobbett, W., Rural Rides; Conrad, Joseph, Victory; Davies, W. H., Autobiography of a Super-Tramp; French, J. C., Himalayan Art; Galsworthy, John, The Forsyte Saga; Garstin, Crosbie, The Dragon and the Lotus; Hardy, T., The Dynasts, 3 vols; Hudson, W. H., Green Mansions; Hosie, Lady, Portrait of a Chinese Lady; Housman, A. E., A. Shropshire Lad; Ibsen, H., Peer Gynt; Jones, E., The Road to En-Dor; Kinglake, A., Eothen; Kipling, R., Kim; Lamb, C., Essays of Elia; Lubbock, B., Round the Horn before the Mast; Malory, Sir T., Morte d'Arthur; Mitchison, N., The Conquered; Pater, W., Greek Studies; Pepys, S., Diary; Scott, Capt. R. F., Last Journey; Seely, Sir J. B., Adventure; Stevenson, R. L., Travels with a donkey in the Cevennes; Whitman, W., Leaves of Grass.

The following books have been received and will be reviewed shortly:

"Benefits Received" by Alice Grant Rosman. (Thomas Allen, Toronto).

"Morgan's Yard" by Richard Pryce. (Thomas Allen for Houghton and Mifflin).

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY — This university has a course in "social science"—one which is not listed in the university catalogue—a course in the art of ballroom dancing. The physical education department is sponsoring the course. It is open to both men and women and will continue for a period of twelve weeks. There is a small charge for the course.

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

Psychologists Discover Iniquitous Conditions

Continued from page 1

about to return, the car refused to start. One of the party, a famous athlete, pushed the car till it started, allowing the party to escape the multitude who were howling for their blood.

The whole of the evidence is not yet ready for publication, but we are allowed to print the following facts, which should make the blood of any public-spirited Canadian Citizen boil.

King Edward VII. of England is alive, and a prisoner. The present wearer of the crown of England is the son of the man who stole the throne and name of the real king. This His Majesty is in a position to prove, even though he has been a captive of the organization since 1917.

Television was on the point of discovery by an eminent scientist, who was drugged and delivered to the organization by a rival who had failed in the same research. The spirit of this woman is shown by the fact that she is constantly in touch by radio with the inmates of the Ontario School for the Deaf, whom she teaches music and poetry. This inspiring example of humanitarian service even in the face of persecution should be a torch of guidance to the world at large.

A confidant of the usurping Prince of Wales was delivered to the organization by neighbor's jealous of her position, and the organization is keeping her from contact with her friends in the hope that she will divulge her secret and they will be able to blackmail the very person they are maintaining in a false position.

There exists in Canada a society practiced in occult arts, which take the law in its own hands. One brave man who penetrated their secrets they have delivered to the organization wracked by diseases they have caused by their charms.

These are only part of the sensational discoveries of this party of daring men. Their full results will be published in technical papers, which the world eagerly awaits.

If there are any who disbelieve, let them join a Psychology class, go to the Ontario Mental Hospital, and see (and hear) for themselves.

TRACK TEAM PICTURE

All members of the track team who were on the Toronto trip are asked to turn out for the team picture, which will be taken at the Gymnasium on Wednesday, at 12.45 p.m.

The members are asked to change into their uniforms at the Gym.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI —The Dean of Women of this University recently decreed that no co-ed may speak to any male student on the street for more than three minutes at a time. According to the decree they must also have a chaperon.

Cherchez L'homme

"For Heaven's sake," advises Prof. Harry Steinmetz of the psychology department at San Diego State College, "make yourself attractive to the opposite sex. Do a little flirting and get a date."

Quarterly Issue Gets Favorable Comment

A recent issue of the Mail and Empire, Toronto, contained the following editorial on the last number of the Queen's Quarterly."

Sir Walter Scott's centenary has been commemorated on various occasions throughout the Empire, although he died on September 21. Our own modest contribution appeared on that date. Queen's Quarterly, just issued, is appropriately entitled "Scott Centenary Number," for it contains four interesting articles in honor of Sir Walter. "Our Debt To Scott To-day" is by W. Macneile Dixon, graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, regius professor of English language and literature in the University of Glasgow, author of many well-known books, and editor of "The Edinburgh Book of Scottish Verse." Edmund Blunden, fellow and tutor of Merton College, Oxford, writes on the "Poetry of Scott." The Rev. M. O. Smith, of Montreal, graduate of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, writes on "Scott and His Modern Rivals." James Miller, graduate of Edinburgh and of Birmingham, and professor of Pathology at Queen's, describes Scott "Through a Scottish Layman's Eyes."

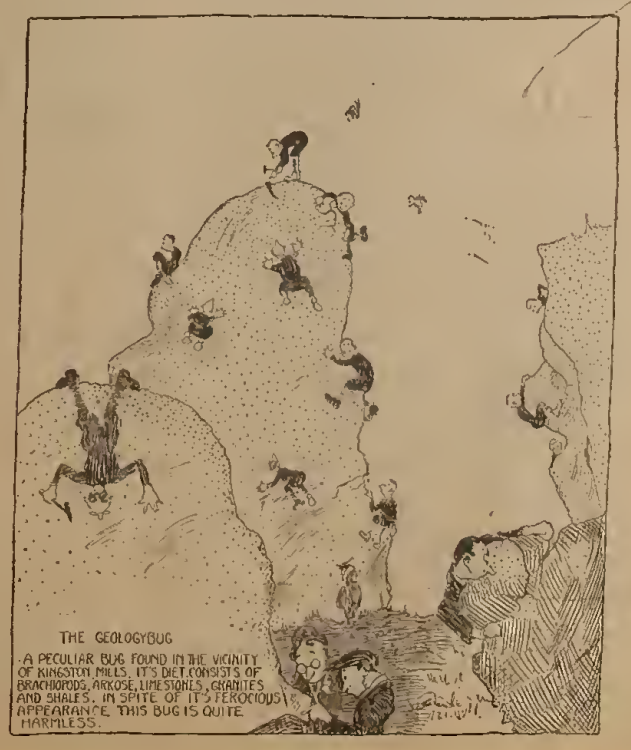
On such a wealth of material it is difficult to comment briefly. But the idea that Scott can have a modern rival is provocative. Among those who appear in Mr. Smith's comparison is Alexander Dumas. Both were great story tellers, and it has been a common remark that Dumas for the French was much the same as Sir Walter for the English. As to contrast Mr. Smith asks, "What writer can adapt himself so naturally, spontaneously and easily to the moving-pictures as does Dumas?" Dumas presents a spectacle and Scott tells a story. "There is the same difference between Scott and Dumas as between cricket and baseball; cricket exists for the amusement and enjoyment of the men who play the game, baseball for the entertainment of the spectators who behold it."

The ubiquitous moving picture is blamed, in part, by Professor Miller for the loss of interest in Scott's novels at the present day. He recalls, when he was young, Winter evenings and family gatherings round the fire, when one or other parent or perhaps an older sister read from those romantic pages. He remembers the fascination of the story unfolding from the less interesting initial chapters, gathering impetus as the threads of the mystery are woven together to culminate in some siege or battle or duel. But the adolescent of the present day abstains from reading Scott, largely, because the custom of reading at a family gathering has been to a great extent given up. "The movies, the radio, dancing and other things," says Mr. Miller "have helped to kill it."

Scottish people must have a stern grudge against the "movies" if they have helped to kill Scott and at the same time have helped to perpetuate Dumas.

Travels 6,000 Miles

Travelling 6,000 miles to attend Ohio State university is the unofficial long distance mark set by Emma L. Conzalas of Santiago, Chili. She was given a scholarship by the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, who arranged for her passage and residence in America.



Wanted: Wild Oats to Sow

An advertisement in the Claremont College Daily Life read, "Wanted: two young men with sporting blood, a car, and a knowledge of lower Main Street, to take two seniors, brunettes, who want a taste of low life before they reap their sheepskins, to one of these places that allow smoking and stay open all night."

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

THE GEOLOGYBUG

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Sallstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Campus and Gym

This evening at eight o'clock there will be an interesting aquatic display in the Queen's Swimming Pool. The Kingston Swimming Club, R. M. C., the Y. M. C. A. and Queen's students will take part in the meet. A water-polo game, a diving competition and exhibition diving follow the races. Levana is represented by Elizabeth Cameron and Jean Nelson who do combination dives with the boys as well as solo dives. The admission is twenty-five cents and the performance will be well worth seeing.

The Levana Basketball team are playing a return game with K. C. I. in the Queen's Gymnasium on Tuesday night at seven o'clock.

R. Brock Appointed To Conduct Survey

The last issue of the Whig-Standard contained the following editorial on the appointment of Dean R. W. Brock, a Queen's graduate, to a geographical survey in China:

"Dean R. W. Brock of the University of British Columbia, a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and a former professor there, has been appointed by the British War Office to complete a geographical survey in the district of Hong Kong and a Vancouver despatch says he is now on his way to the Orient. He began the task in 1923 and it has been continued by other geologists up to the present. The appointment is considered a high honor, as Dean Brock was selected from all the geologists of the British Empire.

Mr. Brock was not only a brilliant student at Queen's, but he was also a noted hockey player, being associated in the nineties with Guy Curtis, Jock Harty and others on the Tricolor champion teams. The British Columbia Dean occupied a Science chair in Queen's some time after his graduation here. Kingston has a deep interest in R. W. Brock, who married a daughter of the late Mr. Justice B. M. Britton, who sat as Kingston's Liberal member in the House of Commons from 1896 till 1902 when he was appointed a judge of the Ontario Supreme Court. A son of the distinguished geologist is at present a cadet in the Royal Military College of Canada here.

Dean Brock ascribes his success as a geologist to the late Dr. Willet G. Miller, who came from Toronto just after the Mining School in connection with Queen's had been established in the early nineties, to become head of the department of geology. Mr. Brock recognized Professor Miller as a wonderful teacher at University of Toronto and followed him to Queen's. Dr. Miller was the man who discovered the riches of the Cobalt district, but passed up riches for the love of teaching and discovery. Today the name of Miller is known in the whole world of geology, and two years ago the magnificent geology and mineralogy building at Queen's University, erected by the Ontario Government, was opened and dedicated to his memory In Dean Brock, the British War Office has selected one of Canada's greatest geologists for its Hong Kong survey."

Oil on Campus

Graduates returning to Southwestern college, Kansas, are now greeted by oil derricks peering skyward on the campus. Five wells on the campus are now producing oil.

Gold Standard Topic At Last Men's Forum

The last discussion meeting held by the Men's Forum centred on the Gold Standard.

Captain Watts in opening commented on the wide differences of opinion which are held by authorities of the subject.

Recently seven leading economists of England acted on a commission of enquiry concerning the need and value of a gold standard. Their report consisted of several hundred pages and in addition another hundred and fifty pages in which each member criticized some part of it.

England was the first country in the world to adopt a gold standard. This occurred in 1816 and Canada followed her example in 1853. Other countries did not make gold a standard of exchange until 1873 or later.

Having pointed out that for a true Gold Standard, obligations made in gold must be freely paid in gold, Captain Watts pointed out that literally Canada was no longer on a gold standard because private individuals could no longer ship gold out of Canada.

Captain Watts stated that in his belief a substantial and permanent increase in prices is needed to save the world's economic life, and thus debts would automatically return to a level somewhat nearer their true value.

Next week "The Way out of the Economic Depression," will be the discussion topic.

I. R. C. Members Requested To Attend Meeting To-day

Members of the International Relations Club are asked to turn out for a meeting to-night. The Club will discuss the pros and cons of Canadian and American methods of government. A feature of the meeting will be the presence of the local American Consul who has just returned from Washington and who will participate in the discussion.

COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Nov. 22:
3.15p.m.—Arts Executive Meeting
4.15p.m.—Arts Society Meeting
Dr. J. Miller will speak
Room 201
New Arts Bldg.
Music Club Meeting
332 University Ave.
7.00p.m.—International Relations Club
Red Room
7.00p.m.—Girl's Basketball
Queen's vs. K.C.I.
New Gym
8.00p.m.—Aquatic Meet
R. M. C., Kingston, Y.M.C.A., Queen's
New Gym
Wednesday, Nov. 23:
8.00p.m.—Freshman Assault.
New Gym
Thursday, Nov. 24:
4.00p.m.—Glee Club Meeting
332 University Ave.
Friday, Nov. 25:
9.00p.m.—Medical At Home
New Gymnasium
Wright Bros. Orchestra
Sunday, Nov. 27:
8.45p.m.—Ban Righ Hall Musicale.

Hem-Line

A leap year varsity will be held at the University of Wichita, November 4. A "hem-line" will replace the "stag line" for the evening.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

The following is a comment on a book on the Oxford Group, "For Sinners Only," by A. J. Russell. The book is being circulated among S.C.M. people at Queen's. This review appears in the November issue of The Canadian Student.

"'For Sinners Only' is of timely importance in that it gives us intimate knowledge of a group that during the past month has vitally affected the life of several of our Canadian cities. The book is a fascinating account of how College Professors, students, diplomats, novelists, as well as 'down-and-outs' have come to a new power and fulness of life through an absolute surrender to God. The Principles of the Group are courageously high. They insist on absolute honesty, absolute purity, absolute unselfishness and absolute love.

That sophisticated moderns should swell the ranks of a group that emphasizes sin and dependence on God is a miracle. The determination to allow sin no quarter is contagious.

One questions the value of some of their emphases. To advocate 'listening in' to the Holy Spirit, and living on Faith and Prayer when man has begun to sense his own creative powers suggests a retarding of the Clock of Progress. To our generation which has compromised with the world they stand as a challenge to attain a new high-water mark in Christian living."

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By
Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar
Commanding Queen's University Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Season 1932-1933.
21st Nov., 1932.

No. 23.

Parades.

(1) All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room, Tues., 22nd Nov., at 5.00 p.m. for Infantry Training.

(2) All ranks will parade at the Orderly Room, Sat., 26th Nov., at 1.30 p.m., side arms with great coats will be worn.

No. 24.

Lectures.

(1) On Wed. 23rd Nov., at 5.00 p.m., all cadets taking "A" Certificate Infantry and Engineering will report to Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar, in Carruthers Hall, for Map Reading.

(3) On Friday, 25th Nov. at 5.00 p.m., all Cadets taking "A" and "B" Certificate Medical, will report to Major J. V. Williams, at the Old Medical Building.

No. 25.

Orders.

(1) The above schedule for parades and lectures will be followed during the Fall Term and all officers and cadets are requested to make note of them.

No. 26.

Equipment.

(1) Will all Officers and Cadets who require equipment of any kind, report same to Lt. R. A. Low, Q.M., on Tuesday, 22nd Nov., at 5.00 p.m.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.
Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY—Dr. E. E. Free, lecturer in Science at New York University, proved last week by reproducing the sounds made by radium poisoning in a dead man's bones that "dead men sometimes tell tales."

WINNERS!
The snappy new Queen's White Pullovers, as worn by the cheer-leaders at the Western game, were designed by Shaw's—of course!
See the new ideas FIRST at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheetoch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes
Constitutions
Printing of Every Description
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26th, 1932 No. 17

MEDICOS HOLD SUCCESSFUL "AT HOME"

Tricolor Aquatic Stars Triumph In Battle For Natatorial Honours

Enthusiastic Spectators Watched Brilliant Exhibition Of Expert Swimmers And Divers

One of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds ever to attend a swimming meet at the new gymnasium, turned out for the biggest splash of the fall season, a four-cornered duel, with teams representing Queen's, R.M.C., the Kingston Swimming Club and the Y.M.C.A.

Without a doubt it was one of the most successful meets held in the gym, and the crowd was amply repaid by the beautiful and finished exhibition put on by the performers.

There was not a dull moment in the entire evening. At times the crowd was wildly excited, as swimmers piled on more speed in an endeavor to win the sprint events. At others the spectators were spell-bound by the grace and beauty shown by the divers, in a special diving exhibition put on by Queen's stars.

The meet demonstrated in no uncertain way that Queen's possesses swimming and diving competitors that rank most favorably with any in the country. While Queen's won almost all of the events, it was not in any sense an easy victory for the other three teams put up strong opposition, and that made the meet particularly interesting.

More than sixty contestants were entered in the various events which emphasizes the interest taken in swimming and diving locally.

Levana turned out in force to cheer their heroes on, and their pep and enthusiasm was very welcome.

Queen's showed a finished and well trained team, and much of the credit should go to trainer Art Wright, and manager Tiny Wright. Such men as Perry, Shapero, Pesner and Almgvist would fit in well on any team and the crowd was delighted with their showing.

The R.M.C. boys showed their usual pluck and determination, but their lack of adequate training was evident.

Kingston Swimming Club and the Y.M.C.A. made very creditable showings, but most of their participants were younger than the rest of the contestants. However they showed some excellent prospects for future meets.

A feature was the Polo game between teams representing Queen's and Kingston All-Stars. It was an easy win for the Tricolor which

(Continued on page 6)

Medicos Visit Ottawa Water Filtering Plant

Seniors Enjoy Trip To Canada's Capital

Struggling through the blue fog of a cool Monday morning, the final year in Medicine started out this week to set the seal of their approval on the Ottawa water filteration system. Many of the members of the class were confident of Ottawa having facilities for the provision of nourishment, but some of the more cautious ruled out the possibility of actual starvation by starting equipped with concentrated rations, which were supplemented in Prescott by the addition of a stray bottle of milk. The bus driver was very uncertain as to which bank of the Ottawa river was to be the scene of the inspection. Some of the students were of the opinion that the man was actually intoxicated and not to be trusted.

While there is some discussion about the matter, most of the students believe that the filtration plant was visited and that the city water is driven out by two or six pumps, depending upon the number of eyes used for inspection and the intentness of the gaze. The plant, which is superintended by a Joseph Madelon, provides the city with a very satisfactory water supply, but the building which houses it is not suitable for indoor track work, as was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the class. The casualties resulting from this demonstration were treated at the Civic Hospital, the victims refusing with high-minded indignation the offer of alcohol as a stimulant to their parting life processes.

The class also visited the Isolation Hospital, where they acquitted themselves in a manner befitting almost-doctors.

Anxious to return to their regular studies, the class left Ottawa at the earliest possible moment after midnight, and enjoyed a rapid return trip in spite of a very wet night.

All were unanimous in the opinion that the trip was a complete success and that a good time was had by all.

Edinburgh Anecdotes Amuse Arts Society

Dr. James Miller, the guest speaker at the last meeting of Arts Society told of his college days in Edinburgh University.

In his reminiscences Dr. Miller referred to Edinburgh's climate very disparagingly. He said that the weather was so bad there was nothing else to do but work and drink.

According to Dr. Miller one of the favourite outdoor sports of small boys in Edinburgh was to follow old ladies about towards one o'clock to see them jump when the one o'clock gun went off. The effect was quite startling. A Glasgow man once remarked when he heard the terrific explosion at one o'clock, that he was glad he did not arrive at noon.

The students at Edinburgh University came from all parts of the British Empire, it was stated. India usually sends two or three hundred students.

Continued on page 4

Justice Meted Out By Engineers' Court

Once again the bark of embryo lawyers, the alibis of maltreated Frosh, and the voice of Russ Thoman, our husky constable, echo through Carruthers Hall, and the Most Honourable, Venerable, and Ancient Court of Science is dispensing justice to these Femme Fussing Fools, the Frosh. With D. Watt and Milt Buell as senior and junior judges the court once more opened her doors to the detriment of the many first year men who won't do as they're told by '35, that tough crew which now holds sway.

First in the docket was Cal. Hall charged by the crown with deportment unbecoming a member of the Engineering Society. After many verbal battles between those two brilliant attorneys, Mr. John McDiarmid for the crown, and Mr. Henry Hoskings for the defense, and after much chin-wagging by several eminent witnesses, Hall was fined according to the penal code of Queen's University, one buck and an apology to Professor Dorrance, in whose presence this misconduct took place.

Thirty-five or so Frosh were charged with non-attendance at the first meeting of the Society and in

Continued on page 7

McMaster To Debate With Queen's Co-Eds

Taking the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved that this house approves of some form of government censorship of motion pictures," Miss Dorothy Wilkins and Miss Ada Adams will represent the Levana Debating Club in the Women's Intercollegiate Debate at Ban Righ Hall on Friday, December 2nd. They will be opposed by the Women's Debating team from McMaster University.

At the same time the negative side of the same resolution will be upheld by Miss Kathleen Morrison and Miss Bessie Sheffield in Toronto, against a team from the University of Toronto.

The Women's Intercollegiate Debate has become an event of major importance in Intercollegiate circles. Last year Queen's debated against McGill University, but lost the decision of the judges in each of the two debates, although there was difficulty in reaching a decision. Miss Dorothy Wilkins is the only member of last year's team who is again debating. The other three members of the team have had considerable experience in debating, especially Miss Morrison, and interesting arguments will be put forth on the chosen subject.

Johnny Evans Memorial Trophy Awarded To Captain Howie Carter By Team-Mates

Trophy Presented At Final Rugby Banquet

The Senior Rugby team, together with its friends, helpers, and guardians, gathered around a festive board on Tuesday evening, to partake of the hospitality of the Athletic Board of Control. This is an annual affair, and one which is always a happy one for the warriors because it marks the end of a long training and playing grind.

Prior to the dinner, the team met at the stadium, climber into their football togs for one more time, and had their pictures recorded for future Frosh to gaze upon and marvel.

It was a happy band of non-vegetarians, that bumped elbows, the only absentees being Mr. McGinnis, chairman of the A. B. of C., and Coach Milt Burt who were unavoidably detained elsewhere.

The most interesting event of the evening was the choosing of the recipient of the Johnny Evans Memorial Trophy. This trophy was presented by the team-mates of the late Johnny Evans, who was accidently drowned last summer. Dr. Bill Campbell, who was both a team and class mate of Johnny, in presenting the cup, paid high tribute to the popular and clever quarterback. The trophy is awarded annually to the most valuable player of the Senior team, and the player is chosen by a secret ballot.

Captain Howie Carter was chosen by his mates, as the first holder of the trophy, and the reason is not hard to seek. Howie has been one of the mainstays of the Queen's teams of the past few years and is as popular as he is respected in Intercollegite circles.

"HOWIE" CARTER

Who was awarded the Evans Memorial Trophy as the most valuable player on the senior rugby team.

After the molar work had been completed, Howie Carter read a letter from Mr. McGinnis, in which the Chairman expressed his regrets at his enforced absence, and emphasized his appreciation of the team's loyalty to the A. B. of C.

Prof. Wilgar acted as chairman of the evening and proposed the toast to the King.

Howie Carter, was a much worked man during the banquet, and proposed the next toast to the A. B. of C. He paid tribute

(Continued on page 6)

Medical Formal Revellers Dance In Enchanting Medieval Fortress

Delightful Feudal Atmosphere Created By Beauty And Magnificence Of Decorations

Another Medical At-Home has passed into history, but it is safe to predict that guests who were present will not soon forget the beauties and delights of the evening.

All that was promised by the Medical committee was fulfilled in a very wonderful and efficient manner. The evening passed all too quickly for those who were held in a magic spell, that only Medical at-homes can cast.

Guests began to gather shortly after nine o'clock and were welcomed by the patronesses: Mesdames. Mylks, Etherington, McCallum and Gibson.

Upon entering the spacious gymnasium, the guests were immediately struck with the beauty and magnificence of the decorations, which being truly and carefully planned to represent the courtyard of an ancient English castle, seemed to throw a mantle of the time of Feudal days over all.

Lofty battlements surrounded the courtyard on every side, towering pillars, concealing cunningly arranged lighting effects, and iron barred crescent shaped windows, diffusing a soft glow over the scene.

The Wright Bros. famous dance orchestra, were ensconsed in a majestic entrance leading into the heart of the stronghold. This was so constructed that it acted as a most efficient sound-box, and enabled the softest of notes to be heard in any part of the room.

The music was the finest obtainable and the throng, was more than delighted with Wright Bros. band. A favorite last year, this popular dance ensemble was engaged again by popular demand.

A tasty and dainty supper was served in a dining room that was filled with soft glowing lights, and this innovation proved especially delightful.

Card tables in a beautifully furnished room were provided for those who did not care to spend the entire evening in dancing. This was particularly pleasing to the older members of the Faculty, and their wives.

Much excitement and suspense was evidenced as the favors were

Continued on page 4

Walter Scott's Skull Pathologic Problem

Peak Of Cranium Due To Sutures Closing?

Sir Walter Scott, the centenary of whose death is being celebrated this year, was probably the most successful writer in the history of all literature. This success appeared not only in the extreme popularity of his writings, but also in his financial earnings, and in the full and happy life he led. Strange it is, then, to find that throughout his life he struggled with physical handicaps of a more or less serious nature. Chief of these was his lameness, the cause of which has always remained something of a mystery.

A less commented-upon pathological characteristic was the shape of his cranium, which ascended in the form of a peak, about which he himself was wont to joke, saying, "Better be Peverill of the Peak than Peter of the Paunch." The top of his skull was very high and narrow, sloping up and back to a kind of point. Andrew Lang, in an interesting article on Scott published in 1906 in Scribner's magazine, comments upon this peculiar characteristic of the great writer's head, and states that "an American specialist" has advanced the theory that the peak was due to early closing of the skull sutures, causing the brain to have to force itself upward instead of laterally. A search through the indices of medical literature has unfortunately failed to reveal the article or the name of the American specialist. The truth of the matter is that Scott doubtless suffered from some osseous condition that accounted for the 'peak', which was probably what is now known as acrocephaly.

Physicians of the modern era who have been interested in Scott's medical history and have studied closely the available records, incline to the opinion that the novelist's lameness probably came from an early attack

Continued on page 3

Carnegie Committee Members Announced

A committee of six, including representatives both from the faculty and from the student body, has just been appointed to decide how to spend this year's instalment of the Carnegie Grant to the University library. The following are members: Principal W. H. Fyfe, Principal H. A. Kent, Librarian E. C. Kyte, Vi. Kilpatrick, Eric Gilmour, and Ernie Robertson.

Under the terms of the grant $5,000 may be spent this year on books that will secure the attention of students and stimulate interest in reading. The committee has already embarked on the work of selecting suitable volumes for purchase, and it is expected that as a result of their efforts the library will be soon put to greater use by the student body. Unless students take advantage of this opportunity the grant for the next two years will have to be forfeited.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088 F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ——MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ——NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ——SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ——LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ——LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ——SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ——MEDICINE

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26th, 1932

The American Spectator

The United States awoke one morning recently to find that another newspaper had been born overnight. This latest publication to appear on the horizon of American literature is a literary newspaper published under the title of "The American Spectator." The singular feature of this organ is that it does not and will not contain advertising.

It is brilliantly edited and written by such men as George Jean Nathan, Ernest Boyd, Theodore Dreiser, Eugene O'Neill, and James Branch Cabell. The first issue contained the following contributions: "The Physician and Sex," by Havelock Ellis; "English and American Publishers," by Frank Swinnerton; "Aesthete's Progress," by Ernest Boyd; "The Weakness of American Criticism," by Joseph Wood Krutch; "Daughter of Niobe," by Louise Untermeyer; "The Irish Censorship," by Liam O'Flaherty; "The Theatre," by George Jean Nathan; "When I Want a Drink," by Clarence Darrow; "The Genteel Tradition in Sex," by Branch Cabell; "The Day of Surfeit," by Theodore Dreiser and many other articles of interest.

The paper has four pages, five columns wide, and sells for ten cents a copy when in stock. The problem seems to be to purchase a copy. We learn that of the first edition twelve thousand copies were printed, newsdealers called for ten thousand more, and finally an additional ten thousand had to be turned out to meet the public demand. It is also understood that the editors draw no salaries. They meet in a New York tea shop (or is it a speakeasy?) and pledge themselves to write what they think on public and individual issues.

The purpose of the publication is explained in the editorial run in the first issue — "The American Spectator has no policy in the common sense of the word. It advocates no panaceas; it has no axes to grind; it has no private lists of taboos. It offers an opportunity for the untrammelled expression of individual opinion."

Under its present policy of accepting no advertising, we feel that "The American Spectator" will quickly find a niche of importance in the firmament of American publications. The idea of publishing a newspaper or a magazine without advertising space is not new by any means but it is always an interesting experiment. It places in the hands of the editors a powerful weapon, as they are influenced by no special interests. The greatest writers of America are counted among the contributing staff and now a worthy medium is offered them, that they may express themselves freely.

Many will question the sincerity of the editors who are all professional writers noted for their frankness and eagerness for truth. The reading public will find it difficult to disassociate with the novel plan the idea of a publicity stunt, for the sacredness of sincerity has been sacrificed not infrequently at the altar of All-Mighty Dollar. We feel, however, that such notions should be expelled immediately. The officials of this publication are leaders in the field of "belles lettres" and have reached the top only through the straightforwardness, honesty and frankness that characterizes their work.

Perhaps one of the best articles in the inaugural number is George Jean Nathan's diagnosis of the greatest ill afflicting the American Theatre. Women players, he says, have lost their appeal because of their masculine hardness, which has rendered love scenes ridiculous and subtleness utterly impossible. There is no place on the stage of warm and throbbing drama for their product of the last decade, he concludes. Another article of interest is Liam O'Flaherty's low down on the Irish censorship question. He deplores the unexplainable hypocrisy so apparent in the present regime in Ireland.

If the first issue can be taken as a criterion of the quality and appeal of "The American Spectator" the editors need have little fear of its reception by the public.

The question now arises "How long will it continue on the narrow and rocky path it has undertaken?"

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Smug Sophistication

A new slant on the overworked word "sophistication" was given by Professor Vlastos of Queen's University in his address in Knox College chapel yesterday morning. Dr. Vlastos defined it as "the consciousness of the large number of possible attitudes or reactions," but laid emphasis upon the fact that the sophisticated person seldom assumes more than one or two of the attitudes, and often takes pride in his indifference to the majority of them.

The speaker pointed out that to call a person "sophisticated" has become a most tactful and welcome compliment, and is indicative of the modern mood in respect to religion. True religion is not composed of complexities — religion demands singleness. The faithlessness of the present generation is often the result of its sophistication.

Professor Vlastos is highly popular at Queen's University, and not without reason. He demonstrated by his address that he is in touch with student life, and with student problems. He approaches the modern mood with an understanding attitude, and fearlessly and forcefully offers the only solution for the religious situation to-day.

Singleness as contrasted to complexity, plus devotion and faith, these are qualities which religion demands. Religion will then bring a freshness which is not found even in innocence, and it will supply a real reason for existence.

The answer to the religious problem to-day, as expressed by the speaker, is for the individual to be reborn to religion. In that he was merely repeating the words of one far greater who said, "Ye must be born again."

—The Varsity.

Earl Russell

Earl Russell's statment in his book "Education and the Social Order," that "University life would be better, intellectually and morally, if the students had temporary childless marriages," is, to say the very least, startling. Leaving aside all moral issues involved, the proposal is not only impracticable but also unwarranted.

Most undergraduates are healthy beings, not morbid sensualists, and are not worried by what the Earl calls "the sexual urge" to anything like the extent that he suggests. "Companionate marriage," he says, "would solve the sexual urge without being restless, surreptitious, mercenary, or casual, and would not occupy time that should be devoted to work."

In the University of Sydney we have not yet seen the "sexual urge" driving undergraduates into the condition for which the Earl proposes this drastic remedy. It can be doubted whether the Earl has seen the impulse assume these proportions, in any other university. More likely the condition is merely the figment of a debased mind. The sexual impulse undeniably exists, but it is merely one of the normal properties of the human body, and this aggrandizement of its importance is unnecessary. The sexual impulse is meant to be controlled, not to control.

What the Earl would propose to do in a University like Sydney, where there are twice as many men as women, we do not know.

—"Honi Soit"—Sydney, Australia.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

1. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

2. Scholarships to the total value of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard.

The conditions of award will be announced later.

General Examinations
Faculty of Arts

Students who will be candidates for an Honour Degree at the close of this session must take in addition to the regular sessional examinations a general examination covering the whole field of work in their main subject. The results of the general examination will be an important element in the determination of final standing.

Candidates who divide their Honour work equally between their special subjects may take the general examination in either subject.

New Scholarships in Applied Science

1. (a) In the first year four scholarships of value $100 each and four of value $75 each will be awarded.

(b) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., English, Mathematics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics and Surveying.

2. (a) In the second year six scholarships of value $90 each.

(b) Three of these are to be awarded in the ABCD section and three in the EFG section.

(c) These scholarships will be awarded on the basis of the returns in all subjects having examinations, viz., in all except Drawing and Shop Work.

(d) No student shall hold more than two scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded at the May Convocation and the money will be available in the next session.

The holder of one of these may hold one of the present scholarships."

A scholarship may be carried over for one session if the recipient is unable to return for the session in which it would be available.

BOTTLES

The Syracuse Daily Orange has gone and spoiled all our enthusiasm for the football game this afternoon. "There were," says the Orange, "more empty whiskey bottles found in the stadium after the Colgate game than there have been for the past four years . . . approximately 2,500 bottles were found in and around the big oval. Last year there were between 500 and 1,000 less." The information was gathered by a reporter from the men who clean the stadium. For the sake of the Orange reporter we're pretty much wrought up about the whole business. We can imagine the reporter lingering in the stadium after last Saturday's game until everyone had gone home, and then rushing down to quiz the stadium cleaners. His story of the game must have been: "In the midst of a wildly clinking mass of frenzied whiskey bottles, unofficially estimated at 2,500, Colgate battered its way to a 16-0 victory over Syracuse here today . . ."

—Daily Tar Heel

SOUNDS FISHY TO US

Speaking of suffrage in education—, a cat was admitted to Syracuse University as a member of the class of 1936. It was put under the care of the dean of Women, but she referred the matter to the Dean of Men,—after all, it was a tomcat.

—The Lafayette.

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes

Experience in buying choice Virginia, Turkish and Burley tobaccos, plus the knowledge of years in blending these choice grades of leaf—produces this highest grade of blended cigarettes . . .

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Matteds"

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

HOCKEY OUTFITS
BOOTS and SKATES
The Highest Quality at the Lowest Prices
Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
Downtown
208 Princess St. Phone 505
Uptown
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

MUSIC

Those who were unable to be present at the last meeting of the Music Group of the Kingston Art and Music Club had an opportunity to hear some of the selections last Tuesday, when the Music Club met at Mrs. Tracy's home; while those who had heard them before found many of them vastly improved on second hearing. This was especially the case with the Holst songs, for Mrs. Tracy read the words before singing them, which served a double purpose: the listeners could grasp their intrinsic beauty, and then being relieved of the effort of trying to follow them, could more fully enjoy the music to which they were set.

The thanks of the club are offered to the orchestra, which consisted of Piano: Mrs. Tracy; Flute: Dr. Gummer; Violins: Misses Muriel Arbuckle, Mabel Edwards, Phyllis Gummer and Dorothy Neilson; Viola: Dr. Tracy; Cellos: Messrs. Jack Baker, Bill Gummer. They opened the program with a Mozart Minuet, then a Ballet-Suite and Musette by Rameau-Motte. Before playing the Mozart Concerto for Flute and Harp, Dr. Gummer explained that the term Concerto means a composition in which a small group of solo instruments are contrasted with the orchestra. The skill of the composer lies in avoiding the obvious, for instance merely giving a theme in the orchestra and then repeating it on the solo instruments; in this concerto Motzart has dexterously avoided such pitfalls, as also the danger of making the piece sound like heavy passages in the orchestra interspersed with showy but empty fluting.

Following some records by the modern composer Holst, which pleased some and grated upon others, the evening was brought to a close by Mrs. Tracy's lovely soprano, sympathetically accompanied by Mrs. Cook. She sang three songs, On Betelgeuse (where the golden leaves hang motionless for millions of miles), Dream City and A Little Music, all set by Holst. She briefly explained some of the peculiarities of the music, which fits closely the sound and sense of the words.

The Music Club cannot thank sufficiently those who provided such a pleasant entertainment.

New Science Club Room Opened Last Wednesday

Filling a long felt need, the new Science club room was opened last Wednesday to all members of the Engineering Society. This room in the back of the Tech. Supply was redecorated and furnished by the University and given to the Society for the use of its members.

For some time the society has had a small room in the bottom of Carruthers Hall, but due to the fact that smoking is not allowed in that building, has been of little use to those concerned.

The new room contains, in the way of furniture, six large chesterfield chairs, a large central table, two or three bridge tables, several office chairs, and two large benches across the room.

The room is well lighted by three large drop lights, and five big windows, and offers an excellent place to spend those long non-lecture hours. Members will be admitted from eight until five every week day.

The committee in charge have been chosen from the Society Executive, and Ken Southern is chairman.

Book Chats

By R.M.

Clarence Darrow, veteran actor in many forensic scenes, at once the ogre and hero of American lawyers, passed his eighty-sixth birthday last spring and now has written the story of his life. (The Story of My Life by Clarence Darrow, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

It is a striking commentary upon the success of this book that it has been a best-seller for the past six months and has occasioned favourable comment from reviewers everywhere. Personally, I was a little disappointed that Mr. Darrow hadn't been more frank with his readers and told us of his own thoughts, feelings, fears and petty mistakes instead of spending three-quarters of the book on public events and issues. But perhaps this is a case where a reviewer should say "I don't like this book but I know I should like it."

Clarence Darrow discusses crime and punishment; he justifies the place of the alienist in American courts; since none of us are responsible for the influences of heredity, environment, and training that mould our lives, he concludes that anyone accused of a crime is entitled to have his head examined before the court pronounces judgment. And one has to admit that Mr. Darrow is sincere in this view. The ogre of American courts disappears and a loveable, kindly old man with the courage of his convictions and the welfare of the people at heart is the picture that replaces the distorted newspaper facsimiles that have long been held up to the public eye.

A charming story of London life is "Benefits Received" by Alice Grant Rosman (Thomas Allen, publisher, Toronto). Miss Rosman has written several novels in a lighter vein, such as "The Window" and "Visitors to Hugo." Although outward characteristics in her latest book are not particularly well portrayed, she has a talent for sketching artistic settings, and for delineating subtle, often concealed traits of inner personality.

"Mrs. Devonshire," is the outstanding figure in the book. About her are grouped a galaxy of avaricious relatives and near-relatives in such profusion that the reader often becomes confused in the genealogical connections. English novelists of the present day seem to have a tendency to introduce too many characters into their stories. Hugh Walpole, for instance, is obsessed with a sense of family. He persists in reminiscing about hereditary traits. This objection cannot be made to Miss Rosman's book, but her novel certainly loses power from a dispersion of interest among a number of minor figures.

"Biddy Kerlin," granddaughter of Mrs. Devonshire," is much like the grand dame, in her independence, aloofness, and aversion for vicarious enthusiasms. Afraid of sentiment in any form "Mrs. Devonshire," learning she hasn't long to live, intentionally picks a quarrel with Biddy, to get her out of the house. Then there develops a love affair between "Biddy" and "Sholto Fenwick." This does not progress as rapidly as in American novels of "love at first sight," for Biddy is undemonstrative, and "Sholto" has a fatal sense of humour that always crops up in the wrong place. On the whole, though, "Benefits Received" is much above the average light novel and makes entertaining reading.

James Mackintosh Bell, M.A., Ph.D., has written several books all characteristic by soundness of scholarship and vigour of style. "Far Places" (The Macmillan Co. of Canada) which I only read recently, adds much to his reputation as a writer of pellucid, beautiful prose.

Where could one find a finer literary touch than that displayed in the following:

"Rich stories of recollection are mine. Golden memories enshrine camps beneath resinous pines by Canadian lakes, bivouacs on flowing slopes amid New Zealand mountains, resting places near coral shores of tropic islands. Precious remembrances stay with me of climbs over Alpine pastures and across fields of glistening snow, to crests among the Pyrennees, a journey with Ojibway canoemen on rivers racing northward to Hudson's Bay. Always remains the lure to see new lands, to learn the ways of strange peoples." Lack of space prevents me from quoting more; yet this selection is characteristic and gives an inkling of the wide range of Dr. Bell's travels.

There is an interesting chapter of a journey to Great Bear Lake; another on three weeks in New Caledonia; an account of an eventful expedition through the Kirghiz Steppes. The fifth chapter gives side lights on a Jamaican trip, while the last gives us some glimpses of Albania. Throughout, one notices the careful scholarship of a real student, the wealth of knowledge of an historian, the acute observation of the scientists and a poet's appreciation of natural beauty. Truly, a most stimulating and profitable book to read.

Sir Walter Scott's Cranium Peculiar Pathologic Case

Continued from page 1

of infantile paralysis, since the onset, symptoms, and results seem to resemble the effects of that malady more than any other. Scott himself, never reticent about his personal affairs, wrote, "I showed every sign of health and strength until I was about eighteen months old. In the morning I was discovered to be affected with the fever that often accompanies the cutting of large teeth. It held me three days. On the fourth, when they went to bathe me as usual, they discovered that I had lost the power of my right leg although there appeared to be no dislocation or sprain."

Scott's grandfather, James Rutherford, was professor of clinical medicines at Edinburgh University at the time when the child became afflicted. When the weakness of the limb persisted, he recommended that the boy be sent to the shep farm of a trusted servant of the family. He devised a clever system of exercise for the weakened muscles of the affected side, which resulted in great gain in strength. Bright attractive objects, which would appeal to a small boy were cunningly placed beyond his reach and the exercise of reaching them produced a great improvement in the weakened muscles. Utimately the leg gained considerable strength and became quite useful, but Scott remained lame to the end of his life.

Taking a very active part in the social life of his time, Scott in later life paid a heavy price for his indulgence in the then fashionable excess in eating and drinking. The earliest intimation that something was wrong came in the midst of a dinner party, when Scott was seized by a sudden pain in his abdomen so excrutiating that he almost fainted. Such attacks came upon him more and more frequently with the passage of years, and the continuance of high living, and the novelist was finally reduced to a diet of tea and toast which rectified his biliary trouble in spite of bleeding, cupping, blistering, calomel and ipeacuana treatments.

Fighting to regain his fortune after fifty years old, and grieving over his wife's death, he became the victim of circulatory and nervous disturbances. When he was fifty-nine his first attack of apoplexy occurred. His father and an elder brother had both died of this malady. When he first regained consciousness he could not control his vocal apparatus. A severe diet brought about a marked degree of physical recovery from the seizure but Scott's mental powers never regained their apex, as a certain deterioration in his literary work done after that time plainly shows. Two more seizures occurred in one and two years respectively, and a fourth and last on his way home from a continental visit shortly preceded his death. It is probably that the noticeable decline in Scott's intellectual powers was due to defective renal action, to a complex of symptoms, and to the structural alterations of enemia.

The volume and quality of the literary work produced by this novelist is the more remarkable when reviewed in the light of his severe and frequent illnesses.

—Medical Journal and Record.

Excessive Osculation Is Not Dangerous

A great sigh of relief has gone up from the habitats of romance. It's the depression and not kissing that spreads Vincent angina infection, otherwise known as trench mouth.

Trench mouth is spreading rapidly—an increase of 100 per cent in nine years, Dr. Luckett, associate professor of hygiene, affirms. A recent survey, started by a New York doctor in love, has absolved the maids and damned the drinking glass.

The depression is the medium. Depression conditions cause economy. Economy removes paper cups in public drinking places and substitutes glass or tin cups. Voila! The little trench mouth germ clings to the cup and waits for the next victim.

Harmless Pastime

Knowing that kissing is no more dangerous than taking a drink of water, the amorous swain may now enjoy without fear the saccharine delights of a nuzzled embrace.

The juxtapositionary contacts of osculation have been unjustly criticized. Girls with damp, splattery kisses have been under suspicion of having trench mouth, when, as a matter of fact, they have been merely drooling with delight.

This leaves the trench mouthers with no advantages at all. They used to have at least the compensation of thinking the means justified the end. Now they are looked upon, not as successful Don Juans, but merely as a little careless in their drinking habits.

"Academic Interest"

The survey is likely to have only an academic interest to Stanfordites. The "500" has never been bothered about the tendency of germs to roam from the original reservation. There is the "250" who are "awfully sorry, but I'm simply not that type of girl," and then there is the "250" from which the germs haven't a chance to spread, burning to a crisp before getting to first base.

Further study of the subject will be made, but in a more optimistic state of mind, now that it is known that the great national boudoir and flivver pastime is not under suspicion.

—Stanford Daily.

But Ask Our Christian Dean!

According to a professor of the University of Oregon, all college students should be married, as this would tend to make for higher academic standing. The professor probably means that time put in chasing the wily "IT" and its followers could be more usefully put to study.

—Polytechnic Reporter.

Latest

An absent minded John Hopkins professor parked his car in front of a grocery store, made some purchases, and then completely forgetting about his car, walked home. Finding that the car was not in his garage the next morning, he reported to the police that it had been stolen.

—Amherst Student.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY — "Homecoming Frolics of 1932" is one of the innovations in the Homecoming events this year. It consists of a feature picture and talent.

STUDENTS!

Notes and theses typed at reasonable rates. 'Phone 1033.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847

Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's

A Great Special Selling of

MEN'S OVERCOATS

$15.75

Values $20.00 and $22.50

$19.75

Values $25.00 and $27.50

LIVINGSTONS

Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.

IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Doyle's Haircutting Place

THOROUGHLY MODERN

4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES

J. McCORMICK, Prop.

167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer

SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS

180 Wellington Street 'Phone 21

Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

BEFORE THE DANCE
SPECIAL RATES
AND SERVICE
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

THE SUCCESS OF THE PARTY
DEPENDS ON YOUR TAXI
PHONE 448 PHONE
NOW
7 Passenger Heated Sedans Only
Capitol Taxi
448 PHONE 448
Ask the driver for tickets

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Leased Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1235 33 Union St. W.

The Wonderful One

The qualified medical profession is troubled at frequent intervals by reports among patients of miraculous cures by osteopaths and other manipulators. Many of these "cures" are legendary, but many of them also cannot be explained away. In spite of the fact tat osteopaths have this year again been refused recognition as reputable practitioners, there is a growing belief in some Branches of the profession that the practice of manipulative treatment cannot be lightly dismissed. All physicians recognize that displacements and adhesions in the joints of the extremities produce symptoms resulting from irritation and referred pain, and it seems a logical step from this to the belief that many painful affectations may be due to irregularities in more central joints, such as those of the vertebral column.

Dr. James Mennell, in the British Medical Journal for Aug. 20, says. "Pain in the right iliac jassa may be due to sensitiveness of the ligaments on the anterior aspect of the sacro-iliac joint. Should the tension on these ligaments be relieved by manipulation, the pain will disappear, and the patient will broadcast the wonderful cure of whin had perhaps been dagnosed elsewhere as chronic appendicitis. In this case the pain has been cured but not the appendicitis, as this did not in fact exist.

"The confirmed believer in ostenpathy will fly to an osteopath for everything, even if her child be suffering from such a complaint as German measles and — mirabile dictu—recovery takes place rapidly. Nothing will convince this mother that recovery took place in spite of manipulation and not because of it. This applies to many other so-called "cures." It is amazing, as well as humiliating, to reflect that any treatment has to be excessively bad before it will interfere with the wonderful recuperative power of nature. It is sometimes within our power to assist nature and hasten recovery, or even to render recovery possible by removing influences that might retard or prevent it: but restoration of function is nothing else than the release of natural processes from disabling interference. To review manipulation in this light, there can be no doubt that it can, in suitable cases, be successful in removing, or providing a remedy for the disabling interference.

A child labelled "Kyphosis" may be sent to the physical treatment department at hospital, and after a few weeks the mother will report that it has lost "that cheerful cough." The dreadful cough will always prove to have been of the asthmatic type. This suggests that the immobility of the joints of the thoracic spine may have been the cause of the irritation of the sympathetic which gave rise to the cough, and that restoration of mobility removed the source of irritation. It puts within the bounds of possibility the common claim of the osteopath that at least one of the varieties of asthma can be remedied by manipulation.

Pain may radiate along the intercostal nerves around the chest wall, not only from a lesion in the costovertebral joints, but also as the result of disordered mobility in one of the intervertebral joints. The lower costovertebral distribution passes over the front of the abdomen, and frequently pain referred along one of the nerves which supply the abdominal wall is mistaken for pain within the abdomen. If the symptoms are derived from one of the nerve trunks which supply the area over the stomach they may be attributed to indigestion. The conviction may be strengthened by a practitioner's diagnosis of dyspepsia. The usual medicinal and dietetic remedies are tried, but the pain persists. In despair the patient may seek relief by manipulation, and will receive it. Thus we have another "wonderful cure of indigestion." Had the initial diagnosis been correct, manipulation would have been the first principle, and not the last, when prescribing measures to relieve the symptoms.

"Relief from pain on the opposite side which may quite easily, but wrongly, have been attributed to the gall bladder, may add to the number of patients who are alleged to have been cured of gallstones by manipulation.

"The immense reputation gained by unqualified practitioners for their power to cure a variety of ailments by manipulation, is thus largely attributable to errors in diagnosis by members of our own profession.

"Possibly we do not always try to sift the truth from claim made on behalf of manipulation. Our minds are perhaps warped with prejudice. The claims of patients cured by manipulation are based on personal experience and there may be some hidden truth yet to be revealed when study of the sympathetic nervous system has advanced far enough to include the effect of initiation of the sympathetic nerve supply to the joints, or other ramifications of the sympathetic nerve supply to the joints, or other ramifications of the sympathetic nervous system. Perhaps one of a future generation may read what has been said today and marvel at our ignorance

"We may at present have no explanation for certain facts, yet let us remember that bitter bark was used universally in the treatment of malaria long before anyone had thought of quinine and before the malaria parasite had been isolated. Twenty years ago joint manipulation in the extremities was well-nigh anathema, yet now it is recognized as a legitimate branch of medical practice. Possibly another twenty years will see general recognition of the therapeutic value of manipulation of the joints of the spine.

"We are only doing our duty if, when we hear of a new claim put forward for manipulation, we receive it with doubt until the claim has been tested and failed to be found wanting either in reason or fact. But blind unbelief which will not listen, reason, nor enquire, is nothing more than pigheadedness. So long as patients are refused the treatment at the hands of others by which they can obtain relief, so long shall the medical profession play into the hands of the unqualified practitioner."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Editor:

In your last issue you refer to the "unofficial long distance mark" set by a student at Ohio State University who travelled 6,000 miles to enter that institution. Though this record is worthy of attention it cannot compare with that of some of our own undergraduates.

To go to Queen's some of us come fronte a home which may be across the road from the campus or from the small town in Eastern Ontario which provides Kingston with most of its cheques that are cashed during the school year. But we can also boast about our long distance drawing power.

For instance, a member of second year Commerce is a resident of interior China, over 2,000 miles inland from the Pacific Ocean. His father is the Y.M.C.A. representative at Ching-tu, on a branch of the Yangtze River in the province of Szechuan in West China. The attraction of our Commerce courses is so great as to induce him to travel over 6,000 miles by boat and 3,000 miles by rail to seek our halls of learning. As a matter of fact, the parental home is so nearly on the opposite side of the earth from Kingston that it makes very little difference whether he travels east around Africa or west across the Pacific to get here. Although, of English extraction he plans to return almost 10,000 miles to go into business as soon as the local faculty can be induced to part with the elusive sheepskin.

Ohio State doesn't even come close to Queen's.

M. L. R., '32.

Smooth Pigs and Snaky Hogs

The University of Oregon claims all copyrights, patents and reservations on the addition of the word "pigging" to the English language. The word, according to its originators, denotes attentions paid the unmarried girls.

"Hogging" probably will be a newer word to denote attentions paid to married women.

—Oklahoma Daily.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO—Edgewater Beach Hotel has announced its fall and winter season of "College Night," Friday evening features of the Marine Dining room.

"Come All Ye Faithful

At Northwestern University coeds who want to remain faithful to far-away loves have organized and will refuse all dates with students. The men have retaliated with a similar organization, the members of which wear a bit of black crepe.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

CLEVELAND COLLEGE—As a result of requests coming from various civic organizations, the extension division of Cleveland College is presenting a training course in negro social work.

TRICOLOR NOTICE

Final year students are asked to hand in photographs to the appropriate Associate Editors as soon as possible. The Associate Editors are: for Levana, Mary McLennan, and for Arts, Roy Sharp; the names of those for Meds and Science will be announced in the next issue of the Journal.

Year Societies, Athletic Teams, and Campus organizations are requested to assist the work of publication by turning in group photographs at an early date. Anyone who possesses good snapshots suitable for reproduction in the College Life Section of the Year Book is invited to hand them in to one of the Associate Editors.

Edinburgh Reminiscences Entertain Arts Society

Continued from page 1

The Rectorial Elections were the greatest fun according to Prof. Miller. A politician was elected and both a Liberal and a Conservative ran for office. The highlight of the election was a terrific hand-to-hand struggle in the quadrangle in which everybody got plastered with paint, flour and eggs. When the elected rector made his speech, the defeated party never allowed him to be heard.

Dr. Millar was introduced by Charlie Pinch, President of the Aesculapean Society.

After the address there was a discussion as to whether the rule enforcing compulsory attendance of freshmen should be abolished. Some speakers thought that the freshmen would not come out without it, while others maintained that compulsion on any grounds was not a fit basis for a society. Others pointed out that if the freshmen did not turn out the attendance would be insignificant, as the other years do not turn out enough to justify having speakers come and address the club.

It was decided to leave the matter over for general consideration until a later opportunity for discussion and decision could be provided.

Aspersion?

The question arises whether or not the student polls are practical. Do the results mean that more Republicans than Democrats are sending their sons and daughters to school this year or is it an indication that students are inexpert in judging the political currents?

—Editorial in The Pennsylvanian

Dartmouth students are forced to pay poll taxes in the town of Hanover, New Hampshire, where the college is located.

Medical Formal Revellers Dance In Medieval Castle

Continued from page 1

distributed, and the ladies were intensely amused and delighted as wooden replicas of our old friend Micky Mouse were unfolded. These were painted in Queen's colors and were suitably inscribed. It is needless to say that the favors were a particular hit.

Dancing lasted until about three a.m. and it was a very happy and tired crowd that flitted away soon after the throbbing notes of the home waltz were played. Altogether it was one of the most beautiful and pleasing formals held in many years.

AFTER ARMISTICE DAY

Four years in trenches deep with mud,
In tropic heat, in cold and rain,
We gave our youth, we spilt our blood
To save the ruins that remain.

Now, after fourteen years are done,
Since first the bugles brought release,
We see the prize our anguish won . . . .
O Victory, where is thy peace?

E. H. G.

UNION HOUSE COMMITTEE

The new House Committee for the Students' Union has been elected. How Hamlin was appointed chairman. The other members are: Jack Finley, W. J. Newman, Jack Kostuik, Pete Lewis and Bill Carr.

Two members are elected from each faculty by the Council of the Students' Union. The chairman of the House Committee automatically becomes a member of the Students' Council.

It is the duty of the Committee to exercise a general supervision over the activities of the Union.

ROY M. LONGO
With Geo. Salstone's Orchestra
Teacher of
Tenor Banjo, Mandola, Mandolin, Tenor Guitar, Spanish Guitar, String Bass, Arranging, Harmony.
212 Division St. Phone 1434-W

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE
AND DANCE
TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

A LOVE THAT SURVIVED FIFTY YEARS OF HATE . . .
NORMA SHEARER
Frederick March
Leslie Howard
in
"SMILIN' THROUGH"
From The Play That Captured The Heart Of The World.

Sat. Mon. Tues.

Capitol THEATRE

We carry a full assortment of Penman's Full Fashioned Guaranteed Hosiery in Chiffon and Service.

SPECIAL FOR THE WEEK-END ONLY

6 pairs $1.00 hose for $5.00

2 or 3 students may purchase together

PENMANS
NEW SILK HOSIERY

LUCILLE'S LADIES' WEAR
160 Princess St. Phone 2009

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG

The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.

SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

Douglas Fairbanks—Maria Alba.

Douglas Fairbanks is up to his old tricks again—He climbs trees, swings from limb to limb, and jumps from precipice to precipice with a very commendable agility.

Like Bird of Paradise, and all the countless other pictures with a Tahitian setting, there is little plot. Douglas Fairbanks, while on a cruise in the South Pacific, makes a bet with his friends that, à la Robinson Crusoe, he can live for several months on a desert island with nothing but a tooth-brush. Why he bothered to take even that is hard to say, because his ingenuity in making himself at home is nothing short of amazing. One sees him, in the space of a week, devise houses, traps, fishing-nets, axes, knives, forks, beds, chairs, hair-brushes, scissors and sundry other articles of domestic like, but when he finally makes a radio for himself, the most fertile imagination is taxed. (We admit the static was rather bad.)

The picture in inclined to drag. One becomes tired of hearing Mr. Fairbanks declaiming in guide-book fashion to the dog. This is varied by natives conversing in Tahitian language which presents difficulties to those who are unfamiliar with it.

Maria Alba supplies the love-interest, if such it may be called.

Special mention should be made of the parrot, who gave a very finished performance.

C++.

AT THE TIVOLI

CHANDU, THE MAGICIAN
with
Edmund Lowe, Bela Lugosi and Irene Ware

For some time now Hollywood has been busily combing the field of mystery in fiction. A continuous stream of thrillers has consequently been flooding the box-office. The Hollywood technique is particularly suited to this sort of thing. Wizard photography, directorial tours de force, actors transformed by make-up specialists and emotionally keyed to their parts: we have the ingredients of mystery.

Such an incursion into the world of unreality has been made by the sponsors of Chandu, The Magician. At times manifestly absurd, this film will entertain you against your better judgment.

A restless army officer (our adjective) becomes initiated into the secret rites of the Yogi mystery cult. He undertakes to combat a madman, who is about to appropriate the formula for a death ray. Our progressive young Yogi performs incredible feats of hypnosis. The scene is laid in the Far East. There are painstaking efforts to capture the more or less fictitious atmosphere of eastern fatality and mysticism. The Yogi is accompanied on his daring mission by a princess who seemed to us to have lost her native picturesqueness through contact with western culture (she spoke dreamily, we recall, of nights in Paris).

The whole thing is a curious hodge-podge of eastern temples garnished with grotesque idols, of slave-markets, camels and minarets, and of such western gadgets as tear-gas bombs, highly complex machinery, cockney accents, and so on.

Rather a neat trick giving Edmund Lowe the lead in such a film. He is such a normal, sane sort of person that he lends an air of credulity to a piece of highly coloured brain-fever. B.

Scottish Musicians Stage Clever Sketch

Billed as a sketch based on "The Cotter's Saturday Night," Robert Burns' famous poem, the opening presentation offered by The Scottish Musical Company at the Kingston Technical School Auditorium proved to be worthy of the advance notice given to it and struck a responsive note with the audience.

John E. Daniels' arrangement follows the poem in outline and the sketch of the Scots family is representative of the peasant folk in the lowlands of Scotland. The picture offered us is that of a peasant family come together for an evening with the old folks. As the evening progresses many humorous stories of the day's activities are related. Each one may call upon his store of anecdotes and keep the humour and the entertainment alive, or a song may help to furnish the homely pleasure.

William Dixon in the role of Tammas Cuthbertson, a neighbor, easily runs away with the major honors. We have never seen a Scotsman quite like him in appearance or any other man for that matter. Endowed by nature with a build and features that would permit him to be nothing less than a comedian, he drew rounds of laughter from his very first appearance. His clever pantomime kept the audience in twitters.

T. Allister Wallace as John Anderson, the Cotter, was excellent in his part. His naturalness and clear diction were attractive features that could not leave the audience unresponsive. Mary McMahon did justice to the role of the Cotter's daughter. Margaret Bruce gave a satisfactory performance in the subdued role of the Cotter's wife. Watt Dixon as the Cotter's son was effective and amusing. The weakest performance proved to be that of Randolph Salmon as the Laird's son. Salmon's acting made one look forward to his singing. Grace McDonald, an attractive lass, showed that she has mastered the intricacies of playing the bagpipes. We enjoyed her dancing, especially. We were hoping to see more of Grace.

The singing featured this dramatization. "Laddie" sung by Mary McMahon and "Hurrah for the Highlands" by T. Allister Wallace and the Company were perhaps the outstanding hits.

The game of checkers between the Cotter and Tammas, his neighbor, was the high spot of humour in the production. The expression on Tammas' face when he realized that all was lost was alone worth the admission price.

FRENCH LESSONS
Good conversational French taught
25 cents an hour
GASTON HOUDE
17 Division St.

"I can remember when"

"I can remember when the Ladies (God bless them!) used to wear hoop-skirts to the Class Dance;

"when nearly every male student wore sideburns and carried a cane;

"when the annual Sleigh Ride was the big Whoopee of the year!"

* * *

Yes, and we can remember when College Men used to work laboriously and lengthily over letters to folks back home! . . . But that has been eliminated by the Telephone.

There's one near you, and Home is only a few moments away! Just for fun . . . call Home tonight.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF CANADA

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

We think we can save you quite a few dollars on
Your Suit or Overcoat
We offer no Baits, but we do offer Extra Value
TUXEDO SUITS
Thee Piece
Coat, Trouser and Silk Vest
Newest Model, Silk Lined and Beautifully Tailored
Bibbys Extra Value
$22.50

Suits and Overcoats
AT
$15.00
The Best this price can Buy anywhere in Canada

BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Superior Tea Rooms

For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own

"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream

204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Boxing And Wrestling Season Opened By Freshmen Battlers At New Gymnasium

With plenty of thrills from the first bell, the Freshman Assault, held in the New Gym last Wednesday evening, paved the way for an interesting and sensational season for the B.W.F. fans. With the last bout of the evening the best, the spectators were kept on edge for 22 fights, 10 boxing and 12 wrestling, and the few who paid most certainly got their money's worth.

Boxing heavy-weight, Samwell, a 17 year old giant from K.C.I., and Code, staged the toughest fight of the bunch. Samwell tossing in blows that a pile-driver would be

...and Code taking them as ...day's work. And give ... he put on gloves for the first time five days ago, and is ... Queen's hope for the Intercollegiate. And this boy Ennis ... comes out of his corner, he come... out, and it takes more than ... gloves to stop him. Ca... 135, showed up well ... like grabbing himself a ... the team.

... wrestling, Burford, who ... the Intercollegiate last ... unt of a damaged arm, ... man around plenty and ... on making up for his ... last year. Jolliffe, at ... Bowled his man twice in quick ... and showed the crowd ... means business. For the ... on of Jimmy, and Bray ... ding and look like fu... s.

K... vs. Orenstein—112 lbs. ... took and gave a lot of ... but Orenstein began to ... and ...hn won on a decision. ... Porlett—130 lbs. First ... slow, but Ennis's win. ... vs McTaggart—130. Mc... ung a right haymaker ... Mitchell for a count of ... with more experience ... win, also he had ten ... the other lad which ... helps.

Cann... vs. Fritz—140. Both ... matched, but the fight had ... topped after both got bad ... the eye.

... vs. Moody—135. Rogers ... into the other and in the ... handed out plenty of pun... ishment. The last round saw them both done in, but Rogers with a ...

Smith vs. Hoch—150. Smith was knocked out early, but was so dazed that he didn't know what the count was, so was given another chance. Hoch was all over him though and won easily.

Parke vs. Binch—165. Parke took an eight count, but returned for a while only to take another flop. Jack Jarvis called the fight and awarded it to Binch.

Peters vs. Dean—165. Peters K.O'ed Dean as the bell rang and finally took the fight on a technical K.O. in the last round. Both boys are good and with more experience should go a long way.

Campbell vs. Cliff—135. The fight was all Campbell and Cliff did well to stand up against the onslaught that met him.

Samwell vs. Code — Heavyweight. Final and best bout of the show. Samwell didn't waste any time and went right in from the start swinging punches like a wild man. He put Code down for a count twice, but Code showed that he could take it and stayed to the bitter end.

Wrestling

Dundass vs. Hayhurst — 150. Dundass showed some speed and took two falls in the first minute and half to win.

McRae vs. Yaffe—145. Yaffe climbed right into his man and first fall in 30 secs., and then another in the next minute. The stronger boy won in this case.

Benson vs. Mack—145. Mack persisted in tossing the other out of the ring in the first round, but in the second Benson threw him twice to win.

Greenacre vs Sabbath — 130. Greenacre's fight easily with two falls, one in each round.

O'Connor vs. Caplan—137. This proved the humourous touch to the evening. 'OConnor putting up some pretty bear fighting and being only saved by the bell. Caplan's win.

Harvey vs. Ginnell—145. Ginnell took two falls in the first minute and half to win.

Burford vs. Thomas—128. Burford had a near fall as the bell rang for the first round, then stayed on top all during the second round to win.

Coulthart vs. Logan—135. Logan was on top all the first round then took a fall in the second for a win.

Bews vs. Conklin—150. Bews was the agressor all through, and almost had a fall in the second, but his man wriggled off the mat. Decision to Bews.

Bray vs. Davis—146. Bray took a fall in each round to win.

Fersberg vs. Shaver—137. Fersberg took the first round easily throwing him man all over the place, but Shaver surprised the fans and took a fall in the second to win.

Jolliffe vs. Alkes—160. Jolliffe rushed affairs and took two quick falls to win hands down.

SPORTS SLANTS

Congrats to Howie Carter. No one is more deserving of the Johnny Evans Memorial Trophy than the sterling backfielder, who captained the 1932 squad.

* * * * * *

This afternoon Varsity will meet the terrible Taggers, on their own campus. No one expects they will win, but with Captain Jack Sinclair back into harness much may happen.

* * * * * *

The Tiger-Varsity game will settle the question as to the merits of the Big 4 and Intercollegiate teams. The University teams have fared rather badly in elimination games played with Big 4 champs in the past few years.

* * * * * *

In the days of Johnny Evans, it was a question whether the Big 4 teams could stop the Tricolor. And how we ruled the roost.

* * * * * *

The "four Horsemen," Davoud, Storms, Kennedy and Carr will be duly missed when the next football season rolls around. R.M.C.'s contribution to the 1932 team was of sterling calibre.

* * * * * *

The swimming meet showed that Queen's would show up well in intercollegiate competition. We have some skilled and clever performers to represent the Tricolor.

* * * * * *

The Frosh Assault gave Jack Jarvis and Jimmy Bews plenty to think about. It was most efficiently handled and produced some likely prospects.

Fencing Classes Held Tuesdays And Thursdays

Members and prospective members of the Fencing Club! Mr. Bews will give instruction classes every Tuesday and Thursday from seven to eight at night. Don't miss these classes. Our regular practices take place as usual from five to six p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Fridays.

Tricolor Wins Majority Of Events In Water Meet

(Continued from page 1)

presented a smooth-stroking team that soon rolled up a margin of 4 goals to 0, and could easily have increased the lead over their lighter and younger opponents.

A novelty race with the overhead lights extinguished tickled the fancy of the crowd. Each swimmer had to navigate the length of the pool carrying a lighted candle in any way he found most convenient. This provided plenty of thrills and was won by Stevenson of Queen's.

The last event of the evening was the diving exhibition, and it was perhaps the treat of the programme. Miss Jean Nelson, and Miss Elizabeth Cameron, assisted by McKerracher, Forrester and Ross, performed feats that thrilled and pleased the crowd.

It was a beautiful sight to see all five leave the springboard together, and cleave the water with only one slight eddying swirl.

Miss Cameron and Ross gained the plaudits of the crowd by performing a highly difficult shoulder stand, dive together. This was equalled by Miss Jean Nelson, McKerracher and Forrester, in a thrilling pyramidal dive, that demanded an encore.

Results:

50 yds. free style—1st, Shapero, Queen's; 2nd, Kelly, Kingston. Time, 29 sec.

200 yds. breast stroke—1st, Almgvist, Queen's; 2nd, Turner, Kingston. Time, 3 min. 18 4/5 sec.

100 yds. free style—1st, Perry, Queen's; 2nd, Stevenson, Queen's. Time, 1 min. 10 sec.

50 yds. back stroke—1st, Pesner, Queen's; 2nd, Samwell, Kingston. Time, 37 3/5 sec.

200 yds. relay—Est Queen's, Stevenson, Shapera, Perry, Anglin. 2nd, R.M.C. Time, 2 min. 2 sec.

440 yds. free style—1st, Elliot, Kingston; 2nd, Anglin, Queen's. Time, 6 min. 21 1/5 sec.

Diving — 1st, McKerracher, Queen's, 145½ points; 2nd Forrester, Queen's, 136½ points; 3rd, Watts, Y.M.C.A., 133 points.

Novelty Race — Stevenson, Queen's.

Polo Game—Queen's 4, Kingston All Stars 0.

J. Evans' Memorial Trophy Awarded To Howie Carter

(Continued from page 1)

to their thoughtfulness and care of the players, and mentioned his own pleasure in his long association with the members.

The response was given by Dr. John Orr, in his own inimitable way, and he pledged the future support of the board, and complimented the players on their achievements of the season.

The next toast, a decidedly unwelcome one, was undertaken by Bill "Toughy" Glass. He proposed one to the members of the team who will not again turn out for Queen's rugby games on account of graduation next Spring. He recalled the many good times of the training and playing season, and wished the grads plenty of luck.

Two of the players who will graduate, Bill Purvis and Dick Storms, replied to this toast and both took the attitude that all good things must end sometime. Dick, speaking on behalf of the "Four Horsemen," Davoud, Carr, Kennedy and himself, thanked the members of the team for their friendly attitude towards the former Cadets.

The friends and helpers who are seldom in the limelight but who work continually for the success and comfort of the team were not forgotten by How Hamlin, who proposed a toast to them. "Gosse" McLaughlin, the popular and efficient manager, Doctors Austin, Houston, Orr, Campbell and Kenny, who repaired and refitted the halt and the lame so wonderfully, Senator Powell, Jack Finley and Jack Baker, who laboured mightily rubbing out kinks and quirks, Alfie Pierce, Len Ede, Herb and Tommy who ruled over the field and dressing-rooms.

Bill Glass got his silver plated tonsils into action and led the boys into heart-rending melodies. These peristaltic rushes of harmony caused many and varied overtones to emanate from the banquet hall of the Union.

Major Goodeve of R. M. C. was present and expressed his pleasure at the friendly relations between Queen's and his College and hoped they would be a feature of future rugby seasons.

The team was very happy to have Mr. Capell, their honorary president, at the table. Mr. Capell is one of those loyal supporters who stands by a team through thick and thin. Coach Bill Shaw of the Juniors was also present.

Everyone regretted the absence of Ernie Smithies and Fred Beaudry. The many kindnesses of Mr. Smithies were greatly appreciated by the team.

The boys all felt thirsty after listening to the speeches and they departed to far off grounds where they held just one more toast to ——— but that is another story.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO —Two third-year students, in order to earn part of their expenses, have opened a student laundry.

Smoke
Buckingham
—and Smile

People want quality.

Buckingham gives quality.

People want value.

In Buckingham you get the biggest value ever given in a popular priced cigarette.

20 for 20c.

B-341

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup.'"
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

U. S. A. Constitution Explained To I.R.C.

Lu. Smith and John Parker were in charge of a recent meeting of the International Relations Club. In view of the predominance of the United States legislatures in current affairs, Lu. Smith, himself an American, explained the constitutional basis of the governing bodies. The American Senate, composed of two representatives from each state, is the more powerful body, while the constitution is so framed that money bills may be introduced only in the House of Representatives. The President fulfills the position of both the King and Prime Minister of England. His responsibility is very great and to be successful, he must be of a domineering personality. The cabinet which assists the President is not selected from the elected representatives, but consists of members appointed by the president. Each state has considerably more legislative power than has a Canadian province and very often the federal government at Washington has difficulty in enforcing its enactments. The Supreme Court serves the purpose of passing on the validity of federal acts.

John Parker, in reviewing the situation as it exists to-day pointed out that the best criterion of what may be expected is the Democratic platform. But, since many of the proposals are indecisive, the distinction between the two major American parties is not clear. It is thought that Governor Roosevelt's victory represented a reaction from the conservative principles of President Hoover rather than a personal triumph for the Democratic leader. Lowering of tariffs, or at least a tariff for revenue rather than protection, may favourably affect Canada, particularly if it is instrumental in starting a world-wide move in that direction. The removal of the 18th amendment is doubtful, because it needs the endorsement of 36 states of the union. At best, this could not be accomplished within the next two years.

The local American Consul, Mr. Fuller, explained the origin of the names of the Democrats and Republicans, and made clear to the members of the club some of the less known features of the United States' constitution.

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY — More than 200 men have enrolled for the free courses for engineers and architects now out of employment, which is offered again this year at the Institute.

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

Infanticide May Be Wise In Many Obstetrical Cases

Baltimore, Md.—In an address described as "A message to doctors and not to the public," Dr. A. W. Guild of Chicago, called attention to the ancient Spartan practice of permitting deformed infants to die and made this statement before the convention of the Eastern and Southern Homeopathic edical Associations:

"We cannot take life (except by way of punishment for crime) no matter how useless or pitiful its existence may be, nor however great the social and economic burden the total congenital defectives may be.

"Yet may there not be cases when the officiating obstetrician may legally and honorably and with sincere humanity turn his back and minimize his efforts to bring life into such misshapen products of twisted human formation?

"This is, indeed, one of the many difficult obstetrical problems which the individual physician must solve for himself alone. His conscience must be his guide. Perhaps he will be influenced by considering what he would want done if the mother were his wife and the child his offspring."

Dr. Guild prefaced these remarks by giving his personal experience in his early medical practice. He told of the death of one infant, and added:

"In trying to comfort the mother by telling her how much of earthly trouble her infant had escaped, I found myself picturing how much the little mother was being saved by the non-existence of her monster offspring."

Science Court Metes Out Justice To All And Sundry

Continued from page 1

accordance with custom paid the sherriff, in the person of Wes Lackey, the small sum of four-bits.

Russ Thoman as court constable hooked several for rowdyism in court, and with indications of an argument between Thoman and Hoskings, which started in a battle-royal, continuing on into the night, the court adjourned to dig up the nose-bag.

The frosh whose cases weren't brought up, may rest assured that they won't be forgotten for long.

Technical Courses Lose Ground To Arts Subjects

Cincinnati (I.P.) — In good times, when big business went about seeking technicians and complained that colleges and universities turned out too few of them, technical courses became the "rage" in the institutions of higher learning throughout the land.

Professors of English, Philosophy and the other arts who presumed to complain were laughed down. They had nothing more to do but act as voices crying in the wilderness.

Now, thinks Dr. Raymond Walters, former dean of Swarthmore College, this year beginning his first term as president of the University of Cincinnati, depression will start colleges again teaching students how to occupy their idle time, of which they will have plenty in the next few years.

"The first function of a university," he admits, "is to prepare students for the work of life. A second function of higher education is training for the leisure of life.

"Perhaps the greatest problem facing our economic system today and in the next quarter of a century is that of enforced leisure and unemployment.

"Our economic system is on trial, just as every preceding system was on trial. Its problems cannot be solved with a Pollyanna recipe that all things will work out well if simply given time. I would suggest for this problem of enforced idleness a definite program of intellectual work.

"Reading should be regarded as a game, and writing can be done if one feels like it. Many persons are turning to writing, and one authentic sign of a nation's becoming intellectual is a luxuriant crop of amateur writers."

THE STONE FRIGATE

One of the present dormitories over at the Royal Military College was built away back in 1780. It is the building known as the "Stone Frigate" and was used at that time as offices for the staff of the Navy Bay Dockyard which then occupied the spot where R.M.C. now stands.

It received the curious name "Stone Frigate" from the fact that the authorities of the Navy Yard, after asking the Government for money to build a new frigate ship, found on obtaining the money that the "frigate" was not as urgently needed as new office building—so the "frigate" was built. Today it stands, its yellow sandstone which was quarried from a pocket nearby providing a great contrast to the surrounding buildings of gray limestone.

"Consider the 'unhandiness' of most articles of diet. An apple is 82 per cent. waste; white bread, 84 per cent . . ."—N. Z. Paper.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

A NEW LOW PRICE
BRAND NEW
TUXEDO - RENTALS
ONLY $1.75 PER NIGHT
A COMPLETE ASSORTMENT OF TUXEDOS AND ACCESSORIES MODERATELY PRICED

STUDENTS!! Buy On Credit
A SPECIAL CREDIT DEPARTMENT FOR STUDENTS ONLY.—BUY YOUR NEEDS AND PAY WEEKLY OR MONTHLY — NO INTEREST CHARGES—
MENS AND LADIES READY-TO-WEAR.

Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Campus and Gym

The Levana basketball team easily defeated the K.C.I. team by a score of 36-16, in a game played in the Queen's Gymnasium. In spite of some bad fumbling Queen's played a good game. Doreen Kenny, star of previous Intercollegiate teams, led the scoring with 16 points, and Marian Walker of K.C.I. starred for the Collegiate with 8 points.

Line-ups:

K.C.I.—Brooks, Cottel, M. Walker, Pyke, Preston, Peters, Paterson.

Queen's—Do Kenny, Isa Galbraith, Jo Tett, Hilda Rice, Dorothy Napthali, Kay Wayling; subs., Bud Guill, Ruth Fishleigh, Evelyn Rickard, Eileen Mason.

The game between Levana's prospective hockey team and the Med's Freshmen resulted in a score of 5-1 in favor of the gentlemen. Levana has several new players on the team this year and found the tussle with her masculine opponents very good practice. Though the boys were the more speedy skaters, Levana's checking was commendable, and the goal work was good. The forwards had all they could do to keep up the pace set by their opponents and Margaret Chambers scored the girls' one point.

The line up:

Levana—c., Marg. Chambers; r.w., Jean Cameron; l.w., Jean Stewart; r.d., Dot. Clemens; l.d., Jean Nelson; g., Marg. MacGregor.

Meds '38—c., Daniels; r.w., Harrigan; l.w., Prout; r.d., Yuill; l.d., Simpson; g., Collins.

A hockey game has been arranged for Friday at one o'clock between the Levana team and the Arts '36 team.

Pictures Of Volcanoes To Be Shown In Ontario Hall

Next Wednesday afternoon at 4 p.m. there will be a movie of volcanoes and shore lines in the large lecture room on the second floor of Ontario Hall.

The pictures have been loaned by the Dominion Government and the show is being held under the auspices of the Miller Club.

There is no admission charge and everyone interested is welcome.

ARTS CONCURSUS

It was announced to-day that the Arts Court will meet in the near future. Year Constables have been checking up on smoking in the Arts Building and infractions of the Freshman regulations.

COMING EVENTS

Saturday, November 27:
8.00p.m.—Musicale.
Ban Righ Hall.

Tuesday, Nov. 29:
3.00p.m.—Special Meeting Arts Society.
Convocation Hall.
8.15p.m.—Memorial Concert
Grant Hall.

Wednesday, Nov. 30:
4.00p.m.—Miller Club
Movie of Volcanoes and Shore Lines
Ontario Hall.

Thursday, Dec. 1:
8.00p.m.—Women's Intercollegiate Debate
Ban Righ Hall
9.30p.m.—Arts '34 Year Dance
Hotel La Salle

Imports And Exports Equal In Long Run

"In the long run a country's exports will equal its imports," Mr. J. C. Cameron said in his discussion of "Money and Trade." "Exchange of goods or money equivalent arises from trading operations. Since one country's money is not legal tender in another country, the balance of trade is paid in gold. But it costs considerable to send gold. For this reason the banks trade in foreign currency, that is instead of shipping gold, securities are purchased in the foreign country through representative banks of the debtor country. If the cost of such a transaction surpasses the cost of shipping the gold, naturally gold is shipped. This cost depends on the demands for the right to draw the funds. When a country is off the gold standard, they cannot ship gold. Hence the exchange rate is high."

It is claimed that war debts are burdensome. Why? In the first place, the creditor country wants gold payments and not goods, and the country is not shipping gold for it is off the gold standard. Secondly, in this period of very low prices the money value is worth much more than when the debt was contracted, thus making the debt much more burdensome.

Another point considered at the meeting was the effect of the $35,000,000 issue of the Canadian Government. This issue was made with the intention of establishing credit in order to start business moving again. It is doubtful whether it will have this effect, for during this period of the depression the banks are more cautious. Therefore they will store it away instead of loosening their credit policy.

Next Wednesday evening at seven o'clock the group will discuss the topic "The Benefits Derived from the Socialistic State."

Special Meeting Of Arts Society Next Tuesday

The posters now prominently displayed around the campus bear witness to a meeting of the Arts Society Executive held last Wednesday afternoon when it was decided to call a special meeting of the Society in Convocation Hall next Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

The meeting will deal with the question of compulsory freshman attendance at meetings and with "matters pertaining to the welfare of the Society." It comes as a sequel to the last Arts Society meeting when a heated discussion of the enforcement of the freshman attendance rule took place.

After the decisions mentioned above had been reached the executive meeting broke up but found it impossible to leave the New Arts Building as the Janitor had locked all doors. After a few mild attempts at prison-breaking the telephone was resorted to and in a few minutes Dean Matheson came and released the hungry committee.

Burrowers

From the Daily Californian we hear that the mining engineers-to-be have an experimental tunnel dug into the hills behind the Berkeley campus where they study methods of tunneling, drilling, blasting, timbering, and even water disposal is practised here.

—The Orediggers.

A grandson of "Buffalo Bill", pioneer westerner, is a freshman at the University of Nebraska this year.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

That a lively interest is being taken in the discussion meetings held under the auspices of the S.C.M. is apparent from the increasing attendance each week. At the last meeting led by Professor R. G. Smails, the discussion was in general terms and will serve to introduce the more specific topic of Employment Insurance in Great Britain for next week. The question was raised whether our present capital system can continue to exist indefinitely with one third of the population on relief. Yet it seems to be fair to say that every person is entitled to enough of this world's goods to allow for a comfortable existence. On the other hand if Britain were socialized then the other world powers would likely go out to smother the British Economic System. Next week Prof. Smails is going to explain the system of unemployed insurance and unemployed relief with special reference to the "Means Test" in Great Britain. All those interested are invited to attend.

QUEEN'S QUILL

Preparations for the publication of the Queen's Quill are proceeding apace. A number of short stories, articles and poems, all the work of Queen's students, have been accepted by the editors and the work of assembling the material ready for going to press is now being carried out by the editorial board.

It has been decided to publish the Quill at a charge of 25c a copy but as yet the actual date of appearance has not been determined, though it is likely to be within the next fortnight.

It is learned that the second number of the Quill will make an even wider appeal than the last issue and contains some exceptionally able writing.

C. O. T. C.

REGIMENTAL ORDERS
By Lt.-Col. W. P. Wilgar
Commanding Queen's University Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Season 1932-1933.
23rd Nov., 1932.

No. 27.
Parades.

1) All ranks, with exception para. II., will parade at the Orderly Room, Sat. 26th Nov., at 1.30 p.m. Side arms with greatcoats will be worn.

(2) The Senior Medicals "B" Co. will parade to the Military Hospital, King St., Sat. 26th Nov., at 2.00 p.m. Lt.-Col. L. J. Austin, will give a lecture on Water Carts, ets. Uniforms will not be worn.

No. 28.
Lectures.

(1) The usual lectures of the week will be held, as stated in the R.O. No. 24.

D. T. R. McCOLL, Lieut.
Adj., Q.U.C., C.O.T.C.

BUSTED BANK

During a recent meeting of the Mayo clinic, the story was related of a negro who tried to cash a check at a defunct bank.

The teller told him ,"Your check is no good, the bank is insolvent—closed up—busted. Didn't you ever hear of a bank busting?"

The coloured gentleman replied "Yessuh, but I done never had one burst in my face before."

Over two-thirds of the students enrolled in the University of Paris are Americans.

The Polo Wintercoat!
THE SMARTEST CREATION OF THE YEAR—
Designed by Warren K. Cook, of Course!
Featured at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 —— "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S
UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

Hanson & Edgar
PRINTERS
Dance Programmes
Constitutions
177 Brock Street
Phone 1510
Printing of Every Description

STUDENTS OF QUEEN'S
Why not come to a Tailor for your Tailoring
Suits $23.50 Suits $25.50
Overcoats $23.50 Overcoats $25.50
—5% Reduction to Students—
Bring us your repairs and pressing
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 29th, 1932 No. 18

Queen's Library

First Ban Righ Musicale Attracts Large Audience

Mrs. Tracy's Group, J. Percival And Glee Club Provide Music

The first Ban Righ Musicale of the season held in the Common Room was enjoyed by a large audience. The program, under the excellent supervision of Miss Elsie Williamson, was of a high order and augurs well for future presentations. Selections by the University Girls' Glee Club, Mr. J. A. Percival, baritone, and Mrs. Tracy's Ensemble provided the entertainment of the evening.

The Glee Club, a special feature of the evening, sang "Non Nobis" by Byrd, a fifteenth century composer; two songs by Henry Purcell, "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," and "Come If You Dare." "Snow in Spring" by Reineke, and "The Skye Boat Song," a Jacobean air were other selections given by the Glee Club. The solo parts were taken by Miss Ruby Cordy, Mrs. Gilmore and Miss Helen Harcourt.

Mr. Percival, who is always a favorite, chose as his first selection's two German songs "Adelaide" with music by Beethoven, and "Der Erlkonig" by Schubert. "Hark, Hark the Lark" and "My Heart's in the Highlands," his second group, were also excellently rendered.

The Ensemble, under the capable leadership of Mrs. Tracy, and composed of violins, cello, flute and piano, gave Hayden's "Ox Minuet," two movements from the Ballet Suite, (Musette of Rameau) arranged by Mottl; "Minuet Giojoso" by Mozart and "Allegro and Andantino," a con-

Continued on page 4

Men's Forum Seeks Unemployment Cure

Capt. Watts Describes Benevolent Society

In opening the discussion on unemployment remedies, Captain Watt's told something of the activities of "the army of the common good." This society has come into existence near Vancouver, B.C., and at present has a membership of more than 1500. The group contains representatives of almost every trade and profession, living in a community, farming, gardening, and wood-cutting. Each member serves the community according to his profession and receives in return receipts for the number of hours work which he does. These receipts may be exchanged for the same number of hours of labor of other members or may be exchanged at the community store for necessities.

When such articles as sugar, tea, etc., are needed from the outside world, fire-wood is traded for them. Sports, games and entertainments are developed to a remarkable degree, making the community self-contained and ably with very few outer world able with very few outer world contacts. The idea is speeding rapidly and may have far-reaching effects on our economic system.

Almost all the Canadian cities are at least 15% over-populated while the small towns, villages and farms could stand an equal increase in population with very little discomfort.

But people having once lived in a city are loathe to leave what they think of as city comforts; yet we have representatives of every trade out of employment to-day who could bring these comforts to the smaller centres.

(Continued on page 5)

Powerful Rugby Machines Clash To-Day For Interfaculty Honours

Science Men To Utilize Engineering Skill In Attempt To Smash Mighty Medical Team

All the chemical and engineering skill of the Science faculty will be pitted against a set of anatomically perfect rugby players, representing the Medical faculty this afternoon, when the two teams meet at Richardson stadium in their quest for Interfaculty honors.

Science with one victory to their credit over a powerful Arts outfit, are admittedly going to put up a mighty hard struggle. They have been working out a set of plays for weeks, with blue prints and slide rules. They have delved deep into the hidden mysteries of forces stresses, strains, and the air resistance against any square inch of the surface of the ball you want to pick. They can tell you to a nicety just how much energy will have to be expended to push the ball from their own goal line, up the field and over the corresponding pill pounders line, if the Meds appear on the field clean shaven. But if the Pathological palookas stroll out with the odd half inch of foliage adorning their physogues, the Science calculation will be sadly upset.

For their part the Medical team has discarded the teaching of a famous researcher in the field of vegetable feeding, and have so calculated their respective diets in caloric requirements, that it will only be a matter of adding to their energy at quarter or half time, the few proteins, fats or carbohydrates necessary to bring their pep up to par, or over.

Anyway you want to take a peek at it, the game promises to be a very interesting one to watch, and students of both faculties will be out in force to cheer on their warriors. Meds and Science, habitual friends in the student political arena, will be on opposing sides of the sport fence when the whistle blows. Don't miss it.

Civil Engineers Hear Varied Experiences

A. Barrie Describes Life On Cattle Boat

Two members of the third year spoke at the last meeting of the Civil Club held in Carruthers Hall.

A. O. Barrie described his experiences when, last summer, he crossed to England on a cattle steamer. He gave figures on the extent of the trade, and showed how it paid the exporters to carry the cattle across alive, selling them as home killed meat.

Mr. Barrie was hired as one of twelve hands to care for the 500 head of battle on board. His first job was to show the steers to their berths. This was done by catching the unwilling passengers on the move by their halters, and dragging them to their pens. Four of the twelve hands survived the first three days, giving them 125 head to tend. Each morning at 4 a.m. the cattle were given breakfast. Breakfast consisted of hay and eight buckets of water for each steer. It was thought

Continued on page 8

Arts Men To Hold Emergency Meeting

Vital Questions To Be Discussed To-day

This afternoon at 3 o'clock members of the Arts Society will meet in Convocation Hall. Several matters of importance will come before the members for definite solution.

It is generally known that the Arts Society has suffered greatly through lack of interest on the part of its members. An efficient executive was elected at the beginning of the year's activities but these officers found it difficult to operate without the necessary co-operation of the students. Of late the question as to whether the rule enforcing compulsory Freshman attendance at the meetings should be annulled or not has been the uppermost problem in the Society's activities.

The Journal learns that the abrogation of this rule will be a severe detriment to the Society.

The question should be settled definitely at the meeting this afternoon. The Executive expects that every Arts man will be present.

Scott's Journal To Be Subject Of Lecture

Tomorrow afternoon at 4.15 p.m. Dr. J. R. P. Sclater will lecture in Convocation Hall on "Sir Walter Scott and his Journal."

The lecture will constitute yet another contribution to the University's commemoration of the centenary of the author of the Waverley Novels. Dr. Sclater, whose work as a minister in Toronto, is too well-known to call for further notice, will address the members of the St. Andrew's Society, Kingston, on Wednesday evening.

R.C.H.A. Band Will Play At Scott Concert

In the Scott Memorial concert at Grant Hall to-morrow night the R.C.H.A. Band will play as one of the numbers on the program Mendelssohn's famous Hebridies Overture, reflecting his reactions to Scotland. The Pipe Band has also prepared a spectacular and stirring program. The Kingston Choral Society will give a brilliant setting of "Lochinvar" by C. E. Laug, also part songs to words by Scott. "Hail to the Chief," "O, Hush Thee My Baby."

Noted Egyptologist To Speak At Queen's

S. Glanville To Give Lectures On Egypt

An announcement to the effect that Mr. S. K. R. Glanville, of the British Museum, will deliver an illustrated lecture at Queen's, has just been released by the Chairman of the University Lectures Committee. Mr. Glanville has chosen to speak on Egyptian Antiquities. This lecture will be held in Convocation Hall on Friday, December 2nd at 8.15 p.m.

Mr. Glanville comes here under the auspices of the National Council of Education. He is at present assistant keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities in the British Museum. He was educated at Marlborough College and at Lincoln College, Oxford. From Oxford he went to Egypt as a schoolmaster in the Government service. He resigned his post at the end of the first year in order to take part in the Egypt Exploration Society's excavations at el-Amarneeh. Here he gained the experience necessary to compete for a vacancy in the British Museum. In this he was successful and was appointed to the position he now occupies in 1924.

He has studied the linguistic and archaeological material of Egypt and has gained for himself an acknowledged position among the scholars of Egyptology.

In his lecture here Mr. Glanville will deal particularly with his own work in the Museum—the study of Egyptian Antiques.

No one is more fitted to cover a wide and varied field, and he will illustrate this lecture with models as well as slides. Students and general public are cordially invited to attend the lecture which should be of great interest and value to everyone.

Various Aspects Pulp And Paper Trade Described

Commerce Club Hears Lecture About Great Canadian Industry

At a meeting in Miller Hall last Friday the Commerce Club and particularly the class in Industrial Management was initiated into some of the technical aspects of the Canadian pulp and paper industry, which in value of product is second only to that of wheat.

Bill Mitchell, Arts '33, delivered the lecture with reference to a series of lantern slides, ably supported by Doug Muir at the lantern.

The requirements of industry are large stands of pulpwood, plenty of clear fresh water for processing and abundant power, all of which are found in close proximity to one another in most of the provinces of Canada, particularly Quebec and Ontario. Reforestration schemes when made effective will assure the pulpwood supply for many years to come while the swift streams of clear fresh water are gifts of the Almighty.

By far the greatest part of the output is newsprint which finds its largest market in the United States. This market is still expanding and gives every indication of continuing to do so, for United States domestic production has remained almost constant since 1910. Besides the main product, a number of chemical by-products of varying values come into the market from the pulp and paper industry. Chemical research workers hope eventually to find a commercial use for all of these by-products.

STREET NAMES OF KINGSTON

Many of the street names of Kingston commemorate history. Stuart Street is named after George Stuart the first Protestant minister. The name of Sir William Johnson who was superintendent of Indian affairs is preserved in Johnson Street, and Sydenham Street is named after Lord Sydenham who was instrumental in the Union of Upper and Lower Canada. Princess Street was originally an old Indian trail. Later it became known as Store Street, because old Indian trading stores were located at the foot of it. After 1892 is was called Princess Street in honour of Princess Victoria the Princess Royal of England and a daughter of Queen Victoria.

Union Street is in commemoration of the Act of Union passed in 1840 uniting Upper and Lower Canada. University Avenue was formerly known as Gordon Street, but about 1890 the name was changed. All students know the reason why. King Street is in honour of King George III. of England, during whose reign "Kingstown" was founded in 1783, and Queen Street is named after Queen Charlotte his wife. Everyone could probably guess that Brock Street is named after Sir Isaac Brock, general in command of the Canadian forces in the War of 1812, and that Frontenac Street became so named on account of Count Frontenac Governor of New France.

Collingwood Street calls to mind Admiral Collingwood, second in command under Nelson at the Battle of Trafalgar. Division Street is so named because it was at one time the dividing line between the town and country. Clergy Street was once part of the old Clergy reserve and Albert Street is named after Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria. The old Provincial Navy accounts for the names of Earl and Barrie Streets. Earl named after the wife of Commander Earl of the fleet and Barrie being so called because of Sir Robert Barrie in command of the old Naval Yard at Point Frederick where R.M.C. now is.

The names of the Kingston Streets may be an insignificant matter to many persons, buf they have a truly great historical background.

THE SCHOOL OF NAVIGATION

Anyone who has had the necessary experience and can write a legible hand, spell correctly, and knows the "first four rules of arithmetic," may enter one of the Courses offered by Queen's. The student who selects this course, however, must be willing to "work a day's work," as the nautical phrase has it. In fact the course is a nautical one.

The School of Navigation at Queen's is not very well known among the student body generally. Perhaps this is because the term is so short or because the students attending do not enter into interfaculty athletics. If they should ever decide to do the latter they would indeed make their presence felt.

For three months after the first of January classes are held. After paying a small registration fee the embryo captain or mate has only to buy his books and start to work. The instruction is free, due to a grant from the Department of Marine.

Captain Barrett, who is in charge, looks after the more specialized subjects and instructs the students in the Rules of the Road. His extensive experience as a Master fits him very well for this position and he has met with great success in preparing seamen for certificates. Preparation is offered for all kinds of certificates from Coasting Master down to Tug-Boat Captain or "Mud-Scow Skipper."

The more technical subjects such as Terrestrial Magnetism, Storms and Weather Conditions, and Practical Astronomy are given by Dr. Clark, Dean of the Science Faculty.

Lectures are given in the School of Navigation Room in Ontario Hall from eleven till twelve and from two till five. (At least there are no "eight o'clocks.")

Another feature that might be adopted by the other Faculties is the idea of the examinations. These are set by the Dominion Supervisor of Marine Examinations and and in the announcement of the Course the examination is printed. So a student can decide before he starts the Course just what to study for the exam and so save time by not studying anything that will not be asked anyway.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 29th, 1932

Newspaper Reading

College students are surprisingly ignorant of national and even world affairs. We never could understand why student interest for the most part centres about petty campus activities, the College dances, the next date, or the proposed beer party, while a drama of warm, throbbing appeal is being enacted in the outside world. The globe is swirling dizzily under the stress of economic disorders which threaten complete social reconstruction. A vigourous counter attack is being directed against the worst depression ever visited upon the world. In every corner of this planet events are taking place which dwarf in colour and importance developments of the past century. World history is in the making and yet the poor college student struts along contentedly with his nose buried in the comparatively insignificant chronicles of the past, or with his mind occupied in plans for the next party.

This attitude is all the more surprising when one takes into consideration that the students of to-day must soon make their entrance in the world and face the various problems that will have to be settled. If they have not been in contact with sectional and international problems and discussions how can they hope to find a place in the world and cope satisfactorily with the demands that will inevitably be made upon them?

A sincere and relentless study of present-day happenings is thus a necessity and obligation which college students should not shirk. The newspapers offer the key to world affairs. They are the mirrors which focus the events of the day and disseminate them among the populace. Reading newspapers of the highest order is a practice that should be part of a liberal education. We cannot see how a college student or graduate can consider himself an educated person if he is not "well read," and being "well read" includes an accurate knowledge of world affairs.

Educational Leaders Meet

Educational leaders of the United States and Canada held a conference in New York recently. Many topics of interest and of utmost importance to colleges and universities generally were on the carpet for discussion. The aim of the college and university, the difference between the technically trained mind and the educated mind, the obligations of the university towards the community and the social order, the accumulation of knowledge or the development of our present knowledge, the acquirement of facts or the ability to think, were the main subjects under discussion.

Early press reports were to the effect that the Conference would serve a distinct need in the field of education. Daily reports of the press proclaimed that the Conference was progressing satisfactorily. The final report announcing the end of the Conference said that it was a complete success.

But these most important problems are still confronting the colleges and universities generally. The aim of the college and university, the difference between the technically trained mind and the educated mind, the obligations of the university towards the community and the social order, the accumulation of knowledge or the development of our present knowledge, the acquirement of facts or the ability to think, are still topics of discussion.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

We'll Pull Your Beard, Mr. Shaw—

America seems at last to be about to claim just deserts after years of patient suffering and neglect. The Incomparable Master of Wit, George Bernard Shaw has almost weakened against the entreaties of his English fellow-countryment to pay a visit to the United States, land from which the milk and honey which grace the Shaw family table have flowed since the days when George was nursing the first frail bristle on his now bewhiskered face. The bearded philosopher has made much making little of our feeble efforts toward civilization, and now he is almost ready to condescendingly pay us a "five-minute" visit this summer, supposedly to get some first-hand knowledge of our excellent inferiority.

Specifically, he warned the London newspapers that America might soon have the opportunity of paying homage to his efficacious personality in words of the following tenor:

"Next year I shall be on the high seas and perhaps in the neighborhood of the United States. I may even land for five minutes."

And now America needs must diligently educate herself before the coming of the summer months in order that she will not offend her renowned visitor and perhaps arouse the old gentleman to new heights of satirical witticisms.

She must guard and protect the sacred solemnity of the Englishman's tea, and take care that some conscientious American does not recall that Socrates also wore a beard, and drank poison. Let us have none of the wild tooting of steamship whistles and fog horns blaring out a disgusting American welcome as His Highness treads the gangplank. She must muzzle the arrogant manufacturers, gag the crude mid-westerners, and drive from the streets all the little young Americans who chance to be occupied by chasing the eagle dollar.

If we could arrange a full-fledged fox hunt for the gentleman in which the fox was finally disposed of in the good old English manner, then we might strike close to George's heart. But imagine our embarrassment if some impudent American stripling would retaliate to Shaw's "jolly time," and "Tally-ho" with a "Hi-de-hi" and a "Ho-de-ho."

The great condescender closes his newspaper interview thus:

"I understand that the population of the United States is in the neighborhood of a hundred million, and any announcement of my intentions would be dangerous, for the whole of the population would rush to the spot where I landed, and thus disorganize the country."

About the only reason we can find for the excessive concentration of population on the occasion of Mr. Shaw's visit would be the huge vacuum created when the illustrious personage steamed into the harbor.

—Purdue Exponent.

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

Welch Scholarship

Value $125. Founded by Frederick Welch of Kingston. Awarded in the Faculty of Arts and open for competition only to the sons and daughters of non-commissioned officers and men who have served overseas in the late war, and of mechanics and labourers, which students shall at the time be bona fide residents of the City of Kingston, preference being had for the children of soldiers. As this scholarship was not advertised last year it was not awarded in April. Applications are now invited from all students who are eligible and who were in attendance last year. The award will be made on the results of the examinations of last April.

Other Scholarships

1. Six scholarships of $100 each will be awarded in January. These are open to all students of any year in the Faculty of Arts. The award will be made on the basis of the students' records up to that date.

2. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

3. Scholarships to the total of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard. The conditions of award will be announced later.

M. C. Cameron Prize in Gaelic

Value $40. Founded by the late M. C. Cameron, M.P., Goderich. Awarded to the best Gaelic scholar, reader, and speaker. Applications for examination should be submitted to the Registrar before January 15th in each year. Work prescribed: any 600 lines of Ossian's Fingal, Blackie's Language and Literature of the Scottish Highlands, Gaelic Grammer, translation at sight of Gaelic into English and English into Gaelic. This scholarship will not be awarded to any candidate who does not take at least fifty per cent. of the total number of marks in the examination.

Special Fares for Christmas Holidays

Students and teachers are entitled to special rates on tickets for Christmas holidays. Certificates for presentation at the ticket office may be obtained at the Registrar's Office. The tickets are good for the period from December 20 to January 4.

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

A. J. and Margaret Grant Bursary in Arts.

This Scholarship is now worth $595.75. As it was not awarded on Matriculation it is now open in the first instance to properly qualified students in the Faculty of Arts who have come from the high schools of Glengarry. All students from the high schools of Glengarry who are registered in the Faculty of Arts are asked to send their names to the Registrar by November 15th in order that the Committee on Scholarships may be in a position to draw up proper ship.

Do be Careful.. Charlie!!

He may be a reckless driver, but in buying cigarettes he is caution personified. He smokes Turrets because he has found them to be the safe smoke. He knows a car is only as good as its engine . . . and a cigarette no better than the tobacco in it. Turrets are made with choice Golden Virginia, that's why they're so good.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

12 FOR 12c
20 FOR 20c
—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

PICTURES and FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

HOCKEY OUTFITS
BOOTS and SKATES
The Highest Quality at the Lowest Prices
Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
Downtown
208 Princess St. Phone 505
Uptown
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches, Hot Drinks, Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:—

A little while ago an article in your paper tried to show that alcoholic beverages were not good for human beings. I intend to prove this is not so. I have my typewriter, some paper, one bottle of Scotch whiskey and a tumbler beside me and I am going to prove that liquor does not fuddle a man's wits nor destroy his reasoning faculties.

I just took a little nip to loosen up my reasoning faculties. I have had three already and the world looks rosy to me just now. Well as I was saying no one can prove that whiskey distorts the human perception. Look at Hannibal and Caesar and all the other heroes. Were they teetotallers? Wait till I get another drink? Answer me that. Where Hannibal and Caesar teetotallers? No. I say no and nobody can say yes.

I have had four four drinks just now and I never felt better in my life. What the world wants is an occasional nip to make things better. mmmm nn. Gosh—something is wrong with my typewriter, four m's and four n's. I no there should only be one. Njkflioen. Yes. As I was saying before the glass fellof-table. the is nothing likealittle dreink tomakeafellofceolikea miliojfdollars. Nosireceeeeellll.

Did I say there wwjsk was only one botttled on the table. $ WellIwas wwrroonngg. I seeethath there are two now. No. Sir. Liquor doess not fuddlleyoure witsatall. Here I jklop havbeendrikking allnightei and Ican stilllllll talksandtypes likesand professor.

Wait till I have annootherr drinks. There seemmmsttoobbee ttwwoo typeswriterres befforreme now an sumooff hte lletterrseemtoo mmnnKLOP!*,HGRTD bee gettinnnggggnee mixeeed up. Buttt assIwasss saying beforethatbirdbeggannttooosing besidemethatI doont thenk drinkingmuddddles up a man's creative faculties atall ataalll.

Who wuxx caeser anway!!!!!! wh* was he anyway$ I azk youwho was thisguy anywaya—Didntt hee ever take a drinkkkkkkkkk HJKLP *x., MNHYTGBVFREDCXSWA.

No I beleevea liquoris not muddling up. Waitill I putawaythis other bottllle. Onewillbeenough for me tonight. I amapmoderate drinker anyways aold pai and yuouo can tellthat guyI thinkshewas notttt right œ—*98 whn!&0—$.% the; when he ehn he.

.7—;65?':". Gait untilI get another drinkie boys and then Iwill pruventhatnmt Iamnrightean. H H. $$$$—098%5678932½&|) :';— &½— yeshshehshehsh — Ex*P% 897; œ5?';"4 HJKLOI,M*

Editor's Note: At this period our correspondent seems to have put his foot on the typewriter keys and we feel that the argument had better be postponed to a later date.

Washington Student Takes Opportunity By Forelock

A recent issue of the University of Washington Daily contained the following article:

The depression knocked George Baum out of his senior year in the University law school but it lauded him in a seat as prospective head of a college.

Stranded in Juneau, Alaska, because the northerners would not buy of the magazines he was selling to send him back to Seattle, Beaum this summer "turned turtle" on the Alaskans and decided he would not go to them for his pin money hut let them come to him for a college education. He is now completing the preliminary organization of a Juneau Business college which he expects to open soon, according to letters to his Seattle friends.

Beaum, who was a second year Washington law man last year and who is at present preparing for the Alaska bar examination, will himself be one of the instructors in the projected business school.

Meanwhile the student "would be" professor is operating a credit bureau and collecting agency in Juneau until his college is ready to open its doors.

TRICOLOR NOTICE

Members of the final year and secretaries of college organizations are reminded that photographs for the Tricolor will be due shortly, and should be handed in to the Associate Editors. Biographies ought also to be prepared and should not exceed thirty words in length.

The Associate Editors are: Mary McLeman (Tele. 2096J), Levana; Roy Sharpe (Tele. 477F), Arts; A. M. Innes, Science; W. S. Lehto (Tele 1956M), Meds.

Graduating students will be asked to fill in a contract form for one copy of the Tricolor, when their photographs are accepted for publication, and a deposit of $2 will be levied.

BEING THE 11th CHAPTER OF THE CHRONICLE OF KWEANS.

Among the many of the tribe of Scienz, at Kweanz was one, by handle Calhall, a senior and therefore of great understanding, passing amongst men as a wizard. Now it was known by all that Calhall was possessed of an ass, and this ass he didst stable in Kin. Being a man of great understanding with beasts, he didst not leave his ass at home during those hours of gained wisdom, but verily didst take his ass unto the lectures, yea even unto labs. Many were there amongst the senior year who didst protest that the ass of Calhall did take their minds off their studies and didst cause commotion amongst the very wise of Kweanz, those who bartered wisdom for shekels. Therefore did they make complaint unto Calhall that he leave his ass at home, and once more all would be well amongst the lords of Scienz. But Calhall being a man of great stature did tell them that his ass was sacred and therefore to be treated even as a woman, going where it would and braying when it possessed the urge so to do. The seniors therefore let the matter drop until they were better equipped for fight.

It happened in a lab one day that Calhall didst open his mouth and let fly song so that even the ass didst lift it's head, then were there cries from the Seniors, cries to stop and threats of divers stages of anger. And the ass hearing these threats against his lord and master did also open his jaw and forth came a bray which didst echo back and forth across the city of Kin, so that even the Kaydets at ArmC didst shake and rush forth with their canes. Then one Hatsick, a senior of great courage did tremble with rage and in a fit of great anger didst raise his feet and kick the sacred ass. Then was there a great silence all over the lah. And Calhall didst figlit down his temper and say unto Hatsick, "Even as you would kiss a woman to whom thou hadst done injury, so must you kiss my ass that his sacred dignity may be appeased." But as he spake these words he heard another voice thundering from the rear which didst say, "Cahall thou art dismissed, thou and thy ass and all that therein is." So did Calhall depart, his ass in the rear, and to this day the sacred ass of Calhall has never reappeared.

COLLEGIANA

"What Price Glory"

Two University of Nebraska students hitch-hiked to Washington last summer to shake hands with President Hoover. Covering the 6,000 miles in one month at a cost of about $30 apiece, they estimated they walked about 15 miles on the trip.

—Oklahoma Daily.

It's A Public Utility

A neophyte of a University of Texas sorority stopped a street car, tied her shoe string on the steps, thanked the conductor very kindly, and returned to the chapter house.

—The Gettysburgian.

Posing as a "brother from Cheyenne," who is a member of the University of Wyoming football squad, an imposter has been traveling from one chapter of a certain fraternity to another for several weeks, borrowing as much as he could at each place. In one town he proposed marriage, and left the girl waiting at the church.

—Columbia Spectator.

Bears And Gold Dust

A professor at Michigan university, upon doing research work on the backs of Yukon bears, with the purpose of investigating as to the breed of their parasites, was surprised to find that the bears in bathing in the Yukon streams had accumulated gold dust in their fur.

I. W. W.

The Kentucky Kernel expresses the belief that most college graduates belong to the I.W.W.—in orther words "I Want Work."

UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS—Clyde W. Tombangh, youthful astronomer, who discovered the planet Pluto in 1930, is registered as a freshman. As a reward for his achievements Mr. Tombangh has been granted a scholarship in science, and is enrolled in mathematics and rhetoric classes and will later major in astronomy.

ARTS '35 YEAR MEETING

Monday afternoon saw another of these stupendous meetings pass into history. Matters of great moment were discussed—mostly bills. A committee for the Year Dance was chosen as follows: Ted Hughes (Convener), Pat Howard, Paul Young, Jack Weir, Marion Hayes, Doris Anderson and Mary Fraser. Mr. Waugh wondered audibly just who these people were and whether they ever came to year meetings, hut, after the chairman had formally introduced them to him, subsided.

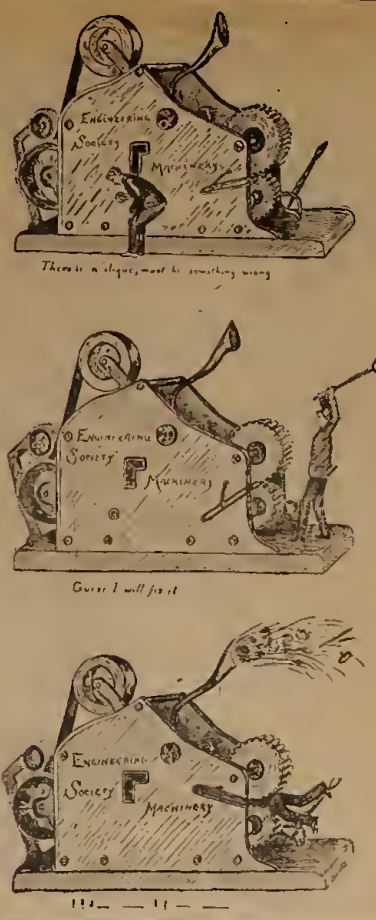
Just as Mr. Stevens was about to bring up another matter for discussion Mr. Waugh introduced a motion to the effect that in future any person who felt the urge to speak on any subject might do so from a recumbent position. A heated argument ensued. The secretary rose to remark that such a motion, if adopted, would not be in accordance with the rules of parliamentary procedure. Mr. Waugh announced that the Whig-Standard had described the honorable members of the House of Commons as in the habit of smoking cigars, sleeping with feet on tables and dictating letters to their stenographers—when one of their number is speaking. In other words, if the House of Commons is the scene of general bedlam when a member is holding forth—why can't Arts '35 Year Meetings be conducted along the same lines. (Some heckler suggested that friend Waugh begin his new procedure by passing around those cigars). One of the few ladies present moved that Mr. Waugh and his motion both be thrown out. This was seconded joyfully, but as Mr. Waugh had just then resumed his recumbent position (having been in a standing posture for an unprecedented length of time) the motion was not carried out to the letter.

Marion Paul rallied around the good old standard by playing the piano for a while.

By that time the Year Treasurer had arrived with more bills and another discussion ensued. The difficulties were soon ironed out, however, though Mr. Waugh again took an active part in the argument.

The meeting finally adjourned.

QUILL NOTICE



Publication of the "Queen's Quill" was discussed at an editorial meeting held last Friday afternoon. A new cover design and certain changes in makeup were among the changes decided upon for the purpose of improving the general appearance of the number. Another meeting will be held at 1.00. p.m. this afternoon.

The Journal learns that the next issue of the Quill will contain a number of short stories, some verse of real distinction, and several articles of general interest.

Drop Minor Sports

Only four sports are sponsored by the University of Oregon this year. The executive council decided to drop all but the major sports, which includes football, basketball, baseball and track. Swimming, tennis and golf were dropped last year.

Abraham Lincoln played at left guard for Army against Notre Dame last Saturday.

REDUCED PRICES ON
Personal Christmas Cards
FOR QUEEN'S STUDENTS
SEE OUR SAMPLES
HANSON & EDGAR Limited
117 Brock Street Phone 1510

SWORD CRAVATS!
Now Obtainable In Kingston
J. H. "Skipper" ROSS
Science '35 332 Johnson St.

DON'T gamble!

On Cheap Clothes
When You Can Buy
GOOD CLOTHES
at our
WINTER SALE
AND SAVE MONEY ON EVERY PURCHASE
TWEDDELL'S
Men's and Young Men's Clothing.
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

BEFORE THE DANCE
SPECIAL RATES
AND SERVICE
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
Phone 821-w 356 Prineess St.

THE SUCCESS OF THE PARTY DEPENDS ON YOUR TAXI
PHONE 448 PHONE
NOW
7 Passenger Heated Sedans Only
Capitol Taxi
448 PHONE 448
Ask the driver for tickets

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York-Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Prineess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Insomnia

Insomnia or inability to sleep is a derangement from which some people suffer, and of which many people complain. Its effects in actual cases are always distressing, and the recounting of its horrors in any ease is frequently annoying to the listener. General treatments, such as church attendance and heavy reading provide only temporary relief and are not consistently successful even to that extent. The soporific qualities of a book or address cannot be predicted with any degree of accuracy.

The rendition of such numbers as Sweet Adeline at midnight is notorious as a cause of sleeplessness, both in the perpetrators and in the neighbours and mental and emotional stress attendant upon feverish preparation for such arises as examinations is a well-known producer of wakefulness in the zealous few, but aside from these and the nervous and functional disorders which affect some ten or fifteen per cent. of the army of irregular sleepers, the principal cause of insomnia is indigestion.

Indiscretion in eating sometimes results in a comfortable torpor which renders the dropping of cigar ashes on the vest a matter of no significance, but more often the wrong food, or the wrong quantity of the right food results in a bout of nocturnal mathematics in the way of sleep counting and hour recording.

Hyperchlorhydria frequently causes its victim to waken regularly after only a few hours of sleep. A little food neutralises the excess acid and allows the sufferer to resume his interrupted rest, but the procuring of midnight repasts may by inconvenience or even, in some households, by actual danger. Mild medication aimed at suppression of acidity at night is more effective and more convenient. The opposite condition, hypochlorhydria results in the type of insomnia in which the subject goes to bed feeling drowsy and becomes wide awake immediately upon lying down. The administration of pepsin-hydrochloric mixtures is frequently efficacious in combating the stomach condition and the resultant sleeplessness.

The type of digestive disfunction so vividly pictured by the yeast and bran cereal advertisers causes insomnia among other things. A toxic condition prevents relaxation of nervous tissues and the resultant brain exhaustion and irritability tends to aggravate the intestinal condition so that a vicious circle is initiated. Various old-fashioned remedies and some wierd and wonderful new-fashioned ones are used to combat this condition, and if it be uncomplicated are usually successful.

But a healthy digestive system may be so misused as to set up sleep-preventing symptoms. Gluttony is by far the hardest worked of the cardinal sins, being, in our day and age the most easily accessible to a sin-hungry generation. Certain seasonable indulgences natually follow out of the quaint old Anglo-Saxon custom of celebrating all great events by the consumption of inordinate amounts of food, but between celebrations, heroic and ill-advised ingestions are still frequent. And sleep may be prevented a meal of ordinary size taken at a badly chosen time. The student who seeks to restore his tissues after a studious evening with a bowl of crackers and milk may fall among evil companions and be induced to try a hamburger. In these cases one thing frequently leads to another until the prospect of immediate sleep is ruined. The prime essential for sleep is relaxation, although exlaxation sometimes justifies the praise accorded it. Training and healthy fatigue enables one to induce muscular relaxation at will. Physical jerks before retiring are frequently helpful, though most people believe that these are more suitably performed at rising time, and even a sedentary life offers opportunity for sufficient muscular exercise during the day to induce a reasonable condition of fatigue, but nerves may not be relaxed as muscles may. Quieting of motor nerves may follow the voluntary slackening of muscles, but man's cerebral activities are too often beyond control. The mere cessation of conscious thought so as to make the mind a complete blank cannot be as valuable a factor in inducing sleep as its advocates would have us believe. If it were, sleeping sickness would be much more common than it is. Nerves must be reached indirectly through general treatment.

Of the many toxic factors in the production of sleeplessness, tobacco is probably the most common. Contrary to the widespread belief that smoking has a soothing effect on the nerves, nicotine is rather irritating, although the act of smoking usually makes for relaxation. The man who is awakened by his stomach or his conscience loses his chances of getting back to sleep if he reaches for a gasper instead of a sheet.

Some people object to sleep as a vicious squandering of man's too brief existence, but until the remote time when science will provide a satisfactory substitute, most of us must seek the favor of Morpheus even when we deplore the sacrifices he demands.

Final Year Medicos Inspect Whig Offices

Fifty members of the final year in medicine in Queen's University, with Dr. John Wyllie, professor of preventive medicine, in charge, visited the Kingston Whig-Standard and the Monarch Battery Company plant, going extensively through the plants and being shown the various workings of the two establishments.

It was mainly for a study of the use of lead in the manufacture of the paper and the batteries that Dr. Wyllie had the students on the tour. At the Whig-Standard they were met by W. Rupert Davies, president of the paper, who personally escorted the party through the plant and explained to them the system under which the linotypes are operated and the various casting operations are made. Dr. Wyllie was able to point out to the students that the improved methods eliminated almost entirely the danger of lead-poisoning which only a few years ago was very prevalent in newspaper offices.

At the Monarch Battery Company the students were very courteously received and were able to watch the manufacture of batteries and see how, as in the Whig-Standard improvements have done away with a great deal of lead poisoning.

ON HIS EXPERIENCE

When I consider how my cash is spent,
Ere half my days in this fine school have sped,
Three hundred dollars are already fled.
But tho' I am not broke I'm badly bent,
And fear to face my father and present
My true account lest he returning said,
"My boy, must be some girl has turned your head.
I thought you said you'd drop them when you went?"
"Ah yes," my father thus I did contest.
But dad, Oh gee, her lips, her hair, her eyes,
Well—, I really can't resist. Her state
Is queenly. Thousands at her bidding rise,
And waltz o'er ballroom dance-floors without rest;
And many more just have to stand and wait.

—B. M.

ANOTHER OLD ONE

She was only an electrician's daughter, but she gave me an awful shock.

A maid with a man neath the moon
Will be on his knee pretty soon.

Large Audience Attends Last Ban Righ Musicale

Continued from page 1

certo for flute and harp, the harp part being taken by the piano.

Mrs. Tracy, who led the Glee Club as well as the Ensemble, and Miss Williamson, the convener of the program, deserve much credit for the success of the musicale.

The next musicale will be held on Sunday, December 11th, at 8.45 in Ban Righ Hall and the program will consist of Christmas songs and carols.

AN OLD ONE

Stenographer to business man—"Your little girl wants to kiss you over the phone."

Business Man—"Take the message. I'll get it from you later."

World News Briefly

A triple tragedy was enacted near Howe Island, Kingston, Saturday, when father and son, John Williams (37) and John (12) along with Charles Nash were precipitated into the icy water from a motor boat. The first two were drowned, while Charles Nash heroically swam to the shore and staggered 300 yds. to a hay stack only to collapse from cold and exposure.

Seventy delegates to the Annual Meeting of the Wheat Pool at Calgary, Saturday, representing 42,300 members, entered into heated discussion of a proposal to limit production of farm products in Western Canada for 1933 to that sufficient for their own needs. Contingent upon aeeeptance of this scheme by the Alberta body, the strike may be extended to include Saskatchewan, Manitoba and other organized farm pools in the Dominion.

Donal Buckley, foremost participator in Irish Nationalist movements and opponent of British policy in Ireland took the Oath of Allegiance as Governor-General Saturday. This appointment is made on the advice of the local government and therefore can be regarded as expressing the approval of Eamon de Valera's administration.

Hon. Vincent Massey has been appointed President of the newly formed National Liberal Federation with headquarters at Ottawa. The organization fosters such projects as the removal of high tariff walls, institution of banking and electoral reform, and contributory unemployment insurance. Special resolutions expressing disapproval of the recently negociated Anglo-Canadian tariff agreements and the general policies of the present administration were adopted Friday.

James Grafton Rogers, Assistant Secretary of State at Washington testified before the Senate committee on the St. Lawrence Waterways project Monday, stating that there had been a fair division of costs between Canada and the United States. Senator Borah contended that "the United States would contribute $40,000,000 to a power project for which they would receive no offset of compensation.

A certain student of this University had a little too much to drink one night and when he asked a girl to dance with him and she refused, he picked up his plate and danced with it, much to the amusement of the others present.

Sign on Garage—We have no time to waste, it all belongs to you—

For Professors Only

Editor's Note: A reporter offers 7 short cuts to popularity. We cannot guarantee their success, nor will we answer letters addressed to us on the subject.

1. Never give warning of an exam. Surprise is the spice of life.
2. Don't frame your questions so that they will be understood. Students don't want a fair chance.
3. Catch questions are popular. Don't overlook this point.
4. See that an instructor snoops around. This is a great aid to the concentrating student.
5. Don't bother to mark the papers, you know what the students can do.
6. Good hand-writing is important. Plough the poor scribbler.
7. Be sure to give an essay for the last week of school. No one is very busy at this time.

ROOMS TO LET
Hot water heated—Five minutes walk from the College—Board or breakfast if desired.
123 King St. East

From Trapper to Wearer
FURS
McKAY
149-151 Brock St. Phone 603

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothes Shop
79 Prineess St.

ROY M. LONGO
With Geo. Salstone's Orchestra
Teacher of
Tenor Banjo, Mandola, Mandolin, Tenor Guitar, Spanish Guitar, String Bass, Arranging, Harmony.
212 Division St. Phone 1434-W

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

Say Photography -
and you think of
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

SMILIN' THROUGH
with
Norma Shearer, Leslie Howard, Fredric March and others

Clap calloused mitts for the director, Miss Shearer, Messrs. Howard and March, who emerge from a successful huddle and save Smilin' Through. The director and his cast were handling a ticklish situation. They were fortunately clear-eyed enough to realize the fact that it is easy to convert tears into sneers. For Smilin' Through is an organized drive on sentiment.

Perhaps a brief résumé of the story is indicated. Sir John (Leslie Howard), has an advanced case of Romantic Love for Moonyeen Clare (Norma Shearer), who is also That Way. Just as they are about to be married, she is killed by an also-ran, crazed with the treacherous combination of love and whiskey. Sir John lives on, entirely loyal to her memory. The murderer has fled to America.

Sir John adopts Moonyeen's niece, (la Shearer again) who promptly falls in love, when she has grown up, with Ken Wayne (Fredric March), son of Moonyeen's murderer. Sir John, an old man by this time, refuses to endorse such a mésalliance. Ken goes off to war, returns badly wounded, and gallantly tries to break off the affair, for the girl's sake, by the "and if I loved you Wednesday" method. The old lad, however, brings them together again.

Evidently, in such a film, there is only a very fine line between sentiment and sentimentality. The directorial baton is wisely used. Mr. Howard has the grace requisite for carrying off a difficult role, while the good sense and humour of Miss Shearer plus Mr. March's sincerity all convert Smilin' Through into a picture rather worth seeing. Indeed, the charm, ease and restraint which both Miss Shearer and Mr. March show in their highly emotional scenes, have a disturbing authenticity. So much so, that I was horrified at one point to feel a tear trembling on the lashes of these hardened old eyes. "Touché", I murmured unhappily.

Smilin' Through is the sort of film one cares to see once a year. But it stands as a fine testimonial to artistic direction and dramatic restraint. And if, occasionally, there is a whiff of lavender blown across the screen, a rustle of old lace, they are forgotten in a general effect that is moving and interesting. And if sentiment thus widely played up is on your index expurgatorius, I can only say in defence of Smilin' Through. "But it was the best butter!" A—.

AT THE TIVOLI

THE TIP OFF
with
Robert Armstrong, Eddie Quillan, Ginger Rogers.

The racketeers again hold forth as a young radio mechanic walks into the gangster kingdom in The Tip Off.

Using the old radio trick with a hand microphone and an amplifier Tommy Jordan (Eddie Quillan), manages to scare off about six gangsters attempting to get the contending middle-weight champion (Robert Armstrong) out of the way. Tommy and Kayo become firm friends and then the trouble starts as Kayo trys to protect Tommy after he had stolen the big boss's girl.

Eddie Quillan looks too young for the racket, but in spite of that he lends a little humour to a worn-out story. Robert Armstrong, with his excessive abuse of the English language, offers a few laughs.

The laurels of this performance, if any, may be accredited to Ginger Rogers, as Kayo's wife, for her portrayal of a prize fighter's grammatical tutor.

An abrupt conclusion saves the picture from continuing on into sheer monotony. C + +.

Save Our Children Slogan Of Kindly Kingstonians

"Save our children! Get those students!" cried the Kingston parents, whereupon the Mayor and all his cohorts gathered into council. And the Mayor, donning his golden horse-collar, reared on his hind legs and appointed fourteen good men and true to protect the young of Kingston from the wheels of progress. Then he presented to each and every one of the fourteen an armband of office, whereon was inscribed "Traffic Officer," and there, yesterday, at each and every corner around K. C.I. did the surprised students of this noble institution find these minions of the law, resplendent in white arm-bands.

So take heed you who drive to and from these Halls of Learning that you don't run foul of this dignified army; they mean business.

Just the same it's a darn good idea on somebody's part, so lets give them our support.

A burglar, trapped in a middle western store, was found to be an honor student at a nearby college. He was at once relieved of his Phi Beta Kappa skeleton key.

Book Chats

By R.M.

Something of the same quality as Stephen Leacock's sketches of a small town is seen in Tayville by J. K. Robertson, (The Ryerson Press, Toronto), Professor of physics in Queen's University.

Whereas Stephen Leacock's sharp wit almost extends to satire Professor Robertson in this delightful little book evidences a vein of quiet humour and sympathy born of a mind in love with the small town.

Of all the sketches in Tayville, I like the one entitled "A Doctor of the Old School" best. To one who is familiar with small towns in eastern Ontario this book will have an intimate appeal; it touches on familiar scenes—The Windsor Arms hotel, Tayville Station, A Blacksmith Shop and The Livery Stables.

With the passing years many of these institutions have undergone change and to one conversant with them in the gay nineties they must indeed appear different from his boyhood. But even to-day the small town goes its way serene and undismayed by the march of progress. This type of literature is what is needed for the development of community of interest and understanding in this Canada of ours.

Bliss Perry, the famous critic, has defined the best novel as that in which "the growth of mind and heart and will are expressed through tangible and striking scenes." Measuring Richard Pryce's recent novel Morgan's Yard (Thomas Allen for Houghton & Mifflin, Toronto) by this standard it does not appear to be a very remarkable book. Despite these shortcomings, however, I can't help having a liking for the book; but it is hard to be explicit about this. Perhaps that overused word, "charm" expresses the idea as well as any. Maurice Chavalier in a recent interview said that charm is "an ability to be simple; to be one's self." And Mr. Pryce certainly has a natural grace and simplicity in his style, although his treatment of incident and character shows a lack of compression and selection.

Mr. Pryce, one would infer from his writing, has a strong sympathy for the Victorians, but he also makes sporadic attempts at realism. The result is that he holds views belonging to both the victorian and modern eras. And his characters are rather commonplace people with no really eventful happenings in their lives. At least that is the impression I got of Mrs. Chesson, a taciturn widow resident in the yard, and her servant Hannah. The element of realism is introduced in the way of a love affair between Mrs. Chesson's son Nicholas and Ann Hesketh. Nicholas goes to the war and is killed. Ann has a child by him. This seems to be the motive for Mrs. Chesson's reticence. The moving cause in the story is Mrs. Chesson's spiritual awakening and the dynamic revelation of her character proceeds throughout the book.

The chief fault I have to find with Mr. Bryce is that he is too verbose and much irrelvant matter is introduced that detracts from the interest. For instance a whole chapter is devoted to Hannah and her rhapsodizing, out of all proportion to her significance in the story. Teddy Abinger and John Clethcroe, playwright and painter respectively, are well portrayed. The dialogue between these two is witty, relevant, and interesting. It would seem then that Mr. Pryce doesn't know his women. But his all pervasive love of humanity makes up for any minor weaknesses.

MUSIC

Last Sunday evening the Ban Righ Musicale season opened most auspiciously with a program arranged by Mrs. Tracy, Mrs. Williamson and Miss Elsie Williamson. The first offering was a Byrd canon for three voices, sung by the Glee Club, a group of singers under the direction of Mrs. Tracy, conspicuous both for their strong alto section and their well controlled pianos and fortes. They continued with two settings of words by Shakespeare, "Come Unto These Yellow Sands," in which the solo passages were excellently taken by Miss Cordy, and "Come If You Dare," the solos of which Mrs. Gilmore sang with all the ease and purity expected of her. Next Mr. Percival (accompanied by Mrs. Williamson) sang of a lover roaming the forest; it seemed to him that the trees and nightingales all joined in whispering one name: "Adelaide,"; Beethoven composed the delicate music to which this song was set. The attention of the audience was then held by an ensemble consisting of Piano, Mrs. Tracy; Flute, Dr. Gummer; Violins, Misses Muriel Arbuckle, Mabel Edwards, Phyllis Gummer and Dorothy Neilson; Viola, Dr. Tracy; Cello, Jack Baker. They played the "Ox Minuet", composed by Haydn for the wedding of his landlord's daughter; "Musette" by Rameau, in which the sound of the bagpipes is cleverly suggested by the muted strings; and a Mozart minuet.

Mr. Percival's next performance, "Der Erlkonig" by Schubert, deserves to be marked by a new paragraph. Although he sang in German, Miss Laird's explanation enabled the listeners to picture the anxious father galloping through the night with his sick child. The child sees the Erlking first enticing him with promises, then threatening to take him by force. "Hush" says the father, "'tis only a gray willow:" but when he reached home, there in his arms the child . . . was dead. Both Mr. Percival and his accompanist Mrs. Williamson deserve the greatest credit for their rendering of this difficult song. Let us pause for a moment in memory of Schubert, the bespectacted little composer whose glorious melodies passed unnoticed for an incredible number of years; who during his lifetime was neglected by all save a few friends, and who died at the age of thirty-one: if only he had lived longer! . . . Following this, the Glee Club returned to sing an ingenious canon in which an air was taken in both double and half time, simultaneously with the original, thus producing harmony. While all enjoyed this canon, it was the "Skye Boat Song" which set the Scottish scalps a-tingle; this old yet ever-fresh melody is a new joy each time one hears it, particularly so well done as it was on this occasion. The solos were performed by Miss Harcourt. Once again Mr. Percival was heard; he sang two songs, "Hark, Hark, the Lark" by Schubert (this was the song which the composer, in the grip of sudden inspiration, first wrote on the back of a tavern bill-of-fare), and "My Heart's in the Highlands," by Schuman. Finally the ensemble re-appeared to play a most interesting "Flute and Harp Concerto," by Mozart, Dr. Gummer playing the flute and Mrs. Tracy rendering the harp part on the piano; and so the evening drew to a

Tigers Beat Varsity In Hard Fought Game

Once again an Intercollegiate champion team was not good enough to take the Big 4 medal holders, when Varsity lost to Tigers last Saturday, 9 to 3.

At that the Blue team created a huge surprise by their astonishingly good defence against the powerful Tiger plungers, and their general all round play against an admittedly more powerful team. It was a Varsity fumble 20 yards out from their line that set the stage for the Tiger touchdown, but to offset this, an injury to Turville in the second quarter took much of the steam out of the Tiger attack. Turville was not the same player thereafter and finally had to retire in the third quarter for the balance of the game. And those who have been following Turville's work on Tigers' backfield this season, will realize what a loss his retirement meant. Ray Boadway, not a bad halfback at all to have around, took over the kicking duties, but his punts were weak.

Conditions were decidedly different for this game than for the Tiger-Sarnia struggle the week before. King Winter took over the weather and provided a gridiron that refused to give an inch. In view of the frozen state of the turf, it is strange that there were not more serious accidents.

While Jack Sinclair, playing his last game for Varsity, turned in a wonderful game, it was the Varsity line that rose to the occasion by stopping the Tiger plungers. Tinnis and Boadway could not make their accustomed excursions through the Blue line, but big Sprague ambled through a couple of times for the odd 37 yard push, and a few lesser hucks. The Varsity tackling was deadly and this proved to be very effective in stopping Hamilton attacks.

With the wind in the Southwest, and in their favor, Tigers used its beneficial pep freely in the first quarter to pile up a lead of three points, mainly hy the aid of Turville's talented toe. The Bengal line plunges were not required in this frame because a punting display was called for and though Sinclair did a bit of plain and fancy kicking on his own account, Hamilton ended the quarter without being scored upon.

Varsity had the help of the zephyrs in the second quarter, but could only capitalize to the extent of one solitary point, a kick to Turville, resulting in a rouge. Tigers were fumbling repeatedly but managed to recover most of the loose ovals. Turville took a hard tackle seriously, and though he stayed in the game, his kicking was below par and his running practically nil for the remainder of his stay in the battle. The half ended with Tigers 3 and Varsity 1.

The game was decided in the third quarter when Tigers went over for a touch, and converted it. Copp of Varsity fumbled a punt on his own 20 and the Tiger tanks did the rest, pushing it over for a major score. Varsity had added one to their total just prior to this by kicking for a point, and the quarter ended, Tigers 9 and Varsity 3. Turville could not stand further tackles and had to retire. And don't forget his loss hurts.

Both teams tried mightily during the final quarter, but with the wind in their favor, and at full strength, Varsity could not score a single point. And this with Boadway kicking weakly for Hamilton. The game ended with play tossing back and forth over the centre field line, Tigers 9, Varsity 3.

Forum Meeting Debates Unemployment Remedies

Continued from page 1

A survey of the township of Pittsburgh shows that there is accommodation for three times the present population in the rural districts. So many farms are badly in need of technical improvements while the very men who could do these remain idle in the cities. Could not these men make use of their training to improve farm buildings, etc., in return for food and shelter.

The final meeting of this term will be held next Thursday. Captain Watts will outline Russia's second five-year plan.

Of girls—Pick yourself the very best. Leave unto the Lord the rest.

There's no place like home
When there's nowhere else to roam.

All people are free to do
What their boss tells them to.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

CLUB BAG
The old favorite in many styles and sizes. $1.50 and up.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

FRENCH LESSONS
Good conversational French taught
25 cents an hour
GASTON HOUDE
17 Division St.

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

College Without Football?

Can a college exist without football? This question is answered in a recent issue of The New York Times. The article reads as follows:

A Missouri college, daring the athletic fates, has deliberately abolished intercollegiate football. And as part of the step, it has made a careful check-up to see what the effects would be on its ability to hold students, on the kind of students attracted, and on public favor. The results, showing almost no adverse effects and some favorable ones, are now available.

Westminster College is one of the oldest institutions of higher learning in the State. Founded in 1849, it has been operated continuously ever since. It is strictly a liberal arts college, conservative scholastically, and of exceptionally high educational standards. It admits only men and has a limitation on its freshman class.

Having finished last season with an undefeated team, and having a coach of outstanding ability and a wealth of letter men returning, the college board of trustees and the faculty nevertheless decided to abandon the sport. It was felt that football was being unduly emphasized and that there was a tendency in college athletics in general to raise them from their rightful place to the point of folly. It was thought that football had even a somewhat demoralizing effect on the student body, and it was certain that the cost of the sport was quite out of proportion to the resources of the college. The economic depression was the last straw in turning the scales.

The action raised a storm. The undergraduates almost unanimously protested and the younger alumni made a determined effort to have the trustees reverse their step. When this attempt failed there was an unconcealed spirit of dissatisfaction, and many gloomy predictions.

The Outcome

Actually, the step seems to have made no difference. The older men have not transferred to institutions supporting football, as was predicted. Last year 87 per cent of the preceding year's junior class returned as seniors. This year the percentage is exactly the same. Last year 63 per cent. of the preceding year's sophomore class returned as juniors. This year 67 per cent has returned, a gain of 4 per cent. Last year 71 per cent of the preceding freshman class returned as sophomores; this year 67 per cent. a loss of 4 per cent. This loss, it is said, is distinctly and directly due to financial considerations and is in no way attributable to the football issue. To cite one instance, one fraternity lost six of last year's freshmen because of bank failures and similar financial troubles. Every one of the six would be registered in the college today had times been normal. A few of the football lettermen transferred, but the college lost as many men when a student orchestra was employed by a cafe in a neighboring college town as it did by the transfer of lettermen.

The Enrolment Record

Although Westminster is the most expensive institution in the State, its total enrolment dropped only 9 per cent. The published figures of the Missouri University show a loss of 10 per cent. Westminster had a loss of 25 per cent in freshmen, all, of course, being men. Missouri University had a loss of 35 per cent. in freshmen in the whole institution—which figures include the law school, with the largest enrolment of freshmen in the university's history. And two other colleges belonging to the Missouri College Union and in Westminster's class, both accentuating football and each with a formidable eleven, each show a loss of nearly 50 per cent in freshmen. Other enrolment statistics for colleges in this section show that Westminster fared remarkably well.

The character of the entering class, moreover, while smaller in numbers, was concededly the best in personnel in years. The fraternities had more material than could be assimilated. Scholarship was unusually high, while many entering students had been high school football players. During the whole Summer only six prospective students indicated that the absence of football would affect their choice of a college. Naturally, the Westminster authorities diligently sought to ascertain the effect of this action. So far as could be determined, it was negligible.

College Spirit Survives

As for that intangible thing called college spirit, it was deemed impossible to have an undergraduate body enthuse over the college without the inspiration of a winning eleven. But faculty and upperclassmen are practically of one opinion: that there is a better spirit on the campus, a more enthusiastic tone among the students than has been noted for years. Possibly the reason is because every one of the approximately 300 men is himself actively interested in some sport, as compared with former times, when about forty men were on the football field and the rest of the student body had little to do but complain.

Alumni, friends of the college and the public generally have also been favorable.

What does Westminster offer in exchange? It gives every undergraduate supervised exercise and drill in those sports in which he is personally interested.

SPORTS SLANTS

Varsity are not doing so well in playoffs. The Senior and Intermediate teams have already been eliminated. The Junior situation has not cleared yet.

• • • • • •

Guelph must have a very powerful team. They pushed through their own group handily, and trounced Loyola and Varsity with ridiculous ease. For a small college they turn out great squads.

• • • • • •

To-day Medicine and Science meet to decide the University Interfaculty title. It should be a good game as both squads are very strong.

• • • • • •

From now until Hockey and Basketball games begin, is the doldrums in the sport world. After other sports are over, a series of individual events will be held, between the professors and the students.

• • • • • •

The basketball squad will soon be leaving for its tour of the U.S.A., or rather part of it. The team is in the pink of condition and is improving daily.

Evans Memorial Trophy

The above is the trophy awarded to Howard Carter, Captain of the Senior rugby team. This plaque was presented to the Athletic Board in memory of Johnny Evans, one of the greatest quarterbacks ever to wear Queen's colors. The trophy will be awarded each year to the most valuable player on the Senior team, chosen by his mates.

Big 4 Champs Last Defeated By Queen's

..Now that Varsity has been put out of the rugby scenes for this year, it is interesting to delve a bit, and discover what fortune the Intercollegiate teams have had in their quest for Dominion Honors.

The Tricolor was the last team to successfully uphold the Intercollegiate honors in Dominion playoffs, this occurring in 1924, when Queen's whipped Tigers and then Balmy Beach in succession. The Western Canada champs decided not to come east that year.

The year before Queen's defeated Hamilton Rowing Club and then Hamilton Tigers, before meeting and walloping Regina, to take top honors.

But since 1924 the Intercollegiate champions have seemingly become weaker, and less able to topple the Big 4 or O.R.F.U. title holders.

If you care to do a little more digging you will find that Queen's were the second official Canadian champions. They beat Montreal, Quebec, in 1893, by the decisive score of 29 to 11 to reach major success in all Canada, and lost the following year by one point to Ottawa University.

A long stretch of lean years intervened before our hopes were again realized and it was not until 1922 that Queen's defeated Edmonton Elks to take the Canadian championship.

Queen's Rugger Team Held Banquet in Hotel Frontenac

The Queen's English Rugger team held a most successful banquet in the Hotel Frontenac on Saturday evening, Nov. 27th.

In the course of the proceedings the following officials for next season were elected: Captain Ronald MacDonald, Vice-Captain, Ian Panton; Secretary, Ken Ruffman. Alec Barry was appointed to the vacancy on the Selection Committee. It was then decided to approach the Athletic Board of Control with a view to securing the entry of Queen's into the Intercollegiate Rugger league next year.

After the business of organization for 1933-4 had been disposed of, the team applied itself with conspicuous success to the task of discharging in full its outstanding social obligations and the evening passed quietly to its predestined, but for some, uncertain, conclusion.

O. A. C. Defeats Varsity Intermediates 35 to 5

Just how far Queen's, R.M.C. and Ottawa College were away from championship calibre, is well illustrated in the results of the Varsity O.A.C. championship game at Guelph, Saturday, when O.A.C. trampled all over the Blue second team 35 to 5.

Varsity looked very much better than any of the other teams in the group, and were considered one of the finest intermediate teams that Varsity ever turned out. But on a frozen field at Guelph, they were never in the hunt, and absorbed just as terrific a beating as they handed out to the other teams in their own group.

The Agriculturalists put over a fast one on the city slickers when their coach equipped the team with canvas running shoes. This enabled the Guelphites to gallop around on the hard surface like sprinters, and it also conserved their pep. Varsity also secured the light footwear in the final half of the battle but it was far too late then. Aggies led at the end of the first half 29 to 0, and held their lead easily, against the best Varsity could do.

If Guelph decide to go farther, they will meet St. Catherines, first, and if successful, Westwards of Montreal next for the Dominion Intermediate championship title.

Arts '34 To Stage Year Dance At La Salle Hotel

La Salle Hotel will be the rendezvous of a merry throng next Thursday evening when Arts '34 are holding their Year Dance.

For this event the services of Charlie Hopkirk's Orchestra have been secured and all arrangements have been made to ensure that the evening shall provide the most enjoyable entertainment that the able direction of the Year Dance Committee can contrive.

The Dance will begin at 9 o'clock and tickets are now available at $1 apiece. It is expected that there will be a brisk sale during the next twenty-four hours so that intending revellers are urged by the committee not to delay purchase.

A scientist has declared that kisses shorten life, but don't you like things short and sweet.

Politician speaking at meeting—"And moreover we should burn every import from the United States but coal."

Where Did You Go Last Night?

Wherever you went, if you wore a TIP TOP suit, you carried with you the distinction of being well-dressed.

Every TIP TOP suit is hand-cut and tailored to 21 personal measurements. There is a quality to a TIP TOP suit or overcoat that reflects the good judgment of the wearer. We feature tuxedos and full dress suits.

$22.50
MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS
119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup.'"
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

Bander Snatches

Everything was wrong. Alice couldn't concentrate. She sat at her desk with a Latin Book open in front of her. "Cicero had no business spouting so much," she thought angrily to herself." He could have said all this nonsense in one half as many words. Oh dear, let's see now 'If there be any natural ability in me, O judges—and I know how slight that is'—(but it's a pity he didn't realize it sooner)." She groaned inwardly and threw the book on the floor. "I'll do my Latin prose—let's see, now—what's the word for 'vote'?" Alice struggled for half an hour with two sentences and just as she was starting a third, which promised to be even more difficult than the others, the room began to swim dizzily and to revolve rapidly several times, just one way and then another. The pictures flew off the walls and became adjusted in all sorts of ridiculous places. The chairs were running around in all directions and Alice was beginning to feel quite cross-eyed when, without warning, she was thrown with a jerk onto the floor. At the same time the mad dancing of the chairs and bed stopped and Alice looked around to find that miraculously they had changed into chesterfields. She was no longer in her room, but in a huge place which was crowded with chairs of all descriptions—on which were seated countless strange creatures who were all staring in her direction. They all sat in silence and regarded her so severely that the first thing she thought of was the Soph. court. But no. After waiting for some time Alice said, in a loud voice.

"I hope you'll excuse me"—

("Oh, quite," came the chorus).

"for inquiring where I am. Would you mind telling me?" This last she addressed to a weird creature who resembled a cabbage with many black eyes and long green toe-nails. As it was attired in a gown which bore no red braid, Alice decided that the creature must belong to the faculty.

"My dear, you are at one of the most momentous of the faculty meetings. We have decided to ask you, as a member of the student body, for your opinion on the motions we are about to adopt."

Here the whole assembly sagely nodded their heads and then resumed their attitude which by now was a cause of acute discomfort to Alice.

"Yes, sir," she said, not feeling sure whether to address the creatures "sir" or "madam" owing to the difficulty of determining the sex of a cabbage.

"Now will someone explain to this young lady the nature of the first resolution?"

A bedlam arose—all spoke at once, each trying to drown the others out.

The Mock Turtle, however, won the floor (as usual) and addressed Alice in pompous tones.

"We have resolved first of all, my dear, to provide a chesterfield suite for the locker room in the Arts building to enable Levana to smoke in comfort."

Next, we have passed a motion to the effect that in the future the Student Government in this university shall function unhindered by the faculty.

The faculty also imposes the penalty of not allowing professors to set Christmas Examinations in any courses in which they are more than five minutes late for lectures more than twice this term.

Nor shall any prof. detain a class one second after the stroke of twelve noon.

We have also made arrangements for the immediate installation of two drinking fountains on each floor of the New Arts Building for the benefit of sufferers from DRY lectures.

The usual 7-minute period between classes shall be extended to 10 minutes to ensure that all students may reach classes in other buildings with ample time for the smoking of one whole cigarette. We of the faculty realize that it is very disagreeable to light up a butt which has already been partly smoked twice in the same morning.

There shall, in the future, be at least two college dances each week, and if need be we'll stake the students to a few parties ourselves.

We are taking the matter of fussing rules into our own hands and announce that they are, from now on, abolished! We hope that this will inspire a few of these Queen's-sweatered seniors to remove the bags from their trousers, and the three-day beard from their faces and give the Frosh some competition. Levana has suffered in silence for some time, and we hope that she will no longer be forced to endure the society of the Great unwashed. Perhaps Frosh competition will encourage a few misguided individuals to spruce up.

"Bravo!" shouted Alice.

"And now for the final touch, my dear, we have decided to allow all students unrestricted hours for studying!"

Alice gasped. What a pity to spoil their good resolutions by bringing in something unendurable like this!

"Now please, sir—what about having History 2 changed from an eight o'clock to an eleven o'clock?" she cried.

The whole assembly arose in fury. The room became a bedlam of voices crying in various pitches, "No, no," and Alice found herself surrounded by a crowd of enraged faces. Someone grasped her shoulder and began shaking her till she was sure her teeth would fall out.

"Come out of it, silly—you've no business shouting such nonsence—wake up."

Alice opened her eyes to find the Red Queen vigorously shaking her. The dream had been so real! And now it wasn't true at all, nor likely to be so, as far as Alice could see dreams seldom are.

TREACLE AND INK.

THEN AND NOW

What a difference 200 years can make! In the early days, Kingston was a little village which did not extend any farther than Queen Street, and a wall completely surrounded the town on the landward side. Square rigged sailing vessels lay in the harbour and the naval yard and fort were going strong. Just beyond the defence walls of the town thick forests stood and Indians roamed the woods in search of furs. Now it is a city. Where once the Indians roamed the woods, farmers are growing grain. There is hardly a trace of the defence wall left and the fort is in decay. Instead of the old sailing vessels, the harbour is now full of grain boats which are driven by steam. What a change!

At one of the boarding houses about town one of the fellows finished his meat and potatoes first. He then tasted his desert which happened to be cherries and a smile of surprise spread over his face as he said, "Have any of you fellows signed the prohibition pledge."

MODERNIZED WEATHER FORECAST

Sky dark in the morning is a co-eds' sure warning.

Sky dark at night is the co-eds' delight.

We find "Eve" at the beginning of "everything."

Frosh to group of sophs—"Would you please excuse me."

Sophs in unison—"That's easy."

Frosh—Why is a woman like an elephant?

Soph—Damdifino.

Frosh—They're both afraid of mice.

A. M. S. Minutes

A meeting of the A.M.S. Executive on Tuesday, November 8, 1932. President Clapp in the chair.

Present: Misses Landon and Kimmins, Messrs. Charland, Clapp, Day, Finley, Hamlin, Morrison, Parks, Robertson, Warrington, Wilson and Permanent Secretary-Treasurer.

Minutes read and adopted.

The meeting approved the Arts Formal being held on January 27, 1933, and the Science '33 dance on November 4th. The Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to attempt further to get in touch with last year's Tricolor Editor and to reply to a communication from the S.C.A. regarding its relation to the A.M.S. The petition of the Brass Band for a grant was held over until a later meeting.

Warrington-Wilson: That the following bills be paid for the A.M.S.

Election Expenses:
Jackson Press	$27.03
Food—Students' Union	15.50
Miscellaneous	5.25
Typing	1.50
Honorarium	10.00
	$57.28

Carried.

Day-Parks: That a bill of $2.12 from Hanson & Edgar for printing notices regarding a Pep Rally be paid. Carried.

Robertson-Day: That the following bills be paid for the Journal:

J. R. C. Dobbs	$ 2.10
Bell Telephone	9.91
H. J. Hamilton, Commission on Advertising	54.23
J. S. Hazen, trip to Montreal	11.50
	$77.74

Carried.

Finley-Hamlin: That the Directory be supplied to the Secretary of each year who shall turn over to the A.M.S. two cents per name listed under his year. Carried.

Hamlin-Charland: That damages to a fence carried off during the Pyjama Parade be charged to each Freshman year in proportion to size. Carried.

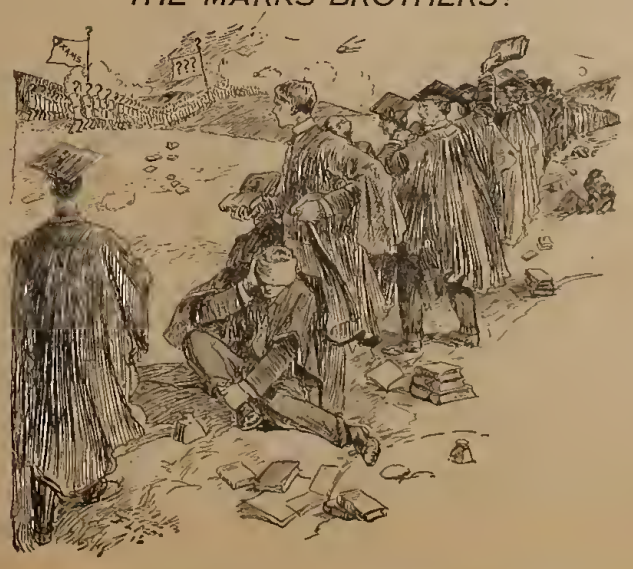
Finley-Hamlin: That the sum of $10 be furnished the Business Manager of the Tricolor for a petty cash fund to be operated on the imprest system. Carried.

The Executive refused to authorize the proposed crest of Medicine '38 until the "Q" had been eliminated and the revised plan re-submitted for approval.

Robertson-Hamlin: That a committee consisting of the President of the A.M.S. and of each of the Levana, Arts, Aesculapian and Engineering Societies be appointed to approach the Senate with the object of having a Memorial Service on Remembrance Day and also a suspension of classes on Saturday morning. Carried.

Finley-Wilson: That each Faculty Society be empowered to supervise the distribution of Journals delivered to its building. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.



The other day I asked a freshman what desert his landlady gave him. He replied, "Oh, she's a very proud woman! Such frosh.

A minister shocked some of the good people up North by remarking after a funeral service, "Ladies and gentlemen, would you kindly pass round the bier."

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
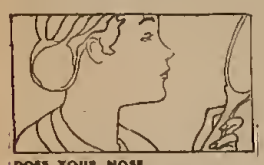
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

THE MARKS BROTHERS!

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262



PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Sallstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

YOU CAN'T BEAT
Witch - Elk
SHOES FOR MEN
For years we have sold and recommended them.
Priced at
$5.50, $7.50, $8.50, $9.00
Solid Leather Throughout
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Campus and Gym

A number of Levana hockey enthusiasts turned out to the practice game with Arts '35 yesterday in the Jock Harty Arena. The game was full of action from start to finish, and resulted in the score 11-0 for Arts '35. The girls played a defence game all through, but kept the boys on the alert by clever stick-handling and plenty of speed. Those on the Levana team were:

Dot Clemens, Margaret McGregor, Jean Stewart, Marg. Chambers, Jean Nelson, Edith Grant, Jean Cameron and Lillian Ward.

McGill's prospects for a women's hockey team are undergoing strenuous practice periods in an attempt to bring back a sport which in the days of Babe Goulding held full sway at the University. If the manager is successful in forming a team of capable players, there is a suggestion to invite the Queen's team down for an exhibition tilt.

COMMERCE CLUB

The Commerce Club will hear Mr. J. R. Belton speak on "Production Control" at their luncheon next Thursday afternoon.

The luncheon will be held in the Students' Union at 12.30 p.m. Mr. Belton, who will address the members of the club on this occasion, represents the Gutta Percha Rubber Co. of Toronto.

Chemical Engineers Will Meet On November 30th

The second monthly meeting of the Chemical Engineers will be held in the Chemical Engineering Department of Ontario Hall on Wednesday, November 30th at 4.00 p.m.

Two interesting papers were prepared for the occasion. Mr. C. H. Hilliker will give a talk on "Superphosphates." The other paper is to be read by Mr. F. J. Thompson, who has chosen as his topic of discussion, "Fertilizers." Both these talks should yield much of interest and should be well worth hearing.

The meeting is open to all Science students, and special invitation is extended to all freshmen and second year students interested in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering. B.Y.O.B.

COMING EVENTS

Tuesday, Nov. 29:
2.30p.m.—Arts '33 and '34 combined meeting
Room 101
3.00p.m.—Arts Society Meeting
Convocation Hall
Wednesday, Nov. 30th:
4.15p.m.—University Lecture
"Sir Walter Scott and his Joural."
Dr. J. R. P. Sclater
Convocation Hall.
Thursday, Dec. 1:
12.30p.m.—Commerce Club Luncheon
Mr. J. R. Belton to speak on "Production Control."
Students' Union
7.30p.m.—Debating Union
Douglas Library
9.00p.m.—Arts '34 Year Dance
Hotel La Salle
Hopkirk's Orchestra
Friday, Dec. 2:
8.00p.m.—Intercollegiate Debate
Ban Righ Hall
8.15p.m.—Lecture on "Egyptian Antiquities."
Mr. S. K. R. Glanville
Convocation Hall.

STUDENTS!
Notes and theses typed
Reasonable rates
PHONE 1033

E. C. Kyte To Give Lecture In Montreal

Mr. E. C. Kyte, the librarian of the Douglas Library, is scheduled to give an address on "First Editions" before the Quebec Library Association in Montreal, early in December.

The Quebec Library Association has as one of its aims the promotion of interest in and the welfare of the libraries of the province of Quebec. Mr. Kyte's address before the Association will deal mainly with the craze for the possession of first editions which has swept this continent, and especially the United States, in the last few years. First editions of books which were issued in large numbers could never become rare, and although high prices were paid for first editions of such books as "We" by Colonel Charles Lindberg, these first editions would never be worth more than their purchase price.

NATURAL HISTORY CLUB

The Natural History Club will meet on Thursday at 4 p.m. in the old Arts Building. Dr. J. Stanley will be the speaker and members and others will find much of interest in his lecture.

The naturalists take this opportunity of inviting all biological students to attend this meeting of the club.

Civil Club Hears Account Of Voyage On Cattle Boat

(Continued from page 1)

that the cattle were being fattened on the voyage. After breakfast, the process of cleaning the stalls was started. Mr. Barrie, by means of various sketches, demonstrated how the tidying of the stalls was done and the need for cleaning minimized. In conclusion Mr. Barrie described a seasick steer, and compared it with his own feeling.

Keith Mitchell spoke on the Turner Valley Oil Field. Coming from Calgary, Mr. Mitchell was well versed in his subject. He showed the extent of the field, its products, and its tremendous future.

The field was officially started in 1914, when to celebrate the visit of the Governor-General, oil was pumped into drill holes from barrels and, before an impressed audience the oil was pumped into the barrels when it came. In 1924 a zealous workman drilled beyond the required depth into a limestone strata. Gas was held in this rock, and was released, the first well blowing with a flow of 14,000,000 cu. ft. per day. Many other wells were drilled and now there are 43 companies, including Imperial Oil, producing gas in the Turner Field. Large quantities of naptha are taken from the gas. Gas is supplied to Calgary and district for lighting and heating. The waste gas, which is a large percentage of the output of the field, is removed from the field and burned. Provincial law now restricts the flow of the wells to conserve the supply. Evidence points to the gas being a seepage from a large lake of crude oil in the vicinity, but up to now no crude oil has been discovered. Exploration is now being carried on to locate the bed. Research is being carried on to perfect a process to convert the gas into benzene. Dr. Frost of the Chemistry Department of Queen's has been working on this problem.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

I should define religion as that body of beliefs which unify life, beliefs being those principles on which one acts. But coherent action involves purpose. For me, the purpose of action is alliance with the good which is in the world. This alliance will not be merely a friendly entente, but it will involve and employ all my energies to the exclusion of things inconsonant with it.

This good comes to me from many sources. It comes from nature, in sunlight, rain, the productive ground, on all of which my life depends. Beyond these necessities of existence, there is the beauty offered in nature. But the good in nature is greatly enhanced, and is made available through the good in people. The labors of other people give me food, shelter, and clothing. Their experience teaches me how to avoid danger, to preserve life, and in general to recognize what is good and what is not. Again, I find this good in men of history. Socrates, the Hebrew Prophets, Confusius, and others reveal it. Most completely, it is revealed for me in Jesus. He shows a mastery and control of his own life and an adjustment to the Universe, more perfect than which I am unable to discover.

The evil which is revealed in nature, and human history, cannot be disregarded. Accident, earthquake, disease, or human stupidity and ignorance are evident and may destroy me. But I choose to ally myself with the good and take its chances.

There are advantages to alliance with this good. It gives me adjustment to the Universe in which, and to the people with whom, I have to live, because the good in me responds to the good in it and them; and since some part of it is everywhere evident the alliance is always effective. It gives me balance because it is an objective criterion by which to judge myself and situations in which I find myself. It releases me from fear because whatever happens to me, it shall still go on, and since my interests are there my interests will still go on.

The totality of this good which appears in nature, human history, and in the infinite possibility it holds for the future, I call God. Every act which relates me more closely to God must be described as religious, since it unifies life in purposive action, just insofar as my life is unified toward God, thus far am I religious.

R. A. C.

DEBATING UNION

The Debating Union will meet at 7.30 p.m. next Thursday evening in Room 211 of the Douglas Library when the following motion will be debated: "that the existence of tariff barriers between Canada and the United States is a hindrance to prosperity."

GRADUATE CLUB

There will be a meeting of the Grad's Club on Wednesday, November 30, at 8 p.m., in the Arts Club room. At this meeting, Dr. E. L. Bruce, will speak on "Some Geological Problems and their Relation to the other Sciences."

A bashful young man went into a room and saw an empty chair. "Is that chair engaged?" he asked one of the visitors. "No—not even keeping company," she replied.

The Polo Wintercoat!
THE SMARTEST CREATION OF THE YEAR—
Designed by Warren K. Cook, of Course!
Featured at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
COR. BROCK & WELLINGTON STS.
FLOWERS OF HIGHEST QUALITY
No Orders too large or too small to receive our prompt and courteous attention
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Flowers telegraphed to any part of the world

"LEES" $9.00 — "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

FORMAL DRESS
BUY YOUR CLOTHES FROM A TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT, THEIR ADVICE IS FREE, JUDGMENT BETTER, AND KNOWLEDGE OF THE BUSINESS GREATER.
Try
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1932. No. 19

Queen's Library

Arts Men Vote To Cancel Frosh Attendance Rules

Motion For Abolition Gets Large Majority After Heated Debate

Compulsory Freshman attendance at the meetings of the Arts Society was abolished at a special meeting held in Convocation Hall. But Frosh who have not attended eighty per cent. of the meetings already held will be prosecuted at the coming Arts Court.

About two hundred men of the Arts faculty were present, and a large percentage of these were Freshmen. The president of the Society was in the chair and he announced that the purpose of the meeting was to discuss and settle the question of Frosh attendance.

A motion was put before the meeting by John Parker that compulsory Freshman attendance at the Arts Society meetings be abolished. For fifty-five minutes a heated discussion followed, and in order to allow everyone to express his views, the chairman overlooked minor breaches in the more obscure points of parliamentary procedure.

The general feeling expressed in the discussion seemed to be that if the Frosh were not forced to attend the meeting the Society would be "washed-up." This led to the discussion of the merits, aims, purpose and future of the Society and finally, after nearly an hour had passed, the vote was taken. The "Abolitionists" were successful in passing the measure with a large majority. The Frosh present, unlike their predecessors of the previous year, had decided that to be compelled to come to the Arts Meetings was a "Bad Thing."

The next question to decide was the fate of the Arts Society. Various proposals as to the holding of meetings and suggestions as to how they should be held

(Continued on page 5)

Levana Debate To Discuss Censorship

The Women's Intercollegiate debate will be held in Ban Righ Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. The subject is that some form of government censorship of motion pictures is desirable, and the Levana team of Miss Dorothy Wiebins and Miss Ada Adams will uphold the affirmative side of the question against Miss Jean Tabbs and Miss Marjorie Brittain of McMaster University.

The president of the Levana Debating Club, Miss Jo Tett, will preside, and the judges will be Mrs. L. H. Miles, Dr. Mackenzie-Naughton and Mr. McLelland. The subject is one in which there is a great deal of interest and about which widely diversified opinions are held. For this reason, the arguments put forth by the debaters should be of interest to everyone.

Water Polo Game In Queen City Postponed

The water polo game between Queen's and Varsity Intermediates which was to have been played in Toronto this evening has been postponed.

This game was scheduled to open the Intercollegiate fixture which was to be featured by the McGill-Varsity clash. The illness of several Montreal swimmers has necessitated the postponment of the entire program.

When reached by a Journal representative "Arn" Wright, the Queen's Water Polo Coach, could not say whether this game would be played this term.

Socialism Discussed By Campus Group

J. C. Cameron Defines Meaning Of Socialism

At the Wednesday evening meeting of the S.C.M. Campus group the discussion on Socialism was led by Mr. J. C. Cameron. In opening the discussion Mr. Cameron pointed out that the term "Socialism" may most easily be made clear by considering it in relation to the present system of private property and individual competition, which the socialist sums up as "capitalism."

"Socialism is in the first place an indictment of capitalism. The socialist charges that capitalism has failed utterly to provide an abiding foundation for the social structure."

"Socialism in the second aspect presents an analysis of capitalism. Its origin is accounted for and an explanation is given of the way it operates."

"From a third viewpoint socialism presents a substitute for capitalism, a forecast of the ideal state that is to be. In this aspect socialism may be defined as the demand for collective ownership and use of the means of production and for distribution of the social dividend."

"Finally, socialism involves a campaign against capitalism. The tactics adopted are many—peaceful persuasion, armed revolt and so on."

"The indictment is worthy of attention but the socialist's picture is painted too black. The efficiency of our present system is ignored. There are real weaknesses in capitalism but real efforts are made to better conditions and a large measure of success is achieved."

"There appear to be no forces available for the socialist state at all approving in force the motives which now stimulate industry and little likelihood of an increase in wealth under the suggested system."

"The growth of public ownership does not, as often imagined, imply that we are approaching socialism on the instalment plan. Its growth is limited to a definite field, and is relatively small."

An interesting discussion took place on the socialist's program. Keen interest was shown in the subject by all those present judging from the vigour with which the discussion was carried on.

Sir Walter Scott Indubitably Best Loved Scotsman

J. R. Sclater Delivers Appreciative Address In Convocation Hall

"Sir Walter Scott, indubitably, holds first place as the best loved Scotsman of all time. No man in any land, at any time, has given so much rest to so many people." With these remarks, Dr. J. R. P. Sclater concluded his address on "Sir Walter Scott and His Journal" in Convocation Hall, Wednesday afternoon.

In his opening remarks Dr. Sclater expressed his deep regret at the lack of appreciation for Scott's Novels, prevalent to-day. Forty years ago there was an avid interest in the Waverley novels, but the faster pace of the times has intensified innate antagonism for Scott's writings.

Speaking of the Journal Dr. Sclater said "the greatest figure Scott ever drew was in his Journal. In this record of secret cares there are personal revelations unfolded with a hint of pain, and inadvertently it exhibits human courage without a particle of self pity or cowardice."

"In the matter of style it shows Scott at his best—purged of all dross. There is an intimacy in this book not found elsewhere in his writings. By noting the same emotions again and again it deduces the man as he was; and reveals him as a human being like ourselves. Along with St. Paul, Scott belongs to the great order of fortitude."

Reading from the Journal, the speaker illustrated some of the peculiar traits of Sir Walter's character. The first entry deals with an extravagent Irish tour on which he spent five hundred pounds, while the second and third give insight into Scott's wide business connections. Among other entries one is "I prefer a life of active benevolence to an eternity of music." And Scott also wrote, "Of all things the greatest bore is to hear a dull and bashful man sing a facetious song." The last entry was made in April, 1832; five months later Sir Walter Scott died.

Musical Programme Honors Walter Scott

Scott Shown In New Light By Prof. J. Roy

"The Drums of War" and "Highland Laddie" reminiscent of the Highlands of Scotland ushered in a most interesting programme of Scottish music in commemoration of that great author-poet, Sir Walter Scott. This concert, given under the auspices of the Kingston Choral Society was held in Grant Hall on Tuesday evening, November 29th. The program comprised three parts, the first being delivered by the Queen's Pipe Band under the direction of Pipe-Major Ranald Macdonald. The building echoed with rousing Scottish marches played on the bagpipes, a Pipe Solo, "The Skye Boat Song" and a Scottish Reel, "The Kilt Is My Delight."

Professor J. A. Roy delivered a short address on the Heritage of Scott. He told of attending a great pageant in Edinburgh entitled "The Masque of Sir Walter Scott," which showed that personage in a new light and brought home to the minds of all a better realization of how closely Scott's personality is interwoven with his works. The speaker went on to say that today it is not the fact of Scott's works which counts, but his character. Scott has survived the many attacks made on his works. He did, it is true, make the great mistake of entering upon a business venture without adequate experience and knowledge of circumstances. After his disaster he devoted his life to the task of re-construction and the regaining of his popular esteem. Scott succeeded in repaying to the last cent his enormous debts when his partners in the venture evaded their responsibilities. Sir Walter was a great man because, although he erred, he rose above his mistake. He "bore with humility his adversity, as he bore his prosperity nobly."

Virulent criticism has been launched against Scott because of the unaesthetic quality of his writings. They may not meet certain demands as regards style, but the novels were written as novels should be written. Scott was a master at characterization and a master story-teller. He possessed a supreme understanding of human nature and

Continued on page 4

Roving Journal Sleuth On Prowl Investigates Manner in Which Students Spend Evenings

(By Rover)

Last night I drops around town to get the low down on how we pass our evenings and was greatly surprised at the variety of our night life.

First of all I busts in on a medical student who was fitting bones together. He starts explaining fibulas and digits and really it was fascinating the way them darn things do fit. Just like a jig saw puzzle.

Then over I goes to Ban Righ but most of the girls was out or studying or somethin at any rate there was nothin doing. Another group of students I visited was listenin to the radio, a great many were out to dances or the movies. Still others were studying hard—good luck to them. Others were "stewed."

By accomplishing a "peeping tom" act, I manage to find out that from direct window evidence a number of our students are interested in the landlady's daughter or at least so it seems.

Finally I decides to go down by the waterfront for I thinks it might be interesting. I sees a couple "necking" so I shuffles up quiet like. "Good Evenin" I says out loud just to be perlite. "Why who are you?" they says cross. "Oh! don't mind me-I'm just a reporter on the Journal" I says, but you should have seen that couple scram.

Seventy Minute Struggle Between Medical And Science Rugby Teams At Stadium Results In 5-5 Tie

Rugby Final Saturday

Science and Meds gridders will clash at the Stadium Saturday afternoon in what it is hoped will be the final and decisive encounter in the hectic race to Interfaculty honours.

Both teams came out of their 5-5 game without serious damage, and are all set for the whistle.

Large Crowd Watched Well-Matched Squads Battle To Deadlock

It has not been decided which faculty will boast of the Interfaculty rugby championship as yet, for Meds. and Science battled for seventy minutes on Tuesday afternoon without settling the question. After ten minutes of overtime the score remained dead-locked at 5 points apiece.

It was a mighty interesting match to watch, and a large crowd drawn to the scene by rumours of a grim struggle, cheered on the tired courageous warriors, throughout the regulation hour's play and ignored the calls for supper by remaining until ten minutes extra had been played.

Both faculties were represented by strong teams and the exhibition they put on was mighty nice, some excellent rugby being turned in as well as countless thrills that are part and parcel of interyear and interfaculty football.

The scions of Science with one victory already to their credit over the Arts artisans, took the field determined to force the Men of Medicine to swallow the bitter pill of defeat and prevent them from winning two straight championships.

The game was a little late in starting, and as a result when the regulation time was up, and the score tied, there was little daylight left for further playing. However Science were just beginning to hit their push, while Meds. were showing signs of weakening, and as a result a cherving match was indulged in by the officials of both squads. This argument consumed enough time to play half a usual game and when it was finally decided to play ten minutes of overtime, the Hydro was considering throwing juice into the street lights. The overtime was a thriller, but produced no scores and the teams must meet again next

(Continued on page 6)

Geologists' Problems Heard By Graduates

Dr. Bruce Addresses Grads Club Meeting

A good turn out featured the second regular meeting of the Graduates Club held on Wednesday evening in the Arts Club room. The spirit of the meeting was such that one of the first resolutions passed during the business meeting was that the next meeting on Saturday, December 10th be in the form of a dinner. The said dinner is to be a "Dutch Treat" of the first order, in fact, of all the orders.

Business was soon pushed aside and the members settled down behind their pipes to hear Dr. E. L. Bruce, holder of the Miller Memorial Chair in research geology, lead a discussion on the problems that confront the geologists. The speech was to the point and very interesting, so much so, that one finds difficulty in trying to isolate the high lights of the talk. One surprising thing was that the spacing in crystals as well as the spacing of the planets in the universe to scale both agree with the C major scale in music. Many theories brought out by the geologists were soon attacked by the other scientists. The physicists refused to accept that the earth was once a molten sphere claiming that this planet is not as old as such a theory would have it. Dr. Bruce spoke of the problem concerning the theory of the ice age, that they are now at a point where they must appeal to celestial mechanics to bear out their statements. In the general discussion following the speaker's main remarks it was brought out that the age of the earth is still doubtful. Ten years ago the geologists gave it a greater age than the physicists would hear of but since the discovery of radium and radio active metals the latter scientists are ready to wrinkle her down with a longer life.

Before leaving Dr. Bruce left a very good thought with the meeting. His advice was not to feel discouraged with the seemingly little things we are doing now for they very often lead to greater things. Another enjoyable evening was brought to a close with Wally teasing the piano and the gang in fairly close harmony.

English Club Elects J. Grabb President

At a re-organization meeting of the English Club held recently, Dr. G. H. Clarke, head of the English Department, was elected Honorary President. Dr. Clarke has shown consistent interest in the club in previous years, and it was at his suggestion that interest has been revived. Mr. John Grabb, Arts '33, was elected president of the club. Miss Violet Kilpatrick was elected vice-president, Mr. Howard Pammett secretary-treasurer, and Miss Katherine Kidd, social convener.

In past years the English Club has provided excellent programs, and very interesting parties. One which will be long remembered was Professor Roy's old English party.

It is hoped that the first meeting will bring out a large crowd. It is expected that a date for it will be announced shortly.

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

EDWIN H. LILL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. H. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 2nd, 1932

The Carnegie Grant

Some time ago our news columns carried the announcement that the University would receive the sum of $15,000 from the Carnegie Foundation for the purchase of books to encourage undergraduate reading. We are happy to report that the first installment of this award will be forthcoming in the very near future.

It will be remembered that this gift is given under very specific conditions and that failure to observe these will result in its cancellation. The books purchased must be of a nature to appeal to undergraduate readers. Text books are not to be bought. Extensive purchases of novels are not favoured, but it goes without saying that outstanding contributions to the field of fiction will appear on the order list.

A most capable committee has been chosen to attend to the selection of the books, which it is hoped will find favour with the student body. The committee is composed of Principal W. H. Fyfe, Dr. H. A. Kent, Mr. E. C. Kyte, the University Librarian, Miss Vi. Kilpatrick, and Messrs. E. H. Gilmour and E. Robertson, the last three being the student representatives.

Queen's is exceedingly fortunate to have been chosen as one of the beneficiaries of the Carnegie Foundation, for it affords the Douglas Library an excellent opportunity of adding to its large collection, books intended especially for undergraduate readers. A well balanced committee has been selected and now the success of the enterprise lies with the students themselves. Their suggestions are most welcome and these may be given to any one of the student representatives or any other member of the Committee.

But this final consideration is perhaps the most important — the aim of the Carnegie Foundation Trustees is to stimulate undergraduate reading. Interesting books will be placed within the reach of the students and if there is no response the grants will be cancelled.

Should the undergradnate body of Queen's fail to take advantage of the generous gift the University will suffer a distinct loss and the students will deprive themselves of invaluable reading matter.

Co-ed Drinking Facilities

On several occasions in the past the Journal has felt it its duty to expose the inadequate drinking facilities in the buildings on the campus. Our last sortie was in favour of a drinking fountain for the men students in the New Arts Building. After a most unsatisfactory delay the authorities acceded to our requests and the situation was remedied. And now another glaring need comes to our attention—there are no drinking facilities in the girl's club room on the third floor of the Arts Building.

Several complaints have been made to us and we can at once appreciate the justice of these grievances and the need for immediate action. There is no excuse for this medieval condition and we cannot understand why there seems to exist at Queen's such a deplorable disregard for student conveniences.

We have not had the privilege of visiting this Club room, but we know that a drinking fountain is prime necessity and would be appreciated by the co-eds.

We hope that the authorities will realize the justice of our contention and will take immediate steps to remedy this situation.

It would be an excellent Christmas gift and would only cost about $20.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Qualifications of a Husband

The quickest way to change an ideal is to marry it. The next quickest way is go to college. The average girl when she enters college thinks more about a lover than a husband, and her ideal is of a dark handsome hero, who will surround her with an undying devotion and the luxury of a Vanderbilt.

College changes her views, and upon graduation she is more concerned with wearing qualities than with appearances. She insists upon congenial tastes and comradeship as of first importance. Of course he may be manly looking as well as have a manly mind, but he can have freckles and red hair and still fill the qualifications.

She must be proud of her husband and have faith in his success. Wealth would be welcomed but is not necessarily included in her ideal, for personality and position are by far the most important factors. In general, the college girl lays emphasis on the fundamentals rather than on the ornamental.

—Daily Kansan.

Specialization

Long ago when the sum of human knowledge was small, scholars attended centres of learning, perused the few publications available and came away perfectly satisfied that they had absorbed everything worth knowing as far as culture was concerned.

But now we have many books and our knowledge is vast. So complex has it become that students have to devote their lives to one branch of learning only, to win unusual success and recognition.

Nevertheless we still send people to college and require them to work at several unrelated subjects. Lately the tendency has been to reduce the number and to give upper classmen the opportunity of devoting themselves to their favorite subjects. Especially is this true in honor courses. Yet we usually set a definite course for beginners and require proficiency in this if they are to remain in college long enough to specialize. The new man or woman is likely to face such a course with indifference.

This procedure often produces discouraging results. The freshman wishes to concentrate on one subject or group of subjects, at the start. In most cases he is interested in a special thing wherein lies his enthusiasm. But what happens? He is informed that "to prepare" himself he must master much irrelevant material. Often he loses interest, fails and leaves college without having had a good chance to show his ability in his chosen work. We make the error of supposing that a man who is clever in one thing ought to be clever in everything. Surely there are many brilliant surgeons and engineers whose interest in Shakespeare or Ovid is slight and who fail to shine as linguists. The old "transfer of learning" theory is losing favor among modern psychologists.

The reason given for requiring proficiency in many subjects is that a general education must not be neglected in favor or narrow specialization. But should not this broad training be received in the schools? If the schools graduate persons who are not prepared to undertake a definite life work when some reform is necessary. In our modern world honor goes to the individual who can do one thing better than his fellows. There is no place for the dabbler who knows a little about several things but not a great deal about anything. We make some provision for specialization in post-graduate courses but in this case the threat of economic in security hangs over everybody and the bewildered college graduate may find himself wondering how to earn a living in a highly specialized and competitive order.

—The Brunswickan

Official Notices

Royal Society Fellowship

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1933. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances outside of Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.

An applicant for a Fellowship should be a graduate of a Canadian university or college, or should have received an equivalent training in a Canadian institution possessing adequate facilities in his particular subject, and, except in special cases, should have the Master's degree or its equivalent or, preferably, have completed one or more years' work beyond that degree.

Applications, addressed to "The Secretary, Royal Society of Canada Fellowships Board, Ottawa, Canada", should contain particulars of the candidate's age and place of birth, a full statement of his academic career, with copies of original papers and any other evidence of his ability or originality in his chosen field; also an indication of the particular work he proposes to undertake, at what institution, and under whose direction; and should be supported by recommendations from the head of the department of the institution in which the candidate has studied, and from the instructors under whom he has chiefly worked. All these papers are to be in duplicate, and should be sent in as soon as possible.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

Welch Scholarship

Value $125. Founded by Frederick Welch of Kingston. Awarded in the Faculty of Arts and open for competition only to the sons and daughters of non-commissioned officers and men who have served overseas in the late war, and of mechanics and labourers, which students shall at the time be bona fide residents of the City of Kingston, preference being had for the children of soldiers. As this scholarship was not advertised last year it was not awarded in April. Applications are now invited from all students who are eligible and who were in attendance last year. The award will be made on the results of the examinations of last April.

Other Scholarships

1. Six scholarships of $100 each will be awarded in January. These are open to all students of any year in the Faculty of Arts. The award will be made on the basis of the students' records up to that date.

2. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

3. Scholarships to the total of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard. The conditions of award will be announced later.

M. C. Cameron Prize in Gaelic

Value $40. Founded by the late M. C. Cameron, M.P., Goderich. Awarded to the best Gaelic scholar, reader, and speaker. Applications for examination should be submitted to the Registrar before January 15th in each year. Work prescribed: any 600 lines of Ossian's Fingal, Blackie's Language and Literature of the Scottish Highlands, Gaelic Grammer, translation at sight of Gaelic into English and English into Gaelic. This scholarship will not be awarded to any candidate who does not take at least fifty per cent. of the total number of marks in the examination.

Special Fares for Christmas Holidays

Students and teachers are entitled to special rates on tickets for Christmas holidays. Certificates for presentation at the ticket office may be obtained at the Registrar's Office. The tickets are good for the period from December 20 to January 4.

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

Time Builds Knowledge!

Super-quality, rich, satisfying blending of tobacco and true excellence of manufacture reach their zenith in Winchester Cigarettes.

For . . . Winchesters are the result of years of experience, experimentation and research by Canada's largest tobacco manufacturer.

There is something in knowing how to make cigarettes.

Winchester
CIGARETTES
Blended Right!
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS!
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

Hungry? Thirsty?
Complete Luncheonette and Fountain Service—
Sandwiches, Soups, Toast, Coffee, Etc.
—From 8 a.m. till "late" p.m.—
Rates most reasonable and you'll like the service
At Kingston's Newest
DRUG STORE
Cor. Earl & Alfred
The Home of the Delicious "Chocolate Malteds"

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle Orchestra in connection

HOCKEY OUTFITS
BOOTS and SKATES
The Highest Quality at the Lowest Prices
Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
Downtown
208 Princess St. Phone 505
Uptown
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches, Hot Drinks, Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

November 29th, 1932,
Kingston, Ontario.

The Editor,
Queen's Journal,
Queen's University,
Kingston, Ont.

Dear Sir:—The verbal antics of the writer who possesses himself of "The Theatre" column in your paper seem to call for some adverse comment. His diction, embodying the most hackneyed cliches and pueril slang is apparently an admixture of the illiterate terminology of the sporting press, and the equally illiterate dialogue of some of the pictures he has reviewed. While naive and indiscriminating imitation might be excused in Junior High School it hardly reflects credit on University Journalism.

Had the columnist achieved a modicum of originality one would not necessarily recommend him to familiarize himself with the elements of film-criticism as exemplified by the writings of Lejeune, James Agate, or Robert Sherwood. One feels that a perusal of some adequate film-reviews at least would eliminate a few ludicrous estimates of the merits of the films appraised.

—After a disjointed and mazed account of the plot of "Smiling Through" the critic discusses the "charm ease and restraint" which both Miss Shearer and Mr. Marsh show in their highly emotional scenes. Last Saturday night this "restraint" was greeted with derisive cheers by the audience who undoubtedly require a bombardment of amorous display to show the slightest disaffection.

Neither can we take seriously a film which purports to show England during the Great War, when a restrained English girl tells her lover that "after she is through with him he won't be fit to go to the war. Nor can we pass over anachronisms and falsities so glaring as the singing of a modern ballad in "the eighties" and the rattling of windows in England by French gunfire!!!

Although one may forgive the adoption of nickel journalisms in the so-called classification of films, one cannot pardon the apathetic spirit in which they are classified. How disconcerting it is to be required to discriminate between C+ and C++!

It would be well for the critic to ponder on the fact that "Trouble In Paradise," which he rated so low, is by common consent one of the outstanding films of the year. Perhaps he has never heard of the only independent producer in Hollywood, nor of the genius of Lubitsch?

POLLUX.

Editor's Note: The writer seems to labour under the impression that one person is responsible for all the reviews, when as a matter of fact we have four reviewers. An honour English student should be able to appreciate the difference between C+ and C++. We are not sure whether "Pollux" is trying to imply that we gave "Smilin' Through" C+. The Journal rating was—A.

Being the 12th Chapter of the Chronicle of Kweanz.

Among the many would be learned of Kweanz there were some who being gifted of the gah, did band together and say, "let us put our ideas before the tribes of Kweanz, let us therefore take paper and write, and under the name of Journal shall we convey our thoughts to those of lesser understanding."

Therefore then, began the Journal and so it flourishes until this day.

And one fool amongst this few spake forth and said, "let there be for each tribe at Kweanz, an editor, and he shall bring forth a column for each copy." Then did the rest agree and so was born the Campuscope and the veriest of trash, the Steam Shovel.

Then in the year of our Lord, 1931, there came unto Kweanz, one of poor wit, and truly the greenest of green, and he having passed into the tribe of Sof in the year 1932 did take unto himself the case of the Steam Shovel, not in search of glory, for such there is none on the Journal, but verily because the rest of Scienz were too wise to thus burden their shoulders, and thus was this one left holding the goat.

Now did he spend many hours each moon, preparing foolishness for the entertainment of many, forsaking lectures and labs that others might enjoy his ramblings, and truly burning the candle at both ends.

But for his work not a wit did he gain, receiving only the reproof of Profs for work not done, the scorn of his family for tests failed, yea even when he did lower his pride to ask for a pass to a Science scramble, known to most as a Year Dance, was he snubbed, for said they, he is only a reporter.

Then did he pass insults on the heads of all but Scienz, and still no one made reply, either in criticism or in approval. So becameth he disgusted and said unto himself, "I will again lower myself and write as above, begging the many of Kweanz to betake pen, and pan or praise the Steam Shovel, or to send in ideas that may fill the columns of this page, and provoke more replies." Thus said this Sof, and thus waits he for the dirt that may fly his way.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

The November issue of the Canadian Student is of special interest to Queen's. From the editorial to the book-reviews the contents were contributed by members of the Queen's Staff, and students. It may be found on the University Library shelves and if you want an extra copy you can get one from any member of the executive.

Professor W. Rogers, in his article traces the cause of the present social disorganization to inadequate motives. His criticism is keen and indicates the source of more adequate motives. Professor Gregory Vlastos tells a story which provokes a fresh look at old things. Faith, for instance, and what it can mean. Besides these Mrs. G. Humphrey has contributed two excellent poems.

When we talk so glibly of depression does it mean anything more than an economic condition of academic interest? If it were to be interpreted for us as for so many in the realistic terms of hunger, cold, lack of opportunity for education or complete financial dependence, how would we "react"?

Oswald Hall, Arts '34, tells something of conditions brought about by the depression. This, however, is just to call your attention to something which is worth it.

We might also suggest that S. C. M. people and others keep their ears to the ground. A local conference is mooted for early in January. If it materializes, as is probable, it will be an event of interest. But more of this later.

J. Belton Addresses Commerce Meeting

The Commerce Club wound up its program of luncheon meetings yesterday when Mr. J. R. Belton who is a member of Science '20 gave an interesting and helpful talk on production control of the Gutta-Percha Rubber Company.

The luncheon was well attended, about sixty being present. Mr. Belton is now supervisor of the planning department of the Gutta-Percha and Rubber Company.

In dealing with production control Mr. Belton pointed out that forecasts of the volume of business are necessary that the factory may turn out the product at a rate which will meet current demand, and leave no excess of inventory. In the case of tires this forecast is obtained with the automobile registration figures as a basis. The company has endeavoured to increase or decrease production, not by reducing or increasing the labor force but by regulating the days worked per week. In this way it was felt that they were working in the interests of the labourers. The men themselves, however, opposed this plan on the ground that four days work a week was not enough and insisted on a five and a half day week for a smaller labour force.

Another series of luncheons is planned for the second term and members of the Commerce Club are requested to assist the executive in every possible way. Fees are one dollar ($1.00) and are payable to Chuck O'Neill, treasurer of the Club.

Slightly Misinformed

A group of startled young women at Penn State found a freshman, ink in hand, wandering around the second floor of their sorority house. Upperclassmen had told him that he could find his English professor there.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

"Man Who Will Swallow Anything." Just an average elector.

Book Chats

By R.M.

Ever since Aristotle, about 382 B.C. enunciated the principle that the test of the goodness or value of a work of art is whether or not it gives "special pleasure" to the reader, thinkers have puzzled their brains about the why and wherefore of literature. Horace wrote, "Poets ought either to instruct or delight or combine the two." Longinus said that "Judgment of literature is the final aftergrowth of great endeavour." The first great critic in the English language was Sir Philip Sidney; after Sidney we have Dryden who introduced the comparative method in Literary Criticism. Then there stand out pre-eminent figures like Johnson, Carlyle, Lamb, Coleridge and Wordsworth. In view Coleridge and Wordsworth. In view of the immense mass of weighty and authoritive matter that has been written on the subject, one would think that the last word had been spoken on Literary Criticism. But it has remained for modern psychology to make penetrating and invaluable studies into the nature of literary effects.

As the reader of a poem what effects has that poem on you or me? First of all we receive the direct stimulus of the printed words; and variations in the visual images received may be occasioned by different kinds of type or changes in the colour of the paper. Secondly, there are what psychologists call tied images: divided into two classes, articulatory and auditory. In simple language, these are the effects conditioned by the feel of the words on the lips and the sound of the words in the mind's ear. Thirdly, the reader has "thoughts of" what the words are about. I suppose this is the process preliminary to thought, proper; which has been defined as the association of simple ideas. In any case this third phase of the reaction is the one in which we have ideas as to the meanings of words. The two last aspects of the effect are the emotions aroused and the attitudes evoked by these emotions. That is, emotions are signs of attitudes. And the important fact about the experience of reading for us is the nature of these attitudes. If they promote a more harmonious organization of impulses and foster that kind of behaviour most essential to the individual's happiness then the work of art has value. All of which is not very different from Aristotle's maxim that "great literature must transport the spirit." Even modern psychology does not repudiate the power of an inner personality or spirit, call it what you will.

Various theories have been propounded for the use of professional authors in interesting the reader. To most of us these methods are about as mysterious as the antics of a Hindu hypnotist. For instance, there is the theory known as wish-fulfillment; it asserts that the maximum effect on the reader will be produced by writing which picturizes the satisfaction of desires that in the reader's own life are extremely strong and extremely repressed. Among other methods writers often use what they call, "The inside story method" and "The turning flapjacks in the window method." As for the psychology of laughter, there is so much profound and lugubrious literature on the subject that the student is led to forego laughter for ever, since it requires such a complicated co-ordination of various impulses. Perhaps the home-made psychology of James Gleason and other Broadway gagline artists gets the best results—which is all that matters.

TRICOLOR NOTICE

All photographs from final year students should be in the hands of the Associate Editors by the end of this week. Mary McLennan (Levana), Roy Sharpe (Arts), A. N. Innes (Science), and Bill Lehto (Meds) will be collecting these photographs today and tomorrow, and all those concerned are asked to co-operate with them.

Secretaries of Faculty Societies, and of all Campus organizations expecting to be represented in the Year Book are desired to see that photographs are handed in as soon as possible and in no case later than the end of next week.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Union Dining Room,
Wednesday Evening.

The Editor of the Journal.

Sir:—Would you mind printing an explanation of the joke appearing in Tuesday's Journal about the proud landlady and the desert?

We who ask are young gentlemen of more than ordinary intellect, but this enigma is beyond us.

As a further favour, can you use words of as few syllables as possible in the explanation so that the general may not lack their caviar?

THE FOUR MUSKETEERS.

Editor's Note: Evidently our correspondent did not get the same "kick" out of the joke as most people did.

All years in Arts are asked to see "Mel" Halpenny for their Christmas Cards.

One to Try

A wily professor at a Georgia college has passed a rule prohibiting students from wearing smoked glasses to his classroom, as they used the glasses as a screen behind which they could sleep throughout his lectures.

—Polytechnic Reporter.

FRENCH LESSONS
Good conversational French taught
25 cents an hour
GASTON HOUDE
17 Division St.

REDUCED PRICES ON
Personal Christmas Cards
FOR QUEEN'S STUDENTS
SEE OUR SAMPLES
HANSON & EDGAR Limited
117 Brock Street Phone 1510

SWORD CRAVATS!
Now Obtainable In Kingston
J. H. "Skipper" ROSS
Science '35 332 Johnson St.

THE QUALITY SHOP—FOUNDED 1847
Get the Habit - - - Shop at Livingston's
Men's Winter Overcoats
in a
GREAT SALE!
20% DISCOUNT
OFF OUR USUAL LOW PRICES
on all
Men's Winter Overcoats
A great opportunity
FOR YOU TO SAVE MONEY
LIVINGSTONS
Phone 206 75-79 Brock St.
IF OFF YOUR ROUTE IT PAYS TO WALK

Stone's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

BEFORE THE DANCE
SPECIAL RATES
AND SERVICE
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

THE SUCCESS OF THE PARTY DEPENDS ON YOUR TAXI
PHONE 448 PHONE
NOW
7 Passenger Heated Sedans Only
Capitol Taxi
448 PHONE 448
Ask the driver for tickets

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving
Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Baldness

It has been said that nobody loves a fat man, although it may be observed that fat bachelors are uncommon, but because of the trend of the times someone must of necessity love a bald man if the race is to be preserved. Baldness, a condition frequently associated with loss of hair, affects a majority of men and, strangely enough, few women. Many theories have been propounded in explanation of this fact. The most popular is that the hair is killed by the failing of circulation supposed to follow the wearing of tight hats, but even casual observation will show that men's hats are loose enough to blow off for the amusement of schoolboys, while most women wear hats that are adjustable only with the aid of a shoehorn. The so-called weaker sex strongly resent any suggestion that masculine hair suffers inanation because of the heat produced by greater activity of the cerebral cortex, or that the male is the less savage and primitive of the species and therefore farther removed from the hairy monkey, but it may actually be that the phemomenon is due to anatomical differences, the contour and contents of the female head permitting a deeper rooting and more complete nourishing of the scalp covering.

Men are only made ridiculous by baldness when they strive frantically to conceal their losses. The few wisps plastered sedulously across the barren expanse are a pathetic sight and most of the world's humour is directed against pathos. The bald fart (beg pardon) is casually accepted. More, most writers, and especially bald writers, contend that a polished dome adds to, rather than detracts from, a man's appearance. It harmonises equally well with an intensely ascetic face and with one of a rubicund jollity. There are those who say that such heroes as Julius Caesar suffered in presence and dignity when they lost their hair, but these people never saw Caesar except on a bust, in which circumstances no man is at his best. Some men, though, remain sensitive. The sweetnatured prophet of Israel who had children bear-mauled for disrespectful reference to his cranium was one of them. His is an example of an over supply of the milk of human kindness turned to a solid piece of cheese, upon which hair cannot grow. Patent medicine purveyors have accumulated fortunes from the sale of nostrums to the eternally hopeful, guaranteed to grow hair on a stone doorstep, and optimistic or desperate souls have for generations slopped on the lotions or worn suction caps with enthusiasm and pertinacity worthy of greater rewards than one usually attained.

If only a slightly larger percentage of men lost their hair, the fly skating rink would perhaps become fashionable. Then the unfortunates disfigured by a profusion of thatch would resort to the razor or a depilatory and the comfortable philosophy of the ancient monk would be generally accepted. An occasional polish with a little lard or sweet oil would replace the tiresome routine of shampoo, haircut, brush and comb.

It is one of nature's mistakes, from a modern point of view, that the head, instead of the face is the location affected by baldness. Inability to produce a moustache would be more than compensated for by liberation from the slavery of the daily scrape, or is it the weekly hoe-down.

In a bald world no man could tear his hair and barber chair badgering would be reduced by half, but there would be nothing by which to grasp opportunity. Perhaps we had better keep our hair on.

An Antidote

Hydrocyassic acid and its potassium salt are among the most deadly of known poisons. An antidote for them has long been desired, especially since they have become a popular means of suicide. The researches of Mrs. M. M. Brooks of San Francisco have produced the information that methylene blue, an aniline dye, may be efficacious in preserving life until the natural excretory processes have eliminated the poison from the blood. The action of the methylene blue probably depends upon its reduction to methylene white with the releasing of nascent oxygen, which offsets the tendency of the cyanide to asphyxiate the tissues by suppression of the oxygen carrying function of the erythrocytes. The dye has not been generally accepted as an official antidote because experimentation to prove its value has not yet been carried out in a very extensive scale, but a recent incident adds credence to the theory. Cuthbert Rievely, a medical student at the University of California, became despondent, as medical students will, and swallowed twelve grains of K.C.N., a lethal dose for a jury, and was saved when Dr. Geiger, house physician in a San Francisco hospital, injected a large dose of methylene blue, although at the time of injection his facial muscles had become rigid.

If the antidote proves uniformly successful it should be of immense value. Cyanide is extensively used in photography and other trades and accidental poisonings are quite frequent.

NOTE: — The Campuscope is deeply indebted to Mr. Mike Tuchtie for his discovery of the above item during a period of intensive research in the pages of the Sunday Mirror.

Bander Snatches

"Oh dear!" sighed Alice. "Tomorrow's Friday, and the Journal comes out. I haven's written the column about me yet, and I can't think of a thing to say in it.

"You better get busy," said the Red Queen.

"But what can I write about?" wailed Alice.

"How would I know?" said the Red Queen—"I don't keep track of what you are doing, do I?"

"You keep close enough track of the time I get in at night, and of my late leaves. The other night when I was four minutes late you made a terrible fuss," said Alice.

"The rule must be observed," said the Red Queen. "Why don't you write your column?"

Alice reached for her pen, and pulled a few sheets of paper out of the drawer.

"Tell about Sir Walter Scott," said the Red Queen. "You were at the concert and the lecture, weren't you?"

"Of course," said Alice, "But it was the bag-pipes I listened to most. You know I always like them—I never was any good at music, and I don't know one tune from another. So the bag-pipes just suit me. They played the drums so hard they nearly drowned out the pipes altogether."

"Then it's the drums you like," said the Red Queen.

"Of course," Alice answered, "They do drown out the music and that's why I like the pipe music. And I like Highland dancing too, especially when they shout so hard when they're doing it. Men's knees are so interesting too, don't you think?" she added thoughtfully. She paused here and there continued—"You see so much of women's knees nowadays that they're not interesting anymore. Men's knees are different. They are so big and musculine and bony; not dimply things like girls' have—big and powerful and strong-looking. And another thing—I've often wondered whether the men wear anything under those kilts or not. I was quite worried when they were doing that Scottish Reel—".

"I'm sure I don't know anything about it," said the Red Queen, "Though I've often wondered the same thing myself."

(To be continued)

TREACLE AND INK.

Arts Formal Committee Make Statement Of Policy

Know all men by these presents that

WHEREAS we have been appointed as a body politic by the executive of the Arts Society to arrange the Arts Formal dance and

WHEREAS we appreciate the confidence shown in our selection as the best means for a bigger and better dance and

WHEREAS we expect to establish a new record for entertainment,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that our endeavours shall bear fruit on the night of Friday, January 27th, 1933.

AND IT IS FURTHER RESOLVED that the undersigned devote themselves, to the best of their ability to provide the finest music, the gayest decorations and incorporate the newest ideas for gatherings of this nature.

Given under my hand and seal this second day of December, Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-Two.

MEL HALPENNY,
Convener.

Witnesses:

Bob Johnston Walt Horn
Stu. Major Chuck O'Neill
Ken Heath Art Hall
Max Rapoport

Modern Woman Changeable As Her Cosmetic Make-Up

Many women, says the editor of the Minnesota Daily, try to live up to the "women are angels, pure, sincere and fragile" conception and also to the new concept of women as a diversion for men and as the modern sophisticate. "They employ a dual personality, shifting disconcertingly from the soft-voiced Victorian to the hard-lipped, calculating woman of today. A Minnesota professor tells the story of a girl who wept in his class while reading a romantic selection—"Oh!" she cried, "They gave up everything for love!" The professor tested her: "Would you go to the Common Peepuls' ball with a boy you liked very much or to the Junior Prom with a mere acquaintance?" The tears stopped. The eyes hardened. "That's different—of course I'd go to the prom!"

"The world of men might face with equanimity the return to the old and simple idealistic concept of women. But perhaps woman's new hardness is deeper than a veneer."

Musical Program Recalls Memory of Author - Poet

Continued from page 1

held great sympathy for his own people. Scott reconciled the Lowlands and the Highlands, England and Scotland. His poems were written with that understanding humour which is essential.

Part II. of the programme, Scott Settings by the Kingston Choral Society was under the capable direction of Dr. C. F. Gummer. A choir of some sixty voices rendered some of Scott's well-known songs—"Hush Thee My Baby," "Lochinvar" and others. One realizes that music of any kind cannot be heard to the best advantage in Grant Hall because of its very poor acoustics. In spite of this the choir made a fairly good showing although good tenor voices were noticeably lacking.

Perhaps the best part of the evening's entertainment was the R.C.H.A. Band, selections directed by Lieut. Coleman. This band enjoys a reputation for excellent music throughout the country and it is at any time a real pleasure to hear their programmes. Their first number, "London Scottish" (Haines) was followed by Drysdale's overture, "Tam O'Shanter." A Keltic Suite by Foulds and the ever popular "We Macgregor" (Amers) with "The Kilties" (Leary) concluded a most entertaining recital.

In 1929 the department of bacteriology at Akron university paid students $1,600 for blood transfusions.

"KINGSTON'S FAMOUS FUR STORE"
MILLS
FURS
IN OUR NEW BUILDING
A New Building Sale of Furs now means Lower Fur Prices than in many years.
GEORGE MILLS & CO
Mills Building
126 Princess Street

WARM SINGLE ROOM
Near the University
Price $2.50 per week
PHONE 2765

ROOMS TO LET
Hot water heated—Five minutes walk from the College—Board or breakfast if desired.
123 King St. East

From Trapper to Wearer
FURS
McKAY
149-151 Brock St. Phone 603

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothe Shop
79 Princess St.

ROY M. LONGO
With Geo. Salstone's Orchestra
Teacher of
Tenor Banjo, Mandola, Mandolin, Tenor Guitar, Spanish Guitar, String Bass, Arranging, Harmony.
212 Division St. Phone 1434-W

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service. Including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

MEDS. FORMAL DANCE
Decoration Pictures
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

QUEEN'S
(Registered)
CREST PINS and RINGS
with
Pearl Set or Hand Engraved Letter "Q" with Crest in True Colors
$4.00 to $12.50

ARTS (registered) CREST PINS AND RINGS all years

A. E. Edwards
Insignia Jeweller
22 Yonge St. Arcade Toronto, Ont
Kingston Representatives:
SMITH BROS. LTD.
Jewellers, Etc.
102 Princess St. Kingston
The name "Edwards" stamped on the back of your pin is our guarantee to you.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.
The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE GLADSTONE BAG
is recognized as one of the most useful, convenient and practical, travelling companion.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT
with
John Barrymore, Katharine Hepburn, Billie Burke and others

Is is fairly safe to predict that A Bill of Divorcement will not be a box-office success. Clemence Dane's play is essentially for the stage: Its appeal is limited to a discerning theatre audience which is satisfied with little stress on action or plot, so long as it may sit back and listen to civilized dialogue and watch unhurried, careful acting.

Those who are familiar with the play will find that in its transference to the screen something of its original glamour has been lost. The plot is dramatic enough, but it seems to have been weakened and even blurred in the film version. Miss Dane wrote her play several years ago in order to change an English law which she considered antiquated and cruel: the law that a woman was not permitted to divorce a man for insanity. She created a plausible enough situation. A man with hereditary insanity in his blood falls victim to it as a result of shell shock. During the years in which he is confined to an asylum his wife falls in love with another man. She waits until the law which does not entitle her to a divorce is repealed. The divorce is then secured, but her husband breaks away from the asylum, apparently restored to sanity. The wife's dilemma is whether to stay with her former husband, who needs her, or go out into the new life that has been offered her. It is the stronger character, the daughter, who renounces her own love, (she is afraid to marry, bearing, as she does, the taint of insanity) sends her mother away, and stays with her father.

John Barrymore as the husband is convincing. Billie Burke as the wife emphasizes the weakness of her part until it is akin to vacuity, and the sweetness until it becomes saccharine. As for Katharine Hepburn, I suspect her film career will be short-lived. Commuting between Hollywood and Broadway as she intends to do will prove impossible. Miss Hepburn is perhaps the most promising of the younger actresses on the New York stage. It is to be hoped that her manager will foresee the check to her dramatic development, and the possible deadening of that electric quality which permeates her art, if she is left in the hands of those who are already, ridiculously, hailing her as "The American Garbo." The originality and finesse which Miss Hepburn brings into her work have little chance of survival in Hollywood, where an actress is promptly pigeonholed, labelled, and forevermore presented in those parts which require her glamour, or her ability to wear clothes, or her sophistication, or whatever stock type she best portrays. A—.

AT THE TIVOLI

WAR CORRESPONDENT
Jack Holt, Ralph Graves, Lila Lee.

The story takes place in China during a Civil War. There is plenty of action provided by the usual war scenes. All through there is too much stress laid on the superiority of the white race over the oriental.

An American aviator, General Ching, betrays the Rebel Army and joins the national. In a speech arranged by Franklyn Bennett, the war correspondent, Ching accuses Bennett of being a coward and orders him to leave China. Julia March, with whom both men are in love decides to leave with Bennett. However, the Rebel army in order to capture Ching, kidnaps the girl just as she is ready to leave. The story moves rapidly forward, and the suspense is kept up until the end by Ching's efforts to prove Bennett a coward.

A good way to spend a couple of hours if one likes war pictures. B—.

COMING EVENTS

Friday, Dec. 2:
4.00p.m.—Glee Club (Sophomores only)
332 University Ave.
Science '36 General Meeting
Carruthers Hall
8.00p.m.—Lecture by Prof. J. O. Watts
The Mysterious Universe
Chalmers Sunday School Room
Intercollegiate Debate
Queen's vs. McMaster
Ban Righ Hall
8.15p.m.—Lecture by Mr. S. R. K. Glanville
Convocation Hall

Saturday, Dec. 3:
1.00p.m.—Tricolor Meeting
New Arts Bldg.
Football—Meds vs. Science
Richardson Stadium

Sunday, Dec. 4:
Student Christian Association
Sydenham St. United Church
7.00p.m.—Sermon to Students
St. James' Church

Tuesday, Dec. 6:
4.15p.m.—Arts Society Meeting
Gordon Hall

Wednesday, Dec. 7:
7.00p.m.—Levana Meeting
Ban Righ Hall

Arts Society Abolishes Frosh Attendance Rule

Continued from page 1

were offered. It was proposed that the Executive should be required to hold at least three meetings a year, and that more could be held if the interest of the students in the Society warranted it. Other suggestions were to change the meetings into social gatherings such as smokers, card parties, dances, etc., or to allow each year to have charge of one meeting.

A motion of adjournment was followed by a fresh outbreak of discussion but finally the meeting ended with the ultimate fate of the Arts Society still undecided.

ST. JOAN HOUSE
123 KING ST. EAST
Has double and single rooms for girl students. Hot water heating, excellent bathroom accommodation, unlimited hot water supply. Sitting room with open fireplace. House approved of by assistant to Dean of Women. Five minutes walk from College. PHONE 488.

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

We think we can save you quite a few dollars on
Your Suit or Overcoat
We offer no Baits, but we do offer Extra Value
TUXEDO SUITS
Thee Piece
Coat, Trouser and Silk Vest
Newest Model, Silk Lined and Beautifully Tailored
Bibbys Extra Value
$22.50
Suits and Overcoats
AT
$15.00
The Best this price can Buy anywhere in Canada
BIBBY'S
CLOTHIERS AND HATTERS

Introducing
Christmas
Week-end Special
We carry a full assortment of Penman's Full Fashioned Guaranteed Hosiery in Chiffon and Service.
CHRISTMAS SPECIAL 79c
PENMANS
NEW SILK HOSIERY
Every Pair Guaranteed

LUCILLE'S LADIES' WEAR
160 Princess St. Phone 2009

Doyle's Haircutting Place
THOROUGHLY MODERN
4 CHAIRS. MODERATE PRICES
J. McCORMICK, Prop.
167 Wellington Sreet, Corner of Brock

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Superior Tea Rooms
For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own
"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream
204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Seventy Minute Struggle Between Science And Medicine Terminates In 5-5 Tie Score

(Continued from page 1)

Saturday to settle their differences, if any.

The teams are as evenly matched as possible and therein lies the reason for the tie game. Meds has a slight edge in kicking, as McCulloch booted very well, but Science offset this by their ability to plunge, "Killer" Weir being a standout. While both goal lines were in danger occasionally, for the most part play was waged over the centre field mark.

It was ideal football weather, but the field could have been more friendly. It was frozen fairly hard with a slight topping of soft turf particularly in centre field. Injuries were not so numerous, considering the play which was wide open and strenuous.

There were many highlights to the struggle, the chief being supplied by Wier with his plunging for Science, his most important shove resulting in a touch, and McCulloch's hoofing for the Pillmen. Mac. booted a short high one, galloped up to take his own life and was away for the Science goal posts before the engineers could park a paw on him. However the Science halves dragged him down some twelve yards out, and the threat seemed over, until McManus on the next play cantered across the line to put Meds five up. And that was all the scoring. Meds convert hit the crossbar, while that of Science went into their own line. One of those converts would have settled the issue.

The teams finally got going after Meds. spent some time primping in front of a camera, and after fifteen minutes had been played no score was rung up. It was not for want of trying because Meds tried plenty of forward passes and the plays used by both teams were wide open. The halves caught faultlessly and the tackling on the hard ground was fierce.

The second quarter produced the same type of peppy football with Meds. trying a dozen or so forward passes, but some were poorly thrown and others were easily knocked down. Science got a chance when the Med. snap heaved out a terrible one over the halves head that was only recovered on the doctor's ten. A Med. fumble which was recovered saved their hides and a kick put play out of danger.

Just before the period ended McCulloch got his trick kick away and secured it, galloping as related nearly to the Science line. McManus carried it over and the convert had to hit the crossbar. Science began to pile on the steam after that and play became tough. The Miners pulled a wierd one when a Science man completed a pretty forward pass, but instead of running with the ball, he turned quickly and handed the oval to a teammate, who happened to be offside and the play was called back. Half time score Meds. 5, Science 0.

Weir put in an appearance for Science in the second half and he surely made an impression on Meds, his plunging being as good as any seen on the turf this fall. Science speedily had play near the Med. goal line and they tried to kick for a point. The Med half foolishly returned from behind his line and Science again secured twenty yards out. Their next play was a wow and had a score marked all over it. The quarter tossed a forward to Beezenthol who was behind the goal line and although the pass was high, Beezie should have snared it. Science lost a good chance to score on that one. Science were getting underweigh but they couldn't score that period.

Husky line plunges mainly by Weir put Science in possession ten yards out. A buck got eight yards, another was stopped, and the crowd was breathless as the Engineers lined up for another push. Weir barely got over, but an inch was plenty and the score was tied. The convert was foozled.

Play became savage and many a stray wallop was given away as the winning point was sought. Young of Meds. got away for a real run around the end for 15 yards to centre. Meds. allowed a Science kick to hobble along the field and while they were awaiting Santa Claus or someone to pick it up, the kicker whizzed along to grab it, duplicating the Med halve's stunt.

After a lengthy argument, that became hotter every minute, it was decided to play overtime. The squads played five minutes each way, and though it was quite dark, both sides played tight football and no scores resulted. The halves were mighty good men to catch perfectly in the gloom. And that's the game.

Teams:

Medicine — Snap, Stewart; insides, Swarts and Earle; middles, Mutrie Miller; outsides. Susman, Daniels; quarter, Alexander; flying wing, Churchill; halves, McCulloch, Young and Morar; aides, Josephson, Shenkman, Hughes, Faulkner, Miranti, Breckenridge, Countryman, Murphy, Clarke, Watt, Caughey, Malone, Mack, Nesbit, McManus.; manager, Smith; coach, Hamlin; water boy, Larkin.

Science — Flying wing. McMahon; halves, W. McMahon, Wing., Scott; outsides. Myers, Beezenthol; middles, Teaque, Wilgar; insides, Isbister. Soles; snap, Austin; quarter, Oille; aides, Mcgill, Gray, Timmerman, Wright, Hall, Smith, Lewis, Alsot, Sheppart, Stuart; manager, Klotz; trainer, coach and field general, Lackey.

Officials—Head Linesman, Howie Carter; referee, Weenie Day; umpire, Pete Lewis.; yardsticks, Parkes and Bulford.

Free Vegetables

Brigham Young university offered free vegetables from the school's garden this year to students finding it expedient to "batch" their way through college.

SPORTS SLANTS

Take this tip. Don't fail to see the rugby playoff between Meds and Science on Saturday afternoon. They put on a real show.

* * * * * *

Rules or no, the playing of overtime in the dark was very foolish.

* * * * * *

At that there were fewer fumbles in the dark than there were in daylight. The teams played cannily, as a slip meant disaster.

* * * * * *

Killer Weir will have to be stopped if Meds are going to win. He goes into action with all kinds of steam, and so far has made plenty of yards.

* * * * * *

Uncle Sam is host to the basketball squad to-day and to-morrow, and the Tricolor can spread the fame of Queen's abroad by taking the two-game tour.

* * * * * *

With two groups in Senior basketball, there will be plenty of interest attached to the playoffs. The "B" group will offer strong opposition.

McMaster Admitted To Senior Company

At the fall meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, held in Toronto recently, it was decided to admit McMaster University of Hamilton to senior rating, although their application for senior competition in Track and Field was held over for a year.

Instead of one large group being formed, however, in basketball, McMaster, R.M.C. and Ontario Agricultural College, of Guelph will be included in a group "B". The two groups will play their own series of games and the winner of the "B" group will have the right to challenge the winner of the "A" group, which will be composed of Varsity. Queen's, Western and McGill. However, for the time being, the winners of "B" must meet the winners of the older loop on the latter's floor.

The move is a good one for college will be much more interesting with more teams in the running. And while the older group appear to still have the edge in ability there may be some surprises within a few years. McMaster in particular is coming along fast in all branches of sport and her athletes are setting the pace in many fields.

The application of McMaster for senior competition in Track and Field was withheld for another year on the protest of Varsity. Why Toronto should take this stand is not clear unless it is that they are somewhat timid about the possibility of McMaster athletes stepping in and grabbing off the lion's share of honours. On this year's showing McMaster could defeat any of the senior teams in track and field and her records in many events are better than those marks made at the Senior meet. However, McMaster must repeat her performance before Varsity are convinced. There is little likelihood of her filing for most of her record breaking athletes are in first year and should he going better than ever next season.

COLLEGIANA

Mauch Chunk, Pa.—(I.P.)—Two men from New York City were arrested here this month and accused of selling fake scholarships to West Point, the United States Military Academy.

According to officials who made the arrest the two had posed as agents of the War Department and had secured "fees" from wealthy citizens who wished to send their sons to West Point.

One citizens, whose name was not revealed, was said to have given the men $5,000. and another $500.

Strategy in Vain

When the lights failed at a night football game at the University of Arizona a pass was intercepted in the dark. When the lights were turned on the officials found that a touchdown had been made. They ruled an incomplete pass.

—Lehigh Brown and White.

Snaky Professor

A professor of zoology at the University of Akron when he noticed that one of his snakes was missing in the laboratory refused to disclose the information to his class for fear that the coeds would not come to class because of the reptile being at large.

—Purple and Grey.

"Women are still dieting." They put grace before meals.

JACK FINLEY

Manager of the Senior Basketball Team which left yesterday to play against American Colleges.

Basketball Team To Visit U. S. Colleges

Thursday was getaway day for the Senior Basketball team, as they departed at noon for a short series of games with Uncle Sam's colleges on Dec. 1st and 2nd.

About ten made up the tourists' party who were in charge of Manager Jack Finley. He announced the players were in very good shape and while some of those needed were unable to get away with exams so close, he was confident that they would give a good account of themselves.

On Friday, Dec. 1st, the team will play its first game with the St. Lawrence University team. This college is situated in Canton, New York, and is about half the size of Queen's. However, they produce some very good teams and the Tricolor will be extended to the limit to down them.

On Dec. 2nd the squad takes on the powerful Clarkson College of Technology outfit. This College is the main works of the town of Potsdam, New York, and has about 600 students.

While the tour will be short it will serve to put the boys on edge for their big league games, if the Xmas turkey doesn't get in too much rough stuff. Right now the gang is going good and a couple of victories are looked for across the border.

The players in the squad will be, Bews, McLaughlin, Rooke, Newman, Elliott, McMahon, Brown and Tilley.

QUILL NOTICE

The Queen's Quill will go to press shortly. A further and more detailed announcement concerning the forthcoming number will be made in the next issue of the Jounral.

As yet no definite information has been available concerning the contents of the new Quill but a Journal reporter learned yesterday that a number of short stories, several articles covering a wide range of interest, and a well balanced collection of verse will be among the features to be found in the December Quill. It is said that the color of the cover has been changed to an attractive shade of grey.

Nothing to Worry About

The schools of Athens, Greece, are not concerned over the conduct of their students outside of class work, but in Greece, students who fail to pass the final examinations often choose suicide rather than face their parents.

—Quaker Campus.

"Prehistoric man was not very sociable." But he always had his club.

College Coaches Initiate Campaign Tabooing Booing

"To boo is taboo" is the war cry of Washington coaches as they initiate the first University campaign against booing "which is undermining collegiate sportmanship today."

"The campaign should be a national one because every college faces the problem," Coach Jimmy Phelan observed. "At Palo Alto as the team crawled out of the busses at the stadium about 200 students started to boo in a manner showing they thought it was the conventional thing."

Simple Problem

"Our problem is simple compared to that of U. C. L. A. and Chicago where the majority of the outside crowd is made up of bootleggers, gangsters, and 'barkeeps' who have nothing else to do."

"I think we can eradicate booing," Phelan said and termed this practice as "venomous, poisonous —the lowest form of expression."

Hec Edmondson and Len Stevens, coaches in basketball and wrestling, agreed that it "was low sportsmanship to come out with a boo."

"I'm never troubled with it because fencing is a gentleman's sport," A. A. Auernheimer bragged.

Coaches Agree

All four coaches agreed that a campaign would eradcate the booing among the students. Phelan was unable to place the entire blame on students, but he had observed it was a low type of crowd that led the booing.

Stevenson and Edmundson both believe the "downtown-quarterbacks do most of the booing on the campus."

Arrangements are being made to have one of the coaches at the pep rally today to plead with the students to cooperate in this campaign against poor sportsmanship.

—University of Washington Daily.

"Burglar Steals Odd Boots." And then had to hop it!

"Eat raw onions for a long life." And a lonely one.

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
-2002-
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

STUDENTS!
Notes and theses typed
Reasonable rates
PHONE 1033

THE NEWEST STYLES —
Are always to be found at this store. A high standard of Quality is always maintained, and prices are very reasonable.
JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.
Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear
170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS
SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON
BADMINTON RACQUETS
HALF PRICE
WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP
202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN WATCHES
Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted
GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE
216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN
BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES
The Room of Distinction
First Class Equipment First Class Service
TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.
233 Princess St.

VanHorne's
Men's Shop
There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer
Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.
213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."
MANDARIN CAFE
Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,
FRANK LEM, Proprietor.

STUDENTS
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT
Sakell's Tea Room
"We are proud of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete. Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes. New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

Ancient Tome Describing Glory That Was Kingston's Discovered In Douglas Library

(By Mary Fraser)

We were peering intently into a small shelf affair in the Douglas Library reading room the other night, in a mood of speculation, when we noticed a title on a ponderous tome which read: "Illustrated Historical Atlas of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Counties, Ont." This book, meaning about a yard square, was apparently published in 1878. We placed it under our arm, and, having selected a desk which was entirely empty (so that we would have lots of scope and elbow room), settled down to muddle through it in search of any information which might be of interest to "our readers."

On page ten we found a title which rather appealed to us, "The City of Kingston and Environs." This is what we learned:

"This city is appropriately called the Limestone City, as it is built on an extensive line of stone rock.—Here many of the public buildings, churches, shops and private residences are nearly all of the same substantial material.—The streets are somewhat irregularly laid out (yes, we noticed that) yet a great many of them are wide and in a capital condition. (We pause to interject the time honoured "Oh Yeah!)—Since the unfortunate fire of 1876, when an immense amount of property was destroyed, many first-class stores and an excellent hotel have been built on Princess Street, the principal business thoroughfare of the city. (This last apparently means Kingston's main drag)—The fire which took place in 1878 was likewise attended with considerable loss of property, but the buildings are to be replaced at an early date, shops and a suitable opera-house for public meetings, lectures and other purposes. (Yes, and we'll bet our bottom dollar that they're still there and intact too)—the visitor will find some excellent private residences, including villas, mansions and pretty cottages—(dear US)—military and other works of art—the fort, the towers, the battery, and the bridge, rich in their own transcendent charms (!!!); the bay and the harbor of Kingston can fairly claim to stand among Canadian scenes pre-eminent for magnificence. The ark-like steamer (gosh, the Wolf-Islander doesn't look quite THAT old), the majestic ship and schooner, the brig with its towering spars,—alike find safety in this capacious place of security. (Do tell)."

The article goes on again: "This city can claim many great advantages for those whose choice is guided by the consideration of the facilities for innocent amusement.—Numerous lakes and streams within a short distance of the city furnish capital places for fishing, picnics, duck-shooting and other sport. (We wonder if they had Geology tours in them days)—The climate and salubrity (we looked this one up—it means healthfulness) too, cannot be equalled.—In proof of the salubrity of Kingston, it may be mentioned that the comparative mortality in the cities of Quebec, Montreal and Kingston is as follows—In Quebec, one death in thirty-nine, in Montreal, one in thirty-three, in Kingston, one in eighty-one."

"—In the summer thousands of excursionists visit Kingston, and many of them repair to the park to enjoy their family picnic, where a supply of water would be an immense convenience." (We found gentle hints like this all through the sketch, obviously for the benefit of the town Council or whatever it was they had then.)

"Queen's College:

It is a very important educational establishment, and from it have issued graduates in arts, divinity and medicine, of no ordinary attainment. (We had a reputation even in those days, you see). It was incorporated by Royal Charter in 1842, and is under the management of a Board of Trustees and Senate. It has a principal and four professors in arts and divinity, besides several medical professors. It confers scholarships of the aggregate value of £200; the highest being worth £12 10s. During the present year it numbers a great many students in arts, divinity and medicine. Connected with it is a preparatory school, where great pains are taken to prepare pupils for matriculation at the college. An excellent library containing several thousand volumes belongs to the institution. A series of meteorological observations are taken by the graduates with able supervision of———. (O, so that's what goes on in that funny little building down there below Ban Righ) under whose assiduous attention this branch of knowledge, formerly so much neglected in Canada, has been carefully attended to."

"The street railway is one of the most recent enterprises of the city, and the marvel is, how a work of so much importance and convenience to the public was not commenced at an earlier date. (The author of this article sure had it in for somebody).——the road was opened on the 15th of June, 1877, and in four months and five days carried not fewer than 155, 870 passengers.—The present length of the line is 8,560 yards or nearly five miles, including sidings (note that) Eight cars run at intervals of twelve minutes from each end; the number of horses required by the company is forty-five.—We hope the undertaking will turn out a lucrative investment to the stockholders. (Apparently about the time when that fire of a few years ago happened, undertaking wasn't so lucrative. Very handy.)

The sketch continues with a description of the newspapers of the time, and we noticed this especially:

"The other papers published at Kingston are the Frontenac Gazette, Argus, the "Queen's College Journal" and the Collegiate Institute Herald, all of which are contributing largely to the moral, mental, and material advancement of the counties." It should be noted here that the Queen's College Journal is the sole survivor in this worthy and charitable cause, and we feel quite inspired when we realize the influence which it still exerts over the community.

Our own candid opinion is that this great city could not be described in quite such glowing terms as those of the Historical Sketch in our own day. Some time we'll rally around and deliver a modern interpretation of this old article for you.

My, my, how times DO change!

Oh! Will—!

Will Rogers has been made everything from a movie actor to a wild west cowboy. He has been mentioned for president, dictator and other public offices. However, his greatest dream came true recently when the girls at Wellesley recently made him a coed, electing him an honorary classmate.

Prominent Medical School Professors To Visit McGill

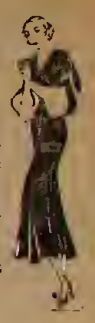
Montreal, Dec. 1, (C.I.P.)—Two prominent medical school professors in the United States will lecture at McGill University during the coming month under the auspices of the Alpha Omega Alpha Society, honor organization of medical undergraduates.

Prof. Henry A. Christian, professor of medicine at Harvard University, will speak on "The Use of Digitalis in Conditions Other Than Cardiac" at 8.30 o'clock on the evening of December 7 in the McGill Biological Building.

The causes of disease will be the topic of a lecture to be given at the same hour and place, December 17, by Professor George W. Crile of Cleveland, Ohio, who will be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the society which is to precede the lecture.

S. Glanville To Lecture On Ancient Egypt To-Night

S. K. R. Glanville, M.A., will lecture in Convocation Hall at 8.15 p.m. tonight on "How Things Are Done in Ancient Egypt."



Mr. Glanville, who is assistant keeper of Egyptian and Assyrian antiquities in the British Museum, has been brought to Canada for a series of lectures by the National Council of Education.

The author of a widely read book "Daily Life in Ancient Egypt," Mr. Glanville has studied archaeology in Egypt and has had eight years experience with the British Museum. He is an acknowledged authority in Egyptology.

"Golf is becoming a rich man's game." But there are many poor players.

Jackson-Metivier
Limited
114 Princess Street
Welcome Queen's Students
To visit this Store and see the New Fashions that will "register" high at college, and in every assembly of Smart Young Moderns.
"DEJA"
Frocks Evening Dresses
Coats

Students !

SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME

THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR

Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

Kingston's Smartest Ladies Shop ....

Fashion Display
OF
Evening Gowns and Wraps

LIVING MANNEQUINS
IN ATTENDANCE

THE HOLIDAY SEASON WILL SOON BE ON—CHRISTMAS DANCES—NEW YEAR'S BALL—BRIDGE PARTIES, ETC. — YOU WILL NO DOUBT BE IN NEED OF A NEW GOWN FOR THE OCCASION.

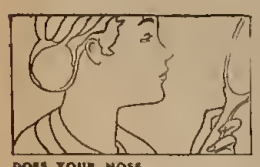
Display In Ladies, Dept. — All Day Saturday

NO ADMISSION FEE

SPECIAL REDUCTIONS ON ALL SAMPLE GOWNS
MODELLED REDUCTIONS AS HIGH AS 50%

Jos. Abramsky & Sons LIMITED
259-265 Princess Street Kingston, Ont.

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262



PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

LOOK--
FOR THE NEXT
10 DAYS WE OFFER
YOU
C. & E. LEWIS'
Famous English
Shoes
for
$6.95
Every pair fully guaranteed. Sold in many places as high as $9.50
An Exceptional Buy
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT

Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Air Scholarship To Encourage Aviation

Aeronautical scholarships totalling $7,500.00 in tuition value are being offered for the fourth consecutive year to aviation-inclined students of universities and colleges by W. E. Boeing, leader in the air-craft industry, it has been announced by the Boeing School of Aeronautics, located at Oakland, California. The Boeing scholarships, coveted by every college man interested in aviation, annually attract many entrants from leading educational institutions.

Four college undergraduates who submit the best essays on aeronautical subjects to a national committee of award and who are able to meet necessary physical standards, will be given flying and ground training at the Boeing School at no tuition cost.

First prize is the W. E. Boeing Master Pilot Ground and Flying Course, covering 250 hours of flying and 924 hours of ground school, and exceeding qualifications necessary for a transport pilot license. Second, third and fourth place winners may select thorough ground school courses, with the second award candidate also receiving flight instruction.

Regulations of the scholarships specify that the candidate must be an undergraduate of this school in regular attendance and in good standing. Physical requirements are that he must be white, between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five, of average height and normal weight, with proper eyesight and devoid of any physical handicap.

The scholarship competition will close on April 15, 1933, and essay subjects selected by candidates must be approved prior to March 15, 1933. The candidate who is selected for the first award must be able to pass the Department of Commerce transport pilot license examination within ten days after awards are announced. Three alternate candidates will be selected for possible awards in the event winners are unable to qualify physically.

In previous years, students of the following universities and colleges have been awarded scholarships: Stanford University, University of Washington, University of Nebraska, University of Maine, University of California, University of Minnesota, Mt. Union College, California Institute of Technology, Clarkson Memorial College and Santa Barbara Teachers College.

The Boeing School of Aeronautics, a unit of the United Aircraft and Transport Corporation, was founded in 1929 at the Oakland municipal airport. It holds an approved school certificate and an approved repair station certificate from the Department of Commerce, and ranks as one of the world's leading aviation schools. With a fleet of training aircraft ranging from light trainers to three-ton transports, and with laboratory equipment valued at $100,000.00, the school offers facilities for complete training for students desiring to enter aviation as transport pilots, traffic representatives, radio operators, dispatchers, field managers, instructors, mechanics, or as private plane owners. Many Boeing graduates now occupy responsible positions on leading air lines and in aviation manufacturing companies.

Addition information on the W. E. Boeing scholarships may be obtained from the college or university registrar, or from the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Municipal Airport, Oakland, California.

Editor's Note: Queen's students are eligible for the 1933 W. E. Boeing Aviation Scholarships.

Union Committee Considers Policies

A meeting of the House Committee of the Union was held on Tuesday night to consider various matters of policy.

General satisfaction was expressed with the response made by the student body to the notices which appeared in the Union at the beginning of the semester, asking students to remove their hats and coats before entering the Common Room. It was agreed that the action of the students had effectively silenced all possible criticism.

The decision was reached to make known to the student body the reason for the change whereby it is no longer possible to hire a deck of cards at the Tuck Shop. Until recently students could, on payment of twenty cents, secure the use of a deck, and of this sum fifteen cents was returned when the cards were handed in. Unfortunately this privilege was abused, and on one occasion an old pack was returned in place of the new one which had been hired. The Committee therefore decided to take the only action possible to prevent recurrence of such an incident.

It was also considered desirable to make known that it had been found necessary to move the Library of the Union from the Memorial Room and that books could now be obtained by application at the Tuck Shop.

Wary Cashier Foils Bamboozling Effort

A student went to the authorities in the Cafeteria of the Students' Union some days ago stating that he was physically unable to eat two full meals per day, and he desired to arrange for a light lunch.

Accordingly it was settled that he should have a 25 cent lunch consisting of soup, bread and milk.

Upon the first day after this arrangement had been made, our worthy friend appeared for luncheon. When he got round to the cashier, his tray contained the following:

2 basins of soup, 4 slices of bread, 4 portions of butter, 1 section of pie and 2 glasses of milk . . . and then he had the nerve to grumble when his meal ticket was punched for the full amount of one ordinary lunch.

CO-EDS ADOPT PIPES

Evanston, Ill.—Co-eds at Northwestern University have taken up pipe smoking. The fad started after the girls won the right to smoke in sorority houses and has become so wide spread that merchants have had to increase their stocks of pipes, including corn cobs. Whether or not the increased use of the briar has resulted in lowered consumption of cigarettes could not be learned. Merchants are wondering just how long the co-eds will continue the fad.

They Work Hard

Seventy per cent of the inmates of Stillwater state penitentiary of Minnesota who take correspondence courses at the University of Minnesota received grades of A or B.

Miller Club Meeting Sees Volcano Movies

Two reels of moving pictures, one of volcanoes, the other of shore lines were shown in room 306 of Ontario Hall last Wednesday afternoon at 4 p.m. These pictures were lent to the Miller Club by the Dominion Government and proved an interesting educational feature.

Actual pictures of eruptions with houses crashing and big trees burning furiously as the lava flowed over them were shown. Such volcanoes are known as the "explosive type" for they often erupt with terrific violence sending forth vast quantities of rock, steam and gas. Fujiyama of Japan, and Vesuvius of Italy which destroyed Pompeii in 79 A.D. were the typical examples of this type. Then Kilauea of Hawaii with its tremendous lava lake was shown. Sometimes the lava hardens on top just as ice does on top of water. People can then walk upon it. The movie showed a man walking over the lava and his cane which he shoved into the softer parts caught fire immediately. An unusual scene showed the crust of lava of heavier specific gravity sinking into the molten lava beneath much the same as ice does in the springtime.

The reel on shore lines showed storm waves beating with such great force on the shore that even the strongest rocks are unable to withstand the terrific onslaught. The waves carve their way into the joint planes of the rock gradually weakening it till in time it yields. In many seaside towns heavy concrete sea walls are built for protection against the savage waves. It was explained in the film that although the water particles appear to roll shorewards in the waves, actually they only revolve in a circle. A sea cave scene near the end of the film showed men in rowboats finding their way through the interior of the cave by means of torches. Both reels were illustrated by diagrams which aided a great deal in understanding the processes at work. The movie was well attended and the film which was both instructive and of great scenic beauty was enjoyed by all.

Arts Concursus To Meet Next Monday

For the first time in many years an Arts Court will be held before Christmas. The sessions will be held in Convocation Mall on both Monday and Tuesday evenings. Summonses are now being issued by Clerk Orion Low and Sheriff O'Neill will post the list of offenders in the Douglas Library on Saturday morning. The appearance of a name on this list is sufficient notice to offenders to call for their summonses. Those who do not appear or do not pay fines will be dealt with according to the full extent of the A. M. S. constitution. Judge Sprague has intimated that all those appearing before him will be tried with strict impartiality.

Although spectators may attend it is expected that they will observe Section 8 of Article VII of the Arts Constitution which reads:

"It shall be the duty of those present to maintain a respectful silence except when called upon to speak by the proper authorities, to abstain from all contempt of court and to submit with cheerfulness and alacrity to penalties imposed."

The Polo Wintercoat
THE SMARTEST CREATION OF THE YEAR—
Designed by Warren K. Cook, of Course!
Featured at
SHAW'S MEN'S WEAR
Opp. Capitol Theatre W. G. "Bill" Shaw, Prop.

The Emily Crawford Flower Shop
Specializing in
ORCHIDS, ROSES, CHRYSANTHEMUMS AND A WIDE VARIETY OF LOVELY CUT FLOWERS AND BLOOMING PLANTS
Telephones: Day 2744 —— Night and Sundays 1515
Our Motto: "Quality and Service"

"LEES" $9.00 "ZAK" $7.00
FAMOUS ENGLISH SHOES FOR MEN
THESE STURDY ENGLISH SHOES HAVE A WAY ALL THEIR OWN OF MAKING STRONG AND LASTING FRIENDS.
X-Ray Shoe Fitting
ALLAN M. REID
SHOE STORE

RANGER'S UPTOWN CIGAR STORE
Imported and Domestic Cigars, Cigarettes and Tobaccos
Pipes, Sundries and Sporting Goods
LONDON MADE BRIARS AT REDUCED PRICES
We wish to serve you. 294 Princess St., Kingston

Smith Bros. Jewelers Limited
Goldsmiths, Silversmiths, Designers of Class Insignia
Our store has been continuously open to the Kingston Public for over 90 years
We solicit business relationship with Students of Queen's
Estd. 1840 (New Address) 102 PRINCESS ST. (Near Wellington)

LA SALLE CAFE
Cordial Welcome Extended to All Queen's Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Choicest Foods, Cheerful Atmosphere, Good Service—What could be Finer
165 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

CAPITOL CAFE
The Most Popular Place in Town For Students
REGULAR FULL COURSE DINNER 35c.
Make it a point to drop in and eat here regularly
235 Princess St. Geo. Wheeloch, Prop

THOMPSON BROS. LAUNDERERS, Limited
OPERATING
Kingston - Imperial Laundry

SHOE REPAIRING
For Better Satisfaction
In Quality, Price and Workmanship
McGALL AND SLATER
292 PRINCESS ST. Opp. Salvation Army Citadel

FORMAL DRESS
BUY YOUR CLOTHES FROM A TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT, THEIR ADVICE IS FREE, JUDGMENT BETTER, AND KNOWLEDGE OF THE BUSINESS GREATER.
Try
Walsh & Derry, Tailors
PHONE 487

Queen's Journal

Published Twice-a-week by the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University

VOL. LIX. KINGSTON, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1932. No. 20

Queen's Library

SCIENCE WINS INTERFACULTY RUGBY

Science Subdues Medical Team In Desperate Battle

Squads Were Evenly Matched and Outcome Uncertain Until End

Science interfaculty football team amply proved their worth on Saturday afternoon by capturing a stubbornly fought contest from Medicine, the final score being Science 4 and Medicine 1.

The title was just as desperately battled for on Saturday, as it was in the first game that ended in a tie score, but the Engineers enjoyed a decided margin in the second game, and appeared to have the tilt well in hand, though breaks at opportune moments might have changed the picture, as the score was never great enough to enable Science to coast along.

The showing of the Med's team was rather a disappointment to their supporters, for the team had undoubted ability, and courage. It was only on rare occasions that Meds. uncorked the type of playing they are capable of, but seemingly just as they appeared to be headed for scores, a fumble, or bad snap ruined their chances. In spite of tough reverses, the Meds. fought back with everything they had, forcing Science to keep on their toes throughout.

All the points were scored via rouges, and this will give some idea of the closeness of the struggle. Touchdowns seemed imminent on rare occasions, but a mighty defence, or a fortunate break, popped up to deprive both teams of a major score. While fumbles made their appearance, the teams on the whole played bang-up rugby. The game was not as thrilling to watch as the first encounter because both teams respected each other and took no chances.

Almost perfect rugby weather provided a fitting scene for the all important game. A fairly brisk wind blew diagonally across the field from the southwest, while ground conditions could hardly be improv-

(Continued on page 5)

QUEEN'S CO-ED DEBATERS SCORE DOUBLE WIN

Agriculture In Egypt Centred About Nile

S. Glanville Spoke On Ancient Egypt

"The foundation of agriculture in Egypt is the Nile", said Mr. S. K. R. Glanville in his illustrated lecture, "How Things Were Done in Ancient Egypt," given in Convocation Hall last Friday night.

The speaker, who was introduced by Prof. J. K. Roberston, dealt with the period of Egyptian history from 2500 to 1200 B.C., and showed how practically the same methods of immigation and agriculture were used in Egypt, two or three thousand years ago, as are used today. By means of lantern slides he explained their system of irrigation showing how the Egyptians used the Nile to their own advantage.

It was explained that the pictures were copies of illustrations found carved or painted on the walls of Egyptian tombs. They revealed clearly the method of cultivating corn and flax employed by the Ancient Egyptians. The speaker showed how, although primitive agricultural implements were used in 2600 B.C., by 1400 B.C. very little improvement in them had been effected, while today substantially the same type of plowshare and the same methods of harvesting are used as in early times.

The domestication of the cat was well illustrated in the course of the speaker's description of wild duck hunting in Ancient Egypt. The birds were trapped in the surface of the pond in nets arranged according to an ingenious plan, but the sportsman caught his ducks by hitting them with a curved stick and used a cat as retriever. The fowl formed a staple article of diet.

Mr. Glanville also showed plans of the Egyptian house of the period and illustrated the home life of the time. Pictures of Vizier Nekht's house were used as examples.

This lecture was given under the auspices of the National Council of Education, and the Queen's lecture committee.

WILL YOU HELP?

Queen's co-eds will lend their support to the relief campaign undertaken by the Kingston City officials by instituting a drive of their own among the members of the Levana Society. This information was given to the Journal by the Executive of the Levana Society. The campaign will start on Wednesday morning and will finish Thursday night. Definite plans of the drive are not available, but the Executive expressed the hope that every co-ed would lend her support by giving generously. The girls are asked to contribute at least ten cents.

The full text of the statement from the Levana Society Executive reads as follows:

As the Christmas season draws near we cannot help thinking of those whose lot is less fortunate than our own. Even in so small a city as Kingston there are many needy families, and we, the Executive of the Levana Society, feel that the organization should support those who are engaged in relief work. For this reason we plan to hold a campaign on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and every girl is asked to contribute at least ten cents. The money raised will be handed over to the Local Council of Women to use as they see fit.—We feel sure that every girl will be willing to do her share.

"Executive of Levana Society."

Last minute information has it that the Arts Society has pledged itself to the support of the cause undertaken by the co-eds. When reached by the Journal, "Stu" Warrington, president of the Arts Society, declared that the Society would also turn over to relief workers the fines imposed by the Arts Concursus, which meets tonight to hear the cases for breaches against the Society and Freshman regulations. The president added that the minor expenses of the court would naturally be paid out of the fines levied, and the net amount would be handed over to the Levana relief workers.

Editor's Note: The thoughtfulness and unselfishness of the Levana Society in doing their share in helping the relief campaign undertaken by the city officials, deserves the support of the entire student body. The Arts Society's prompt action in coming to the aid of the co-ed organization is most encouraging and is all to their credit. We suggest that the entire student body organize, and that without delay, and co-operate with the Levana Executive in this admirable work. The effort and time expended, and the small pecuniary sacrifice demanded should in no way embarrass the student, while the thought of brightening someone's Christmas day should more than repay any inconvenience entailed.

GET BUSY! IT'S A SPLENDID CAUSE!

Levana Debaters Win Honours In Both Intercollegiate Debates By Defeating Varsity And McMaster.

Censorship Of Motion Pictures Debated By Able Co-ed Speakers

Triumphing over their opponents from McMaster University, and from University of Toronto, the members of the Levana Debating team carried off the honours in the Intercollegiate Debates. Miss Dorothy Wilkins and Miss Ada Adams successfully upheld the affirmative side of the resolution that "some form of Government censorship of motion pictures is desirable," against the McMaster University representatives, Miss Jean Tubbs and Miss Marjorie Brittain, while the other two members of the Levana team, Miss Kathleen Morrison and Miss Bessye Sheffield, supporting the Negative side of the same resolution, won the decision of the Judges from their University of Toronto opponents.

The Queen's-McMaster debate which took place in Ban Righ Hall was productive of some very clever arguments, including spirited speeches from the floor.

Miss Dorothy Wilkins, leader of the Government, favoured Government censorship on several points, declaring that it would produce cleaner pictures, do away with misleading advertisement, prevent harmful influence on children and uneducated classes and would place the motion picture above suspicion.

Miss Jean Tubbs, leader of the opposition, argued that any censorship board was founded on autocracy, and that censorship was destructive to creative art. Miss Tubbs also maintained that the present anti-obscenity laws were sufficient in controlling this angle of the question.

Miss Ada Adams, for the Government, stated that the present le-

(Continued on page 5)

Negative Side Upheld By Miss B. Sheffield And Miss K. Morrison

Toronto, Ont. — Representing Queen's University Miss Bessye Sheffield and Miss Kathleen Morrison defended the negative side of the question that some form of government censorship of motion pictures is desirable against Miss Dorothy Walker and Miss Anne Quinlan of University of Toronto, in the Women's Intercollegiate Debate held in Trinity College Library. Miss Isabel Jordan presided.

The Toronto debaters, upholding the affirmative, showed the effect of crime pictures on minors and delinquents, and various cases of the influence of gangster pictures were described.

The opposition enlarged the theme that the current autocracy of censorship tends to suppress individual rights and subdues the creative ability of stars and directors. The fact that any attempt at government censorship has proved most unsatisfactory, was conclusively demonstrated. Censorship in most provinces in Canada and states in U.S. is conducted by a state or provincial board, which co-operates with the National Board of Review which is supported by Hollywood producers.

After a spirited rebuttal by the government, the question was thrown open to the floor of the house, and amid much laughter, the pros and cons of the subject were discussed thoroughly.

The decision of the house, which disagreed with that of the official judges, was in favor of the government, but on the decision of the judges, the representatives of Queen's University were given the award.

Tommy Mitchell, Capitol Theatre Usher Airs Views About Pictures And Reviews

"Some of the Journal movie reviewers go in for fancy phrases to show that they have read a little, know a little Latin or French," Tommy Mitchell, head usher at the Capitol Theatre, told a Journal representative in an interview. If you are an "habitué" of Ernie Smithies' movie emporium you can't possibly have missed seeing Tommy Mitchell. He's short, has wavy dark hair and is very brisk and business-like. He has a disarming smile and knows pictures inside out. We were not long finding that out.

When pressed for more information on the Journal movie reviews, Tommy said that they were fairer this year, and that the critics have shown a keener appreciation of the pictures. "In the past", he said, "if the reviewer did not like a picture he panned it unmercifully." This after all is not the essence of a good review. What the reader wants of a reviewer is a fair analysis of the picture, a study of the good points as well as the weak points. The reader does not want to read through a column of pseudo-humour. Tommy confided to us that it burns him up to see a reviewer poke fun at a show. He believes that this brand of humour is like joking at the bits of wisdom that a professor gives his students.

(Continued on page 5)

TRICOLOR NOTICE

Photographs for the Year Book are now due and should be handed in to the Associate Editors without delay. Biographies, which must not exceed forty words in length, should accompany the photographs.

The Associate Editors are: Mary McLennan (Levana), Roy Sharp (Arts), A. M. Innes (Science), and Bill Lehto (Meds). Secretaries of Year Societies and of Campus Organizations should see them immediately.

ARTS MEETING

The Arts Society will hold its last meeting before Christmas this afternoon, when Professor L. A. Munro will speak on "Chemical Methods in War Defence."

The lecture will take place in the large lecture room on the second floor of Gordon Hall.

This will be the first public meeting of the Society since the freshman attendance rule was abolished and the effect of the change will be watched with interest by the executive.

Co-Eds Experience Ups And Downs At Kingston Fire Chief's Unique Reception

Have you tried the new campus thrill? On Thursday evening brave and mighty members of Levana (chosen by lot, no doubt) sallied forth from various annexes to demonstrate their unsurpassable courage. At the Fire-Hall of Kingston, Fire Chief Armstrong, who is well known about the campus, gave them a profusive welcome, (he had his darling red car parked outside) while firemen peeked from behind fire-engines indicating a warm if wordless reception.

This visit was to demonstrate the efficiency of a new fire-escape apparatus. This instrument, called a "Davy Belt," consists of a long rope which runs through a circular box in which there are two cams, whatever they are. These cams act like brakes to retard the speed. At one end of the rope is a heavy belt, about five feet in circumference, which encircles the victims. (This method is to be preferred to the guillotine or even the electric chair.) The sufferer can put her foot in the belt and thus lose her equilibrium or sit upright in it, or again she can place it so as to tickle beneath the arm-pits.

The first victim of these unfortunates to brave her all for bigger and better rescues, smil-

Continued on page 7

Queen's University Journal

PUBLISHED TWICE A WEEK THROUGHOUT THE ACADEMIC YEAR BY THE ALMA MATER SOCIETY OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
WILFRED L. CHARLAND—3713

BUSINESS MANAGER
J. LORNE MacDOUGALL—2088-F.

ELWIN B. HALL—3457-J ..... MANAGING EDITOR
ERIC H. GILMOUR—3469 ..... NEWS EDITOR
J. B. HAZEN—4167 ..... SPORTS EDITOR
HELEN KENNEDY—2919 ..... LEVANA EDITOR
R. U. MAHAFFY—280 ..... LITERARY EDITOR

ASSOCIATE EDITORS
J. MILNE ..... SCIENCE
T. ROBINSON ..... MEDICINE

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 6th, 1932

Congratulations Levana

At a time when other extra-curricular activities and undergradnate organizations at Queen's are suffering from lack of interest and support, the victories of the Levana debating team in Toronto and Kingston come as happy reminders of the excellent work and success that is attending the local co-eds in their several fields of endeavour.

Earlier in the semester the tennis team captured the Women's Intercollegiate championship, the singles and doubles competitions, and now the Debating Team brings added laurels to the University. The co-eds have always displayed courage, persistance, and determination in their encounters whether on the courts, on the basketball floor, on the ice, or in the Intercollegiate debates. Success may not always have been theirs, but they have carried on. This year they have been more fortunate, and it is indeed gratifying to see that victory has crowned their efforts.

The accomplishment of the Debating Team is especially significant at this time for it should lend an impetus to this branch of endeavour which seems to be rapidly erasing itself from the activities of the men students.

The possession of the "Memorial Book," emblamatic of the Intercollegiate debating championship, will be determined on points and it appears most probable that the Levana Society will be awarded this trophy in virtue of the double victory of the team.

It is a pleasure for us to congratulate the co-eds on their splendid showing.

Do Public Servants Sleep?

Railway problems have long been a topic of discussion. At a time when a conspicuous absence of business capacity has been held up for public condemnation and the extravagance of railway management and wasteful competition has been exposed in Parliament, it is, perhaps, not surprising to find that an anxiety to provide service should be lacking. It is none the less lamentable. A glaring example of the inattention of the railways to the needs of the public was brought to our notice last Sunday evening. Six times between 8 and 10 p.m. the Editor of the Journal tried to send out three important telegrams. Eventually contact was established with a C.N.R. official. The C.P.R. apparently is a strictly Sabbatarian institution. Our telegraph system has become all dot and no dash!

Au Revoir—Not Good-Bye

With this issue the Journal ceases publication until the re-opening of classes next semester. It is not without a certain sense of relief that we approach the half-way mark in our publication budget, for only those closely associated with the paper can realize the great amount of time expended in the effort to present the college news in the best way within our power.

Conscious of our many faults, but conscious, too, of a sincere endeavour to make each issue better than its predecessor, we hope that our efforts may have been of some interest and value. We have tried to present a comprehensive survey of the University news and of other items which we deemed of interest to our readers.

The press has stopped. The twentieth issue is out. Our hope, now, is that there may be time enough for a loyal staff to catch up on a little back work.

We should like to address to the publisher and his genial staff our thanks for their efficient co-operation, which has helped to make our own work easier.

Though the Yuletide season is just around the corner we should like to take this occasion to extend to our readers the best wishes of the Journal.

WITH OTHER EDITORS

Two Lost Arts

In their frantic search after more intensified methods in modern education, in their constant pursuit of that phantom, "culture," even the foremost among contemporary educators generally overlook the gradual disappearance of two accomplishments that have always adorned refined society in the past. Writing in the November issue of the Fortnightly Review, Audrey Lucas succintly makes plain the fact that the arts of letter writing and conversation have indeed been lost, declaring that this is so "less because we do not possess them than because we no longer know how to make use of them."

To those who can appreciate the value of that intimate personal literature which in bygone eras of refinement was the delight of accomplished persons to produce and which today still exhilarates the mind and fancy of the modern reader it should truly be a cause for grave concern that this spontaneous form of literature has become decadent. Of course, a person does write even today. He writes business letters according to the prescribed form in the most acceptable usage. He dashes off a note to his family to inform them of his health and safety. "But as a means of gratifying ourselves, our friends and, possibly, posterity," Miss Lucas points out, "letter writing has fallen into disuse." One now employs the telephone constantly, not merely for the speedy communication of matters of importance but equally as much to transmit those "sweet nothings" or incidental bits of interesting news that have traditionally been consigned to the love letter or the friendly note in which time has no significance. It is this "tyranny of the telephone" that has aborted any potential Lord Chesterfields or modern Horace Walpoles.

The same situation is evident in even more striking fashion in the case of the second "lost art." People still talk, it is true; but it is nothing more than that, just talk. For conversation, as opposed to just talking, modern man no longer has either the time or the inclination. "One talks in restaurants, in night clubs, in rooms crowded with people, but one does not converse." The rare person who does enjoy discoursing quietly and intelligently with a friend sits down to do so only to be distracted at once by the jangling of the telephone or doorbell or to be interrupted by the sudden appearance of some five-minute visitor who rushes upon the scene in a twelve-cylinder motor car. Modern man is being driven by the powers he thought he had harnessed to work for him. He is now beginning to long for escape from the machines he but recently created with so much eagerness. Until he does escape he will never recapture the intellectual pleasures of conversation as it was known to more leisurely societies in an age when people were accustomed to discourse sensibly on a subject without regard for pressing minutes. It is only this sort of conversation that can engender by its pursuit of feeling both of satisfactory accomplishment and of gain.

In spite of these all too evident trends, we believe that these two "lost arts" are not doomed to extinction, that they can indeed be revived by effort and application, and above all, that the university is the one place in modern society that offers both the opportunity and the leisure for the cultivation of these accomplishments. Modern colleges, it is true, are a far cry from the "cloistered solitudes" of past ages, and they are inevitably involved in the swirl of the present machine epoch to an appreciable extent. Yet they are the only institutions sufficiently removed from the vortex to be able to extricate the present hurrying generation from its mental maelstrom. It should, then, be the constant endeavor of the universities to eradicate that attitude which considers time spent in private writing or conversing as "wasted," and to foster a greater appreciation of the intrinsic value of these "arts."

—The Princetonian.

Official Notices

MID-YEAR EXAMINATIONS

Mid-Year examinations in the Faculties of Arts, Applied Science and Medicine, will be held in the week preceding the Christmas Holidays, as follows:

Faculty of Arts

Examinations beginning December 13th will be given in all subjects in all years, including Reading and seminar courses and Directed Special Studies.

Final examinations (half-courses of the first term) will cover three hours; all other examinations will cover two hours. Classes in Arts will close at noon December 13th.

Faculty of Applied Science

Examinations will begin on the afternoon of Wednesday, December 14th. Classes for the first year will close at 5 p.m. Tuesday, December 13th; classes for the second year will close at 5 p.m. on Thursday, December 15th; classes for the third and fourth years will continue until December 22nd.

Final examinations will cover three hours; first and second year examinations other than finals will cover two hours.

Faculty of Medicine

Examinations will begin on Wednesday, December 14th. All Medical examinations will be held in Grant Hall.

CHRISTMAS VACATION

Faculty of Applied Science

The attention of all students in the Faculty of Applied Science is called to the opening date in January. Classes will re-open on January 4th, as in the Faculty of Arts, and not on the 6th as stated in the calendar.

Scholarships and Bursaries in the Faculty of Arts

Welch Scholarship

Value $125. Founded by Frederick Welch of Kingston. Awarded in the Faculty of Arts and open for competition only to the sons and daughters of non-commissioned officers and men who have served overseas in the late war, and of mechanics and labourers, which students shall at the time be bona fide residents of the City of Kingston, preference being had for the children of soldiers. As this scholarship was not advertised last year it was not awarded in April. Applications are now invited from all students who are eligible and who were in attendance last year. The award will be made on the results of the examinations of last April.

Other Scholarships

1. Six scholarships of $100 each will be awarded in January. These are open to all students of any year in the Faculty of Arts. The award will be made on the basis of the students' records up to that date.

2. A small sum of money is available for the assistance of students who are in serious financial need and also show considerable promise in their work. First year students are not eligible. Awards will not be made until after Christmas. Applications should be sent now to the Registrar.

3. Scholarships to the total of about $1200, tenable in the session 1933-34, will be awarded on the result of the spring examinations. There will also be a small sum available for the assistance of needy students whose work reaches a high standard. The conditions of award will be announced later.

Special Fares for Christmas Holidays

Students and teachers are entitled to special rates on tickets for Christmas holidays. Certificates for presentation at the ticket office may be obtained at the Registrar's Office. The tickets are good for the period from December 20 to January 4.

Robert Bruce Bursaries

The University has a small sum in connection with the Robert Bruce Bursaries to be given in each year to one or more students of promising ability but straitened circumstances in the third or later year in any Faculty. Until 1948 the award is limited to students of Scottish extraction. Applications will be received up to December 21st.

Just an old Scottish Custom

No, they're not orguing over the gome. It's only a cose of Sandy trying to pry Mac loose from his last Turret. "I'll no gi' such o bonny smoke to any impecunious Scot," says Mac. "But I'll strike a borgain wi' ye. One lone drog for a dime, and if it's no the mildest, smoothest, smoke ye have ever hod, I'll gi' ye your money back."

10 FOR 10C
20 FOR 20C
SAVE THE POKER HANDS

—and in flat tins of fifty and one hundred.

Quality and Mildness
Turret
CIGARETTES
Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited

A. R. TIMOTHY, — Photographer
SPECIALIZING IN PORTRAITS AND GROUPS
180 Wellington Street 'Phone 2110
Over Canadian Pacific Express Office.

FRANK ROBBS
BEAUTY PARLOUR
SPECIAL RATES TO STUDENTS
Finger Waving Shampooing Permanent Waving
185 Wellington Street Phone 578-J

COLLEGE SHOES
— FOR MEN —
Heavy Oxfords in Calf and Scotch Grain Leathers
$5.00 $6.00 $8.00
COMFORT IN EVERY PAIR
ABERNETHY'S SHOE STORE
123-125 Princess Street

STUDENTS !
At the first sign of Eye Trouble, Consult
R. ARTHEY, R.O.
Optometrist and Optician
143 PRINCESS ST

PICTURES
and
FRAMING
NEVILLE'S
228 Princess St., Phone 2630

OH STUDENTS!
Inexpensive but Appreciated
CHRISTMAS
REMEMBRANCES
Smiles 'N Chuckles Quality Chocolates in special holidny wrap—25c, 50c, $1.00
Smokes—leading brands. Christmas wrapped—"everyday prices"
Yardley Toiletrie—singles and sets 35c to $10.00—Ask for new price folder.
Christmas Cards, Stationery, Seals, Tissue, Tags and Twine
at
Ward & Hamilton, Ltd.
4 Drug Stores 4

FOR ALL MUSICAL NEEDS
GO TO
Warmington's Music Store
274 PRINCESS ST., KINGSTON
Warmington's Hotel La Salle
Orchestra in connection

HOCKEY OUTFITS
BOOTS and SKATES
The Highest Quality at the Lowest Prices
Shoe Krafts
For Better Shoe Repairs
TWO STORES
Downtown
208 Princess St. Phone 505
Uptown
355 Princess St. Phone 506
Free Call and Delivery

NEW LUNCH COUNTER
Princess, Cor. of Albert
Toasted Sandwiches,
Hot Drinks,
Red Hots — Specials
OPEN EVENINGS
Look for "Red Hot" Sign

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Kingston, Ont.,
December 2.

The Editor,
Queen's Journal,
Queen's University,
Kingston, Ont.

Dear Sir:—Pollux seems to forget that the reviewers of the current motion pictures are human beings who can at best give their own impressions of the pictures that they see. To err is human, but it happens much more often when one person tries to express the views of the multitude. After all, as Charlie Ruggles once said, "What's one man's opinion?" Nevertheless the opinion of this one person in regard to the value of the show from the standpoint of entertainment is valued by at least 90 percent. of the student body. When this one view does not coincide with the views of others, there is no reason to take up arms against the reviewer. Pollux will find that originality is sadly lacking in all the things that we do to-day. The majority of us have an over developed (follow the leader) complex which will get us nowhere.

Pollux is ready to pardon the adoption of what he calls nickel journalism, which appears in the reviews. He must also be ready to pardon the average college student's speech as the same sort of language is used there. The journal is written for the students, so why not write it to please the majority of them. We can at least be independent in that respect, even though the King's English is being murdered.

Pollux is not ready to believe that the windows of the houses in England rattled from the concussion of guns fired in France during the Great War. If Pollux will take sufficient interest and ask some of the English boys at school here, he will find that more than windows shook in the southern sections of that country. As the picture "Smiling Through" takes place within a short distance of Dover, it is quite within the bounds of reason that the windows did rattle.

Pollux also mentions restraint in connection with a group of college students, for most of the crowd at the Capitol were students. One has yet to see a student body with much restraint. A portion of the picture may be amusing or it may be sad, but such is the make up of the young people of to-day, that they are just as apt to be sad while the funny portion is holding sway, as they are when the hero leaves the heroine, never to return.

Pollux seems quite ready with his criticisms, after all, they are free, and this is a Scotch University. We wonder if he is as ready to start writing these reviews?

—R. W. B.

FRENCH LESSONS
Good conversational French taught
25 cents an hour
GASTON HOUDE
17 Division St.

STUDENTS!
Notes and theses typed
Reasonable rates
PHONE 1033

SWORD CRAVATS!
For Xmas Gifts
55c and up
"Ties of individual distinction"
J. H. "Skipper" ROSS
Science '35 332 Johnson St.

REDUCED PRICES ON
Personal Christmas Cards
FOR QUEEN'S STUDENTS
SEE OUR SAMPLES
HANSON & EDGAR Limited
117 Brock Street Phone 1510

To all members of Queen's University.

For the past few weeks I have tried my hardest, and in so doing spent a lot of time, to keep this column at it's peak, and to give my fellow members of the A.M.S. and the staff something to add to their entertainment. In doing this I have occasionally, either accidently or purposely, overstepped the bounds of common decency, or have for a purpose, either good or bad, panned or praised someone who did not deserve it. That is as it may be.

But in the past week I have been a receiver of a good deal of caustic criticism, not, however, directly from the parties concerned but rather through the medium of a third person. Some of these remarks I admittedly deserved, and to say the least, expected, and such criticism as that made by one member of the staff, who said, "that they couldn't possibly see why anyone should want to spell Queen's KWEANZ," helps to build up a following rather than tear it down.

Naturally enough, remarks such as that are laughed at and taken in the spirit in which they are given, but, it seems to me that it would be the whiter thing to do if these witticisms were made to me personally, not through a third person, but rather by letter to our college paper or by speaking to me in person.

I lay no claims to being a clever or a good writer, I probably make more grammatical errors than most, and consequently my attempts are not always all that they might be, but I must say this. It is very disheartening to write my column for every issue, and then to receive not a solitary letter from the great unknown criticising my endeavours, pointing out my mistakes or leading me back onto the straight and narrow. Instead, I am told that a certain Professor didn't like one of my attempts, so one of his class thinks he might write to the Journal about it, and in the student vernacular, get in good with the Prof. And if I only knew the student, I surely would have something worth writing about in the next issue.

Therefore in the future, if I should offend you, or even please you, I would be greatly honoured if you would take the time to let me know just where I stand.

In the meantime exams and the holidays are drawing near, and this being the last of the Journal for 1932, I take this opportunity to wish one and all a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. (That's cheaper than cards.)

J. N. MILNE,
Science Editor.

Chemical Engineers Hold Interesting Symposium

At the second symposium held by the Chemical Engineers on November 30th, two interesting papers were heard.

Chosing "Superphosphates" as his subject, Mr. C. H. Hilliker presented many interesting and instructive facts. Beginning with the history of the superphosphate industry, he dealt in turn with the extent of world deposits and production ,details of manufacture and application of the superphosphate to plant growth.

Mr. E. J. Thompson as the second speaker followed up the subject with a detailed description of nitrogen and potash fertilizers.

The papers were followed by an enthusiastic discussion. It was stated that Canada was far behind most agricultural countries in the use of fertilizers and that Canadian farmers would do well to study the benefits derived from their use.

S. C. M. Shrapnel

The new office of the S.C.M. is on the top floor of the Theologieal hall. The following collection of books are there, and may be horrowed. These books were bought last Fall by the Queen's delegates to Elgin House and were chosen by students. A few periodicals may also be found here.

The Intercollegian "student opinion at its best" is published in New York and the November issue carries articles by Fay Campbell, Andrew Steidger and John Bennett, on such topics as "Crisis in Campus Religion", "As Students Live and Work in Russia", "To-day." The Student World is published quarterly by the world student Christian Federation with its head office in Geneva. "Chinese Affairs" is a weekly survey of important events relating to China, and is published by the International Relations Committee at Nanking.

The office will be open Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, 9-11 a.m., Monday 10-12. Wednesday 10.11.

Ethical Teaching of Jesus, Scott: Does Civilization Need Religion?, Niebuhr: The Present Day Summons, Mott; The Issues of Life, Wieman; What I Owe to Christ, Andrews: The Mastery of Sex, Weatherhead; New Russia's Primer, Ilin; The Word of God, Barth; For Sinners Only, Russell: Relevance of Christianity, The, Barry; New Life in God, Kagawa; Which Way Religion?, Ward; God in the Shires, Redwood; Message of Jesus for Life of To-day, Thomas; A Philosophy of Life that Works, Judd.

Training Will Tell

More college graduates among organized nudists claim Harvard University as their alma mater than any other institution, according to the Dakota Student.

World News Briefly

Intercepted when about to board the Georgic at Halifax Sunday, Premier Bennett told reporters that he was going to England for rest and to see to the putting in operation of the Imperial Conference agreements. He will also attend the London Conference, returning after Christmas.

Squabbles continue in Manchuria with the Japanese pushing on to the Soviet border. Friday they withstood a party of Chinese rebels in the Shedyn Railway pass in the vicinity of the Khurgan mountains.

The British note of December 2nd to the United States intimated that in the event of being compelled to make the December 15th payment on war debts Great Britain might have to erect a tariff wall to restrict the resulting flow of U. S. goods into the country. The note pointed out that the effect of the payment would be to deepen the depression; that the position of British taxpayers would not be better than that of U. S. citizens if a moratorium was agreed upon, and furthermore it was not fair to insist upon payment since Britain had received nothing from her debtors.

France followed this up with a diplomatic memorandum to President Hoover which in brief reminded the President that he had pledged himself to a postponment of the December 15th in the Lausanne conference agreement.

A political crisis has been averted in Germany in the appointment of Lieut. General Kurt Von Schleicher by Von Hindenburg as Chancellor in place of Franz Von Papen who was a strong sympathizer with the Hohenzollern faction.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary of State for India at the Round Table conference in London last week stated that the powers of the Viceroy and the Provincial governors had been enlarged. Formerly these officials could act only on the advice of responsible ministers. Now special powers to override the ministers in the fields of finance minorities and commercial discrimination have been invested in the representatives of the crown.

In addressing the Calgary Wheat Pool Saturday, John I. McFarland, the General Manager, stated that the farmers must stop production if wheat prices were to be materially altered. At present they cannot pay the cost of production.

The seventy-second United States Congress met in session yesterday. Discussion centred around the questions of prohibition, taxation, Philippine independence, economy, and a balanced budget.

Addressing the Ontario Commercial Travellers Club at London, Saturday, Hon. E. N. Rhodes expressed himself strongly against inflation of the dollar bringing it to parity with the pound. If such a measure were adopted $150,000,000 more would be added to New York obligations falling due next year.

Continuing Mr. Rhodes pointed out how the cost of government has increased enormously in the past two years, rising from $38 per capita in 1913 to $98 in the present year. Controllable expenditures have been slashed 22% out of a possible 38%.

The drys received a severe setback as the result of the vote taken in the American House of representatives yesterday. The voting gave 272 for repeal of the 18th Amendment, 144 for its retention.

QUEEN'S TAXI
PHONE
- 2002 -
25c SERVICE
FRANK F. SMITH

DON'T gamble!
On Cheap Clothes
When You Can Buy
GOOD CLOTHES
at our
WINTER SALE
AND SAVE MONEY ON EVERY PURCHASE
TWEDDELL'S
Men's and Young Men's Clothing.
137-139 Princess St., Hotel La Salle Bldg., Phone 3706

Stour's Flower Shop
231 Princess St. Member F.T.D.
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

This is what Canadians, all over the Dominion, are finding in the Bank of Montreal, where small savings accounts are encouraged to grow into larger ones. Students' accounts are especially welcome.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Established 1817

Kingston Branch: W. R. Belcher, Manager.

T. C. MARSHALL
TAILOR
Cleaning, Pressing & Alterations
New Tuxedos to Rent
161 Brock St.
Phones 4114-W, 2469-J

BEFORE THE DANCE
SPECIAL RATES
AND SERVICE
ELLIOTT'S BARBER SHOP
AND BEAUTY PARLOR
Phone 821-w 356 Princess St.

THE SUCCESS OF THE PARTY DEPENDS ON YOUR TAXI
PHONE 448 PHONE
NOW
7 Passenger Heated Sedans Only
Capitol Taxi
448 PHONE 448
Ask the driver for tickets

BARGAINS
IN NEW AND USED RADIOS
CANADA RADIO STORES
Phone 1207—Next Roy-York Cafe
—Here since 1922—

TATTON'S TAXI
25c
We never raise our rates and are ready to serve you at all hours
128 Clarence St. Kingston
PHONE 2980
George Tatton, Mgr.

WATTS, FLORIST
FLOWERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS
Bonded Members—Florist Telegraph Delivery Association
Conservatories: 24 Regent
Phones: Res. 1137—Store 1763

J. O. LAWRENCE
Students Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor
MISS R. HARNDEN
Permanent Waving—Finger Waving Marcelling
Ladies and Men's Haircutting 35c
Phone 1719-w 227 Princess St.

Missing Classes!
Why not buy an Alarm Clock
$1.00 and $1.25
Guaranteed of Course
Kinnear & D'Esterre
JEWELLERS
168 Princess St.

KINGSTON CLEANERS and DYERS
COE & BARRETT
Special Contract for Students
WE CALL FOR AND DELIVER
Phone 1225 33 Union St. W.

THE CAMPUSCOPE

Hobbies

An especially good piece of advice given by the promotor to the last graduating class at the Edinburgh medical school was that each man should find himself a hobby suitable to his temperament and use it as a means of recreation and relaxion. For those engaged in a technical profession such as medicine he advised some spare-time occupation of a purely mechanical nature. One of England's best surgeons does ivory carving in his spare time which is worthy of an Oriental craftsman. Such occupations have the advantage over outdoor activities of being independent of season and weather.

Investigation of the spare-time habits of medical students here reveals a surprising and regrettable lack of ingenuity in the devising of occupational amusement. Athletic activities of various kinds can hardly be classed as hobbies. Almost always they are either the natural outflow of young animal spirits or the result of a desperate earnestness of attempt to combat a threatening waistline. The purusit of galloping dominoes, so popular in all classes, degenerated some hundreds of years ago into a purely commercial affair, while the game of poke 'er has always been more or less inseparable from monetary considerations.

Some hobbies belong of necessity to the more affluent periods of life. Collecting, such, for instance as the philately of Dr. Austen and Dr. Reed, accumulation of portraits are beyond the means of students, and even few medical men can indulge their love of preventive medicine to the extent of making a collection of waterworks, but the devising of elegant ways of preparing and serving sauerkraut and pigs knuckles, in which the latter gentleman is also interested, should prove attractive to many bachelor undergraduates.

Chirography is an interesting field. It is strange that Dr. Gardiner's classes have never become enthused about handwriting idiosyncracies. His able comments upon student signatures in the attendance register reveal a grasp of the subject and an unflagging interest in its ever-varying aspects which might be expected to inspire dozens to further study.

Music has always provided a means of relaxion and escape from every day matters. The actual playing of an instrument is much more beneficial than passive listening, but ability to play, and especially upon the nobler instruments, is largely dependent on inherent aptitude and early training. The writer, for instance, was once advised by an overwrought teacher of the violin to go home and have his father buy him a drum. But musical sense is not uncommon. It is a constant source of wonder to visitors from other colleges that Queen's cannot assemble its own dance orchestra from student talent. There are, of course, the bands, but the brass is a seasonable activity and students have not at their disposal the five generations that it takes to make a piper. In music, again, the staff shows greater enterprise and skill than the student body. Dr. Gibson is well known as a violinist and space alone would not permit a discussion of all the vocalists on the staff.

On the few occasions when Dr. Miller has been induced to present publicly his rendition of the sailor's hornpipe on the flute, he has brought the house down. It is said that a couple of years ago the doctor was only prevented from performing this number before the crowned heads of Europe by the unfortunate absence of the crowned heads.

The decline of photography as a hobby is a matter for regret. The actual taking of pictures is now the only part of the process in amateur hands and in most cases this has degenerated into an occasional taking of snapshots on special occasions. Dr. Hay is probably our most prominent exponent of amateur photography. In consideration of his deep interest in this subject, it is strange that there should have sprung up among students so erroneous an idea as that his hobby is the collection of epitaphs and sarcophagi.

Hobbies are naturally as varied as temperaments. The interest in architecture evinced by Dr. Logan illustrates the possibility of finding relaxation in a different branch of technical science, as differentiated from a release into simpler pleasures such as the bicycle racing which arouses so much interest in the Scottish contingent. Some of our ablest conversationalists among both staff and students admit as their hobby a strange passion for the distribution of cocktails among public assemblies.

A man who can use his spare time pleasureably has a decided advantage over his less resourceful colleague, no matter what their line of endeavour.

Bander Snatches

The Mock-Turtle was disconsolate. Gloomily he paced back and forth on the campus, his head bowed and manner dejected. He was talking to himself: "What a world it is anyway. Here the term is almost over and nothing has happened. There hasn't been a real scandal of any kind in the whole University. The freshettes have been behaving like ladies, and for the most part the men have been exemplary. I thought for a while we might make something out of the carpainting episode, but that petered out." (Here the Mock-Turtle sighed teavily). "Last year all the papers were full of headlines about Queen's; reporters dogged our footsteps, we were in the limelight. But this year we haven't been able to get anywhere. Even the riots at the Penitentiary got more notice than we ever do. And it's not for the want of trying," he continued, "all of us have done everything we could. Some have preached socialism, some have advocated Communism, but no one will pay the slightest attention. Why one of us even proposed establishing a colony out in Pittsburgh Township, a colony of enlightened ones who would each contribute to the common good what he was able and from the common fund draw what he needed. You would have thought that would bring the reporters around again but what happened?"

Just then Alice came up. She had only heard the last part of his soliloquy, so said brightly:

"Well, what DID happen?"

"Oh, it's you," said the Mock-Turtle. "What business is it of yours anyway But, if you must know, NOTHING happened; not even a single, solitary thing. And he had the houses picked out and everything, and the colony was going to trade firewood for the things they had to have from the outside world. The plan was perfect but it was no use; it went quite flat. Not a single reporter, not a single headline did we get."

"Of course it went flat," said Alice, "You might have expected it."

"I don't see that," exclaimed the Mock-Turtle. "Why might we have expected it to go flat "

"Well," Alice answered, "You see firewood is old-fashioned. Now if the colony had only offered to trade coal for what they needed, or coal-oil, or gas—. Yes, I think gas would have been better on the whole. It's safe, convenient and economical, you know. It's plentiful, and you don't have to go out and chop down trees to get it."

The Mock-Turtle was suspicious. "What do you know about gas?" he asked, peering at her intently through his pince-nez.

"Oh, lots and lots," she cried. "There are two kinds of gas—natural and artificial. And the new colony would only—."

"That will be enough from you," said the Mock-Turtle firmly. "Some of you Freshettes are altogether too smart. What are you doing loafing around here anyway? I suppose you're cutting a lecture."

He stalked away, leaving Alice standing there, but she thought she heard him mutter to himself, "Perhaps the girl's right. Perhaps gas would be better than firewood, after all. Anyway, in such a colony there would be much more of it than anywhere else—natural and artificial both. And yet, I don't know—I wonder which people are really more interested in. It takes some hard work to cut firewood, but gas—"

(To be continued)

TREACLE AND INK.
X, their mark.

BAND MEETING

Members of the Queen's Brass Band are asked to be present at a meeting at 7 p.m. to-night in the Old Gym.

R. O. SWEEZEY TO RETIRE

It is officially announced that R. O. Sweezey, Esq., one of the members of the Board of Trustees who will retire this year has declared his intention not to be nominated for another term of office.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

It is axiomatic among legal gentlemen that every law has a loophole. The constant efforts of legislating bodies to plug the loopholes as fast as they are discovered and used have resulted in the present form of our national rules, a form so comprehensive and full of words as to offer guidance in every possible contingency and to be beyond the understanding of those unaccustomed to legal phraseology. Even now, lawyers deeply versed in the shades of meaning which may be read into words and phrases are able to evade the spirit of the law occasionally and so necessitate the insertion of still more complex arrangements of words.

The constitution of the A.M.S., for the sake of brevity and clarity is written simply. The spirit of the law is made clear, and the ideal of those who framed the constitution and of all loyal members of the society is an organization in which the spirit of the law is enforced and infraction of it punished. The ideal is not always realised. The simple form of the constitution offers a splendid opportunity for evasion to those who are willing to invoke the word instead of the spirit.

For instance, in general article 12, sec. 9, are the words; "The formation of fraternities or sorities composed of members of the society is forbidden." Those holding membership in established frats are left free by the word of the law to engage in fraternity activities in their private lives. Unfortunately, the influence of the frat. tends inevitably to enter their college life also. The spirit of the constitution is that the administration of student interests shall not be influenced by fraternity policies. It is regrettable that against this spirit it should be possible at the present time for the members of one fraternal body to hold practically all offices in a class executive and be in complete control of the business of that class. If such a condition is to be remedied, the remedy must be found through one of two courses, a revision of the constitution in careful terminology, or a defeat of the movement by a public-minded majority of students.

—T. R.

The Well-Dressed Gridmen

Attired in their natty new uniforms, the football team of Saint Mary's recently made a striking debut. Their uniforms were resplendent with silvery helmets, blue leather belts, and jackets and scarlet pants.

BOSTON TECH — Two professors at this school have invented a machine which will shuffle and deal out four bridge hands in four seconds.

SONG OF THE PRESS

Although working on a Journal
Maynt be everybody's sport
There's a certain zest about it
Which I luckily have caught.
So I spend my waking moments
Getting copy for the press,
And I worry and I ferret,
With a nosey stubbornness,
After all the little spicy
Unexpected bits of news
That are tit-bits for the public,
That will flutter and amuse
All the spinsters in the parish
And the local tittle-tattlers.
All the ancient scandal mongers
And the old vindictive prattlers:
And if at times I falter
And my pen may droop and tire,
It isn't long before again
I find prophetic fire
And so the years will see me
Growing older with the press,
And for all the fascination,
Growing weary more or less.
Yet there'll always be a pleasure
In the tyranny of print,
And I know because I've found it,
So I'll give you just a hint
Of the way that you can find it—
Come along and try your hand,
And if your type is the right type
Come along! You'll find it grand.

GRUBFLEET

From Trapper to Wearer
FURS
McKAY
149-151 Brock St. Phone 603

FOR RENT
NEW TUXEDOS
Fifteen Dollar Clothe Shop
79 Princess St.

ROY M. LONGO
With Geo. Salstone's Orchestra
Teacher of
Tenor Banjo, Mandola, Mandolin, Tenor Guitar, Spanish Guitar, String Bass, Arranging, Harmony.
212 Division St. Phone 1434-W

PHONE 1732 PHONE
NESBITT'S TAXI
25c Service, including dances
Res.: 403 Johnson St.
Garage: 407 Johnson St.

GRINHAM'S
FOR BOOKS
Drop in and Browse Around
Any Time
3 Doors above the Capitol

MEDS. FORMAL DANCE
Decoration Pictures
The Marrison Studio
Phone 676—Res. 252 92 Princess Street

DINE AND DANCE TO-NIGHT
YOU'LL FIND THE FINEST FOOD AND DANCE FLOOR AT THE
ROY YORK CAFE
271 PRINCESS STREET For Parties and Reservations 'Phone 1150
MEAL TICKETS—14 meals for $4.25! A real saving for read food servings!
Bring the girl friend — No extra charge for dancing to our radio and electrola
Watch daily papers for dance orchestra announcements

The Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL

JACK'S THE BOY

with Jack Hulbert and Cicely Courtneidge

Mr. Hulbert's comedy is graceful and easy, arising as often from his own charm as from a native ability for clowning. Much the same may be said for Cicely Courtneidge, who, we are gravely informed, is Jack's wife. The implied cachet is not just; Miss Courtneidge is as able a comedienne in her own right as is her husband in his. Her comedy is a little broader, perhaps, but it is in the tradition of such luminaries as Bea Lillie, if one may advance the name of a younger actress. It is the comedy that wins its audience with one particularly happy gesture, with one wink, with one tilt of the head.

"Jack's The Boy" has no pretentious scenic effects, few mechanical tricks to assist its comedy and few of the photographic devices customary in the Hollywood comedy. Yet it is superior to most Hollywood comedy. This is due mainly to the fact that Mr. Hulbert and Miss Courtneidge are finished artists. But there is another point in its favour. "Jack's The Boy" is a sort of musical comedy. Now there come, in most musical comedies, those ridiculous moments when the leads go off into their song-and-dance numbers as if suddenly prompted from the rear by a perspiring director. These difficult moments in "Jack's The Boy" clicked so convincingly that one felt certain the actors quite suddenly found themselves irresistibly impelled into singing and dancing.

The scene in Madame Tussand's gallery is simply swell. In fact, "Jack's The Boy" could be seen twice with no pain. A—

AT THE TIVOLI

Matheson Lang with Dorothy Boucher in

CARNIVAL

Matheson Lang, playing the part of "Othello" in a Venetian theatre runs up against a parallel situation in real life. He finds that Silvio, his wife, who is playing Desdemona is not behaving herself.

Silvio, the rather passionate wife is easily wrought upon and cannot stand to have her plans thwarted. In a moment of disappointment she goes out to a ball in an extremely attractive dress with a soldier with no good motives. Her husband, who should have gone away on a train, of course misses it and returns home to find that his wife has gone out and left the greater part of her dress at home.

The plot follows that of Othello with a few necessary changes to modernize it. After a rather poor start the picture improves in acting till the scene of Desdemona's death, taken directly from Shakespeare. The final scene is anticlimactic and if the story had ended in the preceding scene we might have appreciated it more.

The Iago of the plot is rather overdone and appears as a cheap imitation of Zazu Pitts. Andrea the seducing soldier is quite convincing in his love scenes and does not overdo his part as the two main actors are inclined to do. B.

QUEEN'S
(Registered Design)
CREST PINS and RINGS

OFFICIAL ARTS
(Registered Design)
CREST PINS AND RINGS

Were designed and are supplied only through

A. E. Edwards
Insignia Jeweller
22 Yonge St. Arcade Toronto, Ont

Our Kingston Representatives:
SMITH BROS. LTD.
Jewellers, Etc.
102 Princess St. Kingston

They make ideal Christmas Gifts, and the name "Edwards" on the back identifies them as distinctive, and the finest made.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS
Something Entirely New
Grant & Kingston Halls, Theological College, Miller Hall, Douglas Hall, in plain or colored. Neat engraved greeting. Order Early.

The Jackson Press
PRINTERS
173 - 175 - 177 Wellington St.

THE GLADSTONE BAG
is recognized as one of the most useful, convenient and practical, travelling companion.
SWAFFIELD'S LEATHER SHOP
Phone 1941 86 Brock Street

ROBT. J. REID & SONS
FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING
Local and Long Distance Ambulance
Equipment the best. Prices the lowest.
230-234 Princess St. Phone 3800 Night or Day

Capitol Theatre Usher Airs Views On Reviewers

Continued from page 1

The professor has spent years of his life in preparation for his field of activity and is thus qualified to speak with authority. In like manner the picture director is an authority in his own line and the puerile attempts of reviewers becomes both laughable and valueless.

Pictures are all divided into types, Tommy claimed. Thus if a reviewer does not like a certain type—Laurel and Hardy humour or the frothy Chevalier offerings to mention only two—it does not mean that the picture is not good. In such a situation the reviewer should stay away, instead of being bored by the show and later panning it unduly.

"What do you think of English pictures, Tommy," we then asked with anticipation. A frown came upon his face and we knew at once what he thought of them. So we reframed our question. "How bad are they?" "Terrible", he shot back at us without hesitation. They're lost for plot. "Jack's the Boy" which is running now is a good example of a poor show. "Take that ladder scene. After making a mess of things they didn't know what to do, so what happened?" "Turned to something else," we suggested. "That's it," he exclaimed, "poor technique. No artistry at all!" Another thing with these English pictures," Tommy went on, "the recording is bad, it's not any where near the quality of Hollywood recording. You see, they haven't the money. Their sets and props are cheap."

Feeling that we knew what was wrong with the English productions, we asked him what he thought of the present run of films coming out of Hollywood. We expected to get the old sales talk—that they're great, and that the public can't appreciate good shows,—but Tommy knows his movies and furthermore he's frank and ready to give justice where due, and to expose the artifices of Hollywood. "Production is at a standstill," he said. "One producer makes a hit and the others are satisfied to copy it." This is one of the things that Tommy has against Hollywood.

The conversation drifted to John Barrymore's latest hit, "A Bill of Divorcement." This picture is without a doubt the best that Barrymore has ever done, Tommy believes. But it is too heavy for a great box-office attraction. "This could have been the outstanding picture of the year," he said. But George Cukor's direction was not adequate, Cukor, Tommy explained is a director of comedies. He obtained his training under Ernst Lubitsch, and directed that great success "What Price Hollywood." Cukor is not a first rate director. He started work on "One Hour With You," but the cast would not work for him as he favoured Genevieve Tobin too much. Lubitsch had to be called in to finish the picture. Thus Barrymore was handicapped by Cukor's unsympathetic direction in his latest hit. That picture would have been much better if the heaviness had been relieved by appropriate music. Furthermore it was too much like a stage play.

"Smilin' Through" is Tommy's choice as the best picture to have been shown here this year. Ramon Novarro is his favorite actor, with John Barrymore coming second.

Tommy is keenly interested in every department of the motion picture industry and hopes to get somewhere in this field. He reads everything on the movies he can lay his hands on and knows all about the pictures weeks before they are shown on the local screens.

Book Chats

By R.M.

LONDON IN MY LUTE

By Winifred James.

(London, Chapman & Hall)

The contents of this book first appeared as separate sketches in two English newspapers, the London Daily Chronicle and the Yorkshire Post. The matter-of-fact reader who expects, from the title, to get a description of the great metropolis such as Mr. H. V. Morton would write, may get somewhat of a surprise, as the London of the title is symbolic, not so much of the city as it is of the nation.

Writing in the first person, Miss James has a splendid opportunity not only to make objective observations of people and places and events, but also to add a personal opinion or to point to a moral. All this she does with such finish, and with such delicate touches, that, unless one is on the alert, much significant meaning and subtle humour which lies veiled between the lines will be lost as one reads through the lines.

The subjects chosen by Miss James show as great versatility in matter as in the manner of treatment. They are compiled in seven major groups, each of which contains a varying number of sketches. Many of these sketches carry with them titles which, while possibly misleading to the casual reader, display much of the subtleness and quaint humour in which the book is so rich. Thus such characters as door to door agents are dealt with under the almost forbidding title of Highwaymen, while the crews of merchant ships are lauded as England's Ambassadors. The significance of each heading, however, is apparent.

The first group of sketches, entitled "The Return", sets forth the impressions of the writer after an absence of three years in America. "Homes and Gardens", the second group, depicts scenes of domestic life. Group III, "The Wonderful Village", consists of several unique pictures of London life. In the fourth group Miss James becomes somewhat personal, and makes some pointed remarks about her own sex under the title of "Lovely Woman." A cross-section of business life is depicted in the fifth group, but it is not big business, as its title, "Curiosity Shops", will indicate. Not only are we given a picture of these unique stores, but a description of those curious people who enter by their doors or pass by their windows. From the beginning of history the British have been a seafaring people, and this part of English life is the theme of "England Abroad," the last large group of sketches in the book.

England to-day, set in scenes of the England of yesterday. That is well. But what of tomorrow? The answer is found in two sketches which comprise the final group, and go by the title "Little England." In her survey of youth the authoress is evidently re-assured, for her concluding sentence reads:

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth. . " " —W. S. L.

Queen's Co-ed Debaters Beat Varsity And McMaster

Continued from page 1

gislature concerning the purity of the movies was made to control this situation and that unless they did so, it had failed. Keeping in mind the fact that the movies have a direct bearing on public morals, Miss Adams maintained that Government censorship would remove any matter prejudicial to nations and national concerns, protect the rights of the minority, help to destroy wrong impressions conceived by Oriental nations about Western countries and thereby raise national prestige. That personal liberty is a common right in western countries, but that lack of censorship endangered morality, which thus becomes a public question, was also a focal point.

Miss Marjorie Brittain of the opposition argued that Government censorship was not in accord with our standards of law and order, equalling as it does a class regulation, that the average censor board did not represent public opinion and that this evil was so predominant that the producers had formed their own censorial board.

After a short rebuttal by Miss Wilkins, the discussion was thrown open to the floor of the house. Lively arguments then ensued, and the vote of the house was in favour of the Affirmative, a decision in which the judges, Mrs. L. H. Miles, Dr. McKenzie-Naughton and Mr. MacLelland concurred.

The possession of the Memorial Book which is the Intercollegiate award will be determined by points, but it is very possible that the Levana Society will hold this award for Queen's through the double victory of the debating team.

OH,

sure... that's the way they did it in '87... but act your age!

THE boys of '87 did things in a different way. They took buggy rides, of a Sunday, behind docile nags (unless the Livery Man had a sense of humor!) . . .

They danced the Schottische with a slow and easy grace (unless they happened to know the disgraceful two-step!)

They wrote laborious letters to the folks back home with stubborn, raspy pens (unless they were pressed for time and didn't write at all!)

But listen to what the boys of today do.

They buzz away over week-ends, behind eight-in-line engines that can do eighty without half trying;

they fume through fox-trots that would make an acrobat green with envy;

they go to telephones and, almost in a jiffy, are talking with the Home Folks.

How Tempus does Fugit!

(P.S. This is NOT an automobile ad or an ad for your favorite dance orchestra? Just a reminder that telephoning Home is the modern way of keeping in touch.)

QUEEN'S STUDENTS!
30 YEARS HIGH-CLASS PHOTOGRAPHY
C. H. BOYES
TELEPHONE 2116-M 253 PRINCESS ST.

Superior Tea Rooms

For years the most popular place for students. Everything is our own. Pastry, Light Lunches, Home Made Candy. For your party order your ice cream from us. Now we can give you our own

"Superior DeLuxe"
Kingston's Finest Ice Cream

204 PRINCESS STREET PHONE 648

Science Team Shatters Medicine's Hopes Of Winning Interfaculty Rugby Honours

*Continued from page 1

ed upon at this time of the year, though it was a bit sticky around the centre mark. A fairly large crowd was on hand when the teams lined up for the kickoff. Even Levana was represented by a dozen odd fans. Imagine! to watch Meds. and Science play.

Science elected to kick off with what sun there was shining into the faces of Medicine, and a slight wind advantage. Meds. returned to midfield, but their wings gave the Science half no yards and they were penalized the usual. A Science buck was stopped, and then the Engineers were penalized 10, to bring play back to centre. An end run gave Science 15 yards and they were in position to kick for a point, which they did. Science 1, Meds. 0.

The Miners began to heave forward passes with considerable luck, and Meds. seemed powerless to stop them. McCullough was doing nice booting for Meds. but his line was not holding, and Science gradually worked the ball up the field. Meds. interferred with a Science forward pass and it was awarded to the Engineers though the ball was grounded. From twenty-five yards out, McMahon kicked for a point putting Science two up. Meds. scrimmaged on their 25 and got about 6 on a buck. Once again the wings gave Science no yards and another penalty set Meds back. They don't seem to be able to do a thing right, but are they trying. Science tried to kick across the field for a third point, but the boot was too far for the wings and the Meds. ran it out as the quarter ended. Science 2, Meds 0. The first period was all Science. Aided by the breeze their kicks were better, but they worked forward passes well and plunged steadily.

To start the second quarter Meds. had the breeze and began a punting game. They came to with a nice long forward pass that was a thriller. The receiver picked the pill out of the air with a half dozen Engineers looking on. A buck gave Meds 2, and on the next play Jack Finley was ruined. A high snap on the last down gave Science the ball on Meds. 25. 'Twas a heartbreaker when the team showed signs of perking up. The Science kick bounded along the ground through both teams for a point. Science 3, Meds 0.

Following the Meds. scrimmage on their 25, another terrible snap lost yards, and they had to kick. Science took the boot on the gallop to Meds 44, and they kicked on the first down hoping for a Med. fumble. Another Meds. snap went flooey. The doctors began a march that showed up their real worth. A forward pass completed put them on their 33, a buck got 4 and a second forward to Morar who smashed his way to Science 45. This looked like a big moment for Meds. as they were playing perfect rugby. Another forward was grounded, a buck only got three yards and they were forced to kick, the lift going to Science 12, and they were in Engineers' territory. The knights from Miller Hall could get nowhere through the Med. line and had to kick, the Med. half taking the punt on the run to place it on Science 32. McCullough easily kicked for a point, making the score Science 3, Med. 1. This may be Meds. game yet. They kept up the steam, and forced Science to kick from their 25. On the return boot, Science tried for yards, making 9 on the first two bucks. They elected to try and buck the odd yard, but the Med wall stiffened and Science lost the pill. Meds should have had another point here, but the kick was short and Science ran it out. The quarter ended with the engineers still 2 up, the score being Science 3, Meds 1. Meds. looked much better in this quarter and had a distinct edge on the play. They should have had more points.

Meds. kicked off from the South to begin the second half. Then followed ordinary rugby with bucks and kicks the rule and neither line in danger. Meds seemed to have lost their spurt and Science pushed relentlessly. Meds were back near their own line when their halves allowed a long Science kick to bound back farther than it should have, before picking it up. A Science penalty eased the pressure, but a Med. forward was intercepted and they were in dutch again. But Meds. took a hand at intercepting and the ball came back to Meds. at the thirty. A long Meds. kick was taken at centre, and galloped back 5. Weir, who had been doing some useful plunging, got 9 and a long kick put Science another point up. It was a beautiful kick against the wind and deserved a point. That ended the scoring for the period. Science 4, Meds. 1.

The going became rough in the last quarter. Science hadn't a safe enough lead and Meds. had to do it then or never. A Med. was laid out, and How Hamlin caressed his shapley limbs. The patient saw Manager "Doctor" Denny Smith approaching and got up hurriedly. Meds. tried more forwards in a desperate attempt to get up the field but over anxiousness spoiled them. There was no further scoring though Meds. were backed into their own end when the final whistle blew.

The Teams:

Meds.—Flying wing, Churchill; snap, Watt; insides, Caughey and Earle; middles, Munrie, McManus; outsides, Swartz and Daniels; quarter, Mack; halves, MacCullough, Nesbitt and Morar; subs., Josephson, Shenkman, Susman, Hughes, Miranti, Breckenridge, Countryman, Murphy, Finley, Clarke, Miller, Malone. Manager, Denny Smith; Coach, How Hamlin; Water-boy, Fergie O'Conner.

Science — Flying wing, McMahon; halves, W. McMahon, Wing, Scott; outsides, Myers, Beisenthal; middles, Teague, Willgar; insides, Isbister, Soles; snap, Austin; quarter, Oille; aides, Megill, Gray, Timmerman, Wright, Hall, Smith, Lewis, Olsot, Sheppard, Stuart; manager, Klotz; trainer; coach and field general, Lackey.

Officials—Head Linesman, Bill Carr; Referee, Dr. Bill Campbell; Umpire, Abe Zvonkin; Yardsticks, Sir Parkes and Harry Bulford; Timers, Anderson and Hoskings.

SPORTS SLANTS

A big hand for the Science Interfaculty Champs. They have a mighty strong team and are worthy champions, having demonstrated their worth in three strenuous games.

* * * * * *

The senior hockey team will not make the customary jaunt across the border this Christmas.

* * * * * *

Basketball as played in Uncle Sam's land is a mighty speedy game. The senior team found this out on their tour, when they dropped both games. Even small colleges have large squads of great ability.

* * * * * *

From now on the burning querry is, "Can the Faculty take it?" May every student throw the faculty for a distinct loss in the forthcoming exams.

* * * * * *

Christmas presents wanted by Charlie Hicks: Two or three Batstones and the same number of Leadleys for the next year's team.

Oregon Professor Finds Another Use for Oatmeal

Mother may give Johnny and Mary oatmeal with cream-and-sugar for breakfast, or you may feed it to your dog when his ears don't seem as perky and lively as usual—but that isn't the use that Dr A. R. Moore has for oatmeal.

Dr. Moore, professor of physiology both here and in Corvallis, has in his laboratory in the basement of Deady hall a dozen small dishes, each containing a little oatmeal. On top of the cereal he has placed a small amount of slime-mould, a yellowish-green substance—no one knows whether an animal or a plant—which eats the grains out of the oatmeal.

This slime-mould is one of the queerest things known. It grows in the woods on fungus, eating them the same as it does the oatmeal. Dr. Moore obtained the slime-mould from Massachusetts, dried in an envelope. He kept it for a year in this dried form, and yet when it was placed on a dish of oatmeal, it commenced to grow, eating the grains in the cereal and moving from one side of the dish to the other.

It isn't a plant and it isn't an animal — or perhaps it is both. That is one of the things Dr. Moore is trying to discover with his experiments.

He watches over it as carefully as mother feeds Johnny oatmeal, keeping it in a dark room which is separated from his regular laboratory by a winding passage, strangely reminiscent of the "Hide in the Dark" and "Topsy Turvy" houses at the fair. He says it grows better back there.

Dr. Moore has some other experiments on hand, too. He is crossing sea dollars and sea urchins — in case you aren't informed, those are some of the things you find at the beach, and, he says, are biologically as far apart as lions and giraffes. However, he doesn't know much about the sea animals yet, so that must be left to another time.

—Oregon Emerald.

OHIO STATE—Last year campus organizations held 658 dances on and off the campus. Of these, 601 were given by 106 Greek letter organizations, averaging 5.67 dances each. 35 other organizations combined raised the total by 57 more. Phi Mu Delta headed the list with 14 functions while Delta Tau Delta was second with 13 dances.

NEW YORK COLLEGE—Editors of Mercury, comic magazine at City College here, turned their talents to scrubbing last week, when a chance visit of Dr. F. B. Robinson, president of the college, to the Mercury office resulted in a decree that the artistic efforts of several student generations on the walls of the office must come off. The president supplied the soap for the removal, and the campus humorists supplied the elbow grease.

HUDDLE GETS BOLT

When lightning struck the boys in a football huddle on the athletic field of Woodmere academy in New York, 18 were felled and one died a few hours later, never regaining consciousness.

McMaster Application For Senior Rating Held Over

In the last issue of the Journal it was incorrectly reported that McMaster's application for competition in Track and Field, with Queen's, Varsity and McGill, had been refused. It was also stated that Varsity was the university that had moved that McMaster be kept out, but this is not the case.

As a matter of fact, McMaster's application was not decided upon one way or another, but was simply laid over until the Spring meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. This move was taken, as it was felt that McMaster's team while of outstanding ability, was composed to a great extent of Freshmen, and they might not survive the examination grind, and so McMaster's team might be weakened next season.

This postponment was mutually agreed upon by all delegates including those from McMaster, and was not the result of Varsity or any other single university bucking the application.

The Professor Speaks

Professor Alexander W. Dimwit of Tuscaloosa University says that humming is the sign of a depraved mind. Evidently, according to the professor, it is a sign of degeneracy to try to "make things hum."

—Cornell Daily Pun.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY—Pistol shots needing no police investigation were fired from the steps of the University Hall to mark the start of the beard-growing contest held annually among the Northwestern students.

Novel Dining Scheme Supplies Cheap Meals

Ann Arbor, Mich.—At the University of Michigan, under the direction of Sher M. Quraishi, a Hindu student, about 100 faculty members and men and women are eating for $2.50 weekly at an experimental dining room. Here prospective boarders, may, several days in advance, inspect sample menus, prepared by professional dieticians from Ann Arbor High School and Michigan State Normal College Home Ec. department. Quantity buying, private contributions, exchanges for board, and gathering what would otherwise be wasted fruit and vegetables are allowed to exchange farm products for board.

Socialist students of the University maintain two rooming houses; in one, room and board cost $2.50 and three hours work per week; in the other, room alone $1.25 and three hours work per week. The work includes housekeeping, laundry and kitchen duty.

Affiliated Colleges Are Saving Soul Of Varsity

London, Ont.—"The affiliated colleges of the University of Toronto are saving its soul," said the Right Rev. C. A. Seager, Bishop of Huron, speaking at the birthday dinner of Huron College here last night. Denominational colleges on the campus university are "saving that university from becoming a great knowledge-factory that starts at eight and stops at six when the whistles blow," he said. Huron, Church of England theological college affiliated with the University of Western Ontario, was officially opened sixty-nine years ago.

Twenty-One to One!

A TIP TOP suit or overcoat is cut and tailored to your own twenty-one personal measurements. Fashioned with care from the finest of English Woollens, fit and satisfaction are guaranteed absolutely. Yet you pay only TIP TOP TAILORS' "Price of Quality."

A winner every time.

$22.50

MADE TO MEASURE

"It's ECONOMY to buy QUALITY when you can get it at this PRICE."

TIP TOP TAILORS

119 Princess St. E. Kerruish, Mgr.

XMAS SHOPPING AND XMAS EXAMS——

Christmas exams may be hard, but your shopping will be made easy if you do it at Laidlaws.

JOHN LAIDLAW & SON, LTD.

Men's Wear — Drygoods — Ladies' Ready-to-Wear

170 Princess Street

SPORT SPECIALS

SPALDING AND WRIGHT AND DITSON BADMINTON RACQUETS

HALF PRICE

WALLY CUSICK'S SPORT SHOP

202 Princess St. Tel. 1200

GRUEN  WATCHES

Watch Repairing Eyes Tested and Glasses Fitted

GRAHAM'S JEWELRY STORE

216 Princess Street Phone 1527

ERNIE CAIN

BILLIARD ROOM — 11 TABLES

The Room of Distinction

First Class Equipment First Class Service

TOBACCOS, CIGARS, ETC.

233 Princess St.

VanHorne's

Men's Shop

There is wasted money in your Dresser Drawer

Money tied up in Shirts and Pyjamas you'll never wear again because they have shrunk. Insist on Arrow Sanforized-Shrunk Shirts and Pyjamas. They cannot shrink out of size. Ask us to show you the new Arrow Shirts and Pyjamas.

213 Princess Street Phone 362

Frank Says: "One of the rules of the book of etiquette is, 'Never break your crackers or roll in your soup."

MANDARIN CAFE

Kingston, Ont. 331 King Street,

FRANK LEM. Proprietor

STUDENTS

MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT

Sakell's Tea Room

"We are pround of our Clientele"

Black and White Taxi
Phone 607
25c Service Day and Night And To All Dances

V. L. MORRISON.
320 KING ST. Near Whig-Standard
Our lines of Tobaccos, Cigars and Cigarettes are always complete
Soda Fountain and Lunch Counter in Connection
Drop in the next time you are down street and be convinced.

Why Walk Down Town?
SUDD'S BARBER SHOP
Cor. William & University
Lady's and Men's Haircutting
20c and 35c

Dr. Ernest B. Sparks
DENTIST
159 Wellington St. 'Phone 346

Dr. Rupert P. Millan
DENTIST
X-RAY GAS
Evenings by Appointment
141 Princess St. Phone 1859

Dr. Vincent A. Martin
DENTIST
105 Princess St. Phone 105
Evenings by Appointment

Dr. John C. Duff
DENTIST
X-RAY
157 Wellington St. Kingston, Ont.
Phones:
Office 3738 — Evenings 4037

DR. A. E. KNAPP
DENTIST
X-RAY
258 Princess St. Kingston
Phone 652-W

Dr. F. Waugh
DENTIST
106 Wellington St. Kingston
'Phone 256

Gartland's Art Store
PICTURES — FRAMES
ARTIST'S SUPPLIES
338 Princess St. Phone 1454W

R. TAITE
Baggage, Express and Moving
Checks called for without charge
By Motor Truck—Give us a call
Phone 1464 104 Montreal St.

Rideau Club Cigar Store and Soda Fountain
Opposite Roy-York Cafe
New assortment Dr. Plumb's Pipes.
New stock English Pipes.
Sundries. Magazines.
C. C. Henderson, Prop.

UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITERS
Latest Model Portables
10% off to students, easy terms
J. R. C. DOBBS & CO.
171 Wellington St

Relax And Refresh
Hot Chocolate and Toast
Sandwiches and Milk Shakes
M. R. McColl
University Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor
260 University Ave. Phone 41

Student Readers Endorse Editorial Policy

To the Editor,
Queen's Journal.
Dear Sir:

What, if anything, is going to be done about a drinking-fountain or three in the Arts Building? It seems a shame that when every public-school and collegiate in Ontario possesses them that a full-grown University should not.

The novelty of drinking from those dear little paper cups with blue borders around 'em has begun to pall on me. The expense of buying them for the next thirty or forty years will far exceed the expense of installing a few fountains. It does get a bit boring after the seventy-ninth attempt at getting a drink of water from a reluctant tap in the Levana washroom.

Everyone, I am sure, knows that weakly protesting feeling with which one emerges, parched and panting from a dry lecture. Think of the renewed energy and eagerness with which Levana would enter her next class if she could wet the old whistle with a suspicion of icy aqua-pura en route.

Then too, imagine the convenient meeting-place a drinking fountain or so would afford. You know—the "Meet Me At the Fountain" idea. Students of all sorts, shapes and sizes would foregather around its enamelled brim and discourse intelligently for the seyn minutes respite between lectures. As it is now, no one has the energy to foregather anywhere except the locker-room and then the chief topic of conversation is the prospect of a date or the lamentable price of "Gold Flakes."

Can't you pictnre, Mr. Editor, the eager, interested happy faces which would greet every prof.—no matter how DRY a lecturer he be? Can't you pictnre the earnest absorption of what little knowledge can be gleaned from each lectnre? Can't you realize that drinking-fonntains would revolntionize the student outlook on life?

The prisoners at Portsmouth rioted because they were tired of licking cigarette papers. A small thing, you may say. Ah yes! But they created a stir, the authorities investigated and took steps to improve the situation. Let us begin an insurrection for a far more important issue! Let our slogan be "Drinking-fountains for pale people!!" Down with paper cups, the instruments of the Devil! Wotthehell! We want water! And mind you, none of your ideas about one measley little fountain that won't accommodate a canary! We want at least two on each floor—man-sized drinking fountains—big ones—ones we can swim in if we wanta!

Ever thine,
LEVANA SOPH.

Dec. 5th, 1932.
The Editor,
Queen's Journal.
Dear Sir:

As you will doubtless agree there is a definite limit to the amount of dry biscuit one can absorb without having anything to drink with it. If you have something to drink the ability to absorb biscuit is materially increased. The same holds true of the lectures we are exposed to in the Arts Building. We need something to wash them down. We must have a drinking fountain.

I am at a loss to understand how the engineers overlooked this fact when the building was renovated last year. Is it possible that the engineers harbonred a grudge from their student days when their inferiority to Arts students was so obviously revealed and that having it in their power to get revenge on us it has taken the form of cutting off our water supply. No. Mr. Editor, I think not; the average Science student becomes almost human a few years after he has left college. There is not a conspiricy against us.

No doubt the lack of fountains was due to an oversight when the building was being relined. This mistake must be rectified; the Christmas holiday provides an opportunity for the fountains to be installed with a minimum of inconvenience to everybody and I feel sure that the authorities will take the necessary action.

J. P.

Dec. 5th, 1932.
Kingston, Ont.
To the Editor,
Queen's Journal,
Queen's University, Kingston.
Dear Sir:—I wish to express my approval of your article entitled "Co-ed Drinking Facilities," which appeared in a recent edition of the Jonrnal. The girls have no drinking facilities whatever in the New Arts building, and as a member of Levana, I feel that I am expressing the sentiments of the co-eds as a whole, when I say that this situation ought to be remedied. If a fountain is not feasible I might suggest a sanitary drinking cup arrangement such as has been installed in the girls' room in the library, which would at least be an improvement on present conditions.

Sincerely yours.
REFORMER.

Fire Chief Entertains Delegation From Levana

(Continued from page 1)

ing through her tears, mounted a scaffold which was between fifteen and seven hundred feet high. (Mere woman is such an erratic judge of distance) modestly clutched her skirts in one hand and bravely waving fond farewells with the other, she was fastened to the aforementioned belt and told to jump — just jump! She sailed down slowly and stately save for an occasional slap she received as the wall swayed out to meet her. The other fear-stricken lassies were similarly initiated. Two hefty firemen went down together to prove its dependability. This playful form of rescue is to be adopted in future in the annexes. Seeking more excitement the girls exerted themselves to the extent of sliding down the fireman's pole from one story to another. One enthusiast shot down faster than she intended and met the mat at the bottom in record time. As a parting shot the Chief mumbled something about Queen's students who painted sacred Kingston hydrants with red, blue and yellow stripes!

CHICAGO UNIVERSITY — Robert Johnson, former geology student of the university requested Prof. R. T. Chamberlain of the university's geology department to act as his advisor in connection with an ambitions plan to map the bottom of the Pacific ocean. Johnson proposes to take soundings over a two year period, equipped with sensitive depth-finding apparatus.

The Observer

MORTGAGING THE FUTURE

There has been a tendency in international policy during the past twelve months to place great emphasis upon immediate advantage without regard for what the future may bring, or be expected to bring as a result of present action. There has been the spectacle of Japan alienating China; France losing the sympathy of England, and Britain and Ireland drifting farther apart. Some observers would go yet farther and find in the Ottawa Trade agreements the beginning of a rift between Canada and the States, the British Empire and the rest of the world.

It is not necessary to go to such lengths as this last. But there is ample reason for wonder whether it is always good policy from any point of view to sacrifice good will to so-called economic realities. The Sino-Japanese problem is a case in point. When all has been said, is Japan as well advised as she seems to think in running the risk of permanently alienating her best customer in return for economic security via Manchuria. The mills of the gods may possibly grind Japanese trade with China so exceeding small that the Manchurian adventure instead of a diplomatic tour de force may prove no better than a signal defeat.

There has of late in Europe, thanks to the humanizing and liberal influence of Herriot upon French policy, been something of a rapprochement between England and France, a movement assisted by the urgency of events too evident to be overlooked. Even so it remains true to say that relations between France and England were so strained by the financial crisis of last-autumn that accord has not been easy to reach. Moreover the tub thumping of the London Press Barons continues to exert a thoroughly pernicious influence. Had it not been for the pressure of economic depression, European co-operation might have been postponed at the risk of the gravest consequences. As it is, the signs, though more reassuring of late, are not altogether favourable, and it is impossible not to feel that French post-war policy, by refusing to recognize the necessity of establishing harmonious Franco-German relations before all else, has been an extravagant failure.

The Anglo-Irish tariff war is so evidently detrimental to the interests of both parties concerned, but especially to Ireland, that it is difficult to believe it impossible for agreement to be reached. Here again is the spectacle of a widening rift between two countries whose interest should rather draw them even closer together. What the effect of a continuance of the present situation may be cannot be forecast, but is seems reasonably certain that eventually after a great deal of ill feeling has been aroused on both sides a compromise of some kind will be achieved. Meanwhile a new barier of antipathy and discontent will have been raised between England and Ireland, to the grave disadvantage of both nations. Whether a policy that is likely to produce such unhappy results can be justified on any national grounds is at least open to question.

SCIENCE '33 MEETING

There will be a year meeting of Science '33 in the large lecture room of Carruthers Hall on Thursday, December 8, at 1 p.m.

Business—Election of Permanent Executive.

All out.

Toronto Orchestra To Play At Arts Formal

Arrangements have been completed with Murray Griss of Toronto to supply the music for the Arts formal which takes place on January 27th. This orchestra has just completed a series of engagements at the University of Toronto and has created a very favorable impression there. At the recent Hart House Masquerade Murray Griss's orchestra was acclaimed as the finest group of players yet presented.

The decorations committee are drawing up plans for a modernistic scheme which will be entirely new. The traditional favours will again be distributed and there is no doubt that the ladies will be proud of their souveniers. All lighting effects will be in charge of an expert especially chosen for the occasion.

There will be no price change from previous years. New high standards of quality in music, decorations and food will be had at the former prices. The committee is working hard to make sure that the event will be an outstanding success from every point of view.

Now is the time to start thinking of the lady-friend. Make sure she starts the New Year right by giving her a bid to the Arts Formal.

UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA—A student of the University was stopped hy a policeman while walking on the streets of Paris late one night last summer. He was released immediately when he offered the policeman a ham sandwich.

Well, Well Well!

The other day the University of California had a Free Beer Day. —similar to our Tap Day here.
—Yale Daily Brews.

Exchange Benefits Queen's

Owing to the difference in exchange of the Canadian and American dollars, the first instalment of the Carnegie Grant will be approximately $5,800 instead of $5,000, as originally expected.

E. C. Kyte Will Lecture To Montreal Librarians

Mr. E. C. Kyte will visit Montreal tonight to deliver a lecture to the Quebec Library Association on First Editions. He will also speak on Wednesday morning to the McGill Library School on "Poetry at Present."

The latter lecture, which is the same as one given by Mr. Kyte at Columbia University last Monday, will deal with the traditional background of modern poetry. Just as Wordsworth led the Romantic Movement in revolt against the debased diction of the eighteenth century verse towards a new simplicity, so in recent years poets have sought an escape from the Victorian rigidity of Tennyson, Browning and others. Essentially there is little innovation in modern poetry, Mr. Kyte contends, and in support of his argument he will adduce "the three greatest modern poems"—"The Testament of Beauty," "John Brown's Body," and "Reynard the Fox."

The lecture to the Quebec Library Association on First Editions will have particular reference to the 1928 Jerome Kern sale in New York and will draw a comparison between prices then and now. Mr. Kyte will shew that the depression has not had much effect in reducing the prices of any books of first class value and importance.

WELCOME
QUEEN'S STUDENTS...
NEW IDEAS IN MEN'S WEARING APPAREL
SUITS AND O'COATS PEPPY PATTERNS
They Need Not Be Loud
Made-to-Measure or Ready-to-Wear
FROM $25.00
ALSO EXCLUSIVE HABERDASHERY
CHAS. ST. GERMAIN
Clothier & Haberdasher
Royal Bank Bldg. The Students' Shop

Students !
SEND THE JOURNAL TO YOUR FRIENDS AND TO THE FOLKS BACK HOME
THE EASIEST WAY TO KEEP THEM POSTED ON CAMPUS ACTIVITIES
ONLY $1.00 FOR THE REST OF THE YEAR
Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager, Queen's Journal.

Queen's CAFE -- The Student's Dining Room
Hall up-stairs for class dinners
Light Lunch, Hot Drinks served until 12 p.m.
'Phone 1128 W. J. ARNEIL, Caterer
China and Silverware to rent
Board $5.00 per week—Without Breakfast $4.00 per week

FOR YOUR YEAR DANCE
Charlie Hopkirk
RADIO ORCHESTRA
Phone 2262

PIANO JAZZ
Taught in
20 LESSONS
Beginners or Advanced
ERNIE FAULKNER
(Pianist of George Saltstone's Orchestra)
43 Montreal St. Phone 1169

Freeman Waugh, Jr.
INSURANCE
Phone 703 67 Clarence St.

FURS
GOURDIERS
78 Brock St. Phone 700

EVERYTHING ELECTRIC
BURKE'S
244 PRINCESS ST.
'Phone 423

LOOK--
FOR THE NEXT
10 DAYS WE OFFER
YOU
C. & E. LEWIS'
Famous English
Shoes
for $6.95
Every pair fully guaranteed. Sold in many places as high as $9.50
An Exceptional Buy
Locketts
LIMITED
Est. 1878

DOES YOUR NOSE SHINE LIKE GLASS?
For a shiny nose—for an oily skin—you can find easy relief from these conditions by the regular application of
DU BARRY BEAUTY PREPARATIONS
by HUDNUT
Cleansing Cream $1.50
Skin Tonic and Freshener $1.00
Special Astringent . . . $1.50
Tissue Cream $1.50
AUSTIN'S DRUG STORE
PHONE 230
Cor. Princess & Wellington Sts.
WE DELIVER

THE CROWN CAFE
Table board (three meals daily) $5.00 per week. Meal tickets (21 meals) $6.00. Special rates for Banquets and Parties. Estimates cheerfully given.
Regular Full Course Dinner and Supper 35 cents
Phone 2836 Phillip Toy, Prop.

Newman Club Hears Dr. William Gibson

The regular monthly meeting was held in K. of C. Hall, Sunday, Dec. 4th. The speaker for the meeting was Dr. William Gibson, who delivered a most interesting address on his trip to the Eucharistic Congress held in Dublin, Ireland, during the past summer. His talk consisted of a resumé of a diary kept during the 10 days spent in Ireland. The Killarney Lakes, Newman Chapel, and the Bank of Ireland in Dublin were some of the interesting points of the talk.

Dr. Ryan, well-known Kingston speaker, also gave an interesting talk on the founding of the Newman Club.

During the past week the regular Club Discussion Groups were held in St. James' Chapel. These were well attended and quite interesting and instructive. The next Discussion will be held Friday evening, Dec. 9th, at 7 p.m.

Men's Debating Team Try-Outs To-Morrow

The team to represent Queen's in the Intercollegiate Debates next term will be selected at the trials on Wednesday, Dec. 7th. These will take place in room 201 of the Arts Building, from 4 p.m. onwards.

Candidates will choose anyone of the resolutions mentioned below and speak, without notes, for not longer than five minutes, either for or against.

Any of the following motions may be selected:

1. That kings are a useless appanage of an outworn convention.
2. That man is what he makes himself.
3. That orthodox religion has outlived its usefulness.
4. That vanity is the greatest of vices.
5. That there is no fool like an old fool.
6. That all professional sport ought to be abolished.
7. That pacifism is the policy of babes and sucklings.
8. That the present depression proceeds from moral rather than economic causes.
9. That man has ceased to progress and is heading for destruction.
10. That suicide may be a social virtue.
11. That this house deprecates the growth of modern advertising.
12. That revolution is the best policy.

Efficiency Plus!

